U.S.-Soviets: Back To Geneva Agreement Reached On Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Talks

By Joseph Gambardello
LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has reached agreement with the United States on resuming nuclear test ban treaty talks, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze announced today. Shevardnadze made the announcement at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy, marking the end of a three-day official visit to London that underlined an improvement in British-Soviet relations.

He said the test ban treaty talks would resume in Geneva but he gave no date or further details.

An American official confirmed the talks would resume and that the United States agreed to return to the bargaining table "without preconditions."

The United States walked out of the three-party test ban talks with the Soviet Union and Britain in 1980 because of verification difficulties in implementing a treaty.

The American official said the U.S. focus in the resumed talks would be on "verification improvements" to previously worked out treaties.

Shevardnadze also said Moscow was going ahead with preparations for a second summit between Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President Reagan.

"We are ready to have a summit meeting and very substantial preparations are in progress," he said. "There are serious preparations on 12 areas, including arms, regional problems and bilateral questions."

"We have interest in a constructive summit but not an empty summit," he said.

Shevardnadze's visit and news conference appeared to be part of a stepped up public relations offensive by the Kremlin to put pressure on the United States in arms control negotiations.

A key element of the campaign has been Gorbachev's unilateral moratorium on nuclear weapons testing.

But Washington has steadfastly refused to join the moratorium, saying the Soviets were far ahead of the United States in weapons testing when they imposed the moratorium and that it is questionable whether the Soviets have really stopped testing weapons.

Shevardnadze, the first Soviet foreign minister to visit Britain in 10 years, met with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe during two days of official talks that began Monday.

Howe travels to Washington Thursday to brief Secretary of State George Shultz on Shevardnadze's visit, which marked an improvement in British-Soviet relations after a series of diplomatic expulsions last year.

On Tuesday, British officials said Shevardnadze hinted that Moscow would be more flexible at the 35-nation European security talks in Stockholm in a bid to reach agreement before the negotiations end on Sept. 19.

Both Thatcher and Howe accepted invitations to visit Moscow but Howe cautioned that Britain and Moscow should not ignore their differences.

Five Incumbents Seek Reelection

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

All five incumbents seeking re-election to their Seminole County posts officially qualified for candidacy on the first day of filing Monday, according to county Elections Supervisor Sandy Goard.

Three county school board members and two county commissioners all filed their qualifying papers Monday making their re-election bids official. A fourth school board candidate filed Tuesday.

Incumbent school board members who are officially in the race are Bill Kroll, district 1, Pat Telson, district 4, and Jean Bryant, district 5. Rudy Sloan filed for candidacy for Kroll's seat Tuesday.

Seminole Board of County Commissioners officially qualified for the race include commission chairman Bob Sturm of district 2, and Sandra Glenn of district 4.

Ms. Goard said she expects other candidates to qualify throughout the week, and some have filed "intent to run" notices, in advance of qualifying.

The qualifying period ends Friday.

According to campaign treasurer's reports, Sturm's campaign funds are the highest of those to declare their candidacies so far.

For the contributions funding report ending July 10, Sturm had collected $34,070.78 for his campaign, and has spent $15,551.41 so far.

Sturm's personal assets are listed as totaling $157,600, and liabilities of $107,188. His personal net worth was listed as $50,412.

Ms. Glenn's report lists $7,278.33 in contributions, and $358 in expenditures.

Her personal assets are listed as $118,183, with liabilities of $13,500. Her declared personal net worth is $102,683.03.

In the school board races, only one incumbent had to file contributions collected, since she was the only one with a campaign account open during the most recent fund raising reporting period.

Mrs. Telson's report lists $600 in contributions so far.

Hat's In The Ring

Sanford Signs Inter-Local Gas Tax Pact

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners on Monday signed the local option gas tax distribution agreement representatives of Seminole County and all its cities tentatively endorsed on July 7 as a means of breaking the distribution deadlock the governments have been in during the last six months.

If now formally executed by all Seminole County governments, the inter-local agreement will, by next month, free gas tax revenues the state has been holding in escrow during the distribution dispute and implement a "rolling" distribution formula based on the governments' respective annual road project expenditures.

Under the proposed formula, the county and its municipalities would receive their shares of the six cent local option gas tax through calculation of their annual transportation expenditures during the years 1982 to 1987. This formula would be set from 1988 until 1992, then revised, based on the previous five years of respective transportation expenditures. The new calculation would then be effective through 1997.

At the end of this term, the overall distribution system would be reviewed for possible revamping before being re-applied. Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith said Monday night.

Also under the inter-local agreement, gas tax accruals for the rest of this year and 1987 would be broken down to four and two cent shares for distribution. The four cent share would be received by local governments based on their transportation expenditures during 1978 to 1982, and the two cent share based on annual transportation expenditures during 1980 to 1984.

Mayor Smith served as Sanford Mayor during the years 1982 to 1987.

Julian Seeks Judge's Post

Sanford attorney Ned Julian, Jr. announced Tuesday that he will run for the judge's position being vacated by Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi.

Altamonte Springs attorney William Eaton has also announced he will run for that office.

Qualifying for that race and two others ends Friday.

Julian, 44, who flew to Tallahassee Tuesday to qualify, said he is entering the race because "I have always wanted to serve the community..."

He has been an attorney in Sanford since 1967 when he graduated from the Stetson University College of Law. Julian is an attorney for the Superintendent of Schools in Seminole County and other governmental boards. He was also attorney for Longwood for more than 5 years and was an assistant public defender after law school.

The judgeship opened this month with Salfi's announcement that he is going to resign Sept. 30 to go back into private practice and to teach. Salfi has served two years of his six-year term. He has been on the bench 16 years.

In other judge's races, Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. has announced he will seek reelection to his position in the 18th Judicial District which includes Seminole and Brevard counties. He was elected to office in 1980 and holds court in Seminole County. No one had filed against him as of Tuesday.

A third judgeship, recently

created by the legislature, will involve a judge who will spend time in both counties. In that race, the only announced contestant as of Tuesday was County Judge Larry Johnston, of Merritt Island.

Candidates have to file a financial disclosure, appoint a campaign treasurer and pay a $2,000 filing fee to run for office. The job pays $67,276 a year.

Murdered Man Is Identified

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A murder victim found floating in the St. Johns River near Mullet Lake Park Friday has been identified as a 23-year-old Jacksonville man.

Seminole County sheriff's Sgt. Ron Gilbert today notified the Jacksonville father of Charles Arthur Bott that his son has been identified as the murder victim found by fishermen.

Gilbert said that investigators found a 1970 Ford pickup truck at the Lake Fairy Motel on U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, and keys found in the victim's shorts pocket fit the truck and Bott's motel room, where Bott had been staying for a few weeks.

Bott's father told Gilbert that his son had come to this area to see someone in Sanford but the father doesn't know who.

An autopsy performed Saturday showed Bott had two small caliber bullet wounds behind his left ear, but Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay could not say if the gun wounds were the cause of death.

Identification of Bott was made through fingerprint comparisons from prints found in his truck and room with those of the body and also with Bott's prints that were taken when he was arrested on a New Smyrna Beach traffic charge, Gilbert said.

Gilbert said he couldn't comment as to whether or not investigators believe Bott's killing was drug related.

The truck had four flat tires when found, Gilbert said.

Charles Arthur Bott

Bott was known at the motel, but Gilbert said both Bott and the other motel residents he had contact with were transients and that hinders the investigation into Bott's killing.

Three fishermen looking for a fishing site found Bott's body floating face down in the river east of Sanford at about 8:15 p.m. Friday. Gilbert said the badly decomposed body appeared to have been in the water at least four to five days.

Officer Outweighed By 60 Pounds Police Brutality Charged By Skateboarder

A complaint charging brutality has been filed by the father of a 17-year-old skateboarder who was arrested after the 240-pound, 6-foot-1 youth reportedly made an obscene remark to a 125-pound officer at the scene of a fight.

Three officers took the boy into custody.

Longwood police have asked the State Attorney's Office to investigate and are conducting their own investigation.

"We're going to check the complaint out. If it happened, we'll take care of it," said Capt. Terry Baker of the Longwood police.

The complaint alleges officer George Hart used excessive force while arresting Martin Waxman, of 324 Pressview Ave., on charges of obstruction of an officer and resisting arrest without violence.

The incident occurred about 6:30 p.m. at a skateboard exhibition held at the parking lot of the 434 Center on State Road 434.

According to reports, a fight broke out at the exhibition and police were called to control the crowd. When an officer asked the kids to leave, Waxman reportedly refused and yelled an obscenity. The 125-pound officer then arrested Waxman, who began to pull away prior to handcuffing.

Two other officers, including Hart, who's about the same height as Waxman but around 60 pounds lighter, were called in to assist the officer. The youth was arrested and later released into his mother's custody, reports show.

There are conflicting reports about the arrest. The boy states Hart jabbed him in the eye and shoved him against a building. One witness said the officer hit the large boy in the stomach twice.

After the incident, the youth reportedly had red marks around his wrists, numbness in his left thumb and a bruise under his right eye.

IN BRIEF

Kidnapped Missionary, Nuns, Reported Safe

ILIGAN, Philippines (UPI) — A church worker said today rebel emissaries reported an American missionary and 10 Philippine nuns kidnapped in the strife-torn southern Philippines were "safe and unharmed."

A day-old tape of the missionary, the Rev. Brian Lawrence, was released to reporters today, saying he is in good health and hopes to be freed soon from his Moslem rebel captors who have held him for four days.

Lawrence, 30, of Madison, Wis., said they demanded independence for the southern Mindanao island but were not interested in ransom as had been reported by military authorities.

Ely Capalla, secretary and sister of Bishop Fernando Capalla of Iligan, nearly 500 miles south of Manila, said negotiations were continuing for the release of Lawrence and the nuns kidnapped last week in the nearby predominantly Moslem city of Marawi and all were reported unharmed.

Six More South Africans Killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The government said the killing of six blacks during a daylong strike proved emergency rule is needed and it blamed the outlawed African National Congress for the surge in "black-on-black violence."

South African police said today they shot and killed a suspected ANC guerrilla Tuesday after surrounding a house in a homeland township outside East London, a port city on the east coast.

The latest killings brought to 157 the total of unrest and insurgency related deaths under emergency rule imposed June 12 by President Pieter Botha.

Botha today unveiled a locally modernized version of an aging jet fighter that defense officials claim rivals the Soviet-made Mig-23.

Syrian-Backed Troops Kill 2

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian-backed troops killed two pro-Iranian militiamen in the first incident on the strategic airport road since Syrian forces entered Moslem west Beirut 12 days ago to restore law and order.

Israeli warplanes Tuesday flew reconnaissance missions over Beirut and the Shouf mountains, a day after their jets pounded suspected Palestinian strongholds.

The jet fighters headed south and flew at low altitude over Lebanon's largest Palestinian refugee camp, Ain Al Helwe, security sources said.

Monday, eight Israeli warplanes bombed four Palestinian guerrilla positions in the Shouf mountains, 12 miles southeast of Beirut, killing two Palestinians and two Moslem militiamen. Security sources said the fighter jets Tuesday were apparently trying to film targets hit the day before.

Both Sides Hail Injunctions In Insurance Law Suit

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Spokesmen for both the state and the insurance industry say a judge's decision to issue several injunctions in the industry's suit against a new state law is a victory for their respective side that will protect Florida consumers.

Circuit Judge Charles Miner issued injunctions against commercial liability insurance rate rollbacks and case history reporting sections of the insurance and tort reform law late Tuesday. He granted a partial injunction against a rate freeze, and denied injunctions against new rates based on 1984 levels and advance notices of policy cancellations.

Miner acted in response to an insurance industry request that the Department of Insurance not be allowed to enforce five key sections of the bill until a challenge to the bill's constitutionality can be heard. Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter hailed the rulings as "a victory for policyholders."

Nut Tamperers With Peanut Butter

MIAMI (UPI) — Jif peanut butter is the latest target in a rash of product tampering after an unidentified caller said he had put sodium cyanide in several jars and delivered them to a Publix supermarket.

The threat is under investigation today by the FBI and the Food and Drug Administration, which is carrying out random testing on jars of Jif. The peanut butter is produced by conglomerate Procter & Gamble.

A man telephoned Procter & Gamble's product hot line in Cincinnati at 4:15 p.m. Monday. "He said he had put sodium cyanide in several jars of Jif peanut butter and delivered them to a Publix store," said Procter & Gamble spokesman Don Tassone. "He did not specify what city or store. (He) was very brief and gave very vague information."

Anti-Abortionist Hearing Slated

PENSACOLA (UPI) — Three anti-abortionists accused of storming a clinic nearly four months ago will appear in court for a second time this week in a bid to resolve a question over who will represent them.

Court officials said the hearing is scheduled for Thursday at 9 a.m. before Circuit Judge William Anderson. A court spokeswoman said the hearing is to consider a possible change of attorneys for John Burt, his daughter Sarah Burt, and Joan Andrews.

The three were among four people arrested March 26 in an incident at the Ladies Center — the only abortion clinic in Pensacola. All four were accused of entering the clinic during a protest.

Hot, Dry Weather Tortures South

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Temperatures flirted with the 100 mark for the second week Tuesday, worsening a yearlong drought that has shriveled South Carolina's crops and cut water supplies to dangerously low levels.

"I wish it would get cold," said Wes Tyler of the state Water Resources Commission. "This heat's oppressive. It's beginning to weigh on a lot of people."

The mercury topped 100 degrees across much of the state for the eighth consecutive day Monday, and the National Weather Service predicted high temperatures Tuesday in the mid-to-upper 90s.

At least two deaths in the state have been attributed to the heat.

