Bank robber still at large

LONGWOOD - A bank robber who used a blank check as notepaper for his stick up note on Wednesday, apparently stole that check as well.

"It was a stolen check," Capt. Terry Baker, Longwood's assistant police chief, said this morning. "We checked it out and it was not

Baker said the investigation is still continuing and that police still have several avenues which they are pursuing.

"There were prints left all over the place and we're working with the FBI on those," Baker

According to Baker, the bank robber left finger prints on the note, on the counter where he was standing and on a pair of sunglasses that he apparently dropped as he left the bank.

The suspect is described as a white male, 25 to 30 years old with blond hair. He is approximately 5'8" to 5'10" tall.

He was last seen wearing jeans, a denim jacket, a light t-shirt and a dark baseball cap. First Union Bank officials will not disclose the amount of money taken in the robbery, but police indicated that much of it was in the form

Police do not know what kind of vehicle the robber used to make his escape from the bank.

Charges in collision

SANFORD - A Sanford man involved in a wreck with a train Thursday has been issued a traffic citation on a charge of failuire to obey a ratiroad crossing signal.

A Florida Highway Patrol trooper entered the charge against Richard Armstrong, 21, 92 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, following the 9:30 a.m. accident. Troopers say Armstrong drove around the crossing gate at the railroad crossing at 18th Street and Southwest Road in an effort to pass through the crossing before the train

He didn't make it. The train which was moving at 35 to 40 m.p.h. struck the left front quarter of the car, hurling through the crossing and into a train signal pole, knocking it down. The pole crushed the left passenger door, but the driver's door of the car was untouched.

Armstrong was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises and later released, said hospital spokesman Susan Prather.

Chamber hosts banquet

LAKE MARY - The Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce will hold the chamber's annual awards banquet Tuesday.

Highlight of the gathering will be the paying of tribute to this year's recipients for Chamber Business of the Year. Volunteer of the Year. Chamber Member of the Year. Teacher of the Year, and Student of the Year.

Entertainment for the event will be provided by the comedy team of Hall-N-Brant, popular in the midwest and east coast comedy circuit.

Due to limited seating, advance reservations are required, and must be received by no later than Friday, March 5.

Tickets are $35 per person or $70 per couple. In addition to chamber members, the general public is also invited to attend the event designed to honor individuals in the Lake Mary/Heathrow community.

For further information or advance reservations, contact the chamber office at 3821 Lake Emma Road, Lake Mary, or phone 333-4748.

Board: Sanford cop chief needs degree; Chairman: It's politics

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Although an official board upheld the requirement that Sanford's police chief must have a college degree, the head of that board claims the decision has been an ongoing political problem.

"This request for a change in the police chief requirements isn't anything new. Many years ago, when the city wanted to hire Ben Butler as chief, they eliminated the requirement for a lour year degree," said Dr. John F. Darby, chairman of the Civil Service Board, who has served on that board since "This has always been a political problem," Darby said. "When they hired Steve Harriett, the requirement came back into existence. Now, they want to change it back again.'

After a lengthy discussion of the matter last night, the Civil Service Board voted unanimously against lowering the qualifications.

"We just didn't feel the requirements should be lowered," Darby said. "If anything, they should be

Although the Civil Service Board members upheld the requirement, they left the door open for a possible change by the city.

Darby added, "We did provide some flexibility that would leave it open for a change. It would be up to the elty commission to temporarily hire (Acting Chief) Russell if they so desired."

MIAMI - A plasterer who talked up his sleeve to a hidden recorder during a license test is accused of cheating to gain a better position in the highly competitive market for Hurricane Andrew repair business.

A state agent acting on a tip posed as a test-taker Wednesday while about 1,000 applicants for a state contractor's license took the nine-hour written exam in a hotel ballroom. Joseph Wilson of the state Department of Professional Regulation said he watched for three hours while Salvador Rodriguez of Lake Worth whispered into his sleeve while reading questions from the test. Four Metro-Dade police officers entered the room during the test and arrested Rodriguez. Once outside, the officers searched Rodriguez and found a tiny microphone strapped underneath his watchband and a cord running up his sleeve to a compact tape recorder in his pocket. The arrest triggered comments of "right on," "way to go" and shock among others in the ballroom, Bill Cates of DPR's investigative office said Thursday.

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court says prosecutors cannot wait until after defendants enter guilty or no contest pleas to serve notice they intend to have them classified as habitual offenders and given longer sentences.

Desecration is a crime

Reports of vandalism and grave robberies are increasing at Sanford area cemeteries. The situation is sickening as well as sadden-

Law enforcement officials believe most of the desecration is being done by teenagers. A 16-year old Seminole High School student is among those who have been arrested and charged with removing body parts from a grave. But officers say he is not the only person causing the problem.

We have reached a sorry state in our society if grave robbery has evolved into a form of entertainment. Is there nothing of worthwhile value or creativity for today's teens?

People breaking open vaults and caskets are apparently out for a thrill. They probably have the misdirected opinion that possession of a human skull or bones makes them important; a big man among their peers.

For whatever reason, grave desecration is a

People do not consider the harm and grief they are creating for others.

Family members of the deceased suffer greatly from knowing the last resting place of a mother, father or other relative has been destroyed, with body parts often removed to become souvenirs.

Many also suffer financial losses, connected with having to pay for a burial site restoration after it has been damaged.

Whether it will take law enforcement stake-outs, increased patrols, or cemetery guards, we urge a large scale crack-down on grave vandalism. Citizens should call for severe punishments for those convicted, and the publication of the grave robbers' names.

If certain people believe causing damage to graves and sorrow to people is a show of importance, we should oblige them.

Let's help them discover exactly how important being a grave robber will make them - in the juvenile detention center or John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Could Sanford be heading for metro police protection?

