

McKethan Regards Highway Situation Urge, Dangerous

TALLAHASSEE, (FNS) Discussing Florida's highway problem before the Florida Bankers Association convention recently, State Road Chairman Alfred McKethan stated that "no problem which faces Florida has greater urgency or contains more hidden dangers for the future than our outmoded and inadequate highway system."

"The time for action is at hand," he said. "This problem is urgent. We have passed the buck too long. The high level of prosperity that we are continuing to enjoy; the ever increasing traffic burden of our roads; and the thousands of welcome visitors who come to us annually, call for elimination of transportation bottlenecks."

"Our economy depends so greatly on highways that they really are a part of our every day business. Failure to meet highway problems over the years presents a real danger to our economy and frankly, it is my belief that no other single factor in state government has a greater bearing on our economy than a proper highway system."

McKethan pointed out that motor vehicle registrations in Florida had increased 106 per cent since 1940 with a total of 1,150,000 cars, trucks and buses being registered. The number of tourist cars entering the state shows an even greater increase. Florida can no longer delay action in providing for her present day road needs. This can only be accomplished by taking Driven back to the Pusan perimeter, the tide turned for UN forces with the Inchon landing, Sept., 1950.

A few of the tens of thousands of war-weary South Koreans uprooted from their homes near demolished Seoul building. The South Korean capital has changed hands four times, suffered with each.

At Inchon, Gen. Douglas MacArthur went ashore to inspect prisoners. UN drove inland to Seoul.

In October, 1950, North Korean civilians welcomed UN troops into Pyongyang. Soon the Chinese entered the war, won back North Korean capital. Building carries pictures of Josef Stalin, Kim Il Sung.

JUNE 23 MARKS TWO YEARS since tank-led North Korean forces plunged across the 38th Parallel to invade South Korea. The sea-saw warfare has cost billions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of casualties on both sides but the issues seem as unsettled as ever.

ise the bombing of Communist bases in Manchuria. He said it would not be necessary to refer the matter to U. N. Allies.

Both armies sent patrols into enemy-held territory along the 155-mile Korean battle front Tuesday night and early Wednesday. But there was no renewal of the savage fighting which raged on the western front much of the past two weeks.

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—United Nations and Communist truce negotiators today marked the second anniversary of the Korean War by accusing each other of touching off the bloody conflict.

Peace, each side argued, lies in its proposal for the exchange of war prisoners—the only major issue blocking an armistice.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison opened the no progress 29-minute session by telling the Communists: "Today, on the second anniversary of your treacherous attack against the Republic of Korea, we are meeting in an effort to conclude a just and honorable armistice and an end to this bloody conflict."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il shot back: "This day two years ago the United States government directed the South Korean army to attack the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and started the Korean War which continues today."

"The troops . . . of the United States, Britain, France and other nations have covered thousands of miles to come to Korea and have slaughtered Korean people and have destroyed Korean towns and villages. If this is not aggression then what is it?"

For the first time Nam acknowledged an Allied disclosure of Saturday that Soviet Russia in World War II offered German soldiers the right to choose whether they wanted to go home if they surrendered.

U. N. insistence on repatriating only prisoners who want to go home has blocked agreement on a Korean armistice for weeks.

Nam said the reference to Soviet Russia was "out of context and has no bearing on present discussions."

public ovens where the women go each morning to do their baking. Another beautiful story was told in the pictures of the Tulip Festival held each year between Amsterdam and the Hague. Field upon field of many colored tulips were shown as well as the colorful pageant which accompanies the festival. Scenes of romantic Venice delighted the audience with the colorful gondolas and beautiful buildings glistening in the sun. An interesting scene was one of the streets of Amsterdam showing a horse drawn milk wagon alongside a street car that bore a large sign on which was written "Drink Coca Cola".

Mr. Bergere showed pictures of an avalanche in the Brenner Pass on the Austrian and Italian border where Hitler and Mussolini held many of the "conferences". On the grimmer side were walls in various German cities that were defaced with scrawls of Communists that are gaining momentum every day, regardless of efforts being made by the State Department, stated Mr. Bergere.

Injecting a brighter note into the situation, Mr. Bergere said there are now more than 50,000,000 persons living inside Russia who are not really Communists and who are ready to rise up against Communism and all that it stands for at a sign from the free people of the world. These people work via the "Underground" and are constantly growing in strength, he said.

After leaving the State Department, Mr. and Mrs. Bergere returned to the United States and went directly to California. Mr. Bergere's former home, but not liking it, they came to Florida and planned to settle in St. Augustine where they opened a gift shop. They both stated that after the cool reception they received in St. Augustine, they again returned to California to remain for a short time, but Florida hired them again and while passing through Sanford they were struck with the cleanliness and beauty of the town as well as the friendliness of the people, so decided to settle in Sanford and they have opened a Camera and Gift Shop at 118 Magnolia Avenue.

They were introduced by Mrs. J. P. Hall, program chairman. Other guests at the meeting were Miss Lettye Ball, Miss Barbara Chapman, Mrs. George Chapman and R. M. Ball. Miss Carolyn Carter was welcomed by the president, Mrs. Nancy Brock, as a new member into the club. She also announced that she and Mrs.

Bobby Borsdorf told of the Future Farmer convention which he attended at Daytona Beach, June 9-13, and of the talks at the big air conditioned auditorium, and concerts at the Band Shell. All meetings, he stated, were held according to strict parliamentary procedure by the 500 boys present. The theme of the convention, he said, was to develop character, train for useful citizenship and to foster patriotism.

Have you tried BUICK'S POWER STEERING?

smoothness that make this ROADMASTER so distinguished among fine cars.

When you want to get into—or out of—a tight spot at the curb, Power Steering takes over the extra effort of turning the wheels, and you can forget the two-ton-plus of automobile you're handling.

When you want to turn around in a narrow space—Power Steering lets you get the last inch of benefit from Buick's short turning radius, because it makes the maneuver so easy.

When one front wheel hits a bump, a chuckhole, loose sand or dirt at the edge of a road—Power Steering takes up the jerk—makes control of the wheel easier and therefore safer.

Many folks who have tried it tell us that Power Steering has added almost as much to the pleasure of owning a Buick as Dynaflow Drive.

When would you like to try it?

Equipment, accessories, tires and models are subject to change without notice. *Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster only.

