Tar-covered turtles wash ashore

FORT LAUDERDALE — Six sea turtles covered with globs of tar have washed ashore in the past four weeks in South Florida, mystifying state experts.

All of the endangered turtles were young and roughly the same size, with shells only about eight inches long. They have been found from Biscayne Bay near Miami to Jupiter Inlet that is more than 70 miles north.

"We're not sure where they are coming from or why they are encountering this tar," said Barbara Schroeder, coordinator of the state Department of Natural Resources' turtle recovery program. "We're going to be digging into it as much as we can."

A large oil slick could have coated the turtles, but the U.S. Coast Guard and the Florida Marine Patrol have not received reports of one, Schroeder said.

All of the turtles, which included five hawksbill and one green turtle, wore a thick coating of tar, as opposed to "a small patch here or there," she said.

Only two of the turtles were found alive.

The latest sea turtle stranding occurred in Boca Raton on Thursday, when a small hawksbill washed up on the beach in Red Reef Park.

Baby makes surprise recovery

WEST PALM BEACH — A 4-month-old girl who doctors thought would never survive a rare heart ailment linked to viral meningitis made a surprise recovery and will be released from the hospital soon.

Viral meningitis caused Taylor D'Ambrosia to develop an inflamed, weak heart and she suffered liver and kidney problems.

"I thought we were going to lose her," said pediatric cardiologist Harry Bayron. "The survival rate for the condition is 5 to 10 percent."

But a little more than two weeks ago, though, the frail child surprised her doctors and nurses at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach.

If all continues to go well, she will return next week to her home in Wellington.

Her body started to fight back after Bayron administered gamma globulin, a substance prepared from human blood that contains antibodies against most common infections.

"It was a last ditch effort," he said.

Slowly, her heart condition began to improve.

"It was just amazing," Bayron said.

Susan D'Ambrosia, who stayed by her daughter's side for 59 days in the pediatric intensive care unit, said the ordeal strengthened her religious beliefs.

Cops charge theft over bank deposit mistake

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A $15,000 windfall deposited by mistake into the checking account of a Sanford man last month may turn into a June nightmare for him because police say they are charging him with grand theft.

According to information furnished by Southern Bank officials in Lake Mary to police, sometime between May 7 and May 21, $15,000 was accidentally deposited into the account of Steven Fletcher, 26, 3801 Sanford Avenue, Sanford.

When Fletcher discovered the additional cash, he wrote a check for $14,000 on his account May 24 and withdrew an additional $1,000 with his bank card, according to reports. Fletcher had opened his bank account with $129 on April 22.

Motorists beware: Kids out of school

By NICK PPRIPAUP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — School is out and children are everywhere. They are walking the streets and sidewalks, and riding their bikes all over.

"It's usually that way during the first few days after school is out," commented Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell. "Eventually, when they start summertime jobs, go off on vacation, or find something with which to occupy their time, the problem will be reduced."

"It's not only the first few days for the children," said Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary, "but it's a very difficult time for the motorists as well. They are used to having them in school and may not be as cautious as they should be during these first few days."

"In many instances," Russell said, "children are not allowed to ride their bikes on sidewalks, downtown for example, so the only place they can ride is on the street, and that's where the problem lies."

"They have to learn to stay out of the traffic areas," he continued, "until they eventually learn where they can and cannot ride."

Russell suggested parents urge their children to become involved in various summertime activities. "We are in cooperation with the Sheriff's Department in the Seminole County Police Athletic League," he said, "and it's an excellent opportunity for children to be take an active part in basketball, volleyball and other gym activities."

"We just can't say that it's the children who should be on the alert," Beary said. "Motorists have to be assigned equal weight. They

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Man receives award for wife he killed

BOYNTON BEACH — Rowell Gilbert, the elderly man who shot his ill wife then was jailed for her mercy killing, appeared in public for the first time in nearly three years to accept a posthumously award for her.

The award was given to the 85-year-old man Thursday by a facility that cares for adults suffering from Alzheimer's disease. His wife suffered from the disease and osteoporosis when she was killed.

"Thank you so much on behalf of my wife, Emily," he said. "I certainly miss her. She was a wonderful lady."

In August, 1990, state officials commuted the life sentence Gilbert received for shooting his ill wife at their oceanside condominium near Fort Lauderdale. He served five years in prison.

He said jail wasn't that bad and he still hears from a couple of the inmates he befriended. He regrets the state for putting him in prison for something he feels he had to do — end the suffering of his wife of 51 years.

"The frustrating thing is," he said, "we don't know anymore about Alzheimer's now than we did back then."

Noisy bash charges benefit homeless

PLANTATION — A judge ordered the son of tennis champion Bobby Riggs to house the homeless at his hotel after neighbors complained about noisy reggae parties.

Broward County Judge Steven Shutter offered Thursday what he called a "feel-good" sentence to Plantation Inn owner Larry Riggs. He was also ordered to donate food to an agency that helps the needy and to give a dozen tennis balls to the city's tennis center.

Riggs pleaded no contest to eight charges of violating the city's noise ordinance during poolside parties offered on Sundays.

For each charge, Shutter ordered Riggs to house one homeless family in his hotel for up to six days.

"I'm pleased with the judge's order for the community service," Riggs said. "We're happy to comply."

Thieves rip off mangoes from trees

DELRAY BEACH — A homeowner who waited for his first crop of mangoes to ripen was livid when he discovered thieves shook his tree bare of the tropical fruit.

"There were about 500 mangoes on that tree," John Vaughan said Thursday. "And they were huge — now the whole tree is bare."

Vaughan and his wife, who had never owned a mango tree, recently moved into the Delray Beach house because of the 30-foot mango tree in the front yard and a smaller one in the back yard. The smaller tree was not touched by the thieves, but Vaughan said the mangoes on that tree aren't as big.

"I talked my wife into getting this house because of the mango trees," he said. "When this happened, she just went into orbit. Now she said she wants to move."

Vaughan, 42, said a neighbor watched a group of men spend about an hour Wednesday afternoon shaking all the mangoes out of his tree.

"I was told when the men left, their van was dragging because of the weight of the mangoes," he said. "And my neighbor was watching them the whole time."

Parole not delayed beyond today

MIAMI — The parole of a murderer who killed a West Walton Beach businessman will not be delayed beyond today, but he will be required to start paying restitution to his victim's family.

Jimmie Woods Potter was convicted of robbing and murdering Walter Robson, 56, a retired air Force lieutenant colonel, in the victim's feed store near Fort Walton Beach on Feb. 4, 1972.

He had been scheduled for release a month ago from the Century Correctional Institution in the northwest corner of the Florida Panhandle, but the state Parole Commission put his release on hold because all panel members had not heard taped testimony by the victim's wife, Beverly.

After hearing testimony, the commissioners agreed to release Potter and with a requirement that he pay up to $439,304.59 in restitution, although no one expects him to pay the full amount.

Potter admitted to the slaying, pleading guilty to first-degree murder. Florida had no death penalty at that time and Potter was sentenced to life in prison.

Gun-toting students face expulsion

MIAMI — Public school students found carrying guns could face expulsion starting this fall, the Dade County School Board ruled in a move that reversed a five-year policy of keeping problem students in class.

The board's decision Wednesday was prompted by a report on school violence that said the board's policy of rehabilitating troubled students is hurting others who want to learn.

While the board voted to expel any student over 16 found with a gun or using guns to commit assault and battery, the panel backed away from automatic expulsion fearing that would infringe on students' constitutional rights.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Publix boycott urged

Groups claim chain needs more women, minorities

By BILL BERNSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida General Baptist Convention and Florida AFL-CIO urged members Thursday to boycott Publix Super Markets Inc. until the chain hires more women and minority managers.

Publix said it seeks managers of all backgrounds, but a Florida Consumer Federation survey indicated its 402 Florida and Georgia stores had fewer black managers and only a few more women and Hispanic managers than a year ago.

"We are asking our people to shop elsewhere where their dollars are appreciated," said Henry Lyons, president of the Baptist group, representing 800 churches with about 500,000 members.

"We are ... initiating a call to our membership to shop elsewhere until the record that we've seen at Publix markets is greatly improved," said Dan Miller, president of the state AFL-CIO, which includes labor groups with 400,000 members.

The consumer federation, a coalition of 130 labor, civil rights, consumer and other groups with about 20,000 members, also is considering a boycott if Publix doesn't begin aggressive, company-wide recruitment, hiring and promotion of women, blacks and Hispanics, federation board member Mark Neimeier said.

