Coral Gables voters looking for security

Associated Press Writer

CORAL GABLES - Retired businessman Jose Toledo Jr. still considers Coral Gables an "island in the sun, one of the best places to live and to raise a family.

Toledo, born in Key West and a descendant of immigrant Spaniards, says the planned community on the southern fringe of Miami has changed dramatically since the days of open screen doors and bus drivers carrying passengers a few extra blocks on a

The Gables, long considered a refuge from the turmoil that has battered Miami over the last 35 years, is insulated by its strict zoning laws and high real estate prices.

But the times are catching up.
"Things have changed an awful lot in the last few years," says Jack Perkins, a retiree passing the time with friends at the Granada golf clubhouse recently. "It was a good place. Now there are too many people. So many Cubans came at the same time in the 1960s. They were the well-educated people. the businessmen. Then in 1980 during Mariel, they brought all types, including the criminals and the invalids."

Gables residents quizzed about the top issue in the governor's race this election year say it's crime.

Gables is the fear of losing control - of their personal safety, of their tax bills, of their borders. The latest wave of Cuban immigration touches on all those fears.

The city, with its tree-lined avenues and Mediterranean-style homes, came to symbolize the wealth and influence of Dade County's Anglos — non-Hispanic whites. But the city is rapidly changing.

Multinational corporations operate along the city's Miracle Mile, traffic clogs the streets, crime is intruding into paradise, and affluent Hispanics now make up 42 percent of the population. The mayor is Cuban-American.

In a community where many residents are likely to vote Republican, few have found fault with Gov. Lawton Chiles' prompt trip to Key West to demand federal help to stop the flood of Cuban rafters. "I'll give Chiles credit," says former Police Chief Charlie Skalaski. "I was proud to see our governor down there so quickly."

But residents say the bigger question is how the Cuban imrought 125,000 Cubans to Florida's shores over five months.

'They don't know what's going to happen. It jogs your memory to a time that was very, very tough. We had tents all over Miami. I remember four guys raping a 65-year-old secretary.

The city's residents, whose average family income of $63,000 is twice the state average, often explain their growing crime problem by quoting famed baninsurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and Tallahasaee trial lawyer Ken Connor — have agreed with the diversion of refugees away from Florida. But they're calling for more pressure on Fidel Castro's struggling dictatorship.

Many Gables residents believe the refugees being detained at the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, will eventually end up in Dade County, despite the administration's pledge to the contrary.

For community activist Roxcy Bolton, the most recent wave of immigration brings back memories of the Mariel boatlift in 1980 that brought 125,000 Cubans to Florida's shores over five months.

For cops, own weapon is often greatest danger

By KEN QUOCHWENS Associated Press Writer

BOSTON - In 21 years as a Fall River police officer, Thomas J. Giunta saw his share of dangerous assignments. Handing out parking permits for a church fair wasn't supposed to be one of them. But it turned out to be his last. Giunta died last Wednesday when three bullets from his own .357-caliber Magnum were fired into his chest, allegedly by a man later described as mentally unstable. For some officers, the most dangerous weapon they'll face is the one in their holster, and the threat is often greatest when they least expect it. Three days before Giunta's death, Boston Police Officer William J. Cullinane Jr. was wounded at his station house, allegedly by a prisoner who complained about tight handcuffs, then grabbed Cullinane's gun as the officer tried to loosen them.

Eighteen months earlier, Officer Thomas Rose was killed with his gun at another Boston police station by a prisoner he was taking to make a phone call.

Across the country, 103 officers were killed with their own guns from 1983 through 1992, according to the most recent statistics from the federal Bureau of Justice Statistics. That accounts for almost one of every six officers shot to death.

It's not known how many officers are wounded but sur-vived such incidents.

Firearms specialists say the shootings are almost always preventable if officers stay alert to potential danger in even the most routine assignment.

"One of the things officers need to realize is that every call they go on, there's at least one person with a gun and that's them," said Ed Nowicki, a police training specialist at Milwaukee Area Technical College.