Trainer, Wife Hurt By Escaped Lioness

PERU, Ind. — A 5-year-old lioness escaped from a crate at the Biller Brothers Circus winter quarters early today and rained the country side six hours before it was captured.

It clawed a trainer and injured his wife before it was forced back into a cage. It was captured along a creek bank near the circus quarters.

A score of circus employees aided sheriffs of two counties and state police in a hotly organized hunt. The lioness had been purchased from the circus by John A. Wall, 55, Birmingham, Ala., and his wife, both animal trainers.

Wall was clawed badly on his right hand and shoulder as he tried to get the lioness into a crate. His wife, who was by the professional name of Gladys Gillen, was hurt as the beast knocked a rake handle from her hands.

State Trooper Elton Bodey said

The lioness escaped from a crate which was being placed on a truck.

The first stable for White House horses eventually came a school in 1821 for the poor children of Washington.

F. P. & L. Co. Is Given Publicity In Big Magazines

Importance Of Private Independent Business Stressed

MIAMI (FNS)—National publicity is not too difficult to obtain when you offer top notch cheese-cake releases and fast action superb pictures provided by such able organizations as Cypress Gardens or the Miami News Bureau, but when you can "make" the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's or Fortune with pictures of unadorned industrial plants, sun-bathing beauties, palm trees or power packed action you are really accomplishing something.

Few privately owned utility companies in the country have received as much national publicity and favorable comment in top-flight national newspapers and magazines as the Florida Power & Light Company of Miami, and the answer is found in the fact that unthought recognition is deserved.

The June 14 issue of Collier's Magazine featured an article by David Lilienthal entitled, "Electricity—Bulwark of U. S. Strength," in which he pointed out the importance of independent business and private enterprise to the nation's welfare.

Included among the outstanding industrial organizations that are contributing to America's advancement was the Florida Power & Light Company, and among the pictures featured in the article was one of the F.P.&L. power plant at Cutler.

In his article, Lilienthal stressed the importance of private enterprise terming it the "bulwark of the nation's strength." He said that there should be room in our society for both public and private ownership of utilities.

Commenting on Lilienthal's article, McGregor Smith, president of Florida Power & Light Company, said:

"There are many instances where it is logical for the federal government to produce electric power as a by-product from dams which are principally devoted to navigation, irrigation or flood control in the development and conservation of our natural resources.

"But when ambitious government agencies try to use this as a springboard to socialize the entire electric industry, it is time to call a halt.

"For sometime now the Interior Department through its Southwestern Power Administration, has been trying to get money from Congress to build a network of transmission lines in the South-east that would cross and parallel lines of existing power companies, to distribute power from government dams.

"The public will be better served, wasteful use of money and materials avoided if the power is sold to private companies who are anxious to distribute it—pass the savings on to their customers who, as taxpayers, helped finance the government dams that produce it.

"I agree with Mr. Lilienthal that public and private ownership can work together in the electric kind of a nation we want, but in so doing we must be on constant guard against the socialist influence within our country."

Prison Sentence Facing Divorcee In Robbery Case

By ED DESEN
CARSINGTON, Nev. — The French divorcee who pleaded that she made a bedroom bargain with millionaire Laverne Redfield to steal his $1,000,000 dollar safe today faced five to 10 years in prison for directing that fantastic burglary.

A Federal court jury Wednesday found Mrs. Jeanne d'Arc Michael, 36, guilty of carrying more than $10,000 of the loot across state lines.

The jury rejected the pretense that she gained Redfield's consent to the theft in a bedroom tryst at the millionaire's glitzy Reno mansion Dec. 28.

A grand juror's catch was put over her. She previously attempted suicide and said on the witness stand:

"It is preferable to this shame of bringing out my private life as Laverne Redfield's sweetheart."

Redfield denied in court he consented to the theft, but was so hesitant and evasive that Federal Judge Roger Foley's temper flared at the blue-haired divorcee.

An amazing new touch to the case that will go down in FBI files as one of the strangest in history came with this revelation: Redfield still has 20,000 dollar worth of his field stone test device.

The 2,000-gram catchweigh which weighs almost 10 tons, were discovered by FBI agents, acting upon coded instructions found in a note taken from Mrs. Michael upon her arrest.

The note, with a will and other personal papers, was among the currency, jewels and securities choked into the millionaire's small bedroom safe when it was carried away Feb. 29.

The prosecution made a strong argument that if Redfield had consented to the theft, he certainly would not have left the coded instructions and the directions to his hidden silver pile in the safe.

Mrs. Michael, who will be sentenced June 30, freely admitted masterminding the rich burglars, saying she offered a 50 per cent split to Anthony Gargzitti, 41, former Reno gambling casino employe to arrange the job.

Gargzitti, who turned state's evidence, testified he gave 50 per cent of his share to John Trilling, 37, and Andrew Young, 47, both of Milwaukee, to commit the actual theft. All three are awaiting trial. Two are under arrest, one has pleaded guilty and one has been convicted of stealing $11,000 of the Redfield cash from Young.

Crawford Defends Actor Profession In Tiff At Party

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — "I'm not raising my boy to be an actor."

That sentiment, expressed by a movie star at a party, drew a violent reaction from Oscar-winner Broderick Crawford. He gave the star a dressing down for maligning his own profession. Crawford repeated his opinions when I met him for lunch. He is no easy guy to argue with so I listened mostly.

"My son Kim is 6 and it would delight me for him to become an actor any time he wants to," said the talking actor. "I feel like slugging anybody who looks down on acting as a profession."

With this in mind, I proceeded cautiously. How about morals in the acting profession? I asked directly.

"Nothing wrong with them," he replied, offering the age-old argument. "Actors are no more immoral than those in any other kind of work. The only difference is when an actor gets in trouble, it's blown up into headlines."

What about the lean days that most actors live? I asked.

"Sure, we all go through that," he admitted. "After I came back from the Army, I went 9½ months without work. Brother, that's tough to take. But my wife kept telling me that something would turn up. And she was right. The next picture I did was a thing called 'All the King's Men' and I got an Oscar for it."

Crawford said he even encourages his youngster to develop along dramatic lines. Instead of reading the day to sleep with fairy tales, he read over movie scripts. When Kim developed a yen for cowboy pictures, he let him visit the "Lone Star" set. When they played cowboys thereafter, Kim took the part of cattle role and Brod played himself.

