To Avoid Disease Stemming From Stress: Breathe, Touch, Think And Eat Right

Stress can kill. That's the bad news. The good news is, you can control it. "We all have our set of constitutional strengths and weaknesses. But when you add continued stress to a genetic propensity, it spells disease," said Seminole Community College stress control instructor Dino Lorenzo. Stress can lead to duodenal ulcers, heart disease, cancer, hypertension, and mental/emotional dysfunction.

'Don't suppress emotions like anger and fear - that poisons your body.'

among other ailments. When stress affects the mind, "you can lose the desire to cope, and becoming mentally ill, no longer wish to cope," he said. Vitamin C, Vitamin B, and other minerals and vitamins are also depleted during stress reactions, he said. "And it is a likely precursor to major disease, or death." The dysfunction usually begins in the weakest organ of the body. Lorenzo teaches stress control for the public and holds sessions for private groups or businesses. The next public class is scheduled to start in early May. More information may be obtained by calling SCC at 323-1450. He says if you want to appear more relaxed, self-assured, and "in control" — as well as have fewer serious physical and mental disorders — there are things you can do. The first step is to learn about stress factors and stress control. There are internal and external stress factors, he explained, and the external ones are harder to control. They include the environment, other people, and food and water. External stressors can be deadline pressure, chlorine in the water "which oxidizes the tissues," chemicals and hormones injected

To Republicans

Dole: Support Reagan, Pull Together For Image Boost

By Kathy Tyrity
 Herald Staff Writer

The Iran arms crisis is likely to be a problem for any Republican presidential candidate; but now is the time for the party to pull together, stretch out its hands to blacks, low income people and Hispanics, support the president and create a new image, according to Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole.

Dole, himself a contender for the presidency, spoke for the first time to a Florida county organization last night — at the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee's annual Lincoln Day Dinner at the Altamonte Springs Hilton.

In the next 21 months of political campaigning, "We have to support Ronald Reagan to make the party strong and to make it grow," Dole said. "Sit down and write him a little note and say he did a good job at the TV press conference. He has his ups and downs just like the rest of us."

He said he knew the "Iran thing" is not going to go away — "and I don't fault the media for covering a good story."

"But we have got work to do. The biggest problem in America is the $2.3 trillion national debt on which we are paying $200 billion a year in interest. If you think anything about your children or your grandchildren, you'd better elect someone who will make hard choices," Dole told the capacity gathering of about 500.

He said he feels he is running neck-in-neck in the polls with Vice President George Bush, and that Jack Kemp was a weak third.

"The polls show Dole and Bush five points ahead, and in Iowa, I understand I'm ahead," he said. And he gave himself a vote of confidence as a candidate who is

'I'm of the opinion you have to listen to people, because, when you're too busy to listen you're probably too busy to be in office.'

—Sen. Robert Dole

"compassionate, sensitive and tough." He said he's a broad-based "issues candidate" who is not a "cheerleader" for any cause — "I'm ready for the debates."

Democrats aren't the only ones who want to help the poor, the disabled and the minorities, he said. "There are things the Republicans need to do to make the party bigger and better," he said. "We are afraid to stand up and say we care about people, too. We have ignored the blacks and Hispanics, because people said, 'Don't worry about them; you won't get their vote.'"

He said he wants to make new friends and keep the old.

"There are a lot of people out there who are just waiting for Republicans to hold out their hand and say, 'Come on in.' We should have an 'open door' party."

"I don't believe we measure compassion in this country by the amount of money we spend," he said.

There are people in this country who need help — and the federal government is the last resort, he said. Or, maybe it's the first resort. But the strength of the Republican party is the reason, why people switch," Dole said.

America, with all its faults, is still the best place to be, he said.

Lake Mary Squabbles Over Water

By Gene Lindberg
 Herald Staff Writer

Hot tempers turned a Lake Mary Commission discussion on the city's water system into a steamy debate.

Lake Mary citizens charged that the recent water rate hike was based on out-dated information and commissioners being "in the dark," while city officials defended their actions verbally and with the gavel.

Bob Norris, who took over as city manager in January, said during his report at Thursday's regular commission meeting, he had found more questions about questions he was asking about the water system than answers. He said water impact fees apparently needed to be revised and asked for approval to continue to study and evaluate the fee structure and, when appropriate, to return to the commission with a revised schedule based on new data.

The commission earlier assigned Norris the task of looking into the city's entire water system as a result of citizens protesting a water rate hike the commission approved in February. Norris was scheduled to report back to the commission at a March 2 work session with his findings, but recommended tabling the discussion due to the enormity of the job, Norris said he was not yet familiar with the complete history of the city's water issues.

Larry Dale, a Lake Mary resident and developer, told the commission that he, too, was seeking answers to questions he had concerning the city's water system. He had opposed the water rate increase.

Dale said the commission claimed that the rate increase was minimal and had been recommended in a feasibility study done in 1984 by the city's consulting engineers, Camp, Dresser and McKee, Inc. (CDM).

But, he said, that study was outdated and did not have the city's interests at heart.

Dale also said that the infrastructure that the water impact fees are based on is inadequate and not being developed from a commercial development standpoint. The study did not take into consideration future development, he said.

Dale said the water department is being charged rent for city-owned land and that it should be sold to them.

"The rent is currently about $14,000 a year for the raw land that the plant sits on," Dale said. "So when you charge the water company, you're charging the customer, and then you raise the rates," he added with raised voice. His pitch increased as he criticized the commission for not picking the CDM study apart and then adding their own factual information about the city.

"Nobody seems to understand the water system, myself included," Dale said. "Let's tear it apart and get down to the grass roots so that everybody understands it." Dale criticized the commission for "running the city in the dark."

Harold Dale, Dale's father, stood at the podium next and warned the commission that he was about to criticize them. "You really don't look into the issues," he said, advising that if the commission is going to vote on something, it should first understand what it is voting about. At that point, Commissioner Charlie Webster started to say "You can't tell me..." when the younger Dale yelled from the audience, in defense of his father's right to speak. "Shut your mouth, he's talking."

McGregor Reverses Death Sentence

A Brevard County man got his life back Friday when Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor, ordered by the State Supreme Court to consider the man's "honest citizen" background, canceled his death sentence.

McGregor, who imposed the death penalty against William Harvard in 1974, has changed the sentence to life in prison.

Harvard will have to serve about 12 more years before becoming eligible for parole, said his specially-appointed Public Defender, Vincent Howard, Sanford.

"I think Bill is very thankful for the judge's decision," Howard said. "I'm just very, very pleased and grateful that McGregor considered the case."

"He's clearly a neutral judge and good judge and willing to weigh evidence and not be influenced by his earlier order."

Harvard was sentenced to death for the shotgun slaying of his former wife, Ann, in Brevard County. Brevard is part of the 18th Judicial Circuit along with Seminole County.

The Florida Supreme Court, hearing an appeal of the case, ordered McGregor to sentence him again, saying McGregor improperly considered evidence he should not have when handing down the original sentence.

In 1979 McGregor again sentenced Harvard to death. Harvard sought post-conviction relief and the state Supreme Court again ordered McGregor to resentence Harvard and this time to consider his background the judge had not considered earlier, by law.

The background, that the law then did not allow McGregor to consider, included Harvard's role as an honest citizen, a good father and a man fraught with emotions after a divorce, said Howard. Harvard had been a U.S. Marine and has been a good prisoner since his conviction. Howard also said Harvard has become an accomplished self-taught artist while on death row.

Harvard has continued to maintain his innocence and said a co-defendant actually did the shooting. That co-defendant was given immunity.

McCullum Named To Iran-Arms Probe Panel

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, has been appointed to the House select committee investigating the Iran arms affair.

Select committee hearings are scheduled to begin about the end of April, said McCollum's Press Secretary, Sophia Nash. Already, 80-90 people have been subpoenaed for the hearings, she said. There are 11 senators and 15 representatives on the select committee.

Miss Nash toured McCollum's home turf this week explaining the senator's efforts to discover the whereabouts of the money that paid for the U.S. arms.

She said McCollum was hoping that immunity could be granted to at least one of the three main people who would know about the money: either Col. Oliver North, Rear Adm. John Poindexter (North's superior), or retired Gen. Richard Secord. North's secretary Fawn Hall, has already been granted limited immunity.

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum

"They want to find out about the missing funds, and we believe immunity for some of the key people is the only way," Miss Nash said. The Tower Commission Report, Miss Nash said, didn't say anything about where the money is.

She added that the special counsel, Laurence Walsh, wanted no immunity for anyone involved.

"But we just want to find where the blame lies at this point," she said.

Last year, at the end of the 99th Congress, McCollum's first bill was passed — the McCollum Marriage Fraud Act of 1985. Miss Nash said this aims to prevent illegal aliens marrying U.S. citizens just to have the right to stay in the country. Under his bill, newly married aliens who have U.S. spouses, will get a temporary, two-year status to live in the country. At the end of that time, if they can show evidence of a true marriage — loans taken out together, children, etc. — they can stay in the United States.

"That gets rid of one of the loopholes of illegal aliens," Miss Nash said. She explained McCollum had seen evidence of aliens "romancing American girls" until a marriage is made, "then leaving them on the church steps." Or else, she said, the aliens would give money — say $1,000 — to their wives to participate in a "marriage on paper" with them.

McCollum is also on the Judiciary Committee and two subcommittees. On the Crime Subcommittee, McCollum is the ranking Republican, serving as vice-chairman. He is also on the Immigration Committee and Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee.

McCollum's aides can be reached by calling his Winter Park office at 645-3100 or Washington office at (202) 225-2176. —Kathy Tyrity

IN BRIEF

Hostess, 3 Out-Of-Town Guests Robbed In Garage

Lorraine Wilkins, 62, of 3015 Autumnwood Trail, Apopka, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies she wasn't the only one to greet her three out-of-state guests when they pulled their car into her home garage at about 8 p.m. Thursday. A gunman and another bandit entered the garage and robbed the three women.

The gunman was first to appear from beside the home. He pointed a gun at the victims and Ma. Wilkins and said, "Don't look at me. Everyone be quiet." He took the purse from one victim, while the other robber grabbed two purses from inside the victims' car. The suspects fled with purses and cash with a total value of about $150.

The women robbed are: Dorothy Johnson, 63, and Franca M. Duman, 63, both of Wildwood, Ga., and Pearl Koobs, 68, of College Dale, Tenn., the report said.

Man Charged In Rape Of Girl

Sanford police reported charging Ronald Bernard Browne, 23, of 2545 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, with burglary and sexual battery at his home at about noon Thursday.

Police allege that Thursday Browne forced entry to a Sanford home by removing the screen to a sliding glass door. Once inside the home he allegedly raped a 15-year-old girl. Browne, a housekeeper at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, was being held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Jimmie Loula Bealer of 1324 Oleander Ave. reportedly resisted being handcuffed when arrested at his home. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Noel Martin, 64, of 127 Leon St., Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies that a $400 television was stolen from his home Thursday.

An electric stove valued at $350, and belonging to Margaret Ware Weiser, 38, of 720 N. Lakemont Drive, Winter Park, was reported stolen from a home at 144 Old Mims Road, Geneva, between March 14 and Thursday, a sheriff's report said.

Costume jewelry, coins and a television with a combined value of about $1,000 were stolen from the home of Milton Wasserman, 608 Woodridge St., Fern Park, between Friday and Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Ronald Sax II, 38, of 112 Wesley Circle #800, Apopka, reported to sheriff's deputies two video recorders valued at $350 each were stolen from his home Wednesday.

Cocaine Conviction Sentence: $100,000 Fine, 5 Years Prison

An Altamonte Springs man was fined $100,000 and sentenced to 5 years in prison Wednesday for his part in a drug set up.

Sentenced with Francisco Soto-Vaas, 45, of 849 S. Wymore Road, a codefendant, Alex Cohen-Velasquez, 43, of Ocala, awaits sentencing. Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. also ordered Soto-Vaas to serve 15 years probation. The men were arrested after they agreed to sell two kilograms of cocaine for $18,000 each to an undercover Drug Enforcement Agency agent.

They were arrested in August in the Altamonte Mall Parking lot. Agents found one kilogram with the men and nine kilograms in one of the men's cars.

Grandparents File Suit For Visitation Rights

A Casselberry couple has filed suit to get visitation rights to see their grandson.

Andrew and Gloria Lukacs filed suit against Robert J. Davis and Lydia Davis Taylor so they can see Samuel Andrew Davis, 10. Under Florida law grandparents can be granted visitation rights.

The Lukacs state in the suit that from 1978 to 1983 they had custody of the child. In 1984, custody was transferred to the father. From then until December 1986, they had access to the child. Since December, Davis has reportedly limited the Lukacs' visitation to one hour a week from all weekend. The change was reportedly brought about by a change in Davis' domestic situation, according to Lukacs' lawyer.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor. No hearing date has been set.

Size Of Home Spurs Board Members' Tiff

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Resident opposition and a Planning and Zoning Board member's challenging his co-member's motion punctuated a debate Thursday night that ended with defeat of a developer's proposal to downscale the size of a Highland Park home. The developer, David Stump, said he'll be appealing the P&Z's 3-2 vote to city commissioners.

"Why?" was Brent Carl's abrupt response to Sheila Roberts' motion that the request be denied. A motion Carl made to approve the request had just died for lack of second. He asked Mrs. Roberts to specify the "reasons" for her motion.

Board member Eddie Keith broke in to criticize Carl, saying "Brent, since I've been on the board you're the first one to bring up a question like this about another board member."

Carl countered by saying the P&Z had agreed at its last session members would "give reasons" for their motions.

Mrs. Roberts said the size Stump sought was "too small" and that she'd like to see the home have a garage.

Stump sought a conditional use permit to build a 1,100 square foot home on a parcel that city standard designates for a minimum 1,300 square foot residence.

Highland Park residents at the hearing said the smaller size would diminish neighborhood property values, while Stump pointed to much smaller homes built in the area before the city enacted its 1,300 square foot standard in 1972.

Conditional use permits such as Stump requested allow deviations from standard requirements. In this case, he could have asked to go as low as 1,000 square feet for the single family zoned parcel at 2207 Coronado Concourse.

"How dare any of us deny the property owner a right to use the land according to city codes," he said, apparently referring to conditional use requests being on the city's books.

Sliding with Mrs. Roberts motion for denial of the request were Keith and Gary Davidson. Carl and P&Z chairman John Morris voted against Mrs. Roberts' motion.

The P&Z voted unanimously earlier this year against Stump's request to build two 1,100 square foot homes at 2207 and 2209 Coronado Concourse, which are both on 50 foot wide lots.

Stump could not appeal the first decision because it was unanimous.

Stump's proposal Thursday for one home was treated as a new conditional use request because it involved only one lot, not two as his January proposal had, said Zoning and Arbor Inspector Bettie Sonnenberg.

Stump had provided P&Z members Thursday with documentation showing most homes in the area are smaller than 1,300 square feet, and even 1,100 square feet. Stump also said the new, 1,100 square foot home would enhance the neighborhood, which contains houses dating back to the 1950's, and that he has a buyer for it.

"What are we trying to prove here, what are we trying to accomplish," Carl said. "This is not a spec home. He's building a home for someone who wants to live in a friendly community."

Residents presented a petition with about 20 names in opposition to the 1,100 square foot home Thursday. Gary Taylor, 304 W. 24th Street, said the petition was circulated in a more immediate area than a petition that came in with about 60 names when it was circulated in January, for the first request.

Following denial of the first request, Stump is building a 1,300 square foot home at 2209 Coronado Concourse, but came back to the board Thursday to see if the other parcel could be developed at the smaller size.

Man Sentenced For Murder

Twelve years in prison then 10 years probation is the future for a Sanford man who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder.

Bryce Glenn, 54, of 1119 W. 12th St., was sentenced by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. who also ordered Glenn to pay $2,820 to the family of Iona Smith-Brown, 39, of the same address. Ms. Smith-Brown was stabbed to death by Glenn Oct. 7. Glenn pleaded guilty to the charge in February.

Ms. Smith-Brown died when her heart was punctured by a pen knife, records show. Blood accumulated in her heart sac and caused her heart to stop.

The couple had been drinking and fighting, according to Assistant State Attorney Jeff Deen, prosecutor on the case.

During the fray, Ms. Smith-Brown said something like "go ahead and kill me."

Glenn has not told anyone why they were arguing, Deen said. Glenn could have received up to 17 years. —Deane Jordan

Lake Mary Announces Police Promotions

The Lake Mary city commission Thursday approved four promotions in the city's police department based on the recommendation of Police Chief Charles Lauderdale.

Those receiving promotions are: Lt. Samuel Belfiore promoted to the rank of captain; Patrolman 1st class Linda Belfiore promoted to sergeant;

Patrolman David Preiser promoted to patrolman 1st class and Detective Thomas Taggart promoted to DET sergeant.

Lauderdale said that for the last six months he has been assessing current personnel, recruiting new personnel, training personnel and employing personnel.

Study: Sanford Doubles In Two Decades

Sanford Herald, Sanford, Fl. Sunday, March 22, 1987-3A

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

An economic upswing will double the number of residents, jobs and homes in Sanford within the next 20 years, according to a planning study by a private firm.

The firm, Ivey, Bennett, Harris and Walls of Orlando, is being paid $20,000 to assist in the city's comprehensive plan's preparation.

So far, 20 year projections by the firm and city staffers double Sanford's population, to 54,000, its job opportunities to 23,000 and its housing to 20,000 units.

A very positive economic outlook has been unfolding for Sanford as city planners and the private firm's consultants compile data that will go into the city's new comprehensive land use plan. The state is requiring all its municipalities to prepare new comp plans. They will be used to address citizen's needs, such as police and fire protection, recreation and housing.

City planner Jay Marder agrees with the private firm's projections, but adds its housing estimate may be conservative in light of recent building trends.

"I think with what's been going on, they're taking a conservative approach in regard to housing," Marder said. "But it's a reasonable and balanced approach for our total planning effort."

City records show an average of 725 housing units built each year during the last six years, while the private firm says about 500 new residences will be built each coming year through 2005.

"All you'd need is two, 250 unit apartment projects and that's it," Marder said of the firm's annual projection. "It really doesn't take all that much building to use up their estimate."

Marder said he won't ask the housing projection be changed, "because we don't want to over or under project. And overall, the housing needs estimate is in synch with our population expectations for the next 20 years."

Contributing to Sanford's population influxes will be an extension of post-Walt Disney World growth and the lure of increased job opportunities from new industrial and commercial plants within the city, according to plan data.

More than 500 acres at the Sanford Regional Airport have been designated for commercial and industrial enterprises as has the entire 115 acre Sanford Industrial Park, which lies in western Sanford off State Road 46 near Interstate-4. The burgeoning airport and industrial park boost Sanford's tax base in addition to providing numerous job opportunities, Mardersaid.

He cited as an example the industrial park's new Codisco plant, which is tagged to provide 170,000 square feet of manufacturing area, a boost to employment and the city's taxable property.

"Right now the largest employment centers are in Orange County, but some of that is changing," Marder said. "New centers are building up in Seminole County and Sanford is in a real strong position to catch some of this through its airport, the airport's related industrial area and westward, in areas like the industrial park near I-4."

Student Protesters End Sit-In

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Students protesting racism ended an 18-hour sit-in at the University of Michigan's administration building Friday and briefly disrupted a meeting of the Board of Regents, which the day before awarded an honorary degree to South African activist Nelson Mandela.

After the peaceful demonstration ended with no arrests, the university president and several regents met privately with some of the student leaders to hear their grievances about racist attitudes and incidents on campus, said university spokesman Joseph Owsley.

About 200 students were in the Fleming Administration Building when the protest ended at 9:30 a.m. EST, but only about 70 to 100 of them actually spent the entire night in the building, university officials said.

The regents were scheduled to meet at the administration building Friday in their regular monthly session, but decided instead to meet in the Michigan League ballroom in light of the sit-in, Owsley said.

The maneuver was not entirely successful.

During a brief recess in the meeting, about 50 students entered the room and refused to leave, Owsley said, prompting the regents to hold the balance of their session behind locked doors in the administration building.

The sit-in began at about 4 p.m. Thursday as the regents, on a 5-3 vote, reversed an earlier decision and approved an honorary degree for Mandela, the jailed South African black activist.

Both black and white members of the United Coalition Against Racism chanted "Shut it down, shut it light, defeat racism when the people unite," as they rushed into the building.

The regents' surprise vote on the Mandela degree came at a time of rising racial tensions on the campus. Last year, the board declined to give the imprisoned civil rights leader a degree because he could not come to accept it.

Thursday also was the 17th anniversary of a Black Action Movement student strike, which ended with a promise by the university to increase black enrollment to 10 percent — a goal that has not yet been reached.

"We're no longer going to stand for racism at the University of Michigan," said student Carl Anderson, a UCAR member, noting blacks make up only 5.3 percent of the student body.

"No more hollow promises — 17 years ago there was an agreement — well, they haven't lived up to their part of the bargain and neither are we," he said.

Black student groups have listed a number of demands including immediate tenure for black professors, appointing blacks to 30 percent of department chairmanships, increased support for minority oriented programs on campus and increased minority enrollment.

Panel On Group Homes To Be Appointed Monday

A citizens' board to review Sanford staff proposals that would allow group homes in single family residential areas by zoning law changes are to be appointed by city commissioners Monday.

The number of board members and time limit for their study have yet to be decided. Results of the board's efforts and subsequent public hearings are hoped to end the elder-care housing issue that sparked controversy in Sanford last fall when 16 seniors faced eviction because the homes they lived in were in the wrong places.

