

Trygve Lie Referees UNO Debates Steering Course For World Peace

By JOHN A. PARRIS
 LONDON—Trygve Lie of Norway is a big man with a big job. As the first secretary-general of the United Nations, the former foreign minister is saddled with one of the toughest executive tasks in the world. Upon his broad shoulders rests the responsibility of seeing that no breakdown develops in the routine operational machinery of the new peace and security agency.

"Sure, it's a tough job," Lie agrees. "There could be a lot of headaches, but then—and here you see the dominating self-confidence of the carpenter's son who skyrocketed into the top bracket of international diplomacy—"I'm not allergic to headaches."

To those who for years have known the genial, quiet-spoken Norwegian this is not idle boasting but merely his way of asserting that obstacles are unimportant to those with a will to succeed.

Man of Activity
 Like everything that Lie does—diplomatic, negotiating government loans and treaties of friendship, planning for his family and entertaining—he has tackled his new job with thoroughness of detail aimed at perfection.

"Give me two months," he says, "and I will be on top of this job. Right now it is tough."

Since Lie undertook his new duties he has found little time for the family he adores and the friends he loves to have drop in for a chat and a drink. His children get to bed before two in the morning. He is up by seven, bathes, shaves, breakfasts and hurries off to the secretariat of files in Church House.

He Has Three Daughters
 A devoted family man, Lie has found little time during these first hectic days of office for his attractive, perpetually smiling wife and his daughter, Sissel, widow of a young Norwegian airman killed shortly after their marriage in 1944. He tries to have dinner with the two each night but more often there are guests and the talk is business talk.

But at home in Norway even while foreign minister, Lie could be found once on the ski runs with his wife and two younger daughters, Guri and Mette. Being from a skiing land, all the Lies are expert. And despite his build—Lie has the scales at 250—he has the grace and ease on skis of a thinner, lighter man.

Lie has come a long way in his 50 years and in the strides he has taken he has attracted attention of a large number throughout the world.

In 1944 when Lie became Norwegian foreign minister, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, then U. S. ambassador to Europe's exiled governments, commented:

"Watch Trygve Lie; he's a man with a star in his pocket."

Planned Norway's Future
 Lie worked quietly in London at his new job, a difficult job at that time. His people were under the Nazi yoke and Lie was trying to help them as best he could. Confident that one day the Germans would be kicked out, Lie helped forge a Norwegian foreign policy that would stand up when the shooting had stopped.

Lie took over the task knowing that his choice as secretary-general came as result of a compromise between great powers who were pushing their own candidates. He recognizes that he is nominated not only on his personal record but even more because he represents a small power recognized as a leading contributor to world peace work throughout more than a generation.

The Jacksonville City Council has adopted a resolution requesting commanding officers of Army and Navy military organizations in that city to designate city parks out of bounds after 10:30 P. M.

Major network broadcasters are in a dither about Florida time, especially since Jacksonville, Marianna and Pensacola have decided to stay on standard time, and Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables and Fort Lauderdale are planning to go on Daylight saving time. Florida broadcasters petitioned the state cabinet to try to put Daylight saving time on a statewide basis but the cabinet says it has no authority in the matter. Marianna and Pensacola, in the Central time zone will be two hours behind Miami and other Daylight saving time cities.

A $75,000 estimate was put on losses resulting from a breeze in Key West that destroyed the Overseas Transportation Company's Garage, and the fire spread near three gas station bulk storage tanks before it was brought under control. All fire apparatus on the island, including Army and Navy equipment fought the fire which threatened quarters of the Navy station. The fire was said to have been started by burning grass near the garage where some youngsters were playing and smoking.

na. Trygve Halvdan Lie never thought even in his wildest dreams—and he was a dreamer—that one day he would hold one of the world's key posts.

He entered the labor movement while a law student at Oslo University, following its rise to leadership in Norwegian politics. Graduating in 1919, Lie became secretary of the Labor Party—a step that eventually was to lead him into the Norwegian unions of trade and industry. He became active in 1931 to revive two banks on labor law.

Lie entered John Nygaard's avold's Labor government as minister of justice when the cabinet was formed in 1935. In 1937 he was elected to parliament and two years later was made minister of trade, industry, shipping and fishing.

When the German attack came, Lie escaped with King Haakon and the government, moved north dodging Nazi bullets and finally was evacuated by the British to London where Halvdan Koht resigned as foreign minister and Lie took over the difficult post.

