Polk Seeks State Probe

By Victor Assersohn
Herald Staff Writer

At the request of Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, Gov. Bob Graham has ordered an investigation into allegations that some Seminole deputies may have been stealing property from people evicted in the county.

The theft charges reportedly stretch over the past three years.

The investigation was requested by Polk after one deputy sheriff was fired and charged with trafficking in stolen property. Additionally, two other department employees were fired in connection with the thefts, but they were not charged.

And there may be more persons involved in the investigation, Polk said. The sheriff said he is determined to have anyone rooted out of the department who has committed an unlawful act.

"I specifically asked for an outside investigation to avoid the appearance of a whitewash," the sheriff said. "I have full confidence in the people who work for me and if we find a bad apple in the barrel, we are going to do something about it."

The investigation, which could take about two months, will be conducted by Alachua County State Attorney Eugene T. Whitworth.

Polk said that news reports linking up to 40 or 50 deputies to thefts totalling $500,000 over the last three years are untrue, emphasizing that there may be only a handful of deputies involved.

Deputy Aaron Sanders was fired in January 1982 because, according to Polk, he refused to take a polygraph test. At that time, there was insufficient evidence on which to base a criminal charge, so Sanders was not arrested. However, he was later charged with trafficking in stolen property.

The other two men, deputy sheriff Kevin Lehmann, who joined the department in July 1980, and Steve Parrish, a dispatcher, left the department about the same time.

They were not charged because property they were alleged to have stolen "was not of a felony nature," said Polk.

After Randal Brister had been evicted he found his $700 stereo had allegedly been sold by Sanders for $170. The matter had been investigated by Seminole County Sheriff's Department following a complaint by Brister and the case papers had been sent to Orange County, because that was where Saunders reportedly sold the stereo.

Brister kept contacting the Seminole County Sheriff's Department asking why Sanders had not been charged.

It was discovered, Polk said, that the papers had been lost and then Sheriff Polk was sued by Brister.

Four more people were given a polygraph test and they passed the sheriff said. But a further allegation that a camera had been taken prompted the latest probe, said Polk.

Deputy Sheriffs are often present at evictions where the goods are removed from the property. People who were evicted would often be warned that the property placed outside the house on the street could not be guarded while the evictee obtained a truck to take the property away.

50 Years Service

Attorneys Salute 'Algy' Speer

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The elite of Seminole County's legal profession honored Sanford attorney, George A. (Algermon) Speer Jr. for his 50 years service in the profession at a banquet held at the Quality Inn, Longwood, Thursday night.

Casselberry City Attorney Kenneth McIntosh was master of ceremonies for the occasion that was somewhat like a gentle roast.

Preceding the program honoring Speer, Florida Bar Association President James C. Rinaman spoke to the Seminole County Bar Association members about the state of the legal profession in Florida, the degradation of professionalism among some attorneys and the growth in the numbers of lawyers in the state in recent years.

McIntosh led the parade of local attorneys who had good things to say about Speer, noting that while Speer's middle initial A stands for Algermon, it also stands for "advocate." Saying that Speer has begun his second 50 years in the profession, he warned all not to expect the man to retire. He compared a forced retirement of Speer to the retirement in the early 1940s of the champion race horse, Whirlaway. He said Whirlaway out of 62 starts came in first 41 times and came in out of the money only three times.

He said when his owners tried to put Whirlaway out to pasture, the story goes that the horse clipped into the training area and raced with several other thoroughbreds, outdistancing them all by 21 lengths.

While other lawyers might retire, Speer will stay practicing the profession, McIntosh said. Speer has been practicing since 1933 and he's as aggressive today as he was then, McIntosh said.

Ed Shinholser said he opened his law office in Sanford in 1946 and during his long friendship with Speer he has found him to be a "student of the law."

said Speer "always came before me prepared, generally on both sides."

Mack N. Cleveland Jr. said when he first started practicing law, Speer was the county prosecuting attorney. "In my first jury trial, Algy whupped me," Cleveland said. Turning to Speer, Cleveland said, "I'd rather play poker with you, than fight you in court."

Bill Hutchison said Speer has a reputation for being interested in his clients and for being tenacious. He added that without Speer and his advice he would not have advanced in the legal profession as fast as he has.

Phil Logan, another old friend, said facetiously that Speer has developed omeriness to a state of fine art. "For 25 years I've admired Algy and his approach to the law," Logan said.

Speer's nephew, G. Andrew Speer, said, "Algy has been a friend, boss, teacher and most of all like a father to me for the past 30 years."

Speer's son, Tom, who is Algy Speer's law partner, said he plans to retire in three years when he reaches his silver anniversary in the practice of law, but he expects his father to continue on.

Seminole County Bar Association President Dick Mamele presented Speer with a plaque commemorating his half-century of service in the profession at the conclusion of the program.

Rinaman said the membership in the Florida Bar has grown from 2,500 in 1949 to 7,500 in 1983 to 32,000 in 1983. By 1990, there should be more than 50,000 lawyers practicing in Florida, he said.

He noted that while the bar cannot limit advertising by one of its members, an experienced lawyer is forbidden from telling a new one what his fees are.

"If we tell we can be sent to jail for violating anti-trust laws," Rinaman said.

The bar in the future will be directing its attention toward lawyer competency, he said. Rinaman said while special classes are held at various times to continue attorneys' education, "the ones we need to talk to aren't there." He said the state bar had 3,000 complaints out of the 32,000 bar members last year. "Ten to 15 percent of the bar are causing the problem," he said.

Old Fire Truck To Get Newer Engine; Bids Sought For New Truck

Now the Lake Mary City Commission has opted to buy a used engine for its down six-wheel drive brush fire truck.

The commission Thursday night decided to buy the engine rather than trying to repair the one currently in the vehicle.

This is a stop-gap measure until bids are returned on a new truck April 7.

Fire Chief Jim Orioles said the used engine will be installed this weekend and the truck will be back on line for service by Monday at the latest.

The commission waived its bid requirements to authorize the purchase of a guaranteed used engine from Joe's Truck Parts in Bithlo for $1,500. The commission waived its bid procedure, which requires bids on purchases exceeding $1,000, because the Bithlo business is the only source of this specific engine within a reasonable distance.

The 27-year-old truck has been on loan to the city from the Florida Forest Service for about 20 years. Orioles said a truck of this type is an absolute necessity to the volunteer fire department and that the current truck is one of few of this type among fire departments in Seminole County.

In addition, city mechanic Ralph Locke said the possibilities are good that the city can sell the engine for the purchase price when the new truck is on line and the old one is returned to the state agency.

The commission considered repairing the engine of the truck until Locke reported Thursday evening that while it would cost more than $700 for parts to repair the known problems with the engine, more damage might be discovered when the engine was dismantled.

The City Commission agonized over the truck for the past week. First it decided to leave the truck idle and purchase a reconditioned chassis for $8,300 from Southeast Equipment to create a new brush truck. The commission declared an emergency existed and authorized the purchase of the truck, which the volunteers would modify by mounting a tank, pump and brush cages, cannibalized from the old truck.