"There will be an open appeal to the public throughout the state and throughout Georgia not to buy at Publix until there is some corrective action taken, and a meaningful one, not just the proliferation of press releases that we saw last year after the initial survey," said Neimeier, head of the Tallahassee chapter of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the main state employees' union.

Susan Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the state AFL-CIO and a member of the Florida Commission on the Status of Women, said she stopped shopping at Publix, though the women's commission hadn't taken a formal position.

"This is the glass ceiling," Wilson said. "No matter where women and minorities get, they cannot break that ceiling."

The groups held news conferences in Tallahassee, Jacksonville and Savannah, Ga. The survey was disputed by Publix' director of minority affairs, Lee Brunson.

For the teen membership and guests, the club held a 3 on 3 basketball tournament in the gym with the following winners: left to right, Eric

Stiff competition

Hitchhiker gets life for murder

PENSACOLA — A jury Thursday recommended against the death penalty for an Ohio hitchhiker who murdered an Alabama motorist in the Florida Panhandle on his way to prepare his family's beach cottage for Hurricane Andrew.

Late Wednesday, the same jury deliberated six hours before finding James L. Hall guilty. The panel was out only an hour before recommending life in prison without parole for at least 25 years, the only alternative to death in Florida's electric chair.

The recommendation is not binding on Circuit Judge Ed Nickinson, who did not immediately set a sentencing date.

On the witness stand, Hall, 21, of Youngstown, Ohio, denied he shot Frank White, 62, of Daleville, Ala., last Aug. 25. Hall claimed his girlfriend, Heather Frank, did it after he had stolen the victim's wallet outside a Pensacola bank.

"I grabbed the wallet and ran," he testified. "I thought Heather was behind me. I went back after I heard gunshots and I saw her holding the gun."

Hall said he only wanted to protect Ms. Frank when he jumped in White's car and sped from the scene, running over the victim's body in the process.

Ms. Frank, 19, also of Youngstown, testified against Hall. She had pleaded no contest to being an accessory after the fact to murder in December. After she testified Tuesday, Nickinson sentenced her to six months of house arrest followed by 18 months on probation.

She recently gave birth to a baby fathered by Hall.

The couple had been hitchhiking and were given a ride by White, a retired Army civil service worker and former school board member, who was driving to the family cottage at Gulf Shores, Ala. The hurricane struck the Louisiana coast later in the night he was killed, but its effects were felt as far east as Pensacola Beach, where a fishing pier was damaged.

The suspects were arrested three weeks later in Ridgeway, Pa., near the home of one of Hall's relatives.

POLICE BRIEFS

Auto theft charged

Two Sanford residents were among five persons arrested Wednesday afternoon on auto theft charges.

A Seminole County deputy reported seeing a suspicious auto near the intersection of Interstate 4 and State Road 46. When he checked the tag, the deputy found the car had been reported stolen from Altamonte Springs. The deputy followed the car to a nearby motel, where he saw two of the suspects enter a room. Arrested were Richard Theodore Davis Jr., 22, 1215 Magnolia Ave., Sanford; Leo Max Butts, 18, 1216 W. 13th St., Sanford; Edward E. Grant, 23, Mattland, and two juveniles. All were held on auto theft charges. Davis was also held on a suspended drivers license charge.

Traffic stop leads to arrest

Two Midway men were arrested early Wednesday morning following a traffic stop.

A Seminole County deputy reported stopping the pair after seeing no tag on the car they were in. The deputy reported the driver refused to cooperate and sit in the back of his squad car. The other man shouted and attracted a crowd, the deputy reported. Arrested were Vince Edward Byrd, 30, 2370 Granby St., and Timothy Jerome McMillan, 25, 3011 20th St., Sanford. Both were held on charges of creating an affray or riot and resisting arrest with violence.

Resisting arrest

A Sanford woman was arrested near her home Wednesday evening on a resisting arrest charge.

Kimmie Pierce Matter, 29, 2015 S. Sanford Ave., Apt. E, Sanford, was arrested when she ran from a Sanford police officer, the policeman reported.

Domestic violence charged

Mark Allen Byers, 23, 318 S. Palmetto Ave., Sanford, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge by Sanford police Tuesday afternoon.

A woman reported Byers dragged her across a room and struck her with his hands.

Two Sanford men were arrested at their home on marijuana possession charges.

Agents of the City-County Investigative Bureau served a search warrant at the 2821 Crawford Drive residence of Tim Lee Brown, 27, and Kelvin Lee Brown, 28. The details of the search were not reported, but agents report discovering three bags of marijuana and a .38-caliber handgun on the dresser of Tim Brown. Agents report Kelvin Brown was permitted to leave, but not before they searched a canvas bag he was carrying. Inside, they report finding a bag of marijuana.

Burglary charges

A Longwood man was arrested Wednesday evening on two burglary charges.

Longwood police say fingerprints matching those of Jason J. Vargas, 19, 766 Magnolia, were found at two burglarized residences, one on Georgia Avenue and another on Thrush Avenue. Vargas was arrested on two counts of burglary and grand theft.

Car ransacked

A customer's car at the Ken Rummel auto dealership body shop was reported burglarized sometime between 5:45 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Possessions taken

More than $8,700 worth of possessions were reported taken from the offices of JR Auto Leasing near Longwood sometime between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday. The owner of the business reported recovering many of the possessions in a truck bed in Tiffany Oaks Apartments parking lot.

They said he tied her to a bed, but later untied her and she was able to run for help. Police did not indicate the woman had been injured. Davis was charged with false imprisonment, and aggravated assault, domestic violence.

Prostitute killer to be resentenced

Court upholds death sentence for family poisoner

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court ordered the resentencing of a man condemned for the strangulation of a Tampa prostitute and upheld the death sentence of a man found guilty of murdering his neighbor by spiking seven bottles of Coca-Cola with poison.

In the first case, the court vacated Thursday the death sentence given to Michael Crump for the December 1985 murder of Lavinia Clark, a prostitute.

Crump, 33, is also serving a life sentence for the October 1986 murder of Areba Smith, another Tampa prostitute. The nude bodies of both women were found next to cemeteries.

Prosecutors failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Crump had planned to kill Clark in a "cold, calculated and premeditated manner without any moral or legal justification," Thursday's unsigned majority opinion read.

But that was one of the factors used to justify the death sentence. And since the trial judge's written order was vague, the Supreme Court could not tell if the first mistake was a harmless one or if it affected the outcome of the sentencing.

In the second case, George Trepal was accused of adding the highly toxic heavy metal thallium to Coke and sneaking the bottles into the kitchen of the Carr family's Alturas home in October 1988 because he was fed up with their loud music and uncontrolled dogs.

Peggy Carr, 41, drank from the bottles, slipped into a three-month coma and died. Other members of her family were poisoned but survived, although two were hospitalized and one almost died.

Trepal, 44, has not challenged his six counts of attempted first-degree murder. He was sentenced to 90 years in prison for those lesser offenses.

In upholding his conviction of first-degree murder, the court said the evidence showed "Trepal had motive; opportunity; means, including knowledge, poison and equipment; and had made statements tying him to the crime."

"We find this evidence sufficient to support the jury's verdict," the unsigned majority opinion read.

The court also upheld the factors used to justify the death sentence, despite Trepal's argument that it was wrong for the trial judge to conclude that spiking seven bottles of Coca-Cola could be considered a "great risk of death to many persons."

"He argues that only four persons resided in the Carr home, the other three lived in the detached apartment; therefore this is not many persons," the majority opinion reads.

The court disagreed. "Seven family members lived on the Carr property at all times, other family members visited regularly and Trepal knew that there were a lot of people coming and going" on the Carr property."

Woman found innocent but insane may be improving

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — An attorney claims a woman found innocent by reason of insanity in the slayings of her husband and son has improved greatly and steps should be taken to ease her back into society.

"She's doing so well," said attorney Thomas Trece said, adding that his immediate goal is to move his client to a facility where she can receive individualized treatment. A conditional release facility can be any mental health program approved by the judge.

Trece is asking Circuit Judge Lawrence P. Haddock to appoint two psychiatrists to examine Shirley Miller to determine if she can be moved from the state mental hospital.

Trece's request comes less than a year after Ms. Miller, 34, killed her husband, Kenneth, and 7-month-old son, Robert. She claimed days of religious hallucinations led her to stab her husband 22 times and her baby 17 times last July 24.

Haddock found her innocent of murder charges by reason of insanity in November, and sent her to Florida State Hospital in Chattahoochee.

