Freedom 'Fantastic' Reporter Exclaims

WIESBADEN, West Germany (UPI) — U.S. television reporter Jeremy Levin, reunited with his family following 11 months of captivity in Lebanon, said he believed four other missing Americans were held in the same villa with him.

Levin, who was Cable News Network's Beirut bureau chief when a gunman forced him into a car March 7, 1984, in the Lebanese capital, rushed into the arms of his family in a tearful reunion at the U.S. Rhein Main Air Base in West Germany Friday.

"Fantastic," shouted Levin, 52, on landing at the Rhein Main Air Base. He hugged his wife, Lucille, after a flight from Damascus, Syria, where he reported having made a harrowing escape from his Moslem extremist kidnappers Wednesday night.

Accompanied by his family, Levin was transported to Wiesbaden Air Force Hospital, where 52 U.S. hostages were taken after their release from Iran in 1981.

The plans of the family were not complete, but it was believed they would return to the United States today or Sunday, probably landing at Andrews Air Force base near Washington. Levin's family arrived Friday aboard a White House jet.

Describing his escape as "a cliché," Levin said he tied three blankets together, slid down from the balcony of the house in which he was being held in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and slipped into the darkness.

He said he ran to a highway and surrendered to Syrian troops, who control the Bekaa Valley. The reporter was then taken to Damascus, where Syrian authorities turned him over to the U.S. ambassador Friday morning.

Levin said he believed four other Americans kidnapped in Beirut over the past year were held in the same villa with him, but he did not see them.

"I believe there were four other people in the apartment because the room I was kept in solitary confinement in was next

Where Do I Splice?

Communications worker Charlie Baker, left, seems to be asking partner Robert Post where to splice as the pair work on a major above-ground telephone cable addition in the Longwood area. Employees of En-

Olympic Star Not Guilty Of Soliciting

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jurors took just two hours to find Olympic gold medalist Edwin Moses innocent of offering an undercover Hollywood policewoman $100 for two sex acts.

The world-famous athlete jumped up and hugged his attorney, wife and mother as the acquittal verdict was announced Friday, and spectators broke into applause.

"We couldn't be happier," said attorney Harold Lipton, a member of the defense team that escorted Moses and his family through a back door, avoiding reporters.

Moses was found innocent on a second ballot after more than two hours of deliberations. One juror said the first ballot was 10-1 in favor of acquittal. The second ballot was unanimous for acquittal.

Some jurors said they voted to acquit Moses of the misdemeanor charge because prosecutors had not proven the track star intended to have sex with the woman.

Moses, a gold medal winner in the 1976 and 1984 Olympics and world record holder in the 400-meter hurdles, was arrested Jan. 13 for offering Susan Gonzales, an undercover policewoman, $100 for two specific sex acts on a Hollywood street corner.

Although the woman told Moses to pull to a stop around the corner, he drove on and was stopped by other officers two blocks away.

Moses, 29, of Laguna Hills, had testified at his one-week trial he "had no intention of stopping ... had no intention of having sex with her."

"I don't believe he went there (Hollywood) with the intent to solicit. But I won't go as far as saying he was entrapped," juror Albert Moreau said.

"The evidence was not strong," juror Greg Weller said.

"A major factor in our acquittal was that he didn't stop his car" to have sex with the woman shortly before his arrest last month.

Following the verdict, prosecutor Michael Guarino told reporters, "It's clear we didn't overcome factors such as the defendant's popularity, celebrity and his sympathetic character ... We can't deny in this case the tremendous amount of sympathy for Edwin Moses. I'm proud of the effort we put in. I wasn't surprised by the verdict."

"When I was talking to him after the closing arguments, it was hitting me how difficult this was for him. Believe me, I haven't basked in this at all."

Despite the quick innocent verdict, sports agents have said Moses — who faced a maximum sentence of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine if convicted — still suffered irrevocable harm to his marketability in endorsing

Threat Part Of County Land Offer

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The county commission is offering to buy a 5-acre tract in Casselberry as a main library site, saying condemnation will be discussed if agreement on price cannot be reached.

Four county commissioners voted earlier this week to send a letter to Norman Rossman, representative of the developers' group owning the property, saying the county is willing to pay $340,000 (the appraised value) for the property and noting in the letter the commissioners "will discuss condemnation" if their offer is not accepted. Rossman had asked for $375,000 for the tract, north of state Road 436 on the Oxford Road extension, said County Commissioner Fred Streetman.

Streetman said Rossman had inquired whether the county was considering condemnation, which can be advantageous to the sell tax-wise. The letter to Rossman was sent over the strenuous objections of Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff.

Kirchhoff said if his colleagues purchase the site "in a fashion that indicates threat of condemnation, he will send a letter to the Internal Revenue Service telling them the county never intended to condemn land for libraries."

"I want the IRS to know the owners were not threatened," Kirchhoff said Thursday. He said it is his understanding that counties in Florida have the right to acquire property for general public purposes, for roads as an example, through condemnation (eminent domain). In California, he said, the right of eminent domain has been expanded to include condemnation for park lands.

"But I have not heard of condemnation for libraries," he said.

County Attorney Nikki Clayton said Saturday the county has the power to condemn for library sites.

The advantage to an owner selling land under threat of condemnation, Kirchhoff said, is that the seller may not have to pay taxes on the capital gain.

Meanwhile, Hester Donziger, of the Jacksonville office of IRS, said the owner of a piece of business property "under condemnation or threat of eminent domain" may postpone paying taxes on capital gains for the sale of the property by buying replacement property within two years.

Last summer when the county was considering buying Sanlando Utilities, the proposed purchase agreement included wording contending the utility was being sold under threat of condemnation.

Kirchhoff demanded removal of the words "threatened condemnation" from the proposed contract, saying the county had not threatened anyone in the utility business with condemnation.

He particularly objected to a remark from one of the staff that the wording was included to give the seller an income tax break. The wording was removed and the purchase of that utility fell through. The wording was also removed from the sales contract when the county bought the Greenwood Lakes Utilities.

Streetman also said the commissioners had a choice of voting for a letter to Rossman, saying condemnation would be discussed or would not be discussed.

He said if an acceptable price for the Oxford Road extension property cannot be reached with Rossman the county will then look for other sites. If other sites cannot be found, the commission may condemn the

Monument Set For Ceremony

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Sixty-six years after it was first dedicated, a monument honoring the men of Seminole County who died in World War I will be rededicated 1 p.m. Feb. 24 in ceremonies at the American Legion Post 53, Sanford.

Fifth District Congressman Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, and American Legion Department of Florida Adjutant Dyke Shannon will be the guest speakers. Other special guests invited to attend will include Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, Seminole County Sheriff John Folk, Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler, the county commissioners, American Legion Sixth District Commander Paul Ryan, commanders of area veterans organizations and veterans of World War I.

The ceremonies are open to the public.

The monument bears the names of the two men for whom the Sanford post was named — Frank A. Campbell and Arthur

ABA Told Law Firms Not Hiring Enough Minorities

DETROIT (UPI) — Few blacks, Hispanics and other minorities have reached top jobs in the white-dominated legal profession, and the American Bar Association should do something about it, the group was told this week.

A task force of the nation's largest lawyers group heard 20 hours of testimony by 85 witnesses that a tiny number of the nation's 25,000 minority lawyers are in major law firms, and still fewer are judges, law professors and bar leaders.

Blacks are "second-class citizens" in the white-dominated legal profession, Anthony Adams of the National Conference of Black Lawyers testified.

A 1984 survey by a lawyers' newspaper showed that few of the country's 100 largest firms employ Hispanics, while those same law firms have only 1.5 percent black lawyers, down from 2.9 percent in 1982.

Two Plants Fined For Violations

WASHINGTON — A key congressman says the government is guilty of "reckless optimism" in deciding there is only a remote chance of an accident similar to the chemical leak that killed 2,500 people in Bhopal, India.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of a House environment subcommittee, said he is disappointed in a report by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration Friday that concluded safeguards in U.S. factories using the same chemical involved in the Bhopal disaster make chances of a major accident "extremely remote."

But OSHA also said its inspectors have accused two plants that use the chemical methyl isocyanate of violating safety regulations.

OSHA proposed penalties totaling $4,200 against an FMC plant in Middleport, N.Y., and a Union Carbide facility in Woodbine, Ga. No further action will be taken until the two firms respond to the allegations.

Retired Man Kills Family, Self

CREVE COEUR, Mo. (UPI) — A police major who knew Virgil Twillman says the former sergeant killed his wife and two teenage children and then took his own life because he was depressed by the "unknown" of retirement.

St. Louis County police said Twillman, 53, called a daughter by a previous marriage to his house early Friday and told her, "It's a good day to die."

Twillman gave her the title to his home, other papers, some cash and several rifles and shotguns but refused to allow her inside. Upset, she went to a neighbor's and called police.

Officers surrounded the house but broke through the front door when they received no response from inside.

Hotel Torched Near Reagan Ranch

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — The hotel housing the traveling White House press corps and some of the White House staff was the scene of an apparent arson fire early Saturday.

Fire broke out at 3:15 a.m. along a street adjacent to the Sheraton Santa Barbara Hotel, just outside banquet rooms used by the White House Press Office and journalists.

Although the flames did not spread to the building, the fire destroyed one parked automobile and damaged a rented truck. No one was injured.

One fire official said the arsonist may have chosen the site for publicity, knowing the hotel is used by members of President Reagan's entourage when he is vacationing at his ranch 20 miles away in the Santa Ynez Mountains.

Israelis Pull Out Of Sidon; Residents Dance In Streets

SIDON, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli troops lowered Star of David flags and evacuated advance positions along the Awali River today — almost two days ahead of schedule — leaving the seaport to the Lebanese army and jubilant residents.

"The Lebanese army moved into the Awali River locations which the Israelis evacuated. Some Lebanese army units deployed there, and others pushed forward further south and have already reached the center of Sidon," witnesses said.

"The people of Sidon are out in the streets. Thousands are out on their balconies," the government-owned Beirut Radio said in a special bulletin. "... It's a day of rejoicing and celebration."

Shiite Moslem religious leaders, meanwhile, Friday called for a holy war against Israeli forces in southern Lebanon, amid increasing tensions linked to the pullout preparations in the port city of Sidon.

Military Rule Ends In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — Thousands of people cheered wildly and waved blue-and-white Uruguayan flags outside the legislative palace where a national congress was installed to end nearly 12 years of military rule.

The 130-member assembly Friday promptly called for the immediate release of about 200 political prisoners.

"The real winners today are the Uruguayan people, following more than 11 years of suffering, pain and persecution," Sen. Carlos Julio Pereyra of the center-left Blanco Party said.

Servicemens' Remains Found At Crash Site

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Investigators have found what are believed to be the remains of U.S. servicemen at the crash site of a Vietnam-era warplane shot down in southern Laos in 1972, an American official said Saturday.

Lt. Col. Richard Stevenson of the Pacific Command Liaison Office said the excavation team has located "what appears to be portions of human remains."

Thirteen servicemen of 16 originally on the plane are unaccounted for. Two others shared the plane, shot down on Dec. 21, 1972, bailed out and were rescued. Another body was recovered the next day. "This is a hopeful sign but still too early for excessive optimism, as much clearing and cutting of brush is being done around the impact crater to allow for a thorough search of the crash site," Stevenson said.

The C-130 Hercules transport plane, converted to a gunship, crashed at the foot of a remote plateau 24 miles northeast of the Mekong River city of Pakse. The plane had completed a mission and exploded when hit by Lao ground fire.

A joint U.S.-Lao team Sunday began excavating the site of the crash.

Positive identification of the remains are not possible until they are taken to the military's central identification laboratories in Hawaii, Stevenson said.

The announcement Saturday came four days after the U.S. Embassy said Vietnam would turn over five sets of remains of American servicemen.

The 13 crewmen are the largest numbers of U.S. servicemen listed missing at one site in Laos.

Washington lists 2,483 American servicemen as missing in action in Indochina, nearly 10 years after the conflict ended. There are 580 MIA cases in Laos.

The excavation is the first joint effort between the United States and any of the communist Indochina nations.

Speakes: There Is No Second Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House spokesman says the administration has not prepared for a "fallback" position on its drastic budget cuts as claimed by Senate Republican leader Robert Dole.

Dole said in an interview: "I've seen a list ... that indicates some areas where the administration probably thinks they're not going to achieve what they have in their budget, and agriculture is in that list."

The "unofficial" list included cuts in farm subsidies, Amtrak and student loans, but did not mention defense, Dole said.

"Absolutely untrue," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Friday in California, where he is staying with President Reagan. "There's no alternative list of budget cuts that represents a White House fallback position. ... It does not exist."

Speakes said Dole may have been referring to a list of possible cuts prepared by the Senate Budget Committee for review by other committees.

A Dole spokesman said later Friday the option paper, worked on by both White House congressional aiders, does indeed exist.

"It's a worksheet that's made the rounds on the Hill and at the White House," the spokesman said. "It basically is just a worksheet and nothing more."

Reagan's $973.7 billion budget, even with drastic reductions in domestic programs, is still $180 billion in the red and includes an inflation-adjusted increase in military spending of nearly 6 percent.

Although Reagan is "mindful ... that all legislation is the product of negotiation," Speakes said, "we are pushing for the full budget as we sent it up."

Dole said in the interview, to be published in the GOP's "First Monday" magazine, that White House officials are considering accepting changes in the recommended $16 billion in farm price support reductions over the next three years.

"There are going to be savings in agriculture but not to the extent of $16 billion," Dole said in discussing the White House working paper he said was shared with a few Senate GOP leaders.

"It's not any secret. You can go through that budget and say

Women Liked Reagan, But Not His Coattails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although women voters gave strong support to President Reagan in his 1984 landslide election, they disagreed with Republicans on key issues and their votes cost the GOP seats in Congress.

A report by Ethel Klein, a Columbia University political science professor, was released Friday in conjunction with the Women's Vote Project. The project organized efforts by 75 women's groups that registered 1.8 million new women voters in the 1984 election.

Klein said the nation's healthy economy and Reagan's popularity gave him 55 percent of the votes cast by women, despite his failure to support women's rights and the presence of a woman on the Democratic ticket.

"Despite Reagan's large popular support, the Democrats gained two Senate seats and held their losses in the House to only 14 seats," she said. "Without a substantial gender gap in these races, the results would have shifted dramatically in the president's favor."

"Clearly, the women's vote can deliver neither a resounding defeat nor victory in itself."

Correction

A front page picture in Thursday's Evening Herald incorrectly identified a Hamilton Elementary School teacher. She is Linda Bose, kindergarten teacher. Pupils at the school gave a Valentine's Day tea and cake party for the Dividends school volunteers.

Klein said. "But in competitive races waged between candidates sharply divided on the issues, the women's vote can, and will, make the difference."

She said four Republican Senate candidates, incumbents Roger Jepsen of Iowa and Charles Percy of Illinois and challengers Ray Shamie of Massachusetts and Jack Louama of Michigan all lost because they were opposed by a majority of women voters even though they captured the male vote.

WEATHER

NATIONAL WEATHER:

Clear but cold air pervaded most of the Midwest and Southeast, offering respite for the snowbound and allowing the National Guard to dig Ohio out of its disastrous snowdrifts. A high pressure system brought fair skies and unseasonably cold temperatures to most of the Southeast today, as snow dusted portions of the Great Lakes, upper Mississippi Valley and northern New England. "It looks a lot better than anything we've seen lately," said Jack Hales of the National Weather Service. "But we're not getting completely out of the woods." Although the skies in Ohio were clear, the week's snowfall forced Gov. Richard F. Celeste to declare a state of emergency in 22 of 88 counties. The Ohio National Guard worked overnight to clear secondary roads closed by 10-foot snowdrifts, hauling medical and other supplies to stranded residents.

Freezing temperatures hit northern Florida in the morning, and a frost warning was in effect for central Florida. Forecasters said the central Florida citrus groves would escape the freeze, however, with overnight temperatures of between 35 and 40 degrees. National Weather Service forecaster Ray Biedinger said the crazy weather of early 1985, which produced last month's killer freeze in the citrus, vegetable and sugar cane growing regions, would soon begin to moderate. "There might be a brief moderation — I won't say a warming trend because it's not going to be warm," Biedinger said.

March To Be Clean Up Month

March has been declared "clean up month" in Sanford.

Not only are residents encouraged to clean up their properties, but city service clubs will be involved in assisting where they can with their physical labor to accomplish the task.

The Sanford Rotary Club has designated March 16 as the specific clean-up day they are sponsoring, said City Commissioner John Mercer.

Mercer also said he has found someone who is willing to tow away junk cars during the month at no charge.

The city commissioners and Mayor Bettye Smith volunteered to participate after adopting a resolution endorsing the project.

Mercer said he thinks the project is a good one, crediting Commissioner Bob Thomas with the idea.

Man Kills Self As Police Move In To Arrest Him

ORLANDO (UPI) — Police investigated the background Saturday of a man who shot and killed himself in a fast food restaurant parking lot on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Winter Park, rather than face arrest on abduction and assault charges.

Billy Ray Owens, 38, of Orlando, died during emergency surgery at Florida Hospital, about two hours after he shot himself once in the head as officers moved in on him in the parking lot.

Owens was wanted for the abduction and assault on his estranged wife Wednesday night.

It was the second time in three weeks Owens had forcibly detained his wife. The first time, he held her hostage in a home in east Orlando for several hours Jan. 29 before giving himself up.

Agents Seize Jet In Drug Probe

MIAMI (UPI) — Customs agents seized the first jumbo jet ever taken in a drug probe — and found $600 million worth of cocaine aboard — but failed to nab any smugglers, and the incident erupted into a federal law enforcement squabble.

Customs officers discovered 2,478 pounds of cocaine concealed in a shipment of flowers aboard a $119 million Avianca Airlines Boeing 747 after it arrived Wednesday on a flight from Bogota, Colombia.

The flower shipment was bound for Montreal and, after replacing the cocaine with white powder, customs alerted the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and allowed the shipment to continue as scheduled on another flight.

But a spokesman for the Vice President's Task Group in Miami said there apparently was no evidence the drugs were intended for the people who picked up the flowers in Montreal and no arrests were made.

When the Avianca Airlines aircraft returned to Miami on a flight from Bogota at 5 a.m. EST Friday, it was seized.

Garn, Shuttle Rehearse Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Workers at the Kennedy Space Center, facing an increasingly tight schedule to ready the shuttle Challenger for blastoff by March 3, planned to load the ship's two-satellite payload Saturday at the launch pad.

If all goes well, Challenger's seven-member crew, including Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, was to participate in a dress-rehearsal countdown Sunday to clear the ship for launch.

The $1 billion shuttle originally was scheduled for liftoff on Feb. 20 but continuing work to overhaul the ship's heat-shield tile system prompted an 11-day delay and some tile work remains to be completed at the pad.

Wife Charged With Beating Husband

A woman arrested for beating her husband early today complained to deputies she broke her fingernails.

According to a sheriff's report, a deputy responded at 2:16 a.m. to the scene of a domestic argument at 1937 Vienna Drive, Casselberry.

When he got there, he found the husband, Ruben Pruitt Williams, locked in the spare bedroom of the home.

Williams said his wife entered his bedroom, cursed him, and then beat him up. The deputy reported that the man had several cuts and scrapes on his face a torso.

The deputy also noted that the 5-foot-2, 118-pound wife — a nurse's aide — had complained about several broken fingernails.

In his closing statement, defense attorney Ed Medvene argued his client had been singled out by police because he is a famous athlete.

“They know he's innocent,” he said, suggesting officers in effect had said, “Close the book on this guy, Edwin Moses, big Olympic hero. Nail him.”

Major Forrest Lake gave the oration, representing Gov. S.J. Cain.

The monument was presented to the county by F.L. Miller of the Milvia Marble Co. and was unveiled by little Beth Looming, sister of Arthur D. Looming, who was killed in France. Judge E.F. Householder gave the acceptance speech.

The marble monument is in the “form of a broken shaft, emblematical of the lives which were given to the cause of Right and Justice in the prime of their young manhood,” said the Herald, which added, “It will forever stand in Central Park as a constant reminder of the valorous deeds of these, our boys who gave their lives that others might live.”

The Soldiers' Monument was originally unveiled Feb. 23, 1919 in the Central Park — now known as Centennial Park — more than 1500 persons present from Seminole and adjoining counties, according to a news story in the Sanford Herald following the event. It was later moved to the American Legion property, which is located 3508 Orlando Drive (U.S. Highway 17-92).

A photograph taken at the original dedication will be on display at the post home.

G.W. Spencer was chairman of the 1919 program, which included “speeches of presentation and acceptance, as well as the oration were forceful and inspiring, touching upon the valor of Seminole boys who were lost in the Great Cause.”

...Threat

“If we can't buy anything, we will discuss whether to condemn any property,” Streetman said.

The purchase of the Oxford Road site was delayed early this year after County Librarian Jean Rhein said 3.5 acres of the 5-acre tract is useable, while the balance is wetlands.