Police academies now emphasize what they call "weapons retention." but it's still a jump from classroom to the job in getting officers to be perpetually

"Police officers are human just like anyone else. After years of routine activity, a lot of officers let their guard down, especially If you're involved in a mundane assignment where you're not thinking of anything," said Capt. "We all get careless," agreed Gerald Erenburg, executive director of the National Association of Chiefs of Police in Washington, D.C. "No matter how often you train about this, it's those instances that occur because you never expect it."

For Giunta, 44, his duty as a safety officer could hardly have seemed less threatening. Neatly dressed as usual in his blue. short-sleeve summer uniform and white cap, he was going door-to-door on a sunny after-noon in a residential area of Fall River, a city of 93,000, distributing parking permits for the weekend Feast of the Holy

Gator oddities: Pesticides

LAKE APOPKA, Fla. - Mutant alligators in Lake Apopka may indicate a threat of similar problems for other animals, and even humans, says a University of Florida research team.

The researchers say odd — and mostly doomed — hatchlings being found in the lake are probably a result of the widespread pesticides in the anxistance. environment.

Different animals have different levels of tolerance for pesticides, Louis Guillette, a reproductive physiologist on the team, said Snday.
"But if these things are detrimental to an embryo of another species, they are going to be detrimental to our embryos," Guillette said. "If we had been spraying nerve gases around the country, would people be upset?" he said. Instead, "we've been spraying endocrine disrupters."

The team transports eggs to a shed in Gainesville where hundreds of alligators hatch in gray plastic bins.

Ninety percent die, and the survivors are sexual oddities they're all feminized. The population looks as though it has had an overdose of estrogen. The lake has produced spermless males, "intersexed" gators with testes and ovaries, and females that lay large clutches of dead eggs. The researchers believe culprits are pesticides that disrupt chemical messages in the growing embryo. The pesticides belong to a family of chemicals known to accumulate in fat cells of many other animals, including humans.

The chemicals suspected of gators are persistent organochlorides — compounds chemically similar to hormones and durable in the environment. Some of the most infamous chemicals ever manufactured belong to this family: PCBs once used to cool transformers; pesticides such as DDT still used in many countries; dioxins that appeared as byproducts of Agent Orange, paper bleaching and garbage incineration.

Critics say they doubt human hormones are at risk from minute exposures to chemicals.

"We make so much more naturally occurring estrogens that (synthetics) really get swamped out. The small amount that we're exposed to is unlikely to cause any significant biologi-cal effects," said Jim Lamb, a chemical industry consultant and past president of the Ameri-

LOS ANGELES — After losing their fight for a share of blood evidence, O.J. Simpson's lawyers are returning to their attack on the credibility of the policeman who says he found a bloody gleve outside Simpson's house. glove outside Simpson's house.

Defense lawyers want police to turn over the personnel records of Detective Mark Fuhrman, claiming he is racist and once tried to frame a black suspect.

The police department says the request invades Fuhrman's privacy. Fuhrman's lawyer calls it a sign of desperation. Fuhrman denies the allegations. A hearing was set for today before Judge Lance Ito.

The defense also wants Fuhrman's military records and police department records on other officers involved in the case, including Detectives Philip Vannatter, Tom Lange and Fuhrman's partner, Ronald Phillips.

In a motion filed earlier this month, the defense claimed that Vannatter and Lange lied and concealed facts to get a warrant to search Simpson's estate, and that Phillips violated police

But discrediting Fuhrman is defense because the glove he reported finding the day after the alayings may be among the most incriminating pieces of evidence the prosecution holds. It allegedly matches a glove found at the crime scene.

Prosecutors allege that Simpson dropped the glove out-side his Brentwood estate after killing ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman outside her condominium. Simpson has pleaded in-nocent. His trial is set to begin Sept. 19.

Last week, defense lawyers went after the scientific side of the case against Simpson, suggesting that blood samples collected as evidence were contaminated by sloppy police work.