Death Toll Reached 44 In Tragedy

Rail Officials Fear More Persons May Be Trapped Under Twisted Wreckage

AURORA, Ill., April 26 (AP)—The latest count of dead in the wreck of two crack Burlington passenger trains now stands at 44. Of the 125 injured, hospital attendants placed 31 on the critical list. Railroad authorities fear the death toll may reach more than 50 as additional bodies of victims are believed still trapped in the twisted wreckage of the trains.

Tragedy continued long after the first of the injured had been treated. A 21-year-old sailor of Luray, Mo. — Delbert Moon — telegraphed his parents that he had been in the wreck and asked that they come to St. Charles Hospital to see him. Thirty minutes later Moon died.

Most of the scores of injured were agreed that the accident happened with such speed that they didn't realize what had occurred until they found themselves hurtling through the air — or trapped beneath piles of luggage and the dead.

By a fortunate coincidence, a full staff of physicians and nurses was available at St. Charles Hospital when the victims were brought in for treatment. The advance staff meeting was being held by 50 physicians and surgeons and 77 nurses and student nurses. They went immediately to the emergency and operating rooms to treat the injured.

The two trains — the Advance Flyer and the Exposition Flyer — left Chicago simultaneously yesterday afternoon. The Advance was bound for Omaha, and the Exposition for San Francisco. The trains were carrying a total of 375 to 400 passengers.

"They ran side-by-side for a while on parallel tracks and then the Advance switched over to the main line ahead of the Exposition. The Advance had a faster running schedule and had a three-minute headway on the Exposition Flyer.

Soon both trains were roaring along at high speed. At one point, Engineer W. Blaine aboard the Exposition was racing behind the Omaha-bound train at 85 miles an hour.

Thirty miles west of Chicago, the Advance Flyer developed mechanical trouble in the undercarriage of its locomotive. It halted behind the automatic signal blocks lighted and Blaine saw a yellow signal — telling him to slow down — show on a tower.

Blaine began to halt the 85 mile per hour onrush of his 11-car train in a mainline yard. The light showed on the signal block, indicating to Blaine he should stop immediately. But dead ahead and from 1,200 to 1,400 feet distant was the stalled Advance Flyer.

With a screeching of brakes and sparks flying from twisted wheels, the Exposition Flyer ploughed into the rear of the Advance at 60 miles an hour. There was a terrible crash, followed by a moment of stunned silence which was broken then by the cries and screams of the injured and dying.

Engineer Blaine lived, escaped with minor cuts. But in the twisted coaches of the Advance and the derailed car, of Blaine's train death had cut down more than two score.

Marshal Keitel Hears Accusing Evidence Given

Witness Says Former Wehrmacht Chief Betrayed Military

MUENCHEN, April 26 (AP)—The former Wehrmacht chief — Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel — has heard accusing words from a witness at the Nazi war criminal trials before the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg.

General Gisevius has asserted that Keitel betrayed his own and his Army's honor by threatening subordinate officers who protested Gestapo atrocities.

During his third day on the stand, Gisevius also has testified that the last chief of staff of the German Army — Colonel General Gustav Jodl — had been a man with tremendous and disastrous influence with Hitler.

The former Secret Police official was under cross examination by the United States prosecutor, Justice Robert H. Jackson. Gisevius told the tribunal that Keitel got detailed reports of atrocities.

Then he said that the chief of the Wehrmacht's counter-intelligence and his chief of staff pleaded with Keitel to ask Hitler to intervene.

Instead, it has been charged that Keitel deliberately held back the protests and threatened Wehrmacht subordinates with dismissal and Gestapo punishment.

Many, said Gisevius, were actually dismissed from duty. Prosecution sources say they regard the testimony of Gisevius as a defense witness — as particularly damaging to Keitel's case.

Water Conservation Objective Of Engineers In Decision On Canal

General Youngberg Files Brief For County For Construction Of Channel Between St. John's River And Indian River

Water conservation will be the first objective of U. S. Engineers in making a decision as to possible location of a canal in central Florida connecting the St. Johns River and Indian River. U. S. Engineer Scott took delegates from many points on the East Coast and in other communities at a hearing held Thursday in Tallahassee to obtain data concerning the project for drainage of the upper St. Johns River basin.