Here is an opinion I wrote in reference to Mr. Barfield's article entitled "Sheriff Pledges Aid in Crime Fight."

After reading this story, I must confess that I felt a growing sense of apprehension about it. Although I realize that a certain amount of mutual support and help has existed between the two agencies for years. I'm just curious as to why it has been brought up at this time. Granted, the Sanford Police Department needs more manpower and equipment, and it's always nice to get it from whatever quarter that is offered. But, autonomy between the two departments must remain as it is.

I don't believe that the citizenry wants outside agencies to start running the show in Sanford's Police Department, nor its politics. That's not to say that this is in fact what is happening. I believe the people who live within the city wish to solve our problems ourselves, which I firmly believe we can do, provided the right people are in power. Folks, we just don't need to start being led down the garden path towards a metropolitan law enforcement agency. Let me reiterate that I have no problem, or see any problem in the two agencies helping each other, but, that is as far as it should go.

I've heard from a number of local residents concerning their fears of the city going metro with the county. I tried to reassure them that this is highly unlikely, and I really gave it little thought until an FHP friend brought it up in a conversation we were having. Then I heard both a police officer and a deputy mention it in passing. Now whether these people knew what they were talking about I can't say for sure for I didn't follow up on it. But when I read the story in the paper, I got an intuitive feeling that as Sherlock Holmes would indicate "something was afoot." An idea of a metropolitan police department has been bandled around for at least 25 years that I'm personally aware of, and nothing has ever come of it. Hopefully nothing ever will.

We don't need to get involved in the counties problems, and we shouldn't want them to be messing with ours. Personally, I smell politics all over this.

As far as I've been able to see, few people agree as to whether polities is a profession or a game. I believe it's a game in play professionally. Whatever it may be, professionally to be redeminating force that so-called civilzed men and women is establish authority and power, supposedly for the good of the people.

For 4 years, Clinton's best we've got

President Clinton's State of the Union address was an outstanding exercise in statesmanship. and nothing I read in the editorials of those gracious allies of the Republican Party, The Wall Street Journal and The Washington Times, will shake that conviction.

By the same token, nothing I write in this column will alter the convictions of many (and not just Republicans and Conservatives) that Clinton's address was, in John Foster Dulles' words, "a massive exercise in futility."

The initial reaction of the public, however, was positive. According to a USA Today/CNN/Gallup poll, 79 percent of the viewers of Clinton's address supported his plan. But that was before the consequently columnists promites political the conservative columnists, pundits, political spin doctors and radio squawk-show hosts had s chance to swarm all over the public with their odious brands of omphalo-contemplation. Give us a break!

Boil this extremely critical issue and historic debate down to three indisputable facts of life:

(I) The continuing national dialogue over the merits and fairness of Clinton's economic package will be heavily influenced, if not solely determined, by politically partisan and ideological considerations. (Does anybody dis-

(3) The Congress and the American people must contain and severely limit the power of the fifth branch of govern-ment — lobbyists, political action groups and "special interests groups" - all of whom selfishly place their individual interests above the common good. Clinton's proposed campaign reform is a strong first step. But America's biggest problem is its lack of responsible party government. We have an outmoded system of checks and balances that miraculously staggers forward. like a benign drunk, to accomplish good and great things. In every other democracy in the world, the party that wins the most votes has a majority of seats in the legislature and chooses the chief executive. George Bush, for example, should have had a Republican Congress to make him and his party responsible for their decisions. But even responsible party government can't make a siik purse out of a sow's car.

Like it or not, Bill Clinton's economic package is bold, brilliant and, paradoxically, benevolent, because its primary purpose is to bring relief to the American people. It is an exercise in executive compassion.

First National Bank of Chicago's chief economist. James Annable, summed it up as "heroic" because "a first-term president is doing something you might not even expect a second-term president would do.

"I don't even know how to respond to it," he added, "because it hasn't happened before."

ROBERT WAGMAN

What, when did Clinton know?

WASHINGTON - Listen closely when a politician chooses his words with great precision: It usually means he has something to hide. So it is with President Clinton as he tries to explain why he is now proposing a middle-class tax increase after promising not

Constantly during the presidential campaign, Clinton made the same promise. "I will not raise taxes on the middle class," he said. "If I can't get the money I need elsewhere for my programs, I will postpone or cut them."

But his newly unveiled economic program features a large tax increase that will affect all taxpayers down to the $30,000-a-year level. No matter how you define "middle class" this tax increase clearly dips deep into the group.

In the nationally televised Oval Office speech that preceded the address, Clinton said: "I've worked harder than I've ever worked in my life to meet that goal (no middle-class tax increases). But I can't - because the deficit has increased so much beyond my earlier estimates and beyond even the worst official government estimates from last year."

The critical phrase is "official government estimates." Clinton now says he has been forced to abandon his middle-class tax pledge because the deficit is much worse than the official numbers from the Bush administration.

The Clinton White House says that the Office of Management and Budget, under Bush administration chief Richard Darman, cooked the books. This much seems to be an objective and true statement. Over an 18-month period. starting in January 1992, OMB produced a series of out-year deficit projections that were greeted with knowing grins all over town.

However, as with any debate over the federal budget, this is a complex matter. First some background:

When the government makes budget and deficit estimates for the future, say five fiscal years ahead — called "out years" — much guesswork takes place. How much tax money the government takes in will depend on the general condition of the economy. The more robust the economy, the more tax revenue. The more tax revenues, the more government will have to spend or use for deficit reduction. Likewise, rates of inflation must be forecast, because increases in mandatory spending in many federal programs are tied to inflation

Thus, when the government comes out with deficit projections for the five years ahead, it actually releases three forecasts: one based on the most optimistic assumptions, one based on the most pessimistic and one somewhere in between.