The show biz you comes natural to Crawford. He is a third generation showbiz. His mother is the famed comedienne Helen Broderick and his father was a song and dance man. His grandmother and grandfather were opera performers.

Grandma Broderick didn't have much truck with non-actors, however. She saw her daughter in the Broadway hit "As Thousands Cheer" and remarked, "Daughter, you can't sing or dance, you'd better save your money."

Some years later, Crawford was a bit of a Broadway star in "The Sign of the Cross" and his grandmother said the performance, but said nothing about his dramatic abilities.

"You've got a good voice there, Brod," she commented. "You ought to take a singing lesson."

If Grandma Broderick were alive today she would at least be proud of her grandson Brod. He is finally doing a screen musical, and he frankly admits he may put an end to the whole musical cycle. He has five numbers in "Stop Your Killing Me," which is a remake of "A Night Case of Murder."

"The end of a guy who sings pretty good in the shower when he has a few belts in me," he said. "But they've been training me so I can write at least five notes of the tune. I'm a regular Nelson Eddy. If grandma could only see me now!"

Pants Burglar Is Found Guilty In Criminal Court

FORT LAUDERDALE — Alvin Charles Davis, accused of being the notorious "pants burglar" who preyed on tourists along South Florida's Gold Coast, today faced a year in jail or a $500 fine.

A Miami Criminal Court jury convicted Davis in an hour Wednesday on a charge of breaking and entering the Royal Flamingo Villas on Hillboro Beach.

Davis, 45-year-old red-headed, testified he gave 50 per cent of his share to John Trilling, 37, and Andrew Young, 47, both of Milwaukee, to commit the actual theft. All three are awaiting trial. Two are under arrest, one has pleaded guilty and one has been convicted of stealing $11,000 of the Redfield cash from Young.

JAP POLICE GET ARTILLERY

TOKYO — A government official today said the Japanese national police reserve now is equipped with artillery.

State Minister Takao Gotochi said the police reserve is training with handgrenades and that the plan for reconnaissance and liaison will be based from the U. S. Air Force. Japan's postwar Constitution prohibits a Japanese army. However, the police reserve has been trained and equipped as light infantry for defense of the islands. It has few if any police duties.

MICE BARBERS
NEW YORK — There are barber mice who shave other mice — without a squeak in a carload of customers.

So said Dr. Theodora S. Hauschke of the Institute for Cancer Research and Lankenau Hospital Research Institute, Philadelphia, in the Journal of Heredity Wednesday.

Hauschke wrote that the barber rodents give close shaves—but so haircuts—by eating all the whiskers off their companions.

Air-conditioning Makers Report Upturn In Sales

Sweltering Days Are Welcomed As Boon To Infant Industry

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Sweltering days ahead will be welcomed by at least one businessman—the air-conditioning dealer.
His sales were disappointing last year. But the first hot June days, many dealers report, have brought a rush of sales for room coolers.
A real hot summer might make these the first in the entire appliance field to lead the way out of the sales slump.
A steel shortage, however, is already starting to close some appliance plants. And at least one air-condition manufacturer says he may have to close down in July.
Dealers believe, however, that inventories are high enough to take care of demand for coolers through the summer.
Home air-conditioning is just the latest phase of the industry. It started 50 years ago—in a Brooklyn printing plant. For years air-conditioning was confined to industrial plants—still major users. Commercial buildings took it up in the 1920s—theaters, restaurants, and finally stores and office buildings.

And Chicago's convention building has just put in a system, hoping to keep politicians cool next month.

By now air-conditioning has grown into a billion-dollar industry. And if year-round air-conditioners for the home are brought down in cost to the reach of the owner of the lower-priced home, the industry might become a major one.

More than three million tons of air-conditioning capacity is now in use in this country—most of it installed in the last 10 years.

Carrier Corp. says the first practical air-conditioning system was installed in a Brooklyn printing plant by Dr. Willis H. Carrier just 50 years ago next month. It was designed to cut down humidity and make color printing better.

Air-conditioning entered the chemical industry in 1908 when York Corp. supplied refrigeration for a Newark, N. J., plant making a film base for the infant moving picture industry. The system eliminated the white specks early moviegoers used to see.

Since then conditioning has spread through many industries. Air-conditioning is used to control water vapor in textile mills, to get the correct length of a metal mainspring in a watch, to permit accurate measurements in turning out high-precision parts in airplane plants, to protect perishables disabilities are not service-connected, outpatient treatment will be discontinued from that date; but, where VA finds that the disabilities actually are service-connected, outpatient treatment will be continued and the veterans, if sufficiently disabled, will receive VA compensation for the degree of their disabilities.

To be eligible for dental outpatient treatment under these conditions, a post-Korean veteran must file his application within 12 months from the date of his discharge or release from a period of 6 months or more of active service that has been terminated on or after June 27, 1950.

Unless the application is otherwise disproved by VA, it will be approved on the basis of prima facie eligibility for the treatment of dental disabilities shown by examination or other evidence to have existed within a year from the date of discharge or release. However, the replacement of missing teeth will be authorized only as may be necessary for the correction of defects for which service-connection already has been established.

For medical outpatient treatment of all other disabilities except active psychosis, active tuberculosis and multiple sclerosis (a sort of creeping paralysis), the disabilities may be presumed to be service-connected within one year from the veteran's discharge or release from active service on or after June 27, 1950.

For active tuberculosis, the disability may be presumed to be service-connected within three years of the veteran's discharge on or after June 27, 1950 providing he had 90 day of active service.

For active psychosis, the disability may be presumed to be service-connected within two years after June 27, 1950. For multiple sclerosis, the disability may be presumed to be service-connected within two years of the veteran's discharge on or after June 27, 1950 providing he had 90 days of service.

This presumption of service-connection for outpatient care of post-Korea veterans is similar to that granted to World War II veterans after the end of that war.

POLIO INCREASES IN TEXAS
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A spreading scourge of poliomyelitis kept Texas jittery today as the number of cases in the state approached 1,000.

The State Department of Health said that 146 new cases were reported last week. It was a record of incidence for Texas as the week's reports boosted the 1953 total to 917.

Hardest hit was the Houston vicinity (Harris County) where 20 new cases were counted last week. Houston's hospitals are now treating 321 cases.

Servel soon will market a home air-conditioner operating on oil. It has had a gas-powered one on the market for some time. Electrically operated ones are made by other companies.