Flood control, stabilization and navigation are the other objectives, in order, Col. Scott told the group.

Edward Higgins, manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, and A. W. Lee of the Chamber waterway committee, attended the meeting to represent the group in opposing the construction of a 12-foot sea level lock at the Indian River.

Seminole County was represented by Brig. Gen. Gilbert W. Berg with prepared and filed a brief in behalf of the project. Mr. Simmons, clerk of the Federal Court of Orange County, represented the Titusville Chamber of Commerce.

The representative from Avon Lake, Mr. Higgins said, requested that the canal be cut from Lake Washington to the Indian River at Avon Lake. This was in position in the project in the Indian River estuary at Avon Lake, represented by James Marcell who contended that draining the upper St. Johns valley

The new resolution states specifically that a committee of five members, one from each of the countries to decide on the Franco question, should be formed. The committee should be composed of the United Kingdom, the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Australia.

The Mexican delegate, Rafael B. La Collina, suggested that a vote on the new resolution be delayed until Monday to give the delegates time to study the proposal and also to get new instructions from their governments.

Farm Bureau Is Starting Service To Benefit Growers

ORLANDO, Apr. 26.—The Farm Bureau is instituting a new service which should be invaluable to fruit and vegetable growers. Most vegetables and fruits are subject to market glut from time to time, costing farmers and growers a lot of money. The Farm Bureau committees are being set up in all commercial vegetable and fruit counties and states for the purpose of assembling advance information on a prospective heavy supply. When it appears that a given commodity will be in heavy supply on a regional or national market basis the Farm Bureau's National Fruit and Vegetable Department under the leadership of Porter R. Taylor will go into action through advertising and sales promotion efforts to move that large supply into consumption thru the usual commercial channels.

This plan has worked successfully in several experimental tests on crops which otherwise would have "gone begging" in the markets, or gone to waste for lack of sufficient market demand. During the last week of each month, the state office of the Florida Farm Bureau at Orlando will be gathering information by telephone from committees throughout the state getting crop forecasts up to two months in advance on watermelons, citrus and each of the commercial vegetables.

At Washington the American Farm Bureau will consolidate our facts with similar information supplied by Farm Bureaus in the other states. When danger signals show up action will be quick and vigorous, and sustained as long as necessary to avert heavy losses to farmers and growers. This service conflicts with nothing else that is being done, while serving the best interests of all concerned. The housewife may still get something of a bargain; the handling trade and retailers enjoy their legitimate profits on an expanded volume; the growers market produce which otherwise might rot in the field or "bring him a freight bill."

This is one of the greatest services the Farm Bureau has ever undertaken for its members. Reporters already named by their respective County Farm Bureau presidents are:

District Engineer To Inspect Model Of St. Johns River

JACKSONVILLE, Apr. 26. (Special)—Col. A. B. Jones, Jacksonville District Engineer, left today enroute to Vicksburg, Miss., where he plans to inspect the model of the St. Johns River (Wentworth to the ocean) recently constructed by engineers of the U. S. Waterways Experiment Station at that city. In addition to supervising the construction of the St. Johns River model, Col. Jones, formerly district engineer of the St. Lawrence District, Massena, N. Y., will exercise supervision over the operation of a model of the Galop Rapids Section of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway project. The model has been under study since 1942. While at Vicksburg, Col. Jones will confer with Major Francis B. Wilby, U. S. Army (Retired), chairman of the Power Authority of the State of New York, on matters pertaining to the St. Lawrence project.

Col. Jones' work on this international project during the years 1942-43 included investigations of the sites of dams and other structures by core borings, test pits, soil analysis, etc.; surveys of the dam site; preliminary design of the dam; construction and preparation of

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

After docking in Miami back in 1910, yacht engineer John Levi, enroute from Mobile, Ala. to Jacksonville, wired the yacht owner, the late Carl Graham Fisher, "arrived Miami safely. Pretty little town - why not meet me here instead of Jacksonville?" Fisher arrived and predicted: "someone will make a fortune peddling this sunshine." Fisher made the fortune. Levi became in turn a realtor and then mayor of Miami and is now a member of the Miami Beach City Council. This story was recently told by Mrs. Jane Fisher to the Miami Beach Rotary Club.