However, County Engineer Bill Bush, a county official for more than 20 years, gave his opinion that about 2.5 acres of the tract may be useable with the balance unusable wetlands. He said Thursday that the only real way to tell if the soils even on the dry portion can support a building of more than one story is through soil borings.

The Casselberry library is supposed to be designed in such a way that a second story can be added for future expansion. The first story will be constructed initially will have 25,000 square feet. When expansion is needed, a second floor, also of 25,000 square feet, is to be built.

The Casselberry facility is to be the county's main library.

Ms. Rhein said Thursday the county has not received a survey of the property and probably won't receive one until March 6. She said when the topographical information is received, it will be sent to Bush for his review and evaluation.

Bush said he hasn't been contacted concerning the Oxford Road property since his initial review.

“But, the only way to know exactly whether the property can be used for a two-story building is soil borings to determine what is under the surface. The architect of the library facilities will need that information,” he said.

Missing are Presbyterian minister Benjamin Weir, 80, U.S. Embassy official William Buckley, 86, librarian Peter Kilburn, 60, and the Catholic Relief Services director in Lebanon, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 80.

Initial reports from Lebanon Thursday indicated Levin escaped. Syria at first said it helped win his release, then said he had escaped.

ABC News quoted U.S. officials as saying there were signs Levin's captors may have allowed him to escape and that Syria had a hand in the release.

CBS also quoted an unnamed U.S. official as saying “the United States has indications Syria was involved... in securing Levin's release.”

4 Guilty Of Buying Votes

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — One of four northwest Florida residents convicted of buying votes said he did poor people a favor by offering them up to $100 for blank, signed absentee ballots.

A federal court jury deliberated about four hours Friday, finding all four defendants guilty of conspiracy and numerous counts of buying votes in the 1984 Lafayette County sheriff's race.

Prosecution witnesses from the tiny, rural town of Mayo had testified they were promised money — as much as $100 — and liquor for handing over signed, blank absentee ballots.

“I was doing them a favor because I know what kind of (financial) shape they're in,” said Joe Adkins, who was convicted of 20 counts of vote fraud. U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul ordered pre-sentence investigations but set no date for sentencing. The defendants face maximum penalties of five years in prison and fines of $10,000 for each count.

Former Democratic state Rep. James Duffin Lancaster was found guilty of 24 counts of election fraud and was acquitted of four counts. Lancaster's lawyer, Daniel McKeever, said he feels he has grounds for an appeal.

Joe Adkins was found guilty of 20 counts and acquitted of four counts of vote buying. His wife, Myra Adkins, was found guilty of four charges of vote buying and innocent of two. Lisa Walker was found guilty of one count and innocent of one count of vote buying.

Prosecution and defense lawyers summoned about 10 percent of Mayo's 850 residents as witnesses during the trial.

Two 14-Year-Old Boys Charged With Sexual Battery

Two 14-year-old South Seminole County boys have been charged with sexual battery in connection with a Feb. 10 attack on an 11-year-old Winter Park girl.

One of the boys was charged Tuesday and the second Thursday. Seminole County sheriff's Capt. Jay Leman said. Both boys turned themselves in at the Sheriff's Department and after they were charged they were released to their fathers, Leman said.

The one of the two allegedly lured the girl from her home. He knocked on her door and told her a friend wanted to see her across the street. When she stepped out the pair chased her and threw her to the ground, a sheriff's report said.

The boy who lured her out reportedly stepped aside and the second youth forced the girl to perform oral sex, warned her not to tell and released her, the report said. The incident occurred around 7:45 p.m.

FIGHTING COUPLE CHARGED

Sanford police who reported breaking up a fight between a Sanford couple and charging the man with spouse abuse also charged the woman with battery on a police officer after she reportedly slapped a lawman.

Both suspects were also charged with disorderly intoxication. The man was released on $500 bond and the woman was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Police reported responding to a disturbance call at 1100 Cornell Drive at about 6:50 p.m. Thursday. Police reported having to break up the fight between the pair three times, with an officer getting slapped by the woman in the process.

Perry Oliver Mason, 47, and Barbara June Mason, 37, were arrested at their home. Mason is scheduled to appear in court Feb. 27.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

The thief who stole James R. McPherson's 1980 Mazda also got away with his .357-magnum handgun. The theft occurred Thursday while the car with keys in the ignition was parked at the Hitching Post, state Road 419, Chuluota. McPherson, 27, of 351 First St., Chuluota reported the theft of the $5,200 car and the gun to deputies.

Eddie Tossie, 72, of lot 6 Chula Vista, Oviedo, reported to deputies a jar containing $50 in pennies was stolen from his home along with a $60 shotgun and a .150 pistol around 8 p.m. Friday.

The $25 wallet containing $92 belonging to Paul Miguel Strong, 36, of 1256 Bridebrook Drive, Casselberry, was stolen from a locker at Holiday Health Spa, Butler Plaza, state Road 436, Casselberry, around 3 p.m. Thursday, a sheriff's report said.

Carolyn Jean Cooper, 25, of Jacksonville, reported to deputies $200 was stolen from her motel room at Quality Inn, Longwood, between 4:30 and 9 p.m. Thursday.

A gold nugget necklace and gold earrings with a combined value of $650 were reported missing from the home of Dorothy A. Wolfe, 60, of 3908 county Road 427, Sanford, between Jan. 28 and 31, a sheriff's report said.

Margaret C. Bateau, 28, of 4953 Courtland Loop, Winter Park, reported to deputies her boat, motor and trailer with a combined value of $33,000 was stolen from her driveway between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Carpet worth $3,500 was stolen from a home at 1884 Stonegate St., Longwood, according to a report Betsy Cushman, 49, Longwood, filed with deputies. The carpet was stolen Monday or Tuesday.

Auto parts with a total value of about $420 were stolen from the car of Darren Anthony Green, 21, of 1002 Bear Lake Road, Apopka, while the vehicle was parked at his home Monday or Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

A $400 demonstration kit for a burglary alarm was stolen from the car of Mark J. Paanah, 29, of Altamonte Springs, while the vehicle was parked near the Post Time Lounge, U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, deputies reported.

Jewelry worth $2,300 was stolen from the home of Marina Wilbur, 47, of 107 Pine Tree Lane, Altamonte Springs, Feb. 7 or 8, a sheriff's report said.

Tools and other items with a combined value of $427 were reported stolen from a home being built at 1030 Whispering Cove, Casselberry. The theft occurred Tuesday or Wednesday owner Mark Ramsay, 34, of 7085 Abbey Lane, Winter Park, reported to deputies.

A wooden door worth $168 was stolen from a home being built at 1641 Pine Hurst Drive, Casselberry, between Monday and Wednesday, according to a report Thomas Ronco, 25, of General Homes of Winter Park, filed with deputies.

About $100 in change and a $30 watch were stolen from the home of Jeffrey Allan Robinson, 41, of 3107 Windchime Circle, Apopka, Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

COCAINE CAPER

A man who reportedly sold a small bag of cocaine for $300 in the parking lot of a Fern Park convenience store has been charged with possession and sale of cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Seminole County drug task force agents report watching a suspect as he reportedly negotiated with and sold a packet of cocaine to a juvenile in a car at Cumberland Farms on Oxford Road at Fern Park Boulevard.

The transaction reportedly occurred at around 11:30 p.m. Thursday, and the man was arrested at the scene, a sheriff's report said. The juvenile was also taken into custody.

Michael Robert Gagliano, 20, of 325 Carlton Road, Maitland, has been charged in the case. He was released on $8,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court March 4.

VISITOR RAPED

Altamonte Springs police reported a woman guest in an east Altamonte Springs condominium was raped around 4 a.m. Thursday.

The rapist entered the apartment, where the 24-year-old woman was alone, after breaking a window. The woman reported she did not see a weapon during the attack. She was examined at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, police reported.

STOLEN & SOLD

Deputies reported charging an Altamonte Springs man with dealing in stolen property after he allegedly sold a stolen radar detector for $15.

The suspect was charged following questioning at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department at 4:35 p.m. Tuesday.

Mario Larue Jones, 18, of 317 Teakwood Lane, was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond in the case.

RAPED IN HOUSE

Longwood police who reported to an overdose call reported catching two intruders in the house they were called to and both men were charged with grand theft for allegedly trying to take jewelry from a bedroom in the house, a police report said. Following the emergency call at 590 Georgia Ave., Longwood, a woman resident of the house told an officer someone she didn't know had just left her home.

As one officer went out to tell the other of the intruder the woman yelled "He's in here," the report said.

Police entered the house and reported finding two men in a bedroom. They reported recovering from one suspect a jacket that held jewelry reportedly taken from the home and they also reported finding a .38-caliber pistol they believe the suspects hid in a closet at the house, the report said.

John Wesley King, 18, of 709 Sandpiper Lane #643, Casselberry, and Brian O'Neal Hahn, 18, of 820 Oec Creek court, Casselberry, were arrested at about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. Hahn was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond and King has been released on $8,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court March 4.

ABUSED POLICE

Casselberry police reported charging a man with resisting arrests, both with and without violence, and battery to a police officer after the man allegedly cursed and fought officers who had initially asked him to fill out an identification form.

Police reported confronting the man after he was seen walking in the roadway on Lake Triplet Drive, Casselberry, and reportedly yelled to the officers.

Police said they recognized the man and asked him to fill out an identification card, because he frequently changes his address.

The man reportedly cursed the officers and when he began to walk away and was told he was being arrested reportedly growled and rushed toward three officers and punched one in the face, the report said.

After a struggle with police the man was subdued and handcuffed, the report said.

Steven Rex Cousins, 19, of 1417 Easton Way, Casselberry, was arrested at 8:54 p.m. Tuesday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

CHARGED FOR DAMAGE

A 26-year-old Sanford man has been charged with burglary and felony criminal mischief in connection with a burglary that resulted in $1,500 in property damage at 1024 Miller Drive, Altamonte Springs, on Jan. 29, a sheriff's report said.

Witnesses reported seeing a suspect at the scene and that led to the arrest, the report said.

Mather Phillip Arena of 321 Pack Court, was charged in the case at the Seminole County jail at 11 a.m. Tuesday. He was

CHASED FROM PURSE

Sanford police reported chasing down a bicycle rider who allegedly tried to snatch a woman's purse, but was scared off after the woman's screams attracted police.

Police reported hearing the screams and spotting a suspect riding away from the Winn Dixie parking lot on First Street, Sanford, at about 7 p.m. Monday. The officer pursued the suspect and a sheriff's detective and another man joined the chase, a police report said.

A suspect was stopped by police in a backyard at 519 E. Second St., Sanford, hiding between a boat and a garage, the report said.

Willie Eddie Ports, 28, of 89 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was charged with attempted robbery at about 7:15 p.m. Monday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

CLEANED OUT CASH

An 18-year-old Fern Park man has been charged with grand theft in connection with the theft of $700 from a car being serviced at the Casselberry car wash where the suspect works, a sheriff's report said.

Deputies report the cash was stolen on Feb. 3.

John Wilson Ross, of 138 Terriwood St., was arrested at his job site at the Exxon Car Wash, Casselberry, at 1:54 p.m. Monday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

FLED BUT NABBED

A 34-year-old man has been charged with burglary after deputies nabbed him near a Longwood home where a woman reported seeing a man run from her home after she spotted him around 11 a.m. Thursday, deputies reported.

Deputies report finding the suspect near the home of Karal Lasher of 155 Wisteria Lane, Longwood. A security guard at The Springs reported having seen the suspect on a bicycle and it was reportedly recovered, a sheriff's report said.

Ronald Herbert Bowen, no address, was arrested at Ma. Lasher's home at 11 a.m. Thursday. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

CASHING BRINGS CHARGES

A 41-year-old Apopka man has been charged with dealing in stolen property after having allegedly been linked to the cashing in Seminole County of money orders taken in a Georgia holdup.

Sheriff's deputies report the money orders, two of which were cashed in Seminole and one in Orange County were from a group of 127 money orders stolen along with $1,000 in an armed robbery in Cordele, Ga., on Nov. 24.

Sheriff's investigators reported linking the suspect and a co-defendant to the cashing of the money orders. Jackie Redmond Thomas of 422 W. 13th St., was arrested at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department at 2 p.m. Wednesday. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

SPOUSE ABUSE

A Longwood man who reportedly hit his wife on the head with a tie rack causing a cut has been charged with spouse abuse and was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Longwood police report responding to a call at 721 Rave Ave., where Joyce Bright reportedly told them of the alleged attack on her.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Kingsley Edward Burkett, 46, of 108 Azalea Lane, Sanford, was arrested at 12:51 a.m. Thursday, after his car failed to maintain a single lane on U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood.

—Harold Douglas Blue, 26, of 3'04 Cypress Landing, Longwood, at 9:56 p.m. Wednesday, after his car was clocked travelling 74 mph in a 40 mph zone on state Road 436 in Altamonte Springs. His car was pursued into Casselberry where he was arrested on state Road 436.

—Mary Rita Suplick, 37, of 104 Point View Lane, Longwood, at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday after her car was involved in an accident on state Road 436 in Seminole County.

—William James Lester, 23, of 1775 Aloma Ave., Winter Park, was arrested on state Road 436, Seminole County after persons who said they were almost hit by a car alerted deputies to a possible drunk driver.

—George Albert Cipani, 55, of Meritt Island, was arrested at 12:41 a.m. Friday on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, after his car was reportedly involved in a hit-and-run accident on U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood.

—Ronnie Rogers, 40, of 205 Palm Place, Sanford, at 11:59 p.m. Thursday after he was seen driving his pickup truck on the wrong side of state Road 427 near U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

—Mary Bloomfield Pinkerton, 49, of 300 Elm Ave., Sanford, at 12:30 a.m. Friday at her home after her car was reportedly involved in an accident.

Sanford Man Found Guilty In Sex Case

By Deane Jordan Herald Staff Writer

A bomb scare at the Seminole County Courthouse did not prevent a jury from finding a Sanford man guilty of sexual battery to a 14-year-old girl.

A six-member jury, moved from the courthouse to city hall Thursday because of a bomb scare just before it began deliberations, found Donald Alonzo Anderson, of 5 Ruby St., guilty of sexual battery. He faces 5 1/2 to 7 years when sentenced April 4, according to the prosecutor Steven Plotnick. Anderson, who was free on bond, was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

The jury was moved out of the courthouse at about 10:15 a.m. after a man telephoned the courthouse switchboard and said there was a bomb in the building and set to go off in about an hour.

Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi at the time of the call was giving instructions to the jury.

Salfi finished the instructions in about two minutes and the jury was then moved to a courtroom in Sanford city hall.

According to court records, Anderson was charged Aug. 13 with the crime after the girl and her mother reported the "forced" sex acts to a Florida Health and Rehabilitative Services counselor. The counselor reported the allegations to Seminole County sheriff's investigators on Aug. 10. An examination of the girl at Central Florida Regional Hospital supported the girl's allegation, a report said.

During the course of the trial, two polygraph operators using the same analysis technique said neither the girl nor Anderson appeared to be lying when they took the polygraph test. One of the operators, however, used an additional analysis technique and decided the girl did not appear to be lying and the results on Anderson were non-conclusive, according to Plotnick. Both parties agreed prior to trial to allow the results of polygraph tests to be used in the courtroom. Unless prior agreements are made, the results of polygraph tests are not admissible in court, Plotnick said.

In other court action:

—James Johnson, 33, of Orlando, arrested Aug. 9, pleaded guilty Wednesday to grand theft. He could receive up to a year in jail when he is sentenced by Salfi April 4. According to court records, Johnson was arrested early in the morning after a Casselberry officer stopped the car he was driving after he left a service station and did not turn on the car's headlights. A computer check showed the car to be stolen. Four tires found in the car were stolen from the service station, records show.

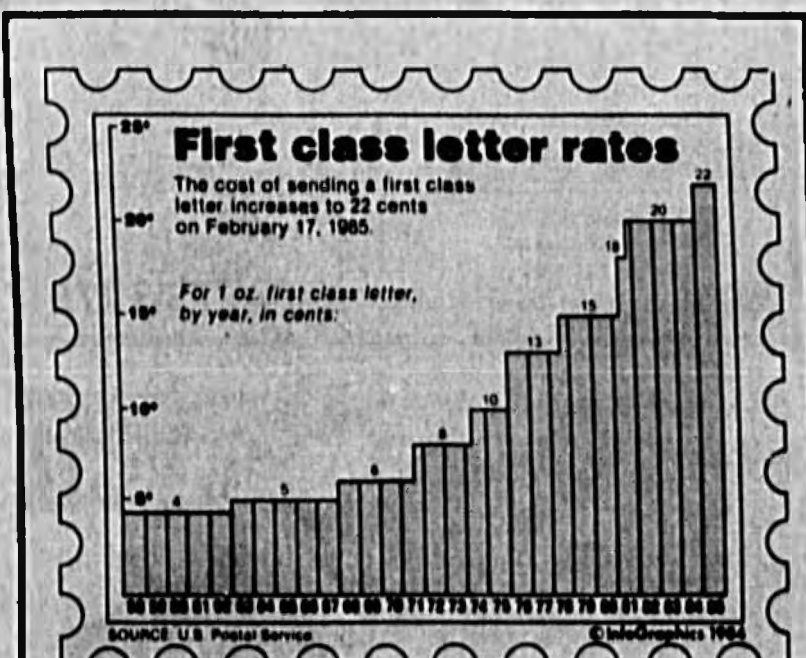

—Gary Lee Connelly, 26, of 428 Ranch Trail, Casselberry, pleaded guilty Thursday to criminal mischief. He could receive up to a year in jail when sentenced by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. on April 3.

According to court records, Connelly was being held in the Seminole County jail Oct. 22 on charges of burglary, which he pleaded guilty to Oct. 9, when jailers heard him scream "Let me out," then heard a loud banging noise. They discovered that Connelly had smashed a 4-by-4 foot glass window by pounding on it.

—Michael Chyle, 22, of Tampa, pleaded guilty Wednesday to escape from the county jail. His brother, Jed Allen Chyle, 19, also of Tampa, pleaded guilty to escape earlier this month. The Chyles, originally jailed on charges of burglary, face up to 15 years for the Aug. 23 escape when sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Robert B. McGregor. Michael is scheduled for sentencing March 12 and his brother April 29. The brothers slipped out of the county jail by scaling a 20-foot wall topped with a razor-sharp coil of barbed wire. They were recaptured Oct. 28 in Tennessee after a crime spree. At the time of their escape they were being held on charges of two counts of burglary each and were scheduled to be transferred to DeSoto County to face additional charges. They also face charges in Tennessee.

Stamps Cost More Sunday

Starting Sunday, sending a first-class letter will cost you 2 cents more — postage stamps are jumping from 20 cents to 22 cents.

John McKean, chairman of the Board of Governors of the U.S. Postal Service, said in December when the increase was announced that the price jump "will enable us to break even financially and continue to operate with no taxpayer subsidy to the Postal Service whatsoever, as the law requires."

McKean defended the increase saying it was the first one in more than three years.

"None of us welcomes this increase, but we have no other practical options," he said.

Mouth-To-Snout Resuscitation Saves Dog

LA CROSSE, Wis. (UPI) — Richard Abicht said he didn't think twice about giving his dog Daisy mouth-to-snout resuscitation to get her breathing again after a rescue ball got stuck in her throat.

"It seemed like the natural thing to do," said Richard Abicht, 46, a nurse. "I couldn't let her die and I knew what to do."

Abicht said although he had never done the procedure on a human being, he never thought twice about putting his mouth up to Daisy's nose and blowing air into the animal.

"She seems grateful," he said Wednesday.

The drama happened Feb. 1 at the Abicht home. Daisy was playing with the ball, which one of their children had brought home. The ball got lodged behind the dog's teeth.

Abicht said he couldn't pull the ball loose so he called an animal hospital. They advised him to bring the dog there. His wife drove, and when the dog's lips turned blue, Abicht put a finger and thumb around the ball to pull it out, but the dog stopped breathing.

He lifted the dog's head up to his mouth and "bleathed into her nose for about 20 seconds before she began breathing on her own. Her heart didn't stop beating, because I felt that with my other hand," Abicht said.

After a veterinarian had examined her, "her tail began wagging and she recognized us," Abicht said.

When they got Daisy home, "my wife kept saying she looked at us differently. She didn't have any of that 'did we save a dog and a half,'" Abicht said.

Expect Students To Achieve And They Will

Question: Many of your efforts to improve education in Florida seem to involve testing. Has there always been an emphasis on testing in this state? What purposes does the testing program serve?

Answer: Testing as a key element in an educational program is not a new concept here in Florida. Beginning in 1935, the Florida Twelfth Grade Testing Program provided information to assist in college and university admissions and placement decisions. In 1956, the Florida Ninth Grade Testing Program was created to assist high school counselors and teachers in curriculum planning and student placement.

The Florida Legislature in 1978, enacted a comprehensive accountability program requiring the state to create minimum student objectives. More recently, the 1984 legislature enacted laws which require the state to take steps to encourage greater consistency in high school districts.