Group homes for the elderly, as well as the disabled and retarded, are not allowed in the majority of Sanford's residential zones.

The cited senior homes have been permitted to remain open while zoning revisions were worked on. The revisions stalled this winter when the city's Planning and Zoning Board, Chairman John Morris, Code Enforcement Board Chairman Ned Yancey, attorney Marcia Lippincott and Art Harris, administrator at an Orlando nursing home and former Sanford P&Z chairman.

As proposed by city staff, group care facilities for up to two people would be allowed in all single and multi-family residential zones.

Froggie Comes A Courtin'

The kind Frog Prince of English Estates Elementary School's play, "The Princess Princess," doesn't leave his royal lady without a date after the show. The prince, alias Andy Ellis, 5th grade, accompanies Princess Misty Piloian, 4th grade, after the two performed leading roles in the musical Tuesday evening. Standing behind them are other princely suitors who participated in the musical from left, Brian Celso and John McRae, both 4th-graders. The program directed by music teacher Rebecca Yadav, told the story of a princess who was encouraged by local townspeople to give up her search for a "tall, dark and handsome" prince and to look beyond appearances for a prince with qualities such as patience, honesty and kindness.

Sunshine Law 10 Years Old

By Kathy Trytyl
Herald Staff Writer

This month marks 10 years of Federal Government in the Sunshine.

"Despite all the initial predictions that government would be unable to function, we have survived. And, I think, for the better," said the law's author, U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles D-Florida.

The law stipulates that all meetings of governmental bodies be open to the public and the press.

The democratic ideal, he said, relies upon public participation.

"However, it can hardly be achieved if the public is not informed."

The Sunshine Act allows the interested public and the press to have a first-hand view of the process. "Through this experience people are able to gain a better understanding of the thought process behind government actions and to ensure that their concerns have been considered," Chiles said.

The original purpose of the Act was, and continues to be, simple and basic: People have a perfect right to observe the conduct of public business. Government is supported by the taxpayer.

With a few limited exceptions for national defense information, plans for criminal prosecutions or material which would constitute an invasion of privacy, "there is no common sense reason why citizens shouldn't be able to watch how government spends their money and reaches decisions affecting their business, their communities and their future," Chiles said.

"Citizens cannot hold government officials accountable if they don't know what those officials are doing."

Prior to the enactment of the Sunshine Act, Chiles said, the health of the federal government was "in a doubtful state."

Secrecy was the order of the day, and there was a prevalent attitude in Washington that government could conduct the people's business more efficiently if the people were not a part of the process.

Consequently, most of gov-

Carter Criticizes Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter, architect of the historic Camp David agreement between Egypt and Israel, said Israel's failure to live up to the treaty has stifled efforts to provide a homeland for stateless Palestinians.

Carter — in the third day of a private visit to Egypt — met with President Hosni Mubarak and praised him for showing dedication to peace.

During an appearance later before the Egyptian chapter of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Carter had some harsh words about former Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin — who signed the 1978 Camp David Accords with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"Asked if he thought Israel has lived up to the agreement, Carter replied: "No, it did not." He said he felt Israel had failed to meet its commitments for resolution of the so-called Palestinian problem.

"If you read the Camp David Accords," Carter said, "it guarantees full autonomy for the Palestinians, guarantees consistent negotiations and the final status of the West Bank and Gaza can be determined. It calls for the Palestinian leaders to be thoroughly involved in these negotiations."

Egypt and Israel failed to agree on the meaning of "full autonomy" in three years of on-and-off negotiations and the talks were discontinued.

Carter said another obstacle to peace was Begin's insistence on building more Jewish settlements in the occupied Jordan West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"My clear understanding with Prime Minister Begin was that there would be no additional Israeli settlements built in the occupied territories until the peace process was concluded," Carter said. "His interpretation subsequently was that he was restraint only applied for three months."

Carter said Begin's "interpretation of the agreement caused a furor in the Arab world" and made Jordan's King Hussein join other Arabs in condemning the Camp David Accords.

The former president, who lost his re-election bid to Ronald Reagan in 1980, also was critical of the Reagan administration's Middle East policy, citing a diminished U.S. role in efforts to restore peace to the region.

"I think it is accurate to say that we've lost the initiative," he said.

"President Reagan has not been inclined to use diplomacy as a means to achieve our nation's goals nearly so much as his Democratic and Republican predecessors," Carter said.

"He is more inclined to exert America's military strength, either in actual use of it, or the threat," he said, adding that the Iran arms scandal had damaged U.S. standing in the region.

Officials: Inspections Save Lives

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Highway safety officials called for a return to mandatory annual vehicle inspections Friday, citing reports suggesting inspections could prevent dozens of deaths and injuries.

The reports by the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles show that since Florida abolished its annual inspection program in 1981, the number of accidents in which police reported vehicle defects grew by 14 percent.

State To Adopt Higher Interstate Speed Limit

Staff And Wire Reports
Drivers on Interstate 10, Interstate 75 and Interstate 95 should soon be able to drive 65 mph legally, Secretary of Transportation Key Henderson says.

But, according to Henderson, drivers along Interstate 4 will see no change in the posted 55 mph limit, at least from the Volusia County line west to U.S. Highway 27.

The Seminole County to Orlando corridor will "definitely not be affected," he said. Also unaffected by any increase in legal speed limit will be the Sunshine Parkway and Interstate Highways from Palm Beach County south to Dade.

Henderson said his department was preparing to convert the speed limit on federal interstate highways in Florida from 55 mph to 65 mph.

The legislation would allow the change only on rural interstates, and not on state highways, interstates in metropolitan areas or on the Florida Turnpike. The change would affect about 70 percent of the 1,229 miles of interstate in Florida, about 923 miles of road.

Henderson has the authority to enact the higher limit as soon as the federal government allows. He said he would confer with the Highway Patrol, Gov. Bob Martinez, Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley and the Legislature before doing so.

"It has been the policy of the Florida Department of Transportation to support giving the states authority to raise the speed limit on rural interstate highways," Henderson said. "Therefore, it is our intention to begin immediately planning for conversion to speed limits up to 65 miles per hour where appropriate and where there is no conflict with legitimate safety concerns."

The legislation would allow a higher limit on most of Interstate 10 from Pensacola almost to Jacksonville, and on most of Interstate 95 from the Georgia state line south to Palm Beach County.

It would also increase the limit on most of Interstate 75 from the Georgia line south to Tampa, and Tampa south to Interstate 595. South Florida's Interstate 595 is still under construction and would not immediately be eligible for the higher limit.

costs but congressional leaders are confident they have the votes to override the veto. The senate passed the bill 80-21, well above the two-thirds majority needed to override.

Intersection Improvement In Oviedo

A Florida Department of Transportation contract has been awarded to the city of Oviedo to improve the intersection of SR 434 and Magnolia Street. FDOT spokesman Micheal Beha said.

Hubbard Construction Co. of Orlando received the contract to build left turn lanes, install flashing beacons and improve drainage at the busy intersection. The contract amounts to $64,295.

Construction will begin within 90 days and, once it begins, is scheduled for completion within 60 days, Beha said. "The work will help reduce congestion in Oviedo's downtown area."

Turn Lane Slated For U.S. 17-92

The Florida Department of Transportation has awarded a contract to build a right turn lane on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Seminole County just south of the Orange County line in Fern Park. DOT spokesman Micheal Beha said.

ILA Construction received the contract to build the turn lane on the northbound lane of U.S. Highway 17-92 at Sparton Drive. The contract amounts to $48,228, Beha said.

The work is scheduled to begin this month and once construction begins it is scheduled to be completed within 45 days, Beha said. "This project will allow traffic to move more efficiently in the area."

Officials Gift Limit Proposed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida Common Cause director Bill Jones says Florida should set a tight limit on the gifts public officials can accept.

Under current law, any public official can accept any gift from anyone, provided the gift is not intended as a bribe and he files a public disclosure form for gifts worth more than $25. Jones said Friday he would like to see public officials limited to accepting no more than $100 in gifts each year.

Martinez Says Sales Tax Plan Won't Drive Away Business

MIAMI (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez told south Florida business and government leaders that his plan to eliminate sales tax exemptions should not deter companies planning to move to Florida.

In remarks prior to addressing 1,000 members of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce Friday, Martinez said Florida would remain "a safe harbor" for companies planning to relocate or expand operations in Florida.

"They shouldn't be concerned. We are not going to tax any commodity that is sold outside the state," the governor said.

In his speech, Martinez said Florida's need to grow must be financed by altering the 5 percent sales tax, rather than with an income tax.

"When you realize that Florida's economy is now 82 percent service, and only 18 percent product, it is not hard to understand that 5 percent sales tax on product isn't going to keep up with growth of the state of Florida," he said.

Lawmakers are considering a plan to eliminate more than 100 sales tax exemptions, in an effort to raise about $1.5 billion in new capital for state growth.

A personal income tax could help raise the needed cash, but the governor flatly ruled out such a levy.

"We do not have personal income tax and there will not be personal income tax in the state of Florida," he vowed.

Some business have threatened to delay or cancel plans for relocating or expanding in Florida.

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan Maintains Bush Support Of Iran Arms Sales Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and Vice President George Bush, trying to erase any nuance differences in their statements, are moving to clear up the status of Bush's support of the arms sales to Iran, which Reagan said he did not oppose.

Reagan used three words Friday to soften the harsh "no" he used when asked at his news conference if Bush ever objected to the failed Iran arms policy.

Asked if he was satisfied with Bush's advice, Reagan replied, "Always have been."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, who once was Bush's press secretary, said Reagan told him, "The vice president expressed reservations during the process but he supported the decision and the policy."

Bush press secretary Larry Thomas said: "The vice president publicly and in several important forums has made clear that he supported the president's original decision, but he also said that he had reservations about certain aspects of the policy as it was being carried out and made those reservations known to the president. The two are not inconsistent."

AIDS Drug Gets Final Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration granted final approval Friday for prescription sale of AZT, the first drug known to be effective in treating AIDS patients.

The drug, whose full name is azidothymidine, will be marketed by Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., under the trade name Zidovudine.

Because supplies of the drug are limited, it will initially be reserved for patients with AIDS and AIDS-related complex who have the most severely weakened immunity to opportunistic infections or who have had a history of a type of pneumonia called Pneumocystis carinii pneumonia (PCP).

Assistant Secretary of Health Robert Windom, announcing the historic approval, said, "Today's action means that significant medical relief will be available to thousands of those afflicted with this dreaded disease."

Windom said that clinical data were insufficient to approve the use of Zidovudine for all AIDS-associated conditions but said most of the approximately 14,000 AIDS patients in the United States are expected to qualify for the drug, "particularly those who have had a serious opportunistic infection associated with AIDS."

Police To Recruit Homosexuals

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Police Department, responding to criticism from a homosexual rights group, said Friday it will actively recruit homosexual and lesbian officers before the next police entrance exams.

The department was considering a proposal for employment advertising submitted by Bay Windows, a homosexual publication serving New England, police spokeswoman Nancy Sterling Gleason said.

"We will be happy to attend any functions on recruitment," she said.

The department also plans to strengthen its presence in the homosexual community by sending liaison officers to attend more functions there, she said.

Last Commercial Delta Launched

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A $43 million Indonesian communications satellite is safely in orbit today, just in time for use in national elections next month, thanks to a smooth ride Friday atop NASA's final commercial Delta rocket.

The space agency's last fully-assembled Delta blasted off Friday on time at 5:22 p.m. EST and 26 minutes later, the $43 million Palapa satellite was safely in a preliminary egg-shaped orbit.

A final on-board rocket firing late today will circularize the orbit at 22,300 miles above the equator over Indonesia to complete the job.

"Very good. Very good!" Mizwar Muin, a spokesman for the Indonesian government, said as the Delta soared toward space. "We are proud for this success. This satellite is an important part of communications for our islands."

The satellite is the last commercial payload of the 26-year Delta program, although at least three more Deltas have been ordered by the Strategic Defense Initiative Office to boost "Star Wars" payloads into orbit.

Palapa, built by Hughes Aircraft Co., will be used as a backup for a falling Indonesian relay station already in orbit that cannot be counted on to handle the heavy communications load expected that nation's elections April 23.

Satellite communications are especially crucial to Indonesia because the Pacific nation is made up of 13,677 counted islands, 6,044 of which are inhabited, and many of them have no other link to the outside world.

"Many of the islands are only reachable by satellite," said Sukarno Abdulrachman, Palapa mission director. "If you lose traffic on a satellite you have no communications. If something happens (to the satellite already in space), then you have no spare in the sky."

Capable of handling 24,000 telephone conversations at once, Palapa had been scheduled for launch from a shuttle but the Challenger disaster grounded the program and stranded the costly relay station.

Israelis Deny Report Of U.S. Spy In Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli leaders denied a newspaper report Friday that the discovery of CIA espionage against Israel prompted a retaliatory operation using American Jew Jonathan Pollard to spy on the United States.

"The charge is complete and utter nonsense," Israel's state radio quoted Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin as saying. Foreign Minister Shimon Peres also denied the report in The Jerusalem Post, the radio said.

The Post story by Washington correspondent Wolf Blitzer said the CIA had a spy in Israel at least two years before Pollard was recruited in retaliation for the alleged U.S. spying.

The newspaper said its story was based on recent remarks by Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., a past chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, to American Jewish leaders.

In Washington, Durenberger said his remarks were based on published accounts and not information gained from his post on the intelligence panel and that he did not intend to offer a rationale for Israeli spying on the United States.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Canadian Free Lance Journalist Slain By Rocket In Nicaragua

MIAMI (UPI) — A Canadian free-lance journalist was killed by government forces while traveling with a Contra unit and a West German film maker inside Nicaragua, The Miami Herald reported today.

Peter Bertie, 40, of Toronto, died Thursday when a rocket from a Soviet-built government helicopter was fired at a Contra unit he had joined in northern Nicaragua, the paper said.

The attack came during a clash between rebel and government forces, a Contra leader told the paper.

Bertie's colleague, Dittmaer Hack of West Germany, escaped unharmed. The attack continued Friday, preventing recovery of Bertie's body.

Aristides Sanchez, a leader of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest rebel army fighting in Nicaragua, said four rebel soldiers protecting Bertie also died when three MIG-25 helicopters flew in to support a government ground force.

Carter Ends Egyptian Visit

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter ended his visit to Egypt, his departure accompanied by criticism from the White House for saying President Reagan preferred military might to diplomacy in foreign policy.

Carter flies to Damascus today for private talks with President Hafez Assad on Middle East peace and the foreign hostages in Lebanon.

Carter, who mediated the 1979 Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, said the Reagan administration had "lost the initiative" in achieving an overall settlement to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The remarks, made at the American Chamber of Commerce, drew criticism from White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, who said the administration was "deeply disappointed" by the charges.

Sharpeville Massacre Recalled

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Anti-apartheid organizations called for commemorations of the Sharpeville massacre, which occurred 27 years ago today, but police in Cape Town forbade all anniversary meetings.

The United Democratic Front and the Azanian People's Organization scheduled rallies and called on both blacks and whites to remember with prayers the deaths of 69 blacks fired upon by South African police during a March 21, 1960 demonstration against apartheid regulations.

The UDF and AZAPO called for all church bells to ring at 1 p.m. and 2 p.m., all automobile headlights to be turned on for one hour and for five minutes of special prayer in churches to commemorate "Heroes' Day."

In Cape Town Friday night, the acting divisional police chief, Brig. Nicholas Acker, banned any protest meetings in Cape Town or surrounding suburbs from today through March 24.

Rabin Denounces Spy Report

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin denounced as "utter nonsense" a report that Israel used American Jew Jonathan Pollard to spy on the United States in reprisal for CIA espionage against Israel.

Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres both vigorously denied the report Friday in The Jerusalem Post, Israel radio said.

"The charge is complete and utter nonsense," the state radio quoted Rabin as saying.

Pollard, 32, was sentenced to life in prison March 4 in Washington for selling U.S. secrets to Israel. His wife, Anne, 26, drew a five-year term as his accomplice.

The Pollard affair has shaken U.S.-Israeli relations, stirred up severe criticism of Israeli leaders at home and abroad and prompted much speculation about why an American Jew was recruited to spy for Israel on the Jewish state's closest ally.

Red Brigade Suspect In Murder

ROME (UPI) — The assassination by the Red Brigades of a general running Italy's air and space weaponry program fits into a pattern of Euroterrorist attacks on NATO defense officials, Italian authorities said.

A youth riding on a motorcycle shot and killed Gen. Licio Giorgieri, 61, late Friday as he was driven home in an official car. A wing of the Red Brigades claimed responsibility less than an hour later.

Italian President Francesco Cossiga called the ambush a "vile attack" and said Giorgieri was the victim of "detestable and inhuman violence."

Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini stated on RAI television late Friday night that Giorgieri was the first Italian general assassinated in more than a decade of terrorism.

Freed Hostage Describes Ordeal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A freed Saudi hostage, trembling with relief and exhaustion, described his 54-day ordeal at the hands of suspected pro-Iranian Moslem extremists and thanked Syrian President Hafez Assad for his delivery.

"I was very scared at the beginning, but today I am happy," Khaled Dib said after his release Friday in west Beirut.

The 23-year-old student was the second Saudi freed in three days. His release leaves 23 kidnapped foreigners missing and believed held in Lebanon — including Church of England envoy Terry Waite who disappeared in west Beirut Jan. 20.

"I would like to thank first President Hafez Assad ... and Mr. (Nabih) Berri for their efforts," said Dib, who trembled with relief and fatigue, at an impromptu news conference organized by Syrian officers at their headquarters in west Beirut.

...Stress

into foods, and food adulteration with sugar and salt," Lorenzo said. By controlling the purity of food and water you consume, you can go a long way to begin controlling the stress in your life, he said.

Internal stressors are those we place on ourselves, he continued — "like saying, I should be able to work 16 hours a day. It's all the 'self-talk' we do to ourselves, and it can be changed and reprogrammed. You have total control over the internal stressors."

You can physically recognize signs of stress in yourself or someone else.

"Stressed people seem never satisfied, always in a hurry, or 'not present' when they are talking with you," he began. "They have a tremendous sense of urgency, and a sense of unrelenting pressure that says, 'This has to be done. They often are red-faced, and sometimes there is hypertension (high blood pressure). They may have dark bags under the eyes, indicating stagnation of fluids in the kidneys. They also may have pain and stiffness in the neck, shoulders, head, etcetera. And there is a lack of emotional control — frequent outbursts, sometimes leading to physical violence." In the body, stress creates certain measurable changes, he added, quoting from Hans Selye, a Canadian researcher from the 1930s who wrote the popular manual, "The Stress of Life."

"There are three physical symptoms of stress," Lorenzo said. "They include the enlargement of the adrenal glands in the lower back (which secrete adrenalin), weakening of the lymphatic organs (which have to do with the immune system), and production of gastro-intestinal ulcers."

Stress actually stems from a primitive response called, "Fight or Flight," he said. And that means the body realizes it faces a threat or danger, and speeds up the adrenalin to either fight the danger or run from it. Shallow breathing and tensing of the muscles result. "We develop a sort of muscular armor," Lorenzo said. "And if the stress is chronic, it leads to the exhaustion stage."

The thing to learn, he said, is to alter the primitive stress response itself, since we no longer need the brunt of the response in order to fight jungle animals and threats of a physical kind.

He referred to the "Relaxation Response," as something to learn to replace Fight or Flight. In this response, the person recognizes his body is going into the alarm stage and he chooses to correct it. "He turns his consciousness inward, breathes deeply and rhythmically and if possible gets to a space by himself to let the body relax for a few moments," Lorenzo said.

Very importantly, he said, "Don't suppress emotions like anger and fear — that is like poisoning your body. Self disclosure (letting people know how you feel and think) is really very good for you. It's liberating, in fact, if done correctly. You're going from an area of non-freedom to freedom ... When facing a stressful circumstance, ask yourself, 'What's the worst that could happen?'"

In teaching, Lorenzo said, his method is "high touch, humanistic."

"It works with four basic life support patterns: the respiratory pattern, the thinking pattern, the nutritional pattern and the movement or exercise pattern."

The respiratory pattern is most important to the beginner, he said. He urges people to breathe from the bottom up — filling out the lower belly, the midsection, then the chest clear to the upper part, when you should notice an upward movement of the shoulders. Breathe in through the nose and exhale slowly, perhaps with a sigh, pausing between breaths. "This massages the internal organs, and when you breathe deeply it enhances the lymphatic system which cleans out the body and oxygenates the brain so you can think with greater clarity and relax the nervous system."

In the thinking pattern, he urges his students to "Program yourself for success without stress. Create positive self-talk and picture your world in a positive manner, unfolding good things."

Nutritionally, he asks that you give your body respect and the best nutrients possible. "Create a diet that is truly supportive of your effort and work in life," he said. "These things are physiologically and psychologically very affirming of life."

Finally, in the movement pattern he teaches a series of easy stress-relieving postures and stretches you can do in your office. He asks that you do some "movements" or exercise to remove the waste products in the blood and break down that "muscular armor."

And he also teaches massage and acupressure for complete relaxation. "The human touch is very healing, you know," he explained.

Finally, he offers his own description or definition of stress that works best for him.

"Stress is when the culture becomes antagonistic to the flow of life."

...Dole

you can get on an airplane, go anywhere you want and stay as long as you want. You can go to church and send your children to good schools ...

"I have never had one of my constituents write me a letter and say, 'Get me out of this country on a permanent basis,'" he said. "Sure, I get hate mail. Just the other day I got a letter that was so nasty I decided not to answer it at all. So I decided to send it back with a note saying, 'Some damn fool sent me this letter and signed your name!'"