"Well, well, well," commented Jacksonville officials as a third well of two million gallons of water a day output was connected recently. Five more wells will be ready in a few weeks and are designed to alleviate any possible water shortage. St. Petersburg got a scare yesterday when fire that started in a plastic shop because of a defective hot water heater, ignited stores of cellophane that exploded, then ripped open a wall. Six adjacent business places were damaged by fire and smoke to a $10,000 extent.

Up in the belfry of Immanuel Baptist Church in Tallahassee will soon be hoisted a 1,000 pound, ancient fire bell which for many years was used to summon members of the volunteer fire department on the run. The bell was stored several years ago when the voluntary fire department was abandoned, and was pieced to the church by the city commission.

Morale Of Miners In Apalachian Mining Towns Lifted By Home Owning

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK—There's a housing evolution going on in Apalachian mining towns as coal company home holdings decrease and more and more bituminous miners become property owners.

Three recent developments underline the changes in the one-time picture of company-owned dwellings and "company towns":

(1) A survey by the Bituminous Coal Institute which showed that 83 percent of the 143,000 miners in the Appalachian area (Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, and parts of Kentucky and Tennessee) now live in dwellings either owned personally or rented from individuals or concerns not connected with the mine management.

(2) An announcement that the Pittsburgh Coal Company had sold more than 900 homes to employees.

(3) The Bethlehem Steel Company sold approximately 1,000 homes in the three Pennsylvania towns of Ellsworth, Cokeburg and Marianna, to individual owners within six months.

Both Sides Like Idea

The trend has been on for several years, resulting largely from a deliberate policy adopted by several large concerns. From the operators' standpoint the change increases interest of employees in their community, eliminates problems of assigning and managing residential real estate.

Miners' enthusiasm is reflected in typical suburban activities of painting and renovating as families develop pride of ownership. An upturn in labor morale has also been noted.

Absenteeism Is Cut

"I wish you would get busy and sell that other town," one company's general manager notified a sales firm that had been instructed to resell two mining communities. "If you knew what a difference home possession has made in absenteeism where you have already sold, you would understand why we want you to go ahead."

John P. Busarello, district 5 president of the AFL United Mine Workers at Pittsburgh, reported that "practically every coal company" in his region had sold its homes to the miners, and said: "This has brought a big change in the mining towns. The miners fix up the houses and streets. The towns get to look like something."

The trend has not become evident in all regions, however. In southern West Virginia, President William Blizard of UMW District 17, said, "The only time a company ever sold a house was when the coal was about gone." He declared that the estimated eight to 10 percent of home-owning miners have been forced to build or buy as much as five or 10 miles from the mines—because the companies control all closer property.

In the same West Virginia area, a mining company official who declined to be quoted by name, said few houses are being sold except near worked-out property. He explained that rugged terrain lar, the houses sell for between $2,800 and $3,500.

Prices for previously built homes are lower. In one group of recent sales prices ranged from $500 to $1,500 with a few running up to $2,200.

Low-cost group life insurance is made available by one company as a means of guaranteeing the purchaser's investment will not be lost to his family in the event of death.

Green Asks Senate For Continuation Of Price Control

Senators Hear Same Plea From Spokesman Representing American Veterans

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—The Senate heard strong pleas for the continuation of price control today from the American Federation of Labor and the American Veterans Committee.

AF of L President William Green urged the senators to reject promptly and without hesitation the curbs placed on the OPA in the price control extension bill recently passed by the Senate. He said every day of postponement will help the profiteer and hurt the consumer. Green sharply criticized the House amendment which would remove price control from any item as soon as it is being produced at the same rate as in 1914 and 1915, saying this amendment would affect commodities making at least half the consumer price index. He attacked the proposal to guarantee manufacturers and distributors a profit. This, said Green, would blow sky-high the price of cars, refrigerators and other household items.

A spokesman for the American Veterans Committee, Chas. Patterson, said veterans have a big stake in continued price control. What good, he asked, are pensions and GI loans if a veteran can't buy anything with the money?

A suggestion came from Demolish that the OPA use veterans' credit help Mr. Murdock to help stamp out the black market.

Bid Of $2,860 Is Made By Morrison At Public Auction

W. A. Morrison of Brickland-Morrison, Inc., Ford Dealer, bid $2,860 at the sale of public lands at the Court House this morning for property at the corner of Commercial Street and Sanford Avenue extending to the Lake Front Boulevard, and having frontage on Commercial Street of 117 feet. Nobody bid against Mr. Morrison.