The commission at a special meeting Monday, requested by Commissioner Ray Fox, rescinded its previous action, opting to fix the truck, if possible, while instructing the fire department to prepare specifications for a new truck and to advertise for bids.

Mayor Walter Sorenson called a special meeting Thursday to report that the repairs including labor for part of the job would cost $1,100 and the full extent of the damage was unknown.

Two of the commissioners — Burt Perinchief and Charlie Lytle — were out of town and could not attend Thursday's meeting.

Commissioner Russ Megonegal expressed reservations about putting so much money into repairing the engine. "I hate to see all this much money going into equipment with all the other problems with the truck," he said, noting the department has other small brush trucks it can use while delivery of a new one is awaited.

When purchasing the used engine was discussed and Locke said the city should be able to recover the entire $1,500 it is spending for that engine, Megonegal voted with Commissioners Ken King and Fox to authorize the expenditure.

Sorenson noted and Orioles confirmed that while the city must return the truck to the Florida Forest Service, it has the right to strip it of anything which may have been installed by the city.

Wekiva Students Transferred Will Be Bussed

All students transferred from Wekiva Elementary School will have to be bused, according to Wekiva Principal Ken Bovio.

Bovio told Seminole County School Board members Wednesday that 150 students should be transferred from Wekiva to Forest City Elementary School, less than two miles away, to balance the student enrollment at the two schools and to make room for expected growth in Wekiva subdivisions over the next two or three years.

And because of rapid growth and heavy traffic in the area, the students would have to be bused to school even though they live within two miles of school.

Figures presented by Marian Giannini, director of elementary education, showed that Wekiva currently has 850 students and is growing while Forest City has 575 students and is declining. The new plan would reduce enrollment at Wekiva to 713, including 18 special education students, and would increase Forest City's enrollment to 730.

The plan prepared by parents at the schools and presented by Miss Giannini to reduce enrollment at Wekiva is to transfer students living in West Lake Brantley, Brantley Point, Jennifer Estates, Vestavia and Forest Park to Forest City.

But several parents from Forest Park argued against the proposal. Cheri Hulke told board members that the subdivision has a bike path connecting it with Wekiva school. The subdivision is only .3 miles from the school, she said.

Twenty-two Forest Park students would be transferred to Forest City under the proposal.

"We'd like to keep the fifth graders at Wekiva," Mrs. Hulke said. At Forest City the students will be exposed to open classrooms which they haven't experienced at Wekiva.

In addition, she said, the students would become isolated from their friends. "Our kids play with kids from Wekiva. I don't know about your kids," she told board members "but our kids play with the kids they go to school with."

Mrs. Hulke said houses in the subdivision sell for about $170,000 so there are few families with school-age children. She said little future growth is anticipated.

Raoul Hernandez of Westavia, where one child is on the transfer list, said his subdivision is also expecting little growth. A sidewalk connects the subdivision to Wekiva, he said. Hernandez asked the school board to let Westavia children continue attending Wekiva.

Bovio told the board that tremendous growth is projected in the Wekiva Cove subdivision over the next two or three years. He said more than 100 homes can be built on a parcel the school board has rights to in the development and an additional 200 are expected to be constructed on other property.

But Assistant Superintendent for Instruction Dan Dagg said the owner of Wekiva Cove recently died and the property will probably be tied up for two years until the estate is settled.

There was little discussion of a proposal to create an attendance zone for Alan F. Keeth Elementary School in Winter Springs.

That plan calls for 434 students from Red Bug Elementary School near Casselberry to be transferred to the new school. Eight students from Lake Jessup now attending Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo and 15 special education students now attending Sterling Park Elementary School in Casselberry will also attend Keeth when it opens in the fall.

Red Bug will have 411 students from its current attendance zone and 35 students from Sterling Park. Sterling Park's current enrollment of 797 will drop to 730 next year.

The school board will meet in two weeks to make a final decision on the zoning plans. —Michael Beha.

Gardening

Variety Of Methods Helps Control Animal Pests

Insect pests may not be the only unwelcome visitors in your vegetable garden! Field mice, moles, rabbits, birds and other larger animals can also take a big bite out of your harvest and your pocketbook. But gardeners have a wide variety of methods at their disposal to control animal pests.

The particular method of control you choose will depend on the size of your garden plot and on the types of animals you wish to keep out. Here are a number of control techniques and devices that gardeners might consider for their own use:

— Poultry wire fence. When placed around the garden, this small-mesh wire fencing is effective in keeping out rabbits, chickens and larger animals such as dogs. A tall fence of poultry wire will also keep out deer.

Desmond Hastings

— Hog wire fence. This sturdy fencing will keep large animals away from your garden. Farmers can also use a hog wire fence as a barrier for keeping cattle and horses from wandering into the garden area, and to prevent chickens from scratching up newly planted seeds.

— Battery-operated electric fence. Working on a rechargeable battery, such single or double-wire fences are easy to install and are harmless to children. The small shock that the fence gives off when touched will discourage roaming raccoons and larger animals.

If a single wire is used, string the wire approximately six inches off the ground for raccoons. The height of the wire will need to be increased for larger animals. If two wires are used, one should be set six inches and the other 24 inches above the ground. Fence batteries can be purchased at garden supply and hardware stores.

— Repellents. Several repellents have been marketed for different animal species. However, only those which are applied to the seed to repel field mice and birds have been proven effective. Repellents can be purchased from garden stores or through supply catalogues.

— Poisonous baits. Rodent control baits, which are available for homeowner use, give fair results in the garden but are not recommended for controlling other types of animals.

— Insecticides. Although not a method for directly controlling animal pests, insecticides can control the pests that some animals feed on. Moles, for example, will enter the garden in search of grub worms and wire worms which attack plant roots. Thus, proper control of these insects with soil insecticides will also be an effective control against moles.

— Scarecrows and other devices. The traditional scarecrow is still a reliable method for keeping birds out of the vegetable garden. Gardeners can also purchase mock owls and inflatable snakes to help frighten birds.

— Another economical way to guard your vegetables from hungry birds is to hang tin pie plates or aluminum strips in the garden area. Flashes of sunlight reflected off these materials will help discourage birds.

— Bird netting. When draped over the vegetable garden, a light bird netting will help keep out birds, rabbits and squirrels. This method is especially effective for protecting small strawberry patches.

— Shooting and trapping. When animals become a special nuisance, particularly in very large gardens, owners may have to resort to shooting or trapping. A BB gun is effective for controlling small animals, but gardeners should check local ordinances first before purchasing or using any weapon for this purpose.

Traps can be used to either kill or capture smaller animals. A steel trap with a wire snare loop is the best control for moles. Traps can also be purchased with a spiking device. Gardeners can capture and remove animals such as squirrels, rabbits and raccoons from the garden area by using a harmless steel trap.

Please make an effort to attend our seminar at the Seminole Agricultural Center, 4320 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, FL 32771, Wednesday March 23 — from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.