"I put him down as 'undecided,'" Dole added to a burst of laughter.

Born in Russell, Kans., Dole was severely injured in World War II and received major decorations. He received his law degree from the University of Kansas and was elected prosecuting attorney in Kansas at age 26. In 1960 he was elected to Congress, and in 1968 to the U.S. Senate. In 1976, he was nominated for vice president on the ticket with Gerald Ford (and they carried Seminole County that year). In 1984, when Howard Baker stepped down, Dole took over as Senate Majority Leader.

Dole said he was back in the "farm country" speaking in Colby, Kans. one evening when a group of farmers sat in the first row and refused to applaud or show support. Then, he noticed they were wearing baseball caps that said, "Dump Dole."

"I put them down as undecided," he said again.

After his speech in which he outlined what he has done to help the farmers, and such, one of the anti-Dole capped men came up to him and said he had decided to vote for him. "The guy said, 'But I want you to listen to me,' and I did.

'The biggest problem in American is the $2.3 trillion national debt on which we are paying $200 billion a year in interest. If you think anything about your children or your grandchildren, you'd better elect someone who will make hard choices.'

"I never write anybody off, because those who may be your strongest opponents may be your strongest allies the next time around," he said. "And I'm of the opinion you have to listen to people, because, when you're too busy to listen you're probably, too busy to be in office." The crowd stood and applauded.

Later, he signed autographs and toured the audience briefly. When there was chatter about strong Republican women present, such as state party Chairman Jeanne Austin and Patty Brantley, wife of the Lieutenant Governor Bobby Brantley, Dole got up to the microphone and said, "I know what it's like to have a strong woman in the house." After uproarious laughter, he said, "Yeah, the Equal Rights Amendment is looking better to me all the time."

When asked how he got Howard Baker, who he said was his "best friend," to take the job as chief of staff (and thus get out of the presidential race), he said, "I called Nancy."

...Water

The cracking of the gavel on the table by Mayor Dick Fess temporarily quieted the hall. "We're not going to lose the decorum of the meeting with a lot of screaming and yelling," he said. The rates were raised based on the engineering study.

Dale said the study indicated that impact fees would be drawn up on a pay-as-you-go basis and that the commission has not done that.

"We're fantastically in the black," Dale said, and should start spending some of that money.

Commissioner Paul Tremel then suggested that the water questions should be looked into "in-house" so that staff would be able to give the answers to questions. The only way staff could get the answers would be if they generated the research into the matter, Tremel said.

"It's not an easy process, but when questions are being asked, staff will have the answers rather than having to call in consultants and others."

There should have been a plan for the money — a budget — for the impact fee fund, Norris said, and suggested that the commission should start deciding what to do with the money.

"There's plenty yet to be learned about impact fees," he said, advising the staff would begin working on it.

Apologizing for his "earlier flare-up," the younger Dale said that many of the people present had worked together for many years.

"We think of ourselves as family and sometimes brothers and sisters fight, and so do we," he said. Dale said he criticizes himself for sitting on the sidelines for too long. "Let's talk facts and figures," he said.

Dale said he did not want to step on anyone's toes but that he did not want to be afraid of criticizing either. There are too many holes in the impact fees and the commission needs to give the city manager direction.

"He's new here and we need to give him some direction."

Dale said he searched city hall for five or six weeks in anticipation of the water system discussion in an effort to find answers to his questions.

"All I came up with are folders of studies," he said while holding a cardboard folder up to the commission to see. "These represent taxpayers dollars."

Fess and Commissioner John Percy agreed that answers had to be sought concerning the entire city's water system. A recommendation was then approved for Norris to continue his search for answers with hopes for a work session "entirely on the water situation" sometime within the next 60 days.

Webster and Dale shook hands and joked with one another during a break in the meeting. Webster said Friday that he's known Dale for years, they are friends and that a disagreement at a meeting would not change that.

Fess said Friday the city's water system is in excellent financial shape. Six years ago, we changed the whole system and put money in reserve to allow for breakage of pipes and other such emergencies. He added that there was $400,000 in escrow as a cushion in case growth stops due to high interest rates or a down turn in the economy, or if improvements or repairs are needed in the system. "we'll be prepared," he said.

Citizens think the commissioners are "supposed to be experts on everything," Fess said. The commission has been "under the gun" for a long time to prepare for the growth in Lake Mary. "It's tough," he said. "we all get frustrated."

NASA Scientists Blast Space Station Design

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The Space Station's design is totally inadequate and should be drastically redesigned, members of a scientists' committee charged in a blistering criticism of NASA.

The chief scientist for the Space Station called the criticism from the NASA-appointed group "quite a shock."

Members of the committee made their objections known in a series of letters and at a fact-finding meeting at Stanford University Friday. They said that unless NASA changed both the station and the space transportation fleet, the nation could lose an entire generation in space research.

They blamed the problems on NASA's inability to cope adequately with the space station program in the wake of last year's Challenger Disaster.

Banks noted at the meeting that the budget for space science has been cut by half in recent years. He said, "There needs to be a fundamental ... revision of Space Station plans."

Dow Sets New High

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street welcomed spring with continued optimism and the Dow industrials convincingly topped the 2,300 level for the first time, part of a spectacular 437 point rally so far this year.

Fears that the so-called triple witching hour would superimpose an artificial loss on the market Friday were forgotten when the market soared 33.95 to close at a record 2333.52.

The quarterly "witching" occurrence introduces a possibility of unusual gyrations in the stock averages when stock index futures contracts come due and options on those futures contracts and on individual stocks simultaneously expire.

One reason the witching hour did not provoke panic buying or selling was that the week's previously strong market advance gave traders confidence that buy orders would overwhelm the sell orders at Friday's close.

"The whole thing went reasonably well," a managing partner of Miller Tabak Hirach, Jeffrey Miller, said. The blue chip Dow average gained nearly 75 points during the week — establishing four daily records in the process — and has risen about 23 percent or 437 1/2 points since the first of the year.

Tops Seeds, LSU Roll In NCAA Tourney

United Press International
The NCAA Tournament Selection Committee, reviled by some for the teams it omitted, did an admirable job naming the top seeds. With eight of the original 64 teams remaining, all the No. 1 regional picks are still playing.

Friday night, top-seeded Indiana in the Midwest beat No. 5 seed Duke 88-82, while in the West, No. 1 seed Nevada-Las Vegas beat No. 12 seed Wyoming 92-78. Also advancing to the regional finals were No. 10 seed Louisiana State, a 83-58 winner over No. 3 seed DePaul in the Midwest, and No. 2 seed Iowa in the West, which beat No. 6 seed Oklahoma 93-91 in overtime.

Saturday, top-seeded North Carolina meets second-seeded Syracuse in the East final, and in the Southeast, No. 1 seed Georgetown will play Big East rival and No. 8 seed Providence for the right to advance to the Final Four.

Louisville Coach Denny Crum criticized the selection committee bitterly when his team was left out of the tournament. He hinted politics were being played in selecting some teams. Whether that is the case, they committee has done well with the favorites.

The lowest seed remaining is LSU, No. 10 in the Midwest. Coach Dale Brown's team, which plays his vaunted "Freak Defense," was a surprise qualifier to the Final Four last year. They are 24-14 this year and the Hoosiers will be the prohibitive favorite.

"We may be underdogs on paper," said Brown. "But we sure don't feel like we're underdogs."

Basketball

Louisiana State 83, DePaul 58

At Cincinnati, Nikita Wilson scored 24 points and Anthony Wilson added 17, including a critical basket with 23 seconds to go, to lift Louisiana State. DePaul ended the season 28-3.

"Our intent was not to let anyone else shoot the ball other than Anthony or Nikita in the final six minutes," LSU's Brown said. "We wanted to get the inside shooting and the only one who was allowed to take the outside shot was Anthony."

Indiana 86, Duke 82

At Cincinnati, Steve Alford scored 10 of his 18 points in the final seven minutes to lead the Hoosiers. Indiana also received 21 points from Rick Calloway and Keith Smart. Duke was led by Tommy Amaker with 23 points and Danny Ferry with 20. Alford and Smart came up with consecutive baskets, and Alford added a free throw with 1:11 left to give the Hoosiers an 83-76 bulge.

"I wasn't cutting right until the final six or seven minutes," Alford said. "I was able to get my shots after that."

Iowa 93, Oklahoma 91

At Seattle, Kevin Gamble took a pass from B.J. Armstrong and sank a 21-foot straight-away jumper with two seconds remaining in overtime, allowing Iowa to defeat Oklahoma. The Hawkeyes overcame a 16-point deficit in the first half. Gamble finished with 28 points. Tim McCallister, who had 7 3-pointers, led Oklahoma with 26 points.

"I knew B.J. would be looking for me," Gamble said. "so I was ready. I got my feet under me and I felt good about it when I released it. And it went in."

Nevada-Las Vegas 92, Wyoming 78

At Seattle, senior Armon Gilliam scored a career-high 38 points as No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas struggled. Freddie Banks added 14 for the Rebels. Fennis Dembo had 27 points and Eric Leckner scored 18 for Wyoming, which led 43-42 with 18 minutes to go in the game.

"We started out the game playing absolutely super, but then we let up," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "I think we beat a very good team."

Seminole Trims Pats, 6-5

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Coming into Friday night's baseball game between Seminole and Lake Brantley, neither the Seminoles nor the Patriots had been hitting the baseball very well.

Both teams had been shut out the night before, and the game figured to be a pitching duel.

As it turned out, the two teams didn't hit well, combining for only 11 hits. The two clubs did combine, however, for 10 errors, causing the game to be an extremely sloppy one.

Seminole took advantage of six Patriot errors, posting a 6-5 come-from-behind Seminole Athletic Conference baseball victory before 188 chilly fans at Lake Brantley.

The victory ups the Seminoles' to 5-4 overall, and 2-2 in the SAC. The setback drops the hard-luck Patriots to 4-10 and 1-3.

"I think that this win is going to turn things around for us," said. "We were down a couple of times, but we got some clutch hits when we needed them. The big hits is what this team has been waiting for."

Seminole will return to action on Saturday when the 'Noles host the New Smyrna Beach Barricudas. Brantley, meanwhile, will return to action in the Lyman Easter Tournament next week.

"This is a very tough loss to swallow," Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith said. "It is especially tough to take because we literally threw the game away."

With the score tied at 4 with two runs already in the sixth inning, Seminole second baseman Jeff Blake stuck out. Lake Brantley catcher Jerry Thurston picked up the dropped third strike and threw the ball into right field, allowing Joey Coral, who singled earlier in the inning, to score. Blake scored later in the inning on an RBI single by Gary Derr.

Seminole pitcher Michael "Spud" Edwards (2-0) went the distance for the 'Noles, giving up five hits. Edwards fanned six while walking four.

"I felt pretty good out there tonight," Edwards, who threw 118 pitches, said. "This was an important win for us. Our bats came alive tonight."

Lake Brantley pitcher Ed Dickmyer (1-4) went six innings

Raines: Talks With Astros Will Continue

Tim Raines said Friday night that negotiations will continue with the Houston Astros but nothing has developed yet.

"My agent (Tom Reich) and the Astros talked Friday, but that is about it," Raines said. "I am not optimistic about a contract with anybody this weekend."

Raines, who become a free agent after six all-star seasons with the Montreal Expos, said he is anxious to play. "There isn't much of Spring Training left," he said. "I hope to sign with someone soon."

Along with the Astros, Raines said the San Diego Padres and Atlanta Braves are still in the running for his services. — Sam Cook

Laszaic Collars Oviedo's 1-2-3 Lake Mary Stays Unbeaten In Conference With 4-0 Victory

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — The secret to beating Oviedo's Lions is as simple as 1-2-3.

Leadoff hitter Mark Merchant, second-place batter Tony Belflower and No. 3 man Glenn Reichle are the Lions' meat-and-potatoes players. When they hit, the Lions back up their lofty No. 5 ranking in the Florida Sports Writers Class 3A Prep Baseball Poll.

Friday night, however, 1-2-3 met more than they could handle in Lake Mary's Anthony Laszaic. The Rams' senior right-hander did not allow a hit to the Oviedo trio while pitching Lake Mary to a 4-0 Seminole Athletic Conference victory before 149 fans at Lake Mary High School.

Laszaic, blending his fastball and curve ball perfectly, allowed five hits, struck out seven and walked four to improve his record to 4-0. The Rams, ranked No. 4 in the Class 4A poll, won for the 11th time in 12 outings and remained one-half game ahead of Lake Howell in the SAC with a 4-0 record.

The Lions fell to 8-3 overall and 2-3 in the SAC. "We're out of the conference race," Oviedo coach Howard Mable said. "We'll just have to go for a good record and try to peak at district time again." Oviedo made it to the Final Four last year.

The Rams did not exactly tear the cover off the ball against right-hander Scott Bowers (3-2), but Bowers lack of control got him into trouble when the Rams picked up a first-inning run and three more in the third.

"Bowers just never got his rhythm," Mable said. "He's usually a good, control pitcher but he couldn't find the plate today."

Laszaic could, though, and controlling the dangerous Merchant in two key situations turned out to be crucial. He struck out Merchant in the first and retired him on a groundout in the third.

In the fifth, Merchant, who several scouts project to be a No. 1 selection in the June Free Agent Draft, came to the plate with runners at first and third. The switch-hitting senior smashed a hard one-hopper at second baseman Wes Weger who tossed to shortstop Shane Letterio for a double play to retire the side.

"I threw Mark (Merchant) a lot of different pitches," Laszaic said. "I tried to keep him guessing."

Again in the seventh, Merchant came to the plate with two runners on but Laszaic retired him on a groundball to second to end the game.

"Anthony really wanted this game," Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle said. "He threw strikes today. When he throws strikes, he's an awful good pitcher."

Oviedo's Gary Pelczar was the only Lion to effectively solve Laszaic. The left-handed hitter outfielder slapped three singles and stole a base.

Letterio, who singled, scored two runs and stole two bases, drew a walk to open the game. Bowers then walked Kelly Hysell before Ryan Lisle, who led the Rams' attack with a single and a double, slapped a single to right center to load the bases.

Laszaic then walked on four pitches to force home Letterio for a 1-0 lead. Bowers escaped further damage by striking out Eric Birle and inducing Weger to ground into a Belflower-to-Jon Cox-to Reichle double play.

Bowers retired the side in order in the second but ran into trouble again with Letterio in the third. The senior shortstop singled, then stole second and third as Hysell walked. Lisle followed with a double to plate Letterio for a 2-0 lead, sending Hysell to third. Hysell then scored on a passed ball.

Mable yanked Bowers after he walked Laszaic in favor of promising sophomore Jody Spelman. Spelman got Birle to hit a groundball to third, but when Lisle broke for the plate and was hung up, Oviedo did not execute the rundown play correctly, leaving the bases loaded. Merchant, who moved to shortstop when Spelman came on, then kicked a groundball to allow Lisle to score for a 4-0 lead.

Lake Mary appeared to have another run when Steve Shakar's flyball scored pinch-runner Mike Smith but Smith failed to touch home plate as he collided with catcher Belflower and was called out.

Spelman, who allowed just one hit in four scoreless frames, retired Billy Jenkins to ease out of trouble.

Although Merchant was collared at the plate, he did turn in the defensive gem of the game in the fifth. With Laszaic on second, Merchant went deep in the hole for Weger's infield single which he smothered with a diving stop. When Laszaic turned third base too far, Merchant gunned him down with a perfect peg.

JUCO: Midland Wins By 30

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Todd Duncan scored 24 points Friday night to power Midland (Texas) to a 107-77 rout of Herkimer (N.Y.) and into the final of the national junior college tournament.

Also Friday, Albert Burch hit a layup at the buzzer to boost Brewton Parker (Ga.) to an 83-81 victory over Mattatuck (Conn.) and John Turner scored 8 points in overtime to spark Allegany (Md.) to a 79-75 decision over Westark (Ark.). In addition, Julius Denton and Scott Hollywood hit for 14 points apiece to propel Kankakee (Ill.) past Westchester (N.Y.) 82-64.

Midland, 33-2, will play the winner of the late game Friday night between No. 2 Southern Idaho and Mesa (Ariz.).

Hill Masters 'Hounds'

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Greg Hill does not overpower you with a blazing fastball. He does not paralyze you with a sharp-breaking curve ball. Nor does he befuddle you with a dancing knuckle ball.

All Greg Hill does is beat you. Lake Howell's stylish senior right-hander made Lyman's Greyhounds victim No. 6 Friday night, scattering nine hits as the Silver Hawks claimed a 6-3 Seminole Athletic Conference victory before 89 fans at Lyman High School.

Hill, who modestly gives most of the credit to the hitters and defense, has almost singlehandedly kept the Hawks (4-1) alive in the conference race where they trail Lake Mary (4-0) by one-half game. Lyman fell to 6-7 with its third successive setback and 0-4 in the SAC.

"Our hitting has been great just about every time I've pitched," Hill, a tight end on Howell's blockbuster football team, said. "The defense has been good, too. Those two double plays helped a lot tonight."

Hill struck out four, walked one and hit one while using the DPs to escape jams in the first and sixth innings. Although he had trouble with Lyman's two best hitters — Chris Radcliff and Chris Brock (three hits each) — he mastered the rest of the lineup, getting out the hitters he needed to get out.

"Greg has excellent off-speed pitches," Howell catcher Chris Norton said. "His location is real good, too. Nothing ever bothers him either. He pitches great in tense situations."

Hill's most intense situation came in the seventh Friday night. Holding a four-run lead entering the frame, pinch-hitter Noah Talesnick reached on an error and Marty Martin blooped a single to left with one out. Hill then induced Johnny Luce to ground into a fielder's choice for the second out.

Radcliff followed with a line single to left to pull Lyman within 6-3. Brock then lined a deep drive down the left field line which curved foul over the fence. He then swatted a single through the left side to load the bases, but Hill, undaunted, retired Kenny Jackson on a groundball to end the game.

"I never expected that I would be six and zero," Hill said. "But I love it."

Coach Birto Benjamin is loving it, too. "Hill just keeps on rolling along," Benjamin said. "I told him before the season, if he would be consistent we would win. We play real well behind him."

Lake Howell, 11-5 overall, returns to action Monday in the Lyman Spring Break Tournament against Lake Mary at 5 p.m. "We'll see if we can stay on the field with them Monday," Benjamin said. "Then, we'll really be ready for them when the conference game (Wednesday, April 1)."

Lyman coach Bob McCullough, upset with his team's shoddy infield defense, said there will be some lineup alterations. "We've given some of these seniors 13 games," he said. "That's enough. We have got to tighten up our infield defense if we expect to challenge by district time."

Lake Howell jumped on loser Ross Urshan for one run in the second and another in the fourth for a 2-0 lead. In the second, Ernest Martinez beat out an infield hit, then came all the way around to score when Urshan

SMU Abolishes 21-Member Board Of Governors

DALLAS (UPI) — Southern Methodist University's controversial Board of Trustees has given way to a 12-member executive committee that includes faculty and church representatives in addition to Dallas business leaders.

The 21-member governing board was abolished Friday by SMU's 71-member Board of Trustees, which vowed to take a more active role in governing the scandal-ridden university.

It was as chairman of the Board of Governors, which has been dominated for years by Dallas businessmen, that Texas Gov. Bill Clements agreed to continue improper payments to SMU football players — a decision that ultimately led to the temporary dismantling of the school's football team.

The interim panel named Friday includes seven members of the old Board of Governors but also includes two SMU administrators — interim president William B. Stallcup and provost Ruth Mogan — the president of the SMU Faculty Senate, theology professor Leroy Howe, and Earl Carter, executive secretary of the South Central Jurisdiction of the United Methodist Church.

Dallas oilman Ray Hunt chairs the 12-member committee chosen by trustees, who said they would take a greater role in overseeing policy at SMU.

Athletics

Also, the board of trustees will be reduced to 36 members, will meet every other month and will be assisted by two groups — a 12-member executive committee and a "university board" of close to 100 members.

Friday's changes were adopted at the suggestion of a university committee chaired by the Rev. Leighton Farrell, pastor of Highland Park United Methodist Church of Dallas.

"Due to the actions and statements made by some, the board had lost credibility," Farrell said. "The (SMU) community had lost confidence in it, and when that happens it is best to do away with it."

"The university board will serve as an oversight committee," Farrell added. "This university has never had a checks and balance system. But it will now."

Hunt said the changes were more than cosmetic.

"I think this is a watershed event," Hunt said. "A fundamental change in path was adopted. When the history of this school is written 20 years from now, it will be said that SMU went through six months of hell. But out of that came action that propelled us forward."

The decision to abolish the Board of Governors, which was created by SMU trustees in 1983, came as a result of a scandal that spread from SMU's football program to the administration.

SMU's 1987 football season was canceled by the NCAA last month because payments to players continued after SMU was placed on probation in 1985. Soon after the latest sanctions were imposed, Clements admitted he authorized continuation of the payments that the NCAA had demanded be stopped.

He said other members of the board of governors participated in and agreed with the decision but has declined to cite names. Only one member of the Board of Governors, Dallas banker James Stewart III, has said he knew of Clements' decision.

MORE ALLEGATIONS ROLL IN

DALLAS (UPI) — Southern Methodist University has hired a private detective to investigate an anonymous report that boosters provided money but also cooed for sexual favors to football recruits, a school official said Friday.

The detective also is looking into allegations that football players had other students take leave for them, said Leon Bennett, the school's vice president for legal affairs.

"I can confirm that," he said. "We've gone outside. It's an internal investigation, but we've gone outside."