John A. Gilbreath, assistant vice president of Servel, plugs for his natural gas-fired all-year home air-conditioner as a possible solution to a seasonal peak-and-valley problem that followed the spread of big gas pipelines across the country. House-heating and factory use has made winter the big demand period for natural gas, with summer demand slack.

It's Gilbreath's belief that the gas-fired units he sells could add between 30 and 35 per cent to the load factor of a utility company during the hot months.

He also hopes that within two years the equipment will be economically feasible for $11,000 homes.

Post Korean Vets Face No Delay In Health Treatment

Post-Korea veterans who need outpatient treatment for disabilities that are presumed to have resulted from their service will be provided needed treatment by Veterans Administration until VA can determine whether their disabilities actually are service-connected.

H. F. Dickensheets, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office, released the announcement today with the statement that this procedure is designed to prevent any delay in furnishing outpatient treatment for such veterans.

Under existing regulations, outpatient treatment for most veterans may be given only for service-connected disabilities after VA has determined that the disabilities actually are service-connected and then has authorized the treatment.

The change to permit treatment for presumed service-connected disabilities before final determination has been made applies only to veterans who served in the active U. S. Military or Naval Forces any place in the world on or after June 27, 1950 the start of the Korean hostilities and before a date yet to be set.

These post-Korea veterans also must have been discharged or released from such service under conditions other than dishonorable or have been retired.

One other requirement applies to post-Korea veterans who are retired for disability and are receiving disability retirement pay from the Armed Forces. They must first elect to take their compensation from VA before their disabilities can be presumed to be service-connected for VA outpatient treatment.

Post-Korea veterans who meet these requirements may be provided needed outpatient treatment either for dental or medical disabilities presumed to have been incurred in or aggravated by service. While these treatments are being given, VA will determine if the disabilities actually are service-connected.

Where VA later finds that dis-

Cooperative Is Formed To Run Cattle Ranch

For First Time Little Man Is Given Chance At Ranching

FT. MYERS, (FNS) While there have been many cooperative grove and farm organizations operating in Florida, the first cooperative cattle ranch was announced last week by George F. Davis of Ft. Myers of Seminole Ranch, Inc.

Now for the first time, the "little man" can enter the cattle business on a small investment and benefit along with the big fellow in the profits of this growing industry.

Under the plan, one may purchase as few as five head of heifers. These will be cared for and bred to approved best-producing Ranch Bull, Santa Gertrudis, Red Devon or other high grade stock.

The cost to the owner, including the owner's share of any emergency funds or veterinary care to carry the cattle production, is about $1,000 plus death insurance.

The heifers are bred and cared for at the expense of Seminole Ranch, Inc. The offspring are divided equally by weight, half to the owner or investor and half to the ranch.

The original subscription of $1,000 is used to purchase the heifers which are carefully selected on the open market and to pay the expense of bringing them into production. The only cost to the owner after this initial investment is the taxes on his cattle.

All cattle are branded with the brand of the ranch plus an individual key number of the owner so that an investor may visit the ranch and inspect his cattle at any time he chooses.

Regular reports of their condition and of operations will be made at frequent intervals.

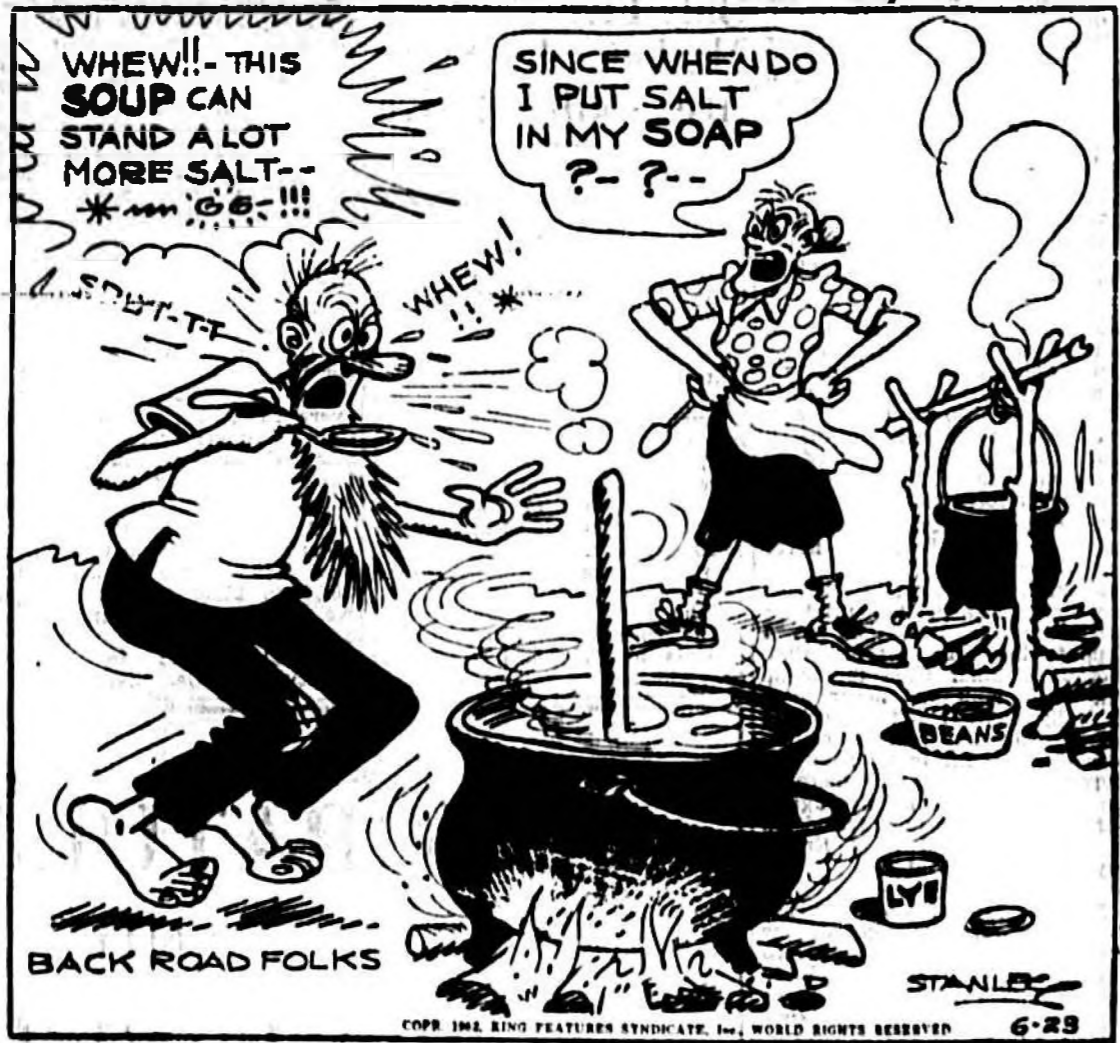

While the minimum number of head called for under the plan is five females, no investor will be allowed to own more than 25 head. Male calves become property of the ranch while females are added to the investor's herd. The estimated average yield of calves should be around 80% or four calves a year. If there were two males and two females, the ranch would retain the males, the investor would increase his herd by two more cows.