Psychologists there have noted her progress, but have recommended she remain there for the time being.

She has shown "an usually well-developed insight into the nature of her illness, her need for medication," they said in a report to Haddock.

The report said Ms. Miller grieves for her husband and baby and speaks of a need to return to the community to try to "make a difference."

"She realized she could not change what had happened. However, she said that she felt she could do something worthwhile," the report said.

The report said more time spent under observation would be needed.

It suggested increasing her freedom and allowing Ms. Miller to participate in activities outside the building would provide more opportunity for further evaluation.

Assistant State Attorney Angela Corey Lee, who prosecuted Ms. Miller, thinks it is too early to think about release.

"I'm no doctor, but both common sense and instinct tell you that a person who can do that to her own child and her own husband needs to be put away," Ms. Corey Lee said. "The nature of her crimes was so brutal and so heinous ... there is just no way she could have recovered in a year."

Trece said his client is not receiving adequate treatment at Chattahoochee.

"That's not treatment. That's maintenance," he said.

School's out, so look out!

Youngsters have been sitting in school classrooms for hours each day. However, school is now out and they are exercising their feelings of freedom.

It may appear as though streets and highways have suddenly become the gathering place for every youngster in the area. They are dodging through traffic on bikes, zipping down sidewalks, or crossing in the middle of a block.

If one should be struck by a car or truck however, the public will blame the motorist. Even if no charges are made, a driver knowing he or she has struck a child, will never get over the guilt feeling.

Area law enforcement leaders agree unanimously that the greatest danger lies during the first few days of summer vacation, and the last few days prior to the resumption of school in the fall.

Eventually, the youths will find other activities to fill their time. Walking or bike riding will become methods of transportation rather than a show of independence.

Officers also believe the same time periods should be critical for motorists. They are not accustomed to the possibility of having one or a dozen children run across their path. Children are in school most of the year, and the danger is not as high.

For those who may question how serious the problem may be, Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel put it well. "If a vehicle hits a child walking or on a bike, everyone loses."

We urge everyone in a position of authority over children to stress the importance of pedestrian and bike safety.

We urge people who drive to exercise extreme caution and be on constant watch for trouble.

On scholarships

As Chairman of the Seminole High School COMSAC Committee, I would like to respond to SHS student, Cherie Scott's article published in the Herald on Sunday, May 30.

The SHS COMSAC Committee raises scholarship funds for SHS students from Alumni contributions and other friends of SHS. I share Cherie's frustration with the fact that well-deserving students cannot always obtain 100 percent of the scholarship funds they require. It is my hope that at some time in the future, the COMSAC Committee will be able to provide full 4-year scholarships to students. In 1992 and 1993 our committee raised over $20,000 each year for scholarship funds, and it has been our decision each year to help as many students as possible with this level of funding. (Our $1500 scholarships are based on the cost for one year's tuition and books at the community college level or as a supplement to higher costs at a 4-year university.)

We exclude some applicants who have college funds committed from other sources as one of our important criteria for selection is financial need. The $1500 awards we give do not cover 100 percent of expenses for COMSAC recipients who are required to work and/or live at home during college to meet expenses. We do try to provide opportunities for as many as possible, knowing they will find additional resources to finish college if they are given the chance to get started.

So to Cherie and all the students at SHS, I would like to say that the COMSAC Committee and the SHS Guidance Office will continue to work hard to increase funding and help as many students as possible acquire financial help and guidance.

The Community of Sanford is grateful and proud that so many of SHS's Alumni choose to give something back to our school and community.

Seeing the real war in Baltimore

The trouble with Washington is that famous people are always behaving like little children, intense, petulant, stomping this way and that, arguing, getting nasty. A local folk axiom informs political practitioners: "Don't get mad, get even."

We hate it; we love it; we watch it. But who needs it? It's unreal. Forget about it, at least for a while.

When the news on television isn't about politicians bickering, it's about bloodshed, in Bosnia or downtown, which often drives my 9-year-old daughter from the room in fear. You have to forget about it, for a while. It's not real.

This year it's all compounded by the weather. Washed by early rains and cool breezes, the June scenery is greener and lusher than ever. So who wants to go snip, snip, snipping at the president all the time? Or taxes, or budgets. Get away from it; let's go where it isn't so intense.

And so, last Sunday, along with 46,296 others, I was in Baltimore, a more real city than Washington, watching the Orioles play baseball against the Seattle Mariners. The June 8 weather was the best in history, bright and crisp. Camden Yards, the Orioles' new stadium, is the best ball park ever, anywhere. With wife, daughter and friends — all the best in the world — we settled in to watch the game.

The somnolent beauty of the place hung in the air. The innings reeled off inexorably, the action dreamy, almost slow motion, punctuated by the crack of the bat and the occasional murmuring thunder of the crowd. The Orioles were ahead 5-1 in the seventh.

Our little group was relaxed, in the real world. Political Washington and the violence of our time was so very far away, in another place with alien ways, always bickering and battering.

And then Mariner Bill Haselman moved to the plate. The Orioles' star pitcher Mike Mussina threw a fastball — which, clunk, hit Haselman on the meaty part of his left shoulder.

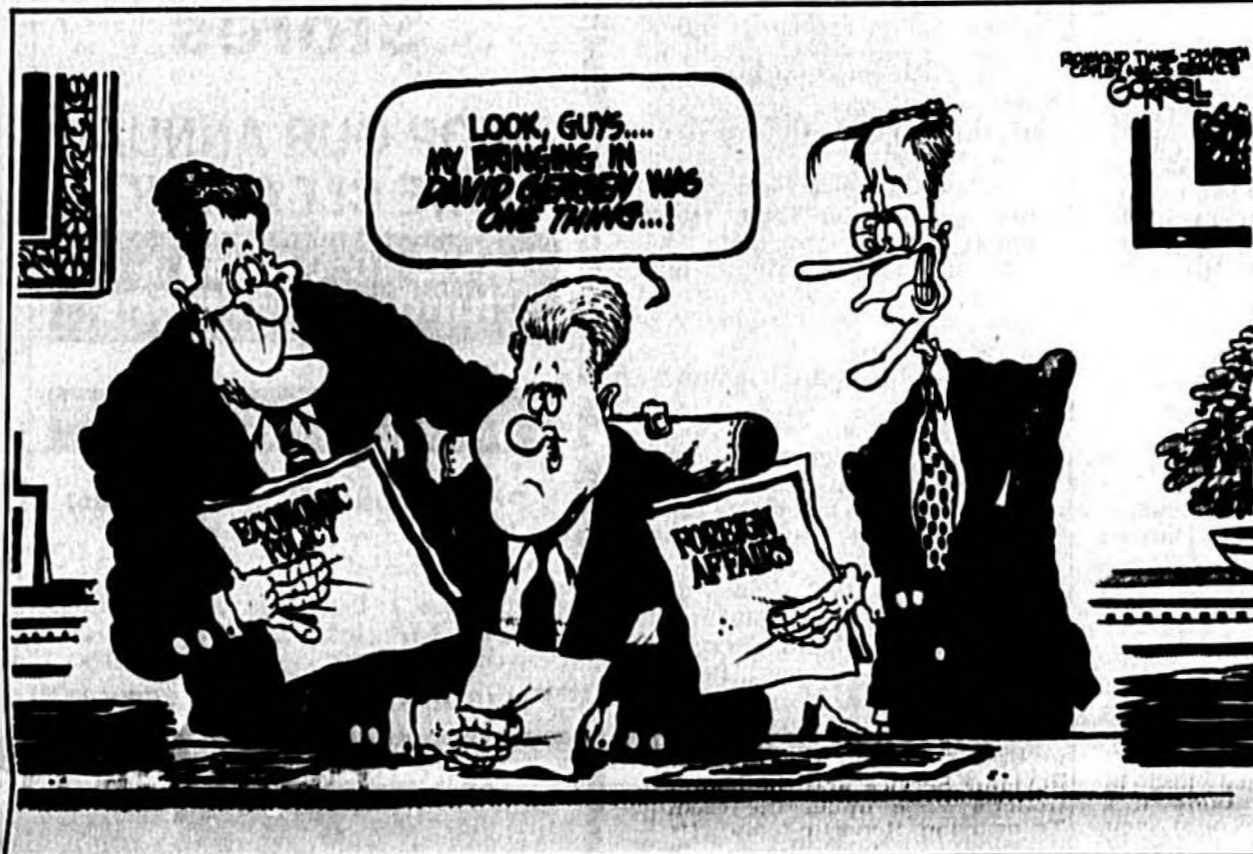

Get away from it; let's go where it isn't so intense.