Our testing program here in Florida is but one aspect of our educational program, but it is a vital element. Setting standards for with Commissioner of Education

Ralph D. Turlington

students, making schools more accountable, creating academic growth through competition, and evaluating educational programs are all objectives derived from the testing program now in place.

Giving students specific learning expectations and letting them know that their progress in school is dependent, in part, upon learning what they are supposed to learn is a key educational principle. The results of our statewide assessment test confirm that students perform better when there are clear expectations in front of them. In the final analysis, if students are expected to achieve, they will.

A cornerstone of Florida's testing program is public access to the results. All Florida school districts are required to prepare and distribute annual reports of school progress. Results of the state testing program, the SSAT, are part of these reports. The Commissioner of Education, likewise, is required to publish an annual report describing the status of the educational system. (Copies of this year's annual report "Getting Ready for 1989" are now available. Contact the Public Information Office at 904/488-0081 to get one.) This system of educational accountability, with its emphasis on public access to testing and other data, is important. The schools belong to the citizens.

Competition has long been an accepted part of school life. Achievement on tests has been made a "competition" among schools and districts as Florida strives for academic excellence. There are no specific prize for the winner, but the satisfaction that comes from making progress and competing with one's neighbor academically is very real. To be among the highest scoring school or district in the state is the goal.

Report: Schools Are Cheating Poor Children

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing a correlation between academic performance and social class, a new report says America's schools are "cheating our children" by inadequately accommodating the underprivileged.

The study by the private National Center for Education Information says schools must recognize and respond to the needs of poor children so they can better compete with their well-to-do classmates.

It found that high school students who score best in college admission tests come from upper-class, two-parent, suburban families where both parents are highly educated.

The center's study is based on data from the Census Bureau, the Education Department and The College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test, a widely used college admission exam.

Among the findings are:
—Asian and whites outscored all other student groups by race.
—Students from Catholic and private schools scored higher than their public school counterparts.

—Students from the suburbs scored higher than those in cities and rural communities.

—One in five children now live with a mother and no father.

QUIT PUMPING MONEY INTO YOUR INEFFICIENT HEATING/COOLING SYSTEM.

FPL will pay you up to $600 to install a high efficiency central heat pump.

You'll also save up to 60% on your present electric heating bills. Because a heat pump is almost 2½ times more efficient than conventional electric heating systems.

A heat pump both heats and cools your home. In the winter, it extracts heat from outside, pumping it indoors. In the summer, it cools by removing heat and humidity from your home. (For a detailed explanation, contact an FPL participating contractor.)

Raiders Seek To Be Host With The Most

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
DAYTONA BEACH — Seminole Community College's Raiders battle Daytona Beach Community College's Scots Saturday night in a game which will decide the host team for the Mid-Florida Conference post-season tournament. Tip-off is 7:30 p.m. at DBCC's tiny gym.

Florida Junior has already clinched an automatic berth in the state tournament by posting an 11-2 record going into the last conference game. SCC and DBCC are both 9-4. Saturday night's victor will receive a bye in the tournament's first round and then be the host school when the field is reduced to four teams.

The survivor of the four-team field earns a trip to the state tournament where it joins four division winners and three other runners-up to form the eight-team field. The tournament begins at DeLand's Stetson University on Thursday, March 28.

Although SCC has hosted the post-season tournament the past two years, it hasn't helped. "Everybody wants to play at home and get the by on Tuesday," said coach Bill Payne. "We've had the home court two years in a row and haven't won. Whoever is hot that week seems to win it."

The Raiders had their tickets practically paid for last year but were upset by Valencia in the championship game. The Matadors, behind the

Basketball

1-2 punch of Cleve Williams and Tony Fluker, became one of the few teams to go to state with a losing record.

Daytona, ranked No. 4 in the state poll, has posted a 24-6 overall record and has not lost at home. Charles Stevenson, a 6-3 forward, is considered the top player in the division by the coaches. Stevenson averages 19 points and six rebounds per game. Anthony Anderson, a 6-3½ forward, is averaging 15 points per game and shooting 60 percent from the field.

Garry Hamm, a 5-11½ point guard, Terry Givens, a 6-4 forward, and Jim Gable a 6-6 center, complete the starting five. Sanford's Willie Mitchell, who is averaging 7 rebounds per game, is the third forward while Sanford's Fred Miller is the third guard.

When the teams played on Jan. 26, Seminole put together one of its best games of the year for an 84-73 victory. Stevenson totaled 22 points. Anderson added 14 while Hamm and Miller each had 12.

Greg Bates and Kenny Edwards, a pair of 6-4 swingmen for the Raiders, tore up the Scots from the outside, hitting 22 of 33 shots for 48 points. Bates hit 12 of 19 for 25 while Edwards hit 10 of 14 for 23.

"We need to get another good game from Bates," Payne stressed Friday night. "They manned-up on Kenny and Linny last time and that gave Bates the open jumpers. He made them. "We expect them to do the same thing as they did before."

Grace, a 6-3 sophomore from Boone, leads the Raiders with 18 points and 3.5 assists per outing. He is shooting 55 percent from the field. Bates is averaging 13 points per game. Greg "Slim" Johnson, SCC's force on the boards with nine per game, joins 6-0 Mike Landell as the other starters.

Edwards' status, however, is in question since he suffered a cut eye during practice and had some stitches taken in his eye.

If Edwards can't play, Payne said he will start Brent Baird. "We'll play a lot of people," said Payne, ticking off the names of Calvin "Kiki" Bryant, Scott Hughes, Robb Brantley and Willie Strother. "We do have a better bench than they do."

Payne said he expects Mitchell, who played for Payne at Seminole High as a sophomore, to have a better game this time around. "Willie will play better," said Payne. "They have to rebound better. That's where we had a big edge the first time we played."

SCC outrebounced the Scots, 37-26, as Johnson pulled down 13 boards and Bates snared eight. Mitchell had just one board in limited playing time.

"I don't think they played badly last time," said Payne. "They just didn't play their best game or control the backboards like they have been doing."

The Raiders hung an overtime loss on DBCC the last year at the Scots' gym. It may have been the last time someone has beaten them at home. "It's a quaint little gym," said Payne. "But it's a hostile crowd. They make a lot of noise and go crazy. It's a tough place to play."

Thirteen beaten visitors can attest to that.

Lyman Returns To State

ORANGE PARK — When a team finishes second in the state the previous year, not much incentive is needed. Lyman's Lady Greyhounds had a whiff of that championship game last spring and they have been sniffing that championship scent ever since.

The aroma grew stronger Friday night as the Lady Greyhounds moved within two wins of the state title. Lyman's victory march hit its 22nd perfect beat as the Lady Greyhounds knocked off Orange Park, 3-1, to advance to the state tournament at Orange Park High School.

By gaining the sectional championship, Lyman, 22-0, earns its right to play Coral Springs or Stuart Martin County in the semifinals Friday. The Tampa Chamberlain-Clearwater Countryside winner from Friday night plays the South Plantation-Coral Gables survivor in the other semifinal.

Lyman coach Tom Barnes said his school would make a "vigorous bid to host the tournament." Barnes said, though, his school might be at a disadvantage because there are two south Florida sections involved.

Lyman didn't have any problem with disadvantages Friday. Sheila Mandy picked up an opportunistic goal at the 27:30 mark of the first half when she joined a scuffle at the front of the Orange Park goal mouth, controlled the ball and booted it home for a 1-0 Lyman lead.

"Three or four people tapped it," said Barnes. "Sheila got a good foot on it and tapped it in."

Seven minutes later, Lyman upped its lead to 2-0 when Karen Abernethy scored on an indirect kick. Settling up just outside the penalty area, Lyman's best defender turned offensive and boomed the shot into the upper right hand corner of the goal.

Bucs, McCloud Have It Their Way, 64-50

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Basketball

Mainland's Bucs and George McCloud did everything they wanted to Friday night with Sanford's Fighting Seminoles. Mainland, vying for No. 2 seed for the district tournament, took a big step in that direction with a convincing 64-50 Five Star Conference victory before 1,100 fans at Seminole High School.

McCloud, touted as one of the top players in Central Florida, did nothing to diminish that claim with a 30-point performance which turned back the Seminoles every time they made a push to get back in the game.

The 6-8 guard worked in and around a Seminole zone defense to hit 8 of 14 floor shots and 14 of 18 free throws. The foul shots came in the fourth quarter when Seminole tried to slice Mainland's 10-point advantage but couldn't.

"McCloud is back to where McCloud should be," said Mainland coach Dick Toth. "He was hit by a bunch of nagging injuries in January which we didn't tell anybody. He had the flu, a groin pull, a 140-degree temperature and pink eye. He's all right now."

Seminole will surely attest to that — especially the healed eye. "We took a chance on playing a zone against McCloud," said Seminole coach Chris Marlette. "He just tore us up."

After building a 31-27 lead at halftime, Mainland outscored Seminole, 13-8, in the third quarter as McCloud broke loose for 10 points. The Tribe pulled within two points early in the third quarter but couldn't ever pull even. McCloud closed out with 13 points in the fourth quarter as the Bucs steadily pulled away.

Seminole's Henderson, a 6-3 sophomore, got untracked in the fourth quarter and twice hit jumpers inside the paint to cut the deficit to 56-46 and 60-50, but the Tribe could never break below double figures.

McCloud received a 18-point complement from sophomore Mike Polite, who scored four in each quarter. "It's gotten to the point where I don't even think of him as a sophomore," said Toth about his 6-8 center. "We decided early in the year he was too good for junior varsity. Seminole's doing the same thing with their young guys. That's how you learn."

Seminole's young guys — freshmen Andre Whitney and Craig Walker — learned the hard way Friday. Walker missed a couple of easy shots underneath while the Bucs left Whitney open in the second half, urging him to shoot while concentrating on James Rouse and Ken Gordon.

"It didn't like like such good strategy when No. 10 (Whitney) hit his first shot," said Toth. "But I think he missed his next eight. Rouse and Gordon were killing us in the first half. We had to stop them."

They did. Rouse, who tossed in six points in the first quarter as Seminole took a 14-12 lead, was held scoreless in the third period. The 6-2 senior had 10 points at halftime and finished with 10.

Gordon, a 6-2 senior, tallied eight points in the first half as Mainland seized a 31-27 lead. In the third period, he, too, was blanked from the field. Gordon added five points in the fourth period to finish with 13. "We played a zone with two guys and the other three were man-to-man," said Toth. "We wanted Whitney to shoot the ball. I didn't realize he's made all of his shots (four) against Lake Howell. But that was Lake Howell. We've got a pretty solid team."

Marlette said he didn't mind the strategy but his Tribe failed to take advantage of its opportunities. "We were busting their press wide open, but then we missed the easy shots underneath," said Marlette. "I thought Whitney would smoke them when they let him shoot, but he didn't. He hurt his arm in practice Thursday and he wasn't shooting as well as usual."

Mainland, which has won nine in a row, improved to 19-5 overall. The Bucs are 10-4 in the district and 10-8 in the conference. Seminole is 14-9 overall, 9-5 in the district and 9-7 in the conference.

"We've pretty much assured ourselves that we'll be in the opposite bracket from DeLand," said Toth. "But the rest of them (Seminole, Spruce Creek and Apopka) are still in a dogfight."

All three have the same record with just two games to play. Seminole plays Apopka Tuesday and Lake Brantley Friday. Apopka hosts Spruce Creek Friday. Spruce Creek, which knocked Lake Mary out of the running, 75-54 Friday, goes to Lyman Tuesday.

In Friday's first game, the Seminole junior varsity used 24 points by Jerry Parker to pull out a 62-61 victory over Mainland. The Tribe improved to 15-5 for the year.

"Parker probably had his best game. He also rebounded very well," said coach Tom Smith. "Joe Holden did a good job, too, especially in the second half."

Holden, a 6-3 forward, tossed in 19 points, 15 of which came in the final half.

Seminole built a nine-point lead in the fourth quarter but then missed five straight free throws in the closing minutes to allow Mainland to make it close. Rod Fosaiti, a 6-4 sophomore, chipped in seven points.

Wittig, Black Shoot Down Greyhounds, 84-52

By Chris Fletzer
Herald Sports Writer
ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Wade Wittig was "unconscious," and Rex Black was "out of his mind."

In medical terms, Lake Brantley's Patriots would have been in bad shape Friday night with one guy out cold and another ready for the loony bin.

In basketball terminology, however, the Wittig and Black-led Patriots were impressive.

Wittig poured in a season-high 24 points, including 16 in the first half, and Black scored 10 of his 12 points in the second quarter as Brantley built a commanding 40-20 halftime lead on route to a 84-52 thrashing of Lyman's Greyhounds in Five Star Conference action before 400 fans at Lake Brantley High.

"Wittig and Black played super," Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson said. "Wittig is coming on real strong. The big thing for him in his first step. He's a 6-3 forward but he's like a guard with his quick first step. Rex (Black) just went wild in the second quarter." Wittig, a junior forward, used his quickness to get inside for four points early as Brantley reeled off the first six points of the game. Wittig went on to score 10 points in the first quarter while Mark Moser was popping from outside with eight points as Brantley took a 20-8 lead.

Austin Hodges hit a pair of free throws to open the second quarter and Black hit four more points to boost Brantley's lead to 28-8 with 5:57 left in the first half. Black scored 10 straight points for the Patriots in the second quarter on a variety of moves inside and out. The 6-3 senior's strong inside play was crucial for the Patriots since 6-8 center Greg Courtney was on the bench in foul trouble.

Courtney came back to provide the offensive spark in the third quarter as Lake Brantley, which led 40-20 at halftime, reeled off the first six points, four by Courtney, to take a 46-20 lead. Courtney, a senior, scored 10 of his 14 points in the third quarter as the Patriots took a 60-34 lead into the fourth. Courtney also led Brantley underneath with seven rebounds while Wittig hauled down six and Black pulled down five.

Hodges and David Hardwick provided strong play off the bench as Hodges, a 6-3 senior, scored nine points and ripped down six boards and Hardwick, a 5-10 junior, tossed in nine points and dished out three assists. Mike Morris, a 6-0 junior guard, handed out a game-high six assists. Moser, a junior guard, added eight points and four assists.

Robert Thomas was high for Lyman with 17 points. Ralph Philpott added 11 and nine boards while T.J. Scaletta and Brett Marshall tossed in nine each. Scaletta had scored 25 points Tuesday in a two-point loss to Apopka.

"We played good defense on Scaletta," Peterson said. "We needed to keep the ball

No Announcement But McCorkle Still Confident

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Coach Jim Brody and his Lake Brantley Patriots have one thing going for them prior to the district showdown with Lake Mary — there's no school on Saturday.

Before Thursday's semifinal game with ranked Lake Howell, Coach Larry McCorkle grabbed the Lake Mary public address microphone and boldly predicted that his Rams would upset the state's No. 1 ranked team.

"That was sort of dumb," said McCorkle Friday. "I didn't want to press my luck for Lake Brantley, so I didn't say anything Friday."

McCorkle, nevertheless, has a method to his madness. "In the two games we lost to Lake Howell this year, we learned something each game," said McCorkle, the holder of five state championships as Bishop Moore coach. "But Lake Howell and Casseberry soccer program had gotten an aura of invincibility about them. I think some of my kids were starting to believe it, but we put that to rest Thursday."

And Saturday at Lake Brantley High School, McCorkle hopes his 20-8 Rams can slay another giant in the Patriots. Brody's squad, which has a 19-2-1 record, has been a steady climber in the 4A state poll. Last week, the Patriots were ranked No. 4.

Lyman pushed the Pats into five overtimes before Lake Brantley pulled it out with three penalty kicks Tuesday night in a sudden death overtime. Steve Earl, Cory Sheffield and Simon Trumble all scored in the OT while goalie Aaron Kindel allowed just one goal.

"That Lyman victory was just what we needed," said Brody. "We are really ready for this game. We've set some high goals for ourselves this year and we don't want anybody to stop us."

McCorkle, perhaps playing the role of the coaching sage, advanced the theory that the pressure was on Lake Brantley, since it was the ranked team. "They have to beat us," said the third-year Lake Mary mentor. "We will go into this game with the same attitude we had at Lake Howell. The pressure is on Brantley, we're nobody. We were pretty loose Thursday and we will be again Saturday."

Brody agreed, to a point. "That may be so," said the first-year Patriot coach. "That was attitude against they took against Lake Howell and they were able to take the game away from them."

"A lot of times that (being the underdog) can be an advantage. But we know Lake Mary can play and we're not complacent at all."

The teams have met twice pre-

vously. Lake Brantley, using a stellar effort by Kindel, blanked the Rams, 3-0, in the first meeting. Lake Mary upset the Pats, 2-1, on penalty kicks in the Pizza Hut Classic the following week.

Although the pressure may be on Lake Brantley, the press is on Lake Mary. "They put a lot of pressure on you," said McCorkle. "They can do it all game long. An analogy to basketball is that they full court press the whole way."

"You have to make them earn the goals. Brantley scored a couple goals by deflected balls against a lot of teams. They're really good at that."

The best of Lake Brantley's bunch is Mo Moghaddam, who has 21 goals for the year, two which McCorkle remembers very well. "We haven't been able to stop him," he said. "Mo scored each time we played them and both were 60-yard runs where he went past everybody."

While he is conscious of Moghaddam's skills, McCorkle is quick to point out that Lake Brantley has several good players. "Mo has been the most publicized," said McCorkle. "But they have a lot of good players. Especially on defense. There haven't been many games when they've given up more than one goal."

McCorkle's team has been playing better defense and he said the improvement of keeper Greg Griffing has been one of the major reasons. "Coach (Bill) Eisele has been a major influence on Greg," said McCorkle. "Griffing has 13 shutouts so he must be doing something right."

McCorkle, who had an all-state keeper in Joe Dalton last year, said the tending has been a learning process for Griffing. "Greg mostly fullback on JVs last year. He's learned from all those mistakes. Just had a great match against Lake Howell. He and the rest of our defenders are putting together a solid defense," he said.

McCorkle said Griffing, who is 6-4, doesn't have the problem of most tall keepers. "It doesn't take him long to get up and down," he said. "Sometimes a tall keeper has trouble getting down, but he gets down real quick."

Offensively, Andre Sanders has 29 goals. Jerry Meyers has kicked 16 while Tony Fiorentino has added 10. All are forwards. Paul Holmes, a midfielder, has 14 assists.

Surprisingly, Ernie Broennele, a freshman, came up with the lone goal in the 1-0 win over Lake Howell. "He's a good player who has been in right place at right time," said McCorkle about his No. 1 sub. "He was in the game when the ball was delivered and he knew what to do with it. Ernie's a very confident individual. Even though he was a freshman on the varsity, he knows he can play."

Even though McCorkle said a trend toward conservative play was Lake Howell's undoing, Brody said that won't happen to his Patriots. "There's always the feeling out process in the first 15 minutes," he said. "I don't think we will get too conservative. We have a strong defense but we never try to sit on a lead. That's the easiest way to lose."

While the Rams and Patriots will decide the 4A district in this area, coach Chris Hall's Oviedo Lions have the stiff task of upsetting powerful Bishop Moore in the 3A final at Montverde.

Sanford's Tim Fall, who has 59 goals for the year, will be the man Oviedo has to mark. "I don't know what we're going to do with him," said Hall, whose Lions knocked off Montverde to gain the finals. "I hate to put one man on him because that hurts the rest of our defense. We'll probably just play it straight."

Oviedo has a scoring whiz of its own in Greg Brick. The Oviedo sophomore has had several multi-goal games this year and it was Brick's goal which tipped Montverde, 2-1. Bishop Moore pounded Jones, 8-0, in the semifinals. The Hornets are coached by Tom Fall. Tim's brother.

Mixed Golf Tourney Draws Well

It looks like the cold and flu season is really here. Almost everybody has either had it or has it now. It's tough to avoid in this kind of weather.

Despite the weather, there was a good turnout for the members mixed tournament on Sunday, Feb. 10. The tourney was sponsored by the Mayfair Ladies Association. This was a 4-ball best ball tournament. Here's a look at the winners:

Low Gross Team: (75) Art and Irene Harris and Dick Elam who was paired by blind draw with Kathryn Park. Low Net Team: (55) Dick and Marg Manning and Jim and Rose Bussard. Second Low Net Team: (58) Bob and Ada O'Neil and Ken and Lawanda Sandon. Third Low Net Team: (59) Dr. Charlie and Kathryn Park and George and Peggy Billups. Awards were given in the clubhouse immediately following the tournament.

The other tournament last week was held on Thursday, Feb. 7 for all the folks who volunteered their services to help run the Mayfair Open, which was held the last week of January.

Twelve good men and 12 good ladies were paired by a blind draw and teed it up in a 2-ball, best ball tournament with full handicap.

Although it was only a 9-hole tournament, everyone thoroughly enjoyed it. The winners were as follows: Low Gross Team: John Johnson and Stella Brooks; Low Net Team: Wes Werner and Miriam Andrews; Second Low Net Team: Stan Potter and Diddle Weber.

All 24 of these folks did a fine job with the Mayfair Open and they deserve a huge vote of thanks.

Speaking of tournaments, there are a few coming up in the near future that may be of interest.