The topic will be "Woody Ornamentals for the Home Landscape." The speaker will be Uday K. Yadav, Orange County Extension Horticultural Agent. This will be an opportunity to take advantage of his expertise in that field.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

International Friendship

Ruth Gaines, chairman of International Affairs of the Woman's Club of Sanford, introduced Jean Ross, American Field Service district chairman of the AFS, International and Domestic Exchanges for High School Students, guest speaker at the club's March meeting. Mrs. Ross was assisted by Randi Singer, a district exchange student from Matland.

She spoke on international friendship and told the clubwomen how AFS handles international and domestic exchanges of high school students between 16 and 18 years old.

Mrs. Ross explained that 50 countries are represented in the worldwide participation of AFS. She emphasized that students in the program gain much by living with families throughout the world by learning new languages and new cultures to form everlasting friendships.

President Pat Foster presided over the business meeting.

Bill Gielow announced the beautification of Fort

Mellon Park will continue as a Civic Improvement Project.

The annual CIP May Day Brunch will be held May 1, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., at the Sanford Civic Center. Donation is $3, adults, and $1.50, children. Proceeds will benefit CIP projects.

Members voted to honor the following 50-year club members as lifetime members: Mrs. Ralph Austin Smith, Mrs. J.O. Huff, Mrs. J.E. Baker and Mrs. J.C. Mitchell.

Chairman of the nominating committee Myra Stapleton announced the following slate of officers who were elected: Vivian Buck, first vice president; Emy Bill, third vice president; Stella Ortt, treasurer; Ann Brisson, recording secretary; Jeri Kirk, chairman Arts Department; Jane Palm, chairman Home Life Department; and Virginia Mercer, chairman Public Affairs Department.

Juna Jones and her committee served a soup and salad luncheon.

Brownie Troop Leads Week's Celebration

In celebration of national Girl Scout Week, the new Brownie Troop 885 from Geneva held a special flag ceremony Thursday morning at the Geneva Elementary School at 8:30 a.m. A color guard raised the flag and the entire troop led fellow students in the pledge and the Star Spangled Banner.

The Brownies have been meeting in the school cafeteria every Tuesday at 2:45 p.m. since last fall under the leadership of Mrs. Susan Chase and Mrs. Celia Steinmeyer.

During this time they have been involved in several school service and community projects including nursing home visitation, weeding the school garden and picking up the school yard, preparing a craft booth for the school carnival and donating the proceeds to the PTO and taking a field trip to Channel 24.

Last month the girls and their leaders spent two Saturday mornings at the post office selling Girl Scout cookies — a total of 15 cases.

Next month, according to Mrs. Steinmeyer, "the girls will have a trip to the Central Florida Zoo in Sanford."

p.m., and will stay an additional hour from 12:30 - 1:30 p.m. at the elementary school.

If you went to bed early last Friday and woke up late Saturday morning, you probably didn't know you were without electricity until you looked at your electric clocks.

The power failure was due to an automobile accident on Lake Geneva Drive that resulted in the guide wire to a pole being severed, leaving a lot of hot wires on the ground.

The Geneva-based fire department was the first agency to arrive on the scene — just minutes after the crash. About 30 minutes later a Seminole County Sheriff's deputy arrived, followed about 10 minutes later by the State Highway Patrol.

The power company worked into the wee hours of the morning to repair the damaged pole and restore service. There were no serious injuries as a result of the accident.

It is amazing that so many late night drivers don't observe the posted 25 mph signs on First Street and Lake Geneva Drive. It seems some think this area is a practice run for the Daytona Five Hundred.

Sickness Doesn't Keep Schedule

DEAR READERS: "Tired of Waiting" complained about having to wait for 2 1/4 hours for a scheduled 9 o'clock doctor's appointment. Then she learned that several others (also waiting) had been booked for 9 o'clock. She asked if that happened everywhere — or only in Pittsburgh.

My reply: "It happens almost everywhere. Doctors, what's the Rx for this epidemic?"

A sampling of responses:

DEAR ABBY: There are some legitimate reasons for a doctor being late, and they occur often. A doctor's office is not a factory where each person can be run through the assembly line on a fixed schedule. Depending on the type of practice, you try to estimate how long each patient will take and schedule patients accordingly.

In our primary-care setting, on the average each patient's visit takes about 15 minutes. Some visits are briefer, for example, blood pressure checks or simple infections. Some are longer, especially for older patients with multiple problems. Some patients save up their complaints and come in with a list. Often they present a few of the minor complaints, and after the examination, when they're almost out the door, they say, "Oh, by the way, Doc, I vomited blood this morning. Does that mean anything?"

AN M. D. IN WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I work in busy ear, nose and throat office, and we try to keep to a schedule, but it's not always possible.

Some patients who have no appointments show up with urgent symptoms and cannot be turned away. Others don't cancel, they just don't show up. Some just happened to be in the neighborhood or the building, or they missed their appointment yesterday and are leaving town tomorrow. The list goes on and on.

One mother brought her 3 1/2-year-old son in with a button stuck in his ear. After the doctor took care of him, the mother said, "Would you mind looking at his twin brother, too? I think he stuck something up his nose."

A DOCTOR'S NURSE IN SYRACUSE, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent reply to a woman who waited 2 1/4 hours to see a doctor with whom she had an appointment indicated you believe that such experiences are very common. I hope they are not.

Delays do occur. Emergencies intervene, babies are born on their own timetables, medical problems cannot be precisely timed, and some medical practices are better organized than others. Our office staffs can help by telling patients when the appointment schedule has been thrown seriously out of kilter.

Patients certainly are entitled to know about inordinate delays.

Sometimes they may elect to reschedule their appointment for another day.

I believe most doctors would appreciate receiving a factual letter from any patient who feels his or her time was not given basic consideration within their appointment scheduling. If your readers write to the American Academy of Family Physicians about serious problems in this regard, I will look for opportunities to share the information with other practicing physicians, residents and medical students as part of our continuing efforts to meet patients' needs.

Improving mutual understanding is certainly worth our best efforts. Sincerely,

GERALD R. OEHNINGER, M.D., PRESIDENT, AMERICAN ACADEMY OF FAMILY PHYSICIANS, 1740 W. 92nd ST., KANSAS CITY, MO. 64114

Satisfying Your Sweet Tooth This Easter

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The art of making Easter candy, particularly chocolate-covered eggs, is alive and well as dozens of women who belong to Seminole County's extension homemaking clubs found out today.

Mrs. Joan Holloway of Altamonte Springs demonstrated the art during classes at the county agriculture center all day beginning at 9:30 a.m. She stayed "until the last egg was wrapped and the kitchen at the center was clean."

Mrs. Holloway says she has been making the chocolate-covered eggs for the past seven years. She sells most of them at her Apostolic Faith Church during the Easter season. Mrs. Holloway was taught the art by long-distance...long-telephone telephone that is, by her mother who lives in West Virginia.

"Mother told me to take a cake decorating class first before she would tell me how to make the eggs," Mrs. Holloway says. She uses the skill she acquired in the cake-decorating class to decorate the tops of the eggs with designs of sweet peas and swirls.