After a hearing, ito refused to give the defense a share of the samples to test, but agreed that the prosecution's handling of the evidence was "less than exem-

One legal expert said the goal of Simpson's team all along was not to get the samples but to discredit the prosecution's DNA test results.

In doing our job

People have asked why newspapers and television newscasts have as lead stories, so much about crime, violence and disasters. There are remons, and they are not based on competition to sell papers or attract TV

First of all, it should be noted that, during the past few decades, a few TV newscasts. several newspapers, and some radio stations, launched a drive in which they touted they would broadcast or print "nothing but good news.

Almost every one of them changed their minds within only a few months and either returned to their regular presentations, or went out of business.

One of the reasons for leading with disasterous stories therefore, is, people don't want just good news. They want reality. And reality has both good and bad events happening in today's world.

One of the main reasons for publicizing these ills however, is to instill knowledge. If people are not told what is happening to the determent of society, they would never do anything about it.

If we only told of local shootings, and not tourist ahootings, everyone would say they are local police problems. The tourist council and state would just ignore the problem. Now however, shootings of foreigners is drawing such world-wide attention, everyone is jumping in to try to combat it. if we didn't report on the multitude of vehicle burgiaries and thefts, people would return to the old days when car windows were of open and doors unlocked. Roustisies, when we feature a news story. about crime, violence, government problems or other serious stories, readers may get

The old axiom however says people should't kill the messenger. That's the capacity in which the media and press is operating. We are just reporting the news as it

If a story makes you mad at circumstances and/or attuations, we will have accomplished one of our many goals.

Looking at what many people say about gun control, we could adjust their comments. They say, "It's not guns that kill, it's the people who use them."

Fine-tuning that, we respond by saying. "It's not news stories which are responsible for the trials and tribulations of today's world, it's the people causing them."

Seventeen years as a small-town newspaper reporter and editor taught me a lot about the importance of local affairs, but 17 years in Washington had dulled memory. Columnists and commentators may build reputations by bloviating on the fate of the world, but the average citizen cares most about backyard issues, and that is where he concentrates his attention.

It's traditional American common sense. A government that tolerates potholes. doesn't collect the garbage or deliver the mail within a reasonable time is unlikely to be very successful at larger ventures. It is hard to imagine Washington playing the world's policeman when no one seems to know how to re-establish law and order here at home. Improving the basics is the way most of us can contribute to improving the "big picture" as well.

A later column will deal with the specific response to my piece about the mail, which has been overwhelming. So far, correspondents have written from 34 states, ranging from Florida to Washington, Arizona to Connecticut. The letters have been both thoughtful and outraged, commendatory and critical, and they continue to Minutes-long waits while a cheerful recorded voice comes on periodically to thank you for your patience are commonplace in dealing with the airlines. "Service stations" have been replaced by self-serve pumps.

Not surprisingly, few people actually believe Washington can or should do much about any of this. Echoing the environmentalists, they may think globally, but they know they have to act

That is why what appears from the perspective of the nation's capital to be a steady decline in political participation and citizen involvement in public affairs proves on second look to be just the opposite. There has never been as much organizational activity at the local level as there is now. Whether the issue is clean air or safe streets, drunk driving or school reform, Americans are mobilizing in record numbers. The national press concentrates on the lobbying that affects Washington. The truth is that far more energy and man hours go into the lobbying that affects city hall and local enterprise.

That's cause for cheer and hope.

already become a cash cow for America's largest advocacy group.

"It certainly appears to line the pockets of the AARP leadership," a senior Republican health care staffer said. "It's flabbergasting how blatant this is, how a special interest benefits from the Clinton/Mitchell bill. Officials at AARP vehemently deny that their endorsement of the Mitchell plan (the group also endorsed a similar plan in the House proposed by Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.) had anything to do with financial interest.

"At no time in this debate, or any previous debate, have we ever gone up (to Congress) and said that this would be good (for business)," a senior AARP lobbyist told our associate Jan Moller. "The board (of directors) looks at what's good for the members, not what's going to be good for the organization from a proprietary standpoint." Mitchell's office did not comment in time for this column.