Much of South Carolina lags 13 to 19 inches behind in normal rainfall for the year, and Tyler said there had been reports of reservoirs so low the water was unusable.

"If we don't have general rains in the next two or three weeks, it's quite possible we could go into an emergency," he said.

The Water Resources Commission said this year's drought is the state's worst since 1880, when records were first kept. The only comparable drought in recent history came in the summer of 1954, when temperatures topped 100 degrees for 28 days.

Residents in the northwestern and north central parts of the state are under a severe drought alert and have been asked to curb non-essential water use.

"We're saying we don't want you to wash your cars or fill your swimming pools," said Gary Cannon, city manager for Camden, a town 30 miles northeast of Columbia where water-use limits were imposed this week.

Gov. Dick Riley could be forced to declare a drought emergency and restrict water use even further if the situation doesn't improve, officials said.

Scattered thundershowers rumbled over the central and eastern parts of the state Monday night but provided little relief, Tyler said. The moisture hit the parched ground and quickly evaporated, he said.

Farmers sat helplessly and watched their crops burn in the field.

"In another two weeks without rain there is probably not going to be any row crops," said Larry Yonce, a peach farmer from Edgefield, S.C. "They're just going to dry up and blow away."

Yonce said parts of the state have been without substantial rainfall for as long as 10 weeks.

"Every day it's becoming more disastrous," he said. "As every day passes with no rain, it becomes more critical."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has predicted a loss of seven bushels of wheat per acre on 325,000 acres. Normal yield is 34 bushels per acre, said Sam Rives, assistant crop statistician.

Tobacco is expected to yield 2,150 pounds per acre, compared to 2,300 pounds in the previous year, a record one for leaf yield.

Rives said there were no figures available on damage to corn, cotton or soybeans, but the outlook was bleak.

Many cattle farmers have been forced to sell their herds early because the scorched pastures lack grass, and dairy farmers said their cows won't produce milk in the stifling heat.

"They include the continuing presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan, the differing conception of the importance of human rights," Howe said in a luncheon Tuesday at the Soviet Embassy.

"The differences in our views of the place of the individual in society, of the nature of political and economic organization — are bound to surface sometimes in disagreements," he said. "But none of this should stop us working together to identify common interests and eliminate misunderstandings."

The two countries also signed three agreements, including one to settle financial claims stemming from before the 1917 Russian Revolution and which took nine years to negotiate.

ford's representative at the July 7 meeting, and said from indications she received during it, she is optimistic all Seminole County's governments will sign the inter-local agreement.

Sanford Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons endorsed the distribution proposal, saying it should serve to encourage the county and its cities to increase road rehabilitation efforts, in light of the return they'll receive for doing so.

"The more you consistently spend over the years, the more gas taxes you'll receive for road needs," Simmons said. "I think the formula will benefit road efforts throughout the county."

The amount of gas tax revenues governments spend annually will not be factored into calculation of the distribution formula. The formula shares will be based solely on a summary of percentages which covers monies the governments have put into road projects, independent of their gas tax accrual expenditures.

Simmons estimated the state is holding $500,000 of Sanford gas tax accruals in escrow. Simmons also said he has yet to calculate the additional monies Sanford would receive during the rest of this year and 1987 through the two and four cent distribution break-down.

As called for by Sanford commissioners in June, gas tax accruals and budgeted funds will be used this summer to launch the series of road projects Sanford plans during the next several years.

Adoption of the inter-local agreement by all respective commissions would be followed by its submission to the state on July 23, for placement on the agenda for the July 29 meeting of the governor and the cabinet, according to County Attorney Nikki Clayton.

Authorization received through this meeting would enable distribution of the state-held funds to begin immediately, Mrs. Clayton said.

Another inter-local agreement Sanford commissioners signed Monday will bring the city's police and fire departments online with the Seminole County E-911 telephone emergency service. The departments expect to be operating under the system by mid-October.

Expedited response to emergency calls is anticipated through both the new 911 telephone number and the inter-local agreement's requirement for uniform numbering of street addresses, commissioners said.

Under the inter-local agreement, the county will reimburse Sanford the roughly $25,000 the city will spend to convert to the emergency system.

Commissioners on Monday

also appointed the city's participants in Seminole County's community development block grant program.

Through the program, the county anticipates receiving $3.9 million from the state to rehabilitate seven municipal and unincorporated areas. Three county grant boards have been established to detail projects for the target areas and administer project funding. On Monday, commissioners appointed Simmons to the grant technical advisory committee, Sara Jacobson to the grant advisory board, and Leroy Johnson and Alfreda Wallace to the grant citizens advisory committee. All of Seminole's cities will have representatives on these boards.

County Planning Director Tony Vanderworp has estimated receipt this winter of the first $1.3 million of three equal grant installments the county will receive during the next three years.

WEATHER

LOCAL REPORT: Tuesday's high as recorded by University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center, Sanford, was 90 degrees and the 8 a.m. reading today was 70 degrees. Rainfall Tuesday was .55 inch. More hot and sticky weather today with a chance of thundershowers.

NATIONAL REPORT: Thundershowers brought a surprising respite today from searing heat that has baked the South for more than a week and caused 10 deaths but the relief likely will be short-lived with temperatures rising above 100 again this week. Temperatures were expected to drop to the low to mid 90s today in the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama after 10 days of readings well into the 100s. But the mercury is expected to cross the 100-degree mark again by Thursday or Friday. National Weather Service meteorologist Bill Barlow said early today. "It's going to be cooler than it has been down there (in the South)," Barlow said. "It will be about normal weather for this time of year." At least 10 people have died in the heat wave that has aggravated the worst drought on record, and some Southern towns worried about running out of water. Forecasters had held out little hope that the hot spell would break this week, even temporarily.

Barlow said thundershowers that moved into the South from the Tennessee Valley brought cooling clouds and rain but also inflicted damage on the parched, fragile land. The storms lashed Wilmington, N.C., with more than 3 inches of rain in less than two hours Tuesday night. Winds gusting to 78 mph damaged aircraft at the airport and toppled trees in the region. Trees and power lines were downed at other places in North Carolina and in South Carolina and Georgia. Strong thundershowers also pounded the lower Great Lakes early today, spinning tornadoes in Wisconsin and blasting parts of Michigan with 50-mph winds that downed trees and power lines. No injuries or major damage were reported. The sky darkened dramatically in Wisconsin when storm clouds rolled in Tuesday afternoon.

"You actually could see the front moving in. It was so black that people were driving with their lights on," said Judy Weidman, 29, of rural Waunakee, just north of Madison. Rain also fell in the Rockies today, and 65-mph storm winds, hail and heavy rain blasted parts of Montana, Arizona and Texas.

Public Servants To Serve Public

Area officials will be carrying their role as public servants even further Friday as they become "celebrity waiters" for the sake of charity. The Celebrity Waiters Charity Luncheon will be held at noon at the Altamonte Springs Hilton, 350 S. Northlake Boulevard, to benefit the Leukemia Society of America.

Honorary Maître D's include Longwood Mayor Larry Goldberg and Deputy Mayor

June Lormann and Winter Springs City Commissioner Arthur Hoffman. Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess will be the master of ceremonies.

The celebrity waiters' tips will go to leukemia research, financial assistance to patients and education. Donations are tax deductible.

Cost of the luncheon is $12.50 per person or $100 for a table of eight. For information call 898-0733.

Economy Still Mixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy gave off another set of mixed signals Tuesday, with sickly industrial production hobbling behind a healthy advance in retail sales, the government said.

Reagan administration officials, however, said they still expect a rebound in the later half of this year, but others are not so sure.

Sales rose an estimated 0.2 percent in June following upwardly revised gains of 0.9 percent in April and 0.7 percent in May, the Census Bureau announced. Sales for the month totaled an estimated $118.7 billion, after seasonal adjustment, up from $118.5 billion in May.

An earlier report had pegged the April advance at 0.4 percent and charted a 0.1 percent decline in May, so the new figures reflect significantly stronger consumption than previously reported.

But the healthy growth in spending has yet to spark an upsurge in industrial output, which decreased an estimated 0.5 percent in June after declining a revised 0.4 percent in May, according to another set of figures released Tuesday by the Federal Reserve Board.

The output index for American factories, mines and utilities last advanced in April, by 0.6 percent. It has declined 0.2 percent since June 1985.

"We feel the strength of consumer spending should help spur production in the months ahead to meet current high sales levels," White House spokesman Albert Brashear said in a statement. Optimists in the administration believe an upsurge in spending powered by low interest rates, low inflation and high consumer confidence will boost the annual rate of economic growth to as high as 4 percent by the end of this year.

Many outside the White House, however, believing the economy is drifting into doldrums, say slack income growth, a high level of personal debt and a low savings rate will hold back spending in the second half and trim the annual growth rate to as low as 2 percent.

Retail business has expanded by 4.3 percent in the first half of 1986, compared to a 5.8 percent gain in the first six months of 1985.

Auto sales showed a 0.8 percent gain in June, following advances of 5.3 percent in April and 2.3 percent in May. Service station sales advanced 1.2 percent as gas prices edged up, but have declined by 13.8 percent since June 1985.

Grocery and department store sales both rose by 0.3 percent, but building materials sales declined by 1.2 percent and the sale of home furnishings fell 0.7 percent in June.

Following a pattern that set in after the collapse in world oil prices early this year, the decline in industrial production was steepest in the mining industry, which suffered a 1.5 percent drop in output in June following a revised 1.7 percent fall in May.

Mining industry output last month was 10.6 percent lower than it was in June 1985.

City workers clear sidewalk area adjacent to park

Hoped-For Park Makes Progress

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A collective effort involving the City of Sanford, its Scenic Improvement Board and All Souls Catholic Church is being eyed as enabling the church to transform a two-acre lot it leases from the city into a recreation and beautification showplace.

City commissioner's and scenic board member's demonstrated willingness to assist the effort will be used by All Souls Church Council President Winky LeFils to hopefully secure a project go ahead from the full church council next month.

The church project would cost in the neighborhood of $85,000, hopefully funded through private sponsorship, and be open to all city residents, in addition to serving as the church school's recreation center, Mrs. LeFils told commissioners Monday night.

The field is located behind the church, and bordered by Park and Oak avenues and Eighth and Ninth streets.

Site development includes a combination softball-soccer field, a volleyball area, a jogging track, exercise stations, two playgrounds, a picnic area and abundant landscaping and plantings. The measures are contained on the plan created by scenic improvement board volunteer and Cardinal Industries site planner Maureen Duggan and presented to city commissioners Monday night.

Commissioners followed up the presentation by sanctioning the project concept and directing city counsel to draw up a long term lease, which Mrs. LeFils requested to amend the year-to-year lease arrangement the church presently has with the city.

The new lease would run 10 years, continuing the $1 a year rent the church pays Sanford for use of the field, and require the church to complete the estimated $85,000 in park improvements within two years of the new lease's signing, City Attorney William Colbert said.

Commissioners also indicated they were willing to formally endorse the request Mrs. LeFils and the scenic board have made for the city to pay for placement of sidewalks around the field's exterior and the running of a service water line to the park and installation of an on-site water meter.

Sanford's total expenditure would involve an estimated $12,300, approximately $11,800 of which would go for the sidewalks and the balance for the water line and meter, City Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons said.

With the city's endorsement and Mrs. Duggan's site plan in hand, Mrs. LeFils said she will approach the council's finance committee later this month as her first step in seeking church approval for the project.

Mrs. LeFils told commissioners she has targeted a "Pick-A-Park" program to fund the project. This arrangement involves private companies and organizations paying for the project, with the church retaining jurisdiction over it.

If the finance committee endorses the proposal, Mrs. LeFils said her next step would be a project and funding presentation to the full church council, including church administrator Father Lyle Damen, when it next meets in August.

If the church council approves the project, Mrs. LeFils said she would further detail funding logistics and have them ready for presentation to commissioners by October.

As discussed by commissioners Monday, Sanford would grant the church right of first refusal of a new lease the city would draw up at the end of the initial 10 year term. If Sanford breaks the initial lease, the private sponsors would receive a pro-rated reimbursement of their expenditure, based on the number of years remaining in the lease term, Colbert said.

The amount of recompense would be determined by the city, given to the church and the church would be legally responsible for its administration to sponsors, Colbert said.

If the church breaks the lease, Sanford would reimburse none of the funding costs, commissioners said.

The church project is hoped to be the first of several "Pick-A-Park" projects the scenic board would like to see as a means of upgrading open areas in Sanford, scenic board chairman Sara Jacobson said Monday night.

Mrs. LeFils also took Monday night's city commission meeting as opportunity to invite commissioners to the 75th anniversary as a parish the church will mark on Nov. 1. The church has been a mission in Sanford for 99 years, she said.

Where Is Palestine?

A catchy slogan, long popular among Israeli hardliners, helps explain the intractability of Middle East problems.

The slogan is this: "Jordan is Palestine." It means that Israelis and the Arabs could quit arguing if Arabs agreed that Palestinian self-determination should be exercised east of the Jordan River only, while Israel takes care of the west.

The slogan is simple and wrong. Yet so clear is the phrase, so tidy the solution it suggests, that you wonder why everyone doesn't adopt it as a plan to bring peace to the region.

You wonder, too, why Jordan's King Hussein has his government working on a plan to plough millions of dollars into developing the West Bank — the area administered by Israel since it drove out Jordanian forces in the 1967 war.

Arthur Day offers thoughtful observations on such questions in "East Bank/West Bank," a book about Jordan just published by the Council on Foreign Relations.

Day spent most of his diplomatic career in the Middle East.

The book reflects his sympathy for Jordan, its people and its king, but Day is neither uncritical of the kingdom nor unsympathetic toward other countries, including Israel.