Bennett said the investigation began this week after an anonymous tip from a student, who said boosters arranged for female students to have sex with high school recruits.

When asked if he considered the information credible, Bennett said: "Who knows? I just think the university is in such a vulnerable position at this point that we can't just afford to ignore those kinds of allegations that have been reported."

Texas' Mitchell Sets U.S. Mark

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — When Betsy Mitchell looked out of the water at the scoreboard, the Texas junior realized she had fulfilled a dream with her American-record performance.

Mitchell set the 100-yard backstroke mark of 53.98 in qualifying Friday at the NCAA swimming and diving championships. Sue Walsh, a former North Carolina star, set the previous American standard of 54.81 in 1983.

"To break Sue Walsh's record is as close to a lifelong dream as there is for me. It has really been the driving force for my collegiate career and to have done it is fantastic," said Mitchell, who went on to win the event with a time of 54.18 seconds in the finals.

Other U.S. records were set Friday by California's Mary T. Meagher, the Texas 200-yard freestyle relay team and the Stanford 400-yard medley relay team. Texas junior Tracey McFarlane, a Canadian seeking U.S. citizenship, added a U.S. open and NCAA record in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Texas, seeking a fourth straight team title, had 438 points to 396.5 for second-place Stanford entering Saturday night's finale in Indiana University Natatorium.

McFarlane won the 100 breaststroke in 1:00.68 to surpass the mark of 1:01.13 set by Tracy Caulkins in 1981. McFarlane also improved the NCAA mark of 1:01.28, which she had set in Friday's preliminary heats.

"It felt a lot easier tonight than this morning," McFarlane said. "This morning I was a lot more nervous about it. I didn't think I could do it (set a record) coming into this meet. But after this morning, I knew I usually swim better at night. But I didn't expect to beat it by that much."

Swimming

Meagher set the U.S. record in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 52.42 seconds, breaking the mark of 52.69 set at last year's NCAA meet by Stanford's Jenna Johnson. Meagher pulled away in the final 25 yards to beat runner-up Johnson by more than one second.

"I held my stroke together the whole race and I was very pleased with the time," said Meagher. "It really boosted my confidence because it had been five years since I swam my best time."

The Texas freestyle relay team of Jeanne Doolan, Courtney Madsen, Carrie Steinselner and Ann Drolson won in 1:31.01, cutting .11 of a second off the previous U.S. mark set by Stanford in 1981. In the medley relay, the Stanford team of Johnson, Susan Rapp, Michelle Donahue and Aimee Berzins edged Texas to win in 3:38.17, smashing the previous mark of 3:40.99 set in 1982 by Florida.

The meet's biggest surprise has been Clemson freshman Miltzi Kremer, who won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:45.99, edging Meagher and Florida's Mary Wayte. Kremer, a freshman, had not won any kind of national title until an upset triumph in the 500-yard freestyle on Thursday.

"I don't think I'll be able to wake up from this," Kremer said. "I came into the season hoping to get the cut and now everything is falling together."

Janelle Boese of Ohio State won the 400-yard individual medley in 4:14.63, outstretching 1986 winner Patty Sabo of Texas by .36 of a second.

Ready Reedy

Lake Mary's Reedy Metz has her eyes on the ball as she takes a cut in Thursday's Seminole Athletic Conference game against Oviedo. Metz and the Lady Rams came through with a big 7-1 victory over Oviedo to cause a three-way tie for the conference lead between Lake Mary, Oviedo and Lake Brantley, all with 3-1 records.

Hawkeyes Go After 10th Title

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Coach Dan Gable's Iowa team is counting on four wrestlers in today's finals to salvage the Hawkeyes' quest for an unprecedented 10th straight NCAA title.

The Hawkeyes have reigned as NCAA champions since 1978 but trail cross-state rival Iowa State by 14.5 points after Friday night's semifinals. Three of the four Iowa wrestlers who advanced into the finals in the 10 individual weight classes are battling head-to-head against Iowa State wrestlers today.

Iowa State, with 109 points, won all five of its semifinal matches to advance five wrestlers into the finals of the 57th annual NCAA wrestling championships. With the perfect semifinal showing, the Cyclones transformed a 4.75-point lead after Friday afternoon's quarterfinal round into a comfortable cushion after the night's semifinals.

Iowa, bidding to become the only team in any sport to win 10 straight NCAA titles, rallied from fourth place after two rounds into second place with 94.5 points. Penn State stood in third place with 72.25 points and Oklahoma State was fourth with 65.5.

Iowa State is the last school other than Iowa to hold the title, winning it last in 1977. The Cyclones dropped the title in 1978 by a half point and Iowa has not relinquished the championship since.

In a key semifinal matchup of 158-pounders, Iowa State's Stewart Carter won a decision over Iowa's John Heffernan, who had upset top-seeded Rob Koll of North Carolina in the second round. Heffernan was the only Iowa wrestler to lose in the semifinals.

"I wanted to win for the team, plus I wanted to do it for myself," Carter said. "Beating Iowa gave us the points they could have had. It's a close race."

Iowa's team is one of three in NCAA history to have won nine straight national titles. Yale's golf team turned the feat from 1905-13, as did Southern California's track team from 1935-43.

In today's Hawkeyes-Cyclones matches, defending 128-pound NCAA champion and top seed Brad Penrith of Iowa faces Bill Kelly of Iowa State, defending 150-pound national champion Jim Heffernan of Iowa squares off with top-seeded Tim Krieger of Iowa State and top seeded 167-pounder Royce Alger of Iowa meets second-seeded Kevin Jackson of Iowa State.

The other Iowa State finalists are Carter and 190-pounder Eric Voelker. The fourth Iowa finalist is 177-pounder Rico Chiapparelli.

Chiapparelli's opponent in the finals will be Darryl Pope of California State-Bakersfield. Pope was the only grappler to win by pinfall in the semifinals, topping Reggie Wilson of Chicago State in 5:52.

Ricky Bonomo of Bloomsburg State, in the hunt for a third straight NCAA title at 118 pounds, faces Penn State Jim Martin in today's finals.

Edinborough State's Dean Hall scored a major semifinal upset in the heavyweight class by winning an 11-6 decision over top seeded Tom Erikson of Oklahoma State, who lost in the semifinals for the second straight year.

Hall will meet No. 2 seed Carlton Haselrig of Pittsburgh-Johnstown in the finals. The two have split their four career

Midland outscored Herkimer 21-8 in the final four minutes of the first half to lead 52-39. Herkimer closed to 57-45 with 16:30 remaining, but got no closer.

Herkimer, 32-3, was led by Mitchell Williams with 25 points. Calvin Griggs chipped in 21 and Tim Smith added 20.

Lincoln Minor had 21 points for Midland, Daron Blaylock scored 20, Alex Stanwood 13 and Billy Ray Smith 10. Brewton Parker 88, Mat-tatuck 81.

Mattatuck's Paxton Cobb missed a 30-foot jump shot and Brewton Parker called timeout with three seconds left and the score tied. Lee Campbell took the ensuing inbound pass and fed Burch for the winning basket.

Campbell, who finished with 15 points, hit two free throws with 50 seconds left to tie the score 81-81. Brewton Parker trailed by as many as 11 points — 45-34 — in the first half.

Brewton Parker, 32-3, advances to Saturday's fifth-place game against San Jacinto (Texas), the tournament's defending champion.

35th Sebring Revs Up

SEBRING (UPI) — The 35th 12 Hours of Sebring, the nation's oldest sports car race, gets under way today with a field of nine high tech prototypes and about 60 other race cars.

The sleek, low-slung prototypes qualified for the first nine positions on the starting grid and were led by Al Holbert's Porsche 962, piloted by co-driver

Calvin McDowell finished with 17 points for Brewton Park, and Roger Scott and Burch had 10. Brent Dabbs led Mattatuck, 27-3, with 21 points and 8 rebounds. Allegany 79, Westark 75.

Trailing 61-49 with 4:40 remaining in regulation, Westark outscored Allegany 17-5 to tie the score 68-66. Lewis Jones scored 10 of his 31 points in that span to help force overtime.

Turner, who finished with 17 points, and Rudy Archer each converted two free throws to push Allegany ahead 77-71. A basket by Turner gave Allegany an 8-point bulge before Roderick Brown and Tim Brewer hit field goals in the last 23 seconds for Westark to close out the scoring.

Allegany, 27-3, advances into Saturday's seventh-place game against Kankakee. Westark, 29-11, was ousted from the double-elimination tournament. Kankakee 83, Westchester 64.

Kankakee used a 17-5 spurt in the final five minutes to cruise to victory. For the game, the Cavaliers made 59 percent of their shots, including 7 of 7 by Denton.

Mark Bowen scored 13 points for Kankakee, 34-5, and Kevin Footes had 11.

Westchester, 27-10, received 16 points from Ed Walker, and 12 points and 11 rebounds from Mike Nembhard.

Chip Robinson

Robinson covered the revamped 4.1-mile course in 2:02.981 at 120.3 mph to take the pole in the International Motor Sports Association Camel GT event.

Qualifying second aboard another Porsche 962 were 1986 Indianapolis 500 winner Bobby Rahal.

Thorpe Scorches 63 At USF G; Stephenson Takes Tucson Lead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jim Thorpe could hardly have phrased it any better when asked about Dick Mast, the leader after 36 holes of the $500,000 USF&G Classic golf tournament.

"I don't know much about Dick's game, but at 12-under he must have some game," Thorpe said Friday after scorching Lakewood Country Club's par-72, 7,080-yard course with a sizzling 63 to pull within two shots of Mast.

Mast, 108th on the 1987 PGA money list with $13,373, fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Bob Gilder with two rounds left. Mast, who led after the first round with an 8-under 64, birdied two of the final four holes to reach the midway mark at 12-under.

"I'm hitting the ball real solid," he said. "That momentum's a funny thing."

Gilder, who set the course record at Lakewood with a 62 in 1979, also shot 68 Friday to finish two rounds at 133.

Ben Crenshaw and Ronnie Black joined Thorpe at 134. Thorpe, who said he has been struggling this year, one-putted 13 greens Friday.

"I made some 18- and 20-foot birdie putts today, and I don't normally do that," said Thorpe. "It was a good, solid round."

"The conditions were just ideal again," Crenshaw said. "Perfect weather and perfect greens. There's no excuse for missing putts."

Mike Sullivan, who started Friday's round at 69, carded a 66 to tie Hal Sutton from

Golf

Shreveport, La., at 135. Sullivan carded four birdies on the back nine and finished without a bogey.

"I've got a lot of confidence in my play right now," said Sutton, who ran off five straight birdies after he made the turn. "I feel like I'm a real contender going into the next two days."

Brett Upper, one of Gilder's playing partners, shot 69 despite a double-bogey on the par-4, 380-yard 12th hole and was at 136. He was tied with Brian Clair, who shot 70.

Gilder, who began Friday's round at 7-under, collected three birdies on the front nine, including a 50-foot put at the par-3, 165-yard eighth hole.

"I'm still not real comfortable with it, but I'm scoring well," said Gilder, whose last PGA triumph came at the 1983 Phoenix Open. "My short game is excellent. I feel confident, I feel comfortable and I'm not nervous."

Defending champion Calvin Peete, who shot 74 Thursday, regrouped to shoot 68 and survive the cut of 1-under 143. Nick Price and Nick Faldo are at 137, and Curtis Strange and Tom Watson are at 138.

Eighty-six pros and one amateur — Louisiana State University golf coach Buddy Alexander — made the cut. The 87 golfers are the most to make any tournament cut this year.

Falling to survive the cut were 1984 USF&G champion Bob Eastwood at 144, Lon Hinkle at 145, Larry Rinker and Don Pooley at 146, Bill Rogers at 149 and George Burns at 151.

PUTTER LIFTS STEPHENSON
TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Usually, when Jan Stephenson is disappointed in her golf game, her putter is to blame.

As the 35-year-old Australian held onto the lead at the halfway point of the $200,000 Tucson Open, however, it was her putter that enabled her to shoot a second round 70, two-under-par.

Stephenson, who held a two-stroke edge after the first round, had two birdies and 16 pars Friday to remain the leader by two strokes with a 36-hole total of 137.

Still, believing she could have done better, Stephenson suspected her driver was holding her back.

"I didn't drive it like I can," she said. "I can't believe I'm worrying more about my driver than my putter."

"My putter is still working, I didn't miss any close ones, but I was frustrated that I didn't have any close birdie attempts."

The 1983 Tucson Open champ, Stephenson finished the second round two shots ahead of Sally Quinlan and four strokes ahead of Lauri Peterson and Betsy King.

Former Tucson Open champion Chris Johnson and Amy Alcott are six shots off the pace.

Quinlan got back-to-back birdies on the second and third holes and again on the ninth and tenth holes to shoot a four-under par 68 for the day.

Howser Alert After Three-Hour Brain Surgery

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Dick Howser, former Kansas City Royals manager, hopes to return home in about a week following Friday's operation to remove a cancerous tumor from his brain.

Howser was "alert, awake and responsive" and "tolerated the surgery very well," officials at Huntington Memorial Hospital said after the three-hour operation. Howser's third since the tumor was diagnosed last summer.

In a statement read by hospital spokeswoman Nancy Drees, officials said "during the surgery there was some evidence of tumor growth and his neurosurgeons were able to remove the tumor."

Howser, 49, underwent a second immunostimulation, an experimental brain surgery in which cancer-killing cells are injected into the area of a malignant brain tumor.

During the operation, Dr. Skip Jacques and Donald Freshwater "administered another application of Howser's own lymphocytes, which have been multiplied and stimulated in culture" since the neurosurgeons conducted the first experimental procedure last Dec. 5, the statement said.

The doctors successfully placed the lymphocytes, which had been fortified to enhance their effectiveness against the tumor, into the tumor cavity, the statement said.

"We're happy and relieved he came through a third time and we hope he continues to have a strong recovery," the Royals said in a statement read by spokesman Jeff Coy.

Howser was first diagnosed as having a brain tumor a few days after managing the American League All-Stars last July and underwent a left frontal craniotomy July 22 at Kansas City.

Doctors involved in the initial surgery decided not to remove all of the two-inch tumor, which was later determined to be malignant, from the left frontal lobe because there was a chance they could damage part of the brain.

Dean Vogelhaar, a Royals spokesman, said Howser earlier this month underwent a brain scan and learned there was some evidence of growth in the tumor. After talking with doctors, Howser decided to return to California for the latest operation.

Howser may be in the hospital for about a week following the latest operation, but Vogelhaar refused to speculate on when Howser might return to Kansas City. The Royals open their season April 6 at home against the White Sox.

Howser resigned as manager Feb. 23, two days after the club's first practice in Fort Myers, Fla., saying he needed to devote all his energy to recuperating. At the time, the Royals said Howser would continue to work for the club in another capacity. They have not announced what that job will be.

Howser managed the Royals to the 1985 World Series title. Before joining Kansas City in 1981, Howser piloted the New York Yankees.

and took the loss for Brantley. Dickmyer gave up seven hits. The senior righty fanned 10 and walked three. "I thought that I pitched pretty well tonight," Dickmyer, who threw 131 pitches, said. "But I didn't get a lot of help from my defense." Randy Green pitched the final inning for Brantley.

After three scoreless innings, Lake Brantley got on the board first with a run. Green was walked by Edwards. Mark Gabrovic came in to run for Green. Junior Greg Ebbert, who came into the game hitting .371, doubled to center, scoring the hustling Gabrovic. Gabrovic was stealing on the play and never stopped running.

Seminole retallied in the top of the fifth with its first runs in 11 innings. The Seminoles scored a pair of runs to take the lead. Joey Corst reached first on an error by first-baseman Ebbert. Corst advanced to second on a past ball. He scored when Jeff Blake hit an RBI double to right, scoring Corst. The RBI was Blake's 11th of the year. Ron Blake then singled to center, scoring his brother and giving the Seminoles a brief 2-1 edge.

The Pats came back with three big runs in the bottom of the fifth. Center-fielder Jimmy Waring reached when Seminole third-baseman Jeff Joyce lost a pop-up in the lights. Thurston then blooped a single to left, moving Waring to third.

Jim "Mingo" Morse then got ahold of an inside fastball and took it over the left-field fence for a 400 foot three-run homer. The three RBI gave Morse a county leading 20 for the year. The round-tripper was his second so far this year.

"I basically knew it was gone when I hit it," Morse said. "This was a tough loss for us. We just can't seem to hold a lead."

Seminole took the lead for good with four runs in the sixth.

"I was real proud of the way Michael came back after giving up that homer," Ferrell said. "He hung in there and did a heck of a job."

Brian McGinnis, Dave Westgate and Matt Lawton came through with solid efforts in their three-inning stints on the mound as they combined on a four-hitter in Seminole Community College's 4-1 victory over South Florida Friday afternoon at SCC.

McGinnis started on the mound for SCC Friday and, although he didn't get the win, was effective as he allowed one run on two hits and struck out two over the first three frames.

Westgate, the winner, then came on in the fourth and retired all nine men he faced with three strike outs. Lawton picked up the save as he went the last three innings, allowed two hits, struck out one and walked three.

The Raiders took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Danny Moore's swinging bunt went for a base hit. Moore then stole second, took third on Kevin Hill's groundout and scored when Chris Gage singled to right.

South Florida scored its run in the top of the second and the score remained deadlocked at 1-1 until the bottom of the sixth. Gage drew a walk to lead off the sixth but South Florida starter Ben Parrish then registered two outs. Jeff Fortune kept the inning alive for SCC with a base hit to left and Troy Blevins walked to load the bases. Gage then scored what turned out to be the winning run when Charles Brookes reached on an infield error.

SCC, which had nine hits in the game, tacked on a pair of insurance runs in the bottom of the seventh for a 4-1 lead.

threw Vito Scutero's swinging bunt past first base. In the fourth, Ernest Martinez, who scored three times and had three singles, walked, moved to second on a wild pitch, to third on Scutero's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by second sacker Marc Lowe.

Lyman finally got to Hill in the fourth to tie the game. Radcliff, a left-handed hitting sophomore, scorched a liner to left for a double. Brock followed with a groundball to Ernest Martinez at third, which he beat out for a single. When Martinez' throw sailed past first base, Radcliff scored. One out later, John Burton's groundout broke in Brock.

Lake Howell broke the game open with the help of two Lyman errors and Urahan's wildness in the sixth. Ernest Martinez beat out an infield hit and Scutero, the county's third-leading hitter with a .429 average, pushed a bunt to the left side for another hit. After Lowe grounded into a fielder's choice, Urahan uncorked a wild one to scored Martinez. After Matt Yearick walked, an error by third baseman Burton scored another run. Urahan wild pitched home the third and an error by Darren Boyesen at second allowed Robert Philson to score.

"We made a couple of mistakes that hurt us in the fourth," Benjamin said.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by Ken Rummel

Although Michael Jordan is one of the top stars in pro basketball today, did you know that — amazingly — he didn't make the varsity team when he tried out for basketball in his sophomore year in high school in Wilmington, N.C. Jordan kept working on his game and made the team in his junior year — and went on to a great high school, college and pro career.

Here's an oddity about the NCAA basketball tournament... One year, a team entered the tournament with one name — and left with another... Texas Western entered the NCAA tournament in 1987 and won, advancing to the next round... But before they played their next game, the official name of the school was changed to University of Texas at El Paso, or UTEP... So, they started the tournament as Texas Western, and left it as UTEP.

The next Super Bowl is guaranteed to have the smallest Super Bowl attendance of all-time... The reason is that the next Super Bowl will be in San Diego Stadium — and that stadium has the smallest capacity (60,750) of any stadium that's ever hosted the Super Bowl.

I bet you didn't know... that Ken Rummel Chevrolet has a fine selection of new cars and trucks and OK used cars & trucks. Our service department is fully staffed with factory trained technicians and ready to serve you.

IN BRIEF

Penguins' Loss Of Lemieux Greater Than Setback To Caps

United Press International
The Pittsburgh Penguins suffered a greater loss Friday night than the 4-3 score indicated.

Pittsburgh center Mario Lemieux left the game at 1:17 of the second period when he and Bob Gould became embroiled in a fight near the penalty boxes. Gould landed several punches with each hand and, apparently one connected with Lemieux's left eye.

Lemieux was taken to George Washington Hospital where X-rays showed no fracture. More tests will be taken to determine the extent of his injury, and it is not immediately known how long he will be sidelined.

"Mario would have made a difference," said Pittsburgh captain Terry Ruskowski. "We count on him for one or two points a game, so it's easy to see how valuable he'd have been in a one-goal game. If he's out for any length of time, it will cause a lot of problems."

Gould scored two goals to move the Washington Capitals into third place in the Patrick Division. The victory moved Washington past the New York Rangers into third place with 71 points. New York has 70 points and Pittsburgh 67 in the battle for the fourth playoff spot.

"It was a big important victory for us," said Gould. "It's the time of year when everybody's working for a playoff spot, so every point we get will be important."

Elsewhere, Quebec beat Toronto 5-4, Montreal defeated Buffalo 3-2, Calgary pounded Edmonton 6-3, and Vancouver overtook Winnipeg 6-5.

Raiders Hammer CFCC, 11-5

Seminole Community College scored four runs in the bottom of the first inning en route an 11-3 hammering of Central Florida Community College in Mid-Florida Conference college baseball Thursday at SCC.

SCC, which traveled to Gainesville to battle Santa Fe Saturday, improved to 10-17 overall and 5-7 in the conference. The loss drops CFCC to 4-7 in the conference.

Seminole's David Riddle got the win as he went six innings, giving up three runs on seven hits and three walks. Riddle fanned five.