On Saturday, Feb. 23, the Mayfair Men's Golf Association will hold a 4-Ball, best ball tournament which will be a 9 a.m. shotgun start. It's not too soon to get signed up. All MMGA members are encouraged to play. Sign up in the Pro Shop.

On Friday, March 15, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is holding its annual tournament which will be a 1 p.m. shotgun start. For more information, contact the Chamber at 322-2212.

The next members mixed tournament will be the St. Patrick's Day bash on Sunday, March 17. This will be a 1 p.m. shotgun start and is sponsored by both the MMGA and MWGA. Further information on this tournament will be forthcoming.

Ozlo Takes 57-Pin Lead
FLORISSANT, Mo. (UPI) — David Ozlo, Vidor, Texas, took a 57-pin lead over George Pappas after Friday afternoon's fifth round of a $150,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

The tournament is known as the ANP Angle Open.

You only need a windshield when it's raining, right? That's the way A.J. Foyt, middle, looks at it as his windshield goes one way and he spins out another during a five-car fender bender during the International Race of Champions Friday at the Daytona Speedway. There were no injuries.

Waltrip Avoids Dizzy Spins To Win IROC

By Gary Kato
UPI Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — The dizzy world of auto racing took another bizarre turn in the opening race of the $500,000 International Race of Champions series.

Four of the leading five cars spun out in the last lap of the 100-mile event at Daytona Speedway Friday that featured 12 drivers from different phases of auto racing handling identical Camaros. Three were involved in the accident and the fourth driver was blinded by oil on his windshield that caused him to swerve to a safe spot in the infield.

Five cars were locked in a draft coming around the third turn, with CART driver A.J. Foyt leading and NASCAR's Cale Yarborough attempting move into position for a slingshot maneuver when the wild finish began.

While Yarborough was trying to swoop low, CART driver Tom Sneva thought he saw an opening and buzzed down to the apron in a bid to pass. A chain reaction started as Sneva tapped Yarborough's rear bumper and the three-time Grand National champion swerved into Foyt.

Darrell Waltrip was riding near the high wall as the cars came around the backstretch and he managed to avoid debris and take the checkered flag. Bobby Rahal of CART was trailing Waltrip, but his windshield was bathed by spewing oil and he groped for a safe spot in the infield.

Waltrip, who learned he will be a father for the first time in October, was clocked at 189.341 mph and won $5,000. Even better, Waltrip has a leg up on the four-race Budweiser IROC series which pays $150,000 to the ultimate points leader. "My parents and Stevie's parents want a girl, but I want a boy," Waltrip said, noting the older folks didn't want another driver in the family. "If it's a girl, she may be the first woman to win a Daytona 500." His wife countered "I'll have something to say about that too."

Drivers involved in the amashup emerged unscathed and laughing about the experience.

"I knew Cale was gonna try to pass on that last lap, and he did," said Foyt. "He and I were running real tight there coming off turn four, and I saw Cale's rear get out of shape (when Yarborough was hit by Sneva), then my rear got loose, my windshield popped out and I couldn't see anything. Ask Sneva what happened. He was the squirrel. He ran out of brains, as usual, and ran into Cale."

Yarborough said he passed Foyt on the backstretch "and was sitting pretty. All of a sudden I was sideways. I must have clipped A.J. when I went around."

Odom, Brubaker Rip Leesburg; Bass Hooks Eustis With 2-Hitter

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Lyman and Lake Brantley each picked up their second victories in Lyman's Invitational round-robin baseball tournament Friday night and will square off Saturday night at 7 to determine the champion.

The Greyhounds crushed Leesburg, 13-1, for their third straight win. Kyle Brubaker, a transfer from Lake Mary, cracked three doubles and a single. Jim Odom had two doubles and a single.

Lake Brantley won for the fourth time in five outings with a 12-6 victory over Eustis, 0-3, as junior Mike Davis continued his lousy hitting. Davis, a transfer from Tennessee, lined a grand slam over the center field fence to highlight a five-run Patriot second inning which erased a 5-1 Eustis lead.

Eustis had chased starter Larry Schumacher in the first inning en route to its five runs. After the fourth hitter reached, Smith called on Kevin Bass. The big righthander allowed just two hits and struck out seven while going the rest of the way to pick up the victory.

The Patriots scored one run in the first, five in the second, one in the fourth and five in the fifth. Mark Coffey singled home the first inning run after Andy Dunn had singled and stolen second.

Brad Dunn ignited the five-run second with a walk and stolen base. After Rick Cook grounded out, Brad Dunn reached on an error to score his brother. Coffey walked and Mike Beams reached on a fielder's choice to set the stage for Davis' second homer in two days at Lyman.

Lake Brantley's big fifth put the game out of reach. Dan Beatty singled before the Dunn brothers each walked to load the bases. Lee Bernbaum followed with a three-run double to left and Coffey continued to tear the cover off with a rip to score Bernbaum. Beams then doubled to drive in Coffey for a 12-6 final.

Beatty singled, Bass 6-4, Brad singled, Cook 1-5. Andy walked to load bases. Bernbaum doubled to left to score three runs. Coffey tripled to left center to score Bernbaum. Beams doubled to score Coffey for a 12-5 bulge.

Lyman, meanwhile, was just explosive with the aluminum and even more so on the mounds. Derek Livernolis, Lyman's fireballing righthander, was untouchable. Livernolis hurled the first three innings to pick up the win in the game which was shortened to five innings by the slaughter rule. He struck out seven or nine hitters and didn't allow a ball out of the infield.

Bill Henley, a member of the Altamonte Springs' World Champion Senior League, mopped up, allowing two hits and striking out three over the final two innings.

Lyman scored all of its runs in the first three innings. Brubaker led off the first with a double and scored when John Bass also doubled. Two outs later, the red-hot Odom drilled a double for a 2-0 lead.

In the second, Byron Overstreet and John Elwood singled. Darren Boyesen reached on an error to score Overstreet. Brubaker then singled in Elwood and Bass reached on another error to score Boyesen. Livernolis also jump aboard on an error and Odom doubled in Bass. Left fielder Mike Henley tripled to right center to score two more

Duda Cats Clinch 1st Place

The Oviedo Duda Stray Cats clinched the title in the Inter-County Basketball Association's Senior division while the three other division leaders all remained unbeaten. The Cats clawed the Winter Park YMCA 86-23 to improve their record to 10-0 with two games remaining and runnerup Winter Park already has three losses.

The well divided Oviedo scoring had Demitrios Hill with 16, Kelly Kiukla 14, Eddie Norton and Doug Ackerman 12 each. Robbie Bowers 11 and Pop Bowers 10. Danny Rubin added 7 and Tim Willis 4. Norton dished out 10 assists and Hill pulled down a dozen rebounds.

In other Senior boys division games Eastmonte won a pair, dropping Winter Park 52-49 and Westmonte 50-41. Lance Wall led the Greyhounds in the first one with 14, Steve Falk had 13, Ray Wheeler 7, Leveeche Nelson and Scott Russell 6 each. Tony Emanuel was high for WP with 23. Terry Dixon scored 15 and Willie Brown 8. In the second game Todd Rowland led with 12 followed by Wall 11, Falk 10 and Nelson 8. Willie Meadows topped Westmonte with 21, Kevin Brown and Ryan Walhouse had 10 each.

Westmonte bopped the Winter Park YMCA in another Senior game, 67-23. Mike Young tallied 24, Meadows 14, Dave Martin 11 and Brown 10.

In Girls play, the Scorpions won three in a row beating Winter Park twice, 15-12 and 23-22 (after time had expired), and the South Seminole Kittens, 26-18.

In the first WP game, Suzanne Hughes scored 10 of the 18, breaking open a 12-12 tie in the last minute of play. Sabena Milligan and Jackie Goodman had 4 each for WP. The second WP game was even more exciting as WP led by 10 in the last quarter only to lose as Christen Awsumb sank two foul shots at the final buzzer for the Scorpions.

In JV Boys action the Jackson Heights Lions defeated a scrappy JH Wildcats, 48-33, after being up by just five points going into the last quarter. Donovan Williams led the Lions with 19 and Vince Hollis added 10.

The South Seminole Tomcats beat Westmonte behind Robbie Cramer's big 23 points, 46-25. Matt MacDonald led Westmonte with 15.

In another JV game Westmonte nipped Tuskawilla, 24-23. Kellom led the way with 13 had 8. Matt Davis was high for Tusky with 10.

In Varsity boys play Winter Park dumped the Jackson Heights Lions, 72-42, giving the Lions their second straight loss and the front running South Seminole Bobcats a full-two game lead in the pennant race. Erin McGuire and Billy Mager led WP with 20 points each. Quincy Howard had 12. For the Lions, Chad Duncan scored 13 and Charles Warner 11.

Tuskawilla won a pair of games beating whipped the Jackson Heights Knights, 63-13. Wayne Zeh led the well-divided scoring for the Warriors with 13. Wayne Selover had 12. Lance Pruitt 11 and Tommy Brinkley 10. Gary Blocker played an outstanding floor game, directing the Tusky attack.

Kevin Bass came on in the first inning and allowed just two hits the rest of the way as Lake Brantley pounded Eustis, 12-6.

BASEBALL BEST SOC WIN

In junior college baseball Friday, Daryl Badger drilled a double and single to drive in two runs as the Seminole Community College Raiders trimmed Brevard, 6-3, in Cocoa.

SCC, 3-2-1, received a combined seven-hitter from Max Cornell, Kevin Rood and Billy Stripp. Cornell pitched about half over the first six innings before giving over to Rood, who hurled the seventh, and Stripp, who finished up.

The game was called on account of darkness after eight innings.

Deja Vu: Mays Upsets Second Seed Johnson

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary's Rams and Sanford's Fighting Seminoles, two of the fiercest rivals in Seminole County, have yet to meet in a dual wrestling match this season. Although the regular season is over, the Rams and Seminoles will have four wrestlers going up against each other Saturday morning in the semifinals of the 4A-9 Tournament at Lake Mary High.

"They (Lake Mary) wouldn't wrestle us in dual match," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "So this is the closest we'll come."

Both teams had successful first rounds Friday night as the Rams advanced 11 of 13 wrestlers to the semifinals and Seminoles advanced six. Lake Mary has a comfortable lead in the team standings after the first round with 52 1/2 points, compared to 37 for Lake Brantley, 33 for Lyman and 27 for Seminole.

"We're hoping to get eight guys through to the finals," Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz said. "That will give us a strong lead."

For Seminoles, getting six wrestlers to the finals was an impressive showing after a disappointing performance in the Five Star Conference tourney.

"Six guys in the semifinals is the most since 1975-76," Beathard said. "That was the year we won the conference and finished third in the district."

Sheraton Mays, a sophomore, got Seminole off to a good start Friday as he upset Lake Mary's Craig Johnson at 109 pounds.

"Johnson (the second seed at 109) got a takedown in the first period and took a 2-0 lead," Beathard said. "Mays was on the bottom the second period but he worked a barb series and picked up three backpoints early in the third period."

"Mays beat Johnson in the district last year and went on to take second," added Beathard. "It was sort of deja vu tonight."

Also advancing for the Seminoles were Steve Chung (6-4 season record) at 130 pounds, Tony Brown (23-0) at 142. Tracy Turner (17-4) got a bye at 149. Troy Turner (19-0) at 159 and Walt Lowry (11-4) at 171.

Wrestling

IN BRIEF

Lake Mary Junior Varsity Takes 1st Five Star Basketball Title

PORT ORANGE — Matt Napoli tossed in 19 points as the Lake Mary junior varsity basketball team clinched its first Five Star Conference championship with a 63-51 victory over Spruce Creek at Spruce Creek High School Friday night.

The victory upes Lake Mary's record to 17-3 overall and 14-2 in the conference. With just two conference games remaining, it is impossible for any of the other teams to catch Lake Mary.

The Rams jumped to an 11-5 lead in the first quarter behind Terry "The Cat" Miller's six points. The Rams increased the bulge to 29-17 at halftime as Oscar "Big O" Merthie and Jimmy Stewart each scored six points.

Napoli, who had six points in the first half, came on strong in the second 16 minutes with 13 more. "Matt had a great all-around game," said coach Charles Steele. "He also had five rebounds and five steals."

Stewart led an aggressive Lake Mary board effort with nine. Roosevelt Gaines had eight, David Drawdy seven while Merthie and Miller also had five. Anthony Sutton had three assists.

LAKE MARY JV (63) — Napoli 19, Miller 10, Merthie 10, Gaines 10, Stewart 7, Gibbs 6, Botham 6, Mandeville 0, McKinnon 0, Sifton 2, Drawdy 4, Sapp 1. Totals: 26 1/2, 48.8.

SPRUCE CREEK JV (51) — Sears 19, Adams 6, Williams 6, S. Scarbrough 7, Ivey 6, Lucas 3, C. Scarbrough 2. Totals: 21 1/2, 41.5.

Halftime — Lake Mary 29, Spruce Creek 17. Fouls — Lake Mary 15, Spruce Creek 19. Fouted out — none. Technical — Sears.

Oosterhuis Birdies Into Lead

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Peter Oosterhuis hit seven birdies in eight holes at the San Diego Open Friday to fly into a first-place tie with Gary Hallberg.

Yet he took none of the credit for his 8-under-64 performance.

"This is the perfect course for me," said Oosterhuis after completing the second round.

"Driving is the weakest part of my game. These (fairways) seem to be lenient as far as the wind, vanishing drives. As early as the second birdie I knew I had a chance to do that kind of scoring. The course was playing that way."

Hallberg fired a 67 after a slow start on the par-72 north course at Torrey Pines as he and Oosterhuis held a one-stroke lead at 13-under over three other golfers.

No Joke: Cavaliers Stun Sixers

United Press International
The Cavaliers have been a bad joke for longer than Cleveland would like to remember. The Philadelphia 76ers, however, have stopped laughing.

The Cavaliers, who started the season 2-19, have won 15 of their last 31 games, the latest victory a 112-107 upset of the Sixers in the Spectrum Friday night.

The last time the two teams met, Philadelphia needed a basket by Maurice Cheeks in the closing seconds to escape with a 101-100 victory on Jan. 22.

In other games Friday, New Jersey defeated Detroit 124-123; Indiana defeated Chicago 114-96; Phoenix defeated Dallas 126-103; Denver defeated San Antonio 129-119; Utah defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 109-100; Portland defeated Washington 93-89; and Boston defeated Golden State 107-100.

Ex-Teammates Meet At Delray

DELRAY BEACH (UPI) — Scott Davis and Tim Mayotte, former teammates at Stanford, will meet Sunday for the first time since the pair joined the professional tennis tour.

At stake will be the $112,500 first prize in the International Players tennis championship.

The two unseeded players reached the final round of the $1.8 million tournament, sponsored by Lipton, on Friday.

"We were teammates at Stanford in 1961," said Davis. "He beat me all the time when we were in college. We've never met in the pros, but it will be a basic serve and volley match."

Mayotte, who has been in four other tournament finals during his pro career without winning any, is ranked below Davis for the first time. He is assured of at least runner-up money of $66,250.

...Lyman

halftime and for 22 minutes of the second half until Terrie Tabor slipped inside Lyman's possession return plan and cracked in a goal from the top of the penalty area.

"We took the punting option away from our goalie (Lisa Chatman) to spread out fullback and halfbacks for good possessions," said Barnes. "We made a mistake and she scored."

It was the last Lyman mistake, however. The Lady Greyhounds controlled the action the rest of the game and Kellie Straw headed in a corner kick on a nice pass from Abernethy to give Lyman a two-goal cushion with 13 minutes to play.

Lyman outshot Orange Park, 28-11.

Joyce Recovers Save Shaky Flutie

ORLANDO (UPI) — Doug Flutie says he passed his first professional test as a football player...barely.

"I'd give myself a C-plus for coming back after those first two passes," said the Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College Friday night. "The team hung with me and that was the key — they have no doubts I can play."

Linebacker John Joyce bailed Flutie out of a shaky debut, recovering two fumbles for scores in pacing the New Jersey Generals past Orlando 24-14 in the final exhibition tuneup for both USFL clubs.

Flutie, who signed a $7 million contract 11 days ago that prompted the trade of veteran quarterback Brian Sipe, suffered interceptions on his first two pass attempts as a pro and finished with just seven completions in 18 attempts.

"I made a couple of rookie mistakes and started to get down on myself just a little," said Flutie, who played the entire game. "Once I completed my first pass and got my first big play, though, I relaxed. By the end of the game, I was happy with my performance."

Flutie threw for 174 yards and added 51 more on three scrambles, impressing Orlando's rookie coach, Lee Corso, with his poise and ability to escape a pass rush.

Joyce ran back one fumble recovery 78 yards for the game's first score and he pounced on a fumble in the end zone for a third-quarter TD. Roger Ruzek added a 27-yard field goal and Maurice Carthon went over from a yard out for the Generals, who finished the exhibition season at 2-1.

Orlando, also 2-1, scored on Jerry Golsteyn passes of 10 yards to Joey Walters and 20 yards to Jerry Parrish.

"Flutie sure had a rough start, but I saw him after the game and told him I was praying for him," said Golsteyn, who completed 23-of-35 passes for 199 yards before yielding to Reggie Collier in the final period. "He throws the ball on the run just fantastic."

Flutie took over on the New Jersey 4-yard line in his first USFL possession and the Generals opened with three runs before Flutie dropped back for his first pro pass. Under pressure, Flutie tried to hit Carthon but linebacker Jeff Gabrielsen stepped in front at the 36 to intercept and returned 20 yards. The Renegades, who finished

3-15 last season as the Washington Federals, faced a fourth-and-two at the 12 before Kerry Justin picked off Golsteyn's pass at the 3-yard line.

Four plays later, Flutie received ample protection but was intercepted again by Gabrielsen with no receiver in sight down the middle.

Gabrielsen's theft set Orlando up at the New Jersey 24, but the Renegades displayed some Southern hospitality on the next play when Joyce scooped up a fumble by Reggie Evans and rambled 78 yards down the sidelines for a 7-0 Generals' lead with 2:15 left in the opening quarter.

Lake Mary win over Spruce Creek in January, was held to just two points. Darryl Merthick led the Rams with 19 points while 6-2 Jeff Reynolds added 10.

"Nichols hurt us all right," said Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson. "But they let him get away with murder. He was blocking the shot and then landing on the guy."

Jon Fedor, Spruce Creek's talented 6-8 forward, finished with 14 points and Johnnie Bennett had 11. Tiny William Hill chipped in nine.

LAKE MARY (54) — Merthick 19, Grayson 2, Willis 2, Reynolds 10, Harshfield 4, Csernejewski 4, Napoli 8, Newby 4, Jacobs 4, Washington 2, Totals: 23 19 54.

SPRUCE CREEK (75) — Fedor 14, Bennett 11, Nichols 18, Southell 6, Darthard 6, Hill 9, Halteman 8, Shook 2, Harris 1, Totals: 20 19 27 73.

Halftime — Spruce Creek 22, Lake Mary 25, Fouls — Lake Mary 19, Spruce Creek 18, Fouled out — Nichols, Technical — Lake Mary bench.

Apopka 68, Lake Howell 52

CASSELBERRY — Apopka's Blue Darters zipped to a 18-6 lead after one quarter and never looked back en route to a 68-52 victory over Lake Howell's Silver Hawks in Five Star Conference action before 500 fans at Lake Howell High.

The Darters avenged an early loss to the Silver Hawks and in the process ran their record to 15-9 overall and 10-6 in the conference. Lake Howell now stands at 11-14 overall and 3-13 in the Five Star.

"They (Apopka) outplayed us in every phase of the game," Lake Howell coach

Greg Robinson said. "We fell behind too early. When Efrem (Brooks) got into foul trouble, he became reluctant to shoot."

Brooks hit seven of his 13 points in the second quarter to pull the Hawks within six, 25-19, at halftime. But the Darters regained control in the third quarter and, behind Earl Clayton's eight points, took a 45-28 lead into the fourth.

APOPKA (61) — Rice 4, Shuler 2, Johnson 9, Luerman 18, Bowen 8, Elmore 12, Pierce 8, Clayton 14, R. Hardwick 2, K. Hardwick 3, Totals: 22 27 33 60.

LAKE HOWELL (53) — Anderson 14, Brooks 13, Beasley 2, Woodruff 4, Leonard 7, Hicks 8, Evans 4, Schmitter 2, Love 8, Ziegler 2, Jenne 2, Gammons 4, Totals: 22 8 52.

Bishop Moore 62, Oviedo 41

ORLANDO — Bishop Moore's Hornets outscored Oviedo's Lions in every quarter Friday night as the Hornets claimed a 62-41 victory in Orange Belt Conference action at Bishop Moore High.

"It was probably the worst game we've played all year," Oviedo coach Dale Phillips said. "Al Unroe played well in the fourth quarter but other than that we missed a lot of free throws and turned it over a lot."

OVIDEO (41) — Campbell 3, M. Stewart 4, Belton 2, Hill 2, Ferguson 3, Greene 1, Hughes 4, J. Stewart 2, Unroe 14, Totals: 14 13 25 41.