The Mitchell health care bill, introduced this month as a Democratic alternative to the defunct Clinton plan, falls short of what President Clinton and the AARP once claimed was non-negotiable - health insurance for every American. But that didn't stop the AARP from ending months of speculation in Congress and at the White House by endorsing the plan on Aug. 11. Before the endorsement, AARP officials had stayed sidelined and staunchly non-partisan, sup-porting various principles of health care reform yet refusing to embrace any specific legislation.

An AARP spokeswoman says the eleventh-hour endorsement came because legislation was moving toward the floor of the House and Senate, and that the organization did not want to mise a "historic opportunity" to provide affordable and comprehensive health

Unlike the original Clinton plan, which relied on private employers to foot much of the bill for expanding coverage, the Mitchell bill relies heavily on a system of Federal subsidies to help individuals buy private insurance. To further sweeten the pot, the Mitchell plan would expand Medicare by adding the new prescription drug benefit for the elderly. To contain costs in this program, the Mitchell bill proposes to limit the price that the government will pay for prescription drugs. Yet mail-order drugs are specifically exempt from these price controls.

If the Mitchell bill is good medicine for the general public and the health care system, it will also be a shot in the arm for AARP.

After visiting five districts and 28 schools, state auditors concluded in February that the components of Blueprint 2000 were being developed and implemented simultaneously. They found that districts and schools vary in their implementation of the law and that the reform is slowly trickling down to the schools.

One business leader who serves on a school advisory council says progress in improving education can be blocked at the local level under

Tom Cerra, a Dade County school administrator and a member of the state accountability commission, said Blueprint 2000 has "very definitely set in motion a re-definition and a realignment of power."

"We're at a very early stage of participatory democracy," he said. "This is going to evolve. it's going to get better every year."

Cairo: Mother of cities, and of urban problems

EDITOR'S NOTE — More than 15,000 people are expected in Caire for the U.N. Conference on Population and Development that begins Sept. 5. The city embodies many of the problems they would like to solve.

By G.G. Lobelle Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt - The thousands of people coming to Cairo to argue strategies for curbing world population need only a look around to see the scope of the problem.

Greater Cairo's population has grown from 1 million to 14 million since the 1920s. An estimated 5 million live in what Cairo bureaucrats call "informal settlements" - slums that have sprouted without planning or government

The air is polluted, grime and desert dust cover everything, traffic is a nightmare. The honking of taxis, buses and private cars seems to subside only on Fridays, when the din is replaced by Muslim prayers blaring from the loudspeakers of more than 1,000 mosques.

Coexisting with the sprawling slums are 1,000-year-old mosques, modern hotels and office buildings, cafes where men discuss the day's events over water pipes, bars where the young imbibe rock music and beer, and suburban-style homes and tree-lined streets.

Cairenes crowd the streets at night, carrying their children or tugging them along. Young couples stroll beside the Nile, the lifeline of Egypt. Because of the famous Egyptian sense of humor, the mutters and growls of urban life often dissolve into laughter with a well-timed remark.

"I can't find a city anywhere that's more full of life than Cairo," former Mayor Youssef Sabri Abu-Taleb once said. But he added: "From this comes all our problems: housing shortages, an exploding population, pollution, lack of cleanli-ness, traffic, everything."

Cairo was founded in 969, and by the 1300s the farnous Arab traveler Ibn Batuta had named it "the mother of cities." In many ways, it also is the mother of urban problems.

Milad Hanna, a former chairman of Parliament's housing committee, sees Cairo as the victim of its own success - and of misdirected government policies.

It is not only the nation's capital, but the center of everything else: business, education, the Muslim religion. For years, the government has poured much of its resources into Cairo, Hanna said, increasing the city's lure while doing little to develop other

"Cairo is living at the expense of the rest of the population of Egypt," he said in an interview. So many people come to the city from towns and villages, hoping to find work, that nearly one-quarter of Egypt's 58 million people live in Many of them cannot find jobs and a bloody campaign by Muslim radicals to topple the government has made the situation even worse by devastating the tourism industry. More than 400 people, including four foreign tourists, have been killed in 21/2 years of violence.