Officers and directors of this new cooperative cattle project are:

1,000 Mile An Hour Winds Discovered High Up In Heaven

WASHINGTON — Where does the wind blow 1,000 miles an hour? About 100 miles above the earth, the National Geographic Society reported today, adding this odd bit of information:

If you were up there in the ionosphere, exposed to those winds, you'd find them too weak to blow your hat off.

"The reason," said the society in a report, "is that at such heights there is little atmosphere. In consequence, nothing exists that could buffet the human and tell him he should be around."

Welfare Agencies Getting Appeals In Steel Strike Area

PITTSBURGH — Welfare agencies are getting more and more appeals for assistance as the defense economy is pinched tighter and tighter by the paralyzing strike of 650,000 CIO United Steelworkers.

Nearly 775,000 workers now are idle in the 20th day of the nationwide strike.

Added to the 650,000 strikers are nearly 125,000 workers in allied industries.

General Motors has ordered a layoff of more than 12,000 workers — the first major layoffs in the auto industry attributed to the steel strike. Approximately 2,000 Chevrolet forge plant workers in Detroit were laid off Tuesday night. Ten thousand are being furloughed today and Thursday at GM's big Chevrolet production center at Flint, Mich.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the Mahoning County welfare office has received 250 applications for relief from steelworkers Tuesday.

In Pittsburgh more than 300 men lined up for financial help at one district relief office. Mrs. Elizabeth Hudly, 24-year-old mother of two children, came along with her husband. She told a reporter:

"I can't even buy my two children fresh milk. We had a couple of dollars to get along with when the strike came." Her husband, Norman, declared:

"Our rent for June isn't even paid. That's $41. I don't know what we're going to do."

The steelworkers are not paid strike benefits. They are not eligible for unemployment compensation but relief agencies are permitted to help them on the basis of their need—and if they have no tangible assets. Some steelworkers' locals are providing help for what they classify as hardship cases.

Stephen Foster, who wrote such songs as "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Folks at Home," died homeless and forsaken in a New York hospital charity ward.

He faced a blow with a speed of more than 18 times earthly winds of hurricane force.

The report discussed the tracking of these "ghost" winds by radar. It said Cambridge University scientists found one super-tornado streaking through the skies at 1,100 miles an hour.

Rural Common Sense

FARMERS SHOULD KEEP GRASS IN VEGETATIVE CONDITION IN SUMMER

Florida farmers who would obtain maximum beef production from their pastures during the summer rainy season must keep a sharp eye on their grass and cattle and manage them carefully.

Grass grows rapidly toward maturity during the summer, and it loses nutritive value as it matures.

Dr. George K. Davis of the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Stations brought out this fact not long ago and suggested that farmers make every effort to keep their pastures vegetative and productive.

He told how some cattle that apparently were in abundant feed could do no more than maintain their weight when they should have been making steady gains, and he explained that this was the result of mature grass. In spring, he pointed out, grasses have a protein content of about 10 percent and a fiber content of about 20 percent, but their protein content drops to 4 or 5 percent and their fiber content rises to about 30 percent by the time they mature in late June. Thus, the mature grasses but only contain less protein, but their digestibility is reduced by their increased fiber, making it necessary for cattle to eat more and more of them to get enough nutrients to make gains or just maintain the weight they have gained earlier.

Fertilization will help to keep grass in a growing, vegetative condition. Nitrogen is especially important for vigorous vegetative growth. Fertilization in spring or early summer is not the only measure necessary for keeping grass productive, however. Dr. Davis explained that the grass must be grazed down or mowed. When cattle are rotated from one pasture to another, they can be concentrated in grazing down the grass and then moved to another pasture, and thus the grass will be prevented from maturing and will be kept in good vegetative condition if pastures mature in spite of grazing—when grazing is not heavy enough—it is necessary to mow to keep them vegetative. Some cattlemen have harvested hay and grass seed from mowed pastures and also have noted that such pastures maintained more livestock than unmowed ones. When cut before maturity and cured properly, excess grass makes

English Writer Says U. S. Girls Hold Advantage

Avers Pretty Chicks In England Become "Dowdy Old Hens"

LONDON — A newswoman reported today American school kids "have less appeal than a horned toad"—but the little girls grow into the world's loveliest women.

"Most ugly ducklings in America become swans," reported Tom Downes, New York correspondent of the Evening News. "Pretty chicks in England tend to become dowdy old hens."

Downes set forth his views in reply to Prof. Cyril Edwin Joad, a British philosopher, who denounced American children in a recent essay as pasty-faced, spoiled "little brutes."

Downes said Joad was right as far as he went "but he should have developed his theme beyond childhood." Downes proceeded to do it for him:

"The point I want to make is that age for age, class for class, the women of New York, Chicago and possibly Los Angeles are more attractive in the eye than any women in the world."

"They have nothing to fear regarding the peaches and cream complexion of English girls, the savoir-faire and fashion consciousness of the French, or the vitality of the Italians. They compete on equal terms with all their European sisters."

Downes entered a brief concurring opinion on Joad's distaste for the American lot or trying size "American school kids," Downes said, "are a pain in the neck. Their demands and their self-expression of would prefer to call it exhibitionism are such that the rate of infanticide in the United States is probably higher than any where else in the world."

Teenagers he described as "hidious."

"In their socks, call-length breeches and vulgar shirts and jackets they have less appeal than a horned toad," Downes declared.

But as far as he is concerned all this is forgotten when the little darlings get to be big girls.