"East Bank/West Bank" is especially helpful in understanding why Jordanians and Palestinians reject the idea that their nationalities are interchangeable. Contrary to some assumptions, Jordan has developed its own distinctive national personality.

Even though its population has become preponderantly Palestinian, its government differs with Palestinian leaders in and beyond Jordan. The vivid recent example was Hussein's February announcement of an end to joint peace-seeking efforts with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Most West Bank Palestinians evidently remain loyal to the PLO.

And Hussein, as always trying to retain independence of action without alienating fellow Arabs, is chipping away at that loyalty.

His program for investing $150 million annually in West-Bank agriculture, industry and services exemplifies the paradoxes that pervade the Middle East.

Some West Bankers who would benefit resent the plan.

And where else but the Middle East would there be a plan for development in an area controlled by an enemy?

Such questions seem less mysterious in the light of Arthur Day's brief book. Read it.

Out Of Touch

The United Methodist Church has learned that the elitists on its hymnal committee are out of touch with church members. The committee set off a huge controversy when it decided on May 17 to take the traditional hymns, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," out of its next hymn book. The Laodiceans on the 25-member panel reasoned that the songs were too "militaristic."

Not so, responded many members of the 9.4-million-member denomination. Carlton Young, editor of the hymnal, noted that angry callers tied up United Methodist Church headquarters phones so thoroughly that church officials couldn't make an outgoing call for 10 days, and that only about 40 of the more than 8,000 cards, letters and petitions sent to church headquarters agreed with the hymnal committee's decision.

Will GOP Lose Control Of Senate? Odds Shifting

Until very recently the smart money in Washington was saying there was about a 50-50 chance that the Republicans would lose control of the U.S. Senate in this year's election.

Now the odds have shifted a bit. Pundits are saying that the Democrats have moved up in some of the close races, and it looks as if they will pick up the four seats necessary to gain a majority in the Senate.

The predicates behind this idea are three — two of which are valid. First is arithmetic. The Republicans have almost twice as many seats at risk as do the Democrats: 22 versus 12.

Second, congressional elections are essentially local, won or lost by the talents of the individuals running in given districts, by the issues they develop and by the funds they raise. Pollster Peter Hart says this will be the "year of character" for the Senate candidates.

Third: Because of the correct logic of the previous item, it is maintained by some that Senate elections cannot, therefore, be "nationalized." It is noted that the Republican National Committee will not be buying national network television spots this year. This means, so it is said, that Ronald Reagan will not be much of a factor. It's true, they say, he can raise money for Republican Senate candidates, but — so goes the argument — he won't be able to frame the issues that may push the voters one way or the other. Many Democrats make this case and so do some Republicans. They are wrong.

Ronald Reagan will "nationalize" this election. If, as is likely, Reagan travels to North Carolina to speak for Republican James Broyhill, the national network news will be there with him. If Reagan travels to Nevada to speak for Republican Jim Santini, the national network news will be with him, just as they will be with him in every state he hits.

Now, let us remember that Reagan is the most popular second term president since the advent of public opinion polling. His Gallup approval rating was 68 percent even before the big July Fourth blowout. It is now undoubtedly somewhere in the 70s. If it should fall back during the summer, remember that probably early in September there will be a big spectacle when the president signs a radically revised tax code. The new law is surely a bipartisan measure, but it will just as surely be known as the "Reagan tax bill." Furthermore, there is a good chance that between now and the election the date of the next summit will be announced, and well-publicized rumors will hang heavy in the air that Reagan and Gorbachev have cut an historic deal on arms control.

And what will Reagan say on the stump? Roughly this: "If you want the Reagan revolution to continue, vote Republican. I can't do it without a Republican Senate. If you want prosperity to continue, vote Republican. I can't do it without a Republican Senate. If you want America to be strong enough to negotiate from strength, vote Republican. I can't do it without a Republican Senate." All that will be reported on the networks night after night all over America.

How much is this worth in an election? Surely not 10 percentage points. In the last three Senate elections a swing of only 2 percent of the vote would have changed the results in 21 percent of the Senate seats.

Helping Teenage Mothers

TACOMA, Wash. (NEA) — In the nation's political forums and on its streets, the issue of how to handle unwanted pregnancies continues to generate fierce debate — and sometimes leads to violence.

Right-to-life proponents and freedom-of-choice advocates remain intransigently opposed to each other's positions on abortion.

Years of debate at the highest levels of government — at the White House, before the Supreme Court and in Congress — have failed to resolve the dispute.

Into that turmoil each year step more than 1 million pregnant teenage girls, most of them unmarried, confused and subjected to terrifying pressures.

One out of every nine teenage girls of all races and almost one-third of all black teenage girls become pregnant every year. About 40 percent seek abortions while the remainder choose to have the child.

While pro- and anti-abortion demonstrators march in the streets and politicians exchange rhetorical rapiers, somebody ought to be helping those young women prepare for their future.

Until recently, such assistance was limited and uncoordinated if it was available at all. Now, that is changing — and the Adolescent Pregnancy Project of the Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department here typifies the best of the new approaches to the problem.

Integrated into one program is a full range of specialized aid in three major areas — medical, educational and social — financed by the federal and state governments as well as private foundations.

The medical assistance includes pregnancy testing, maternity counseling, screening and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, nutrition information for mother and child, prenatal classes and pediatric care for the baby.

The project also attempts to help young single mothers obtain educational and vocational training to help them obtain jobs necessary to support themselves and their children.

The social assistance includes providing information about adoption to those who choose to relinquish their babies and referrals to agencies that provide family planning services.

By offering advice about pregnancy and parenting in a moral context, that program emphasizes the importance of personal responsibility, sexual maturity and social commitment.

Meese Letters Net Funds

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Over the past decade, direct-mail fund raising has become a central fact of political life. It has been much more successful, however, for Republicans and conservative organizations than for Democrats and liberal groups. Now Democrats are vowing to reverse this imbalance.

One popular type of appeal is what in the trade is loosely called the "Satan is coming" letter. This approach has been directly borrowed from television evangelists, who, given their trade, are able to use Satan directly. Political fundraisers don't have this built-in advantage. They have to invent their own devils.

For years Ted Kennedy has worked wonders for conservatives and Republicans. The mere mention that the senator from Massachusetts was about to do something, sponsor something or — horror of horrors — run for something would bring in a torrent of funds from panicked conservatives. It has often been said that if Ted Kennedy did not exist, Richard Viguere, the dean of conservative fund-raisers, would have invented him.

Democrats have tried to copy this kind of fund-raising for years, but have been hard pressed to come up with appropriate devils.

Ronald Reagan has been tried, but you can't raise much money against one of the most popular presidents in history. George Bush has been tried, but Democrats have found that it is very difficult to work up a great fear of George Bush. They have even tried issues, but have found that raising money to combat abstractions is a difficult proposition.

What the Democrats have needed is the Republican equivalent of a Ted Kennedy or Tip O'Neill or Jimmy Carter.

For a while they had former Interior Secretary James Watt, and he worked wonders in prying money out of environmentalists for Democratic causes and candidates. But since he left, pickings have been slim.

Now though, Democratic fundraisers think they have found their man. Take to the hills ... Edwin Meese III is coming!

In recent weeks groups as diverse as the Democratic Senate Campaign Committee, the American Civil Liberties Union and Planned Parenthood have sent out direct-mail fund-raising appeals centering on Attorney General Ed Meese.

A recent Democratic Senate Campaign Committee fund-raising mailing has as its central theme the election of a Democratic Senate to prevent Ed Meese from packing the federal court system with ultra-conservative jurists or even getting himself appointed to the Supreme Court. In the letter Meese's views are called "frightening" and "in opposition to equality and justice for all Americans."

A DSCC spokesman says that the return of contributions thus far has been "much better than average."

The ACLU mailing attacks Meese for his position on constitutional issues.

Cocaine Affects The Heart

By Gayle Young

UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Texas researcher says rat studies suggest cocaine users have an increased risk of heart failure, possibly even after they stop taking the drug, because it reduces amounts of key heart enzymes.

Dr. Michael Trulson, professor of anatomy at Texas A&M University's school of medicine, said his research has shown even moderate use of the popular drug causes a sharp drop in four enzymes that control oxygen and energy levels in the heart.

An enzyme is a protein that speeds up or causes chemical reactions in the body.

Trulson, who has conducted extensive experiments on laboratory rats, said the enzyme depletion is long term and may even be permanent.

"It is possible someone who used cocaine a few years ago for a few days may be walking around today with a depleted enzyme level and at risk for cardiac arrest," he said in a telephone interview.

His findings are to be published in the scientific journal Acta Anatomica, he said.

Other medical researchers in recent months have linked cocaine use with sudden death due to heart arrest, the fate that befell University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias last month.

But Trulson's research indicates the effect on the heart may last long after the drug's high has worn off.

"Obviously not everyone who has taken cocaine dies of a heart attack," said Trulson. "All we can say is that without an adequate supply of these enzymes they are at risk."

"The heart is working harder without those enzymes," he said. "Combined with other factors it could lead to cardiac arrest."

Approximately 15 percent of the laboratory rats Trulson used in his experiments have died from cardiac arrest in the three months since they were exposed to moderate doses of cocaine over a 10 day period.

The remainder of the rats continue to have low levels of the key enzymes the cocaine destroyed months ago.

"We don't know how the cocaine depletes these enzymes," said Trulson. "We also don't know how to replace them."

Cocaine is known to accelerate blood pressure and heart rate.

Billboard Lobbyist Confuses Senate

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A billboard industry lobbyist who claims to be an environmentalist is trying to recruit state officials in the fight against a Senate bill that would toughen federal regulations of billboards.

Supporters of the tougher billboard rules believe George F. McInturff III is masquerading as an environmentalist in an effort to confuse state officials about the merits of the bill.

McInturff sent out a letter on June 2 to state highway officials, warning them about "extremely restrictive and punitive provisions" of the Senate bill. It would deny federal highway funds to states that fail to remove non-conforming billboards along federal roads.

"I suggest that you advise your senators as to your department's recommendations concerning this bill," McInturff wrote. The letterhead identifies him only as a "consultant on environmental affairs."

Although he admits to working for billboard interests, McInturff assured our associate Stewart Harris that his credentials as an environmentalist are solid: He belongs to five environmental groups and lives on the Chesapeake Bay. "I have a mallard mother on nine eggs under my porch," he said.

McInturff also spent eight years in charge of the Federal Highway Administration's controversial billboard removal project, which has not exactly denuded the landscape of outdoor advertising.

Nowadays, McInturff is better known for his work on behalf of the billboard industry. He describes himself as a "longtime consultant to the outdoor advertising industry" in a Jan. 13 memo advising industry lawyers how to challenge testimony offered by University of Georgia Professor Dr. Charles F. Floyd.

McInturff described Floyd as "the most active and vocal critic of the outdoor advertising industry."

And, in a Feb. 19 report to billboard company executives, chief industry lobbyist Vernon A. Clark said McInturff devotes a large part of his time "to state and local legislative issues where there are also matters of great concern" to the outdoor advertising industry.

"Maybe I shouldn't call myself an environmentalist," McInturff conceded. "I don't know. But I think I'm as much an environmentalist as anyone."

In an angry June 27 letter to highway officials of all 50 states, Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., author of the billboard bill, defended the legislation — which has the support of environmental groups and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole — and added: "I would also like to set the record straight as to Mr. McInturff's identity. ... Mr. McInturff does not represent the views of the environmental community."

Sens. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, and Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., have put an informal "hold" on Gorton's bill. Both have collected modest campaign contributions from the industry, and Symms was paid $2,000 for a speech to Gannett billboard executives.

In addition to rewarding its friends, the billboard industry tries to punish its enemies. Gorton's challenger this fall, Democrat Brock Adams, transportation secretary in the Carter administration, received $6,000 in billboard donations in the first three months of this year, including $5,000 from billboard baron Barry Ackley of Seattle, and his associates.

Gorton said he also suspects that the billboard industry pressured co-sponsors of the bill, Sens. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., and Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, to remove their names from the proposed legislation.

IN BRIEF

Reagan Against Tough Sanctions Demanded Against South Africa

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is looking for new ideas to shift administration policy toward South Africa and stave off congressional pressure without giving in to new Senate demands for tough economic sanctions.

Reagan met with Republican lawmakers Tuesday and asked for suggestions, while on Capitol Hill, Sens. Edward Kennedy and Lowell Weicker called for passage of a House bill requiring a U.S. trade embargo against South Africa.

Kennedy, D-Mass., said the white-minority regime in Pretoria must be forced to negotiate an end to its apartheid system of racial segregation before the strife-torn nation buckles under "a massive civil war."

Reagan opposes the House measure and aides said his request for new ideas — apparently indicating he may change current policy — did not mean he is willing to accept new sanctions or a demand for U.S. firms to end investment in the region.

Family Files $15 Million Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first claim filed against NASA by relatives of the lost Challenger crew seeks $15.1 million from the agency and former rocket manager Lawrence Mulloy in the death of shuttle co-pilot Michael Smith.

A NASA spokesman said Tuesday the claim was received July 3 at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., the center responsible for the flawed booster rocket that triggered the Jan. 28 explosion fatal to Smith and his six crew colleagues.

The agency released a copy of the claim, which seeks $15 million for wrongful death and $100,000 for personal injury and claims employee negligence at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration "was the sole proximate cause" of Smith's death.

Litton Pleads Guilty To Fraud

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Litton Systems Inc. has agreed to plead guilty to overcharging the government by $6.3 million on defense contracts and to pay $15 million in penalties, the largest settlement ever in such a case.