Mrs. Holloway says the chocolate-covered eggs can be a good money-making project for any group trying to raise funds at Easter time.

While Joan is willing to share her recipes for chocolate-covered eggs, she insists she can guarantee the recipes will work only if the directions are followed to the letter and only if the brands of ingredients she recommends are used.

First, she says, "Native Scandinavian" block chocolate must be used. Mrs. Holloway says even though this brand of chocolate is more expensive, it must be used because other brands become too thin, especially during warm weather, and won't work in Florida.

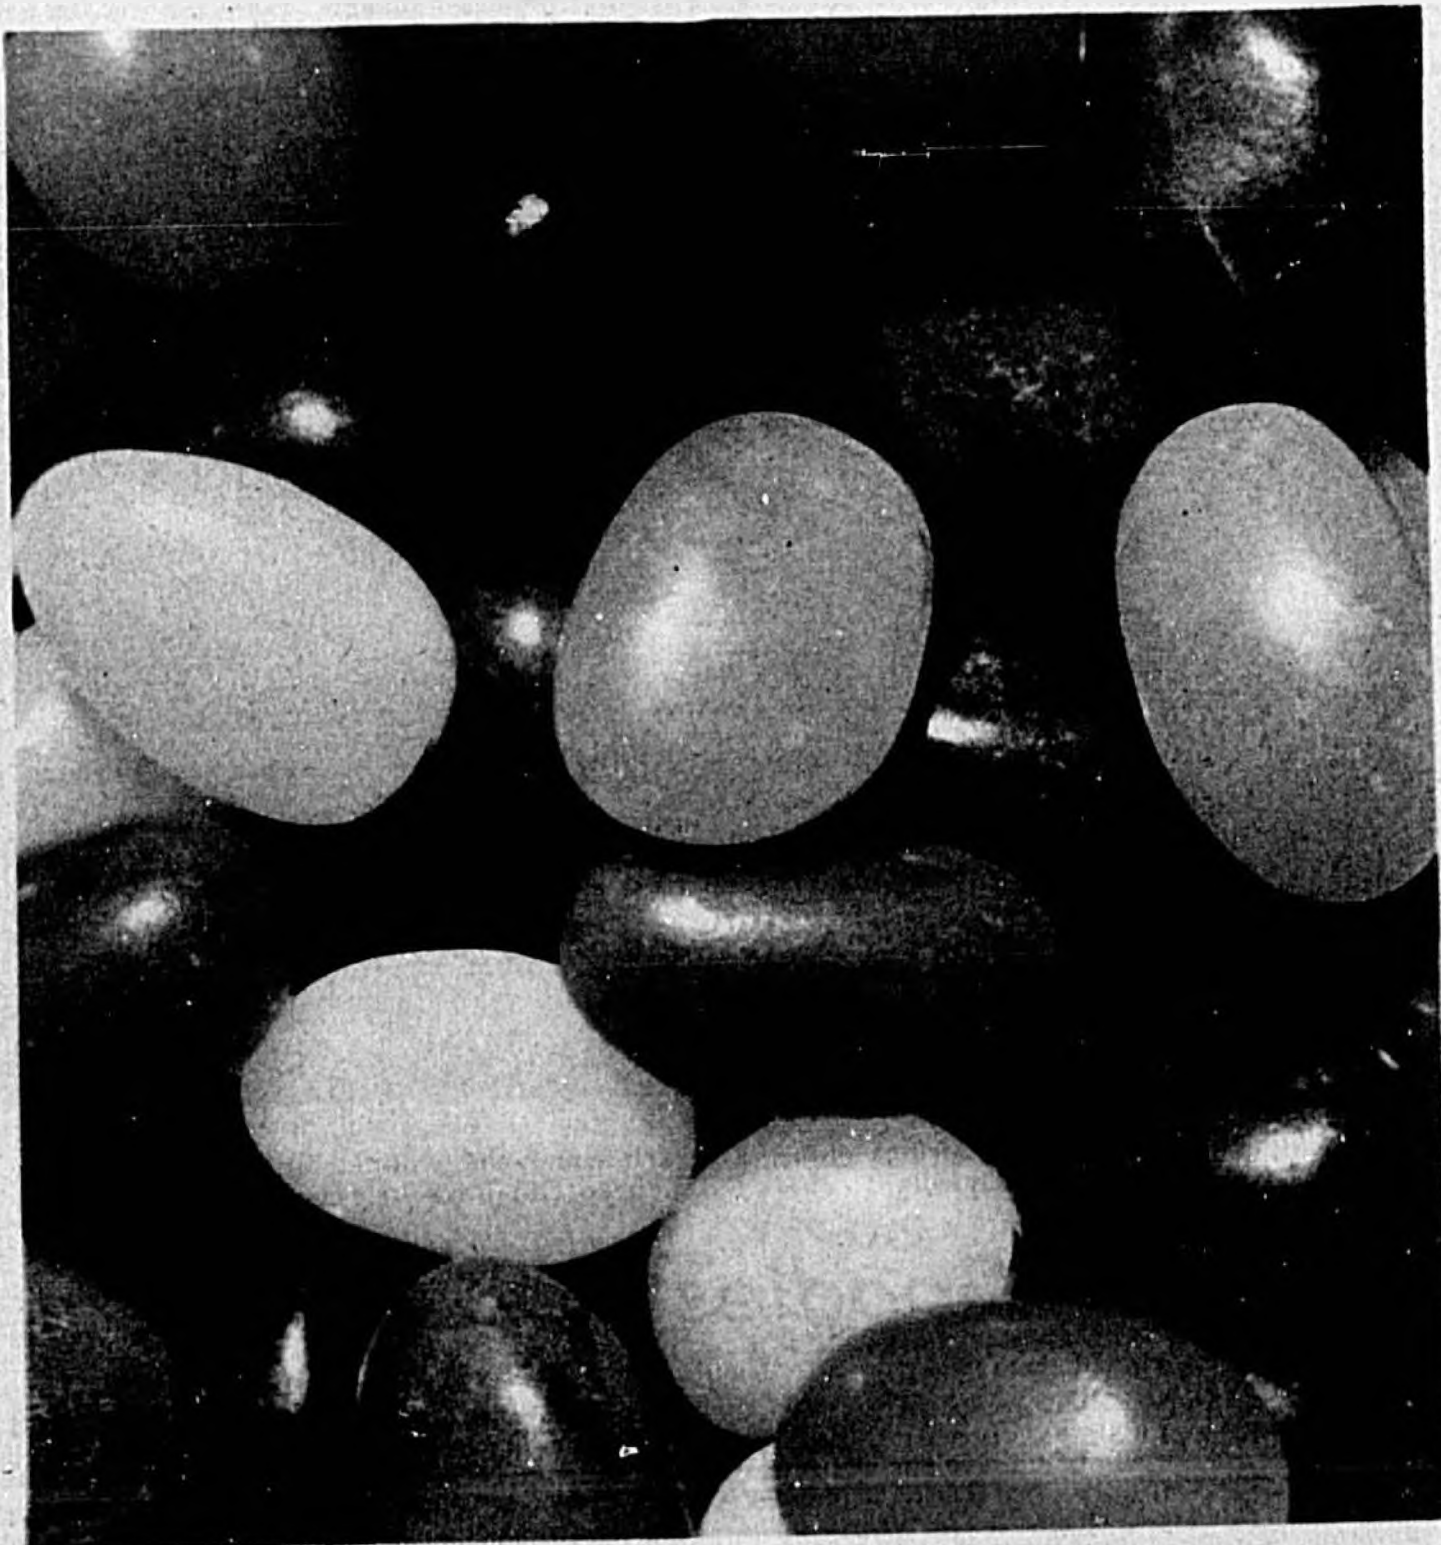

The chocolate comes in five-pound blocks and must be processed for the eggs 2½ pounds at a time. Mrs. Holloway's directions are as follows:

Cut the chocolate into little pieces and place in the top of a double boiler. Bring the water to a boil and turn off the stove. You must let the steam escape because no water can be allowed to get into the chocolate. Using a candy thermometer, allow the temperature of the chocolate to reach 105 degrees. Put cool water in the bottom of the double boiler and allow the chocolate to cool to 80 degrees. Then heat it back to 83 degrees. Once that temperature is reached, the chocolate is ready for dipping.

Mrs. Holloway has recipes for four different kinds of eggs in two different sizes. She says the eggs may be either 2 or 8 ounces and should be weighed before they are dipped into the chocolate if they are to be sold.

"We want to make sure that those who buy the eggs get their moneys worth," she says.

The 'New Odd Couple' isn't new at all. In fact, it's quite old. It's the very same show we saw with Jack Klugman and Tony Randall a few years back. The very same plots, gags, even the same producer. The only thing different are the actors. Page 12.

Sheepskin An Aid In Acting

By Ruth Thompson

Double-digit unemployment has recently become a national concern. However, entertainers are already used to the heavy competition for the relatively few available jobs. Yet, year after year, still more people pursue the dream, seeking a degree in drama (or film, or television). Some do catch the brass ring.

So do some who have hedged their bets.

Jay Johnson, for example. Blond and still boyish, Jay has been a professional ventriloquist and actor since he was 14, when he started getting paid for appearing in summer revues. His first television visibility was playing Chuck Campbell in the "Soap" series. More recently Jay and his smart-mouth dummy, Bob, are hosting the syndicated series "So You Think You Got Troubles?" Jay is still as gung-ho about being an entertainer as he was at age 11 when he first found he could amaze his family by controlling his lip movements.

"My father was very supportive," says Johnson. "But he was an educator and there was no mistake about what you do right after high school. You go for a degree. After that, he said, 'Anything you want.'"

Jay is thankful he got his degree in marketing from the University of Texas. "I had an advantage right off," he says. "I knew enough business law to read my own contracts. After all, they don't call my field 'show art,' they call it 'show business.'"

Joel Higgins — currently starring as Ricky Schroder's well-meaning but whimsical father on NBC's "Silver Spoons" — entered Michigan

State as a music major with his father's blessing. Then he made a fast switch to advertising. It started paying off right away, and still is.

In college he was already writing music as well as performing at eateries and drinkeries. Then the added business training and savvy helped Joel and a partner set up a booking company for themselves and other acts. Since 1980, he has been one of three active partners in a jingle writing company, which has now branched out to scoring movies and television dramas.

PEANUT BUTTER EGGS

One pound of Parkay margarine, 2 cups of inexpensive peanut butter (she says this works just as well as the expensive brands), 3 pounds of confectioners sugar and 3 teaspoons of vanilla flavoring. Mix the ingredients, except the sugar, together. Add sugar until the candy can be held safely without sticking.

Shape into 2- or 8-ounce eggs, let them sit and air dry while the chocolate is processed and then dip them into the chocolate to dry. She says she has not been able to master the dipping process without breaking the eggs. So, she just spreads the chocolate over the candy eggs.

CHERRY EGGS

One cup of Crisco, 3 egg whites, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 cup of Maraschino cherries, chopped and well drained, and 2-3 pounds of confectioners sugar. Cream together all ingredients except the sugar. Add the sugar, creaming again.

She notes that the amount of sugar needed will depend on how well drained the cherries were. Shape the eggs as before, let dry and dip.

COCONUT EGGS

A half cup Crisco, 3 egg whites, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon of coconut flavoring, 1 cup of flaked coconut, and 1-2 pounds of confectioners sugar. Cream all ingredients except sugar and then add the sugar as needed. Knead until it handles well, form into eggs, let dry and coat.

MAPLE NUT EGGS

One pound confectioners sugar, 1 stick real butter, 1 teaspoon of Karo white syrup. Work these ingredients together until creamy. Add 1/8 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons maple flavoring, 3 tablespoons of chopped walnuts. Mix together, adding enough cream to form into eggs. Let air dry before dipping.

To decorate the eggs, prepare an icing as follows: 2 cups of powdered sugar, ¼ cup warm water, 6 tablespoons of meringue powder. Mix this Royal Icing for 7 to 10 minutes until it forms hard peaks. Use it as is or tint it with food coloring.

You can color code your eggs to indicate what kind they are. Such as using blue icing for peanut butter eggs, yellow for maple nut, pink for cherry and white for coconut. One may also use the icing to write names on the eggs.

Ex-Monkee Into Videos

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Ex-Monkee Michael Nesmith is going into home video in a big way. He thinks the slump the record industry is in today isn't a slump at all, but a permanent decline, and that "videos" — video cassettes of recording artists at work — are the coming thing.

He has already made what he says is the biggest selling home video item, something called "Elephant Parts," an hour-long bit of entertainment that cost him a half-million to make. Nesmith says that, given today's market, that's about as much as anybody can spend on a video and still expect to turn a profit.

"I think," Nesmith says, "that the public's idea of home entertainment has changed. It's no longer passive — just sitting there and letting a TV set or a record player entertain them. Now they are active and they want to plan and program their own home entertainment — maybe a movie, or music, or a game."

But Nesmith and his company — Pacific Arts Corp. — is into other things, besides videos. He has produced, scored and done a cameo acting bit in his new movie, "Timerider," which has opened to good reviews. It may be 1983's first sleeper hit.

Nesmith financed "Timerider" himself, to the tune of $2 1/2 million — "and every cent came out of my hip pocket." What went into that hip pocket in the first place was primarily monies derived from his years as part of The Monkees.

"I'm happy I was in that group," Nesmith says, "even though the two years we were on TV were very hectic years. But everything good that's happened to me comes from The Monkees, so I wouldn't change that experience for anything."

As for his fellow Monkees, Nesmith says that Mickey Dolenz is now in England, where he is a successful TV director. He says he spoke to Peter Tork recently, for the first time in some years, but would not say what he's doing, and he has no knowledge of the present whereabouts of Davy Jones.