There are no reliable unemployment figures for Cairo, but official statistics put the entire nation's jobless rate at 18 percent. Businessmen claim the real number is twice that. Crowded slums and idle youth are a recipe for more Islamic extremism: The heart of Muslim militancy is imbaba, a squatter alum of hundreds of thousands that until recently did not even have electricity or running water. Master plans for solving the problems have been around since 1953. Although bureaucracy and corruption have interfered, a subway system and highway overpasses have helped unclog traffic. The telephone system, which once took hours just to produce a dial tone, works reasonably well. The latest plan calls for building 10 satellite cities in the desert around Cairo. Six are in some stage of development, but the plan goes against the nature of Egyptians, who have lived along the Nile for 5,000 years and resist moving to the sandy wasteland. Egyptian nature, however, may also be what saves Cairo from boiling over into chaos. Islam sets a strict code of behavior and Cairo, for all its size, does not entertain anonymity. It is a series of neighborhoods where friends and relatives, Jammed together, are quick to point out any infraction of the rules. Because of close-knit families and Muslim generosity, the homelessness of American cities is virtually unknown. Only 299 murders were committed in the city last year, down from 342 in

But Hanna, the former legislator, fears Cairo may finally be overcome by the exploding population and poverty the U.N. conference seeks to solve. "I see a very ugly, dark picture within 30 years If there are not policy changes," he said.

Urban junk dealing lucrative, sometimes lurid, business

By DEBORAH HASTINGS Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES - Mostly, it's junk. Broken appliances, old clothes, floppy old mattresses. Sometimes, it's dead bodies, cash in shoe boxes, letters from Charles Manson. So goes the trade of the junk dealers, who make a living buying other people's castoffs and reselling them at a meets and yard sales.

It can be lurid as well as lucrative work - this month, an unwitting scavenger bought the contents of an abandoned Northridge storage unit that contained three bodies in steamer trunks.

And for many, it's is tax-free. Dedicated and savvy scavengers say they can earn $40,000 to $100,000 per year, most of it in cash and all of it in a market not monitored by the Internal Revenue Service. "We are aware that in numerous industries, income may not be reported," said IRS spokesman Keith Kimball. "But with the staffing we currently have, we cannot control every area." For that reason alone, the tightknit band of independent merchants would rather do without public attention. At a Long Beach auction this month, a few were downright hostile.

"This is poor people's work."
adid a woman bidding $575 cash for a storage unit piled high with mattresses and furniture. "You publicize this, more people come, drive up the prices. Go away," she said, refusing to give

Storage unit auctions, in which the contents are sold lock. stock and barrel to the highest bidder, are the junk dealer's mainstay.

Mike White, a former cop and self-proclaimed "junk man," says he wants to open a secondhand shop and get out of the scavenging end of the business. "Any moron could do this," he says. "All you have to do is drive around and haul the stuff away. With the economy bad like it is and people getting laid off, you could start a whole new career. Basically, people just don't know about it."

Two years ago, White, 41, bought the contents of a storage unit and discovered boxes filled with handwritten, jailhouse correspondence between murderer Charles Manson and his attorney, Irving Kanarek.

White says he wants to use the material for a screenplay or a book. Another junk dealer "of-fered me $5,000 for it, but I man who found $12,000 worth of Egyptian coins; the woman who found $200,000 in a shoe box; gruesome discoveries of severed harids, a lone leg.

In Los Angeles County, about 40 junk dealers' travel the auction circuit. Storage yard owners know them by name. On any given day, three or four auctions are held within a 100-mile radi-118.

may be auctioned if its renter fails to respond to phone calls and certified letters seeking payment of accounts at least 30 days delinquent. After seven days' notice in a newspaper legal ad, the goods can go. Don Temple, owner of five local storage yards, said he opened the first Los Angeles facility 24 years ago and knows most of the auction regulars. "I call them 'The 40 Thieves," he said, laughing. "The same people show up every time. Some people buy only furniture, some people buy only tools. Then they take it to the swap meets." Auction protocol runs this way: A bidder registers with the storage facility. Goods are viewed from the unit's door. No touching the merchandise, no moving the contents. You must buy everything in the unit, empty it and sweep it clean within 24 hours.