Litton Systems Inc., a subsidiary of Litton Industries Inc., was indicted Tuesday on charges of defrauding the government by inflating costs on $30 million in military contracts during the past decade. Litton Industries is the nation's 10th-largest defense contractor.

"Our new heat pump saves more than enough money to run the VCR and TV. Do you think FPL knew that when they helped us buy it?"

Sure we did. FPL is encouraging everybody to manage their energy efficiently because lowering peak energy demand delays the need for new power plants — an expense everyone must share.

Installing a high-efficiency central heat pump can cut your heating costs up to 40% because it's more efficient than a conventional electric heating system. In the winter, the heat pump extracts heat from the outside air (yes, there's always heat in the air) and transfers it indoors. And in the summer, it cools by removing heat and humidity from inside.

You might also want to install a heat-recovery water heating system with your new heat pump to save even more money.

Inventories Down...Seek

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales by U.S. businesses, including wholesalers and manufacturers, declined 1.8 percent in May, the largest setback in 11 years, the Commerce Department said today, and manufacturers and traders cut back their inventories for the first time in nine months.

Manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers slashed their inventories by 0.3 percent to an estimated $586.6 billion, the first cut since August 1985 and the largest since March 1983 as businesses sought to work off unwanted stocks, the Census Bureau said.

Manufacturing and trade sales decreased $7.7 billion to $420.7 billion, the bureau said. It was the largest percentage decline in sales since March 1975, when they fell back by a record 2.8 percent.

In April, sales increased by 2 percent while inventories inched up just 0.07 percent.

The ratio of inventories to sales rose 0.02 percent in May to 1.39, the bureau said, meaning that it would take 1.39 months to exhaust inventories at the current sales pace. The ratio rose to 1.4 in March.

The drop in sales was led by a 5.1 percent decline in sales by wholesalers. Retail sales increased 0.7 percent while manufacturers sales fell back 1.4 percent.

The inventory decline was steepest at the retail level, where they fell by 0.8 percent. Wholesale warehouse stock expanded by 0.2 percent while manufacturers inventories declined 0.3 percent.

A baby boy, reportedly Acosta's and Ms. Montero's son, was unharmed. The dead boy and the wounded girl are not related to Acosta, investigators said.

The shootings reportedly followed an argument between the suspect and the woman.

Campbell Readies For World Run

ATHENS (UPI) — The First World Junior Track and Field Championships, billed as the "Olympiad of New Stars" by organizers, opens at the Olympic Stadium today with more than 1,500 athletes from 126 countries competing.

This latest addition to the growing track and field calendar is slated to take place every two years, bringing together the world's best junior age athletes. This year's contingent is comprised of men born in 1967 or later and women born in 1969 or later.

Americans are expected to dominate the men's and women's sprints in the five-day championships. Joe DeLoach, of Bay City Texas, is favored to win the two men's events, having clocked a personal best of 10.21 seconds over 100 meters and 20.24 at 200 meters.

Stanley Kerr, of Snook, Texas, has clocked a lightning 10.10 seconds and the only European who might make any impression on the American domination is West German Bernhard Hanke.

There is an eagerly awaited clash in the men's 400 meters between Henry

Thomas, of Hawthorne, Calif., also a gold medal prospect in the 100 meters, and Roberto Hernandez of Cuba. Hernandez has recorded 45.05 for the distance while Thomas ran 45.09 last year.

Sanford's Clifton Campbell is the third 400-meter stand-out in the field. Hernandez nipped Campbell in the Junior Pan-Am Games July 5 at Winter Park's Showalter Field.

"I know I can beat that guy," Campbell said about Hernandez after the race. "I am going to redeem myself in Athens."

Campbell, who will be a

Double Play Halts Last-Inning Rally

Baseball

HOUSTON (UPI) — After a few fluttering moments when it looked like they would catch nothing at all, American Leaguers finally caught a break.

The Americans beat the Nationals 3-2 Tuesday night — but only after a late comeback effort by the NL fell a half-swing short.

Frank White turned rookie Chris Brown's checked-swing grounder into a game-ending double play with runners on first and third and one out.

Power hitting by second basemen Lou Whitaker and White plus power pitching from Roger Clemens and Ted Higuera gave the AL only its second win in the last 15 games of the series.

The NL pulled close with two runs in the eighth when Rich Gedman experienced the first nasty knucklers of his life — all thrown by veteran Charlie Hough.

The rally was vaguely reminiscent of the one that cost Hough a no-hitter and a victory over California — when the knuckleball pitcher lost a one-hitter because he failed to cover the plate on a wild pitch.

Hough threw a wild pitch, balked, Gedman had a passed ball and the NL came up with two runs even though three straight batters struck out.

"I thought Gedman did a heckuva job," Hough said. "He walked into an All-Star game cold, had to get used to me, and used a glove I brought with me from Texas.

"The balls hit the glove," Hough said, "and they just popped out. You wouldn't take Cal Ripken, give him my glove to take out to shortstop and say, 'Here, catch the ball.'"

Gedman wasn't convinced. "You're here because you're an All-Star," he said, "and here you are missing all those balls. Wouldn't you be embarrassed?"

"I worked with him before the game," he said, "but that was nothing. In the game, those knucklers were nasty. Hough said, 'If you catch me a couple more times, you'll never miss a ball.' He didn't have to say that.

He could have said I was awful." Brown drilled one of Hough's less nasty knuckleballs one-hop to the wall in left center to start the eighth with the NL trailing 3-0. He took third when Chili Davis struck out on a wild pitch and was thrown out at first.

Brown scored while Hubie Brooks was striking out on a passed ball by Gedman, sliding around a tag try by Hough — who obviously learned a lesson from the California loss.

A balk moved Brooks, who had reached base when Gedman elected to go to the plate instead of first on the passed ball, to second. He scored following a strikeout on a sharp single to left center by Steve Sax.

"I've never had to catch a knuckleball pitcher," NL catcher Jody Davis said after watching

Raines: 0 For 2; Virginia Reacts

Sanford's Tim Raines went 0 for 2 in the National League's 3-2 loss to the American League in Monday's All-Star Game at Houston's Astrodome.

Raines, who finished fourth in the fans' voting, pinch-hit for Fernando Valenzuela in the sixth inning. After lining a foul ball into the left field corner, Raines popped out to center field. In Raines' other at-bat in the eighth inning, he struck out on a Charlie Hough knuckleball. He played left field.

Raines' wife, Virginia, was the subject of the ABC cameras twice. It showed her before Raines' second at-bat and then caught her reaction to the strikeout.

Ormond, Port Orange Register Easy Victories

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

There are some good teams in the Florida Junior Major League District 4 Baseball Tournament and there are some bad teams. There's very little inbetween. Parity very seldom is prevalent in this 13- and 14-year-old double-elimination tournament.

The trend continued Tuesday night as two good teams — Ormond Beach and Port Orange — beat the daylights out of two bad teams — Daytona Beach and New Smyrna Beach/Edgewater — before 100 fans at Sanford's Chase Park.

In the first game, Ormond Beach stamped itself as the tournament favorite with a 16-1 rout of hopelessly outclassed Daytona Beach. David Thomas tossed a three-hitter and struck out 16. Randy Hearne, Tommy Lee, Matt Biggers and Lyn Selmyre each drove in two runs.

In Monday's second game, Port Orange, which drew a first-round bye, John Eichler and Sean Swanson combined to drive home seven runs in a 15-4 blowout of New Smyrna Beach/Edgewater.

Ormond Beach, which nipped Port Orange, 11-10, in a tournament earlier this year, takes on its rival again Thursday in the winners' bracket final at 8 p.m. Tonight in the losers' bracket, Sanford tries to rebound from Monday's 9-2 loss to Ormond against NSB/Edgewater at 6 and Holly Hill takes on Daytona Beach at 8. The losers are eliminated.

Despite the lopsided score, Ormond showed it was fundamentally sound in every aspect of the game. The Beach boys rapped 15 hits, played stellar defense, ran the bases well (seven stolen bases), bunted well and received excellent pitching.

"We have three number one pitchers," manager Bill Rocca said about the trio of Lee, Billy Glenn and Thomas. "We work a lot on fundamentals and conditioning. We executed well tonight."

Thomas, a crafty righthander, had an easy time. Of his 16 strikeouts, nine were called. Only four Daytona batters put the ball in play. Troy Only had two of the three hits. Daytona's second-inning run was unearned.

Ormond Beach didn't have much trouble with loser James Randall either. The game left-hander pitched all seven innings despite throwing a phenomenal 185 pitches. He struck out 12 but walked eight.

As it did Monday, Ormond jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first. Hearne reached on an error, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored one out later on Lee's first of three singles. One out later, Thomas struck out but reached on a wild pitch. The throw to first sailed into right field, allowing Lee to score. Perry Lyle then reached on an error by the shortstop, which scored Thomas. Lyle came around, too, on successive wild pitches.

Blake Byers, Glenn, Lyle and Chris Hansen each accounted for one RBI to give Ormond eight players with ribbies.

Defensively, catcher Hearne threw one two base stealers and backup Chris Hartsfield tossed out one. One other Daytona runner was picked off second and nabbed in a rundown.

Port Orange, meanwhile, didn't have any trouble running down NSB/Edgewater. The Orangemen broke loose for four runs in the second, six more in the third and tacked on five more in the last two innings.

Big Billy Glenn takes a healthy cut. The 6-3, 220-pound Ormond Beach 14-year-old singled home a fifth-inning run in a 16-1 victory over Daytona Beach Tuesday at Chase Park.

Harness Great Haughton Dies

Racing

VALHALLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Billy Haughton, one of the greatest harness racing drivers, trainers and members of the sport's Hall of Fame, died Tuesday of head injuries suffered in an accident at Yonkers Raceway on July 5. He was 62.

Westchester County Medical Center spokesman Jim Patrick said Haughton died at the Valhalla hospital at 8:30 a.m.

Haughton, who trained at Orlando's Ben White Raceway for the past 14 years, was thrown onto his head when his horse, Sonny Key, collided with a downed horse during a July 5 race. At one point, Haughton stopped breathing, was revived, but later lapsed into a coma.

A director of the U.S. Trotting Association, Haughton rose to prominence as one of the leading driver-trainers in the 1950s and 1960s.

"There was no one more widely respected as a professional horseman," said USTA spokesman John Pawlak, "and Mr. Haughton represented all the best there was about the profession of driving harness horses. 'Haughton meant every bit as much to harness racing as Arnold Palmer means to golf or Babe Ruth meant to baseball,'" said driver-trainer Del Miller, founder of The Meadows.

"He was the most complete horseman that the sport had," said Miller, also a Hall of Fame driver-trainer. "The game will miss him tremendously. He was a wonderful person. We played and worked hard together. It's a sad day for harness racing."

Americans Tumble Into Losers' Bracket

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

LEESBURG — For the first time in two tournaments, the Sanford American League All-Stars will see what life's like in the losers' bracket.

Ormond Beach ran up an 8-0 lead after two innings and never looked back Tuesday night en route to a 12-3 victory over the Americans in the Florida Little Major League District 4 Tournament at the Leesburg Complex.

It was the first loss in tournament play for Sanford after five consecutive victories. The Americans return to action tonight at 7 in the losers' bracket final against Ocala Highlands, Highlands, which fell to Sanford in Monday's opening round, stayed alive Tuesday night with a 2-1 victory that eliminated host Leesburg American.

Britt Henderson is scheduled to start on the mound for the Americans if the ankle he injured in a collision in the outfield Tuesday night is all right. If not, Sanford manager Otis Raines said Willie Williams or Narvell Fuller could pitch.

The winner of tonight's game will advance to the finals against unbeaten Ormond Beach Thursday night at 7. Whoever wins tonight must also beat Ormond twice. A second game, if necessary, would be played Friday night at 7.

Raines said he had a feeling things might not go Sanford's way Tuesday night.

"The kids just didn't play tonight," Raines said. "I could see it in the van on the way over here. The kids went out on the field carrying too much pressure with them."

Mike Maples, who won two games in sub-district play, was on the mound for Sanford Tuesday night but he struggled to find the strike zone in the early going. Maples walked Kevin Reynolds to start the game. Pookie Glenn then looped a single to right and Bryan Smith drew a walk to load the bases.

Twister Glenn then hit a hard shot to shortstop Anthony "Redman" Roberts but his throw to the plate was wild and Reynolds scored the first run. David Miller then lined a single up the middle to drive in Pookie Glenn and Twister Glenn later scored on a passed ball to make it 3-0.

Ormond Beach pitcher Reynolds struck out the side in order in the bottom of the first and Ormond then scored five times in the top of the second for an early 8-0 lead.

Matt Hentzel and Reynolds drew consecutive walks to start off the inning but Hentzel was out at third on Pookie Glenn's grounder. Smith then singled to left to load the bases. Twister Glenn then stepped up and, with a 1-0 count, got a fastball down the middle and drilled it over the fence and into a tree in left center for a grand slam that gave Ormond a 7-0 lead. Miller followed with a walk, went to second on a passed ball, took third on Tyler Augat's groundout and scored the fifth run of the inning on Danny Braunstein's single to right.

"The kids really got down after that second inning," Raines said. "We had time to come back, but they didn't have the right attitude for it."

Reynolds, a right hander who throws hard and also mixes in a good curve ball, had the Americans blanked on no hits through the first three innings. Roberts then drilled a curve ball into left field to lead off the bottom of the fourth to break up the no-hitter. Reynolds took second on a wild

Roughing It With Nicklaus: 'You Can Actually Find Ball'

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus's video collection is incomplete.

Asked if he ever watched a tape of his one-stroke loss to Tom Watson the last time the British Open was played on the Ailsa Course, Nicklaus joked: "I burned mine."