Danny Moore swung the big stick for the Raiders as Moore went 3 for 3 with 3 RBI. Lake Mary's Kevin Hill went 2 for 4 with an RBI. Troy "Killer" Blevins also was 2 for 4 with an RBI.

Coach Jack Pantellas' club got things rolling in the bottom of the first frame. Chad Sims led off and was hit by a pitch. Sims then stole second. Moore followed with a single, moving Sims to third. Moore then broke for second. CFCC's catcher threw the ball into center field, allowing Sims to score and Moore to reach third.

Hill then clubbed a single to left, scoring Moore. Hill went to second on an error. Chris Gage followed, and reached on a fielder's choice. Hill went to third on the play. Hill scored on Jimmy Merrick's single. The hit moved Gage to third on the play. Gage then scored on a wild pitch. — Scott Sander

Justus To Draw 800 Of Finest

ORLANDO — More than 800 of America's finest junior swimmers will be at the Justus Aquatic Center to compete in the United States Swimming Junior Olympic Short Course Championships East on March 31-April 4.

Swimmers range in age from 10 to 18 years and come from states east of the Mississippi.

In addition to vying for national titles, the swimmers' times from the East Championships will be scored against the times from the West Championships in order to come up with East-West team scores. The West Championships are being held concurrently at the Schroeder Aquatic Center in Brown Deer, Wis.

Preliminaries begin at 9:30 a.m. and finals begin at 6:30 p.m. each day.

SOKC Mutt Derby Runs Sunday

LONGWOOD — The annual Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club/Orlando Jaycees' Mutt Dog Derby, the day when youngsters can bring their pets to the racetrack to hopefully watch them compete like championship greyhounds, has been scheduled for this coming Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Jaycees' chairman Debbie Stanfield said registrations on the morning of the event at the SOKC will commence at 11 o'clock, while the so-called racing competition is set to start promptly at 1 o'clock.

"We're really looking forward to this year's Mutt Dog Derby," SOKC director of racing Tom Bowersox said. "It's really a day of fun for all of us here at the track and the people really seem to enjoy themselves."

Bittersweet Return To Sebring

SEBRING (UPI) — It will be a weekend of bittersweet memories for driver-owner Bob Akin at the 35th annual 12 Hours of Sebring, as he returns to defend the title he won last year with the late Jo Gartner.

Gartner teamed with Aiken and Hans Stuck to win the nation's oldest sports car race by eight laps, leading every hour but one. Gartner was later killed at the 24 hours of LeMans.

"It's going to be a melancholy return to Sebring," Akin said. "Somehow I don't know if we'll ever be able to recreate the camaraderie of that weekend last year. It was just a laugh a minute. We got serious when we had to, but we had a wonderful time."

Dolphins To Host Stroke Clinic

The Justus Dolphins will be hosting a free stroke clinic for novice swimmers at the Alford Pool at Rollins College campus at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 4, according to Harry Meisel, Dolphins coach.

Meisel said the clinic is open to area youngsters between five and 10 years old, and especially to those who may be participating in "Rowdy Gaines Jr. Swim League" programs this summer.

Parents with an interest in the swim clinic, as pool representatives and prospective league coaches may contact Meisel at 646-2123 for further information.

Odom's Pickoff Saves Dodgers

Altamonte Dodger Shane Odom picked a runner off first base for the final out to secure a 7-6 victory over the Oviedo Cubs in Altamonte Little League baseball.

The Dodgers received a strong three-inning stint from Kevin Morro who faced just 10 batters and gave up no runs. Odom picked up the victory by hurling the last three innings. His pickoff came in the fifth frame with the tying run on third base.

Charles Horne led the Dodgers with a single and an RBI. Bubba Smith had two singles while Kuhn had a single and double for Oviedo.

NBC: Hoops' No. 1 Network

CHICAGO (UPI) — There is still plenty of NCAA basketball ahead, but the winner of the college hoops broadcasting title remains the defending champion, NBC.

Unfortunately, the folks at NBC are on the sidelines this week when the semifinal rounds of the regionals are telecast by ESPN and CBS, which own the rights to the Final Four.

In the first year that all three networks telecast college basketball (along with ESPN), the veteran NBC crew emerged a winner again. But CBS has closed the gap considerably, particularly with its No. 1 announcing team of Brent Musberger and Billy Packer.

NBC's Dick Enberg and Al McGuire sound like they have been together for years and rate the title again. The fact the pair have been together so long makes for a true championship broadcast.

Enberg, the best play-by-play basketball announcer in the business, knows when to let McGuire loose. McGuire can be a little too flip, but he is the right counterbalance to Enberg's steady play-by-play.

CBS has continued to make great improvements in its battle to upstage NBC's classy presentation. They dropped the slick personal features and have gotten back to basics in showing other games in progress.

Randy Minkoff
TV/RADIO
UPI WRITER

Musberger has done yeoman's work, insisting on a better news-style approach to covering the action in other games in the tourney during pre- and post-game shows.

There is hardly anyone as knowledgeable as CBS's color commentator, Packer. A gripe about him is that often he speaks only to the basketball purists; the average fan can't always relate to his technical explanations.

CBS is actually on a par with NBC with its first unit, but when Musberger and Packer are not on board, there is a drop-off.

Other play-by-play men don't fare as well as Musberger on the major games.

ABC is in its freshmen season with college basketball and came up with two blue-chip recruits, Keith Jackson and Dick Vitale. Jackson, at the top of college football play-by-play, and Vitale, a seasoned color commentator, both have excellent credentials.

But together they just don't mix yet.

Jackson's cool, meat-and-potatoes descriptions don't seem to mesh with Vitale's exuberance and court jargon. At times it seems the two are watching different games. Vitale will make a comment and Jackson will follow with something completely different.

The problem is that this is a new marriage, and the duo haven't had time to work out the kinks in the telecasts.

Vitale fares much better on ESPN, working with a combination of promising play-by-play announcers with regional backgrounds. ESPN's play-by-play announcers seem to let Vitale run all over the court in a broadcasting sense.

ESPN, which also gets a crack at NCAA regional telecasts this week, does a better job than the three networks in keeping up with college basketball news and is at its best at tourney time. Its telecasts of league championships and its coverage on the eve of the bids is great sports journalism.

Hawks Dump Injury-Plagued Bucks

Basketball

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta coach Mike Fratello said the Hawks took advantage of an injury-riddled Milwaukee team Friday to earn a 114-97 victory over the Bucks and a share of first place in the Central Division with Detroit.

Dominique Wilkins paced Atlanta's attack Friday, scoring 41 points and grabbing a season-high 16 rebounds as the Hawks improved to 45-22 and rebounded from Wednesday's loss to Philadelphia.

Fratello said he was concerned how the Hawks would play after the 76ers ended their 11 game winning streak, the NBA's best this season.

"It was a great win for us," Fratello said. "Milwaukee would obviously like to have (Paul) Pressey and (Sydney) Moncreif in the lineup. They made a good run in the third quarter but we got settled back down and got control."

Pressey missed the game with a sore right thigh and Moncreif, who is still trying to recover from a bout with patellar tendinitis that caused him to miss 23 straight games.

Cavs 106, Nets 105
At Richfield, Ohio — John Bagley sank a jumper from the top of the key with three seconds remaining Friday night to give the Cleveland Cavaliers a 106-105 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

Buck Williams tipped in a missed shot by Dwayne "Pearl" Washington with 10 seconds left to give the Nets a 105-104 lead. The Cavaliers called timeout and Phil Hubbard then inbounded at half court to Bagley. The Cleveland point guard fed inside to center Mel Turpin, who passed back to Bagley for the game-winner.

The Nets had a last try, but Orlando Woolridge stepped out of bounds with one second to play.

Lakers 147, Spurs 115
At Inglewood, Calif. — Byron Scott scored 22 points Friday night and A.C. Green collected 8 of his 21 points in a 17-0 first-quarter blitz that helped power the Los Angeles Lakers to their ninth straight victory, a 147-115 rout of the San Antonio Spurs.

The Spurs, playing without injured forward David Greenwood, dropped four games behind Denver in the battle for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Western Conference. Greenwood has a sprained left big toe.

Blazers 134, Suns 105
At Portland — Clyde Drexler scored 32 points and Jim Paxson broke Portland's career-scoring record Friday night to enable the Trail Blazers to defeat the Phoenix Suns 134-105 and clinch an NBA playoff berth.

The Trail Blazers outscored the Suns 42-14 in the third quarter to break open a tight contest and hand Phoenix its sixth straight loss. The Suns have lost 13 of their last 18 games to drop to 24-42 overall — 7-28 on the road. Portland, 41-28, has won 11 of its last 16 games and becomes the third Western Conference team to qualify for the postseason.

Blazers 116, Nuggets 106
At Philadelphia — Maurice

Cheeks tried to play with a dislocated finger. Now he won't be able to play with a torn tendon.

Cheeks, who dislocated the middle finger on his left hand after one minute of play Wednesday night, was wearing a splint on the finger Friday night when the Philadelphia 76ers hosted the Denver Nuggets.

Cheeks was not around at the end of Philadelphia's 116-106 victory, however, as he injured the little finger on his right hand at 8:10 of the first quarter.

Celtics 112, Sonics 108
At Boston — After scoring 42 points to lead Boston past Seattle, Larry Bird expressed his displeasure with the Celtics' offense.

"The game didn't go the way I like it to — I like to get everyone involved," he explained after Boston's 112-108 victory Friday night over the SuperSonics.

The Celtics went to Bird on their final six possessions and he scored Boston's last 9 points to ensure their 21st consecutive home victory. The loss was Seattle's fifth in six games.

Evert Breaks Rehe Seven Times In Rout

Tennis

DALLAS (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd produced seven straight service breaks Friday night to rout Stephanie Rehe 6-1, 6-0 and advance to the semifinals of the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Dallas.

Evert Lloyd will play third-seeded Zina Garrison, who fought back from a brief second-set slump to defeat Bettina Bunge 6-3, 6-4, in a quarterfinal match Friday.

The other semifinal will match second-seeded Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md. — a 6-4, 6-4 winner over Wendy Turnbull — against sixth-seeded Lori McNeil — who upset fourth-seeded of the set. Rehe came to the net for a slam but hit it long to give Lloyd a 4-0 lead.

Turnbull, the No. 7 seed from Deer Creek, Fla., fought off a triple match point in the final game against Shriver but lost on a double fault.

Shriver committed four double faults, three in succession, to give Turnbull a 4-3 lead. However, in the next game, Shriver broke back with a well-placed cross-court forehand.

Shriver said she began having "an anxiety attack" while serving in the recent Lipton tennis tournament and has had service problems ever since.

"I played some emotional tennis but not great tennis, but I got fired up at 4-4 (second set). But I couldn't take control," Shriver said. "Wendy has always been tricky. It's awkward when you stay with somebody (Shriver and Turnbull are living with the same family this week) and end up playing them."

Garrison, of Houston, had a 3-0 lead in the second set before Bunge, the No. 5 seed from Monaco, came back with two service breaks to tie the set 3-3. Garrison then broke Bunge in the seventh game to go ahead 4-3 and held service in the eighth and 10th games.

Mayfair Men Top Mount Dora, 11-9

Rudy Seiler

MAYFAIR COUNTRY CLUB: 322-3531

Twenty members of the Mayfair Men's Golf Association flexed their muscles in the Inter-County Golf Association League last Saturday as it posted an 11-9 victory over Mount Dora at Mayfair.

The Mayfair men who won their individual matches were: Jim "Buzz" Bussard, Jack Canal, Al Greene Sr., Chuck Baragona, Hank Jeanneret, Gene Tougas, Clark Wood, Ed Smith, Ernie Butler, Ed Mioducki, and Harry Smith.

Mayfair prize winners (foursome competition) were as follows: Jim Bussard 10, Jack Canal 9, Al Greene Sr. 10, John Watkins 8, Hank Jeanneret 8, Gene Tougas 8, Clark Wood 10, Ed Smith 10, Ernie Butler 10, Ed Mioducki 8, and Harry Smith 8. Nice going fellows.

The weekly Sunday Scramble on March 15 only had three foursomes, probably because everyone else was watching the Bay Hill Classic. In any event, this is how it came out: First place (9 under) — Mark Cheeseman, Brian Stoll, Gene Dyer, Alene Higginbotham; Second place (10 under) — Mark Lesniak, Herb Heroy, Jack Daniels, Gene Green and Ron Howell; B. Fillmore, Dave Steindl, Alice Daniels.

Bob and Kay Elder. Third place — George and Peggy Billups, Bob O'Neil and Mary Ann Williams. Fourth place — Dick and Jonnie Elam. Art and Irene Harris.

And, finally, last Wednesday, Mayfair Women's Golf Association played a tournament that awarded a prize for the most net 3s, net 4s and net 5s in the round. Here's who won in each category: Most 3s (8) — Sally Norris. Most 4s (10) — Mary Ann Williams. Most 5s (9) — Alice Porter.

A reminder about Dr. Charlie Park's Annual Cancer Tournament. It's being held on Friday, March 27 this year. Get your entry in early.

Julia Chase Has Left Her Own Legacy To Girl Scouts And The Sanford Community

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

At one time her family name — Chase — was synonymous with Sanford. But things change and Julia Chase said, "I'm not sure it still is. When I think of Chase, I think has-beens."

But her own name remains synonymous with Girl Scouting in Central Florida. In her youth Mrs. Chase was not a Girl Scout, but worked with her scout friends on scouting projects. After her marriage to Randall Chase, Mrs. Chase, a Tallahassee native, made Sanford her home and, along with church work, scouting became one of her primary interests.

Both she and the Girl Scouts are in their 75th year this year. In the 1950s Mrs. Chase was chosen to help form the seven-county Citrus Council of Girl Scouts. She proudly wears her blue on gold "Thanks Badge," the highest honor the Girl Scouts give and one of her most prized mementos. She served as chairman for the council in Seminole County until after her husband's death in 1971.

But more prized than her Thanks Badge is the visible result of Girl Scouting, which Mrs. Chase said she sees in mothers, daughters and even grandmothers.

"I'm occasionally with people who started with me way back," Mrs. Chase said. "I see what they're doing today — some of my best friends. I see how much scouting has helped them."

"I knew enough about it to know how valuable it is for girls not to just belong to a little club or just be very active athletically or socially, but to learn how to be active and to gain information and experience. And you do in scouting. That was important to me. There were other girls' organizations, but Girl Scouts was the most worthwhile — the most productive.

"It has served over the years to adapt and adjust to current needs. The program has changed drastically and it has to. It has stayed abreast. I find it very, very exciting to watch and listen.

"I love Girl Scouts and I see a lot of them wherever I go. They're people who are very contributing members of society."

Mrs. Chase would like to see more members of her community with the qualities of Girl Scouts.

"I'll tell you what haunts me, people lack a sense of responsibility, a sense of respect and appreciation for things that happen. I feel a deep concern for the injustices, particularly to individuals and families. Those are the kinds of things that worry me. I've been so upset one or two times that it put me in the hospital, blood pressure.

"My children fuss at me. 'Mom, you just shouldn't worry,' but if you love somebody and you see them getting hurt.... I just have to do something about it."

But Mrs. Chase said a couple of years ago she couldn't do anything to stop the sale of the Chase family groves. It was a move prompted by some family members who out-voted those who wanted to keep the business, she said.

"It's been a heartbreak. My other brother-in-law (Franklin Chase) that I loved died last year and I know that's one of the reasons. You don't work and spend a lifetime creating something and then have it wiped out and then not suffer."

Mrs. Chase's home is now on a section of what was once Chase Groves west of Sanford. Her homestead is all that's left of the groves. And Chase and Co., an agricultural business founded by her father-in-law, which at one time was the largest employer in Sanford, was sold and is now Sunniland Corp.

Mrs. Chase said that she is a five-generation Florida

Lake Mary Educator To Head Sweetwater Episcopal Academy

Sweetwater Episcopal Academy, 251 E. Lake Brantley Road, Longwood, announces the appointment of Nancy Boyer as the school principal effective at the beginning of the fall semester.

After interviewing numerous outstanding educators, the school board and rector, Father George McCammon, decided upon the Seminole County educator to head the academy, an interdenominational school, grades K through eight.

Mrs. Boyer has taught in the Florida school system for 11 years. During this time, she has had experience in the elementary, junior high, middle school and college levels. Presently, Mrs. Boyer is a part of the Administrative Pool of Seminole County and teaches at Lake Mary Elementary School. She is an adjunct professor at Seminole Community College where she teaches Basic Computer Concepts.

She has been the recipient of numerous honors including: published in Outstanding Educational Projects for use of computers to improve reading comprehension; written up in Monday Report for innovative ideas in the area of real-word math concepts; and interviewed by a local T.V. station on this same subject. Mrs. Boyer was also elected to Who's Who In American College and Universities.

Mrs. Boyer said she believes that Seminole County has some of the best schools in the state, and is proud to have been a part of this system. She also said she is "excited about the opportunities to grow with a fine school like Sweetwater Episcopal Academy where children can not only grow mentally and emotionally, but also spiritually. Small classes are important to the development of these values."

Nancy Boyer is married to the Rev. William Boyer, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church, Lake Mary. They have four children: Richard, Steve, Kathy and Bryce, who are college and high school ages.

husband, who she married in 1943, brought her home to Oak Avenue in Sanford in 1945 she found a hometown she loves and would never leave.

In later years, she said officials at the Catholic Church next door to her block-covering Oak Avenue home decided the church wanted her home. "They prayed us out," she said. And she and her husband built a second home, which today is filled with mementos that include items that belonged to early Florida governors Duval and Branch. "There's a lot of history here and I love it," she said. "It's like living in a museum." She shares her home with her guard dog, Missy Chase.

Her daughter Laura was born in Sanford in 1945. Sons Randall and Josh were born in 1946 and 1948. Mrs. Chase, who became a homemaker, had before her marriage been a dietitian for three years and for eight years was the Episcopal student worker at Florida State University which, when she graduated, was Florida State College for Women.

She had known her husband for many years as they attended the same Tallahassee social functions before they became interested in each other.

"He was very prominent in Sanford. His family had been here quite awhile, because they came when Sanford was very small.

"Father Chase came down to Sanford and he worked under Gen. Sanford (Henry Shelton Sanford, the city's founder) as manager over many," she said.

The Chase brothers developed their own agriculture business and groves and became a part of Sanford's history.

"Right after my husband's death, Chase and Co. was sold. It was a heartbreaking experience," Mrs. Chase said.

Despite that, Mrs. Chase said "I'm grateful, thankful. I really feel I'm the most blessed of people and don't really feel I deserve a lot of the kind and wonderful things that come my way."

She wanted to be a doctor, but as one of seven children said she didn't have the educational opportunity to pursue that career.

She wouldn't want to be a young woman starting out today, although "It wouldn't frighten me. I grew along with whatever I was doing. Things weren't put in my lap. I worked and gained in that way. Women did expect to pursue careers but there were not many available. And you were a female and it was a male's world for the most part.

"Women still aren't being paid but they can get into most anything now. Women approach things differently. Their approach is more beneficial to an employer who needs a certain kind of person who is supportive. Women are more sensitive and responsible.

Mrs. Chase said someone needs to stand up and fight for the growing Sanford. "I would say it's important to me as far as our community is concerned to see greater interest and participation. Greater concern and more responsibility. That really gets me. Many women I know, and I'm very fond of them, don't do one blessed thing as far as the community is concerned. They don't have time, because they're having a good time.

"Sanford has been through a lot of changes and we're growing very rapidly in all directions. But I don't think it's crystallized yet. It's going to take awhile. It's too bad there are not citizens in Sanford who will assume some responsibility.

"Lee Moore was our mayor (17 years) and he did a magnificent job. And Pete Knowles (former, longtime city manager) did. We need that kind of people coming to the front. And people are so bogged down now over responsibilities and problems they're not doing it. It's bad. If we had the right leadership they would be thinking in terms of the problems of a growing place and leading the community in facing some of those problems. We don't have that right now, I don't think.

"Sometimes I look around the community and say where did they go? But it's happening to other places too. Life has changed so drastically and so many problems have been dumped upon us. A lot of people are not ready to accept them and they haven't grown. They haven't tried to accept them.

"They don't want to get involved in anything that's going to force them to grow. There are a lot of self-centered, selfish people out for what they can get. They're all around us and you can't talk intelligently to people like that about anything, because basically the only thing they're interested in is how they're going to get more money, more prestige. It doesn't matter the consequences," she said.

Mrs. Chase said she and old-timers like the late Gen. J.C. Hutchison used to talk about recording and writing a history of the area. "We never did. I'm about the only one left and I doubt if I'll ever do that. I don't feel I know as much about the area as they did. But I love it," she said.

And through her involvement with the Girl Scouts Mrs. Chase has left her own legacy to the girls of Central Florida.

The March meeting was held at Howell Place. Hostesses were Mrs. W. D. Leahy and Mrs. T. K. Wiley. Twenty-eight members and two guests were present. The Regent, Mrs. Mills Boyd, presided, and opened the meeting with the ritual and the repeating in union of the Preamble to the Constitution.

Weirdos Tugging At Woman's Natural Teeth Considered Bizarre Behavior

DEAR ABBY: I have recently had a couple of puzzling experiences that maybe you or your readers can help me with. I am a single woman 45 years old.

The first was a year ago. While touring New Zealand, I dated a 56-year-old man. On our first date (which was also our last) while dining at a restaurant, he reached over for what I thought was to be a friendly kiss — instead he stuck his fingers in my mouth, tugged at my teeth and laughingly asked, "Are these false?" Fortunately, I don't have false teeth, but what odd behavior!