The fiscal year everyone is concentrating on is 1997, which actually begins in October 1996. In January 1992, OMB predicted a flacal '97 deficit of $181.6 billion. By July '92, they had upped that estimate to $236.7 billion. In January, just after the election, the final Darman projection for fiscal '97 was a $305 billion shortfall.

Now the Clinton administration, using what it calls "conservative" - read, most pessimistic — figures from the Congressional Budget Office (Clinton says he is using CBO figures until his new team can get a firm hold on the OMB forecasting operation) is forecasting a '97 deficit of $346 billion if no changes are made. So, says the president, if the '97 deficit will actually be $100 billion worse than OMB was forecasting during the election, his promises based on the old numbers just won't work.

The problem with this, say critics, is that while Darman's deficit numbers were phony - or, to be charitable, wildly optimistic everyone in town knew they were. No one

It usually means believed them, least of all the economists who advised the Clinton campaign. During the campaign, candidate Clinton usually referred to the deficit projection then coming out of the CBO, because those estimates were always much higher than OMB's. The CBO projections for fiscal '97 eventually rose to $319 billion — much higher than the OMB figures Clinton now says he was

Many independent economists say that sometime around last August - well before the fall campaign even kicked off - it was crystal clear that even the CBO's more pessimistic projections were probably way too low. It is believed that private estimates Clinton received from his personal advisers put the real deficit projection in the $350 billion range, or

Clinton insists this is not true. His top economic advisers say it was not until after the first of the year that they began to get "solid indicators" that the out-year deficits were akyrocketing.

How this debate plays out may spell the success or failure for Clinton's economic package - and for his presidency.

Packwood affects U.S. vintners

WASHINGTON - The talk at this year's 'American Wine Appreciation Week" smacks of sour grapes.

The wine industry associations that organized this week's promotion of domestic wine are bemoaning their bad political luck. Just when they need a friend on the Senate Finance Committee to protect them from a slew of "sin taxes" that the Clinton administration is expected to slap on liquor and cigarettes to pay for a new health-care system, their chief Senate ally has been hampered by a potentially careerending scandal.

Packwood, R.Ore., the ranking member of the Finance Committee, has been reeling since the Washington Post published allegations of sexual harass. ment. Initially. Packwood conceded that alcohol may have played a role in his behavior, and spent five days in an alcohol treatment center shortly after Packwood co-sponsored a oint resolution in Congress creating wine appreciation week. the story broke in November.

Last October, ironically, Packwood cosponsored a joint resolution in Congress creating wine appreciation week. And this week he served as an honorary co-host of a wine-tasting reception that featured wines grown in more than 35 states. Packwood agreed to lend his endorsement to the event by agreeing to be a co-host within the last month, but declined to personally attend by citing a previous commitment. planned this week's festivities, industry officials were faced with a 100-proof dilemma. No one wanted to see Packwood slighted. But if he showed up this week at a wine-tasting reception - particularly one held at The National Museum of Women in the Arts in Washington, D.C. - the sneering and snickers would have eclipsed the evening.

"We clearly didn't want him to think we were abandoning him during his times of trouble by leaving him off the list of our long-term supporters that we asked to co-host the event." one key reception organizer told us. "We regret his difficulties but we appreciate all the work he's done for us over Bob Kalik, head of the American Vintners Association, is one of many industry executives deeply pained by Packwood's problems. Kalik said: "The wine industry in Oregon is one of the bigger ones in the country and he's (Packwood) been a longtime supporter of the industry. He does have some personal problems right now. We recognize those are personal problems and it would be premature for us to pass judgment on him.

As a "longtime supporter," Packwood has protected the pocketbook of the Oregon winc industry from his perch on Senate Finance. His finest hour may have come during the celebrated budget summit in 1990 at Andrews Air Force Base, from which emerged a proposed like in the federal tax on wine from 17 cents to $1.07 per gallon. When Packwood heard that the tax would decimate Oregon's amail wineries, he sprung to the rescue.

During the summit Packwood communicated by telephone with Bill Nelson, executive director of the Oregon Winegrowers' Association. Packwood and Nelson crafted an amendment to the budget deal that provided a 90-cent exemption from the new tax to wineries that produced less than 100,000 gallons per year, which included all but one of the state's 100 wineries.

"I didn't think that he would (co-sponsor the event) but I'm glad that he did because it's courageous," said Nelson. "He doesn't have anything to gain from it. It shows that he is going to remain consistent and honorable to the causes that he has supported over the course of his career."

Polyester makes political comeback at fashion show

WASHINGTON - As a theme song at a polyester fashion show. "Accentuate the Positive" seemed just right.

Forever linked with the leisure suits of the no-iron '70s, the double-knit fabrie doesn't exactly command, well ... respect. So manufacturers are trying for a polyester comeback. wrapping new, improved versions of the stuff around the wives of members of Congress.

So as Dr. John crooned the tune, Tricia Lott, wife of Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., swept down the runway in a cream-colored suit of linen and polyester designed by Harve Benard.

Priscilla Mack, wife of Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., modeled a blindingly bright fuchsia tunic dress with black and white striped alceves, designed by Carolina Herrera in polyester gabardine.

More than a dozen congressional wives were draped in synthetics on Thursday at the Congressional Club event sponsored by the Polyester Council of America.

The idea behind "Polyester: Politically Correct" was to show that the synthetic fabric has come a long way. It's thin now, drapes nicely and comes in a

But some tribute was paid to the past in the white bell-bottom pantsuit worn by Carrie Hamburg, wife of freshman Rep. Dan Hamburg, D-Calif.

Polyester boosters touted the fabric's durability - its re-sistance to wrinkles and throw-in-the-washing-machine ease of care. They spoke of the miracle of polyester microfiber, which creates a much thinner material that looks a lot like silk. Sharon Archer, wife of Rep.

Clinton may tax tobacco to fund health reform

By RON FOURNIER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Clinton says he hopes to avoid raising taxes on middle-income families to reform the health care system, but he may make an exception for tobacco and other products that pose health

"I think health-related taxes are different," Clinton said Thursday.