Nicklaus remembers little of the great 1977 tournament when he and Watson started the final day even, and Watson rallied from three strokes down to go ahead at the 17th and win with a 65.

"I remember the 18th hole partially, and a couple of shots on the golf course," Nicklaus said. "But otherwise I remember very little about it."

Almost every player thus far has complained of narrow fairways and high rough.

"There are places in the rough where you can actually find your ball," Nicklaus said. "Not many, but there are a few."

He had another joke about the annual Open complaint that the rough gets longer every year.

"The rough is not as tough as it was in Muirfield (in 1968)," he said. "At Muirfield there wasn't even any semi-rough, there was the fairway and then you were knee deep right off the fairway."

"That was 20 years ago, and the rough's getting deeper every year, remember? We'll get back in the next 10 years and the rough would have been shoulder high."

Marshall To Lose Cage Players

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (UPI) — At least one and possibly two other Marshall University basketball players will not be playing this fall, a school official says.

Guard Andre Cunningham will not be eligible to play for the Thundering Herd because of his scores on college entrance exams. The Matewan High star will reportedly attend Marshall this year as a freshman but not on athletic scholarship.

Meanwhile, Marshall seniors Fred Callaway and Norman Ray are not attending the second session of summer school at Marshall and apparently will not return to the Herd's roster this fall.

Callaway, a forward from Orlando, who played at Florida College in Tampa, played briefly in 23 games last season.

Jury All-White For Rape Case

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — An all-white jury of seven men and seven women has been selected for the sexual assault trial of three black former University of Minnesota basketball players.

The jury was chosen Tuesday night and Dane County Circuit Judge George Northrup said opening statements will be given today.

Mitchell Lee, 21, Kevin Smith, 21, and George Williams Jr., 20, are charged with a total of 12 counts of first-degree sexual assault. A white woman, who is now 19, has charged the men repeatedly raped her for several hours Jan. 24 in the Copacouba Hotel in Madison after a Wisconsin-Minnesota basketball game.

Hinault Leads Tour De France

PAU, France (UPI) — Five-time champion Bernard Hinault of France grabbed the overall Tour de France lead Tuesday with a second-place finish in the mountainous 12th stage of the world's most prestigious cycle race.

Hinault glided to the finish line a second behind Spaniard Pedro Delgado, who won the 135-mile, 12th stage — the riders' first test through the rugged mountains of southwestern France.

Delgado covered the distance between Bayonne and Pau in the Pyrenees in 6 hours, 3 minutes and 18 seconds.

Bias Friends Receive Subpoenas

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (UPI) — University of Maryland basketball coach Charles "Lefty" Driesell and players Terry Long and David Gregg have been issued subpoenas by a grand jury investigating the cocaine-induced death of Len Bias, but may not be asked to testify.

Although the subpoenas were issued on Monday, the Prince George's County state's attorney, Arthur Marshall, said he had no immediate plans to summon the three to testify about the Maryland basketball star's June 19 death.

The county grand jury reconvenes Monday.

Surgery Okay For Snow Chief

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Preakness and Jersey Derby winner Snow Chief underwent successful arthroscopic surgery Tuesday for the removal of a bone chip from his right knee, the operating doctor said.

The one-hour operation was performed by Dr. Greg Ferraro at the Southern California Equine Foundation Hospital at Hollywood Park. The removal of the chip took 20 minutes and Ferraro described the procedure as routine.

Altamonte Has 'Moore' Than Enough To Eliminate Maitland

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Thanks to the superb pitching and hitting display by Altamonte pitcher Billy Moore, the Altamonte Americans swamped Maitland, 10-3, Tuesday for the District 14, Division 2 Major League Baseball All-Star Tournament title before 222 fans at Eastmonte Park.

"I was really happy with the way the kids played tonight," Altamonte manager Rudy Callahan said. "We didn't play for five days but the kids really hit the ball well."

With the victory, Altamonte will travel to Orange City tonight to take on Rolling Hills at 7. Rolling Hills defeated Ocoee, 9-1, Tuesday night for the Division 1 title. Since neither team has lost a game, the district 14 championship will be a best two out of three series.

Moore struck out 10 while only allowing two hits. He yielded 10 walks but always got himself out of a jam with strikeouts. As if the pitching performance was not enough, Moore continued his torrid hitting pace by driving in four runs on a double and a single.

"I was a little nervous out there tonight," Moore said. "At times I lost my control but I got it back when I needed to."

Callahan said that pitching ace Kevin "The Goose" Morro will pitch tonight against Rolling Hills.

Maitland coach Larry Jones said that his team just flat ran out of gas. "We have been playing a lot of games lately and I think that we were a little tired," Jones said. "I have to give Altamonte credit, though. They played a very sound game."

the loss for Maitland.

After the first two innings went scoreless, Altamonte got things going in the top of the third. Right fielder Scott Johnston led off with a walk. He went to second when Pablo Abreu laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt. Dana Dearth followed with a single to center that moved Johnston to third. After Dearth swiped second, Moore doubled off the left center field fence, plating Johnston and Dearth. Mike Monahan followed with a single to center that scored Moore. Monahan took second on the throw to the plate and third on a passed ball. Cornelius Cotton came in to pinch run for Monahan and scored on another passed ball for a 4-0 lead.

Maitland came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of third. Second baseman Richard Coughlin was awarded first base when Marty Horwitz was called for catcher's interference. Anderson singled to left. Coughlin took third and Anderson second when left fielder Brian Dangel bobbled the ball.

Chad Wegeman then walked to load the bags. Todd Davis also walked, forcing Coughlin in. Rhys Daunic coaxed another walk as well, forcing Anderson in and making the game 4-2 after three innings.

Altamonte led the game in the top of the fourth inning with six big runs. Johnston led off with a single to center. Abreu also singled up the middle, moving Johnston to second.

Economist: Damages Are Zero

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NFL's economist says the USFL has so many "exaggerations" in its antitrust case against the NFL that damages against the younger league should be reduced to zero.

Bruce Owen of Economists, Inc., a Washington-based consulting firm, testified Tuesday in the antitrust trial in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, now in its 10th week.

The USFL had presented estimates by its economist, Nina Cornell, earlier in the trial ranging from $301 million under one calculation to $565 million under another.

She estimated the damages over a 10-year period, 1983-1992, saying the USFL would need time to rebuild before it could compete again for television contracts and players.

If the jury decides the NFL has violated the antitrust laws and agrees to impose damages to repay the USFL for its losses, the law requires the amount to be tripled. Thus, the 27 NFL teams named in the suit could be required to pay up to $1.7 billion.

"There are a number of assumptions that Dr. Cornell makes that are at odds with the facts as I understand them to be and a number of errors in her approach," Owen said. In explaining his chart, "Summary of Principal Exaggerations in Cornell Damages."

Owen said Cornell's damages should be reduced:

— by $407 million because she did not account for higher player costs if the USFL was playing head-to-head against the NFL in the fall, as she assumed, rather than the spring.

— by $197 million to $201 million for overestimating attendance at USFL games over the projected 10-year period.

— by $158 million to $243 million if NFL games were being shown on two networks against USFL games, as opposed to the NFL on one network as she assumed.

— and by $245 million to $383 million because she assumes the damages would continue until 1992, rather than end with a court verdict in 1986.

"If you take Dr. Cornell's basic approach and adjust it the way I think you have to, the cost of playing in the fall would exceed the revenue received for playing in the fall," Owen said.

"I think you have to question whether prudent businessmen would continue playing in the fall. Therefore, I question whether you would have any damages after 1986."

Owen's proposed reductions would diminish the USFL's damages to less than zero if applied in various combinations.

USFL attorney Harvey Myerson framed many of his questions on cross-examination to imply the NFL created conditions that made effective competition in the fall impossible for the USFL.

"This USFL would not be able to continue in the fall," Owen said. "It would be better off in the spring based on Dr. Cornell's numbers and my adjustments."

The USFL has maintained the reason its organizers started playing in the spring was because the NFL had tied up the three major networks with contracts, making it impossible for a new league to get necessary exposure in the fall.

CASILLAS GOES WITH FALCONS

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — No. 2 NFL draft pick Tony Casillas, rather than jump to the USFL, pounced on a $2.35 million offer from the Atlanta Falcons.

The Lombardi Trophy-winning nose tackle from the University of Oklahoma signed a four-year, $2.35 million contract with the Falcons Tuesday, turning down a two-year $1.5 million offer from the Arizona Outlaws.

Casillas would not disclose the terms of the contract but United Press International has learned he received a $1.425 million signing bonus and escalating salaries of $175,000, $200,000, $250,000 and $300,000.

Casillas said the NFL contract came close to matching Arizona's offer.

STUMP TO STAY IN ST. LOUIS

PHOENIX (UPI) — Armed with their "war fund," the Arizona Outlaws continue in their battle for top talent, despite suffering two casualties within a 24-hour span.

"I've been talking to three or four players this afternoon," Bill Tatham Jr., the Outlaws' president and general manager, said Tuesday. "We'll go after some defensive players in the next couple of weeks and see what happens."

The Outlaws' luck hasn't been good recently. Late Monday night, running back Stump Mitchell chose to return to the NFL St. Louis Cardinals after nearly signing with Arizona. Tuesday, Oklahoma nose tackle Tony Casillas signed with the NFL Atlanta Falcons after going so far as to attend an Outlaws mini-camp.

NEALS LEAVES DOLPHINS QUICKLY

MIAMI (UPI) — Former University of Miami star Robert "Speedy" Neal made his move quickly.

After just one practice with the Miami Dolphins, who signed him as a free agent running back in the off-season, Neal, 24, decided to leave professional football. He did not appear for practice on Tuesday.

Miami Coach Don Shula said he was aware that Neal, 6 feet 2 inches and 254 pounds, a four-year letterman with the Hurricanes and a member of the 1983 national championship team, was considering retiring.

"The fact that he wasn't here today indicates he's made his decision," Shula said.

Korolyov Earns 3 Golds

MOSCOW (UPI) — Legendary Soviet gymnast Yuri Korolyov captured three gold medals and one silver Tuesday to lead a dominant showing by Eastern European nations in the six gymnastic events at the Goodwill Games.

Korolyov, who scored 9.9 out of a possible 10 in the floor exercise, pommel horse, rings and horizontal bar, missed an opportunity at another medal because of a scoring dispute by the judges.

Fan Ming of North Korea registered a 9.7 on his first attempt on the vault. His score caused an argument among the judges and pushed Korolyov out of the running for a medal. A second try brought Fan's average down to 9.65, forcing him into a tie for third with East Germany's Silvio Kroll. Each ended with a total of 19.275 points.

Soviet Valery Lukin won the vault with a total score of 19.425 points followed by Marian Stoican of Romania with 19.300.

In the gymnastics, East Germany took three bronze medals. Romania earned a bronze and a silver and North Korean took two silvers and a bronze. Hungarian gymnast Zsolt Borkai won the silver on the bar and China's Wang Chunsheng came up with the bronze.

Games

The best performance by a gymnast from the United States was a fifth-place tie by Philip Cahoy on the parallel bars.

In volleyball, the Americans played an aggressive game against Japan, winning three-games-to-none. The Soviets beat Poland 3-0.

The Soviet men's handball team beat the United States 23-19 while the Soviet women trounced Japan 40-18. Hungary defeated the American women 21-12, leaving the U.S. team 0-3.

In boxing semifinals for fighters less than 110 pounds, the Soviets won all three of their fights.

Gooden Gets Hurt On Hanging Curve

HOUSTON (UPI) — The 1986 All-Star game was decided by "The Pitch."
An O-2 pitch. A hanging O-2 pitch. A pitch just up enough in the strike zone for Lou Whitaker to smack into the right-field seats for a two-run homer.

"That's been the problem all year," said Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, who threw the curve ball that went for a long homer. "One mistake pitch and I get hurt."
It gave the American League a 2-0 lead in the second inning. And when Frank White hit a similar pitch for a solo homer in the seventh it gave the American League enough to hold off the National League for a 3-2 victory.

"I hope I can work on eliminating that in the second half of the season," said Gooden, only the second losing NL pitcher in the past 15 All-Star Games. "My last few games I've just been making a couple minor mistakes mechanically. I felt great mechanically. One pitch cost me two runs and that's been my problem."

"He threw Whitaker a curve ball, a fastball and then we decided to come back with another curve ball, hoping to get the ball down a little bit," said the man who called the pitch. New York Mets catcher Gary Carter.

"But it was up. And he hit it. One mistake — but good hitters are supposed to be able to hit mistakes."

"I saw it," Whitaker said, "and I swing at what I think I can hit. I learned from one of the best hitting coaches in the business — Gates Brown (fired two years ago as Detroit's hitting coach).

"But you have to give a lot of credit to Dave Winfield. If he doesn't get his base hit, my home run doesn't come — because there were two out."

Frank White of Kansas City got into the O-2 act, too, hitting one of Houston pitcher Mike Scott's deliveries over the left-field wall to make it 3-0 in the seventh.

"I think he was trying to get the ball inside a little bit more," White said of the fastball. "He was trying to strike me out. But I think he got it a bit more over the plate than he would have liked."

White also made the critical play to end the game. He fielded Chris Brown's checked-swing grounder, stepped on second and threw over 6-foot-5 Dave Parker to complete the game-ending double play.

"If he swings all the way through the ball it probably would have been a base hit," White said. "But I'll tell you, the most difficult part of the play was trying to throw over Dave Parker."

the All-Star game — briefly.

Barry Bremen was escorted from the AstroDome by National League official Blake Cullen after reaching the outfield while the team was taking batting practice.