The lot will be cleaned up and will be used as a used car display lot and for display of trucks and truck equipment. Mr. Morrison said this morning.

Sixty two parcels of land were sold to a rather large gathering of bidders but there was comparatively little competitive bidding.

The sale of lands, comprising lots in Sanford and in Longwood, Alamo and other sections of the county, was conducted by County Clerk O. P. Herndon in accordance with provisions of the Murphy Act.

Tooke Buys 75 Acre Grove Near Orlando

Harry Tooke, operator of the Sanford Fruit Company, reported today that he had purchased a 75-acre grove six miles west of Orlando on the Winter Garden highway.

The purchase price was reported to be $93,750. The grove was bought from the Shalasin Corporation of Orlando and consists of 55 acres in oranges of mid-season Pineapple and Valencia varieties and 20 acres of grapefruit.

New German Party Wins Large Victory

FRANKFURT, Ger., April 29 (AP)—Germany's new political party, the Christian Social Union, won an overwhelming victory in county council elections held in the American zone over the weekend. The fast-growing right-of-center party rolled up a lead of almost two-to-one over its nearest rival, the slightly left-wing Social Democrats. The Communist Party received less than six percent of the more than 8,000,000 votes cast.

The second free election in the area in 18 years was marked by rioting and pro-Nazi activity. A street battle at Diebzen, in Bavaria, between German voters and more than 5,000 Jewish displaced persons resulted in injuries to 14 persons. American soldiers finally quelled the fighting.

Strike Of Coal Miners Slashes Output Of Steel

60,000 Persons Out Of Employment In Related Industries

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 29. (AP)—Steel output in Pittsburgh—the heart of the steel industry—has been cut nearly 50 percent by the soft coal strike, which now is in its fifth week. The stoppage by 400,000 United Mine Workers is making itself felt in other directions, as well.

Chicago faces a possible brown-out because of dwindling coal stocks of the Commonwealth Edison group of power companies. The companies say that their coal will last only until May 21.

In all, the soft coal strike already has thrown 60,000 persons out of work in related industries—most of them in steel in Pittsburgh and in the Illinois Steel Corporation, which has been worst hit, with district production down to 22 percent of capacity. Chicago operations of the firm, which is the largest steel-making subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, have shrunk to less than 50 percent of capacity. The firm plans to shut down its operations in the Chicago area entirely by June 1 unless the coal strike is settled.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the government is continuing its efforts to bring the operators and workers to some agreement. A complete shutdown of the coal industry in Illinois is threatened by the possibility of a general strike of 19,000 independent progressive mine workers.

Of course, the nation's coal production picture also includes the 30-day strike notice filed by the Pennsylvania hard coal miners.

Jewish Areas Are Placed Off Limits For British Troops

JERUSALEM, April 29 (AP)—All Jewish settlements, and a number of other towns in North-western Palestine have been declared off limits for British troops. British military authorities took the action after a series of week-end incidents in which British troops were involved.