BISHOP MOORE (62) — Hartman 14, Conroy 6, Tessler 2, Calvo 2, France 15, Curtis 7, Britolis 4, Burgett 4, Buchanan 4, Doherty 2, Totals: 24 14 35 62.

Halftime — Bishop Moore 20, Oviedo 19, Fouls — Oviedo 20, Bishop Moore 17, Fouled out — none, Technical — Unroe.

Speaking of unconscious and out of one's mind, what about Spruce Creek's Mark Nichols. The 6-10 giant has been asleep most of the season but he woke up against Lake Mary's Rams in Five Star Conference basketball at Spruce Creek Friday night.

Nichols scored a season-high 18 points, pulled down 10 rebounds and blocked 14 shots as the Hawks zapped the Rams, 75-54.

"His quality of play was the best individual effort we've had all season," said Spruce Creek coach Roger Dorio. "We knew we had to stop (Donald) Grayson inside and Mark did the job on him."

Fran Fowler Scratches Out 1st 600 Series

Fran Fowler represented Bowl America Sanford in an outstanding manner in the finals of the Central Florida Bowling Proprietors Association "Best 3 out of 4 Tournament" at Skybowling in Orlando. Fran put together games of 210, 202 and 192 for a 604 scratch series.

That was Franny's first 600 series ever, but the way she's bowling in definitely won't be her last. Congratulations, Franny.

Our CFBPA "Sweetheart Doubles" qualifying ends this weekend. If you plan to try for the $600 first prize, we have squads Saturday at 3:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Sunday. Sunday is your last chance — anytime before we close on Sunday we'll accept two or more teams if lanes are available. We'll also be having our "No-Tap Singles" at the same time.

The Seminole County Women's Bowling Association ladies will be holding their annual tournament this Saturday and Sunday, and next weekend. Squads start at 1 p.m. on Saturday and noon on Sunday.

If you are a No-Tap fan, we have a really exceptional chance for you to bowl in a No-Tap League and yet not commit yourself for too long. The duration of the league will be 14 weeks, and will start Monday, Feb. 25, at 9:15 p.m. It is a doubles league so you should be finished by 10:30 p.m. The total cost including bowling, secretary and prize fund will be $8 per bowler. Sign up now by calling Bowl America, or see Belle at the desk.

High scores bowled this week are: Thursday Nite Mixed: Joanne Cason 204 and Richard Heaps 203. Moose Lodge: Steve Richards 234, Jeff Gross 213. Gene Rogers 204, Eve Rogers 200. BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Seminar Covers How To Start A Small Business

How to start and manage a small business is the topic of an evening workshop Wednesday and Thursday in Orlando sponsored by the Small Business Development Center at the University of Central Florida.

The two-part program, conducted in cooperation with the U.S. Small Business Administration, will feature tips from professionals in the areas of law, taxes, insurance and finance.

The cost for the two evenings is $5. Both sessions will be conducted at the Junior Achievement Center in Loch Haven Park. Additional information can be obtained by calling the SBDC at 275-2796.

Dollar General Buys Eagle Chain

Dollar General Corporation, which has two stores in Sanford, located at 203-09 E. First St. and 2701 Orlando Drive, recently acquired the Eagle Family Discount Stores in Florida, according to Dollar President Cal Turner, Jr.

"This $30 million transaction includes 208 retail store locations throughout Florida and a large warehouse near Miami.

"This acquisition and our store conversion plans mean that by mid-1985, Florida will have about 240 Dollar General Stores, including the 36 already operating in communities such as Sanford," Turner said in a press release.

He said the acquisition of the Eagle chain from Interco Incorporated, a St. Louis-based company, will provide a greater concentration of Dollar General Stores in Florida than in any other Dollar General market. Dollar is based in Scotsville, Kentucky.

JJ Muggs Has Grand Opening

JJ Muggs Restaurant, located at 1375 N. Semoran Blvd., in Casselberry, had its grand opening this week featuring a variety of food and a casual dining atmosphere.

Highlighting the JJ Muggs menu are the hamburgers, featuring one-half pound of a 100% choice ground chuck, charbroiled into such tempting burgers as the original Muggsburger, with crisp bacon, sauteed mushrooms and mild provolone cheese; the tasty Bacon and Swill Burger; or the unique Fiesta Burger topped with refried beans and crushed cheesy nacho chips.

The restaurant will serve lunch and dinner Sunday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and on Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to midnight. Smoking and non-smoking areas are provided for the convenience of guests. JJ Muggs honors most credit cards.

Big E Changes Locations

The Big E is moving its Deltona Boren Plaza office across the street to #500 in the new Providence Plaza Shopping Center. The new office, which opened this week, is a 2,500 square-foot facility featuring expanded lobby area, drive-in tellers a 24-hour HONOR ATM, and a Moneyplex Financial Service Center.

Moneyplex will initially be opening with brokerage services through licensed representatives of William M. Cadden and Company Inc., a Big E subsidiary. Plans call for additional services such as insurance and real estate to be added soon.

Stenstrom Has Record Year

Stenstrom Realty, with offices in Sanford and Lake Mary, announced a record sales volume for their firm of $27.1 million in 1984.

This was an increase of more than 50 percent over 1983's $17.8 million, and their finest year in their 27 year history, according to Herbert E. Stenstrom, owner and founder of the company.

Commission: U.S. Products Inferior

By Denis G. Quilico

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is turning out inferior products that are priced too high for foreign customers and the problems go beyond a strong dollar, high wages and high taxes, a presidential commission reports.

The commission this week found the same problems other experts have been citing for years to explain record trade deficits — chiefly seas of industrial obsolescence surrounding "islands of excellence."

But it carefully steered away from recommending that the government organize some kind of industrial policy to remedy the shortcomings it blamed on American business.

"We determined there is no substitute for attention to the basics," said Hewlett Packard Co. President John Young, the chairman of the President's Commission on Industrial Competitiveness.

"American industry needs to focus more on excellence and executing business fundamentals."

The commission's report, "The New Reality," did endorse the creation of a Cabinet-level department of trade that it said could help make trade a national priority. But it studiously avoided calling for a large-scale government effort.

The problems began long before the dollar grew strong, the commission said. Far from curing the trade problem, a falling dollar would only cut into the American standard of living.

"There is no single action — no simple solution — that can reverse the competitive erosion we report," the commission's statement said.

It would help, however, if the United States could spend proportionately the same on research and development as its international competitors and better coordinate the civilian research dollars spent by government.

"We've concluded that this country has neglected the development of a competitive advantage in manufacturing," Young said.

"Seven out of 10 American high-technology sectors have lost world market share since 1965," he added.

"It's a really job for not just people today but our kids," Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said. "It's the jobs of the future we're talking about."

The commission was created by the administration in August 1983 specifically to draw support away from Capitol Hill proposals for a government-run industrial policy.

Duo To Offer Overnight Service

Eastern Links Up With CF AirFreight

By Mary Schlangenstein

HOUSTON (UPI) — Eastern Airlines and CF AirFreight will combine resources to offer reduced-fare, overnight passenger service and delivery of up to 320,000 pounds of freight on cargo planes in a 10-city system, company officials said this week.

The new service, beginning April 1, marks the first time a major freight forwarder has contracted with an airline for exclusive use of cargo space for an extended period.

"It is the most significant partnership between a ground freight forwarding company and an airline in airline history," said Eastern Vice President Russell Ray. "It's the largest in terms of size, in terms of scope."

"This is a major, major undertaking."

Houston will serve as a hub for the system. Night and early morning flights carrying freight and passengers from the nine cities will arrive in Houston between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m.

Freight and passengers will be unloaded and switched to appropriate flights, and will leave the city between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m.

"It means we're going to be able to offer very, very low fares for passengers who are willing to put up with an all-night flight," said Eastern Chairman Frank Borman in an interview earlier this week in Miami.

Ray would not detail the reduced passenger fares that will be offered, saying Eastern still is developing plans. The fares will be announced in two weeks, he said.

Seven wide-bodied, A300 Airbus owned by Eastern will be used for the service, which Ray said would rejuvenate overnight passenger flights that virtually disappeared with deregulation of the industry.

The A300s can seat 252 passengers each, Ray said, and are ideal for freight because they can carry 20 standard air freight containers. Eastern now has 34 A300s it has used since 1977 in service on the east coast and in the Caribbean, he said.

"One of the advantages to this program to Eastern is to greater utilize our fleet," he said. "Our fleet sleeps overnight as do most carriers."

Ray and CF AirFreight President W. Roger Curry declined to say how much the companies expect to make during the course of the 3-year agreement. But both men said they expect little initial capital outlay to support the service.

Health Jobs No. 2 Source Of Employment

By Thomas J. Sheeran

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Medical, biomedical and health-related jobs have become the top source of new employment in Louisville, which sits on the southern edge of the "Rust Bowl" where aging factories have led to declining manufacturing employment rolls.

The trend here, highlighted by the attention focused on "Bionic Bill" Schroeder and the corporate sponsor of his artificial heart, the $2 billion-a-year Humana Inc. hospital management chain, typifies what is happening nationally.

During the 10-year period through 1984, Louisville lost more than 35,000 manufacturing jobs. At the height of the recession two years ago, the number dropped to 77,000 from the 1974 level of 120,800 factory jobs.

The city, home of the Kentucky Derby, has lured nearly 4,000 health-related jobs since the end of 1980. Humana employs 5,000 people in Louisville.

"It (the annual health field employment increase) has been going right about 1,000," said David Diersing, who watches trends in the Louisville job market for the state Department of Employment Services.

At a 16 percent annual growth in the past four years, the increase in the number of health-related jobs in Kentucky's largest city is second only to the 24 percent hike in jobs in banking, which is a smaller industry overall.

Nationally, the growth in the health services field trails only the 9 percent annual increase in food industry jobs, Diersing said.

Diersing's office defines health service jobs as employment in areas including nursing, hospitals, nursing homes, biomedical research, medical and dental offices, clinics and administrative positions, such as those at Humana's corporate office.

He said the 4,000 increased health services jobs came "across the board" in those areas. A bureaucratic quirk added 1,200 of the jobs to the health services category after removing them from the government category when Humana took over management of the University of Louisville's old general hospital.

Mayor Harvey I. Blane, a physician who has made economic development the No. 1 priority of his administration, said health services represent "a very important growth industry for us."

"Humana (a for-profit operation) is very key to that expansion but also a lot of not-for-profit hospitals that are doing good."

Blackfoot Indians Seek Economic Self-Sufficiency

By Leon Daniel

UPI National Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Earl Old Person of Montana's Blackfoot Indian tribe was in the nation's capital to sell pencils. His people make them in a factory on their reservation along the Canadian border, he explained over breakfast at a downtown hotel six blocks from the White House.

Old Person, 55, a former athlete whose coal-black hair and trim frame belie his name, was accompanied by a young man from a Madison Avenue public relations firm who had come down from New York to help the chief promote the pencils.

"Our tribe's biggest problem is the lack of jobs," said Old Person, who has been chairman of the tribal council since 1964.

He was selected in 1978 as the traditional chief of the 13,000 Blackfeet, about half of whom live on the 1.5-million-acre reservation which adjoins Glacier National Park.

The chief said the tribe earns about $300,000 a year from oil and gas on the reservation near the Canadian border but has no manufacturing jobs except for the pencil factory.

He said cutbacks in some federal programs for Indians and the phasing out of others under the Reagan administration had made things even more difficult.

Social welfare programs come and go, Old Person said, but the factory can help make his people economically self-sufficient.

"We're looking for things that are more permanent than federal programs," he said.

That is why Old Person, chief executive officer of his tribe's firm, travels widely, telling potential buyers. "We don't want your help. We want your business."

West Germans Losing Faith In Their Politicians

By Wolfgang Wagner

HANNOVER, West Germany — With their traditional respect for authority, West Germans would never have believed a few years ago that their public figures were anything except models of rectitude. Dishonest politicians, in their view, were confined to countries like France and Italy.

But a recent survey conducted here shows that more than two-thirds of West Germans now consider the ranks of their government to be rife with corruption. The attitude is especially prevalent among young people.

This shift in opinion is due primarily to the so-called Flick Affair, which resulted in the indictment of two prominent officials charged with taking bribes from one of the country's biggest conglomerates.

The defendants, scheduled to stand trial this year, are former Economics predecessor in the same post, Hans Minister Count Otto Lambdorff and his Friderichs, who later became head of a major West German bank.

The complaint against them, which they deny, is that they accepted money from the Flick company for fiscal juggling that saved the firm the equivalent of nearly $1 billion in taxes. The Flick chief executive, Eberhard von Brauschschitz, has also been indicted.

Not since the West German republic was founded in the wake of World War II has so sensational a case come to the surface. But it is not isolated.

Rainer Barzel, a distinguished Christian Democratic Party politician and former speaker of the Parliament, resigned not long ago after it was disclosed that Flick had been paying him off for years.

It may be difficult for the prosecution to win a guilty verdict against Lambdorff and Friderichs, since proving that they actually took bribes will not be easy. Nevertheless, even their acquittal will scarcely suffice to dispel the notion among West Germans that something is rotten in high places.

Evidence dredged up during the probe of their case revealed that Flick has long been engaged in illegally financing West Germany's political parties, and that fact alone is contributing to an erosion of faith in the system.

But a question being raised is whether the system can function at all without such illicit funding, since the parties maintain large machines that are expensive to operate.

Apart from the modest dues paid by their members, the parties rely on government subsidies, which are calibrated to the number of votes they gained in the last election. However, they are consistently short of cash.

The law notwithstanding, it was common knowledge during the 1970s that the parties depended for funds on private banks, industrial firms and commercial enterprises, which funneled their donations through a variety of channels in an effort to appear clean.

The authorities closed their eyes to these practices, to which they themselves owed their positions. It is worth noting that Lambdorff and Friderichs, besides being Cabinet ministers, were also treasurers of the Free Democratic Party.

The money presumably served to underwrite election campaigns. But, according to the polls, a majority of West Germans now believe that politicians regularly siphon off a proportion of the donations to line their own pockets, and that conviction could well turn out to be true.

Whatever the truth, 56 percent of those under the age of 30 who responded to the poll voiced the view that "our entire society is corrupt." And that opinion contains considerable importance for West Germany.

For those young citizens are the mainstay of the Greens, the radical movement that opposes the party structure. The Greens have genuinely honest, if only because they are shunned by the big corporations.

The Greens, who usually win about 10 percent of the votes in regional elections, score as well as they do because they are beyond reproach. So, even if public dishonesty in West Germany is exaggerated, the distortion is a political reality that cannot be ignored.

IRS Eases Travel Log Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service issued its promised formal regulations Friday, easing the controversial requirements to keep daily logs of any use of a business vehicle.

The 71 pages of regulation do not go beyond the exemptions promised by the IRS late in January under pressure from Congress.

The exemptions allow farmers and ranchers to escape the requirement for daily logs if they acknowledge 20 percent of the vehicle's use is personal, and so taxable as a fringe benefit.

Other business people who use a company car can escape the logging requirements by acknowledging 30 percent of the use is personal.

Gorbachev Eyed As Possible Successor

U.S. Analysts Believe Ailing Chernenko Has 6 Months To Live

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. officials, who contend Kremlin leadership changes have hampered progress in U.S.-Soviet relations, are eyeing yet another shift amid signs Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko may be terminally ill.

U.S. analysts believe Chernenko, who assumed power only a year ago as successor to Yuri Andropov, is suffering from emphysema and other disorders — including heart problems — that could leave him with only six months to live.

Regarded as his likely successor is Mikhail Gorbachev, who at 53 years of age is the youngest member of the ruling Politburo.

Chernenko, 73, last appeared in public Dec. 27, although the Tass news agency reported he addressed the Politburo Feb. 7. His physical infirmities have been a matter of speculation for months and his slip from view has been likened to those reported before the deaths of his two predecessors: Andropov and Leonid Brezhnev.

Andropov died Feb. 9, 1984, and was succeeded by Chernenko four days later.

The cancellation of a meeting this past Tuesday in Moscow between Chernenko and Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu fueled speculation of his ill health, as did the premature return to the Soviet Union of Dr. Yevgeny Chazov, a Kremlin physician visiting the United States.

Talk in U.S. government circles of succession in the Kremlin has centered on Gorbachev and Grigory Romanov, 61, with Gorbachev considered the favorite to become the fourth man to head the Kremlin since President Reagan took office. Reagan has blamed this succession of changes for the lack of a superpower summit over the last four years and for limited progress in arms control and other facets of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Some U.S. analysts believe a power struggle could be under way between Gorbachev and Romanov, both of whom were considered contenders, along with Chernenko, for the post of general secretary after Andropov's death.

Defector: Soviets Ready To Deal On Arms Control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Soviet defector says the Kremlin believes it has achieved a balance of power with the United States and is ready to freeze or cut its arsenal — if President Reagan will junk his ballistic missile defense program.

Arkady Shevchenko told the National Press Club Friday the cost of matching or countering the U.S. "Star Wars" system would be a heavy burden on the Soviets' troubled economy.

He also said the Soviets "are serious about these negotiations" starting March 12 in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Now, really the Soviet leadership, both political and military, feel comfortable with the situation and they (would) be interested to freeze what is now, even to reduce a level of their armaments to a certain point."

Reagan has estimated the Strategic Defense Initiative will cost $26 billion over the next five years and has vowed not to trade it off for any Soviet concessions in Geneva.

Shevchenko served five years as an under secretary-general of the United Nations and was a spy for the CIA for more than two years when he defected in 1978. He worked for years with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and his insider's view of the Kremlin was an intelligence coup for the United States.

The former diplomat said the American nuclear deterrent prevents a Soviet attack on the United States, Europe and China.

"They had been playing with the idea of using nuclear weapons against China but even the United States deterred them," he said. "They were so careful even to check (what) would be (the) reaction of the United States. ... So they dropped this idea."

"The Soviet leadership is not going to use nuclear weapons until the moment that they realize the United States can't retaliate properly," Shevchenko said.

'People Think I'm Nuts'

The Devers Would Walk More Than A Mile For A Camel

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

With his chocolate brown, bedroom eyes seductively shaded with super long lashes, he's a real charmer and he's almost as quick with his kisses as he is with his toothy grin. But Humphrey the camel saves most of his smooches for his Casselberry owners Jim and Jane Dever.

For years, 38-year-old Dever, who grew up on an Indiana farm, longed for an exotic camel for reasons he can't quite pinpoint, because, Mrs. Dever said, "He hasn't figured that one out yet."

Dever wasn't satisfied with the more typical menagerie that roams their 10-acre tract off Red Bug Lake Road. The four horses, four dogs (two rescued from the pound), three cats, 30 wild peacocks, an aviary filled with finches, button quail, cockatiel, a macaw, and a Queen Amazon parrot, plus an assortment of common chickens and wild squirrels and birds under the Devers' care and feeding just didn't do it for Dever.

In September his dream of owning a dromedary came true when Dever handed over $3,000 to Circus World and brought Humphrey loping into his life.

"People think I'm nuts, but that's half the fun of it," Dever, general manager of Clark Chrysler-Plymouth, Casselberry, said, adding that he loves having such a unique pet. "It's the kind of thing you don't see often, except in a zoo or something like that."

Humphrey, a Florida native who will turn 3 in March, is all Dever hoped a pet camel might be and more.

"He's unique because he was bottle fed and has never been around other camels," Dever said. "Camels, from what little I know about them, have a lot of bad habits. They spit at you and they aren't that great of pets. But because Humphrey was bottle fed as a baby he hasn't been around other camels and he doesn't know he's supposed to do that."

"He certainly thinks he's a horse or a big dog. He just follows you around the pasture and is the most curious animal you'll ever see."

But when Humphrey arrived at the Dever's barn he created quite a stir among the more common horses.

"Humphrey gets along great now, but the first night I brought him home the two horses down at the barn, their eyes got as big as saucers. They went to the furthest corner of the pasture and didn't move or eat for two days," Dever said.

"Humphrey didn't have a problem. The other animals had a problem with, 'What is this?'" Mrs. Dever said.

"They eventually got closer and closer and now everybody is best of friends," Dever said, but he's still holds the top spot in Humphrey's heart. The two play catch with Humphrey's favorite treat — apples, and soft, woolly hump-backed Humphrey is a master at hide and seek.

"He'll open his (stall) door a little and will stand there and look at you and then will walk back around and look at you again. Then he'll open the door as far as he wants to. He's well-trained and on command will go down on all fours," Dever said.

Humphrey, during the recent cold snap, showed off his intellect when he opened his own stall doors to enter and cuddle up on his hay-bed after having closed the door behind him, Mrs. Dever said.

Other than that Humphrey pretty much leads the life of a horse, except he has developed the troublesome habit of sucking the light bulbs off the rail fence that flanks Dever's driveway.

Humphrey's always ready to ride and has the same diet and care needs as a horse, but he needs fewer vet visits and is seldom caught drinking water, Dever said.

Humphrey, like the real camel he is, stashes his supply of water in the form of fat in his single hump. Florida dry spells are nothing compared to what he's capable of enduring and Humphrey is rarely caught wetting his whistle. "Unless you've got a garden hose out and then he wants to play with that. He loves to take a bath," Dever said.