He discussed health-insurance fluancing at a news conference at which 24 business and labor leaders endorsed his economic program and as Republicans stepped up their attack on his economic package.

Today he broadens his focus with a speech on global economies at American University.

In recent days, Clinton has renewed his commitment to protect U.S. companies against what he views as unfair European subsidies. After meeting with British Prime Minister John Major on Wednesday, Clinton said he hoped to dislodge stalled efforts for new world trading

But the domestic economy will still dominate his time.

White House and congressional sources say the administration is signaling that it would not object it lawmakers targeted the atom-smashing superconducting super collider for spending cuts.

The president himself said Thursday that he supports both programs. Yet he acknowledged that others will disagree and that "they can be debated on the floor of Congress.

Clinton plans today or Saturday to meet again with top health care advisers, including his wife. Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Aides said it was too early to predict how he will finance coverage for uninsured Americans, which could cost $30 billion to $90 billion a year.

Among the dozens of options are regulating insurance rates. taxing insurance companies. broad-based taxes on consumers, taxing hospitals and surcharges on insurance.

The Los Angeles Times reported in Thursday's editions that Clinton's health care task force no longer was considering taxing workers' health benefits because Mrs. Clinton, the group's leader, saw it as political Clinton sidestepped the issue. 'I haven't picked any tax up, so how could I drop it? You can't drop something if you didn't pick it up," he said. "If I pick something, I'll tell you."

A senior administration official said of the proposal to tax benefits: "It's alling, but there still has not been a complete. presentation to the president.

Clinton indicated his administration would look beyond the tax increases proposed for his economic program to finance. his health-insurance program.

"I think that we are spending a ton of money in private insurance and in government tax payments to deal with the health care problems occasioned by bad health habits, and particularly smoking, which is costing us a lot of money." Clinton

While Clinton sqeetfically mentioned only eigarettes, aides said higher taxes on other tobacco products and on alcoholic beverages also were being considered;

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that doubling the 24-cent-a-pack tax on eigarettes would bring in $18 billion over five years and doubling the tax on alcohol about $23 billion over five years.

Treating employer-provided health insurance as taxable income could raise $100 billion or more over the same period.

Solid growth is seen for economy this year

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - After a late-year surge in 1992, the economy should settle down to a pattern of solid, if unspectacular, growth this year, economists American consumers opened their pocketbooks over the holidays, partly because of pent-up demand and partly because they were heartened by the prospect of change under President Clinton, according to economists. In a report today, the Commerce Department is updating power and home sales. And its estimate of the gross domestic product — the sum of all goods and services produced in the United States - during the October-December quarter.

In advance analysis expect growth at a robust annual rate between 4.5 percent and 5 percent, up from an initial estimate last month of 3.8 percent. If realized, the stronger growth would be the best in five

"It could be a ridiculously strong quarter but it's not really representative of the underlying trend." said Norman Robertson. a private economist based in Pittsburgh.

But, he said a number of factors should moderate the growth during the first half of this year. Among them: a contunning recession in California, continued layoffs by some companies, reduction of lederal detense spending and weak commercial real estate markets.

"The economy is still struggl ing against some of these structural obstacles. Progress is being made but it's going to be slow. I don't think you're going to see a strong ebulhent economic performance anytime soon. Roberrison sand to say we are moving forward in a self-perpetuating recovery." They say the economy has some things going for it, most notably low inflation and declining long-term interest rates. that should keep the nation from relapsing into recession.

'We should have a comfortable pace of growth in the first half" of 1993, said economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago, "We're having another wave of mortgage refinancing and that jazzes up consumers' purchasing when people buy houses, they buy other things to put into the

He and other analysis are predicting growth of just over 3 percent this year and a bit better in 1994.

The biggest unknown in the economic outlook is how many changes Congress will make in President Clinton's economic and budget package and the precise effect of the package.

The package is being sold as a stumulus plan this year and a deficit-reduction plan in years after that. But economists expect the economy to get little or no added growth from the plan this year because some of the tax increases the president proposes would take effect retroactively to Jan. 1. offsetting his proposed stimulus spending.

"I think the macroeconomic effect is going to be very small just a mild boost After this year, the Clinton plan is negative for growth," Robertson said.

But Greensplin pointed out this week that even though reduced government spending is initially a drag on economic growth, it could have important positive spinotis. The most notable would be lower longtaxpayers will be disappointed term interest rates, including with the size of their tax relunds mortgage rates, as the government's borrowing needs decline.

Arrow Force One tops Palm Coast

By DEAN SMITH

Herald Sports Writer

NEW SMYRNA BEACH - Nothing was going to beat the Seminole High School boys' basketball team in the opening round of the Class 3A-District V Tournament Thursday night.

Not Flagler-Palm Coast, not a late-arriving official that forced a half-hour delay in the start. not double overtime.

Not even themselves. Junior Deon Daniels natled an 18-foot baseline jumper with 0:17 left in the second overtime as Arrow Force One overcame an uncharacteristic 23 turnovers and upset the No. 4 seeded Bulldogs, 76-75, at The Tank on the campus of New Smyrna Beach High School.

The win advances Seminole into tonight's semifinals against No. 1 seed Orlando-Edgewater at 5:30 p.m. In the other game, No. 2 seeded Daytona Beach-Seabreeze will play No. 3-seed Jones at 7 p.m.

"I told the guys all week that they were going to be more nervous for this game than any other," said Seminole first year head coach Bob Traina, "And they wouldn't really know why. But the finality of district play does that to you; if you lose, it's over. And we definitely played tight tonight."

After controlling the lead for most of the game, It appeared Seminole was going to go down to defeat as it fell behind by seven points, 61-54. with just 0:42 left in regulation.