Then a Pennsylvania man I had known intimately for 15 years (and almost married) arranged to meet me in Las Vegas for a romantic weekend, after we had not seen each other for four years. Upon retiring the first evening, he reached over as if to hug me, but instead he pulled at my teeth, making a joke (ha-ha) about false teeth. I was stunned! (What if I had had false teeth?)

Is this crass and rude behavior what we can look forward to should we lose our teeth? How can a lady handle this repulsive behavior without stooping to their level?

APPALLED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR APPALLED: It is indeed amazing that you should have encountered two such weirdos with the same fixation about teeth. I assure you that this kind of behavior is not usual. Some may suspect, or even inquire, but to actually tug at someone's teeth in order to determine whether they are false is truly bizarre.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about that letter you ran from the "Proud Texan." He wrote you about a western-club owner who had changed the sign from "Cow" to "Heifer" on the ladies' restroom door because the women resented being called cows. If you think that's bad, wait until you hear this one!

My husband and I are both country-and-western people through and through. Anyway, when I told my husband I was pregnant, he bragged to everyone that he had me "bred" and that I was due to "calve" in July. After the baby was born he started calling people to tell them the news — and he told them all that I had "dropped" him an 8-pound "heifer." Sign me...

Scouts Plan Camp Weekend For Single Parent Families

There are a group of people whose number grows larger every day and yet almost no programs or activities are designed especially for their needs. They are the single parent families.

The Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America has prepared an inexpensive program geared especially for single parent families. On April 11 and 12 single parent families will have an opportunity to take part in a weekend of activities outdoors.

According to Scout Executive Ron Carroll, "This is a weekend of camping in tents, swimming, canoeing, camp cooking demonstrations and much more. Our archery and rifle range will be open. Evening activities will include entertainment and fellowship of songs and skits around the camp fire."

The program will begin at 9:00 a.m., Saturday, April 11 at the Central Florida Scout Reservation's Camp, La-No-Che, near Paisely. Those planning to attend are asked to bring a picnic lunch. Provided for the families is a Saturday evening cookout and breakfast served Sunday morning in the camp's dining hall. The Council provides the facilities including wall tents, cots, two meals, and a well-trained staff.

One aim of the program is to expose the participants to Scouting's values — character, physical fitness, and citizenship. Emphasis for the weekend is on families having fun and communication together.

A new and well-received method by the community is the Single Parent Family Weekend. This special weekend enables the Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America to serve many youth that may not be reached with the traditional program. For further information contact Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America, P. O. Box 531084, Orlando, 32853, (305) 896-4801.

SCC Choral Groups To Present Spring Concert

The choral music organizations of Seminole Community College, under the direction of Dr. Burt H. Perinchieff, announces the annual Spring Concert will be held in the Fine Arts Concert Hall on the college campus on Sunday, April 5, at 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend this event and admission is free.

Four choral groups will participate in the concert. The Community Chorus will be featured in presenting Johann Sebastian Bach's Lenten cantata, "Christ Lag In Todesbanden" with musicians from the Florida Symphony Orchestra. Lighter numbers will include six folk song settings by Johannes Brahms and the popular "What Is This Thing Called Love?"

Community Choristers, a selected group from within the larger chorus, will offer a varied set of selections, sacred and secular, including works by Weelkes, Sowerby, diLausus and Handel. The S.C.C. Chorale, the college's chamber ensemble, will sing two English and one Italian madrigal from the Renaissance, a Bach chorale, two English folk song settings, and a modern madrigal by Jean Berger.

The Choralliers will also perform a varied repertoire including a Vittoria motet, a modern sacred motet, John Williams' "Can You Read My Mind" (Theme from "Superman"), and, in tribute to the Bicentennial of the American Constitution, Earl George's choral caricature of "Thomas Jefferson." Howard Hanson's "Beat! Beat! Drums!" with words from Walt Whitman, and three early fuguing tunes from the American Revolution.

All singers will conclude the concert program in massed formation with the singing of "Hallelujah" from the "Mount of Olives" by Beethoven. Robin Lee Parker will accompany the concert. Laurel Ellmore is associate director of the Community Chorus.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

DR. A.W. WOODALL CHIROPRACTOR

"JOINT PAIN & MUSCLE BALANCE"

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.

Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of chiropractic will treat the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.

If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

Archdiocese To Sell Gutenberg Bible

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A rare Gutenberg Bible, the first book known to have been printed with movable type, is among a collection to be auctioned by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese to raise up to $24 million for its seminaries.

The sale of the Carrie Estelle Doheny collection sometime next fall should attract major interest in the art and business worlds, archdiocese spokesman the Rev. Joseph Battaglia said during the weekend.

The Doheny volume is one of 47 known surviving copies of the Gutenberg Bible, which Johann Gutenberg first printed in Mainz, Germany, in 1449 or 1450. The book, with 42 lines per column, contains only the Old Testament.

The most recent sale of a complete Gutenberg Bible, one of 21 in existence, brought $2 million at a 1978 auction.

Archbishop Roger Mahony has called for tripling the number of seminarians in the archdiocese, a dramatic increase in the number of ordinations, and extensive recruitment of candidates for the priesthood from the diverse ethnic groups in the nation's largest archdiocese.

Last year, the archdiocese, which includes

2.65 million Catholics, produced only six new priests.

Doheny, a member of an early California land development and oil family, was named a papal countess by Pope Pius XII in 1939. She died in 1958.

The collection, housed at a seminary in Camarillo, Calif., includes more than 7,000 books, paintings, tapestries, antique furnishings and letters.

The only condition of her gift to the archdiocese was that the collection remain intact for at least 25 years after her death.

Is Lifestyle Of TV Preachers Too Rich?

"Couldn't you be just as happy?" I was asking Rex Humbard, "if you lived in a $75,000 house?"

"No," he shot back. "It is an asset for me to have a nice house and an asset for my organization, because I entertain outstanding people."

My conversation with Humbard occurred shortly after it had been reported in a Palm Beach newspaper that the Akron, Ohio, evangelist, and his two sons had bought a house and two condominiums for $600,000 in Boynton Beach, 10 miles from Palm Beach.

Several months earlier Humbard had told his TV audience that he was $3.2 million in debt. "I'm facing a financial lion," he said. "Like Daniel, I now need a miracle for deliverance. I don't have the money to pay these bills."

My question about being happy in a smaller dwelling he had paid $300,000 for his Florida house and lived in a church-owned $500,000 house in Akron) had to do with how Christians perceive a minister living too high off the hog.

Saints And Sinners

George Plagenz

"Of course," I said, "you can spend your money as you wish. But I am concerned about the impression your lifestyle makes on people whose image of ministers is one of servants of the Lord who take little interest in this world's goods."

To many Christians, I said, the gospel of Christ and comforting are on opposite sides of the fence.

Humbard disagreed. People would rather see a prosperous minister than a poor one, he said. His evangelist father was almost penniless and his poverty "turned people off," Humbard said.

His own people, he insisted, were not offended by his living in fancy homes and driving a Lincoln automobile and a Cadillac.

Some people are suggesting that Oral Roberts could settle his money problems with God if he and his son Richard sold their "two $600,000 winter Florida homes." Richard, according to the papers, has just moved into a big house in Tulsa that has five bathrooms, a swimming pool, and a 30-foot-square master bedroom.

Some of Roberts' employees reportedly have expressed resentment over Oral's lifestyle while they have gone without a pay raise for three years. Roberts himself, on his TV program a few Sundays back, mentioned that some people resent his houses, cars and how he dresses. "I want to talk about that," he said, and then never did.

What is an acceptable lifestyle for a clergyman?

The consensus of Protestant ministers I have talked to is that a minister's lifestyle should be in keeping with his congregation as a whole. One put it this way: "The pastor should live economically at about the middle level of his people — and not noticeably affluent, and with modesty and good taste."

The only exception was voiced by a minority pastor who said his congregation wants him to "live better than they do." It may be a matter of pride with members of some minority groups to point to one of their own who has a better lifestyle than theirs.

A Lutheran clergyman says it might be said that ministers can pick the lifestyle they want. "But," he added, "we must remember that some people use the clergy family as a model, and we should live accordingly."

He does not consider this a hardship. "Our satisfactions are not primarily the result of our income," he said. "We are fortunate."

A Jesuit priest said the message the Jesuits are trying to send out when they take the vow of poverty is: "Don't get too attached to material things, to promotions, to power, to bank accounts."

The 35 members of his community share seven cars.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 22, 1987

There are big things in store for you in the year ahead if you strive to build upon foundations you've already laid. You're on the right track, so don't quit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are too opinionated and self-involved today, people who intended to help you might just turn around and look the other way when you request their assistance. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to be better at rationalizing and making excuses today than you will be at producing. Find reasons to get things done instead of alibis why you shouldn't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Left to your own devices, you'll accomplish what you set out to do today, but if you leave an opening for non-productives to interfere, it'll be another story.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Partnership arrangements won't work out too well today if there is not harmony of purpose. Both parties must be in total accord down to the smallest detail.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your head may be in the clouds today and your mind might not be on the task at hand. It's best that you stick to jobs where little concentration is required.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today that you're not instrumental in involving a friend in something he or she can ill afford. Everyone will feel bad if it doesn't pan out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) For the sake of expediency today, you might do something against your better judgment just to get a matter resolved. You may regret your impulsiveness later.

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 23, 1987

Your ambitions have excellent chances of being fulfilled in the year ahead. If you have been unjustly overlooked where promotions and raises are concerned, this condition will be corrected.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Smooth sailing is indicated in your worldly affairs today. It looks like you'll get the recognition and material rewards for which you've been striving.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be hesitant to assert yourself today in situations that affect your personal interests. It's folly to wait for others to advance your cause.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A venture in which you are presently involved can be adjusted today to provide greater benefits for you as well as for your associates. Make the necessary changes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A competent friend may offer to help you today on a project with which you've been wrestling alone. Make room for your volunteer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In critical career situations today,

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Companions could get you off course today if you have more faith in their ideas than you do in your own. What benefits them might not benefit you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Early in the day you may not be in a very sociable mood. However, don't turn down any invitations, because by evening you'll be looking for something fun to do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually it's unwise to rely too heavily upon one's instincts, but today your hunches could provide you with insights equal to your logical assessments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Given adequate time, complications have a way of working themselves out today. Don't push the panic button too quickly if something goes wrong.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to be an achiever today, you must first be properly motivated. If there is something you really want to get done, you'll know how to do it.

assume the initiative if action is required within your realm of responsibility. Don't wait for the paperwork.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone in whom you are interested romantically will be very responsive to your overtures today. Nothing will be gained by hiding your feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to let too much time elapse regarding a matter which can benefit you financially. If possible, attempt to wrap it up today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If there is something special you are trying to promote today, don't work too closely from a prepared script. Just relate the facts enthusiastically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Six hearts was not an ice-cold contract. To begin with, it needed a 3-2 trump split. By the time declarer had mangled the play, it needed much more. South won the opening diamond lead and ruffed a diamond. He came to his spade jack and ruffed another diamond. Then he played the club ace and ruffed a club. Now came the A-K of hearts, along with a sigh of relief when the suit split. He then led a spade to dummy, intending to pitch his remaining diamond loser on a high spade, but East had other ideas. He trumped that second spade and cashed the setting trick in diamonds. "What luck!" exclaimed

South. "It took a 5-1 spade split to beat me."

South wasn't really the unlucky one. Instead it was North, unfortunate enough to be paired with a partner who was not able to determine the safest play for the contract. If it's played correctly, all that is needed is for the heart suit to divide. After winning the opening lead with the diamond ace, declarer should forget about ruffing any diamonds. Instead, he should simply lead a low heart. Whatever happens next, declarer can play off the A-K of hearts. That picks up all the opposing trumps, and it is now safe to run the spade suit and discard all three diamond losers.

A Backward Glance

A Career Of Serving Florida, Sanford

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

In a distinguished career in law and politics that spans nearly four decades as a Sanford attorney, a Seminole County judge and a state senator, Douglas Stenstrom has accumulated an impressive list of achievements.

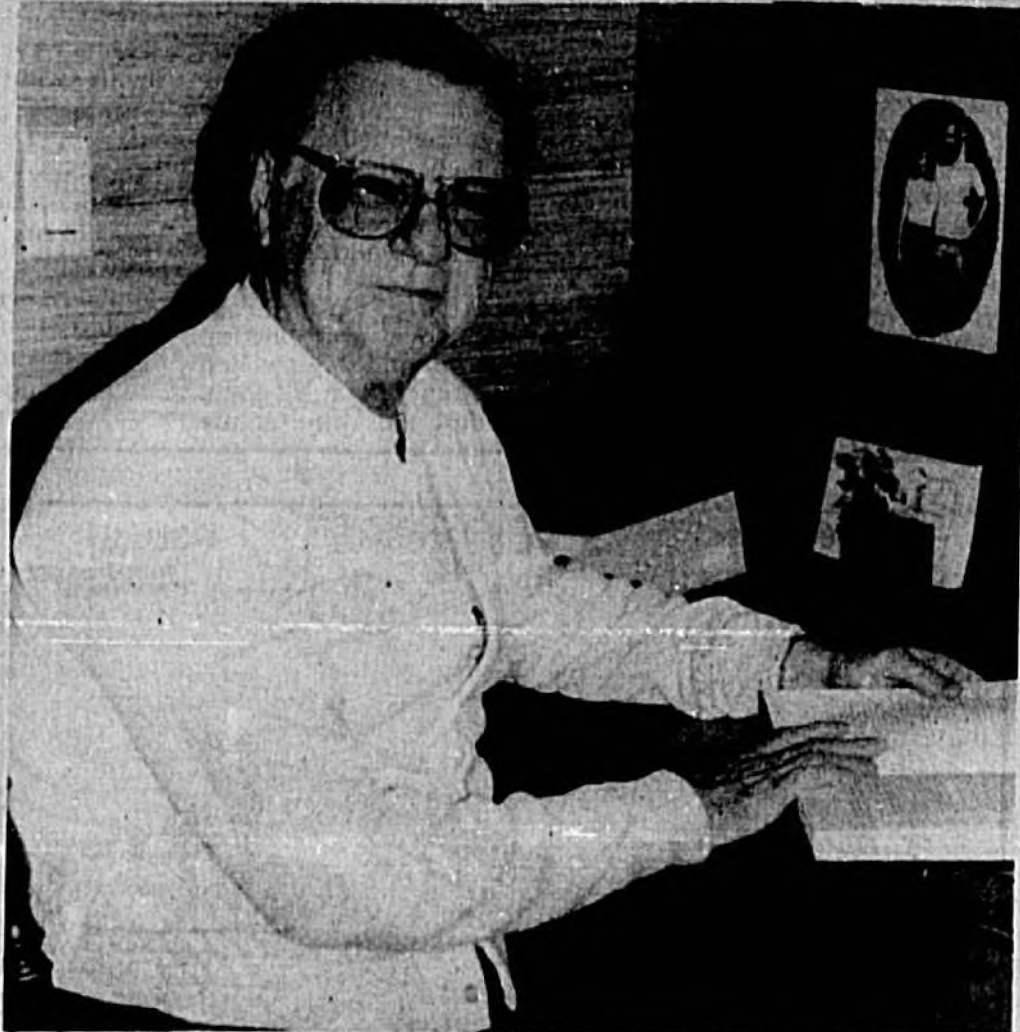

A descendant of Swedish pioneers who helped settle this area, he has received many honors, including having a bridge named for him. The latest tribute was paid him by the Stetson University Lawyers Association, which chose him as this year's winner of the Ben C. Willard Award. The award is given to the lawyer who has "expended that extra effort in behalf of Floridians." Stenstrom is senior partner of the Sanford law firm of Stenstrom, McIntosh, Julian, Colbert and Whigham, which includes nine lawyers and 22 support personnel. He has specialized in estate planning and probate law for 30 years.

Stenstrom, a 1948 graduate of Stetson's College of Law, has served as general counsel to the university and as a member of Stetson's Board of Trustees. He was the first alumnus in the school's history to serve as chairman of the board, a position he held for 10 years. He was given an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Stetson in 1978.

He is a former chairman of the Florida Bar's Committee on Continuing Law Reform and was president of the Select Committee for Strengthening Legal Education. He is also a former member of the board of governors which runs the Florida Bar.

Seminole County School Board attorney for 24 years, he said, outside of law, education and transportation have been his primary interests. Stenstrom said after 40 years, he is still on the Sanford Chamber's Road and Bridge Committee as well as serving on the Greater Sanford Downtown Development Committee.

One of his first road projects was trying to get Highway 17-92 four-laned. He called a breakfast meeting at the Glass Fountain restaurant in Casselberry to form a group and help raise money. "The first guy who showed up," he recalled, "was Hibbard Casselberry, who handed me a check for $100 to help get the road built. It was like a $1,000 back then."

He began his public career early. When he was elected county judge at the age of 26, he was one of the youngest — if not the youngest — judges sitting on the bench in the nation. He was the only resident judge on the court here at the time. During his tenure he served as president of the Florida County

Judge's and Juvenile Judge's Association and participated in writing the state's first Juvenile Court Act.

"As a judge I had a special interest in young people — I was still one myself — and in 1957, I helped to write the first Juvenile Court Act. For the first time the state recognized that you couldn't deal with a child in criminal court the same way as you deal with an adult."

He was elected to the Florida Senate in 1954 and represented that body on the Joint House-Senate Interim Committee on Mental Health. He was instrumental in reforming the state's mental health laws and expanding the state's hospitals and facilities for treatment of the mentally ill.

Stenstrom said the thing he is most proud of accomplishing while he served in the state senate was his co-sponsorship of legislation creating the Florida Community College System, which has resulted in two-year colleges within the driving distance of 90 percent of the state's high school graduates.

He also co-sponsored legislation creating the University of Florida Medical School and the University of South Florida.

Looking back, Stenstrom said there are four accomplishments that stand out in his mind as having the most important impact on the community. They are in the fields of medical care, roads, education and the environment.

"In the 50s," Stenstrom said, "I was involved in the fight to get a hospital (Seminole Memorial Hospital) in the north end of the county. I knew if we could get that hospital we could keep here several million dollars a year that were going to Orange County in medical and hospital fees and increase the per capita wealth for people in the north end as well as attracting more doctors and medical services."

In addition to the two $450,000 grants from foundations, Stenstrom said, "George Touhy and I led the fight for an $800,000 bond issue and that's how we financed that hospital."

"I think that effort to provide hospital service led to our having the outstanding Central Florida Regional Hospital we have now," Stenstrom said.

Stenstrom was attorney for Hospital Corporation of America when HCA purchased Seminole Memorial from the county.

The second thing cited by Stenstrom was the five-year fight to get the Lakę Mary Boulevard Interchange built. "The first time I drove on Interstate 4 from State Road 46 to State Road 436, which is ## Rising Postal Rates Where Will It End?

The great inventor was furious. His long, tangled hair leapt with the impact as he slammed his fist down on the table, scattering several months worth of dirty dishes and an assortment of wires, dials and tubes.

"Ziss is zee most outrageous ting effer in zee history!" he screamed. "Vat vill be next?"

Dr. Marco Smrzlbdcz, inventor and part-time air traffic controller in Palmdale, California, threw a sheet of postage stamps on the floor. I had never seen him so upset.

Marco is thought to have escaped from somewhere, but no one is quite sure where. A maiden aunt who had been the only person able to pronounce his last name died three years ago, leaving him with no known relatives.

I asked him what was bothering him. "Vat iss boddering me? I'll tell you vat iss boddering me. Da postal people are rrrraising da rrrates again!"

I told Marco I didn't see how an increase in postal rates would affect him. He is not exactly in the mass mailing business.

"Hah! I haf to send zee applications to zee Patent Office for all zee infentions I make! Zee stamps are a major cost!"

I saw his point. Marco's most recent triumph, a plastic bag for potato chips that cannot be opened, required more than $10 in postage just for the application. I reminded him, however, that the increase in first-class rates is just a proposal.

"Prrrposal? Hah!" he thundered. "Vee vill see about dat!"

He sprinkled some of his magic Econodust on a stamp and led me to a frightening, and oddly familiar, contraption in the corner of his laboratory.

"You rrrremember zee Econodust Trrransport Chamber? Ven vee sprrrinkle zee Econodust on a rrrregulation it takes us to see zee effects."

I gulped, remembering our terrifying rides to Japan to see the effects of steel import restrictions and to the South Africa of the 1990's to see the perverse impact of sanctions. I wasn't sure I wanted to go again.

"Not to worry," he said, not very reassuringly. "I vill just set zee Anode Prrrrecipitator Sensor for one year from today. I just vant to see if zee rate goes up one cent or four or vat."

That didn't sound too bad, I got in.

"Buckle up," he said cheerfully. "You like zee new safety features? Vee got seatbelts and padded dash!"

A pillow had been strapped to the instrument panel.

Marco twisted a dozen or so dials, muttered something undecipherable, and, with a great shudder, we took off amidst the usual flashing of lights and terrible vibrations.

Seconds later, we landed in a quiet, elm-lined street. It looked fairly familiar, except the cars travelled on air. I asked Marco where we were.

"Oops," he said. "I haf made a blunder. I haf set zee machine for 2040 instead of 1988. An easy mistake to make."

I was wondering what was easy about it when a small boy came out of one of the houses. He was crying.

Marco asked what was wrong. "My uncle just sent me $10 for my birthday," he sobbed.

I asked what was so bad about that.

"My mother says I have to send a thank you letter. But that will cost more than the $10!"