Downes asserted that English women, who pride themselves on their carriage, "do not carry them selves any better than the typical who work in Rockefeller Plaza."

Downes said about the only flaw he has found in the American beauty is her voice.

"The accents of girls from Virginia, North Carolina, and some good hay.

Wise cattlemen will endeavor to keep their pastures vegetative, nutritious, and productive by fertilization and by keeping them grazed or mowed down.

Reclamation's Fiftieth Year Finds Great Strides Made
Crops From Irrigated Lands Total $500 Million Yearly

WASHINGTON—Special to Central Press—President Theodore Roosevelt probably never made a greater contribution to his beloved west and its resources than when he picked up his pen in June, 1902, and signed the Reclamation Act setting up a new type of co-operative machinery for the government and people to work together to develop vast stretches of western arid and semi-arid areas by giving them precious water.

The vigorous, outdoor-loving "Teddy" would no doubt be greatly pleased if he could join Michael W. Straus, bureau head, and his fellow workers, in the Reclamation Bureau's golden jubilee celebrations this year and view accomplishments over the intervening half-century.

It is hard to imagine a man who has been carried to nearly 14 million acres from reclamation projects in 17 western states, and that crops produced on that land are valued at half a billion dollars yearly.

The first Roosevelt might be even more surprised to learn that this water, rushing toward man-made canals that carry it to the thirsty land, provide enough hydroelectric energy for the west's new farms, homes, and industries so that power revenues return about $39 million annually to Uncle Sam's treasury.

Sixteen states originally were involved under the Reclamation Act. These were Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, Kansas and Wyoming. Texas and the Territory of Alaska later were added to reclamation operations.

Irrigation was foremost in the minds of reclamation's pioneers. They saw millions of acres in our western states. They saw vast quantities of water rushing to waste in muddy rivers. The big problem was to get some of that water to the thirsty land so it could grow crops for livestock and people.

FIFTY YEARS OF RECLAMATION have brought a revolution in the thinking of those who work with this vital problem of utilizing water from rivers to irrigate land and serve river basin people. Hydroelectric power soon became another objective in harnessing the wild water of our untamed rivers. Towns and industries developed to serve the people who lived on the land made productive by irrigation. These needed vast quantities of water. This need gave rise to new interest in conservation and control of water resources.

Flood control became another major objective. In fact, it was part of the problem of building dams for irrigation and hydroelectric power. Silt became still another problem, necessitating silt-control developments to assure efficient operation of dams and canals.

Creation of large artificial lakes in regions that previously had known only arid sands and streams muddied from uncontrolled erosion led to two other important interests: protection and development of fish and wildlife, and utilization of new recreational opportunities never before enjoyed by the inhabitants. Reclamation's 50 years, in other words, have seen the growth of an entirely new concept of river valley multi-purpose use of precious water.

ABOUT ONE-FOURTH of the west's 25 million acres now under irrigation are served by reclamation projects. Reclamation of the west's arid land has reached about the half-way mark in efforts to carry water to thirsty land.

Hydroelectric potentials of the west, in the opinion of reclamation officials, are about six times greater than those thus far developed. Federal and private water developments, reclamation officials believe, "have enabled the 33.8 million people of our 17 western states to build today's modern, thriving west, which contributes a large share of the food, fiber and material wealth essential to our high standard of living."

They indicate that between 1940 and 1950 the west's population increased 24.9 per cent, compared to 14.3 per cent increase for the rest of the nation.

Reclamation's $2 billion investment in developing the west's water resources is paying off in vast returns every year. A golden jubilee evaluation indicates that Horace Greely's "Go west, young man!" will continue to apply for a long time.

Reclamation's 50th anniversary is being celebrated in a number of ways. A special issue of the Reclamation Bulletin will be published. A golden jubilee dinner will be held in Washington, D. C., on June 25, 1953.

Thousands Travel To Ernie Pyle's New Mexico Home

By HAL BOYLE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—After the man lies down and dies, his house stands and remembers. Sometimes strangers take over the house, and the man who built it is forgotten.

It has been the other way with Ernie Pyle. Thousands of strangers have passed through the small white cottage he built here as a refuge from his wanderings. But the more who come, the more Ernie Pyle is remembered.

Ernie at his death passed out of the stream of the world's news. But he has never lost his peculiar hold on the American heart. In death he still gives a feeling of quiet comfort to those who visit the little spot out of all the world he picked as his anchor against life's disaster.

He has a perfect memorial. His simple white clapboard cottage with the white picket fence around it—surely a tribute to his love of his Indiana upbringing—is now a city library. It has 10,000 books. The garage that Ernie turned into a guest room is about to be converted into a children's reading room.

I think Ernie, who had a lot of trouble but no children to give him the trouble that rewards would like that in his own childhood he didn't have so nice a place to go and read.

Ernie and "that girl"—his wife, Jerry—had slept in 500 hotels in six years and journeyed 250,000 miles when they chose to make aypsy retreat here. One of the reasons was to give a shelter to the books they had gathered.

"We were like trees growing in the sky, without roots," Ernie wrote. "So we decided to acquire a sort of home plate, that we could run to on occasion, and then run away from again."

Why did he choose Albuquerque as his traveler's rest? He gave the answer for settling here: "Our front yard stretches as far as you can see. Mt. Taylor, 65 miles away, is like a framed picture in our front window."

He mentioned also the friendliness here, the vastness, the rabbits that came out every evening, the quail on his lawn every morning, the meadow larks across the unpaved road that said things like "Your face is awfully pretty," and "Here come the preacher."

The rabbits, the quail and the view are partly gone. They paved the street by his house, built new houses across the road that hid the faraway mountain except in winter. But there are children across the way, and Ernie, I am sure, would prefer them to his mountain view.

Most of those who come to his former home today are children, eager for the dreams that books bring. But also some 10,000 adult visitors have come to see the unpretentious home that Ernie built. It has little souvenirs of him—his sun glasses, a Jo Davidson bust of his likeness, the dust goggles he wore in Tunisia.

But for some inexplicable reason the thing that stirs visitors most is the old 10-gallon cowboy hat he wore around the country in the days before the heavy war.

"Most of the visitors are either boys who served overseas with Ernie or the parents of soldiers," said the nice, frazzled-faced librarian, Mrs. Marjorie Flynn.

"But they come from all over the world. And I don't know why. It is the empty hat that affects them emotionally. They see it and start to cry. I never met Ernie in my life, but I feel like I know him."