But Eric Roberts hit the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity and freshman Reggie Holloway grabbed the rebound on the miss and made the layup to close the gap to four, 61-57.

WEST ORANGE - Jeremy Chunat sure makes things easy for his teammates on the Seminole High School baseball team.

Chunat, the ace left-hander of the defending Class 3A state champion Seminoles, won his second start of the season Wednesday night as Seminole topped Lake Mary 6-1 in the semifinals of the West Orange Invitational.

Seminole (4-0) will play host West Orange in Saturday's championship game at 4 p.m. Lake Mary (4-2) faces Oak Ridge at 1 p.m. Saturday for third place.

Against Lake Mary, Chunat gave up his first run of the season while striking out nine, walking one, and allowing five hits. So far this season, Chunat has allowed one run in 14 innings on seven hits. He has struck out 21 and walked one.

It's a good thing, too, because the Seminoles' hitting isn't quite where Coach Mike Powers thinks it should be. Only three of Seminole's runs against Lake Mary were earned and the Tribe had just two hits in the process (five for the game).

'We just scored with mistakes and rough pitching," said Powers. "We only had five hits. We're not really hitting the ball. We're getting good, solid defense and good, solid pitching."

Seminole reached Lake Mary starter Chad Kessler for three unearned runs in the fourth inning. David Eckstein led off with a bunt single. Matt Deimer then reached on an error by the right fielder. After

Franklin, SCC trim Valencia

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO - So much for first appearances.

After the first five batters of Thursday's Mid-Florida Conference baseball game, the homestanding Valencia Community College Matadors probably thought they were going to have an easy time with Seminole Community College ace pitcher Robert Franklin. The only thing the Matadors didn't know is that Franklin gets better as the game goes along.

The big righthander from Pennsylvania gave up three hits, including a home run, to the first five batters who came to the plate. But after that, Franklin retired 21 of the next 22 men he faced, including 18 in a row, before Valencia's Dan McDonald hit his second home run of the game in the ninth inning as the Raiders won their first MFC game of the season, 7-2.

SCC improved to 7-5 overall and 1-2 in the conference, while Valencia fell to 5-8 and 1-4. The Raiders will start at two-game homestand today with a non-conference contest with Brevard starting at 3 p.m. at Raider Field. Saturday, Lake City will visit Sanford for a 2:30 p.m. MFC game.

Franklin (5-1) did not have a strike out through the first three innings, but then settled down to strike out 11 Matadors, two in every inning except the eighth. The sophomore has now struck out 52 batters in his six appearances this season, including 26 in 18 innings of

After being held to only two hits, SCC finally broke through against Valencia starter Brian Seutero, who prepped at Lake Howell, in the fifth inning. Sanford's See Raiders, Page 2B

Evans survives Seminole challenge

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Seminole High School's boys' tennis team gave its strongest performance of the season Thursday, dropping a 4-3 match to the Evans Trojans at the Lake Forest courts.

After a rough start, Seminole Community College's Rob

Franklin settled down and led the Raiders to a 7-2 win over Valencia Community College Thursday afternoon.

Evans' girls swept their match with the Tribe. Oscar Canonizado and Darren Mazur won their singles matches for Seminole, Canonizado beating Dan McClelland 8-6 at No. 1 singles while Mazur ripped Kris doubled to beat McClelland and Nguyen 9-7. For Evans (1-3), Mike Wilding bested Edwards 8-6 at

No. 2 singles. At No. 4, Do beat Trung Vong 8-1. Nguyen won his match at No. 5 over Brian Alexander 8-4. Wilding and Do defeated Mazur and Vong 8-3 in the No. 2 doubles match. The Evans girls (1-3) lost just eight games in the seven pro-set matches, winning three 8-0.

Registering the shutouts for Evans were Linda Dinh (over Joanna King at No. 3 singles). Tramy Trahn (over Anita White at No. 4), and Roscanne Watson (over Kelly Ballingall at No. 5).

Matt Freeman advanced the runners with a bunt, Chunat was intentionally walked to load the bases. Tony Duncan grounded into a fielder's choice but the ball was dropped at second, allowing Eckstein to score and leaving the bases load. Cory Gochee's ground ball also was misplayed, Delmer scoring on the play. John Lugering then singled to left to plate Chunat. Lake Mary scored the first run of the season against Chunat in the top of the sixth. With one out. Scott Johnston singled to right and stole second. An out later, Chris Kleibl nit a ball that landed a few feet in front of the plate with a lot of backspin and rolled back across the plate out of bounds.

But the home plate umpire ruled that the ball had touched the foot of Freeman, the Seminole catcher, as it rolled past and called it a fair ball. Johnston, who was running on the pitch, scored from second.

Seminole got the run back and then some in its half of the sixth. Chunat, Duncan, and Gochee drew walks from Brian Marotta (who relieved Kessler in the fifth) to open the inning.

After Robert Vessey came in to pitch for the Rams, Lugering hit into a fleider's choice. Lake Mary tried to cut off Chunat at the plate, but he beat the throw to the plate. Rob Morgan then walked to force in Duncan. An dit later, Gochee scored on Eckstein's sacrifice fly.

Lugering and Eckstein each had two singles for Seminole. Scott Fergerson also hit a single for the Tribe. For Lake Mary, Kleibi was 2-for-3 while Jason Rasmussen, Johnston, and Dan Storey were each 1-for-3.

Kessler worked four innings, allowing three unearned runs on four hits while striking out three and walking one. Marotta gave up Seminoie's other three runs in his one inning on one hit and four walks. Vessey struck out two and walked one.

Lake Mary catcher Rene Perez had a great game, throwing out four of five Seminoles attempting to steal.

All in all, Powers was very impressed with Lake Mary.

"Kessier threw the bail real well," Powers said. "And Vessey showed a lot of guts for a freshman. coming in with the bases loaded and none out and doing a great job.