NL coach Tom Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers during the regular season, went out shouting that the man was supposed to get off the field.

He was wearing a New York Mets uniform with the number 13 on the back.

What bothered some baseball officials was how the man could get inside the AstroDome two hours before Vice President George Bush was scheduled to appear.

THANK DOME FOR THE COVER
One good thing about the AstroDome — it's covered.

"Boy, look at the lightning," former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Bob Gibson said as he boarded an elevator to check out of his hotel.

"It's really raining hard," Gibson said, with a nod toward the outdoors, where the dark sky was sending pelting rain down on Houston. "Looks like the game is going to be rained out."
He smiled when he said it.

Adrenalin Buildup Aids MVP Clemens

Baseball

HOUSTON (UPI) — Roger Clemens felt the adrenalin building hours before he took the mound to face the National League in the 57th All-Star Game.

He was almost as excited a few hours later, after he walked off with Most Valuable Player honors in the American League's 3-2 victory over the NL.

"I felt sluggish all day yesterday," the Boston Red Sox right-hander said Tuesday night after he pitched a perfect three innings in his first professional appearance near his hometown.

"Today, coming out to the Dome, got all the adrenalin flowing. With all the home folks here, I was really jumping. The best part was when I walked in the dugout and I saw all of those great players in there with me. I thought we had made a major trade."

Many of Clemens' family and friends from his hometown in nearby Katy, Texas, were in the stands, and they saw the reason why he has posted a 15-2 record at the halfway point of the season.

Although he had pitched nine innings as recently as Saturday, Clemens was overpowering in his stint.

By retiring all nine batters he faced, he set the tone for the AL victory. It was enough to make him the first Boston player since Carl Yastrzemski 16 years ago to achieve that honor.

"I really felt good at the start of the game because I went out to just have fun," Clemens said. "I felt really good warming up, and I knew I would have good stuff. I just didn't want to leave it in the bullpen."

"It really worked out well with Lance (catcher Parrish of Detroit). He was working my fastball in and out real well."

Clemens, who was only a so-so pitcher during his high school days at nearby Spring Woods High School, said his success this year has been mind-boggling at times.

"It has been a fantasy camp this year," he said. "Coming home and pitching like this in the All-Star Game with my family here is like a dream come true. I'm just looking forward to the rest of the season with the Red Sox."

Gedman's problems, "and I'm glad I haven't. I feel for him — but I'm glad I don't have to do it."

Gary Carter of the New York Mets had no such experience but he also sympathized.

"You're darn right I have a lot of sympathy for him," said Carter, who called the hanging O-2 curveball Whitaker hit for a two-run home run following Dave Winfield's two-out double in the second.

"That's one of the toughest things for a catcher to do, catch a knuckleball pitcher, when you've never done it before," Carter said. "He was battling."

"I was talking to (former catcher) Mike Roarke and (Los Angeles manager Tom) Lasorda in the dugout," Carter said. "They were saying how difficult it is. You have to snatch at it. And that just comes from learning and experience."

"I don't know how to and I hope I don't have to," he said.

Dave Righetti got the final out of the eighth — but only after Sax stole second. Righetti forced Glenn Davis to foul to third. The break was the first big one the AL has caught in an All-Star Game in some time.

The second AL break came when White turned Brown's half-hearted swing into a double play.

Righetti gave up one-out singles to Jody Davis and Dave Parker to put runners at first and third. Manager Dick Howser went for Don Aase at that point and the California reliever threw a just good enough slider after a fastball went outside for a ball.

"If he swings all the way through the ball," White said, "it probably would have been a base hit. Really, the most difficult part of the play was trying to throw over Dave Parker."

Earlier, it looked like the only breaks the AL would need to make Whitey Herzog the only manager to lose to the AL in 15 years (1983 and 1986) were the breaking pitches thrown by power hurlers Clemens and Higuera.

Fernando Valenzuela followed losing pitcher Gooden with three innings of one-hit ball. He fanned five straight to become only the second All-Star pitcher to accomplish that feat. Carl Hubbell did it in 1934.

pitch and Maples then singled up the middle. Roberts scored on the play but, when the throw went to the plate, Maples tried to take third and was thrown out.

After the second inning, Maples settled down and pitched no-hit ball until the top of the sixth when Ormond Beach tacked on four more runs to take a 12-1 lead.

Twister Glenn and Miller hit consecutive singles and, with two outs, both scored on Braunstein's single to center. Steve Bettner, the eighth hitter in the order, then belted Maples' first pitch over the fence in left center for a two-run homer. Bettner's blast sent most of the Sanford fans home.

The Americans scored twice in the bottom of the sixth but couldn't get a big last-inning rally going. With one out, Roberts drew a walk, stole both second and third, and Maples then ripped a shot over the tree in left center to make the score 12-3. It was Maples' fifth homer in all-star tournament play. Reynolds then came back to strike out the next two hitters to end the game.

For the game, Reynolds allowed just three hits, struck out 12 and walked just two. Maples, on the other hand, gave up 10 hits, struck out four and walked nine.

Starter Brant Biddix hurried the first four innings to pick up the win. Chad Wood was the loser. Swanson, Eichler and Paul Basile each tossed an inning for the winners.

Eichler had a pair of two-run singles to lead Port Orange.

Biddix rapped a double and triple to chase home two. Swanson used a single and groundout to account for three more. David Rouse singled in two more runs.

Bob Roberts, Rouse and Biddix each collected two hits.

Tracy Case doubled in a run for the NSB while David Merrick had two hits and a ribble. David Robinson and Joey Golinski had one RBI each.

Shriver Squashes Byrne

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Pam Shriver welcomes the rare chance to headline.

Shriver, the world's sixth-ranked player and the top seed in the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Newport, is the only of the top 15 players on the women's tour entered in the tournament.

She breezed into the second round with a 6-2, 6-2 opening-round victory Tuesday over unseeded Jenny Byrne of Australia.

"In this tournament I've said to myself, 'Pam, if you play somewhat up to par, you should do well,'" said Shriver. "This happens very seldom where I'm the only one in the top 15 entered. Sort of a big fish in a little pond."

No. 2 seed Robin White of Fort Worth, Texas, defeated Joanne Russell of Kingsmill, Va., 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

In a pair of upsets, Adriana Villagran of Argentina ousted third-seeded Dianne Balestrat of Australia, 6-4, 6-4, and Kristin Kinney of New Canaan, Conn., defeated No. 6 seed Grace Kim of Franklin Lakes, N.J., 6-3, 6-1.

Shriver, of Baltimore, will face Tina Mochizuki today in her bid to improve on her runner-up effort of last year when she lost to Chris Evert Lloyd in this lone American grass court stop on the women's tour.

In other matches that concluded first-round play, Anne White (4), Charlestown, W.Va., def. Monique Javer, Hillsboro, Calif., 6-1, 6-3; Wendy White (7), Atlanta, def. ## Savage Play

Seminole Savage catcher Robin Whitehead, left, has a firm grip on the ball after tagging Renegade Julie Barton. Whitehead's block and tag at the plate completed a crucial triple play early in the game Sunday. The Savages went on to trim the Renegades, 10-8, in 11 innings. They added two more wins to take the Metro Softball Tournament championship at Lake Fairview in Orlando.

Ways To Combat 'Tennis Burnout'

Even the most avid tennis player among us sometimes gets tired of playing tennis. Many, many players have been hitting the tennis ball for 10, 20 or maybe even 30 years.

Now, it seems that after all those years on the court sometimes it's just no fun — the thrill is gone. Psychologically speaking, you have "tennis burnout."

Its symptoms are many. I feel like it's a giant effort to play a match or have a practice session. I get distracted easily and find it difficult to concentrate. I don't feel like moving the old feet to get to a wide ball and the errors just flow off the racket.

This leads to frustration and even less fun with tennis than before. This was never a problem for the first 10 or 15 years that I played the game. Indeed, every match or every practice was a delightful experience and I couldn't wait for the next one.

Those were the days of improving and learning and competition. After more than 20 years of playing and teaching and watching and just being totally involved with tennis, I find that sometimes it's just not as much fun or as important as it was.

When I feel this way, it might last for a few days or a few weeks but it is common to all players who have been playing for many years. This "tennis burn out" is real and can visit you at any time. I must say that it never stays with me very long, though, because I have several methods of dealing with it and putting it down.

In fact, when I do go back to playing I feel more eager than ever and usually play better also. Here are a few things that have worked for me in dealing with the tennis blahs — some of these may help you.

● Don't stop exercising just because you have stopped playing tennis. This is the worst thing you can do. If you don't want to play tennis for awhile try another activity. Something that is fun and will keep you in good shape until you start playing tennis again. I like to jog, play basketball, ride the bike or swim. Some like nautilus, walking or aerobics. Any of these are good companion exercises for tennis. (I would not recommend handball or racketball because those games can really mess up your tennis stroke.)

● If you are burned out with tennis it may be because you lack incentive to play better. You may be playing with the same one or two players every time you play. Play some new people, better still play a tournament or two. Nothing whets the appetite for wanting to play more than playing a few tournaments.

● If you mostly play doubles, start playing some singles a couple of times a week. The reverse is also often stimulating to a stale tennis life.

● Buy a new racket. Even if you don't need it, I have found that this works wonders and really puts life into a tired game. It makes you concentrate more and feel that you are playing better than ever before.

● Watch a good match on TV or some of the local tournaments. We all get pumped up watching the really good players play. We can't wait to get on the court after watching Wimbledon or the U.S. Open.

Most of all remember that "burn out" is normal for veteran tennis players. Don't worry it usually doesn't last long and you will come back stronger and having more fun than ever.

Cook Of The Week

Her Green Thumb Spills Over To Country Culinary Classics

By Dorothy Greene
Herald Correspondent

Apples, peaches, pears, plums..... It may sound like the beginning of a children's rhyme, but to Levelle Thompson, our Cook of the Week, it's just part of her own backyard paradise. In addition to that, Levelle and Thomas Edison Thompson have their own lovely grape arbors and a productive vegetable garden which keeps them both active during those wonderful golden years of retirement.

Mrs. Thompson's farming background is surely the source of her "green thumb" abilities, although, she says, "I didn't like the farm, but we picked cotton and did all the things one usually does on a farm." Along with her two sisters, Margaret Cumbaa and Christine Pate, Mrs. Thompson's recollection of their birthplace, Earlytown, Ala., is "just a place, not a town. It was named after my mother's family, the Earlys. Mother was a good cook and I often make her Old Timey Butter Rolls."

A typical high school romance brought the Thompsons together and they have recently celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary. She remembers, "In 1932 the schools were closed because of the Depression. They didn't have money in Alabama to pay the teachers at the time. That's when my husband first came to Florida to work and when he returned five years later to finish school, that's when we met. Actually, we were married about a month before graduation, on April 15, 1938."

Mrs. Thompson has been a beautician along the way, has worked in a dress shop, and has worked with her sister and brother-in-law at Seminole Garden Center keeping the books and selling plants. The Thompsons are a close-knit family and can usually be found living within a stone's throw from each other. "We had three houses in a row in Geneva, Ala.," says Mrs. Thompson. "Our father and mother lived in one, Edison and I lived in another, and Chris and her husband in the other. Then when we came to Florida, we had four houses built in a row in Orlando. When we sold those houses, we bought land on the other side of Lake Jesup and lived in four houses there until we moved to within the Sanford city limits in 1980."

Mrs. Thompson says she enjoys visits with her sisters and their families and with her son, Cyrus, and her hands-on grandson Timmy. A student at Seminole High School, Timmy was an alto sax player in the school band and a member of the chorus. The Thompsons also have a son, David, who lives at Key Pines.

The Thompsons are very much involved with the Sanora Homeowners Association and lend their talents to keeping the grounds beautifully landscaped and inviting. As a member of the Board, and chairperson of the Facilities and Grounds Committee, Mrs. Thompson keeps a watchful eye on her neighbors' beautiful yards and is instrumental in bestowing the "Yard of the Month" award to the lucky Sanora homeowner.

Speaking about vacations, Mrs. Thompson says, "We've been all over the country from time to time, and when our son Cyrus lived in Houston for seven years we made several trips there." In their younger days, the Thompsons enjoyed playing softball and were members of men's and ladies teams. Since Thompson's retirement in 1982, both have time to catch up on things they like to do best, like fishing and shrimping at the coast.

"I used to sew a lot," says Mrs. Thompson, "but I don't anymore. And I can crochet just a little bit, just plain stuff. I don't read instructions, but I can look at something and copy it." Some of Mrs. Thompson's sewing expertise can be seen in the beautifully decorated photo albums she has designed for herself and for gift-giving. Each album is thoughtfully planned with its own fabric and lace motif and sometimes personalized for a special occasion.

To keep fit, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson enjoy taking long walks around their little community, sometimes covering seven to nine miles. "We haven't done it since the weather got so hot," says Mrs. Thompson. "But, as we talked the neighbors joined in as we got to their houses and they all walked along with us. Some of them are riding bicycles now. Cyrus and Edison bought me one for Christmas last year, and I fell off the cotton pickin' thing and hurt myself," she laughed, "and I haven't been back on it since, but I'm going to!"

As active members of the Church of Christ at Longwood, the Thompsons are presently engaged in one of their favorite pastimes, landscaping. Mrs. Thompson has joined in with the planting of shrubbery around the new addition to their church property, and is also involved in the interior decorating of the new building.

With most of her family so nearby, Mrs. Thompson says that getting together for visits and special occasions is not unusual, especially at holiday time, and, most recently, a fourth of July gathering at her nephew's home. When asked about her cooking skills, Mrs. Thompson explains, "Our mother never did make us cook much, but I watched, and I knew how to cook when I got married. I remembered most of the things that she cooked. It was good old country cooking, like blackeyed peas and hog jowls on New Year's day. I never forget to do that. It's a tradition." Mrs. Thompson says she likes good recipes, but simple ones. Most of her dishes have been handed down, but, she says, "sometimes I add to them myself."