Haselman dropped his bat and charged to the mound to take out Mussina. The pitcher stood his ground momentarily, then ducked beneath Haselman's flailing fists. In a moment both men were on the ground, pummeling each other. The Orioles on the field raced to protect their man. The young bulls of the bullpen roared in to join wage combat.

In a minute, 50 strong men were pounding on each other, at war, swirling on the ground, wringing necks, wrestling on the turf. The original combatants were soon buried on the mound beneath tons of writhing muscle. After a while, the players were separated, but only for a moment. Then they went at it again, and again, punching and straining, neck veins bulging.

It was 20 minutes before peace broke out. When the umpire ejected seven players, Seattle's manager, Lou Piniella, blazed forth from the dugout. He screamed at the umpire, he yelled, he kicked the plate, he stomped the plate, he jumped up and down on the plate, he screamed, he shrieked. Later, Piniella explained his nuanced position: "They kicked out my starting pitcher, but their pitcher started it."

LOOK, GUYS... MY DRINKING IN THIS COUNTRY WAS ONE THING...!

Banks' efforts alone can't stop launderers

WASHINGTON — Officials at a branch of the Virginia-based Signet Bank Corp. have suspected for three years that a small retail-clothing store was laundering money through their institution.

The clothing store once moved $5 million in cash through the Signet account in just a year and a half, and since 1990, Signet has filed some 300 reports with the government detailing suspicious cash transactions by the store. Signet has repeatedly called the IRS and filed criminal-referral forms. Even an IRS dog trained to detect cocaine residue on cash reacted positively when exposed to the clothing store's money.

This clothing-store caper alone has cost the bank some $33,000 just in costs associated with following federal laws and regulations, according to Sara Wilson, Signet's senior corporate counsel. "And we still haven't heard anything back from the government," she told our associate Dean Boyd.

In total, Signet spent about $500,000 last year complying with money-laundering laws, which involved sending 48,000 cash-transaction reports to the government.

The results have been meager. Last year, Signet received only two government subpoenas, neither of which dealt with the clothing store.

Sara Wilson is among a growing number of bankers who worry that the money-laundering laws are not delivering the best bang for the buck. Seven years after money laundering became a federal crime, it's a concern increasingly shared by law-enforcement officials and congressional members.

During a conference on money laundering last month, House Banking Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, noted that despite successive legislation aimed at cracking down on the problem, an estimated $300 billion continues to be laundered annually through the United States. "While each (federal) agency may be carrying out its individual responsibilities well ... there appears to be little effect on the amount of money being laundered," he said.

Money laundering is the process by which criminals, usually drug dealers, blend their ill-gotten proceeds into the conventional economy to obscure the money's illegal origins. For years, kingpins could do this by simply carrying cash-stuffed suitcases into banks and depositing their narco-dollars with no questions asked. As a result, banks were widely viewed as part of the problem.

But with the passage of the federal money-laundering laws in 1986, banks were forced to adopt programs to detect money laundering. Penalties were also increased for banks if they failed to file reports (known as CTR's) on cash transactions over $10,000. Successive laws in 1988, 1990 and 1992 were even tougher on banks, but today money laundering continues to flourish.

One reason is that U.S. banks, now fearful of being slapped with a civil fine or criminally prosecuted, are filing so many reports the government can't deal with the volume. In 1992, the government received some 9 million CTR's from U.S. banks, bringing the number on file to nearly 50 million. By 1996 the figure is expected to reach 92 million.

Rather than spawning hundreds of new investigations, government investigators are floundering in the face of all these filings.

Even an IRS dog trained to detect cocaine residue on cash reacted positively when exposed to the money.

Shift saved abortion rights

WASHINGTON — Only a late shift by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor in a 1989 case preserved a woman's constitutional right to terminate a pregnancy before the fetus becomes viable.

Details behind the Supreme Court's deliberations in Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services of Missouri are contained in one of 3,000 case files kept by late Justice Thurgood Marshall. They are part of some 177,000 documents given by Marshall to the Library of Congress.

In a controversial decision, the library has opened the papers to the public, and they present an unprecedented look at the inner workings of the court. A library spokesman says it was Marshall's explicit wish that the papers be opened immediately after his death.

The Webster-case file shows there was never any question among a majority of justices about whether they would uphold the Missouri law allowing the state to place various restrictions on women seeking abortions. The question was whether the majority would use the Webster case to overturn Roe vs. Wade.

Marshall's Webster-case file contains 28 memos, 19 drafts of opinions, and — most amazingly — his vote-tally sheet and handwritten notes from the justices' secret decision conference on April 28.

According to Marshall's handwritten tally sheet, five justices — Chief Justice Rehnquist, Justices Byron White, Antonin Scalia, Anthony Kennedy and O'Connor all favored upholding the Missouri law. Marshall listed himself, Harry Blackmun — who wrote Roe — and William Brennan as wanting to strike down the Missouri law. It appears John Paul Stevens was unsure, and may not have voted.

The Webster-case notes and early-decision drafts are full of surprises. One is that, according to Marshall, Rehnquist seems not to have wanted to use the case to simply strike down Roe. Marshall says in his notes "CJ disagrees with Roe vs. Wade ... not overrule as such."

What Rehnquist apparently wanted to do was strike down Roe's three-trimester framework. In his Roe opinion, Blackmun divided pregnancy into three trimesters, and gave states greater rights to regulate or forbid abortion in the later trimesters. Rehnquist would have established a new test for the constitutionality of a state anti-abortion law — if it "reasonably furthers the state's interest in protecting potential human life."

Rehnquist's opinion seems contradictory. At one point he says of Roe, "We leave it undisturbed," but he concludes by saying "To the extent indicated in our opinion, we modify and narrow Roe and succeeding cases."

While Marshall says Rehnquist was not in favor of simply striking down Roe, those in the minority perceived it as such. Stevens wrote a stinging memo to Rehnquist: "Because the test really rejects Roe vs. Wade in its entirety, I would think that it would be much better for the Court, as an institution, to do so forthrightly rather than indirectly with a bombshell first introduced at the end of its opinion ... if the deed is to be done, I would rather see the Court give the case a decent burial instead of tossing it out the window of a fast-moving caboose."

Kennedy and White signed onto the Rehnquist opinion in full, and it went through some minor changes in two succeeding drafts. On June 21, Blackmun circulated the first draft of his blistering dissent.

It began "Roe no longer survives," and continued, "Today a bare majority of this Court deserves the people of this Nation, and especially the millions of women who have lived and come of age in the 16 years since the decision in Roe vs. Wade was delivered. ... I rue this day, I rue the violence that has been done to the liberty and equality of women. I rue the violence that has been done to our legal fabric and to the integrity of this Court. I rue the inevitable loss of public esteem for this Court that is so essential. I dissent."

The dissent apparently changed O'Connor's mind. Two days later she released a draft of her own concurring opinion, agreeing to strike down the Missouri law, but not to overturn Roe's trimester framework. Rehnquist had lost his fifth vote to rewrite Roe. He announced a delay in the ending of the court's term, and he rewrote his decision for a fifth time, eliminating any broad constitutional implications.

Blackmun also rewrote his dissent changing "Roe no longer survives" to "For today, at least, the law of abortion stands undisturbed."

On July 3, the court announced its decision in Webster. Rehnquist's opinion now represented himself, Kennedy and White. O'Connor's concurring opinion was joined by Stevens. Justice Scalia wrote an opinion saying simply that Roe should be struck down. Blackmun's dissent was joined by Brennan and Marshall.

America never knew how close Roe had come to being dismantled.

Pending any change in their status, Justice Thurgood Marshall's papers are available in the Library of Congress Manuscript Reading Room in the Madison Building.

America never knew how close Roe vs. Wade had come to being dismantled.

Volunteers in Lake Mary will spruce up a park

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The fifth in the continuing series of Neighbors for Neighborhoods project will be held Saturday. The work will involve a cleaning project along the eastern shore of Crystal Lake.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland said Lake Mary city leaders and residents will gather at the Lakefront Park behind the Community Center, beginning at 9 a.m.

"Most of the work will deal with general clean-up," he said. "If we have enough people turn out, we will be putting up some new picnic tables and grills, planting some trees, and cleaning up some of the brush and weeds that have spoiled the beauty of this area."

The park presently has two pavilions. "By the end of this week," Holland said, "city crews will have torn down the old one which is in pretty bad shape, but we hope to give the existing pavillion a new paint job this Saturday."