"Lake Mary will be a team to contend with. They're tough. They have some good hitters and some good young players. They're infield is strong and they have threee or four good pitchers. They should challenge for conference champion-

SANFORD - Florida Sport

Wear built its lead to a full two games with a help from its opposition in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball Leagues at Chase Park.

Florida Sport Wear (6-0) put a real crimp in R.E. Templeton's (4-3) hopes with a 5-1 victory. then got help from Meyers Tree Service (2-5), which eliminated Bamboo Cafe (3-4) with an 16-14 triumph. Gator's (4-2) remained close with an 18-8 swamping of First Baptist (1-6).

Next week, Gator's plays Meyers Tree Service at 6:30 p.m.; Bamboo Cafe faces R.E. Templeton at 7:30 p.m.; and Florida Sport Wear takes on First Baptist at 8:30 p.m.

Rick Eckstein led off with a walk and Pete Cestaro singled. Randy Hagar laid down a bunt. but the ball was thrown away at second base, allowing Eckstein to score.

Sanford's Demetry Beamon sacrificed Cestaro to third and Johnny Goodrich lifted a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Cestaro with the go-ahead run.

The Raiders broke the game open against a pair of relievers in the eighth inning, sending nine men to plate to score five runs. Isaac Cruz led off with a walk and H.J. Calapa, an Oviedo graduate, and Ray Hagar hit home runs on consecutive pitches. Oviedo's Eric Jordan was then hit by a pitch, and after an out. Cestaro doubled in Jordan and Randy singled in Cestaro.

Contributing to SCC's 11 hit attack were Calapa (3-for-5, two RBI). Cestaro and Randy Hagar (both 2-for-4 with a double), Beamon (2-for-3) and Jordan and Raymond Hagar (one hit each).

reamining to force the second overtime.

Seminole took a three-point lead on a "three" by Roberts. When Palm Bay was called for traveling with a little over two minutes to play. Arrow Force One had a chance to put the game away. But after taking almost 30-seconds off the clock, the locals put up a pair of errant three-point attempts.

"I don't think they even know why they took those shots," said Traina. "Most of the game, you go with the flow of the game. But in that situation, you have to play more with your head. You have to be aware of what the score is and how much time is left, and we didn't. But then again, the nervousness of playing in the districts probably also had something to do with it."

The second miss resulted in a long rebound and the Bulldogs drove the length of the court for a layup to cut the lead to 72-71 with 1:35 left. Seminole regained the three point lead on a jumper by Travis Perkins with 1:25 left and had a chance to put the nail in the coffin when Palm Coast turned the ball over. But an attempted layup was blocked and again the Buildogs got a layup to make the score 74-73 with 0:45

Arrow Force One then missed a short jumper with 0:36 left and Voyard was fouled on the rebound. The 6-foot, 6-inch center made both free throws to give Palm Coast a 75-74 lead.

Seminole came down and almost lost the ball on a five-second violation when Roberts was trapped near mid-court. But the sophomore found Daniels in the corner and the junior calmly tossed in the jumper to give his team the lead back.

The Bulldogs got one more shot at the win, but good defense by Roberts forced a double-pump scoop attempt that rimmed out and Arrow Force had the victory.

Daniels paced Seminole acoring 26 points. grabbing 13 rebounds and coming up with three steals. Also contributing were Roberts (21 points, four assists). Andre Hall (12 points, nine rebounds), Parker (eight points, six rebounds, five steals, 14 assists), Travis Perkins (five points, three steals). Neville Fuller (two points, six rebounds) and Holloway (two points, three rebounds).

Doing the damage for Palm Coast (11-11) were Voyard (30 points, 18 rebounds), Ktawuan Stokes (16 points, four steals, five assists) and Greg Thomas (12 points, nine rebounds, eight steals.

Friends don't owe lonely widow transportation

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you at a very lonely and vulnerable time of my life. I have been widowed for almost a year. I know there are a legion of us widows - and many of us do not drive. Consequently, we have to rely on friends and relatives to drive us to various errands that have to be tended to.

On most of these occasions when we ask for assistance in doing these various tasks, they usually agree and do so if they have no prior commitment. But not once do they ever extend an invitation to go for a nice Sunday drive, or even on a weekend trip, although they boast of doing these things with other friends, or even by themselves, I think this is so inconsiderate and selfish! What do you think?

Don't advise me to learn to drive - since my husband's death, I have sold the car and have no intention of purchasing another one. Living on a limited income now does not allow me this luxury. I am not broke, but neither am I rolling in money.

MICHIGAN WIDOW DEAR WIDOW: I think you have the wrong attitude. These drivers owe you nothing. You are fortunate to have friends and relatives who are willing to take you to run errands. But do you ever reciprocate by buying them a tank of gas, slipping them a few dollars for their trouble, or buying an occasional lunch?

Many drivers feel "used" by non-drivers. It is very expensive to maintain a car, and not always easy to drop everything to take someone around. You apparently have no understanding of these demands.

You would be wise to think about how you can be more independent. Consider hiring a high school student with a car to run errands for you. Or take a AIDS. taxi — or the bus.

If you don't want to be a burden to others, think more about how you can help yourself become more active with your

DEAR READERS: I have just finished a paperback book titled. "What You Can Do to Avoid AIDS," by Magic Johnson. This little book should be required reading for everyone who is old enough to read. Here are some (edited) excerpts: You've probably been hearing a lot about HIV-infection and AIDS. What you've heard may have scared you. But being scared won't help you make wise choices about your health. Being educated will. Let me lay out the basics here so you'll understand what HIV and AIDS are, and how HIV is — and isn't — spread. I'll start with two simple definitions:

HIV stands for Human Immunodeficiency Virus. Human means human beings, not development of AIDS. animals, plants or insects. immuno- refers to the immune system — the organs and cells that fight off diseases and infections in our bodies. Deficiency means a breakdown or lack of s o m e t h i n g , s o It costs only $3.99. they're supposed to do.