The trouble with horror films today is that the horror they show is too specific.

"Horror," says noted horror-novel author Peter Straub, "should never be specific. The threat should always be mysterious and nebulous. It should almost have a dream-like quality.

But most of them today are too obvious."

He liked the recent "Creepshow," calls it the best of the recent crop of horror films. But he wasn't too happy with the movie version of his own novel, "Ghost Story." Straub feels that it was spoiled in the direction, although he did like the casting, particularly Alice Krige as the girl in the case.

Straub, who lives in Connecticut, was in town to visit a new film agent. He hopes to sell his current novel, "Floating Dragon," as well as his previous one, "Shadowland."

But perhaps the most exciting project Straub is involved in is his current collaboration with Stephen King, another master of the horror genre. They are working on a book they are calling "The Talisman," and the idea of these two inventive minds collaborating on one novel is enough to start the nail-biting now.

A Clearinghouse For Actors' Addresses?

DEAR DICK: Why, in columns such as yours, do people write in, requesting an address, and be given so many different ones? A studio here, an agent there, a Hollywood address, a New York address, etc. Why not a central clearinghouse, to which mail may be addressed and forwarded? R.H.R., Jensen Beach, Fla.

A great idea. Theoretically, the Screen Actors Guild is supposed to do that for actors — forward all their mail — but in practice, for whatever reason, it just doesn't work. (You might still care to try it and, if you do, the SAG is located at 7750 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles CA 90046.) On the general subject of addresses, I still don't give out any, even if I know them, because I feel a star is entitled to privacy for safety's sake. As an example of the danger of having an address become public knowledge, Linda Ronstadt recently told me that when US Magazine was stupid or nasty enough to print her address, the resultant public attention was so great she had to move away.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I have a steak dinner riding on who played Peter Gunn. He says Mike Connors. I say Gene Barry. Who is right? L.C.B., Salisbury, N.C.
Send out for pizza. It was Craig Stevens.

DEAR DICK: Please settle an argument between myself and a friend about a line in the movie "Gone with the Wind." He says the line was, "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn." I say it was, "Frankly, Scarlett," etc. We decided to ask the master, which is you. B.J.R., Vancouver, Wash.

Thank you for the compliment. In this case, it is your friend who is right. My authority is Roland Flaminio's book, "Scarlett, Rhett and a Cast of Thousands," which has everything you'd want to know (and more) about "GWTW."

DEAR DICK: Joanne Carson, of the cable show, "Alive and Well." Is she or was she Johnny Carson's wife? MRS. A.L.T., Spencer, Wis.

Was Johnny's current wife (assuming no divorce in the meantime) is Joanna. It does get confusing, but the lady on the cable show is an ex.

DEAR DICK: What other roles has Sharon Glesner (Cagney) of "Cagney & Lacey" played? I'm sure I've seen her before, but can't remember where. J.R., Kalamazoo, Mich.

It's Gless, not Glesner. Sharon has done a lot of things on TV, notably a role in the series "Switch" and she succeeded Lynn Redgrave in "House Calls."

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if actor/dancer Ray Bolger is still living? A friend and I were trying to recall the players in "The Wizard of Oz" and which ones were still living. D.L.H., Galena, Kan.

Bolger is still living and so is Margaret Hamilton, who was the Wicked Witch. The other principals — Judy Garland, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr, Billie Burke, Frank Morgan — are gone.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: In the movie "The Verdict," I could not understand why James Mason gave Charlotte Rampling a check. I went and saw it again, and still couldn't figure it out. Could you please explain. B., Mobile, Ala.

Mason, that unscrupulous rascal, had hired Miss Rampling to become friendly with Newman, so he could learn what Newman was planning to do in the courtroom.

DEAR DICK: We need information on Richard Crenna and Bernadette Peters. My girlfriend and I have a bet with our husbands. We say Richard and Bernadette played in a TV series a few years back. Our husband says they never played in anything together. Who is right — wives or husbands? L.D. AND D.C., Warsaw, Ind.

Hooray for the wives! Crenna and Miss Peters were together in "All's Fair" on CBS — he played a political columnist and she was a photographer — in the '76-'77 season.

Cable, Kids And TV

By Andrew J. Edelstein
This week (March 13-19) has been declared by Congress and President Reagan as the first National Children and Television Week. The goal of the week, which has been created by the National Council for Children and Television, is to get kids to become more critical about what they watch on TV.

HBO's "Braingames" is particularly delightful. The half-hour show — featuring splashy computer graphics and a pulsating techno-pop score — consists of seven brain-stumping, audience participation games, such as identifying a sound or unscrambling letters. "Braingames" uses celebrity voice-overs, such as comedian Robert Klein and sportscaster Marty Glickman, to narrate each game.

To mark this special week, Nickelodeon, the all-children's programming channel, will air two originally produced programs. "P.S." is a 30-minute forum for the personal problems of young people.

Meanwhile, Nickelodeon's "Speakout" series will highlight the stars and producers of various Nickelodeon shows. Participants involved in answering viewer's questions include baseball star Reggie Jackson, actor Leonard Nimoy and "Livewire" host Fred Newman.

THURSDAY

Leslie Uggams and Peter Marshall are the co-hosts of the NBC game show "Fantasy." The duo have holiday happenings for St. Patrick's Day, Thursday March 17.

FRIDAY

What are the Governor (James Noble, l.), Kraus (Inga Swenson, c.) and Benson (Robert Guillaume) doing on the roof? Tune into "Benson," Friday, March 18 on ABC, and find out.

SATURDAY

First Lady Nancy Reagan visits Arnold (Gary Coleman) on NBC's "Diff'rent Strokes," to air Saturday, March 19.

Robin 'Pops' Up:

In the guise of "Pops," an aging newsboy hawking copies of the 'National Intruding Sun,' Robin Williams urges viewers to sneak in to his exclusive On Location special "An Evening With Robin Williams." The uncensored one-madman show debuts Saturday 10-11:30 p.m. on Home Box Office.

Is Network TV's Future Bound To Be 'Event TV?'

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie-TV producer David Wolper is convinced the future of network TV lies with event television — the big, gaudy miniseries.

His "Roots" remains the most watched entertainment program in TV history.

Wolper hopes to capture big ratings again with "The Thorn Birds," taken from Colleen McCullough's best-selling novel, 10 hours on four successive nights beginning March 27.

The recent ratings of the marathon 18-hour "Winds of War," further convinced Wolper that long form television has surpassed formula sitcoms like "M-A-S-H" and primetime soaps like "Dallas."

Early miniseries — "QB VII," "Rich Man, Poor Man" and "Centennial" — collected critical praise, significant ratings and blizzards of promotion and hype.

More recently, "Shogun," "Marco Polo" and "Massada" were big hits.

Wolper pioneered event TV with "Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" in the 1960s.

"Event TV differs from other programming in its impact," said Wolper, a man with soft eyes, silver hair and beard.

"Weekly shows lose their novelty. Series become part of everyday life. Interest dies out. TV movies aren't as costly and aren't hyped like miniseries.