Years ago, the area was a major gathering place for Lake Mary residents and was used as the city's swimming beach. The lake was closed to swimming however, and according to discussion at the most recent Lake Mary City Commission meeting, there are no immediate plans to have the swimming area reopened.

"Even so," Holland said, "it is still an excellent park for people to gather, have a picnic, and just sit around and enjoy looking at the peacefulness of the lake waters."

"We hope as many people as possible can turn out this Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.," he said. "The more people who show up, the more work we can get done and the better the park can become."

have to become more aware of the possibility that a child may run or ride his or her bike out in the car's path, and drive accordingly."

"We don't expect to have any problems," Russell said, "but these first few days, as well as the last days just before school starts again this fall, are going to be critical."

Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said the sheriff is very concerned about youth safety. "We have a special deputy, Dottie Burkette, who is assigned to give all types of courses to children. She has various programs for every age group."

During summer while school is out, Proechel said Burkette will be available for summer camps, youth gatherings, church outings, or any other event which draws children.

"We need to make everyone, but especially the children, as much aware of the hazards as possible," Proechel said. "That includes where they walk and where they may ride their bikes."

Proechel added, "When we get right down to it, if a bicycle and a car collide, there's no way the bike is going to come out the winner."

'Jurassic Park' opens today to huge expectations

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — "Jurassic Park" opens today to expectations so high that if the movie about a theme park of cloned dinosaurs isn't a $200 million box-office smash, it will be called a failure.

A lot is riding on the $56 million film — from director Steven Spielberg's reputation to warehouses crammed with "Jurassic Park" trinkets such as walkie-talkies, cereals and even underwear.

Starring Sam Neill, Jeff Goldblum, Laura Dern and a host of giant special-effects reptiles, "Jurassic Park" opens nationwide in 2,400 theaters. Several hundred theaters held Thursday night showings as well.

Three of Spielberg's last four films have been box-office underachievers — "Empire of the Sun," "Always" and last year's "Hook." His "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" grossed nearly $200 million.

Universal Pictures, the film's producer and distributor, needs a hit. While "Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story" was a small success, the studio's bombs have included "Cop and a Half," "Splitting Heirs," "CB4" and "Lorenzo's Oil."

Based on Michael Crichton's novel, the movie is set in a theme park inhabited by modern-age dinosaurs. Eventually, the animals rampage, eating each other and a few park visitors.

The movie, advertised and merchandised for family audiences, is violent in places and is rated PG-13.

Critics have said the special effects are much more impressive than the actors. As in "Jaws" or "Raiders of the Lost Ark," story and plot are subordinated to gee-whiz visuals and a booming score from John Williams.

Nevertheless, no one projects disappointing sales.

place a gym bag in a blue Trans Am driven by a woman. When the car was stopped nearby, agents report finding about three pounds of marijuana and a set of scales in the bag. No charges have been made against the woman.

Rudol was arrested on a charge of possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana. He was released on $3,000 bond following his arrest. His next court appearance is June 29.

Rudol served as a volunteer deputy from 1983 until March 9, 1992 when he was terminated following an internal investigation into a Feb. 8 incident. Then, a man had reported another man, later identified as Rudol, had quarreled with him after he drove around Rudol's stalled vehicle near Winter Springs.

The man reported Rudol followed him and blocked his path before exiting his personal vehicle. The man reported Rudol displayed something he had taken from his back pocket, which he thought was a knife. When Casselberry police arrived, they found Rudol had a folding baton. Following an investigation, Rudol was terminated for conduct unbecoming a law enforcement officer.

According to Rudol's arrest report, CCIB agents had a tip he was storing marijuana at his business. At about 10:40 p.m., agents report contacting Rudol and asking him to meet them at his business in 30 to 40 minutes. At about 11 p.m., agents, watching the business, reported seeing a car driven by a woman back up to the rear door of the business and Rudol placing a black gym bag in it. Rudol arrived at the scene of the traffic stop and allowed agents to search the car, they report.

Deposit

Bank officials reported the error and missing money to Lake Mary police June 2. The case was then turned over to the Seminole County Sheriff.

Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said the case is under investigation.

"He is being charged with grand theft," Proechel said, explaining, "even though the money was in his account, he knew it wasn't his." By removing the money, Proechel said Fletcher attempted to defraud the bank of its property and showed intent to commit grand theft.

Fletcher apparently used some of the money to buy a 1992 Yamaha motorcycle, and stayed in town long enough to apply for and receive a license by mail. Then, Fletcher left, Proechel said. "He has apparently fled the state," Proechel said. "We think he went out West somewhere, possibly Meeker, Colorado. He reportedly has relatives there."

Southern Bank operations officer at Lake Mary, Linda Benson refused to comment about the incident this morning. "How did you find out about that?" she asked. "It is bank policy not to make any comment," she added.

Although banking errors sometimes occur, Terrance McElroy, spokesman for the state comptroller said depositors are protected against loss in FDIC insured institutions. If a customer whose account was not credited with the $15,000 that accidentally went into Fletcher's account had a deposit slip or checks to prove he or she deposited the funds but they were not properly credited to their account, they would get their money, McElroy said. Southern Bank will not reveal where the missing money came from.

"I don't think it is that common a problem," McElroy said. "Although errors sometimes occur, they are not any more frequent today than 20 or 30 years ago when a teller might have misdirected a deposit before computers came on-line."

McElroy said cash withdrawals of $10,000 or more are required to be reported to the Internal Revenue Service and the comptroller's office under the Cash Transaction Reporting law. He said such reports are confidential so he would not comment whether Fletcher's $14,000 check was reported to the proper authorities.

Wetlands

coordinate jurisdiction and get back to one wetlands determination."

The 1987 county wetlands ordinance served to protect swamplands in the county by restricting disturbance of them to 10 percent of the total amount. Working with University of Florida wetlands specialists, the county adopted a simple method of determining wetland areas. The package has been recognized nationally and has received several planning and environmental awards.

Tuesday, commissioners unanimously accepted Adriatico's proposal to remove illegally-placed fill from a two-acre wetlands on his property south of Oviedo. In another wetlands case, commissioners voted to negotiate with Martin Chira to buy his property in Springs Hammock. Chira sued the county in 1988, seeking to exempt his property from the county's wetlands ordinance.

Courts have held the ordinance denied Chira use of his property and ordered compensation.

Commissioners granted Adriatico until December 1994 to remove the 58 to 78 inches of fill from complete the work. They voted to continue their delay of foreclosure on his property, already since May 28, 1991, until August to see whether Adriatico begins the cleanup.

The plan has been approved by the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation. The state successfully prosecuted Adriatico in 1991 for the dumping.

Adriatico was sentenced to remove the fill from the wetlands within one year. When he failed to do so, he was sentenced to spend evenings and weekends in the county jail. When he tried to enter the jail with a bullet in his pocket in February, he was forced to spend the last four weeks of his term in jail full-time.

Adriatico said he was content with the agreement and planned to do what he could towards complying with it.

"I've given them everything they wanted," said Adriatico. "There is no incentive to working or seeking to own land."

Brian Carr, manager of the FDER dredge and fill office in Orlando, said Adriatico was granted an 18-month time frame to allow him to work to remove the fill on weekends using borrowed equipment. All concrete and other construction debris may be placed in a pit he dug on the property. Wood may be burned and plastics and other garbage must be taken to a sanitary dump.

foreman for Amtrak.

The new $2 million fuel-efficient locomotive is the first diesel locomotive in over 40 years to be designed specifically for North American passenger service.

The shorter, 14 and a half foot high, design will allow the train to travel across all of Amtrak's routes, including the Northeast, where tunnels are common.

Climbing up the ladder into the cockpit of the sleek machine, one steps into a computerized, climate-controlled command center.

Comfortable chairs face a new, ergonomically designed, desktop control panel. A pair of bright LED screens indicate problem areas, speed, and other systems.

"These screens replace all the old gauges," Lowe said.

He would not speculate on whether or not the new technology would decrease the chance of accidents, though he indicated that the new design freed up the engineer's hands with a number of features including the placement of the control panel, and that would make him better equipped to deal with emergency situations.

The distinctive aerodynamic design of the locomotive is based on streamlined European designs.

The AMD-103 was custom-designed by an Amtrak and GE design team. The single body "monocoque" design is the source of the structural strength of the whole unit.

"The first 11 bodies of this 42 unit order were made in Germany," Lowe said. "The rest of them are being manufactured in Erie, Pennsylvania."

In the past, locomotives have been designed based on freight locomotive technology, Lowe said. The new locomotives are specifically designed for passenger trains.