With the bountiful supply of fruits and vegetables growing right in her own backyard, Mrs. Thompson can't help but be a super canner and preserver. In addition to the fruit trees previously mentioned, the Thompsons also boast a fig tree, two apple trees and two arbors with five varieties of grapes which produce a succulent jumbo fruit. Tomatoes and cucumber pickles are also part of Mrs. Thompson's pantry stock. "We never buy jellies or preserves," she says. "We can all our own pears, peaches, figs, grapes and all the fruit in our backyard. We even have a little kumquat tree out there." Besides the canning and preserving process, Mrs. Thompson also keeps a fresh supply of vegetables in her freezer for year round enjoyment. "I love canning and gardening," she says.

A treasured cookbook that Mrs. Thompson refers to at times was compiled by the Woman's Club of Geneva, Ala., and contains all the hometown recipes that she uses to this day, "and some of them are so GOOD," she says.

Listed below are Mrs. Thompson's selection of favorites:

Publix And Wendy's Sponsor Diet; Home Economist Cites Problems

Martin Katahn, a clinical psychologist from Vanderbilt University, has developed a weight loss diet that is gaining national attention.

Beginning July 24, Publix Super Markets and Wendy's will together donate a penny to local charities in the Central Florida area for every pound that is lost during Publix's Rotation Diet promotion, according to Peggy Haysa, Benito Public Relations, Tampa.

Dieters who register at Publix stores in Central Florida will weigh in each week during the 9-week diet. A running tally will be kept by each store.

The Rotation Diet alternates very low, low, and medium calorie intake over a three week period, combined with unlimited quantities of certain vegetables and up to three servings daily of so-called "safe" vegetables and fruits.

The Rotation Diet for women recommends approximately 600 calories for three days and 900 calories for four days, followed by a week of 1200 calories. Week three is a repetition of 600 calories for three days and 900 for four days. In week four, participants add calories in 300 calorie blocks until their weight stabilizes. In order to lose more weight, this rotation is repeated.

Because intakes of calcium, iron and some vitamins and minerals are low on the 600/900 rotation, nutritional supplements are recommended for persons who use the diet over a long period of time.

Meanwhile, the diet can lead to several problems, according to Barbara Hughes, Seminole County Extension Home Economist, and Dr. Linda Benjamin, Extension Food and Nutrition Specialist for the University of Florida, Gainesville. Ms. Hughes cites the following:

The calorie intake of less than 1,000 calories per day can be potentially dangerous, therefore, this type of diet should only be followed under strict medical supervision, she notes.

The effects of long-term use of the Rotation Diet on body composition have not been assessed. Generally, very low calorie diets result in loss of lean body mass (muscle) as well as loss of body fat. This is undesirable since the aim of a weight-loss program is loss of body fat, not muscle tissue, Ms. Hughes said.

In order to maintain desirable body weight once weight loss has occurred, permanent changes in food intake and exercise patterns are necessary. Thus, behavior modification is an important part of any weight loss program. The extensive education and skill building required for successful behavior modification may not be attainable in this program, Ms. Hughes adds.

An average weight loss of 2 1/2 pound per day (more than 4 pounds per week) is promised. However, it is recommended by nutritionists that for permanent loss of body fat, weight loss should not exceed 1 to 2 pounds per week, Ms. Hughes said.

The diet does have some positive aspects, such as use of commonly available foods, encouragement of exercise and psychological support, but for the above mentioned reasons it is not recommended, Ms. Hughes said.

Microwave Magic

Cool Salads For Hot Summer Days

When the temperature is soaring toward the 100° mark it makes good sense to eat foods that are cool, light and will provide nutritional value. A variety of salads can do just that. A salad may be the main dish or the dessert. If the salad recipe has a protein food such as chicken or shrimp it makes a salad filling enough to be a main dish.

CHICKEN SALAD

2 whole chicken breasts, split
4 cups hot water
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup uncooked ring macaroni
2 cups mandarin oranges
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup halved seedless grapes
1 cup mayonaise
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1 Tbls. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. white pepper
1 cup sliced cashews
Place chicken breasts in 10 x 6 baking dish; cover with wax paper. Microwave on 100% power 10-12 minutes or until chicken is done. Cool. Microwave on 100% power water and salt in a 2 quart bowl 6-7 minutes or until steaming hot, add macaroni. Microwave on 100% power 8-8 minutes or until just about tender, stirring once or twice. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain and rinse in cold water. Remove skin and bones from chicken; cut into bite size pieces. Combine with remaining ingredients, except cashews, in 2 quart serving bowl, mix lightly. Cover and refrigerate overnight. This allows the macaroni to absorb the flavors. Before serving, stir half the cashews into the salad. Sprinkle the remaining on top.

This main dish salad combines shrimp, rice and vegetables.

SUPER SHRIMP SALAD

1 cup uncooked white rice
2 cups water
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. oil
1 package (12 oz.) frozen peeled, deveined, uncooked shrimp
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup diced cucumber
1/4 cup thinly sliced radishes
2 Tbls. thinly sliced green onion
3/4 cup olive or cooking oil
3/4 cup whipping cream

3 Tbls. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. dill weed
1/4 tsp. dry mustard
1/4 tsp. pepper
Combine rice, water, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp oil in a 2 quart casserole. Cover.
Microwave on 100% power 8-18 minutes or until mixture boils. Then, microwave on 50% power 9-10 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Cool. Place shrimp in 1 quart casserole. Cover. Microwave on 100% power 6-7 minutes or until shrimp are opaque. Rinse in cold water; drain. Cut into bite size pieces. Add shrimp, celery, cucumber, radishes, and onion to rice. Set aside.
Combine remaining ingredients in blender or jar. Blend or shake until smooth. Pour over salad ingredients; toss lightly to mix. Cover. Refrigerate at least 4 hours to allow flavors to blend.

Certain local restaurants have become famous for their presentation of this salad. Make this favorite at home!

SPINACH SALAD

1 small onion, quartered
1/4 cup cooking oil
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup catsup
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. worcestershire sauce
8 slices bacon

1 lb. fresh spinach, washed and trimmed
1 cup fresh bean sprouts, rinsed
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
Combine onion, oil, sugar, vinegar, catsup, salt and worcestershire sauce in a blender or food processor. Process about 2 minutes or until smooth.
Arrange bacon on meat rack and cover with paper towel. Microwave on 100% power 7-8 minutes or until bacon is crisp. When cool, crumble. Tear spinach into bite-size pieces. Layer spinach, bacon pieces, bean sprouts and mushrooms in serving bowl. Add desired amount of dressing and toss lightly. Refrigerate remaining dressing.

Fresh citrus juices make a good marinade for your favorite combination of fresh fruit. A perfect summer dessert.

LAYERED FRESH FRUIT BOWL

2/3 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
2 Tbls. fresh lemon juice
2 Tbls. fresh lime juice
2 Tbls. fresh orange juice
12 cups cut fresh fruit.
Combine sugar, water and juices in 2 cup glass measure. Microwave on 100% power 2 1/2-3 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring once. Set aside to cool. Layer fruit in glass serving bowl. Pour cooled syrup over fruit. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours to blend flavors.

(Do not overbake) The toothpick method of testing CANNOT be used. Use the touch method. Cut into squares and cool. Delicious with vanilla ice cream.

Vivisection May Be Useful For People But It Is Mainly Barbaric To Animals

DEAR ABBY: I ran across something you wrote some time ago, and I must say God bless you for your stand on vivisection. It took great courage to speak out against inflicting endless torture experimenting on living creatures.

Continued success in your work and in your life. My family and I thank you. Please run the item in the Herald.

ALICE PIEL, NEW YORK

DEAR ALICE: I think it's worth repeating:
DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about vivisection, which is defined as "the cutting of or operation on a living animal, usually for physiological or pathological investigation; animal experimentation.

Dear Abby

especially if considered to cause distress to the animal?
FOR ANIMAL RIGHTS IN NEW YORK

DEAR FOR: The late George Bernard Shaw expressed my feelings perfectly when he said: "You do not settle whether an experiment is justified or not by merely showing that it is of some use. The distinction is not between useful and useless experiments, but between barbarous and civilized behavior. Vivisection is a social evil because if it advances human knowledge, it does so at the expense of human character."

DEAR ABBY: Re the meaning of "No calling hours" when someone dies:

work for a newspaper and write the obituaries, and when I get a call from a funeral home concerning a funeral, everything has already been decided by the family. If they say "No calling hours," they mean they do not want to have anyone visiting the funeral home.

Sometimes, it is changed to "No visitation will be observed," but it means the same thing — the family does not wish to have people come to the funeral home.

This might have been the deceased person's wishes. I know that I do not want to be viewed when I die. And I hope my family will carry out my last wishes.

NO VIEWING, THANK YOU

DEAR NO VIEWING: And if you don't, there's no forgiving, so better tell them while you're living.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Tune into "Hour Magazine" tomorrow and watch me co-host the show with Gary Collins. I make a chocolate mousse, work out and talk a lot. See you Thursday.

Lightly toasted pine nuts add delightful crunch to rice or barley pilaf.

Rule of thumb: The darker the lettuce, the more nutritious. Boston lettuce has twice as much vitamin C and 3 times as much vitamin A, by weight, as iceberg lettuce. Romaine has 8 times the C and 8 times the A that iceberg has.

Try something EXOTIC in your ice cream maker — mango ice cream. It takes the pulsed pulp of 2 mangoes, 1/2 cup honey, 1 cup each plain yogurt and heavy cream, seasoned with 2 Tbs. lime juice and 2 Tbs. rum.

Need an hors d'oeuvre in a hurry? Mash together a can of sardines and a 3 ounce package of cream cheese, a few drops of lemon juice and chopped parsley. Serve with crackers and smile at the compliments.

History lesson: In the 1880s, Napoleon ran a contest to find a substitute for butter. That's when margarine was invented.

4-H Teens Learn Democracy From Legislative Session

TALLAHASSEE — House Bill E-04 requiring Spanish language education for all Florida school children was debated on the floor of the Florida House of Representatives, even though the legislative session is over. That's because 180 teen legislators and lobbyists gathered for the 13th annual "4-H Legislature," a program coordinated by the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS). They'll consider bills that outlaw the death penalty, outlaw clipping dogs' ears and two-for-one happy hour drinks, as well as considering bills that require seat belts in school buses and "impact fees" for first-year Florida residents. Seminole County will have five 4-H'ers attending this 4-H Legislative session. George Nunnery, Chuluota, will serve as a Legislator on the Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee. Francine Huggins, Altamonte Springs, will act as a lobbyist for the Florida Parents for Education.

Stasi Bojanowski, Sanford, will lobby for the Citizen's Committee for Industrial Rights. Allison Cammack, Oviedo, will lobby for the Churches of Florida United. Jaime Bojanowski, Sanford, will be a reporter for the "Daily 4-H Newspaper," the Capitol Letter. 4-H Legislature is designed to help teenage 4-H'ers learn about State government by participating actively in a model legislative session. It also offers 4-H'ers the opportunity to gain communication skills as well as to become aware of social issues and their potential solutions.

Stuffed French Bread Comes Up A Savory Cajun Po' Boy

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Cajun and Creole dishes are leading the lists of foods to try by those hungry for new taste sensations. Often these require a certain amount of cooking expertise to master in the home kitchen.

However, since the 19th century, New Orleans has been known for an easy-to-make sandwich called the po' boy. This version of the submarine, hero or grinder, as it is called in other cities, is simple, honest fare.

BOURBON STREET PO' BOY

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 tablespoons flour
1 large onion, sliced (1 1/2 cups)
1 small green pepper, sliced (1 cup)
2 cups beef broth
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled
1 pound cooked, thinly sliced beef
4 hero rolls

In medium saucepan, melt butter, stir in flour. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until flour browns, about 4 minutes. Add onion and green pepper. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Gradually stir in broth. Add Worcestershire, pepper sauce and thyme; stir constantly until mixture boils and thickens. Cut a thin slice from the top of each roll. Scoop out soft insides. Arrange meat on each roll. Spoon gravy over meat. Replace tops on rolls. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

DRESSED SEAFOOD PO' BOY

1 egg, lightly beaten
1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup cornmeal
1/2 cup flour

2 large tomatoes, cut in strips

In small bowl, combine egg and milk. In shallow dish or pie plate, combine cornmeal and flour. Dip shrimp in egg mixture, then in flour mixture. Deep fry in hot oil (350 to 375 degrees) until golden. Drain on paper towels.

In a small bowl, combine mayonnaise, garlic and pepper sauce. Slice 1 inch off end of hero roll. Scoop out soft insides.

Po' Boy a New Orleans favorite.

6 thin slices cooked ham (4"x7")
4 ounces softened cream cheese
6 tablespoons chopped olives (black or green)

Let frozen dough thaw until pliable. (To thaw dough in microwave, wrap in plastic wrap and cook on lowest setting for 6 minutes, rotating occasionally.) On a lightly floured board, roll thawed dough out to a 14 inch square. Cut in half. Cover each half with 3 slices of meat. Spread each half with 2 ounces softened cream cheese and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons chopped olives. Beginning with 1/4 inch sides, roll each half tightly in jelly-roll fashion. Pinch long edge to seal! Cut rolls into 1/2-inch slices. Place slices on greased baking sheets. Let rise for 30 minutes. Bake in 350° oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan immediately. Yield: 48 appetizers.