HIV can be spread from person to person and cause an infected person's immune system to break down or collapse comcauses AIDS.

AIDS stands for Acquired Immunodesiciency Syndrome. What do those words mean? Acquired means you're not born with it, but can develop it later. Immunodeffciency means your immune system is damaged and can't fight off infections or diseases. Syndrome means a combination of physical signs and symptoms.

Let's look at this like a war. The main soldiers in your immune system are white blood cells. They attack the viruses, bacteria and other foreign agents that invade your body. Normally, your white cells destroy these invaders and keep you from getting infections or diseases. When HIV enters your body, it destroys the white blood cells. When this happens, you become a target for diseases and infections that healthy people can usually fight off. These "opportunistic" infections include pneumonia, tuberculosis, yeast infections and other infections. You are also vulnerable to certain cancers. When you have HIV and have developed certain infections, doctors say you have People do not die of AIDS: They die because the virus makes their bodies too weak to fight off infections.

Being infected with HIV doesn't mean you automatically have AIDS: It means sooner or later you will develop AIDS.

The virus can live in your body for 10 years (or longer) before you show any symptoms. During that time you may feel and look healthy, but you can infect others with the virus. In other words, you can pass it on to others without you or your partner knowing it. In fact, most people who have HIV don't even know they are infected! The only way a doctor can diagnose

HIV-infection is by a blood test. There is no cure yet, but if you're diagnosed early and get into treatment, your chances of living longer are better because there are medications to keep you healthy and postpone the

When to purchase short-term health care plans

With medical costs ballooning out of control, people who suddenly find themselves without health insurance are turning to short-term health policies. The 80 insurers offering these stop-gap plans. which typically cover medical costs for as long as six months, are expected to collect around $150 million this year, up ten percent from 1991.

Think twice before you buy: While short-term deals can be 40 percent to 50 percent cheaper than standard plans, they may not provide what is needed. Specifically, short-term policies don't cover pre-existing conditions, so you'll collect only for new medical problems.

Price is the policies' big selling point. For example, a 40-year-old man with a 33-year-old wife and two children might pay between $165 and $220 a month for a short-term policy with a $250 deductible.

But, if this individual had just quit working at a company with more than 20 workers, the federal law known as COBRA wuld generally allow employer's coverage for 18 months. This rate would be about $380 a month, assuming the former company's policy was fairly comprehensive. One reason: There is not much of a risk to an insurance company over such a short period. Individuals may be turned down if pregnant, have a major illness, or was recently rejected by another insurer.

Be sure to verify with the agent that the plan will pay medical bills for any conditions that develop while the policy is in effect. In most cases, coverage is for as long as three months after an injury, even if the policy has expired. You can apply for one more short-term policy from the company when the first one runs out; however, any modical problems that began after you bought the initial policy will be rejected as pre-existing conditions the second time

It will be a different story if you are selecting health insurance for long term plans. Before buying health insurance, find out the answers to these questions. Then get the details in writing from the agent or company. The agent will write you a memorandum if requested. . Is the company financially stable? • is the company licensed to do business in the state of Florida? (Check with the State Insurance Commissioner). • Are benefits in line with hospital or medical costs in your area? • Can dependents be included? • Do you thoroughly understand the terms? • Is there a guaranteed renewable and/or noncancelable clause? Guaranteed renewable means that the policy stays in effect up to a specified age as long as the premium is paid promptly. The premium rate cannot be. raised for any one individual, but can be raised only for all policyholders with the same types of benefits. Under the premium rate cannot be changed at all.

Beneral Rules: * Do not try to insure against routine or predictable expenses, such as checkups. • Buy a policy that will remimburse you substantially for large expenditures. • Try to obtain a group policy first. • Do not buy insurance against named accidents or diseases before you have purchased your basic and major medical plans. • Do not necessarily try to cover yourself 100 percent. If you do invest with a co-insurer, the premium cost will be lower. Pay premium promptly to keep your insurance in effect. Pay the premiums for individual coverage on an annual or quarterly basis. • Review your insurance program annually to see if it meets your needs. • Keep the family informed of the protection provided for yourself and for

Alcoholism may be passed on to kids

DEAR MARY: You might say that I'm concerned about a problem that doesn't exist yet. but I'm still concerned. Both my husband and I are children of problem drinkers. I never really knew my grandprents very well, but from what I can remember and what other relatives say, I'll bet my maternal grandfather was an alcoholic and now my brother has gone into a treatment program.

We have four children, all under age 12. Neither of us uses any alcohol because we've seen what it can do to people, but frankly, I'm afraid that alcohol problems may be a part of the genetic makeup of our family. I hate to think that my kids may be destined for these kinds of problems because of their genetic programming. Is there anything we can do to try to protect our kids if it is in their

MOM FROM AN ALCOHOLIC PAMILY

DEAR MOM: Medical research appears to be confirming your intuitition that there is a biological predisposition to the disease of alcoholism. Studies repeated in several countries have confirmed that sons of alcoholics reared either by natural or adoptive parents were approxi-mately four times more likely to become alcoholics than were other groups of children. Whether the boys grew up with their own alocholic parents or nonalcohlic adoptive parents did not alter the results. Therefore it history of alcoholism in your immediate and extended families a red flag for your children. You personally have made the best possible decision concerning your own use of alcohol; a nondrinker can't become an alcoholic.

You need to have open, honest, and direct conversations with your children about the alcoholism in the family starting NOW so that they will be very well aware of their particular risk before they enter their teenage years. Additionally, since alcoholism is a problem in your family, you need to be especially cautious of and help your kids watch out for dependency on all mood-altering drugs - tranquilizers, marijuana, co-is wise for you to consider the caine, etc. It appears that children with alcoholiam in their extended family are more susceptible to other kinds of chemical dependency as well.