Behind a soundproofed cockpit wall, past the privy, roars a huge 16-cylinder, 4,000 horsepower engine.

"It is a very powerful engine," Lowe said.

The train's whistle and bell, used as safety equipment to warn of a train's approach, were also the engineer's signature. Required signals were often embellished with flourishes unique to each engineer.

The AMD-103 is equipped with a computer controlled horn that is operated with the touch of a button. That system not only frees up the engineers hands, it also imposes uniformly to the signals.

"As we move headlong into the 21st century," Lowe said, "some of the romance of trains has to go."

The new locomotive is the first of the fleet of 42 to be put into service. Others will be placed onto routes between Washington, D.C. and New Orleans, New Orleans and Chicago, Chicago and Oakland, Los Angeles and Chicago and Los Angeles and New Orleans.

Train watchers in Sanford will be the first in the nation to be able to see the AMD-103 in action.

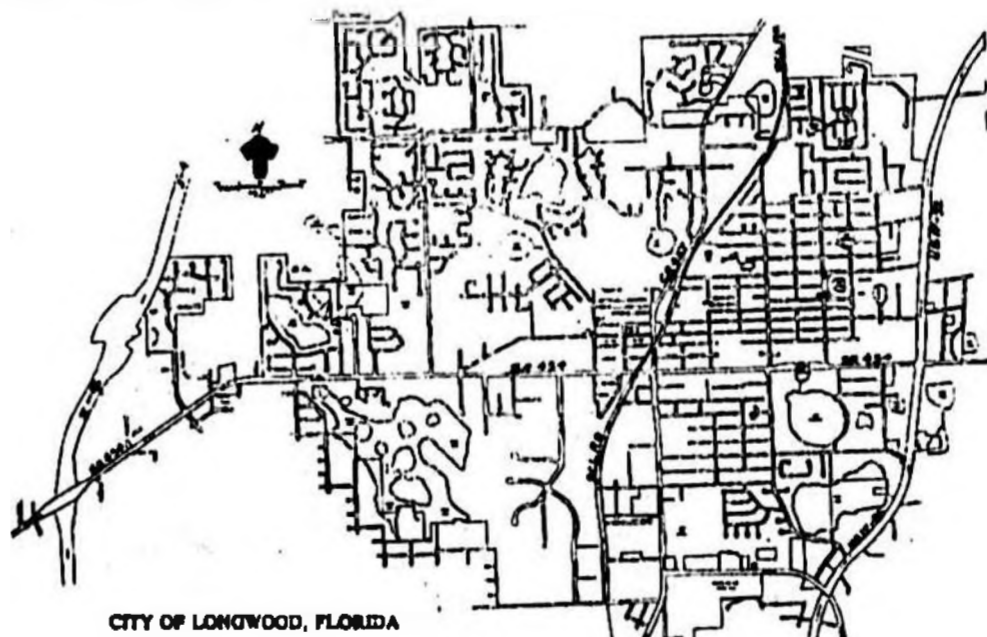

"It's a beautiful locomotive," Lowe said. "We're very excited about it."

As to whether the acquisition of the new locomotives will raise the cost of a trip on the AutoTrain, Amtrak officials said they aren't ready to be railroaded in to answering that one.

CHANGE OF LAND USE

The City Commission of the City of Longwood will hold a public hearing at 7:00 p.m. on Monday June 21, 1993, or as soon thereafter as possible, in the City Commission Chambers of the City Hall, located at 175 W. Warren Avenue, Longwood, Florida, for the purpose of considering entering into a Stipulated Settlement Agreement with the Florida Department of Community Affairs.

The Stipulated Settlement Agreement and the subsequent public hearings on plan amendment may involve the change in the use of land throughout the incorporated city limits of the City of Longwood, Florida.

The proposed Stipulated Settlement Agreement sets forth a course of action to resolve issues raised by the Department of Community Affairs in its Statement of Intent to find the City of Longwood's Comprehensive Development Plan, "Not In Compliance" with Chapter 163, Florida Statutes, and Chapter 9J5, Florida Administrative Code.

At this public hearing, the City Commission will consider the adoption of Resolution No. 93-723 entitled:

A RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF LONGWOOD, FLORIDA, APPROVING A STIPULATED SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE CITY AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNITY AFFAIRS TO RESOLVE OBJECTIONS TO ADOPTED "COMPREHENSIVE DEVELOPMENT PLAN," PROVIDING FOR EXECUTION AND SUBMISSION OF THE AGREEMENT TO THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNITY AFFAIRS; PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

Any person wishing to appeal any decision made by the Commission with respect to any matter considered at this hearing will need a record of the proceeding, and for such purpose, will need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceeding is made which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based. A copy of the proposed Stipulated Settlement Agreement is posted at the City of Longwood's Planning Department and may be inspected by the public.

Burt asks to split from Loni

By The Associated Press

STUART, Fla. — Burt Reynolds said he wants to divorce Loni Anderson, saying the five-year marriage has been "irretrievably broken."

"It's a sad day for both of them. They will remain friends. It was a very amiable parting," said Reynolds' production assistant, Scott Jackson.

The Martin County clerk's office received a divorce petition Thursday from Reynolds, said court clerk Marsha Stiller.

Anderson said through a spokesman that "the decision to divorce was amicable and we're still friends. We felt it was the best thing to do at this time."

The actress has appeared in films, made-for-television movies and several television series. She earlier this week signed a contract to appear in the television series "Nurses."

"They just feel that they have different priorities at this time," said Mickey Freeman, Anderson's spokesman. "They are both going to pursue their own careers."

The couple has an adopted son, Quilton, who will be 8 in August.

"They will remain friends. They will both be loving parents to their child and they will raise him together. They just won't be living together," Jackson said.

The marriage to Reynolds was the third for the 46-year-old Anderson, best known for her role as the not-so-dumb blonde secretary in the TV series "WKRP in Cincinnati."

It was Reynolds' second marriage. His first marriage was to onetime "Laugh-In" star Judy Carne.

The petition, signed by Reynolds, called for "equitable distribution of all property" but gave no details about the divorce. The couple were ordered to attend mediation within 14 days of the divorce papers being filed to resolve all relevant matters. They are also required to attend a routine class designed for parents to help their children through the emotional conflict of divorce.

Reynolds, 57, is working on a movie called "The Man From Left Field" in which he is a Little League coach. The film co-stars country singer Reba McEntire.

Reynolds, the star of "Deliverance," "Smokey and the Bandit" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," was with Anderson for five years before their marriage.

 SANFORD — Let's play ball. With the complications of scheduling and co-ordinating a tournament out of the way, 11 teams from the Sanford Church Softball League will get down to the fun part of softball: playing the game. While the schedule for the first week has not changed, their has been one change in the teams, as Sanford Church of God has decided to enter the tournament, while the Church of the Nativity Catholic-Crusaders from Lake Mary were forced to withdraw. The annual post-season tournament has proven to be one of the most successful and enjoyable events the church league conducts each year, and with the parity that the league has shown this season, this year's tournament promises to be just as exciting. The favorites going into the tournament figure to be the three division champions, but any of the 11 have a legitimate chance of claiming the title of the double elimination event that will start this weekend then conclude on Saturday