"So just use zee cheaper paper," Marco suggested.

"It's not the paper, it's the stamp. It'll cost $10.32 just for the stamp."

Marco shrieked. He rushed back into the Transport Chamber to do some calculations.

"Aha!" he said on emerging from the machine. "Zee postal rrrates of zee government haf continued to rrrise at zee same rrrate as zay haf for zee last 30 years before 1987. And zat was vay faster dan zee other prrrices in zee economy."

I told Marco I couldn't believe people would have continued to allow the government to run the postal service and subject themselves to such outrageous rates. Surely, I said, they would have recognized that there is no reason for the government to be involved in postal services. Surely they would have realized that the private sector could do a better job.

"And vy do you tink dey vould rrrrealize dat," he muttered. "Dey haf nefer rrrrealized it before!"

Science Update:

Agent Orange: The Controversy Continues

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saralee McGoran could see the planes coming in low as she walked to surgery at the 12th evacuation hospital in Cu Chi in 1967, but she didn't find out until years later the chemical they sprayed was Agent Orange.

Her two children were born with birth defects and McGoran, an Army nurse, has suffered ill health she blames on the white powder that coated the fatigues of soldiers who entered the hospital and destroyed jungle foliage in what the Air Force called Operation Ranch Hand.

There have been other, scattered reports of birth defects and miscarriages from women who served in Vietnam, but it has taken until now for the government to begin investigating.

There is $2.4 million in the fiscal 1988 Veterans Administration budget for a study of military women and possible long-term health effects of their experience in Southeast Asia. A private foundation in Massachusetts has just begun designing the study.

The study is part of a wider effort to find out what kind of long-lasting health effects the war had on U.S. combat troops and of the continuing scrutiny of Agent Orange and its dioxin component, one of the most controversial chemical duos ever known.

The government has spent $155 million on Agent Orange research alone between 1981 through 1986, said Alvin Young, a senior policy analyst and herbicide specialist in the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

"In all the studies that have been done to date, there has not been convincing evidence that there is a health effect from exposure to Agent Orange," Young said.

Yet, a number of researchers say studies show there is reason for continued concern. One of the more impassioned of these is Dr. Arnold Schechter, who repeatedly calls Young "the Lt. Col. North of the dioxin set."

"I think the evidence is just overwhelming" that the Agent Orange family of herbicides is dangerous, said Schechter, professor of preventive medicine at the State University of New York in Binghamton and coordinator of a dioxin study.

Other researchers fall somewhere in between. Although many studies show even very low levels of dioxin and Agent Orange have a variety of effects on body tissue at a subtle, molecular or genetic level, "what it all means in terms of health is unknown," said chemist Donald Barnes, science advisor to the assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances at the Environmental Protection Agency.

There are 75 kinds of dioxin, but the most toxic is TCDD — more formally, 2,3,7,8 tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin. Present as a manufacturing by-product in Agent Orange, it also showed up in Agent Purple, another defoliant used in Viet Nam.

The women's study, the design for which is due July 1, will consider effects of trauma and dioxin exposure as well as psychological impact of combat, said Dr. Han Kang, director of the Veterans Administration office of environmental epidemiology. About 5,200 women of the estimated 7,000 who served may be considered for participation.

Yet, researchers will likely encounter the same problem that has stalled the latest study of male veterans.

Ground troop records are not precise enough to determine for certain whether a soldier listed as having been in an area sprayed with Agent Orange was actually there.

"Individuals listed as located together could be separated by 25 to 30 kilometers," said Robert Diefenbach, public health advisor for the Center for Disease Control's center for environmental health.

Another obstacle has been the lack of an adequately simple medical test to verify Agent Orange exposure. The only thing available was a biopsy of fat tissue. That is where the dioxin chemical group, a contaminant present in Agent Orange, tends to collect in the body.

Researchers are pinning their hopes on a new blood test developed by the Centers for Disease Control costing $500 or more for each sample and requiring half a unit of blood.

The CDC is conducting a verification study it expects to finish in July to determine, using the new blood test, if people listed as having been in Agent Orange areas were actually exposed to the herbicide.

The test also will allow researchers for the first time to determine if people with heavy exposure also have high body values of dioxin. The findings then will be related to their state of health.

Other tests using monoclonal antibodies — proteins designed to

Quirks Cops Swim After Bikini-Clad Suspect

LIHUE, Hawaii (UPI) — A bikini-clad woman accused of threatening a motorist with a gun delayed her arrest by jumping into the ocean and treading water for two hours, forcing the officers to swim after her.

The chase ensued when a male motorist reported to police on the island of Kauai that he had been threatened by female motorist armed with a handgun, said Sgt. Alvin Seto.

When police stopped the suspect in her car, she got out and fled on foot. The unidentified 28-year-old woman was standing on the edge of the ocean with her backpack in her arms by the time Seto arrived, he said.

When the officers closed in, she ran into the ocean and swam out about 200 yards, police said.

Seto said he and several other officers watched from shore, hoping she would eventually tire and return. The woman also was approached by a firefighter in a small boat, but she still refused to surrender.

"After about two hours, we decided to go in after her," Seto said. The police officers swam out, surrounded her and "forced her to shore," he said.

Beware Bear's Peace Offers

The Soviet Union contends that its efforts to negotiate a peace settlement in Afghanistan are being thwarted by recalcitrant Afghan guerrillas determined to prolong the 7-year-old war. Incredibly, the Kremlin's propaganda ploy has gained some currency around the world. That's why a delegation of freedom fighters is now restating the Afghan case before Congress and the Reagan administration.

Clearly, Moscow is attempting to achieve political control in Afghanistan because the Soviet Union has been unable to prevail militarily. The Afghan guerrillas, therefore, are imploring the United States to refrain from endorsing any peace negotiations that would freeze them out and seal Afghanistan's fate as a Soviet satellite.

The stage was set for such a grim scenario last January, when the Soviet-backed government in Kabul proposed a cease-fire, ostensibly to enable both sides to sit down and compose their differences. But this transparent peace gesture failed at the outset because the freedom fighters were expected to lay down their arms immediately, while the Soviet troop withdrawal could take as many as three years. Little wonder the guerrillas rejected what amounted to a demand for their unconditional surrender.

For their part, the freedom fighters are insisting upon three basic conditions for any peace settlement: Withdrawal of all Soviet troops within months, not years; self-determination by all Afghans of the kind of government they desire; and restoration of the country's status as a non-aligned Islamic nation.

If Mikhail Gorbachev accepted these reasonable terms, he could stop the bloodletting in Afghanistan, improve the U.S.S.R.'s image in the Third World, and channel more financial resources into the Soviet Union's sluggish economy. This would mean, of course, the Soviets would be pulling the rug from under their puppets in Kabul, which they are not about to do. The so-called Soviet peace offensive, then, is nothing more than a cynical strategy to ensure easy communist control of Afghanistan.

The United States, which has supported the freedom fighters throughout most of their struggle against overwhelming odds, must not abandon them now. President Reagan and Congress should, therefore, keep the pressure on the Soviet Union to accept a peace settlement that permits Afghanistan to pursue its own destiny. The best way to do that is through increased shipments of weapons and other requirements to the Afghan freedom fighters.

Star Dust Is Real

Poets who gaze into the stars and see diamonds have been condemned as childish romantics by scientists who knew better. Stars, astronomers tell you, are merely distant suns, burning at tremendous temperatures. Stardust is for song lyrics, not astrophysics.

But a meteor which fell into a Mexican cornfield has caused some head scratching in the scientific community on the issue of stars and diamonds.

One researcher discovered tiny diamonds in the meteor. At first, he believed that the diamonds were formed by the impact of the meteor on earth. But further investigation revealed that the diamond dust was older than the earth. The diamonds, the researcher conjectures, were formed by the destruction of a star before our sun and its solar system were born. The diamonds are, in fact, the remnants of a star.

Poets knew this long ago. Perhaps their souls were born before the solar system gave birth to skeptics.

Poetry telescopes truth through the lenses of metaphor. Gazing into the night sky, we can clearly see diamonds and stardust. Hoagy Carmichael was right after all.

Greed? Have A Little Sympathy For The Sick

We didn't go in much for sickness sympathy in my household.

My mother figured living through the flu was reward enough. We were Scotch Methodists, and the only acceptable response to "How are you feeling?" was "Fine, thank you." Missing school or work hinted of an inferior genetic pool, and, in the absence of money, we took great pride in breeding.

I suspected that people who complained of sore necks and headaches after minor car crashes had only one thing on their minds: insurance money. Any injury worth talking about should leave marks — if not actual broken bones, at least something that could be covered with enough bandages to look respectable.

So last week when I was hit broadside by a woman who ran a red light and shoved my driver's-side door into the hood and the hood into the next county, I was stoic.

"Now, a little blood never hurts anything, as long as it stops before you run out," I chuckled to the ambulance attendants. "Hospital? Me? Save yourselves for the sick people."

My good humor lasted until about the third day of headaches, just about the same time everyone quit paying attention to me. It began to dawn on me that I still had headaches, a car covered with a funeral tarp and popping ears my physician said would go away as soon as the swelling in my brain tissue went down.

Swollen brain tissues? I pondered the significance of this phrase numerous times as I strained to turn my head to check traffic from the aimlessly dangling side mirror in the sardine can I was renting for $18 a day. Yet it wasn't until my dentist mentioned "traumatized teeth" and the prospect of root canals and gold-and-porcelain crowns someday that my real ethical drama began. It was at that moment that my swollen sinuses let through the smell of money.

I had no sooner envisioned the better car I could buy with that tooth money than the ghosts of my ancestors began to sing hymns heavy on long-sufferance on earth and reward in heaven.

The battle raged as I drove from car lot to car lot, dodging salesmen's ploys and writing endless lists of prices and options. My swollen brain tissue calculated how much money I could be making if I was spending this time at my computer churning out columns. If this isn't pain and suffering, I thought, what is?

The ultimate injury came when I spotted the 7-year-old red Corvette and figured that I could afford it with my car settlement money plus some savings. I had always been a Volkswagen Beetle kind of gal, practical and solid, saving money so I could loan it to my spendthrift friends when they got behind on their Saab payments. And now, try as I might to look at the other cars, I was drawn to that Corvette like a stray dog to a bag full of trash. Now, just how could I ever face my friends in a red Corvette with white leather seats?

Well, it was obvious to me that lick on the head had changed my entire personality. And since my career as a columnist is based on my old personality, was I not looking at the possible loss of my livelihood and the demise of life as I knew it?

Faced with the overwhelming evidence, how could I deny my attorney's contention of personal injury?

Personal greed, you say? Please. Have a little sympathy for the sick.

Kids Face Mental Abuse

By United Press International

An estimated 100,000 American children are psychologically abused by adults who ridicule, reject, isolate, ignore and degrade them, according to researchers at the American Psychological Association.

The researchers recently wrote in the association's journal, American Psychologist, that a 1974 federal law identified "mental injury" as a form of child abuse, but said the wording of the law is too vague and that the field needs further investigation.

Few child abuse cases are processed under the "mental injury" clause alone, although almost all cases of sexual and physical abuse against children include incidences of mental abuse as well, according to the report.

More research is needed to accurately define "mental injury" so that parents — and teachers — can be prosecuted for damaging children through psychological terror, said one of the psychologists, Mindy Rosenberg, a professor of psychology at Yale University.

The report stated schools that "attempt to control students through fear, intimidation or a sense of dependency" are guilty of mentally damaging children, perhaps for life.

Indian AIDS

At first it was thought AIDS was a non-Indian problem, but 32 cases have been reported among native Americans since 1981, according to the government's Indian Health Service and Centers for Disease Control.

The cases were reported in 14 states as of Feb. 20, according to Pat Johannes, communicable disease activities coordinator for the CDC in Phoenix, Ariz. The total number of deaths from AIDS was 17, with 44 percent of them in California and New York.

Antarctic Fish Woes

A survey conducted jointly by researchers from the United States and Poland has found that heavy commercial fishing in Antarctica has substantially depleted fish in the region.

The U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said the Soviet Union is the primary fishing nation in Antarctica and groups of six to 12 Soviet trawlers were observed at work there in December.

William Evans, head of NOAA's National Marine Fisheries Service, said substantial decreases in fish population could adversely affect other Antarctic marine life.

The survey, conducted aboard the Polish ship Prof. Siedlecki, is continuing near the Antarctic Peninsula, NOAA said.

WASHINGTON — Call it "The Mystery of the Missing Engineer." Congressional investigators have been trying, without much success, to find out exactly what happened to Herman Silber, a Soviet emigre who worked in this country on plans for the new American Embassy in Moscow, then returned to the Soviet Union and apparently died there.

The trouble-plagued Moscow embassy building is already six years behind schedule, and cost overruns have topped $100 million. Construction was abruptly halted in August 1985, after American inspectors uncovered numerous electronic "bugs" implanted in the

Beware Arms Control

The term "arms control" has become a kind of mantra. If you repeat it often enough, you feel good — because nuclear weapons are terrifying.

We now have before us an offer by Mikhail Gorbachev to remove all intermediate-range nuclear missiles from Europe. The Soviets will move a reduced force 1,000 miles back, behind the Ural mountain range. We will move ours 3,000 miles back, to New Jersey.

A politically crippled President Reagan will find it difficult to resist this deal — urged by his wife — to secure his place in history. But what kind of place in history will that secure?

It is always possible that real change can occur, and that Gorbachev, for an entire menu of domestic reasons, wants a real deal. His economy is a mess. Poland is becoming more independent, he has not secured Afghanistan, he cannot keep up with the computer revolution, and, as always, he has a quarter of a billion Chinese on his eastern flank who increasingly appear to have ideas of their own.

But it is vital not to be hypnotized by the arms control mantra. Consider.

It took enormous political courage on the part of Ronald Reagan, Margaret Thatcher and Helmut Kohl to deploy the Pershing II and Cruise missiles in the first place. A response to the Soviet SS-20s, already deployed, they were savagely resisted by the European and American left.

At the very most basic level, pull those missiles back to the United States — the political will does not exist to re-deploy them in Europe.

Gorbachev can put his missiles on railroad trains from behind the Urals with a phone call. They can be back in place in a week.

The SS-20s, the Soviet Intermediate-range missiles, were never meant to be used. They were political weapons, meant to intimidate and neutralize Europe. Reagan supported Thatcher and Kohl by deploying the Pershing II and the Cruise. In nuclear chess we had achieved a stalemate.

The current state of play will turn on the kind of verification Gorbachev will offer — again a political matter.

The new national security advisor, Frank Carlucci, has drawn up a very detailed program of on-site inspection. We will have to see whether the Soviets agree to true verification.

There is also an eerie quality to the whole thing. Some European opinion appears to believe that the mutual withdrawal of "intermediate-range" nuclear weapons from Europe will somehow make London and Paris safe.

But a Soviet ICBM programmed to hit New York can certainly be reprogrammed in five minutes to hit London or Paris.

And then, and then, it is sentimental to think that if all nuclear weapons were magically abolished tomorrow and magically forever banned, all would be well. Some 55 million people died in the "conventional" World War II. "Conventional" weapons are now much more potent. The existence of nuclear weapons has ruled out a "conventional" war between the United States and the Soviets for the last 40 years.

If we were to match the Soviets in "conventional" military strength, we would have to militarize our society, as they have done with theirs. That would mean conscription, a crippled and declining consumer-civilian sector, and, because no one wants it, police control.

Mr. Gorbachev's initiative raises profound questions, but we should always listen to what he has to say.

Chevron's Greedy Business

The former Portuguese colony of Angola, which was seized by communist guerrillas in 1976 with the help of Soviet arms and Cuban troops, has been an important battle front ever since in the ongoing struggle of the free world against communist expansionism.

Moscow's puppet regime wouldn't last a month against the rebel troops of Jonas Savimbi's UNITA if it weren't propped up by more than 30,000 Cuban soldiers, their Soviet "advisers" and many millions of dollars' worth of Soviet arms.

Last year Savimbi visited Washington and succeeded in obtaining from this country a number of Stinger surface-to-air missiles. These have since proved wonderfully useful in shooting down the Soviet-made helicopter gunships, but the contest is effectively a stalemate.

One would think that Moscow and Havana might tire of financing their Angolan puppets at a cost estimated at $3.5 million dollars a day but Moscow and Havana aren't picking up the tab. Angola pays from the 93 percent of its revenues that are derived from the sale of oil.

And who buys the oil? Chevron Corp. of the United States. The firm acquired the right to much of Angola's oil when it took over Gulf in 1984.

Does Chevron realize what it is doing? You can be very sure that it does. Despite its declarations of complete "neutrality" in the Angolan civil war, Chevron has lobbied energetically against UNITA in Congress.

Chevron stresses that it has never been asked by the State Department to pull out of Angola. Surprisingly enough, this is quite true. The State Department speaks approvingly of Savimbi's UNITA, but it supports the right of American business to make a buck wherever and however it can. What's more, it has gone so far as to indirectly warn Savimbi that, in the words of one official document, "We could not accept attacks on American lives or property from whatever the source." So Savimbi dares not launch an attack on the Angolan oil fields (which are guarded, incidentally, by Cuban and East German troops).

It is this fact that invalidates Chevron's argument that if a U.S. company doesn't buy Angola's oil, somebody else will. Perhaps somebody else would try — but at serious risk of a deadly attack by UNITA. So Chevron is not only financing the war against UNITA, but providing a splendid diplomatic defense for the oil fields as well.

All evidence indicates that Chevron is regally indifferent to rational arguments. Only more and louder public protests will persuade this greedy American corporation to stop financing the communist takeover of southern Africa.

investigators, according to an internal document we have seen. They added that the department began an investigation in 1976 "to determine what if any impact Mr. Silber had on the espionage efforts of the Soviet Union against our mission in Moscow."

But the officials gave no details surrounding Silber's reported death — he was reportedly in his 40s — nor did they disclose the identities of the "family members" who informed them he was dead. What the congressional investigators want to know, of course, is whether Silber, either voluntarily or under duress, gave the KGB construction details of the building whose design he had worked on. The investigation is continuing.

A Risk-Free Life, And Other Fantasies

By Charles T. Rubin

Every year, it kills thousands of Americans. Acting quickly, often without warning, this substance takes the lives of young and old alike. Some local governments do their best to deal with the largest threats, but the trained personnel and round-the-clock vigilance required for complete safety are beyond their means. Despite the fact that it can be found in one form or another in every state of the union, our lawmakers have been nearly oblivious to its dangers, at most passing measures to try to rescue those already endangered.

Yet the federal Environmental Protection Agency does nothing about this national danger. Is it some kind of toxic waste? No, I speak of water — in bodies large enough for people to drown, as more than 5,000 people do in this country each year.

An absurd complaint? Only if the EPA's recent romance with radon is absurd. For like water, most radon, a radioactive gas, occurs naturally. Only a small part of the current radon "crisis" is prompted by concern over radioactive wastes. Most of the time, radon is found in harmless concentrations in the air. But just as water becomes potentially dangerous when we choose to do certain things in it or with it, so the possibility of harmful exposure to radon arises when we make certain choices. Prominent among these are living in well-insulated and poorly ventilated houses, and smoking. Is federal action required to respond to these choices?

Atmospheric radon is estimated to cause up to 20,000 deaths per year due to lung cancer, about four times the number of deaths by drowning. Is the difference enough to make the one a federal case and not the other? At best this distinction is callous, but it is undermined by the fact that the EPA also seeks to eliminate all naturally occurring radon from drinking water simply because it is estimated that in this from radon causes as many as 730 deaths per year.

Another argument for EPA intervention in the case of radon is no more compelling than one that could be made for a federal anti-drowning program: Both "problems" exist all over the country. The temptation to confuse situations that are widespread with problems that demand the coordinating action of the federal government is a powerful one these days, but one worth resisting.

Concern about radon should prompt people to buy ventilation fans, not write their congressmen. To demand that the federal government "take the lead," as many environmental groups and state environmental agencies are doing, is to make the problem, to the extent there is one, more difficult to solve.

The demand for federal action against radon can ultimately be traced to a belief, powerful in environmentalist circles, that the federal government should seek to create, regardless of cost, a society in which there are no risks. Such a society is thought to be possible based on man's ability to control nature and bend it to his ends.

But the radon case suggests that some in the EPA need to rethink how far they want to pursue the goal of protecting man from nature. Just as it would seem ludicrous to have a national policy to fence ponds because people drown in them, so the bias in favor of zero-risk and the complete control of nature undermines serious debate over important environmental issues.

To make the creation of a zero-risk society the goal of the federal bureaucracy would be utopian and dangerous, and it is fortunate that despite internal and external pressures that push the EPA in this direction, it does not always act with such a questionable result in view. But the credibility of the federal role in environmental protection will not be enhanced by the actions taken in the radon case. The EPA will always be open to such gaffes until it and the public gain a clearer perspective on what its broadest goals have been in the past and should be in the future.

Rubin, a political scientist in Houston, is examining the political theory of environmentalism as a 1986-87 John M. Olin Foundation fellow.

How Tax Law Will Affect You

A significant change in deductions for medical and dental expenses is only one of the changes in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 that will affect people over age 65 when they file their tax returns next year.

This is a brief look at how some of these changes will affect you. For a broad general overview of the tax law, look at Internal Revenue Service Publication 553, "Highlights of 1986 Tax Changes."

For 1987, the extra personal exemption for those who are over 65 or blind has been replaced by an additional standard deduction. In 1987 the personal exemption is increased to $1,900. (In 1988 it will be $1,950 and in 1989 it will be $2,000.)