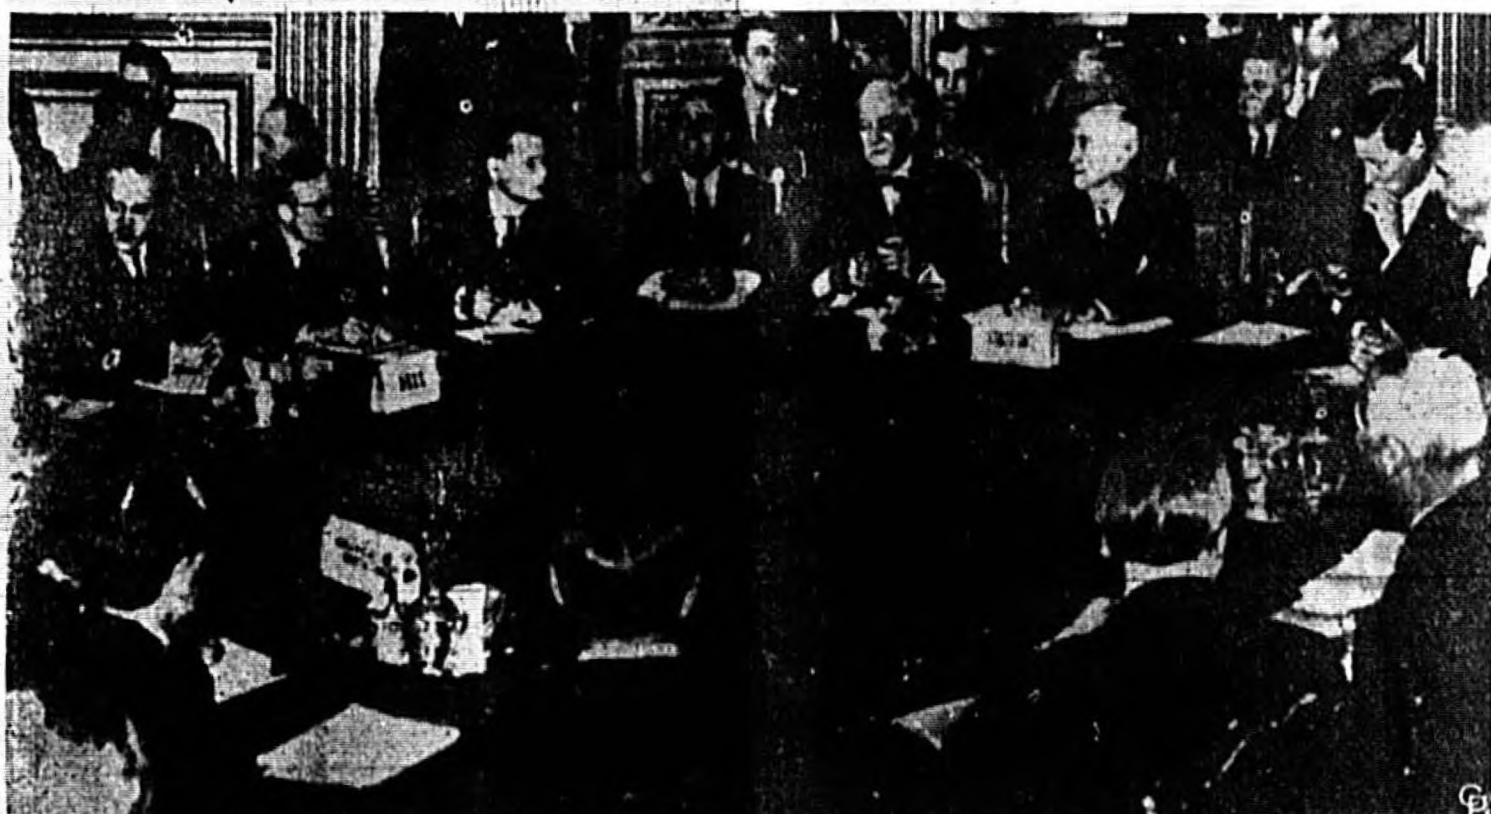

The British authorities said several persons had been injured and some property damaged on Saturday night when a group of British soldiers entered the settlement of Her Tuvia, near Tel Aviv. Leaders of the group were described by authorities as "hot-heads." Another incident in which British soldiers were involved was reported at Nathanya, in northern Palestine.

A British News Agency (Reuters) report said that posters had appeared in Tel Aviv which declared that the so-called Stern gang had admitted responsibility for the killing of seven British soldiers last Thursday in an attack on a military car parking lot. The Stern gang is a Jewish terrorist organization. The News Agency said the origin of the posters, which denied that the slain British troops were unarmed, was uncertain.

City Garbage Truck Damaged In Accident

W. F. Tuttle, 201 Maple Avenue, driving a City garbage truck east on Third Street at 9:00 o'clock Saturday morning, was run into by a truck driven by James Redding, colored, of West Thirtieth Street, who was making a right turn to enter the alley between Park and Magnolia Avenue and had swung over to the left side of the road to make the turn, and in so doing, struck the left front fender of the city truck.

Streicher Told To Respect His Defense Counsel

Order Issued After Clashes Between Nazi And Attorney

NUERNBERG, Apr. 29. (AP)—The International Military Tribunal has told the Nazi Jew-baiting editor, Julius Streicher, to treat his defense attorney and the court with due courtesy. The order was issued by the tribunal's president, Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, after a series of clashes between Streicher and his attorney, Hans Marx.

The courtroom disputes provoked U.S. prosecutor Robert H. Jackson to demand that the tribunal return Streicher to his cell and require him to submit the rest of his case in writing. The court president ignored the request and, instead, ordered the editor to be more courteous.