PARMESAN CHEESE STRAWS

1 (one-pound) loaf frozen dough
4 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese

Let frozen dough thaw until pliable. Stretch and roll thawed loaf out to approximately 5"x12". Brush dough with half of melted butter and sprinkle with half of parmesan cheese. Turn dough over and repeat with remainder of butter and parmesan cheese. Cut dough into thin strips, 1/4" wide by 5" long. Twist each strip. Place twists on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake immediately in a 400° oven for 8 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or cooled with spaghetti sauce for dipping. Yield: 48

TINY HAMBURGER BUNS

1 (one-pound) loaf frozen dough
1 egg, well beaten

Let frozen dough thaw until pliable. (To thaw in microwave, wrap loaf in plastic wrap. Cook on lowest setting for 6 minutes, rotating occasionally.) Cut thawed loaf into quarters. Cut each quarter into 10 pieces. Using a little flour on hands, shape each dough piece into a ball. Place balls on greased baking sheets 1 1/2 inches apart. Brush with egg, sprinkle with sesame seeds, poppy seeds, or dried onion if desired. Let rise until doubled in size. Bake at 375° for 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan immediately to cool on rack or absorbent paper. When cooled, split with a serrated knife. (Buns can be made 1-2 days in advance. If making earlier than that, freeze until needed.) Serve with hot Tiny Hamburger Patties and all the trimmings: pickle chips, cherry tomato slices, catsup, mustard, etc. Yield: 40 Tiny Buns

TINY HAMBURGER PATTIES

1 pound very lean ground beef
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Mix ingredients together and shape into 40 tiny flat hamburger patties. Place on baking sheets. Broil about 2 inches from heat for a few minutes on each side until lightly browned. Serve with Tiny Hamburger Buns. Yield: 40

STROMBOLI

1 (one-pound) loaf frozen dough
12 ounces thinly sliced pepperoni or dry salami
12 ounces thinly sliced provolone or mozzarella cheese
6 ounces thinly sliced cooked ham
2 tablespoons parmesan cheese
1 egg, well beaten

Let frozen dough thaw until pliable. (To thaw in the microwave, wrap in plastic wrap. Cook on lowest setting for 6 minutes, rotating occasionally.) Divide loaf in half. On a lightly floured board, roll each dough piece out to a 9-inch square. Cover dough with layers of pepperoni or salami, cheese, and ham. Roll each piece up tightly jelly-roll style. Using a little flour on fingers, pinch ends and long edge of dough roll tightly to seal filling in. Place rolls on a lightly greased baking sheet. Brush lightly with egg and sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake immediately in a 350° oven for 25-30 minutes or until well browned. Remove from pan immediately to cool slightly. Slice thinly for appetizers. (If making in advance, wrap in foil for reheating in oven prior to slicing. Store refrigerated or frozen.) Yield: Approximately 30 slices.

Diabetes Has Varied Degrees Of Severity

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — A series of blood tests indicate that I am a borderline chemical diabetic. I am scheduled for a glucose tolerance test soon. What exactly is chemical diabetes?

DEAR READER — Unlike pregnancy — where you either are or you are not — diabetes has gradations in severity. Severe diabetics may exhibit life-threatening complications from birth; they require insulin to stay alive. On the other hand, many other diabetics do not show unmistakable signs of the disease until they reach middle age; these people usually require no more than diet, weight loss or the use of anti-diabetes pills as treatment.

Chemical diabetes refers to a biochemical state in the body; the patient has a tendency to high blood sugar only if he or she causes stress in the system by eating or drinking too many carbohydrates.

For instance, a pregnant woman may show elevated blood sugar, and might give birth to an unusually large baby. However, after pregnancy, the woman's sugar metabolism might return to normal. At this point, she is considered to have chemical diabetes; the trait showed up only when her body was under stress from the pregnancy. In like fashion, the use of cortisone can temporarily bring out a diabetic pattern. In addition, some healthy and normal people, when fed large amounts of sugar and candy, can exhibit an intolerance to the sugar — that is, a diabetic tendency.

A chemical diabetic will ordinarily have a normal fasting blood sugar. However, when given a glucose tolerance test (sugar water followed by periodic blood-sugar determinations), such a person will demonstrate an inability to handle the sugar load, and one or more blood determinations will exceed the normal range.

Ordinarily, a chemical diabetic needs no treatment other than to avoid excess sugar; he or she should undergo evaluation at intervals to make sure that actual diabetes hasn't developed, as it ultimately might in some patients.

The situation is analogous to that of an old car. The automobile may run perfectly well at 50 m.p.h. and can be used for commuting or errands. However, when the vehicle is pushed to higher speeds, things begin to rattle and go wrong. The prudent driver would not choose to operate the auto as a race car. The old clunker is all right for modest driving but, when stressed, the engine may malfunction. Likewise, the chemical diabetic must be prudent; obesity and inappropriate diet could push the person into a frankly diabetic state.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

What bridge player doesn't know that aces are meant to take kings? But a good player knows the proper time to take them.

After winning the ace of diamonds, East played the club king. Declarer allowed that to hold the trick. Another high club was played, and declarer's ace won the trick. South now played a spade to the king and ruffed dummy's third club. The ace of spades came next, followed by a winning diamond. Only now did declarer play a heart to the king.

Thinking himself a bridge player and remembering that aces are meant to take kings, East foolishly won the ace. He then led a low heart back. South thought that over for a moment and then put in the eight, which forced the jack. Now that South's 10 was established, he made the contract.

Although declarer made the wrong play, East easily defeats him if he ducks the king of hearts. When the suit is played again, the defenders will take two heart tricks to set the hand.

South's best approach is to play West for both the jack and the nine of hearts, since South knows from the opening no-trump bid that East must hold the heart ace. But if South leads the heart 10 initially, West will simply cover with the jack, and once again East will prevail by simply allowing dummy's high honor to win the first trick.

Both East and South forgot to count. East failed to count the declarer's distribution, and South failed to count the high cards East needed to open the bidding with one no-trump.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JULY 17, 1986

In the year ahead, you will make several valuable friendships with persons in your same field of endeavor. You will help them and they, in turn, will help you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you take the time today, you can find little ways to save money on repairs you can do yourself. It will cost you lots more if you have to call in a professional. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Temptations to buy more than you can afford will be rather strong today. Your will is far weaker than your whims.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're likely to find flimsy excuses for not clearing up an unpleasant situation today. It will have to be resolved eventually, so why not now?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a type of charisma that is very appealing to members of the opposite sex. However, beware of flirtations today, because they could offend a third party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This can and should be a profitable day for you, provided you keep your mind on business. Forego pleasurable distractions until you close your deal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should attend to important matters as early in the day as possible. You're a strong starter, but you might lack staying power.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unfortunately, you might not be able to operate as independently as you prefer today. An associate will help direct events. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Think carefully before requesting a special favor from a friend today. He or she will want to help you, but might not be in a position to do so.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You can attain an important objective today, provided you don't tie yourself down with an associate who lacks initiative.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to move around physically today instead of being inactive. Select activities that get the blood circulating a bit. It'll make you feel better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The behavior of someone you truly like might irritate you today. However, gloss over her actions because she'll soon be her old self again.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should follow through as you promise on commitments you make early in the day. Keep your word even if it inconveniences you.

Arthur Tackles 2nd Season

By Vernon Scott
HOLLYWOOD Reporter

UPI HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's called "chemistry" — the on-screen affinity between stars, the magic that simpatico performances and personalities can bring to celluloid.

Chemistry is what made Tracy and Hepburn so memorable — and chemistry is behind the success of one of TV's top series, says a member of the cast.

According to Bea Arthur, one of the quartet of stars in the series "The Golden Girls," the secret to the show's high ratings is the chemistry among herself, Betty White, Rue McClanahan and Estelle Getty.

Arthur, looking slender, fit and ready to return to work for the NBC show's second season, said unlike many sitcoms "The Golden Girls" did not go through the trial-and-error rituals of matching stars to see if they clicked.

"Four months before the show went into production my agent called and said she was upset that I was talking to (producers) Paul Witt, Tony Thomas and Susan Harris about a series," Arthur said, delving into exotic hors d'oeuvres at a Persian restaurant not far from her canyon home.

"I knew nothing about a new series. A couple of weeks before rehearsals began the producers called to ask me if I wanted the part.

"From what I understood, they had read everybody on both coasts for all four leading roles. I read the script carefully. It was absolutely great and the characters were perfect.

"I knew on the first day of rehearsals we would be a hit, but I had no idea that it would become a breakaway smash. Even before we went on the air the critics proclaimed us a hit. I was afraid it might be a case of overkill."

The relationships among Arthur, White, McClanahan and Getty is thoroughly professional during readings, rehearsals and performances.

There is little of the clowning around, joking and hijinks common enough on sets with mostly male performers.

Nor are the actresses close friends off the set.

"We see enough of each other during the long days we put in," Arthur said with a smile.

"The best thing about our relationship is there is no sense of competition. There is a total lack of ego.

"Each of us does what she can to contribute to the show. We don't improvise much because the scripts are so good. One reason the show is a success is that our writers are all under the age of 30.

"I've learned that a performer should never take a show because of its concept. Success has to do with the people you work with.

"I'll never forget doing the series "Amanda's." It was a takeoff on the English sitcom "Fawlty Towers." It was a good concept, with me playing a female John Cleese. The scripts were terrible and there was no chemistry in the cast."

Following on the heels of "Maude," Arthur was disturbed by the failure of "Amanda's" in 1983.

It was with great glee that she joined "The Golden Girls."

"Everyone tells me, Betty, Estelle and Rue how wonderful it is that we are depicting older women so favorably," Arthur said. "I never think about such things.

"Perhaps we have made people understand that older women are just like younger women. That's no big deal. Everyone knows that."

Arthur's new character, Dorothy, is as caustic and sharp-tongued as Maude, whom she played for six years. But Dorothy is softer, more feminine and infinitely more sympathetic.

"I'm 5-foot-8 1/2 and I have a very deep voice, so no matter what I play, I'll be the same," she said. "That won't change. But Dorothy is much closer to me as a person than Maude and just as much fun to play.

"I'm grateful to have been part of two major hits in television. That doesn't happen to many performers."

Arthur closed her eyes, raised a finger skyward and said, "Somebody up there is looking after me."

FILMETER

FILMETER is compiled by the NEA staff in New York

ABOUT LAST NIGHT... (R) — Rob Lowe, Demi Moore, James Belushi, Elizabeth Perkins. (Drama) What seems like a one-night stand — two Yuppies meet in a bar, then race home to display their ample sexual gymnastics — is actually a poignant tale. This couple wants to be in love, despite interference by friends who insist commitment is a '80s faux pas. Ed Zwick has made a self-assured feature film debut, but what makes the film real is the acting. Lowe sheds his Brat Packer image and turns in an unashamed performance, but Demi Moore steals the film. Baring her soul (when not baring her breasts), Moore proves that the talents she exhibited in "St. Elmo's Fire" were no fluke. GRADE: B.

AT CLOSE RANGE (R) — Sean Penn, Christopher Walken, Mary Stuart Masterson. (Drama) Sean Penn lives in the rural South with his tired grandmother, broken-down mother and foolish brother. Then one day, dad comes back to town — with money, flashy cars and the promise of success. But there is one small problem: Dad is a thief. Walken infuses his role with a delicious evil, and Penn, who must make some rather brutal decisions, has never been better. The last 20 minutes are devastating. Not for the entire family. GRADE: B.

FERRIS BUELLER'S DAY OFF (PG-13) — Matthew Broderick, Mia Sara, Alan Ruck. (Comedy) Every high-school senior thinks he can conquer the world. Ferris Bueller does — and makes it look easy. Ferris convinces his parents he's sick, gets his girl out of class and borrows a Ferrari from his best friend's dad. His principal is on the trail but he is no match for the quick-witted charmer Ruck, who finally steps out of Ferris's shadow, is endearing. If you take a day off to see this clever escape, prepare to be envious; Ferris makes better use of his time. GRADE: B-plus.

LABYRINTH (PG) — David Bowie, Jennifer Connelly, Toby Froud, Shelley Thompson. (Fantasy) Every child's nightmare is to be swooped up by demons: this terrific film is a variation on that terror. Sarah resents caring for her brother and wishes goblins would take him away. They do. Jim Henson's creatures populate this nifty film — and they're not Bert and Ernie. Henson (with help from executive producer George Lucas) advances puppetry to an awesome level. GRADE: B-plus.

Bras Back

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bras are in again, but women have gone without for so long they need help in buying them. So says one specialist on the subject.

"Now more than ever, women want to look shapely again — women want to look pretty," Ruth Frolove, a bra specialist at Frederick's of Hollywood, said Tuesday.

The clothing chain, which specializes in risque lingerie for women, said brasieres comprise its largest sales category.

With the days of bra-burning long gone, and the era of MTV and Madonna firmly entrenched, women again are buying brasieres, Frolove said.

Teenage girls who see female rock singers prancing in their undies on music videos are discovering garter belts, merry widows, laced gloves — and bras.

Older women, influenced by prime time soap opera fashions, are equally enthusiastic about bras and want "streamlined and uplifting" look, Frolove said.

"Women are more body-conscious now with the emphasis on health and fitness, combined with today's close-fitting fashions, women want a bra that will give them figure definitions," Frolove said.

But first-time bra buyers — and those who have forgotten how to properly fit the items — are having a difficult time selecting a bra and are wearing them either too tight or loose, unflattering and uncomfortable, Frolove said.

Frolove said that, according to one magazine survey, about 70 percent of the women in America are wearing the wrong-sized bra.

Frederick's, to solve the problem, has produced a free training booklet on proper bra fit and selection.