With their assorted pets, the Devers who have been married two years are kept busy with feeding and grooming, part of which Dever does on his way to and from work and the rest — the trips to the vet, the grocer and the feed store fall to Mrs. Dever, who, Dever said, didn't have a camel at the top of her wish list when Humphrey came on the scene.

Since Mrs. Dever, 31, whose special interest is birds, has put a cap on any new inductees into their menagerie, except for those strays who might be lucky enough, roam onto their farm, the Devers have focused on extending their loving care to animals in another way.

After a visit to Seminole County Animal Control, Dever, who was moved by the plight of unwanted animals — the older pets, some with injuries who had no hope for adoption and faced death because of lack of a home, decided to do something to help.

Last year the Devers gave financial backing to Kindness & Care (K&C) an animal rescue center at Falcon's Lair Kennel on Celery Avenue in Sanford.

The shelter is supported through fundraising efforts of the Pet Rescue & Adoption Society, and Dever said, "Our intent in setting up K&C was to save as many animals from being destroyed as we could by taking in pets that aren't adopted or claimed from the county's Animal Control Center. We also promote low-cost spaying and neutering to help control the animal population."

"We take in sick and injured pets too. There's a veterinarian on call who cares for the animals which we then try to find homes for."

"I got involved," he said, to try to make people aware there was such a place as Animal Control and that the animals need to be adopted. They just don't have enough room or enough funds for the county to support them. Seminole County only has an allowance of $250,000 a year for animal control."

"I'm ashamed that nobody has done it before," he said of his push for private sector involvement in the care of needy animals. "If everybody did a little. There are so many needs around. I guess everybody has to do what they feel comfortable with."

"There are a lot of children who need help and a lot of families. Everybody just has to do what they're most comfortable with," he said, and added his primary interest is helping animals, although at Christmas he also, through the city of Casselberry, assists with programs for children and the elderly.

Dever who frequently calls on Humphrey to add his exotic, unique touch to promotions for his business, also calls on his dealership to help

'I got involved to try to make people aware there was such a place as and that the animals need to be adopted. They just don't have enough room or enough funds for the county to support them. Seminole County Animal Control only has an allowance of $250,000 a year for animal control.'

animals. Since April 1983, it has been a tradition in that month for Clark Chrysler-Plymouth to donate $50 for every vehicle sold to an escrow account to subsidize families who want to adopt a pet from Animal Control, but who can't afford the fees.

So far, about $6,000 has been earmarked for the program and over 190 cats and dogs that would have been destroyed have been saved, Dever said.

And Humphrey's March birthday will also bring assistance to other animals. The birthday camel, Dever said, will be wishing for nothing more than perhaps a simple but succulent apple or carrot, but he hopes birthday party guests might honor Humphrey by bringing along a bag of dog or cat food to help feed homeless animals.

Pet Health

Newcastles A Threat To Birds And Poultry

Last week, I mentioned that we would continue a discussion on heartworms in dogs which I will at a later date.

In some areas of Florida there has been a great deal of attention focused on a disease affecting pet birds called Newcastle.

The disease has been labeled as avian distemper, fowl pest, and a half dozen other names. The term Newcastle is said to have originated from an area in England, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, where in the 1920s a fatal viral disease in domestic chickens was described.

What does this mean to those who are not interested in pet birds? Well, it could potentially mean higher prices on your dinner table when serving poultry.

The disease is caused by a paramyxovirus which can survive for long periods of time under the right set of circumstances in the environment. It can affect finches, canaries, parrots, pheasants, quail, poultry and many other species of birds.

Some individuals feel that the parrots which have the disease originally get it from poultry in the country of origin. It is also possible that birds from the wild may already have the disease present in their populations.

Small outbreaks in the wild are limited in their damage by the natural tendency of most species to avoid concentration of all their members in one location. In captivity the worst may happen where birds are concentrated in quarantine stations or in poultry farms.

The Newcastle virus is usually divided into four groups. These divisions are based on the severity of the signs caused by different strains of the virus. The two less dangerous strains usually do not cause obvious signs of illness and death is very rare. The two most dangerous strains are what the poultry industry fears. Both of these result in high morbidity (animals showing illness) and mortality (death).

A viscerotropic form (signs seen in the visceral organs) usually shows illness related to the intestinal tract such as diarrhea. The other deadly form is classed as neurotropic (illness related to the nervous system). Initially birds in this group may show signs of respiratory illness which may eventually result in pneumonia.

During the early phases of sickness the bird may seem depressed, talk less, stay ruffled during periods of the day when it is usually active, act sleepily, and lose its appetite. The virus eventually gains access to the nervous system resulting in incoordination, tremors, weakness, etc. These birds soon die.

The government and the poultry industry concentrate on keeping these two strains out of the country. Some poultry farms may contain thousands of animals in a small area. You can imagine the results if the virus gets into this situation. In Florida alone, this industry is estimated to be worth more than $200 million. With this in mind the United States Department of Agriculture developed a quarantine program that runs or monitors import stations in various parts of the country.

These stations will hopefully detect Newcastle before it can get to the poultry industry. As we can see from past outbreaks there is no guarantee that the affected birds will be detected.

Even recently a bird was diagnosed as having Newcastle which originally came from a quarantine station in Miami. This would indicate that some birds may be capable of carrying the virus without being detected.

This would mean that a second line of detection must depend on the general public. When the bird in Tampa died, had it not been autopsied we might have had a much bigger problem on our hands concerning Newcastle. I am sure there are those in the pet industry who have been affected who might be wishing that this bird was not diagnosed. This would be a few limited individuals who have economically suffered from the outbreak such as quarantine stations and pet shops which find themselves under quarantine.

This small bird from Tampa has shown us the value of following up on a bird which has died from an unknown reason.

The cause for death in many individuals is often hidden away unless the owners are willing to allow autopsies to be done. In the exotic field this is even more important. Many diseases are still not well understood at this time. As distasteful as it may seem to the owners who loved their animal an autopsy may not only pin down the cause of death of that individual but the information gathered may help other animals in the future.

All of us who are involved with birds and other "exotic" species must still strive to learn all we can about the diseases which affect these special pets. In some cases it will take a personal sacrifice in allowing an autopsy. But, as the bird from Tampa showed us there is often a great deal to be gained. We will cover this topic in depth in a later column.

Sorority Marks 77th Birthday

Jo-Ann Alma Mead, Dwayne Daniel Nadeau

Mead-Nadeau

Mrs. Beatrice Mead of West Pawlet, Vt., announces the engagement of her daughter, Jo-Ann Alma, to Dwayne Daniel Nadeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Nadeau, 292 Live Oak Blvd., Sanford.

The bride-elect was born in Glens Falls, N.Y., and attended public schools there.

Her fiancé, also born in Glens Falls, is the maternal grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Gamble of Argyle, N.Y. He is a 1984 graduate of Seminole High School, Sanford, and is employed by the Golden Lamb Restaurant, Sanford.

The wedding will take place in New York.

February of each year is an important month for the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc. This is when the sorority commemorates its birth. The members of Kappa Sigma Omega, Sanford, Nu Iota Omega, Maitland, and Delta Omicron Omega, Orlando, selected Feb. 9 for this auspicious occasion.

The celebration climaxed the 77th observance of the first black greek-letter sorority. Prior to a luncheon aboard the Star of Sanford an impressive program and rededication ceremony were held at the Holiday Inn.

Soror Vickie Smith extended greetings to the sorors and gave the occasion. The meditation for the morning was given by Soror Doris Hawthorne of Nu Iota Omega Chapter. Musical and poetic expressions were presented by Sorors Theima E. Speight, Debra Allen and Annie Ruth Johnson. Highlighting the program was the special presentation of a plaque to Sorors Earnestine Roberts and Mary Whitehurst for their sisterly love and thoughtfulness and in appreciation for their continuous support and service to their sorority.

Sorors and guests then boarded the cruise ship for an afternoon of fun and lunch with 83 sun-seekers enjoying this lovely event.

Chairmen for the occasion were Sorors Vickie Smith, Kappa Sigma Omega, Vickie Brooks, Delta Omicron Omega, and Doris Hawthorne, Nu Iota Omega. Daisies of the sororities are Sorors Meriam Johnson, Alfreda Gary and Doris Hawthorne.

In observance of Black History Month, we salute the Black Greek Letter organizations that are contributing to the im-

Readers 300-To-1 Against Cabbage Patch Craze

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't agree more with "Ashamed American Mother," who refuses to buy into the Cabbage Patch craziness. I feel exactly as she does.

Cabbage Patch Kids have become the new status symbol for American youngsters. I am dumbstruck by the number of otherwise intelligent, sensible adults buying into this mania and fostering a frenetic need in their children to possess — what? A cuddly baby doll? Certainly there are cuddly baby dolls galore that cost far less than $50 and $100, do not require putting one's name on a six-month waiting list, and can be dressed, cuddled and loved. But owning a Cabbage Patch Kid is the newest form of snobbery.

When my daughter's peers are older and into drugs, I want her to be able to think for herself and say "No," despite what everyone else is doing.

I may be considered a "mean mommy" by some, but I refuse to follow along like one more sheep to the cabbage patch. My daughter, in fact, is rather proud of the fact that she doesn't own one.

SANE AMERICAN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You will be pleased to know that the Cabbage Patch Kids had the stuffings beat out of them insofar as my readers were concerned. The mail ran 300-to-1 against them.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is getting married soon. We are addressing the wedding invitations, but here's the question: She and her fiancé don't need any household items — all they really need is money. Would it be OK to write something like that on the invitations? And how should it be worded?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: It is never OK to ask for money instead of wedding gifts. Should the bride and groom be asked if they prefer money rather than a gift, then, and only then, would it be proper to indicate that money is preferred.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for nearly two years to a man I went with for about a year. I thought we had a great marriage until I found some photos and love notes in his briefcase. These items were from a woman he works with. Abby, please believe me, I wasn't snooping; he had gone to bed and I was looking for some postage stamps.

I was thunderstruck! We have associated with this woman and her husband since we started going together, but I never suspected there was anything between her and my husband.

My husband claims that the affair lasted for only a short time and it was over long before I found the items. He begged me not to talk with her about this, as it would make his life miserable at work, and jobs are scarce.

After the initial shock subsided, I forgave him and agreed not to bring it up again. Now I'm wondering if I would feel better knowing more about what happened, when, and for how long. Or would it be better to just try to put it out of my mind? (It's not easy. Just because I don't talk about it doesn't mean I don't think about it.)

THE HONEYMOON IS OVER

DEAR OVER: You were deeply wounded, and wounds won't heal until they have been properly cleansed. Family counseling for both of you is my recommendation. If he won't go, go without him. You need to learn how to forget as well as forgive.

DEAR ABBY: I am the owner of a profitable retail hardware store with a good number of employees. There's one woman who has been with me for 22 years. I have to admit she's loyal, honest and efficient. She started as a bookkeeper, but now she's a self-appointed "office manager." She used to call me "Mr.," but now she calls me by my first name. She's very bossy, acts like she owns the place and, to tell you the truth, she's beginning to get on my nerves.

We don't have a retirement age around here, but I wish she'd retire (she's old enough) so I could replace her with a younger woman who isn't so bossy. They say a new broom sweeps clean. What do you say?

THE BOSS

DEAR BOSS: A new broom may sweep clean, but the old broom knows where the dirt is.

Their music covers a wide range of classical, traditional and contemporary works. The concert is free to the public. A nursery will be provided.

Report Cites Persecution Of Bahais

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The annual State Department report on human rights singles out Iran's persecution of the Bahais, citing "rampant" torture and the assassination of at least 29 of their faith.

The annual report said there were marginal improvements in Iran in 1984 but it still found harsh evidence of torture, murder and Islamic repression.

The report found that there is considerable circumstantial evidence of Iranian involvement in terrorism and political assassinations in 1984 apparently numbered several hundred.

Persecution of the Bahais included the assassination of at least 29 of their faith and reports of torture are "rampant," the report said.

Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams called particular attention to Iran's apparent renunciation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the first such action by any nation in the 36-year history of the declaration.

Abrams said most tyrants at least pay lip service to the standards set forth by the declaration, but pointed out that Iran's ambassador to the United Nations recently told a U.N. meeting that his country would "not hesitate to violate" the declaration.

Spokesmen for the American Bahai community called on the U.N. Commission on Human Rights to adopt a strong resolution condemning Iran's violations of fundamental human rights.

"It is essential to keep the spotlight on Iran," said Firuz Kazemzadeh, vice chairman of the American Bahai.

"We mourn the loss of nearly 300 Iranian Bahais who have died for their religious faith," Kazemzadeh said. "But we are convinced that the persecution would have been far worse had it not been for such expressions of concern from the world outside Iran."

Last March the U.N. commission voted to send a special representative to Iran to make a thorough study of the human rights situation, for a report to the commission's 1985 session.

The Bahai faith, founded in Persia, now Iran, in the mid-19th century, has some 3 million adherents worldwide, including about 100,000 American Bahais.

HOROSCOPES

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY FEBRUARY 17, 1985 In the year ahead you can derive substantial benefits by gaining more knowledge about your chosen field.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Extra effort will be required today if you expect to achieve your objectives. Take your setbacks in stride and continue to push on.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Uncharacteristically, you may be tempted to do something out of spite to one who has wronged you in the past.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even if you are doing business today with people you know and trust, be sure to spell everything out so there won't be any misunderstandings later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may not find easy answers to tough questions today so when assessing situations, do so logically, not just optimistically.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Before getting yourself involved in new projects or ventures at this time, check out every ramification so you know exactly what to expect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might be tempted to take risks or buck odds today that you normally wouldn't. It's best that you be cautious instead of capricious.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In important family matters today, be sure to include your mate in the decision-making process. Unless you're both in accord, problems may result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may spend more time

YOUR BIRTHDAY FEBRUARY 18, 1985

New channels will open for you in the year ahead that will lead to advancement in your field. These breaks will come in an unexpected manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be duty conscious today and do what's expected of you, but also leave yourself some time to participate in pleasurable pursuits. Major changes are in store for Aquarians in the coming year.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Trends and tides will be shifting in your favor today. You may be able to achieve an objective you previously thought was unattainable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your greatest benefits today will come through your more aggressive contacts. Avoid involvements with people who think "status quo."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A unique idea may dominate your thinking today. Don't discount it just because it's a departure from your normal way of operating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Listen attentively when smart people speak today. Someone you'll be talking to may furnish you with a brilliant point of view you haven't yet considered.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be hesitant to experiment with new procedures today at work. You could develop some step-savers that will enhance your productivity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have the ability today to analyze situations on the spot and come up with the right answers while your associates are still trying to understand the problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may have a tendency to let duties go until the last minute. However, you'll still be ingenious enough to squeeze things in under the wire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to keep your schedule as flexible as possible today. There's a chance something fun may pop up that you'll want to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Change and circumstances tend to favor you today where material interests are concerned. Something financially opportune could come through a loving friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will be easy for you to gain the support of others today for ventures in which you truly believe. Associates will respect your judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep a weather eye peeled for opportunities today because you might be able to pick up something of personal value that's been overlooked by others.

CELEBRITY CIPHER

Celebrity Cipher cryptograms are created from quotations by famous people, past and present. Each letter in the cipher stands for another. Today's clue: P equals O.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby Harry Fishbein, one of the great experts in American bridge, was known as "Master of the Mayfair." That he owned the Mayfair Bridge Club in New York explains one part of his nickname. Today's deal shows the aptness of the other part.

At rubber bridge, even odds-on grand slams are not always bid. After all, if something devilishly unlucky occurs, you have lost the points for making a small slam. When dummy comes down in today's deal, you wonder why you didn't reach seven spades instead of six. That's fine, but meanwhile you want to be sure of making six.

Fishbein won the ace of clubs. Instead of immediately playing trumps, he ruffed a club at trick two. Now he played the ace of spades and got the bad news that there was a trump loser. How fortunate that he had ruffed a club!

He cashed the heart queen and played out his high diamonds. If East ruffed any high diamond, his exit card would let declarer get to the dummy sooner or later. If East held off until the fourth round of diamonds, at which time declarer would trump in dummy and East would overruff, declarer would then be able to pick up the remaining trumps and his hand would be good.

A simple little play, trumping the club. And who would ever have thought that spades would break 4-0? But the Master of the Mayfair knew that it is worthwhile to have some insurance in a rubber bridge game.

Robert Petree If There Has To Be Growth, He Still Wants Elbow Room

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Combine Indiana Jones, the adventure-seeking archaeologist of movie lore, with activist attorney Clarence Darrow, and naturalist James Audubon and you get Robert Petree — Lake Mary City Attorney.

Whether he is scaling volcanoes in Africa in search of a rare strain of orchid or jousting with a developer at Lake Mary City Hall, Petree is trying to preserve what is natural, beautiful and just in the world.

The 50-year-old Petree's world view is filtered with a love and appreciation for orchids, birds and ancient civilizations. He sees everything in the light of preservation of history and conservation of the environment.

That vision brought him to what is now Lake Mary 20 years ago and is what continues to nourish his actions as the city's attorney.

He fell in love with the spaciousness of the sleepy village, along with its pastoral atmosphere. He built a house on an island on Crystal Lake on the edge of the city limits where he said he feeds geese and ducks.

But before long the sleepy village woke up to tractors and dump trucks — the sounds of developers razing trees and building subdivisions.

With Caterpillar earth movers crawling all over the area, Petree's peace has been disturbed and he's speaking out about it whenever he gets the chance.

From the den of his home, surrounded by 6,000 books about topics ranging from art to zoology, Petree recently lamented the results of rapid growth in Florida and Lake Mary.

"You used to step off a plane at Herndon or wherever and smell orange blossoms. Now you smell sewage plants. And I don't care how efficiently they're managed, they smell like sewage plants," Petree said. "And I wouldn't eat anything out of any lake 100 miles around here."

Growth is taking its toll on more than the state's natural resources, he said. Crowding afflicts humans and their cultural means of relating to one another, according to Petree. To him, a rural way of life is being lost.

"There's a whole generation coming up that doesn't know what blackberry pie tastes like," he said.

Petree is a devotee of classical music and a pianist in his own right

Petree believes there is a definite relationship between "elbow room" and a community's quality of life. "Lack of it (elbow room) creates violent people," Petree said. He admits that growth in Lake Mary and the state cannot be stopped, but is quick to add that state and city officials must take steps to blunt the effects of growth on the ecology and "human spirits of those who have to live close together."

Petree said the Lake Mary City Commission, which he serves, has the political will and fortitude to control growth. Its

Spending Patterns Shifting For Most Americans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans spend less of their income on food than they did 10 years ago and more than 32 percent of their food dollars are now spent in restaurants, a Conference Board study shows.

The study, prepared by the Board's Consumer Research Center, reports that food consumption overall accounts for only 17 percent of U.S. family income, down from 19 percent in 1970 and 23 percent in 1960. But more than 32 percent is now spent on food eaten away from home, up from 28 percent in the early 1970s and 17 percent in the early 1960s.

"The degree of a nation's economic well-being can almost always be measured by the proportion of family income spent for food," Fabian Linden, Board economist who directed the Hearst Corp.-sponsored study, said.

"While food consumption has increased more rapidly than population, it has grown more slowly than income," Linden said. Slightly more than half the increase in food expenditures was due to population gains and "the rest represents an important improvement in living standards."

The study, based on data collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics between 1960 and 1981, revealed that the country's buying habits have been strongly affected by changes in education levels, women in the workforce and the trend of smaller families.

Linden said the changing demographics have "profound and provocative implications for the economy in general."

Among other findings:

— Singles and two-person families account for more than 40 percent of all supermarket purchases, up from one-third a decade ago. Large households account for less than 20 percent of food purchases, down from 30 percent.

— Supermarket shoppers are more sophisticated. College-educated families account for 46 percent of all food industry sales, up from 30 percent in 1970. Women play an important role in this trend, accounting for 82 percent of all college students, compared to 40 percent in 1970.

— Meat claims less than 25 percent of the family food budget compared to 29 percent in the early 1970s. Declines have been most pronounced in beef and pork.

— Spending for wine increases with education — moderately educated families spend 15 percent of alcoholic beverage budget on wine, compared to more than 30 percent for families with college education. Families with less than high school education spend over 60 percent of their alcohol budget for beer and ale, compared to less than 40 percent among those with college degrees.

Spending on whiskey and other hard liquor accounted for 13 percent of the alcohol budget, down from 24 percent in 1970.

The study also noted that births in the United States are expected to reach 4 million in 1990, a number just below the peak of the post-war Baby Boom.

But women are having fewer children, shrinking the average household size. Families of five or more, which used to account for 30 percent of all households, now make up less than 20 percent.

And while people aged 25 to 34 have been a major purchasing force, the most growth in household income in the coming years will come from those aged 35 to 44.

The Graves They Dug Were For Their Own Children

It was a hard, high, dry land, a land of mountains and deserts, little blessed by nature.