Your kids are NOT predestined to beome chemically dependent on alcohol or any other drugs. but they are more susceptible. It is your responsibility as loving parents to be certain that they are aware of their increased risk and are given good training on how to remain healthy and chemical free.

Frantically we search. There is a checking of pockets, rummaging through drawers and a continuous mumble of questions. Where would it be? Did it slip cut of my pocket? Places like a sink drain, under a car seat or behind a pillow come to mind. We retrace our steps. Time passes and we wonder if it will turn up. We try to reassure ourselves that it will.

Losing money, a wallet or identification cards makes us feel terrible. The loss of a precious heirloom saddens us deeply. Many things can be replaced while

Consider the consequences of losing your faith in God. If we grieve for the loss of earthly things and objects, how much more should we grieve for having lost all that is heavenly and eternal.

Gospel concert features Fox family

The Fox Family of Nashville, Tenn. will present a gospel concert at the Westview Baptist Church, 4100 Paola Road, Sanford on Sunday, Feb. 28 at 7 p.m. Jamie Jessup, minister of music at the church, notes that the music of the Fox Family defies categorization except to say that it is God's music. It is music that ministers, gives peace, challenges and makes one think about himself and his relationship with God.

Music with the Fox Family is indeed something they chose to do, but it is much more than that, it's a calling from God not just to the parents but to each family member. This is the beginning of a heritage that began in 1983 in Florida. Dr. Paul Fox is the husband and father of the family, a chiropractic physician who had practiced successfully in Florida for 17 years. God began to speak not only to this father but to the whole family about His will for their lives. Without great fanfare and in a very humble way, the Fox Family began sharing the music God gave them in churches, schools and county fairs all over Florida. From the very start it was evident to most that this was much more than just music, this was ministry. God blessed that ministry and this family answered God's call to full-time service in 1984 when Dr. Fox gave up his practice and set up the ministries home base in Nashville. They now appear in civic centers, auditoriums and resorts all across this nation, but their most favorite place to be is still the church.

There is not a gospel group performing today that has a schedule any busier than the Fox Family. Last year they traveled over 120,000 miles, appearing at 342 concerts. They travel in two customized buses that are really home to them, since they are on the road all year long. Fox and his wife, Pattie, have seven children and the newest addition was born four years ago while touring in Little Rock, Ark., a baby girl named Joy. The oldest son is 23. His name is Paul Jason. He's the quiet one but probably the hardest working one, driving attle, the mother of the family, sings lead pit in the group, but she does so much more than that, keeping meals prepared on the road, washing and ironing clothes, and teaching school are just a few of the many duties of this mother.

Dr. Fox, the father, manages the family, keeping dates booked, making sure they get to where they are supposed to be when they are supposed to be, solving the problems that come with being on the road all the time, but most important, bring the spiritual leader of the family.

They have recorded nine albums in this the last decade from old traditional to middle-of-the-road, southern style. They currently are on the "Harvest and Glory

Changing world topic at banquet

Members from churches hard at work planning the upcoming Wycliffe Associates "The Bible for a Changing World"banquet.

As the lay ministry of Wycliffe Bible Translators, Wycliffe Associates involves lay people from communities across the nation in programs that support the work of Bible translation.

The banquet will be held at Howard Johnson's at Colonial Ave., Orlando on Mar. 8 and will start promptly at 7 p.m.

The highlight of the evening will be an inspirational presentation by a veteran missionary. The banquet will also include timely reports on Wycliffe's progress in bible translation, information on how people can be vitally involved in missions without leaving home. and an opportunity to participate in an offering for bible translation.

Tickets to this informative event are complimentary and can be obtained by calling Jean Smith at (407)321-5740.

Making music

Spenser Smith leads the Florida A&M University Gospel Choir workshop in Sanford recently. T theme of the workshop is 'Music a Motivation.' About 90 local singers participate

The workshop preceded a concert by the award-winning gospel choir, directed by Spenser.

LOS ANGELES — A surprise prosecution claim that police delayed medical treatment for an injured Rodney King brought a sharp defense denial as the two sides unveiled their strategies in the civil rights trial of four policemen.

The allegation came Thursday as the federal government set out to do what state prosecutors could not - win convictions in the videotaped

During opening statements, Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Clymer sprang a new claim that two of the officers — Timothy Wind and Laurence Powell - took a 1/2-hour detour while moving King from one hospital to another, stopping at their station to show the beating victim to

Not so, said the defense. Attorney Michael Stone said his client, Powell. and Powell's partner, Wind, were following "very strict protocol" and did no harm by slowing King's move from a small hospital to a larger hospital jail ward and trauma center. "Only stable patients will be transferred from Powell drove back to Foothill Station. He left Wind in the back seat with Rodney King," Clymer said. "He sent police officers out to look at Rodney King while Rodney King was in the back seat waiting for medical attention."

No such evidence was presented at the state

The prosecutor also accused the officers of trying to convince medical personnel at both hospitals that King was under the influence of the hallucinogen PCP when there was no evidence to support that conclusion.

During their opening arguments, lawyers for Powell, Koon and Briseno said the officers believed they were dealing with "a duster," a PCP-crazed suspect who could hurt them. Wind's lawyer postponed his opening statement.

"You will hear that King had the classic symptoms of a duster," Stone told Jurors, suggesting the motorist was "bathed in sweat," 'glassy-cyed' and appeared to have 'superhuman strength.'

Harland Braun, representing Briseno, made clear that Briseno, who broke ranks at the state trial and testified against his colleagues, was now part of a united defense.

Braun said a scene in which Briseno is accused of stomping on King's neck with heavy boots was exaggerated. He held up a boot and said, "It's very thin. It's almost like a ballet slipper."