One clash came when Streicher complained that his attorney refused to submit evidence to support his writing Jewish ritual murders. When the attorney referred to such writings as a serious matter, Streicher angrily interrupted to demand that his own counsel should not judge him. That, he said, was a matter for the prosecution.

The editor maintained that his weekly paper of Jewish ritual murders was based on writings which had been current in Germany for 50 years. Streicher added that he never wanted to cause hatred or anxiety against the Jew. He said that his anti-semitic utterances could not have incited mass extermination of Jews.

Streicher told the court that he ordered the destruction of Nuernberg's main synagogue in 1938 because it was an architectural eyesore and not because it was a Jewish place of worship.

Location Of Body Of Mussolini Mystery

ROME, April 29. (AP)—The whereabouts of Benito Mussolini's recently exhumed body still is a mystery in Italy, but his Fascist spirit has appeared in two Italian cities. Yesterday was the first anniversary of Mussolini's death, and Italian newspapers said that there were Fascist demonstrations in Rome and Florence.

About three hundred young men interrupted a church service in Rome to sing a Fascist hymn praising Mussolini. In Florence, a black Fascist flag was raised over the Giusti ballroom. It was quickly pulled down by the police.

Market System Chief Urges More People To Eat Fresh Vegetables

Wilson Says This Is Best Time To Enjoy Florida's Health - Promoting products Direct From Field Of State

JACKSONVILLE, April 29. (AP)—Market System Chief J. L. Johnson urged more people to eat fresh vegetables today. He said this is the best possible time to enjoy Florida's health-promoting, vitamin-rich vegetables, fresh from the fields scattered over the length and breadth of the state.

Johnson, director of Florida State Farmers' Markets, today, reporting on a tour just completed in which he visited a number of major sales centers. "Fruit and vegetable are being moved from producer to consumer in tremendous volume, and it looks like a record Spring production, in many areas. This means that Florida people, as well as our good friends throughout the nation, should be taking the fullest possible advantage of the opportunity to benefit by eating more fresh vegetables."

"Some markets have already passed the peak of their Spring volume, but others are right in the midst of their heaviest shipments of the year. The Wauchula market, during the last weekly report period broke a one-day record of many years, by handling 2,000 packages through the auction. During this great sale day, Manager Frank J. Conner reports: 'All of our parking room was filled and the vehicles were lined up in blocks along the highways. Here, the cars managed to finish selling by 8:00 p.m. Today the situation is practically the same. Cucumbers and tomatoes comprise the bulk of the Wauchula movement at present. This has been one of the best seasons ever experienced and has taxed the facilities of the Wauchula market heavily.'

"Movement of produce from the Pompano market has dropped off, Manager J. L. Warren notes in his report. However, during the last weekly report period that market moved 88 cars of produce, mostly peppers and eggplants, with light offerings of beans, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes and okra. Figures for the current season will set all-time records for that market, both in volume and gross sales, the manager stated. As a matter of fact, total, he already passed previous records, and they have five weeks to go before the end of the season.

"The Plant City State Farmers' Market sales during the last week-end were $22,300 to $25,500. The potato volume on the market is at its peak, about 3,000 bags of 50-pound capacity, being handled daily. The price is steady around 22 cents. Market Manager J. A. Dulaney, The Peaches market on beach, has weakened, due to early production farther north. Peppers has held up very satisfactorily. The celery is slightly stronger on Golden, ranging from $2.50 to $3—pascal, slightly weaker, selling from $2 to $2.50.

Woman Who Rides Herd On O.P.A. Prices In Alaska Visits Washington

WASHINGTON, Apr. 29. (AP)—The woman who rides herd on O.P.A. ceiling prices in Alaska has been making a series of visits to the city.

She is Mrs. Mildred Herman—the only woman O.P.A. district director. She is a government official who can set ceiling prices to Eskimos and has done it with the help of everything from airplanes to dogsleds.

Mrs. Herman says even the moment trading post in Alaska has its ceiling. Edges pointed for Eskimo to see. Maybe Mrs. Herman likes her O.P.A. job in Alaska because of the system there. It seems that the regional O.P.A. office makes its own rules and then sends Washington strict carbon copies. The reason, she says, is that Eskimos have no other goods in Alaska, so the O.P.A. staff in Alaska, which sets prices and all,