But people survived in this land. They lived a hard life, but they lived.

There were droughts in this land, terrible droughts. The droughts turned fields of grain into clouds of swirling dust, as the land became as dry and parched as the faces of its people. But the people kept fighting, kept producing, kept existing.

And then a new government seized power. It was a government committed to socialism, to throwing off the yoke of its capitalist oppressors. It was to be a government for all the people.

The new government taught school children to sing this song:

We struggle against capitalism.

We fight to free the oppressed.

We dig the graves of the imperialists.

United we face all terrors.

The children sang this song with determination, with clenched fists. There was a struggle for the independence that would bring prosperity. There was a struggle against the stinginess of nature, against the imagined oppressors.

Socialism required that production benefit the people, not the capitalists. And so the government seized the factories. It seized the banks. It seized the transportation facilities.

Only when the government controlled production, it was thought, could production serve

Dollars & (Non)Cents
Timothy Tregarthen

all the people.

But when production was for the people, and not for the capitalists, it did not do as well. Growth in industrial output, which had been much more rapid than growth in output in other poor countries, fell to half the rate of growth in the those countries.

Investment did not grow as it did in other countries. It fell. It fell year after year after year.

Not only industrial output was to be for the people. Food was to be for the people as well. The government sought the advice of experts from the Soviet Union and Cuba, who could explain how to make agriculture for everyone.

The government fixed the prices farmers could charge for food. It held those prices constant, year after year after year. Other prices went up, but not the prices farmers received for food.

Farmers, stripped of the incentive to grow more food, didn't produce as much. The output of food per person plunged.

Controlling prices wasn't enough. The government took over the distribution of the food, to ensure that it would go to the people. But the government's system could not handle the food the farmers produced. Grain rotted in the fields.

The government also controlled the price of the country's currency, the birr. It held the birr high and proud and expensive. And so the country's exports were expensive. And so they fell. They fell year after year after year.

Then the next drought came. It dried up the crops, as it always had.

The people suffered, as they always had. But this time their suffering was heaped upon the suffering already wrought by the perverse policies of the government, policies that had strived the economy in a way no drought ever could.

And so the suffering was greater. People starved. They starved by the thousands and tens of thousands.

The brave children with the clenched fists were grown up now. They dug graves, as their song had promised. But the graves they dug were not for the imperialists, but for their own children.

They had fought against oppression. But in their turn to socialism, the people of Ethiopia had succeeded only in bringing upon themselves the worst oppression of all, the oppression of poverty and death.

Putting The Cart Before The Horse

The Seminole County Commission seems to be putting the cart before the horse by including certain information in a letter to a developer regarding the proposed purchase of land for a new library site.

Indeed, the letter and additional negotiations with the developer may also be premature, since the county can't be certain without soil borings if the site is suitable for the proposed two-story library building.

The commission, by a 4-1 vote, agreed to send the letter to Norman Rossman, the developers' representative, offering to buy a five-acre tract in Caseelberry as a main library site. Only Commissioner Bill Kirchoff objected strenuously, especially because the letter contains a reference to discussing condemnation proceedings if the county is unable to buy a site for the new library.

Kirchoff's opposition to that reference because he fears the county will unwittingly participate in assisting the developer to incorrectly delay or avoid paying taxes on any capital gains resulting from the sale.

As a matter of fact, Kirchoff is so incensed he's threatened to send a letter to Internal Revenue Service pointing out the county never intended to use its power of eminent domain in condemning a site for a new library.

Apparently IRS has a rule which allows a landowner to either delay or avoid paying a capital gains tax when he's forced to sell property to a governmental agency possessing power of eminent domain and he's been threatened with that process.

Has the developer been threatened with that process simply because the county indicates in its letter that it probably "would discuss condemnation" if it fails in its negotiations with him, and is ultimately unable to buy a suitable site?

Commissioner Fred Streetman says he doesn't think so, and adds he himself would vote against using condemnation to acquire a site for a new library if the matter eventually comes up.

Streetman also says the only reason the county is including the reference to condemnation in its letter is because the developers' representative himself asked if the county would consider such action if an agreement to buy the land cannot be reached.

Commissioner Streetman points out he doubts IRS would construe that as a legitimate threat of condemnation, since the developer himself raised the issue. Sounds right. Still, was it necessary for the county to include that reference in its letter? We think not. If the developer chose to raise the issue again at some future date, fine. But the county need not have addressed in its letter one of several possible avenues it can take to acquire a library site before it reached the point where that might have become necessary.

Further, County Engineer Bill Bush says in his opinion only about 2.5 acres of the tract may be usable for development, with the balance useless wetlands. He said the only way to determine if the soil, even on the dry portion, can support a building of more than one story is through soil borings.

The Caseelberry library is to be designed to accommodate a second story in future expansion. The county has not yet received a survey of the property and probably will not until March 6, according to county officials. When that information is received, it will be sent to Bush for his evaluation.

But, the only way to know for certain if the property can be used for a two-story building is through soil borings to determine what's under the surface. The architect of the library facility will need that information, Bush says.

We can appreciate the county looking into possible sites as early as possible, but we don't think it's necessary to imply to any proposed buyer that it will make certain concessions or take a particular action if a meeting of the minds can't be reached. At least not until commissioners know for certain a particular site is deemed suitable for a new library building.

It Don't Reach The Crest Without Arrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "in" thing for certain celebrities and other VIPs to do these days is get arrested while demonstrating outside the South African embassy.

It isn't enough, apparently, simply to exhibit disapproval of that country's policies. The important part is being carted off by the cops.

So what if the charges generally are dropped. It's the symbolism that counts.

I was aware, of course, that many stars of the political, sports, trade union, clerical and stage worlds had been among the approximately 800 demonstrators arrested at the site since organized picketing began in November.

But I didn't really realize how structured the protesting had become until I saw a future-tenor press release from a senator's office.

It announced that the lawgiver "will be arrested outside the South African embassy" and even gave the hour of the projected bust.

Sure enough, the senator was duly apprehended, handcuffed and hauled away to police headquarters where he was booked for picketing too close to an embassy, a misdemeanor. Also a "photo opportunity" if ever there was one.

It used to be said during some of the big demonstrations in the 1960s that the protesting usually didn't really get started until the television cameras arrived.

I certainly wouldn't be so cynical as to suggest that publicity has anything to do with the South Africa protest movement. But how could the senator be so sure he was going to be arrested? After all, only a minority of the demonstrators became emmeshed in the tangle of the law.

The news release would appear to be prima facie evidence that collusion of a sort with the police department was afoot.

If so, imagine how embarrassing it must be to join the protest movement and not be arrested. The implication is that unarrested demonstrators, regardless of how sincere their feelings, aren't important enough to make the police blotter.

Second bananas, say, arrive at the embassy with publicity agents in tow ready to give their fingerprints for the cause. But officers on the scene refuse to cooperate, possibly because they don't recognize the offenders.

Far be it from me to recommend that lesser known public figures try bribery as a means of getting themselves collared. But if I viewed my arrest as being as newsworthy as the pinching of a Senate committee chairman, I would certainly want to make sure the skids were greased in advance.

We may never learn the truth unless the FBI steps in with one of its highly publicized "scam" operations.

"How much would it be worth to you to be arrested outside the embassy?" asks an FBI agent posing as a local law enforcement officer before hidden cameras.

"Depends on the number of reporters and cameramen present," replies a person of would-be distinction.

A tape like that could be a tougher rap to beat than picketing within 500 feet of an embassy.

Help Minority Pupils

The integration of American public schools, decided by the U.S. Supreme Court over three decades ago, is becoming an emotionally charged issue again.

Despite the good that school integration has brought — improved achievement for minorities, increased educational options for all students, benefits to society as a whole — the prospects for further school integration seem dim under the Reagan administration.

Thus, improving segregated schools becomes an attractive prospect.

A new report from the Joint Center for Political Studies says that the Justice Department is now employing "the worst possible strategy for achieving successful desegregation."

The report, issued 30 years after Brown vs. Board of Education, by Dr. Jennifer L. Hochschild, says that supporters of better education for black children ought to examine "high quality, black-dominated schools as an attractive alternative to mandatory reassignment."

Dr. Hochschild, an assistant professor of politics and public policy at the Woodrow Wilson School of International Affairs at Princeton, says that much has been accomplished since 1954: The proportion of blacks in predominately black schools dropped from 77 percent in 1968 to 63 percent in 1980. The proportion of blacks in racially isolated schools (more than 90 percent minority enrollment) dropped even more — from two-thirds in 1968 to one-third in 1980.

Most of this drop occurred between 1968 and 1972. Since 1978, there's been no noticeable lessening of racial segregation.

The South, where segregated schools were once required by law, witnessed the greatest reduction in segregation. In northern states, racial isolation has increased and is even accelerating. Today, almost one-half of northern black students attend all-minority schools, compared with one-quarter of black children in the South.

Black students are also disproportionately placed in classes for the "educable mentally retarded"; black and Hispanic students are more likely to be placed in compensatory education classes, and are less likely to be placed in classes for gifted, talented or college-bound children.

Taxpayers Pay For Nuke Gamble

WASHINGTON — When the oil potentials overestimated the demand for their product and brought on a worldwide glut, prices tumbled and consumers got a break.

But when U.S. officials made similar predictions for the nuclear power industry, and a worldwide glut of enriched uranium followed, it's the taxpayers who are getting stuck.

The federal government, caught by its own miscalculations, is losing roughly $45 a unit on the millions of units of enriched uranium that the Department of Energy produces each year for the nuclear power industry. Here's how it happened:

A decade ago, the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission forecast a rapid and virtually limitless growth of nuclear power and the need for enriched uranium that fuels the power plants. But staggering cost overruns and safety concerns all but smothered the infant nuclear power industry.

Headless of the warning signs, officials stuck to the rosy projections and began easing restrictions

RUSTY BROWN

Maternity With Honor

Next week, a 28-year-old utility-firm analyst named Nicki will reluctantly leave her 7-week-old baby and return to work.

"I still feel trashed out physically," she says. She applied for an additional 30-day leave-without-pay, but her supervisor had to OK it — and didn't. "It's either go back to work or lose my job," says the new mother.

At a small law firm down the street, one of the secretaries, who also just had a baby, thinks Nicki is lucky: "I only got two weeks paid leave."

The difference in how these two companies handle a worker's pregnancy is typical. Across the country, maternity-leave policies vary widely. They are often arbitrary or vague — and many companies have no policy at all.

It is estimated that only 40 percent of employed women receive a six-week disability leave for childbirth. That proviso is the result of the Pregnancy Disability Act of 1978, a measure requiring companies to treat pregnancy as a disability if disability benefits are provided in other situations.

Payment varies, however, and is usually a percentage based on seniority.

Unfortunately, the majority of women work for smaller companies that offer no fringe benefits, so their pregnancies are not covered. Only five states (California, Hawaii, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island) have temporary-disability legislation giving short-term disability payments to almost all working women. Social workers Sheila Kamerman and Alfred Kahn of Columbia University's School of Social Work surveyed 250 companies and in a comprehensive report noted: "Most working women still have no — or very little — income protection at childbirth."

Many women also face the worry that if they take unpaid leave for several months, they might not get their jobs back.

What a contrast with most European countries, where the minimum is 14 weeks paid leave. In Sweden, mothers receive 90 percent of their salaries for up to nine months. Furthermore, the "parent benefit" can be used by fathers, too. Kamerman and Kahn think it's ironic that the United States, one of the richest countries in the world, lags in recognizing the importance of ensuring new parents and their infants a decent period for recovery and for launching their lives together.

A survey by Catalyst — the non-profit agency monitoring career and family issues — shows that a handful of U.S. companies are leading the way to superior maternity benefits. CBS provides paid maternity leave and allows mothers or fathers to take up to six months unpaid leave with job reinstatement guaranteed. American Telephone & Telegraph has a policy of eight weeks paid leave for the mother, and couples working for the company can take up to a year of unpaid leave between them.

former Capitol Hill expert on the subject, it costs the government $180 to produce each SWU it sells to its customers. This may be a bargain for the nuclear power industry, but the taxpayers have to make up the $45 difference.

The Energy Department's sales this year are expected to total 8.9 million SWUs. That would mean a loss of almost $450 million. Enrichment is impoverishing the agency.

Unlike most government commodity subsidies, this one doesn't benefit domestic producers, because the power companies can import all the raw uranium they want. And foreign producers can undercut U.S. uranium mines easily, either by the use of virtual slave labor (South Africa) or through their own government's subsidization (Canada). The only beneficiaries of the Energy Department's money-losing enrichment system are the nuclear power companies.

Search For Tax Shelters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Connecticut firm offers potential investors a "tax write-off (of) 100 percent to 130 percent." A California company advertises "excellent tax advantages" for those whose money it manages.

An Oklahoma enterprise boasts that its financial backers have been able to deduct almost 90 percent of their investment from their federal income taxes in the very first year of their participation in oil and gas exploration ventures.

Those companies — and hundreds of others throughout the country — are in the business of providing tax shelters to people who believe they can legally evade their tax liabilities by taking advantage of loopholes in federal laws.

"The idea behind a tax shelter is to pay one dollar for two dollars, three dollars or more worth of deductions," explains a report just issued by Public Citizen, a Washington organization founded by public interest activist Ralph Nader.

"The secret of tax shelters is that they produce artificial or paper losses that don't come from incurring financial losses but which still reduce taxes," adds the report.

To achieve that goal, tax shelters are specifically structured to take maximum advantage of accelerated depreciation schedules, investment tax credits, deductions for interest payments, depletion allowances and other arcane provisions buried in the federal tax code.

The variety of investments offered by tax shelters is truly astounding. Most popular are oil and gas exploration ventures and real estate investments in office buildings, shopping centers, apartment houses, factories, warehouses and every other imaginable type of structure.

Other tax shelters specialize in leasing railroad boxcars, barges, commercial aircraft and oil tankers. Agricultural ventures include the raising of cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, ducks and even llamas, as well as the growing of such exotic crops as kiwi fruit and joboba beans.

Until the mid-1970s, tax shelters were the almost exclusive province of the very wealthy. Now, however, they have been "democratized" and investors are as likely to be forklift operators as surgeons.

Novices, however, can encounter unexpected problems. Some hapless amateurs have lost all of their savings in fraudulent tax shelter schemes while others have become investors in "abusive" shelters then-Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., who ordered the General Accounting Office to investigate. In their report, the investigators concluded that the government could not break even on its new 10-year contract, as the law requires it to do.

The investigators found that the agency is shuffling figures to make its uranium program appear solvent. It plans to write off $1.2 billion of its debt as plant and equipment depreciation and to undervalue the excess enriched uranium it has on hand.

John Longenecker, the official in charge of the enrichment program, conceded to my associate Vicki Warren that the agency hasn't met its costs in the past, and does owe the Treasury money. As for the General Accounting Office's criticism of its accounting procedures, Longenecker said the Energy Department used a reputable accounting firm to help, and that the discrepancy arose because "we used different assumptions" to determine costs.

Vote Out Those Stupid, Liberal Politicians

If you owe more money than you can ever pay, by law you can file bankruptcy. The federal government owes more money than they can ever pay off, so don't be surprised if you wake up some morning to find they have filed bankruptcy. It can happen.

If you make $50,000 a year and lose your job and go to work for $25,000 a year, you have to cut your standard of living to match your new income. Federal, state, county, and city governments or private families that live beyond their income are in trouble.

Why are all American governments, from the city through the federal, in such bad financial trouble? Because the voter continues to elect stupid liberal politicians. This type of politician has created bureaucracies that should never have existed.

Now that they have these programs that are bankrupting the taxpayer, they don't have enough guts to get rid of them. Local government is going to have to operate just like the family that lost fifty percent of their income. If you want to save your country, vote these liberals out of office.

When did our trouble start? When gas jumped from 50 cents a gallon to $1.25, hospital beds jumped from $50 a day to over $100 a day. Government employees salaries doubled, with a raise every year, and everything in America went out of reach of the taxpayer and consumer.

I will give you one local example — The Volusia Bus Co., on Volusia County's East Coast is costing the taxpayer $4,400,000 a year to operate. For every fare that cost 75¢ will cost the taxpayer at least $5. That doesn't include a few million the taxpayer paid for the Voltra Buses.

I remember when if you were too old to drive for your groceries, your son, daughter, or good neighbor gave you a free ride, and that was the economical and Christian way.

Vote out the lame brain politician that won't agree to cancel fifty percent of your bureaucracies, and fire the welfare agents that meet our local illegal aliens at the border and tell them "come on in, welfare and food stamps are waiting for you."

That will save a few million. We are going to go back to making a living by the sweat of your brow, if you like it or not.

On my way home from Orlando the other day, I was listening to some creep on the radio. The price of gas is dropping, and if the politicians don't raise taxes immediately, all of our roads will fall apart. The price per gallon has nothing to do with how much taxes is collected. They collect 21¢ per gallon. I would like to tell the citizens of Florida the truth about the situation. Since Bob Graham was elected governor he has raised the state budget by the help of our state representatives over one billion dollars a year. In most counties he has made it possible for our money-hungry politicians to raise gas taxes by 4 or 5 cents a gallon. Sales tax was raised to five cents. With this kind of increase in taxes, if they can't build and repair our roads, then let them fall apart.

911: We're Being Sold A Bill Of Goods

This is an open letter to the Seminole County Commission.

Gentlemen and ladies:
I am glad that we have good newspapers in our area so we may be informed of what is going on. Unfortunately, by the time we read it in the newspaper it is too late to do anything about it.

I learned from a recent story in the Evening Herald that we, the taxpayers and citizens of Seminole County, Sanford and other cities, will soon become recipients of the much touted 911 emergency number system.

I regret that I do not have the exact figures but if memory doesn't fail me they are something like this:

1. Installation: $430,000
2. Annual maintenance: $280,000
3. Services of expert to supervise implementation: $32,000

In round figures we are talking about $750,000 and of course the annual maintenance cost thereafter. Knowing how estimates invariably go into overruns this system could cost $900,000.

On the first page of my new telephone directory there are two lists of emergency numbers, for all cities in Seminole County and unincorporated areas. The first list is for Fire/Rescue or Medical Emergency. The other list is for various police departments. For Volusia and Orange County it says Dial 911.

Off hand I would say that, "we are trying to keep up with the Joneses." The question is, can we afford it or better still is it practical?

I must confess my lack of knowledge about the 911 system. All I know is that if you dial the 911 emergency number the address flashes on the computer screen. Great!!!

I know that we are living in the computer age. I've often wondered how we ever survived before they were perfected. I'm not knocking computers, they do amazing things. They also cost a lot of money and even more so to maintain. They also break down sometimes.

The State of Florida is growing by leaps and bounds, as are Seminole County, Sanford and other cities in the county. People move in and people move out. One of the first things new residents do is have a telephone installed. This is usually regardless of whether they purchase or rent a home. People also sell their homes for various and sundry reasons. More often people will move from one rental house or apartment to another. Obviously with the 911 system this will require a constant upgrading of the system so that police, firemen and rescue squads won't be going to the wrong address. Furthermore, the dispatcher has to be there to take the call. The dispatcher will have to be at a centralized location so that the calls can be funneled to the proper units. (police, fire or rescue.) I presume that this would involve feeding the information into another computer to be picked up either at a police station or fire station.

It takes me three seconds to dial 911. It takes me six seconds to dial 322-4141 or any of the other seven digit numbers. In the case of an emergency three seconds is not going to make that much difference. Besides our present system does not require any updating whatsoever. It is a proven efficient system that has been in use for years and years and is by no means obsolete. Besides, if the computerized 911 system broke down the existing phone system would have to be retained as a backup unit. Thus we would have a dual system and an expensive duplication of effort.

Although this is no joking matter, if I may, I will indulge in a bit of facetiousness. This reminds me of an old joke that went something like this: A young farm tractor salesman approached an old farmer and tried to sell him a new tractor to replace his team of mules. The older farmer looked at the colorful brochures respectfully then said, "son if you can prove to me that this new fangled contraption can plow my land and produce fifty tons of manure a year I'll buy one of them."

I would like to hear it from the Seminole County Commission and be convinced that we need the 911 system. As the old farmer said, we don't need this new fangled contraption nor do we need to be saddled with the additional expense. I think we are being sold a bill of goods.

Elderly Need Balanced Diet

Q. My husband died last year and, to be honest, I don't really eat well-balanced meals the way I did when he was alive. My question is: How important is diet if I want to lead a long and healthy life?

A. This question comes up often and the answer always bears repeating. We have often been told to eat a well-balanced diet. This notion is reinforced by experts at the Health Institute on Aging, a division of the National Institute of Health.

Eating too much or too little is just as detrimental as not eating the right kinds of food. Eat a well-balanced diet in moderate amounts and complement your diet with a structured physical program.

Perhaps you will want to purchase one of the new "cooking for one" books now in bookstores. This could help you to return to your old eating patterns. Several years ago, the House Aging Committee heard from people over 100 years of age at a congressional hearing. Each had basically attributed their longevity to physical activity and proper diet.

Diet is particularly important to the elderly because many of their health problems are the result of poor nutrition.