The zero-bracket amount (the amount of income not subject to tax) has been eliminated and the IRS is going back to the concept of the standard deduction. If the total of your itemized deductions is greater than these standard deduction amounts, you can deduct the total amount of your itemized deductions.

This is the way you figure the amount of your standard deduction if you (or your spouse, if you are filing a joint return) are age 65 or over or blind:

First, figure your basic standard deduction. If you are single, it's $3,000; if you're married and filing jointly, it's $5,000. (Others can consult Publication 553 for their rates.) These are higher than the basic standard deductions for the general population because Congress, in 1987 only, is allowing seniors to use the 1988 basic standard deduction. Congress is doing this because the extra personal exemption was repealed.

Then add your additional standard deduction. If you're married and filing jointly it is $800 per person who is over 65; if you're single, it's $750.

The income levels above which a person must file a tax return will increase. The 1986 filing requirements were $4,640 for singles and $7,950 for married couples filing jointly if both are 65. In 1987 filing requirements will be $5,650 and $10,000 respectively.

There are approximately 12 million people over the age of 65 who pay taxes. Because of this change about 700,000 of those who pay tax under current law will no longer have to pay, according to the American Association of Retired Persons.

On the other hand, elderly taxpayers who itemize their returns won't do as well on their 1987 returns because of the change in medical and dental deductions.

Beginning in tax year 1987, you may deduct only that part of your medical and dental expenses that is more than 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. For tax year 1986, those expenses had to exceed only 5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

The 60 percent exclusion deduction for capital gains no longer exists. However, you can still take a one-time exclusion of $125,000 of gain on the sale of your principal residence if you are 55 years of age or older.

For tax year 1987 and subsequent years, you must list a Social Security number for all dependents that you claim who are age 5 and over. If one of your dependents, a parent or a grandparent say, has never worked, he or she may not have a Social Security number. Pick up Form SS-5 now from either the Social Security Administration or the IRS and fill it out. Don't wait until 1988 when you're getting ready to file your return. If you do that, you may not get a number in time to file your taxes before the deadline.

Schools Need More Vocational Programs

Over the 13 years that my sons have been in the Seminole County school system I have been very impressed with its teachers and administration. With very few exceptions, the teachers and school staffs have been dedicated and professional in their dealings with my children and those of my friends, neighbors and acquaintances. Seminole County has a lot to be proud of in their school system.

The public school system is, of necessity, set up for the "good of the whole." Unfortunately, there are a great many good young people whose needs are not being met, those who do not have any plans or desire to go to college. In the effort to prepare the high school student (and now, there is a concerted effort to prepare the future college-bound student in middle school) for college courses, emphasis is placed on the well-rounded curriculum needed to introduce the young person to a wide range of subjects and interests and a very high level of foundation material in the "3 R's."

This is commendable, for those desiring and/or planning to go on to higher education. It is a farce to far too many pupils who plan to (and want only to) work in fields that are not enhanced by the certificate of graduation from an institute of higher learning. As a result, there are whole classes of young folks who "put in their time" in courses that are (to their way of thinking) a waste of time and therefore to be endured but not participated in, because the curriculum guide says that each student must have this or that course to be well rounded.

I agree that we all benefit from more education, but, my point is that there are large numbers of students that are "putting in the time" required by law, but are being a detriment to themselves and their classmates because the material is not being accepted by them as necessary or even beneficial. This type of student wears down the desire to teach and inspire that a truly "called" teacher has and detracts from the excitement that really scholastically oriented pupils have.

That is the problem as I have seen it (and I worked as a substitute teacher in Seminole County for three years, logging thousands of hours). My "solution" is not original, it has worked in many school districts in many states for years, but it is one that should be effected in our county as soon as possible. We need a vocationally oriented school, a school where the foundations are taught and the future vocation is taught as well as practiced.

In Massachusetts, there is a school which teaches the basics in academics with the major emphasis on the construction (from blue prints to finished product) of the class project, a house which the senior class constructs and sells the year they graduate. Now, those young people see the value in the basics that they would never see in the "regular" public school system.

I have a friend who was graduated from high school and nurses training at the same time. She grew up in a high school with a profession that our kids are not offered.

Miami has had a vocational high school for 40 years or more. It has graduated many who would otherwise have been "drop-outs" and many who went on to "higher education" in later years. Vocational schools do not keep people out of college, they can be a stepping stone for the more well-rounded, better educated individual.

The list is endless. Why isn't there a high school curriculum in Seminole County designed to prepare the young people to service one of our state's largest industries, the tourist industry?

There are many of our high school students who are taking basic courses in every area possible and wasting years of their time, the system's time and everyone's money, because the law says they must "do" X number of papers before they are passed from one grade to another ... and they are bored to death while they await that "magic" June day when they are graduated and can begin their life. Vocational training as a major and the basics which are repeated every year as a minor could help this type of student like they should be.

Why has Seminole County not already instituted a vocational education program similar to those mentioned?

Spring Brings Religion To Mind

The Spring calendar reminds us of the importance of religion in our lives: Lent, Palm Sunday, Holy Week, Good Friday, Easter, Passover. Keynote themes highlighted by religious devotees of various faiths include preparation, sacrifice, commitment, victory, new life. At this time of year each one aspires to achieve a clearer understanding of his faith, and a deeper commitment to the ideals for which it stands.

We recognize that our ideals are often higher than our accomplishments. Human frailty and weakness have limited our capability in fulfilling our aspirations. In our penitence and contrition we pledge renewed sacrifice — of time, of money, of talent, of spirit — to stretch upward for victory. Our religious faith often experiences a new life, a rebirth, a resurrection of latent talents and dormant capabilities. Religious faith becomes deeper, stronger, more vital in impacting upon our personal and social life, as well as our work-a-day world.

Out of such faith the American nation was born. The freedoms of democracy, the rights of humankind, emerged from the foundation of religious faith and practice. They flowed into a constitutionally-based republic, with a triune government of executive, legislative and judicial powers. They mushroomed into a union of fifty sovereign states, united as the greatest nation on earth.

We note a striking parallel as the religious keynotes are translated into our historical heritage. By sacrifice we have preserved our independence in time of conflict. By dedicated commitment we have assured national unity in achieving victory against our common foes. By diligent preparation we maintain military strength to deter would-be aggressors.

We recognize there are some failures in national policies and attainments. There are times for reexamination and restatement of our goals. With renewed determination we can experience a rebirth of the American "Way of Life." We can surpass all the world in opportunities and free choices leading to fulfillment of highest hopes and aspirations.

Springtime! May it bring a new life to both our religious faith and to our national goals and ideals.

All Lottery Proceeds Must Go To Education

Editor's note: The following is excerpted from a speech Ms. Castor made to the Florida Senate Select Committee For The Lottery in February.

By Betty Castor

Commissioner of Education

For the record, my position is clear: the proceeds from the lottery must all go to education. All of it. Now and forever. I don't need to recite the evolution of the lottery amendment. You know it all too well. But I do need to ward off those who would treat it like a grab bag, free to be picked at without regard to our original intent. We made a contract with the people of Florida and I plan to do all I can to make sure we keep it.

As you can see from this chart, the lottery spending plan that we are proposing today has several major thrusts. But there's one theme that echoes throughout this proposal: I call it competitive reality. It is time we faced the reality that if Florida is to compete for quality teachers ... if Florida is to meet the demands of growth... if Florida is to provide our children with quality education — a goal that everyone endorses — then we must be competitive. That means competitive working conditions, competitive recruitment capability and competitive salaries.

First, this bill establishes the Florida Education

Improvement Trust Fund, which carries with it, by title, the clear intent of using the funds for improving education, and not replacing any funding sources for existing programs.

In our plan, the funds are split 80/20, with 80 percent of the money going to public schools, and 20 percent to higher education. The State University System and the community colleges will divide their shares equally.

Terrell Scassums, Chairman of the Board of Regents, will speak for the university system, and Clark Maxwell, as executive director, will speak for community colleges. They will explain how they plan to prioritize higher education spending. But let me just say that we arrived at this 80/20 division very simply: It's approximately the same ratio of dollars currently being spent to operate our educational system in Florida.

I would like to address in greater detail the priorities for public school spending. First and foremost is teacher salaries. I have stated several times that my goal is to reach the national average in teacher salaries. It now appears that the best, most feasible source of funding to achieve this goal is proceeds from the lottery. The Governor's recommended 7 percent pay raise this year, if approved by the Legislature, will only maintain our embarrassing position among other states. I am proposing that we do what's necessary to boost that pay an additional amount with lottery dollars to get our teachers to the national average. Our estimates indicate it will take $170 million in fiscal year 1987-88.

Why is this national ranking important? Let me explain our "Recruitment Gap." The number of new teachers we need each year averages out to about 10,000 teachers per year between now and the year 2000. These vacancies are caused by a variety of reasons, from growth to resignations. But the fact is, we must fill them just to keep up with current teacher/student ratios.

Even if we project that every Florida graduate will remain in this state and teach, we are left with a huge "Recruitment Gap." That means we must go to Georgia. Go to New York and Texas. Go everywhere we can to entice teachers to come to Florida. Every year the challenge will be tremendous. I fully realize that Florida has a lower cost of living than some states; and I love the sunshine as much as anyone. But the sun doesn't shine bright enough — even in Florida — to close this "Recruitment Gap" by itself. That's why we must face competitive reality. Quality teachers will come to Florida in these numbers only if salaries are at least on a competitive level. And I believe this proposal will get us there.

And let us remember that this isn't just for teachers. They deserve the pay, of course. But this proposal is for the students, who deserve quality teachers. This proposal is for business and economic development, because it's our educational system that produces the workers. And this proposal is for the schools, who have to pay the price for vacant teacher positions.

If we fulfill this commitment, then we can move on to other educational improvements. I would like to use up to 5 percent of the Trust Fund for local school district endowments. The money would be distributed to school districts to match grants from private businesses and individuals. This provides the necessary incentive for people to give to public education. It's worked extremely well for universities. After talking with business leaders and individuals throughout the state, I am convinced that they feel a need to assist schools.

Finally, we should use the remaining funds to serve Florida's at-risk students. Beginning with the 1988-89 school year, we should enhance programs for underprivileged pre-schoolers, dropout prevention and extending the hours of school facilities for latchkey children.

Fight Against AIDS Is Being Botched

By B.D. Cole
NEA Writer

The sense of déjà vu was overwhelming.

The meeting in Atlanta was in a hotel ballroom rather than a conference room at the federal Centers for Disease Control headquarters. There were more than 400 participants and at least 100 media observers, rather than a few dozen participants and fewer than a dozen reporters.

But it was Jan. 4, 1983, all over again.

On that day leaders of the nation's blood banks met with gay leaders to discuss possible infection of the blood supply by whatever was causing acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Dr. William Foege, then director of CDC, said it was "more likely we will today come up with a list of options" than with a list of actions.

And on Feb. 24, 1987, Dr. James O. Mason, who now heads the agency, said they were there to "get the facts out and to listen to every point of view."

In January 1983, with fewer than 1,000 known cases of AIDS, the blood-bankers didn't recognize, or refused to admit, they had a catastrophe on their hands.

At that point the epidemic's cause was unknown, with only a few cases linked to blood transfusion, though the disease was already the second-leading cause of death in hemophiliacs.

There wasn't enough evidence, blood-bankers said, for them to start refusing blood donations from those in AIDS high-risk groups.

Several CDC researchers and other physicians at the 1983 meeting were outraged.

Dr. Donald Francis asked: "What is the threshold? Is three (cases caused by transfusion) enough? Is six enough? Is 10 enough? Is 100 enough? We call these meetings early so we can get ahead."

Dr. Donald Armstrong of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center said: "I'm amazed I have no doubt this is a transmitted agent, sexually transmitted and transmitted through blood products."

But blood-bankers mentioned lack of convincing evidence and gays talked of the need to protect civil rights and of voluntary self-exclusion from donation.

And so, on Feb. 24, 1987, another meeting was held.

It was supposed to be about proposals for mandatory AIDS testing for those applying for marriage licenses and those admitted to hospitals. Instead, it was a civil libertarians' love feast, with one public-health official after another denouncing mandatory anything.

The problem is that for voluntarism to succeed, those whose cooperation is needed must be convinced there is a crisis.

While the message has sunk in among gays, and cooperation in that community has been high, it has not been communicated to the rest of those at risk, particularly the urban poor.

The fault lies not with the poor, but with public-health officials who have failed to come to grips with the seriousness of the crisis.

This latest Atlanta meeting should not have been called to discuss mandatory screening or testing or infection control.

Rather, it should have been called to garner support for federal legislation to protect confidentiality of test results and other personal data gathered in the fight against this epidemic. It should have included a call for legislation to outlaw any form of discrimination based on AIDS infection or sexual orientation.

Once those laws are passed, they, along with the recent Supreme Court decision barring discrimination against carriers of contagious disease, should alleviate fears of wholesale discrimination against those who test positive for AIDS.

Then, perhaps, over four years and 29,000 cases after the blood-bankers failed to see a problem, public-health officials can focus on protecting the public's health.

a nine mile stretch. I knew if we could get an interchange at Lake Mary Boulevard it would become a light industry corridor. It took five years with a lot of work and help. Alan Boyd, secretary of transportation in Lyndon Johnson's administration and former legislative aide for Governor Leroy Collins, got us site approval and we got the state to pay for it. As soon as it was finished, right quick Stromberg Carlson located there and others followed.

"In the area of transportation it had as much impact on the economic development of the county as anything I've ever been involved in," Stenstrom observed. "In 1938 when I graduated from high school in Sanford, there weren't any jobs here. I thought if we could get the interchange jobs would develop for young people out of high school who did not want to go to college and that's what happened."

Appointed by Gov. Reubin Askew, Stenstrom served for four years as chairman of the state Board of Colleges and Universities. "I've always been mixed up in education," he said.

"In the early 60s the legislature authorized a state 4-year degree granting institution for central Florida. We formed a task force to locate it in Seminole County. The statute said it was to serve seven counties and I knew the geographical center would be north and east of Orlando in Southeast Seminole County. They wanted to put it south and west toward Disney. In our first year we established Florida Technological University (now University of Central Florida) north and east on the county line and it didn't cost us anything.

"For all time to come every boy and girl that finishes high school and wants a 4-year college degree living in Seminole County can get it with in driving distance of their home."

The fourth thing, Stenstrom said, has the longest impact on the environment. It is the environmental task force formed by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce to save the St. Johns River that led to the "Save Our Rivers" Bill. Stenstrom said.

"After the 10-million fishkill in the St. Johns in 1978," Stenstrom said, "we formed the task force which found the flow of the river was rapidly decreasing and pollution was increasing rapidly. Over a six-year period a solution was worked out and the method of financing put into place and the river was saved."

"The St. Johns River Water Management District was there but not doing anything," Stenstrom said. "We got the district money and now they're accomplishing so much. It gets 25 percent of the documentary stamp revenue to buy marshlands back around the river's headwaters. It took years to get it in that bad a shape, but it's been turned around."

As for the Julian Stenstrom Bridge across the St. Johns, he said. "We worked 19 years to get the old wooden Osteen Bridge replaced. We started on the project in 1959. Under Gov. Haydon Burns (1964) we had $600,000 in the road budget to build a new bridge, but an argument came up over the height of the span and we lost it. We couldn't get it back in the budget until Reuben Askew was governor and then it cost $3.2 million to build.

"I enjoy being active in the practice of law, but I don't go in on Friday anymore," Stenstrom said. This gives him more time to spend with his wife of 44 years, Florence, in their comfortable home in The Springs near Longwood as well as rambling around the heavily wooded property observing nature.

Although tongue-in-cheek he describes himself as "99 percent over the hill," his wife is quick to disagree and his busy schedule contradicts it.

As a class president, Stenstrom's latest project is organizing the 50th anniversary reunion of the Seminole High Class of 1938 to be held next year. He pointed out his picture in an old copy of the Salmagundi yearbook as well as classmate, Volle Williams, who was also destined for a career in law and on the bench.

Stenstrom was aptly described in his senior yearbook as having "Neatness and charm and qualities of leadership, generosity of giving. He has capacity for great friendship."

Stenstrom said he reads a great deal — mostly history, biographies and political science books — and enjoys watching sporting events. He and his wife attend Sweetwater Baptist Church.

The Stenstroms, both Sanford natives, have a lot in common: They were delivered by the same doctor, christened by the same minister, Dr. S.W. Walker, who later returned to officiate at their wedding. They also have two children, Doug Jr., who with his wife, Barbara, and daughter, Bridgett, live in Black Mountain, N.C., and Patricia Fesperman, who with her husband Tom and children, Stephen and Angela, live in Fairfield, Iowa.

Stenstrom summed up his life. "There are not many as fortunate as I am. God has blessed me and my family."

Ireland Fighting Back With 'Life Wish'

By Lis Mitchell
American Library Assn.

LIFE WISH, by Jill Ireland. Little, Brown. $17.95, 294 pages

Her husband had his "Death Wish."

Now Jill Ireland shares her "Life Wish."

It is the story of her fight with cancer, starting with the recovery-room moment in 1984 when Charles Bronson gave her the terrifying news that her breast tumor was malignant. She takes her story to the present. She is free of cancer, but still has years before she can call herself cured.

This is a moving, honest book. The fact that its author is glamorous and famous plays little part in her story. This is a surprisingly powerful human drama.

Always an active woman, Jill Ireland had been mother to seven children, including stepchildren and her best friend's daughter. Ireland maintained an acting career, managed several households, ran horse-breeding businesses, took part in community causes and found time for keeping her body in shape.

Yet she had a history of medical catastrophes. After she got cancer, she talked with medical counselors, read a lot and got a new perspective on the mind-body link. She found: "The message I was getting from everybody was that there is such a thing as a cancer personality. One doctor thought I had become ill because my mind, not my body, broke down."

She recalls the particularly stressful events during the 18 months preceding her cancer. These included family illnesses; a leg injury that would not heal; and her best friend's death. "I had not taken time to replenish my energies," Ireland said. "I had become deeply depressed."

Then she makes the mind-body connection: "My white blood cells had stopped doing their job. When I stopped fighting, they stopped fighting. White blood cells kill off millions of cancer cells over and over again during a lifetime. There are always cancer cells in our bodies. The only time they ... multiply is when our white blood cells allow them."

Her doctors advised her to learn to slow down. One warned her, "You are in an unhealthy situation. You need peace and tranquility to get well. ... If you don't stop and find time to change, you will die."

Once she accepted the power of her illness, she focused on fighting it. She became interested in a variety of therapies. From chemotherapy to electromagnetic-table treatments to crystal power to the I Ching, she threw herself into healing.

Gradually, Ireland fought off the enemy. She also made peace with her stricken body, concluding "that cancer has tremendously rewarding sides. I became closer to my family and friends. I was opening doors, making discoveries about myself that would have taken years without the illness. It would be unfair to make all these discoveries only to lose them."

"Life Wish" offers more than inspiration. It contains specific information useful to other cancer patients. Ireland not only explains the process from biopsy to chemotherapy, she also shares a real person's reactions, fears and coping techniques.

She reports that her experience dispelled "two popular myths ... one, that you lose weight and become tragically thin while taking chemotherapy, and two, that your husband and family will pull you through. You will be supported, but it won't ever be enough."

She recommends "a network of close friends ... to help with the difficult days." She also found a therapist. "You have to talk out your horrible ... feelings," she writes. "It's a shame you can't talk to the wall and get rid of them, but there has to be a receiver. The right therapist or the right friend is vital."

home in on specific substances — are in development at Rutgers and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California.

A flaw of past population studies and a possible reason they showed little or no health effects from dioxin was the assumption anybody with heavy exposure also accumulated dioxin in tissues, researchers said.

Using that assumption, it's easy to conclude that heavy exposure has little effect on the body, researchers said.

"In that group of 1,000 (in a study), maybe there are only 100 highly exposed who really have effects. They would be very difficult to weed out if you don't know how much they're exposed to," said toxicologist Thomas Gasiewicz of the University of Rochester.

The Air Force hopes to use the test in its Ranch Hand study of pilots and ground crew involved in spraying, a spokeswoman said. The 20-year study, begun in 1982, has so far found no excess health problems that could be linked to the defoliant.

"It is probable we will find marked variations among Ranch Handers when we start to measure actual tissue levels of dioxin," Schecter said.

For women, earlier research proposals were hindered by the belief there were not enough of them in active service to constitute a solid study group. It was also believed that the majority of military women at the time were Army nurses, and that virtually every Army nurse had been rotated in and out of Vietnam — hence, there would be no one who could serve as a control subject.

Another concern was locating women who had married and changed their names.

"We did a pilot survey and found that as a matter of fact, people were wrong; there were plenty of nurses who were not rotated through Vietnam, and we were able to locate many women years later," Diefenbach said.

McGoran, who helped push a bill through Congress in 1985 to mandate the study, has mixed feelings about the project. Although pleased it was finally funded, she is impatient over testing difficulties and is concerned that Red Cross and other civilian women were left out.

"The bottom line is that our government, the VA, are scared to death we're going to find out the truth about this stuff and it's going to cost them a lot of money," she said.

"All this has been a waiting game. The longer they wait, the more vets die. If they wait long enough, everything dies. People lose interest in it and they lose energy."

McGoran felt sick and looked sick after returning stateside, yet doctors could find nothing specifically wrong with her. She finally resorted to Eastern medicine, consulting a Chinese doctor who diagnosed chemical damage to the liver and prescribed a fast followed by a strict diet.

At the same time, traditional Western practitioners found a small cancer of the cervix, for which she underwent laser surgery. She found out about Agent Orange during congressional hearings in 1982.