She said that certain day Pyle family pet, died last fall. It had been cared for by Mrs. Pyle's nurse. Chester's doghouse is still uninhabited in the library yard. I thumbed through Ernie's own small cluster of books in the library, and found a sentence he wrote in London in 1941 that I have never forgotten:

"I could not bear to think that for me there might never, never be another spring."

So far as I know that was the only time Ernie put into print his own desire to live. And as I stepped into the warm Albuquerque summer from the home that Ernie built and never lived to really enjoy I felt—well, I felt I would give half of the unknown part of life that I have left myself for five minutes there in the sunshine with him alive again.

If the Lord ever built friendship in a man, he put it in Ernest Taylor Pyle, dead at 44.

The Library of Congress has acquired a printer's copy of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates and also a letter from Abraham Lincoln to the Chicago Press and Tribune requesting two sets of that newspaper's reports on the debates.

RED DIPLOMATS LEAVE

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The 36-member staff of the Russian embassy sailed for home Wednesday night following a diplomatic squabble which resulted in Venezuela and Russia breaking off diplomatic relations.

The Soviets sailed on the French liner De Grasse, 12 days after the Venezuelans told them they must leave.

They left behind two disgruntled Venezuelan carpenters who had helped them pack. The carpenters complained the Russians refused to pay the bill for their work.

Parents Urged Not To Be Too Quick To Blame Children

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
It's easy enough, in puzzlement or exasperation, to label a youngster "problem child." It's more difficult, but far more rewarding, to look behind his outward behavior for clues to inner disturbance.

Peter Blos, distinguished psychologist, member of the Advisory board of the Child Study Association, and member of the Department of Student Personnel at Brooklyn College in New York City, writing in the National Parent-Teacher Magazine, helps us to read those clues.

Before deciding Junior is a problem child, he cautions, parents would do well to determine first whether he is not a child who has a problem.

"We should find out whether the demands being made on Junior are within his capacity at this stage of his mental, physical and emotional growth," says Blos.

Another child may be troubled not because of goals that are out of reach but because the means taken to attain certain reasonable and practical goals are quite unsuitable.

For example, parents have a right to look after Junior's health by seeing that he gets enough sleep every night. Yet he can become a problem when his parents completely disregard neighborhood standards and insist on his going to bed unusually early. A young boy wants to read and get up with his friends. Yet he has a strong impelling urge to be like everybody else his age. He resents being a baby. This combination of forces, if thwarted, sets up all sorts of disturbances in school and in community.

Emotional growth in children goes up and down. We are disappointed in no way if progress for a time then stands still for a time. We usually slip back now and then. Problems unsolved today will be solved tomorrow.

Parents should be patient and understanding. They should be firm and consistent. They should be fair and just. They should be loving and kind. They should be wise and sensible. Taft Leading Ike In Polls On Popularity

However, General Has Edge In 9 States In Which Both Candidates Were Entered

WASHINGTON (AP)—Latest available figures in a Republican primary vote show Sen. Robert A. Taft polled an aggregate of 2,785,990 votes in 18 states against 2,115,430 for Dwight D. Eisenhower in nine states.

The figures, compiled today by the Associated Press, are complete but unofficial. They cover all states where the voters had an opportunity to express a preference for the presidential nomination either directly or indirectly.

Of the 12 states in which Taft received popular votes, he was named by a majority of delegates in five and received write-in votes in five. Eisenhower was named in Wisconsin or West Virginia and write-ins were not allowed in either state.

Neither did he enter Taft's home state primary in Ohio where there was no direct preference vote. The vote for Taft there—accounting for almost one fourth of his total—was recorded by taking the highest vote delegate-at-large on the Taft slate.

Taft polled 1,110,507 votes in the three states where he was not opposed by Eisenhower.

In the six states where Taft and Eisenhower were on approximately equal terms, either by both names being on the ballot or both receiving write-ins, Eisenhower outran Taft in four (New Hampshire, Minnesota, New Jersey and Wisconsin) and Taft in two (Missouri and New York).

Part of the program a realistic "murder trial" will be staged during their stay there. A number of festivities have also been planned for their entertainment.

BIG THREE
LONDON (AP)—The Big Three foreign ministers agreed tonight to meet with Russia on the question of the unification of Germany.

The four ministers reported seeking a way to make the Soviet show its true hand—in the Russian down on whether they are sincere in demanding a four to have a unified Germany.

There is a strong feeling among Western diplomats that the Russians merely want to stall for time, trying to upset the Western schedule for the remaining of Germany.

Casares was expected to take over as Florida quarterback replacing Hayward Sullivan on the Gator soccer.

1st Haven For Pensioners Is Set For State

AFL Union Announces Plan To Establish Neighborhood Village Plan At Once

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The first haven for industrial pensioners under Florida's Neighborhood Village Plan may be established before the end of the year.

Sal H. Hoffmann, Philadelphia president of the 55,000-member Upholsters' International Union (AFL), announced the project today at a conference here with Gov. Fuller Warren, Director Walter Keyes of the State Improvement Commission, and John Morris, Miami Airlines executive and chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Retirement.

Hoffmann said the union will embark upon its 500-unit, 1 1/2 million dollar neighborhood village project as soon as a suitable site has been selected. He and other union officers have just completed a week-long swing of the state with Keyes inspecting possible sites.

"Whether it will be on the East Coast, the Gulf Coast or in the Central Lakes region will depend upon the availability and cost of the land. We will need up to 2,500 acres to permit room for expansion," he said.

The Neighborhood Village Plan is a project of the Retirement Research Division of the Improvement Commission calls for self-sustained villages of individual housing units.

Hoffmann said his union, whose members are under an employer-financed, industry-wide pension plan, has been contemplating some sort of haven for its pensioners for some time.

Hoffmann told Gov. Warren whose term expires in January "We expect to have construction started in time for you to come down and dedicate our village before you leave office."

The union will finance the entire cost of constructing the pensioner village from funds already available in its treasury, he said. Use of the neighborhood village will be limited to union members.

But the cool air which earlier moved across the Canadian border into the Northern Plains pushed southward Thursday and into parts of Indiana, Illinois and Ohio temperatures, in the 90s for three days, dropped as much as 20 degrees.

There also was some cooling in parts of New England and Eastern New York State.