Vitamins and minerals found in fruits, vegetables, meat, dairy products and cereals are very important. Many older people do not get enough calcium, which is responsible for maintaining strong bones and teeth. Calcium can be found in milk, cheese, nuts and dark leafy vegetables such as collards, turnips, mustard greens and kale.

Protein is also needed on a daily basis. Examples of one serving of protein (two servings are recommended daily) include 2 to 3 ounces of red meat, chicken or fish, 4 tablespoons of peanut butter or one-half cup of nuts.

Because we get energy from fats and carbohydrates, it is important that we include them daily. It is best to eat carbohydrates that also contain vitamins, minerals or protein such as fruits, vegetables and whole-grain or such enriched flour products as beans, rice and rolled oats.

Q. I'm 71 years old, retired, and do some knitting for a craft shop in my spare time. I really don't make much money. Do I have to file a tax return?

A. Not everyone who earned income in 1984 has to file a return. But if you think the government owes you a refund, file a return, even though you're not legally required to do so.

If your filing status is single, 65 or older, you must file a return if your income was at least $4,300.

If you are married, filing a joint return and both 65 or older, you must file a return if your income is at least $7,400. For a married couple in which both are under 65, the amount is $5,400, and for a married couple in which one partner is 65 or older, the amount is $6,400.

If married, filing separately, or married but not living with your spouse at the end of 1984, you must file if you made at least $1,000.

Rep. Claude Pepper is the chairman of the health subcommittee of the House Select Committee on Aging.

What Newspapers Across The Nation Are Saying

Create Tough National Test For Teachers

By United Press International

The (Frankfort, Ind.) Times
The president of the American Federation of Teachers believes every teacher should have to pass a tough national examination before being allowed in the classroom.

To which we say, amen!
Albert Shanker, leader of the union of 800,000 teachers, said he believes current teacher-licensing tests are a joke. All they do, he said, is test for minimum competency in an effort to weed out only the very worst teaching candidates.

... Shanker now is among the most outspoken for restoring high standards to the classroom.

Shanker wants leaders in the education field to create a tough national examination that would assure that people are qualified to enter the profession. He also challenged the rival National Education Association to join him in supporting such a test.

Shanker's proposal makes sense. We hope the idea becomes a reality.

The Boston Globe
President Reagan, like the Hollywood of his youth, honors American virtues, at least in the script. Follow-through actions tend to fall on the cutting-room floor.

When Hollywood chooses Oscar nominees, it often ignores the box-office successes that feature car-crash giddiness and random violence. Oscar is reserved for "quality" productions that make less money but salute the noble human spirit. Three actresses nominated for the Oscar this year portray doughty heroines of the soil. Sissy Spacek, Jessica Lange and Sally Field all battle outside forces to save the family farm.

"The River," "Country" and "Places in the Heart" are almost documentary portrayals of the human drama unfolding in the farm states of America. Declining farm prices and a weak export market have led to mortgage foreclosures and much human misery in the "breadbasket of the world."

Seattle Post-Intelligencer

It's been a long-held tradition in the military that rank has its privileges. But when such a tradition intrudes into the realm of equal rights under the law, it's gone too far. The discovery that four U.S. enlisted men and a junior officer were sentenced to prison for trying to smuggle home captured arms from Grenada while a Navy admiral was "cautioned" for the same crime is a privilege beyond reason. Such grotesquely elitist discrimination is unacceptable within the military services of a democratic nation. ...

We do not clamor for Admiral Metcalf to be stuck in the brig with the others. Neither do we expect this to happen. To democratize the whole episode, we would prefer mercy for the seven individuals of lesser rank. And the armed services should be reminded to temper tradition with justice.

New Hampshire Sunday News, Manchester

In his State of the Union address last week, Ronald Reagan painted a promising and completely realistic picture of what America's future can be like, if we all try to make it so.

With simple eloquence, the president made points that bear repeating if we are to realistically confront and conquer the problems of the decades ahead.

"National security is government's first responsibility," said the president.

It is a point often conveniently forgotten by critics in New Hampshire and around the country who attempt to separate social and welfare problems from those of defense, as if to say national security applies only to the well-off. Some, in fact, say exactly that.

"You know," the president told the Congress and the nation, "we only have a military industrial complex until a time of danger; then it becomes the arsenal of democracy. Spending for defense is investing in things that are priceless: peace and freedom."

Sunday Journal & Star, Lincoln, Neb.

For 10 years, almost, Canadians have been under government orders to convert to the metric system of weights and measures. ... The other day the government threw in the towel. Metric remains the official goal, but no longer will those who do business in pounds, inches and gallons be penalized.

Why this insistence on being out of step with most of the world? It seems that two-thirds of Canada's exports go to the United States.

Our own nation's policy on metric conversion, of course, is a model of wicky-washiness.

Congress in 1975 proclaimed that conversion to the metric system would be national policy. But it added, inconsistently, that the change would be voluntary.

... Industry in this country has made some progress in adopting the new system, mainly because it wants to sell goods abroad, and a majority of nations measure things metrically. ... Canada's retreat on metric policy will lessen the pressure for U.S. companies to fall in line.

Serial marriages may very well bear out Dr. Johnson's unsentimental judgment of two centuries ago. "Sir, to marry a second time represents the triumph of hope over experience."

Jerold R. Silverberg of the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers describes a not-uncommon sequence in marriage today. There's a first marriage, usually during or soon after college and usually short-lived. A second marriage follows 85 percent of the time, usually longer lasting and usually entered to rear children.

Mid-life often sees still another marriage, usually short and often involving a man and a much younger woman. Finally ... men and women seek the ... "mature relationship," specialists somewhat hopefully call it.

Serial marriages may very well represent hope triumphant. ... repeated trips to the altar suggest an acceptance of the viewpoint Johnson offered young Boswell on another occasion: "Marriage has many pains, but celibacy has no pleasure."

...Petree: If There Must Be Growth, Let There Be Elbow Room

insistence on clear and strict zoning ordinances gives him hope the city won't become "a parking lot from one end to the other."
"I think we have a good city government. They (the commissioners) really care. They truly take their office and responsibility seriously," Petree said.
But if the commission doesn't come up with a solution to slow the growth, he is "working on one of my own," he jests.
"I'm looking desperately for some type of endangered species that inhabits the city so we can stop all the development."
One of his more serious efforts to preserve Lake Mary's rural culture is his work with the Lake Mary Historical Commission. He meets regularly with members to research the history of the area. He pushed for the publication of a book explaining the history of the area where the city now stands. The book is at the printers and is expected to be distributed in the spring. Petree said stories about Indians and egrets "may not interest someone living up in Heathrow, but that's important to the history of this area and it should not be lost."

Petree is not just concerned with the urbanization of Lake Mary. He is disturbed that the symbols of "modern living" are encroaching the whole world.
"It's not just in Lake Mary. It's everywhere you go in the world. When I've been in the Amazon trading cigars for ceremonial rain cups, the Indians pull out Tupperware to put their cigars in!"

Petree thinks the Amazon Indians shouldn't have to trade their culture with the plastic tools of industrialized men. The Indians as well as other "antiquated" peoples have proud civilizations of their own, he said. And he travels often into the bush, jungles and deserts of the world to tell them. Petree's expeditions have taken him to Central and South America, as well as Asia and Africa, where he has chased exotic butterflies and hunted rare orchids.

His stories of his travels read like the script for an Indiana Jones sequel. He said he has been chased through jungles by knife-wielding "lunatic women," treed by millions of army ants and flown in rattle-trap airplanes held together by ropes. Also, as an aside, he said he almost fell in a volcano once in Guatemala.
Petree has a particular fascination for the Middle East and ancient Mayan culture. His home is decorated with Mayan sculptures that are hundreds of years old; relics he collected on trips to Central America. He is also working on a book about Mayan civilization.
His interest in the Middle East is sparked by his fear that the area, being civilization's cradle, may also become its grave. He is fearful the area, rich with oil and history, will erupt into full-scale war.

"I'd like to know a little more about where we've been before we blow it all up," he said.
Petree also loves classical music, an affection he shares with his wife, Grace, who is a flutist for the Florida Symphony Orchestra. Petree himself is a pianist.
When he isn't trotting the globe or playing Mozart, Petree is busy handling cases at his Orlando law office or working as Lake Mary's city attorney.
Petree became the city attorney two years ago after a friend told him about the opening. The six-foot, cigar-chomping attorney said his main job is keeping the city out of court, thus avoiding costly litigation and keeping city officials working on city business. But if the city has to go to court, he said he is there to make sure the city is fighting on sound legal ground and can win before a judge. The job pays about $29,000 a year.
While he enjoys being an attorney, he quickly adds it's not his "reason for living."

"If you get totally absorbed in your profession you miss a lot of what's going on in the world. It doesn't dominate my life. I'm through with it at 5 p.m. when I get on the interstate," Petree said.
He said he has tried to discourage his two children — Jeffrey, 21, and Kimberley, 18, — from becoming lawyers.
"I suggested plumbing or orthodontics. I figured these are people who never get sued, make enormous amounts of money and keep regular office hours."
But apparently his warnings went unheeded. Jeffrey is a law student at the University of Florida.
Petree's interest in law stems from an infection he acquired as a youngster — politics.

Growing up in the Washington, D.C. area, under the watchful eye of his laborite father, Petree caught the bug in his early teens. He joined "Young Democrats" and moved up quickly to become a leader in the movement. He was on the Meet the Press television show at 14. A vehement opponent of racism and anti-Semitism, he said he spent the 1950s making speeches against the Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society. He also campaigned for presidential candidates Adlai Stevenson and Hubert Humphrey. His political passions eventually thrust him into law school.
Petree said his interest in politics, as well as his idealism, has cooled since those fiery days of marches and speeches: although he still fights bigotry at every turn. But if he had it to do all over again, he said he would have chosen a different career, one more congruent with his naturalist inclinations.
"The only regret I had when I turned 50," said the spectacled Petree, "is that I didn't become an entomologist. I always wanted ... to study bugs when I was a boy."

Books Author Combines Racism, Power, Capitalism In Controversial Book

The Black Power Imperative: Racial Inequality and the Politics of Nonviolence, by Theodore Cross, (Faulkner Books, 905 pp., $19.95).
This book has two apparent drawbacks which would force some to doubt its credibility. First, it is written about a subject that many think dated (circa late 1960s), and second, the author is white. However, if anyone bases their decision to read this book on either one of these ideas, they will miss the most important discussion on black Americans during the past decade.

Theodore Cross has been a consistent spokesperson for black economic development. With the publication of "Black Capitalism" in 1969, he has backed his words on paper with deeds in the community. He has lectured on black economics and law at Harvard, Cornell and the University of Virginia.

Cross begins this book with a social-historical analysis of power — its origins, who has it, and how it is acquired. This discussion leads the reader into an analysis of how the system of "free" enterprise was only free if you were white and male. As Cross states it "... we have seen that most employers, workers, traders, and capitalists abhorred competition ..."

Cross argues that racism prevented the emergence of truly competitive market places in the United States. The systematic oppression of blacks during slavery, and the most recent form of racial hiring practices in the job market, allow the author to dismiss arguments often used by whites to "understand" the position of blacks in America.

The latter third of this massive book presents an agenda for the acquisition of black power in America. It is perhaps the most controversial, yet the most logical conclusion to well-mounted arguments made throughout the book.

This book offers the most incisive discussion on the relationship of power, capitalism, and racism since Frantz Fanon's "Wretched of the Earth." It will disturb many, including blacks, because of its forthright criticism of traditional methods of dealing with politics of racism.

Many liberal whites will question Cross' motives, which at first seem an indictment of traditional free enterprise. It is, however, a celebration of orthodox capitalism as la Adam Smith, and provides the reader with an honest appraisal of how free enterprise in America was perverted by racism.
During the past 10 years, there has not been a more honest analysis of racism in America. This book should not only be read, but studied by anyone interested in formulating a strategy for treating the disease of racism.

Beloved Soldiers, by C.L. Skelton, (Crown, 456 pp., $17.95).

This third volume of Skelton's Regiment Quartet continues the saga of the intertwined Scottish clans of McLaren and Bruce. The older members, looking forward to retirement from the Army and a pastoral life in the Highlands, are yanked back to reality by the outbreak of World War I.

It is their duty to lead their men onto the Continent to do battle with the Hun. Their wives and daughters have a duty, also: to recruit human fodder for the King's war machine, and to nurse and sometimes bury the mangled husbands and sons sent home from the front.

This is a story of battles, and loves, won and lost. Skelton's descriptions of the trench fighting of the Great War are so vivid we can nearly taste the mud in our teeth. But it also is a story of social change. Centuries-old boundaries between well-born and commoner, officer and ranker are stretched and then break.

Skelton weaves an engrossing tale and tells it well. As Tenny McLaren was fond of saying, "Up the McLaren! We echo that sentiment. Bring on the fourth volume.

60-Second Novelist Dan Hurley Has Skyscraper-High Ambitions

By Frederick M. Winship
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The next project of Dan Hurley, America's most unusual novelist, is to write his 60-second novels from the top of a Manhattan skyscraper.

"It's under consideration for a $5,000 grant from the Public Art Fund of New York," said Hurley, who describes himself as a former Yuppie and looked like one when he appeared for an interview in a tweed jacket, gabardine slacks, shirt, and tie. The shirt had a button-down collar, of course.

Asked to explain his skyscraper venture, he said there would be a two-way audio-video hookup so he can speak to people on the street from the top of the building, just as he does when he works on the sidewalk.

Hurley began working on the street almost two years ago in Chicago, where he was an editor-at-large with the American Bar Association. For a fee of $2, he would type out a minute-long "novel" in the form of a romance, mystery, biography, essay or any other literary form his passerby clients requested after a brief conversation with Hurley.

The conversation, with Hurley often asking questions, gives him an insight into the character and lives of his subjects on which he can base a meaningful composition. He says he tries "to find something people really value and put it into the story."

"It was a crazy idea I had in mind for a year before I decided to do it," said Hurley, a 27-year-old with a gift of gab to match his facile writing talent. "You only need a typewriter and a chair. I had no intention of making money. It was going to be just fun, like streaking."

"The first time I did it was on Michigan Avenue and it worked. People related to me. They poured out their hearts to me, told me their hopes, their problems. I felt like an ancient Greek oracle, like a cross between a psychologist and a priest. And I earned as much as $100 a day."

Hurley has since given up his ABA job, moved to Brooklyn and upped his fee to $5. He has written more than 3,000 60-second novels and is making a collection of an hour's worth of them for publication. He has written novels for former Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, entertainers Alice Cooper and Whoopi Goldberg, MASH producer Larry Gelbart, and Mike Love of the Beach Boys.

His own first novel, a full length one titled "Johnny Hero: A Comic Book Tragedy," remains unpublished.

"It's been said I turned to 60-second novels because publishers have spurned my first novel, but that isn't true," he said, adding that he is working on another novel and screenplay. "But I am addicted to making a living off fiction as a writer and a performer. I will reach more people with my performance writing than I would as a traditional novelist."

He has written 60-second novels in a window of the Carson Pirie Scott department store in Chicago and been a visiting artist at the Chicago Art Institute. In New York he has appeared in Macy's cellar and at B. Altman's store and entertained at parties at Regine's, Danceteria and Tavern on the Green. He also has performed at parties at Caesar's Palace in Atlantic City.

"I get $100 an hour for parties and often work with Le Clique, a group of professional party entertainers," he said. "I want to work more with corporations and would like to be the spokesperson for a typewriter or word processor company. I have made a basic commitment to survive on my creative work, and right now I'm doing it."

Here is an example of a Hurley novel, written for Alice Cooper:

"Once upon a time, there was a man who was an utter failure at everything, because he kept trying to succeed. He was not at heart a success. At heart, he was a failure, and because he kept trying to succeed, he kept falling worse and worse.

"Finally he gave up and decided to express his sense of failure and outrage at the world. He opened up a bar called 'Warm Beer and Lousy Food.' The public flipped out. They loved the audaciousness of it, the sheer absurdity and straight-forwardness of it. Plus it was so damn different. So damn unique. They realized it was the perfect expression of one man. Yes, this one man had finally done it. He had finally expressed perfectly his sense of failure.

"And as a failure, he became a great success."

From Big Ben To Statue Of Liberty, All Under Repair

LONDON (UPI) — Any traveler setting out this year to see famous landmarks and monuments may wind up thinking the whole world is covered in scaffolding.

Planning to photograph London's Big Ben? Forget it. The Parthenon of Athens? Can't see it for steel tubes.

From the Statue of Liberty to the Sistine Chapel, from the Kremlin to the U.S. Capitol and the Great Wall of China, a United Press International survey shows a remarkable cluster of tourist monuments under repair all at once.

The courtyard of the Louvre museum in Paris is one vast wall of graffiti-covered wood. Rome's Forum is a forest of scaffolding. London's Big Ben is cloaked to its very top, with only the clock faces showing, and will stay that way for another year.

There are as many reasons for restoration as there are monuments under repair — the ravages of time, modern pollution, simple weathering or merely a need to expand. The malevolent coincidence is that it's all happening at the same time.

Probably the saddest sight among basket-case monuments is the Acropolis of Athens. It's a mess.

Its most renowned building, the Parthenon, is entirely encased with scaffolding, and will be until at least 1991. Next door another steel shroud wraps the Erechtheum, famous for the porch supported by marble maidens. Those 2,400-year-old ladies, however, have been moved indoors to preserve them from pollution and replaced by replicas.

On both buildings, restorers are not only coping with the biting acids of today's pollution — which a United Nations report says has caused more damage in 40 years than in the previous 400. They are also replacing rusted iron clamps holding the marble blocks together, misguidedly inserted at the turn of the century.

The Statue of Liberty is totally encased in more than 300 tons of scaffolding as part of a yearlong renovation. Inside a screen of thin metal slats, workmen are replacing 1,000 rusted braces holding Miss Liberty's paper-thick copper skin in place.

Paris's Louvre is expanding into new underground galleries and a wing now occupied by the ministry of finance. The two-year rebuilding, heralded by the wood walls in the courtyard, will include erecting architect I.M. Pei's controversial glass pyramid structure. But the museum will stay open throughout.

Many landmarks now being repaired will remain obscured for years. Some have taken years already, like the great Church of Our Lady in Prague, Czechoslovakia. It's been covered by scaffolding for 14 years so far, and will stay that way until at least 1990.

Or like the Vatican's Sistine Chapel. For four years its upper walls were hidden to clean and restore Michelangelo's famous frescoes. Now, and for the next four years, a view-blocking cradle covers a half of Michelangelo's "Creation" ceiling. After that, four years will be spent on "The Last Judgment" behind the high altar.

Here is a checklist of other famous sites under repair.

—Italy

folding in Rome, an ugly barrier screens the central portico of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice. The mosaic richness of its interior can be seen, but the view of its facade from the glorious piazza stays flawed until at least next year.

Also in Venice, the 500-year-old wooden bridge leading to the Academia museum could collapse at any moment and is closed. A temporary bridge carries walkers, but boats must detour into sidecanals.

—England
If Big Ben is cloaked in canvas, another symbol of London — the statue of Eros in Piccadilly Circus — has disappeared. A circle of wood walls surrounds its empty space. Eros is being restored while Piccadilly Circus is rebuilt to form a pedestrian peninsula and a new traffic pattern.

The great Gothic church of York Minster in York, England, is still a cripple from the fire that destroyed its south transept last summer. Estate owners have donated mature oak trees to replace roof beams, but repairing the cathedral's mutilated wing and its 16th-century rose window could take five years.

—United States
Like the Statue of Liberty, the west central front of the U.S. Capitol building in Washington, D.C., is concealed by scaffolding and will be until 1988. The $49 million project is restoring the only external wall remaining from the original 1793 building.

—China
One 450-yard section of the Great Wall of China in the tourist area near Peking is closed for repairs, with no indication how long they'll take. Repairing the Great Wall has been a continual problem since the Manchu dynasty.

—Moscow
Moscow's State Armory in the Kremlin, favored by tourists for its fabulous collection of Faberge eggs, state jewels, Peter the Great's jewel-studded throne, arms and armor, is closed for repairs until 1986.

The huge five-domed Novodensky cathedral at the Smolensky convent in Moscow, dating from 1525, is also closed. Soviets are used to signs reading "remont" (repairs) on pre-revolutionary buildings and old churches.

—Czechoslovakia
Besides Prague's Church of Our Lady, the 350-year-old Pinkas Synagogue, whose walls list 77,297 Jewish victims of the Holocaust, has been closed since the early 1970s. No reopening date has been given.

"Prague seems to have more buildings under scaffolding than not," said one resident, and with a shortage of qualified restorers, work proceeds slowly.

—Austria
Vienna's Royal Treasury in the Hofburg Palace is closed for renovation and expansion "to make the premises friendlier." Its renowned crowns, jewels and relics of the Holy Roman Empire have been crammed into the Art History museum until 1988.

Brightening this catalogue of repair, however, is some good news.
The Ca' d'Oro, the most beautiful palace in Venice, is open again after years of renovation.