"The miniseries remains a special event. There has never been an unsuccessful one. Since 'Winds of War' all three networks are frantic for new miniseries."

According to Wolper the vital element of a miniseries is hooking chronic non-viewers to watch in addition to luring regular viewers away from their nightly watching pattern.

"People who seldom watch TV realize they're not making a season-long commitment," Wolper said. "They're only giving up a few hours to see something different and, hopefully, worth their time.

"Ten or 12 hours is all you can ask of people for event TV. I would limit any single episode to three hours. After that, the audience gets restless.

"It's also wise to avoid skipping a night in a miniseries. You have to keep viewers on a fine edge and keep them coming back."

Best subjects for event TV are popular novels, ("Rich Man, Poor Man"), historical cavalcades ("Holocaust") and social tidal waves (Roots).

Wolper says, however, novels must be classy and viewers convinced they will learn some history or social lessons in addition to simply being entertained.

To achieve those ends, he said, millions of dollars must be spent on hype.

"You've got to get magazine covers, daily newspaper stories and on-the-air promotion from the network," he said. "You must send the stars out on talk shows. You have to beat the drums. Let 'em know something special is happening.

"The opening episode is the key. If you get enough people watching, they'll all be talking about the show the next morning in offices and factories. Anyone who didn't watch will feel left out."

Another important miniseries factor is willingness of major stars to appear in event TV projects — Gregory Peck in "The Blue and The Gray," Robert Mitchum and Al McGraw in "Winds of War."

The publicity tomtoms are only now beginning to throb for "The Thorn Birds," a saga of a young Australian woman and her love, a Catholic priest who becomes a Vatican prelate.

Stars Richard Chamberlain and Rachel Ward are cooperating with Wolper who has lined up more than half a dozen major magazine covers. ABC-TV will pour on the on-the-air promos.

So confident of success is Wolper that he has completed another five-hour miniseries, "The Mystic Warrior," based on the book "Hanta Yo," an historical novel of American Indian life in the 19th century.

Wolper's faith in event TV is not shaken by runaway costs of producing miniseries. In 1977 12 hours of "Roots" cost $6.5 million. Ten hours of "The Thorn Birds" came in at a hefty $21 million.

"Some people believe there will come a day when the mainstay of networks will be event TV with cable and pay-TV taking over weekly series.

"The networks will remain excited about miniseries and continue to pay big money for them — until the first flop. Then it could be a different ballgame."

The aroma of zesty Italian cooking permeates the 100-year old brick walls of this downtown attraction. The Sanford House, located at 109 N. Oak Ave., Sanford, between West First Street and Lake Monroe, features homemade dishes from southern Italy.

The restaurant serves lunch from 10 until 4 Monday through Friday. Delivery service is available. Dinner is served from 4 until 9 Monday through Thursday; from 4 until 10 Friday and Saturday and the restaurant is open on Sunday from 12 noon until 8 in the evening.

Homemade soups and antipasto are regular items on the menu. Interesting specialties of the house are frequently offered. An all-you-can-eat salad bar with soup is offered at lunch for $2.95. All dinners include salad and bread. The satisfying dinners range from $3.75 to $7.95. Keeping their prices moderate, the owners feel, makes family dining affordable.

The natural appointments of old brick and inlaid cypress floors are enhanced by white curtains, bud vases on each table and a general coziness with a true sense of history.

The Sanford House is an intimate room in the Welaka Building, across from the Flagship Bank. It is frequented largely by business people in the day when they are able to lunch quickly.

Senior citizens are invited to call or stop by for a discount card which entitles them to reduced prices on meals. With this in mind, domestic favorites, such as roast beef or turkey dinners are being added to the menu daily.

For those who enjoy a drink with their meals, a variety of domestic and imported beers and wines are available.

The new owners of The Sanford House, Paul Zimmerman and Doug Conforti, both serve in the kitchen, where they take pride in the quality of the food offered. Fresh veal cutlets are served in tantalizing sauces, such as veal fraisee. Shrimp in the delicate marinara over pasta and lasagna are popular favorites. The selection is wide and tempting and prepared under the discerning eyes and culinary skills of the knowledgeable partners.

On His Third Time Up Robert Loggia Scores

By Dick Kleiner

Robert Loggia

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — You can excuse youthful impetuosity. You can excuse the restlessness of a man in his early 40s. But that's about as far as you can go excusing a man for failing to become a success. And Robert Loggia isn't about to excuse himself again.

Loggia is chest-deep into what amounts to his third crack at major stardom here in the Hollywood vineyards. When he was young and brash, he starred in the Disney series "Elfego Baca," which did well, and he almost certainly could have used that as a springboard to major Hollywood fame and fortune.

"I turned my back on the offers I had then," he says, "and went back to New York. At that time (the late '50s) it was fashionable for New York actors to turn their backs on Hollywood. Besides, my wife at the time didn't like California."

He was a New York stage actor for some years after that, when he once again came to Hollywood, and once again the Big Time beckoned. He had another TV series ("T.H.E. Cat") and, for the second time, had a shot at the whole thing.

"But I left again," he says. "I was away for six more years, from age 38 to 44, in what I call my mid-life crisis. I don't regret that — I found myself during those years."

He found himself mostly, he says, through finding a lady named Audrey O'Brien, currently his fiancée, although they may be married by the time you read this. He says she helped him gain back his competitive sense, and he feels an actor must be competitive if he wants to survive in the acting jungle.

Now he considers himself a character actor, and he thinks he has arrived at that state of his career at a perfect time. This, he believes, is a good era for character actors.

And it seems to be a good era for Loggia. He's moving from one picture to another — he's in both "Pink Panther" movies, as a Mafia boss; he's a psychiatrist in the upcoming "Psycho II"; and he's just started filming the remake of "Scarface," with Al Pacino, again as a psychiatrist.

The third time around, apparently, will be the charm for Loggia.

The Krantzes — Judith, the novelist, and her husband, Steve, the producer — are moving to France and they expect to stay there at least a year. That's how long they estimate it will take them to produce the eight-hour TV version of Judy's current best-seller, "Mistral's Daughter."

"We have to be there," Judy says, "to oversee it all. And it has to be shot there — in Paris, in Provence — because that's where most of it is set."

She won't get involved in the production personally. That's Steve's department. She expects to be consulted on casting and have a look at the script, but that's about all.

Cottle Chats With Celebs 'Up Close'

By Peter Meade
It's never comfortable being the new kid in town. Ask Tom Cottle, host of the syndicated talk show "Tom Cottle: Up Close."

Where does this sympathetic-eyed newcomer fit into the talk-show niche already occupied by Johnny, Merv, Mike, Dick and Barbara?

"What I try to do is be a lot more personal," says Cottle. "I admire those people a lot, and they must be doing a lot of right things. But I try for a more in-depth interview, an autobiographical portrait. I try to get some sketches, some brush strokes, an outline of what I believe to be the important aspects of the person's life."