The hot and humid belt extended from Southern and Western New England southward along the Atlantic Coast and westward to the lower Great Lakes region, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys, the Central Plains states and over the Gulf states.

A storm swept into New England from Canada Thursday night and within minutes temperatures tumbled as much as 20 degrees from (Continued on Page 3)

Kentucky Inmates Mutiny Again But Without Injuries

EDMUNDSVILLE, Ky.—The 300 inmates within 24 hours broke out of the State Prison today but guards restored order within a half hour.

Warren Jess Barham reported that the inmates had broken out with Thursday's rebellion in which eight prisoners were wounded by gunfire and a guard was injured.

Approximately 300 inmates are today in the State Prison, but guards and military troops are on hand to handle any further outbreaks.

When police officers converged on the house Kaufman peeked up his young child and forced Merritt to carry Merritt's 2-year-old son. As they reached the front porch they didn't let him through. He used his child as a shield.

The two men and their son got into Merritt's car and Merritt was forced to drive away slowly. The police cars followed, and slowly the grim procession continued for eight miles to Kaufman's home in Edinburg.

Kaufman and Merritt and their sons entered the house. Four gas bombs were hurled through the windows after Kaufman refused to surrender. He threw several of the bombs back out. One set the house on fire.

It Is Warm Here, But Warmer Elsewhere

Sanford business continued yesterday as usual despite the somewhat warm June weather, and Postmaster Joel Field was interested to learn that up in Washington, D. C., the Post Office was closed at 3:00 p. m. in the heat.

This bit of information came from H. G. Lassner, district photographic supply salesman, who was informed of the fact in a long distance telephone conversation by a friend in Washington.

The temperature in the Capital was reported at over 100.

Heat prostrated northerners might be interested to learn that in Sanford last night a hot open air square dance was held at the Mayfair Inn Tennis Courts, a game of softball was in progress between two girls teams at the lakefront park, and the Red Cross and Sportman's Association held meetings.

Maximum temperatures here yesterday was 97 degrees, according to E. J. Moughton, Jr., weatherman. The minimum was 89. A shower at 3:00 o'clock this morning was measured at .63 inch.

Russell And Eisenhower Favored In Sanford Survey; Truman Sinks

Aircraft Worker Killed In Pistol Fight With Cops

SANFORD'S citizens are almost unanimous in their opposition to the Truman administration, a survey conducted by the Herald indicated this week. Not a single person interviewed offered the incumbent of the White House as his choice for Democratic stand-off in the November election.

Senators Russell of Georgia and Eisenhower of Missouri, who were favored by the majority of respondents in a nominally Democratic town for the Republican Eisenhower as next in line for the city's favor.

Senator Russell was the only Democrat to receive any very widespread support from the cross-section of opinion surveyed by the Herald. A single supporter for Kefauver of Tennessee and one other for Governor Steven F. Kinross were discovered.

His 2-Year-Old Child, Held As Hostage, Is Wounded In Firing

SANTA ANA, Calif.—An air-craft worker was shot and killed, and his 2-year-old son was critically wounded Wednesday night during a conflict with police who had forced him from his barricaded home with four gas bombs.

Officers said that the dead man, Gary F. Kaufman, 30, had taken as hostages his own baby, Gary Jr., and two other persons.

Police pried together this account of what happened.

Kaufman and his wife are separated. She recently moved from their home in nearby Costa Mesa to San Francisco.

Merrett heard taking Gary Jr. with her.

Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. Merritt lived in their yard. Kaufman approached them, demanding to see his wife. As the Merritts entered their house, he fired a pistol, wounding Mrs. Merritt in the arm.

Time Running Out As Congress Works On Controls Bill

Next Monday Is Deadline For Passage Which Will Satisfy Both House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress wrote the McCarran-Walter immigration bill into law today over President Truman's veto. Mr. Truman called the bill infamous.

Mr. Truman vetoed the bill Wednesday, a companion bill sponsored by Sen. McCarran, D-Nev. and Rep. Walter D. Pae, R-Iowa, and codified all existing U. S. laws on immigration and naturalization.

The president said he was in favor of some of its provisions, but said its flaws outweighed its good points. He said that to him the bill smacked of thoughtless control.

The Senate overrode the veto by 57 to 28. This was five votes more than the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto.

New Air Strikes Heap Damage On Korean Plants

Targets Include Two Electric Stations Previously Spared

BY STAN CARTER
SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Allied fighter bombers heaped new destruction on Communist hydroelectric plants in North Korea Thursday night. Targets included two big generating stations which previously had been spared.

The Air Force said an American Saturn jet shot down one Communist MIG 15 jet today high over North Korea. The kill was credited to Capt. John B. Spaulding, Downers Grove, Ill. Other Allied planes scored similar victories on the front-line positions and supply areas.

U. N. infantrymen drove two Chinese battalions off two hills on the western front Thursday, all times using bayonets and flame-throwers to root the Reds from their bunkers.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman called the air plane raid on the Communist North Korean power network a mopping up operation but the number of planes involved and damage reported by returning pilots were impressive.

Two power plants at Changin (Chusin) were hit for the first time. Other Air Force and Marine light or medium bombers dumped bombs and rockets on a third Changin generating station and one at Luwen which already had been smashed in raids Monday and Tuesday.

The planes struck just at sundown. Pilots said a switchyard was destroyed and the power house damaged at Changin Plant No. 1. The powerhouse and switchyard were damaged and an adjacent building was destroyed at Changin Plant No. 2.

Additional damage also was reported (Continued on Page Three)

Redesignation Sought For St. Johns Trial

SENATOR Lloyd F. Boyle will represent Sanford and Seminole County in a delegation appearing before the State Highway Commission in Tallahassee Tuesday and will ask the board to designate St. John's River Trail as U. S. Highway 301 East, Chamber of Commerce announced today.

Senator Boyle will not act in the request of resolutions previously passed by the Seminole County Commission and the board of directors of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

The delegation of which he will be a member will consist of representatives of cities and counties along the St. John's River Trail and will be headed by Ed Kinney of Orlando, director of the Roads and Bridges Department of the Orange County Chamber of Commerce.

About 500 persons were present Friday night at the Sanford Farmers Auction, Inc., said Mr. Davidson, and a large attendance is expected tonight. Last week there was a brisk sale of tomatoes, cucumbers, cantaloupes, water melons, oranges and grapefruit, and about six kinds of meat, he stated.