Templeton forfeits first place to Bamboo Cafe

From Staff Reports
 SANFORD — It was an odd night in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park. The expected battle for first place between Bamboo Cafe and R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. never developed because Templeton failed to get the required number of players at the game and had to forfeit. But that was just the beginning as normally high-scoring Florida Sport Wear was held to only three runs by Sanford Boat Sales but still came away with 3-0 victory and Myers Tree Service, which had been held to three runs on five hits through four innings, suddenly erupted for nine runs on eight hits in the fifth inning and went on to claim a 15-10 triumph over Hancock Hardware. With two weeks remaining in the regular season, Bamboo Cafe is 7-1 and holds a one-game lead over Templeton (6-2). Florida Sport Wear is 5-2, Myers Tree Service 3-4, Hancock Hardware 2-6 and Sanford Boat Sales 0-8. Because of a conflict there will only be two games played next week. At 7 p.m., Sanford Boat Sales plays Bamboo Cafe and at 8 p.m., Florida Sport Wear takes on Myers Tree Service. Florida Sport Wear scored single runs in each of the first three innings and that proved to be enough to hold off Sanford Boat Sales, which was held to six singles by the pitching of Randy Yates. Providing the offense for Florida Sport Wear were Wes Tanksley (two singles, run, RBI), Mitch Burke (two singles, RBI), Steve Woodley and Brantley Brumley (one single and one run each), Yates, Dave Nobles, Paul Pratt and Randy Rawlings (one single each) and Gordon Clark (RBI). Hancock Hardware had scored two runs in each of the first and fourth innings and four runs in the third inning to hold an 8-3 lead going into the bottom of the fifth inning. But with two out and two on in the fifth, Myers came up with seven hits and walk to take a 12-8 lead and control of the game. Contributing to a 17 hit Myers Tree Service attack were Larry Hirt (two doubles, single, two runs, RBI), Randy Smathers (double, single, two runs, RBI), Tom Stiffey (double, single, two runs, RBI), Daniel Bowen and John Scott (two singles, two runs and two RBI each) and Brad Hawver (two singles, run, three RBI). Also contributing were Steve Thiebauth (single, run, RBI), Denny Miller (single, two RBI), Doug Braswell (single), Sonny Eubanks (two runs) and Don Green (run). Doing the damage for Hancock Hardware were Jack Eltonhead (double, single, run, RBI), Rick Eckstein (two singles, two runs, two RBI), Robert Smith (two singles, two runs, RBI) and Jon Eltonhead (two singles, two RBI). Also hitting were Mark Whitley, Dean L. Smith and Phil Hancock (one single, one run and one RBI each), Chris Dapore and Mark Blythe (one single and one run each) and Otis Raines and Tony DeSormier (one single each).

Nutrition report on milk

Some experts say children should not be given milk

The latest nutrition story appears to be that milk should not be given to children. On Sept. 29, 1992, the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine held a press conference where a panel, including Dr. Benjamin Spock, concurred that milk was not appropriate for children. The panel said that the necessary calcium can be obtained from other sources such as kale, broccoli and fish.

How should you respond to this story? First of all, we still recommend as the Food Pyramid states, that children and adults get 2-3 servings from the dairy group (which may or may not be in the form of fluid milk.) Milk is a good source of calcium and as long as low-fat or skim milk products are chosen, it is low in fat. While kale, broccoli, fish with the bones (i.e., canned salmon or sardines) and tofu made with calcium sulfate can be good sources of calcium, I don't believe it's practical to expect most American children to consume enough of these sources on a daily basis to meet their calcium needs. For example, a child would have to eat 3 cups of cooked kale to get the same amount of calcium that's contained in one cup of milk!

It is true that children do not need milk per se. Children who are raised on vegetarian diets can be healthy and grow properly without milk. But most American families are not vegetarians and simply eliminating milk without carefully including other sources of calcium can be detrimental to children. There is also the question of what else should children be drinking? Children need fluids and milk, in addition to water and fruit juices, is a good way to meet this need.

CONSUMER FOCUS

As to other disadvantages attributed to milk, it appears that the Physicians Committee has taken a number of isolated studies and/or conditions that affect only a limited number of children and from them concluded that milk is bad for all children. For example, the report that cow's milk may lead to juvenile diabetes is based on a single study reported in the July issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. This study, which looked at 142 diabetic children, suggests but does not prove that a protein in cow's milk could trigger diabetes in children genetically prone to the disease.

It is true that some children are allergic to the protein in milk and others may have digestive problems if they are lactose intolerant, but that doesn't mean that milk is inappropriate for all children.

With regard to anemia, media reports appear to be applying recommendations for infants to older children. It is true that cow's milk is not recommended for children under one year of age because it is not a good source of iron. In fact, the American Academy of Pediatrics recently issued a statement that "whole cow's milk and low-iron formulas should not be used during the first year." The Academy recommends infants should be fed either breastmilk or iron-fortified formula. Toddlers and older children, however, are usually eating enough other sources of iron in the diet and do not need to depend on a milk feeding for iron, so cow's milk is appropriate for them.

Another thing to keep in mind when responding to any questions is the source of the recent statement about milk. The Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine is a non-profit, Washington-based group active in the animal rights movement. The majority of its members are not doctors, but animal rights activists. Their animal rights agenda is very likely influencing their position on milk in the diet.

There's help for delinquent tax filers

DEAR ABBY: On May 11, 1992, you responded to an individual who wrote to say that because of a series of extenuating circumstances she did not file her tax return one year.

As she missed filing once, she was afraid to file again the following year for fear of the consequences, so she had not filed since. You referred her to Enrolled Agents (EAs), who are authorized to represent taxpayers before all administrative levels of the IRS, and can help get people "back on track" with the government.

The response to your column was astounding! Here at the headquarters of the National Association of Enrolled Agents (NAEA), we received more than 10,000 telephone inquiries from people who had failed to file their tax returns — thanks to our 24-hour EA Referral Service hotline (800) 424-4339. We also received approximately 800 letters from taxpayers who had, likewise, disappeared from the tax rolls and decided to come forward.

We responded to each request from these concerned individuals (within 48 hours) with a list of member EAs in their area. Furthermore, for those who called our main business line (because they were wary of divulging their mailing address), we provided the names of EAs on the spot.

The time has finally come for non-filers to stop living in fear and to get on with their lives. It is critical that they be advised of the IRS' assurance that those who come forward voluntarily will not face criminal prosecution!

Moreover, three out of four people who file tax returns receive refunds. Because there is a statute of limitations (generally three years), time is of the essence to file those past-due returns in order to obtain a refund.

NAEA now offers a free informational brochure designed especially for non-filers titled "Enrolled Agents — Taxpayer Representatives on Your Side," which is available by calling the 24-hour hotline, or writing or faxing your request to: NAEA, 6000 Executive Blvd., Suite 205, Rockville, Md. 20852-3813. Fax: (301) 231-8961. We treat all requests confidentially.

If we reach only a portion of the non-filers, this effort will be worthwhile — both for their peace of mind and our government's.

DEBORAH B. VIEDER, DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, NAEA

DEAR READERS: Be advised that the fees charged by Enrolled Agents vary according to location and services.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from Al Seivertson who wrote to say that he is a smoker, enjoys eating fried foods, ham and eggs, and everything that's supposed to be unhealthy. He boasted that at age 60, he took early retirement and didn't use up any of the sick time he had coming.

Well, until a month ago, my husband could have written a similar letter. He's a retired auto worker who had worked for the same company for 30 years. He just had his 61st birthday. (Notice, I didn't say "celebrated.") Four weeks ago, with practically no warning, he had a major heart attack and ended up with a quadruple bypass.

His doctor had warned him to quit smoking several times, but like Al, he said, "I'm going to enjoy life while I'm living, and if I die a few years earlier, that's OK, too." Like Al, my husband boasted that there had been no history of heart trouble in his family, and his father had also been a three-pack-a-day smoker.

I hope Mr. Seivertson's luck holds out better than my husband's did. He didn't think it could happen to him either. You may use my name.

BARBARA KENNEDY, TRENTON, ILL.
DEAR BARBARA: Thank you for your candid letter. Your husband will be in my prayers.

'Detox' cleansing process needed before treatment

DEAR MARY: Like everyone else who has ever messed with drugs, I thought I could just stop any time I wanted to. Even after I had failed time after time, I told myself I'd just smoke one joint now and then or just sniff some cocaine when I felt really down; I certainly didn't NEED the stuff.

Of course, I eventually ended up in the hospital. I've never been so scared of dying as I was during that time. They said I was going through "detox" but I felt like I was going through hell. I'll never use anything again because I don't ever want to hurt that bad by something I can avoid.

I've wondered what was happening to me during detox, but I don't want to ask anyone because then they'll probably figure out why I'm asking. Can you help me understand the hell I went through?

CLEAN FOR LIFE

DEAR CLEAN: The detoxification process is an essential first step before any real drug treatment can begin. It is the process of letting the body cleanse itself of all accumulated toxins (poisons). Unfortunately, as a person takes a drug, his or her body adapts to the foreign substance in whatever way it can. If the person has used large quantities or varieties of drugs, the body chemistry changes will be enormous and the detoxification process causes a painful shock to your body. It is therefore essential that the person in detox have competent medical help available. It may even be necessary for the person going through detoxification to temporarily require prescription medication if the withdrawal reaction is too severe.

DRUG COUNSELOR

Here is a list of some commonly abused drugs and their associated withdrawal symptoms:

• Cocaine and amphetamines: Depression, fatigue, disturbed sleep thoughts of suicide, mood swings, aggressive outbursts.

• Marijuana: Disturbed sleep, appetite loss, restlessness, irritability, attention and memory problems.

• Heroin: Nausea, diarrhea, cramps, irritability, tremor.