Cottle prides himself that his one-on-one 30-minute show evades the usual "Hi I'm here to plug my new movie or book" talk show format. With the aid of a severely sincere smile and some patented oh-come-on prodding, he scrapes past the glitter to the glue. During the "innerview," Cottle doesn't need a couch to play celebrity shrink as he uncovers the skeletons and dirty laundry hidden in the closets of some of Hollywood's best known marquee attractions.

"A lot of celebrities have said what a pleasure it is to go on a talk show and not have to plug something," Cottle says. "They really enjoy the prospect of sitting down and talking about themselves."

During the era of the over-macho man, Cottle has developed a soft touch for stroking the fragile superstar ego and has more going for him than an easy-going, talk-to-me manner.

He doesn't make a big ballyhoo of it, but when he isn't "Up Close" he's really Dr. Cottle, sociologist and clinical psychologist, with a B.A. from Harvard and an M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. A frequent lecturer at Harvard Medical School, he also maintains a private practice in Boston.

"I play down my background," says Cottle.

NBC's 'Mama's Family' Gets By On Just Noise

By David Handler

Let's not be too hasty about dismissing "Mama's Family" as a mere outgrowth of an ongoing variety show sketch. This has been done before and done well. After all, probably the greatest sitcom of all time, "The Honeymooners," got its start as a sketch on "Cavalcade of Stars." So there.

This NBC mid-season entry is lifted from Carole Burnett's old CBS show. It is a serialized spoof of a semi-dull, semi-shabby, small-town American family. One big happy family? Hardly. This brood positively boils over with comic jealousy, resentment and downright hate.

As a series, "Mama's Family" is broad, low, gaudy and silly. I must admit I found myself giggling at it more than once in spite of myself. Unfortunately, it hasn't made the structural transformation from gang sketch to sitcom. It also needs Burnett for the big laughs, and she isn't a regular.

Its prospects look limited, in other words.

Mama is a nasty, beer-swilling, old widow with a brood of middle-aged infants. "Sit down and be pleasant, damn it," is how she calls people to the dinner table.

Vicki Lawrence, who is in her 30s, plays her, and I have a little trouble with that. It's not her acting. I just can't forget that this is a young, sleek redhead under the baggy housecoat, support hose, gray wig and hairnet.

Her jellyfish son, Vint (Ken Berry), has just moved back home, what with his chinchilla farm and his marriage both failing. He has brought his two teen-agers, Buzz (Eric Brown) and Sonja (Karin Argoud) with him, which knocks prissy Aunt Fran (Rue McClanahan) out of joint. It's a real fight to get into the bathroom now. Of such matters are wars made in this family.

Mama is extremely put out when Vint goes out for a drink with none other than Naomi (Dorothy Lyman), the hip-swinging, gum-chewing divorcee from next door who works as a checker at Food Circus.

She is appoplectic when she discovers Naomi has spent the night in Vint's room. But she absolutely goes over the edge when Vint announces he's going to marry Naomi and go off to Arizona to manage a mobile home park.

However, she backs down and agrees to host the wedding. "This could be a happy occasion," she admits, "if it wasn't for the bride."

The wedding brings out the rest of the family, and what a bunch. There's Ellen (Betty White), the pampered princess whose off-camera husband, Bruce, is fooling around with his secretary. And, of course, there's Burnett's Eunice, the shrill, catty, infantile pain in the neck with her nerdy husband, Ed (Harvey Korman), in tow. (Korman also serves as the series' genial host, a take-off of All-star Cooke in "Masterpiece Theatre.")

Vint and Naomi's wedding can only be described as a demolition derby, with Ellen finding out the truth about Bruce and Eunice going berserk because Mama gives Vint daddy's sapphire ring. Eunice gets soused and has to be carried kicking and screaming out the door by Ed, who she calls a goon. The series' catalyst goes out the door with her.

As might be expected, Vint and Naomi never do move to Arizona. All that happens is Naomi moves in under Mama's roof, and life goes on.

But "Mama's Family" won't work for long. It is a parody with caricatures instead of people. There's no chance for anybody to become flesh and blood because episodes are built not around individuals but around events that bring everyone together for kicking and screaming fits. The din wears thin fast.

A series of sketches, yes. A sitcom, no.

Work Is Play

If your television set is not occupied with the latest video game, tune in to WGBH's "Enterprise" and see what's new in the home video game wars.

"All in the Game" airs Thursday, March 17 on PBS. Bill Grubb left his lucrative position at Atari, the industry's leading game producer, to start his own company: Imagic. With an average age of 28, Grubb and his three partners, mainly former Mattel and Atari employees, expect to gross $3 billion in 1982. Grubb's aim is for his company to become the top independent producer of game software in the nation. His chief rival -- and neighbor in California's "Silicon Valley" -- is Activision. Their profits reached $66 million in the first two years.

Viewers will see Imagic's game designers discuss and perfect new game cartridges that they hope will soon be purchased by millions of video game addicts.

The video game racket is a very young man's business, according to one investor. Imagic's game designers are mostly in their 20s with the marketing personnel being just a bit older.

Genius Gerry

Gerry Parkes stars as Doc, the absentminded genius who usually invents totally useless items that catch the attention of his faithful dog, Sprocket, on "Fraggle Rock," HBO's first original weekly series. The show can be seen Mondays at 7:30 p.m.

'New Odd Couple' Is Old Stuff, Indeed

By David Handler

ABC's "The New Odd Couple" isn't new at all. Fact is, this is the same show we watched on ABC from 1970 to 1975, starring Tony Randall and Jack Klugman. Some of us are still watching it in syndication.

No joke. This is the same exact show. Same theme song, same plots, same scripts — scene for scene, line for line, gag for gag, comma for comma. Same producer — Garry Marshall.

Cheesy? Yes. Lazy? Yes. Contemptuous of the audience? You bet. What do they think — that we're so stupid we won't remember we saw the very same show not too many years ago?

What do they think — that since we sit through summer reruns we'll sit through fall reruns, too?

The cast is different this time, I'll grant you that. Randall and Klugman have given way to two new actors, Ron Glass and Demond Wilson. Each happens to be black.

Now, you might argue that the show is completely different — and thus new — if it has black people in it instead of white people.

I don't think so. Not unless an effort has been made to reinterpret — possibly even rewrite — the characters and situations so as to reflect black culture. No purposeful effort has been made here. No effort has been made at all.

Felix and Oscar live, act, think and speak the same exact way as before. Same scripts, remember? Actually, there's never even any mention of the fact that they're now black. I guess it would have meant writing new lines.

Of the two new performers, Ron Glass fares the best. Fresh off his excellent support work on "Barney Miller," Glass is a smooth, pleasant TV leading man.

Wilson, on the other hand, is a total bust as Oscar. You may not recognize him from his "Sanford and Son" days. He's put on a good 30 pounds since then and now looks not unlike Robert De Niro as the older Jake LaMotta in "Raging Bull."

Frankly, I'm staggered by ABC's arrogance in putting "The New Odd Couple" on the air. Not to mention its stupidity.