• Barbiturates: Seizures, delirium

• Methaqualone ("ludca"): Seizures, delirium, fever, exhaustion and heart failure.

Depending on what you were taking, it's no wonder detox was so painful, and you're right in realizing that the only way you can avoid hurting yourself like that again is to stay the way you are — CLEAN.

READERS: We received a follow-up call from Barbara who would like to share her experience with the use of antidepressants to combat depression. When antidepressants failed to improve her symptoms, her doctor discovered that she was anemic. She now receives B12 and iron injections and reports marked improvement in her sense of well-being and other symptoms. See your doctor for more information.

I work with people and raise roses. Both fascinate me. And both are so similar.

Roses require tremendous attention. They must be cared for, talked to, fed and watered regularly, and protected from foreign matter that would harm. All of which must be done with extreme care.

You never hold a rose too tightly or its thorns will give painful notice of your indiscretion. You move about rose bushes with careful caution they snag you. They demand room to grow and fulfill their purpose in life.

And each rose bush has its own nature. You can perform all the proper acts of care and love, but the rose will be what its inward nature (its God-purpose) determines: a red rose will be a red rose; a yellow rose, a yellow rose. You have absolutely no control over its nature (color).

Copyright 1983, Keister-Williams Newspaper Services, P.O. Box 8005, Charlottesville, VA 22906

In working with people that's the hardest lesson to learn. We can apply influence, give guidance, exert persuasion, but each person's individuality must be respected. His or her nature (God-purpose) must be allowed fulfillment. Refusing such freedom stunts people and kills roses.

SANFORD — Steering committee members for the 1993 Community Vacation Bible School, Altermese Bentley, Sylvia Stallworth and Wanda Wilson, have completed plans for the summer season.

This weeklong event will begin on Monday and end with Closing Ceremonies on Friday, June 18, at the House of Refuge Ministry on Celery Avenue. Hours for the daily session are from 6-7:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 6:30 on Friday.

Participating churches and age groups hosting the communitywide event include: Trinity United Methodist Church, 6th Street and Sanford Avenue, with the Rev. Eddie Rivers, hosting ages 0-7 year olds; Historic St. James A.M.E., 9th Street and Cypress Avenue, with the Rev. Nolan T. Pitts, 8-11 year olds; House of Refuge Ministries, Celery Avenue, Elder Elijah Richardson, pastor, ages 0-7, 12-17, and 26 and up; St. Paul Missionary Baptist, 9th Street and Pine Avenue, the Rev. Amos C. Jones, pastor, will sponsor ages 0-7 and 18-25 year olds.

Each church represents a Vacation Bible School site directed by its minister and Sunday School superintendent or another person assigned by the minister.

The community event was initiated by Altermese Bentley in 1989 because she felt that by working together "there would be a greater use of the facilities and human resources available at each church."

The Community Vacation Bible School concept has continued to realize success as the enrollment of participants grows each year.

Registration will be held at each site on opening night beginning at 6 p.m. The agenda for the evening will include music, Bible stories, games, crafts, snacks and worship.

Gay-rights brought to the pews

By DAVID BAIGES

ORLANDO — Presbyterians are turning to local churches to reconcile an issue that has divided mainline denominations for years — homosexuality and the church.

The 205th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), in an approach taken in recent years by the United Methodist Church, Episcopal Church and American Baptist Churches, this week upheld its ban on gay clergy but authorized a churchwide study of the issue.

Lin Team, moderator of the assembly's Human Sexuality Committee, said she realizes the study will not make the issue go away, but it may help people learn to listen to each other after years of painful debate.

"It at least acknowledges the fact there is not consensus in the church, and it tries to facilitate a mutual respect and a mutual forbearance while a consensus is being reached," she said.

But the Presbyterian Church and other mainline denominations that deal with the homosexuality issue by calling for further study may find peace elusive, say activists on both sides who are appealing to the church to take a definitive stand.

The frustration among Presbyterian gay-rights activists was evident immediately following the assembly vote when a group of about 70 people marched around the convention floor carrying a wooden cross and shouting at delegates. "You want to study us to death" and "Love without justice is no love at all."

"We will continue to demand the respect that we deserve and our full rights of membership," said Lisa Bove, co-moderator of Presbyterian Act Up.

Others who oppose homosexual clergy say the church has to take a stand, even if it means an exodus of gay and lesbian Presbyterians.

"One way or another, people's lives can't be in limbo any longer," said Jennifer Romans of Huntsville, Ala., a sexuality committee member who voted against the study proposal.

Severe constipation can cause impaction

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've experienced severe constipation for the past six months that causes impaction. I'm aware that sudden changes in bowel habits may be a symptom of cancer, but tests and X-rays have been negative. What are your suggestions?

DEAR READER: Impaction (the inability to expel a buildup of fecal matter) is an uncomfortable consequence of constipation. This can result from drugs that slow intestinal peristalsis (such as codeine and calcium-channel blockers) but can also accompany large, hard stools. Because your tests have shown no intestinal blockage, I recommend that you focus on avoiding an impaction rather than concerning yourself about its cause. Therefore, I suggest the following:

Increase your fluid intake to at least six glasses of water a day. Your stools may be too hard and dry to pass. The additional liquid should soften them and aid elimination. Use a stool softener, such as Colace. By absorbing water, the products soften the stool and assist defecation.

Try to have a bowel movement every day. Pick a time that is convenient (and you're not rushed) to spend in the bathroom. In this way, you'll be able to re-train your intestine to function normally.

Drink an 8-ounce glass of hot prune juice daily. Prune juice contains potassium, which is a natural laxative. No one knows why heating the beverage helps, but it does.

Make sure that you're not taking medicine that is constipating. Ask your doctor about this. If medication is the culprit, it should be changed or the dose reduced.

Consider using a disposable enema, such as Fleet's. If you haven't had a bowel movement

WHAT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

G.H. Lewes wrote, "We must never assume that which is incapable of proof." Well, sometimes in bridge we must make an assumption even if we cannot prove it at that moment. At other times, though, by making one assumption we can draw another conclusion — as in today's deal.

Against your four-heart contract, West leads the spade king, cashes the spade ace and plays a third spade. How do you continue after ruffing East's spade queen?

Both North and South bid the spots off their cards. With such poor distribution, North was only just worth his limit raise, which showed at least four trumps and some 11 total points. South, who had a minimum opening, should have passed. But he wanted to try for the vulnerable game bonus.

After ruffing the third round of spades, South immediately led a heart to the king and ace. When the trumps broke 3-1, he had to lose another trick and finished one down.

"Sorry, partner," he said. "I knew I should have passed over three hearts."

"I agree with that, but I think you should have made your game," commented North.

"Why should I play East for the heart ace rather than West?"

"Well, to stand any chance, you must assume that the club finesse is working. And if it is, that gives West at least 10 points: the club king and the A-K of spades. This makes it more likely that East will have the heart ace. You should cross to dummy with a diamond and play a low heart through East."

This type of reasoning is called a second-degree assumption.

STARSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY

June 12, 1993

Your initiative and diligence is not apt to go unrewarded in the year ahead. Use these assets to your advantage to make your mark in the world both socially and materially.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let your social interests become so predominant today they cause you to set aside or reschedule priority matters. What you neglect now will be twice as problematical later. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, NY 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to be successful today you have to have definite plans as to how you intend to achieve your objectives. If you know what you want, you'll know how to do it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is something you've already made a decision on so stop rehashing its pros and cons. Overanalysis could confuse you and jam up your decision mechanism.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Close involvement with a bold and daring associate might do your cautious outlook some good today. We can always learn something from others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take ample time to weigh and balance critical issues today. Your first decisions aren't apt to be your best ones, because they are likely to be made impulsively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order for today to be meaningful for you, it's important you do things you deem to be productive. If you waste your time, you'll regret it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Social sports that have elements of friendly competition could be very gratifying today. However, be careful not to play with persons who take these games too seriously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Once you start a task or assignment today there is a good chance you'll follow it through in a satisfactory conclusion, even though you might have some disturbing outside factors with which to deal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are several close friends you've been ignoring a bit lately who are anxious to see and talk with you. Just for the heck of it, pay them a surprise call today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things should work rather well for you today in areas where you focus your attention. If it's in the material realm, you may be able to do something significant to make or save money.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Assume the initiative today instead of waiting to take cues from others. They might not have the urgency about certain matters that you do. They can afford to wait, you can't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Most of today you may find yourself in a quiet, reclusive mood. However, this attitude can be used productively to clean up work you do best when alone.