Renters abandon belongings for myriad reasons, Temple said: "Some go to jail, some get divorced, some were just storing junk and realized it was cheaper to leave it here than to haul it away.

Over the years, Temple said, he's seen it all. Tenants have stored illegal drugs; some even tried to live in the windowless, powerless rooms. "You get some real crazy things," he said. Ed Zaharoff, a regular bidder, got a ghoulish surprise Aug. 10 after paying $2,300 for a 5-by-10 foot cubicle at a Northridge U-Haul lot. While removing his new purchases - stereo equipment, silk clothing. housewares - he came upon a rank, ooging steamer trunk.

After peeling away layers of plastic and duct tape, he found a rotting corpee. He called police. They found two more. The coroner's office has called in an archaeologist to help iden-tify the dead, and police are trying to find the renter, who lied on the storage agreement then skipped out on the bill.

Modified pitch players wanted

The Sanford Recreation Department is looking for players to fill out teams for a modified fast-pitch softball league that is planned for Monday nights at Chase Park.

Those interested in learning more about the league, which is a cross between slowpitch and fastpitch, are invited to come out to Pinehurst Park tonight (Monday, Aug. 29) or Chase Park on Wednesday, Aug. 31, at 6:30 p.m.

If enough players come out to the "tryouts", you do not have to be on a team to attend, there will be attempts to form teams in hopes of starting the league in September.

For more information, call (407) 330-5697 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Bucs cut six; Dawsey sidelined

TAMPA - The Tampa Bay Buccaneers waived six players and placed injured wide receiver Lawrence Dawsey on the physically unable to perform list to trim the roster to the NFL opening-day limit of 53 players.

NFL opening-day limit of 53 players.

There were no surprise moves in Sunday's cutdown, although the decision to not activate Dawsey means the club's leading receiver two of the past three seasons will miss a minimum of six games.

The cuts were receiver Tyres Davis, linebacker Jimmy Williams, defensive end large! Stanley, corrierwick Roger Jones and two rodities, safety-linebacker Vidal Mills and of the cuts takes Pet Pierson.

Dennis among Dolphin cuts

DAVIE - The Miami Dolphins waived seven-year offensive tackle Mark Dennis niong with running back Aaron Craver and four other players to reach the 53-man roster limit Sunday. The task of trimming the team was made simpler with the surprise retirement Sunday of oft-injured linebacker John Offerdahl.

Also waived were wide receiver Demeria Johnson, defensive tackle George Rooks, defensive end Jay Williams, and tight end Rob Dennis, at 6-6, 296 pounds, started every game in the 1990 and '91 seasons, eight in '92, and served as a valuable backup last year.

Offerdahl calls it quits

DAVIE - The Miami Dolphins' five-time Pro Bowl linebacker John Offerdahl said Sunday his decision to retire was made for him during Miami's 31-16 loss to the Minnesota Vikings.

"It became apparent to me that physically I could not perform to the same level I'm accustomed to," said Offerdahl, who informed Miami coaches of his decision Baturday, "And that was taking away a joy in my life."

Offerdahl, a second-round pick in 1986 from Western Michigan, made the Pro Bowl in his first five seasons before injuries sidelined him for much of the past three seasons.

He only played through the first quarter in 17 of the past 50 games. Miami was 14-3 in those games and 15-18 in the others.

Dolphins bld for Sanders

DAVIE - The Miami Dolphins, with consultation Sunday from owner H. Wayne Hulzenga. joined at least two other teams making contract offers to free agent cornerback Deion Sanders.

Sanders' agent, Eugene Parker, didn't return phone calls seeking comment. Also interested in playing for San Francisco, Kansas City, New Orleans and Atlanta, Sanders has said he hopes to choose a team by Monday, even though his contractual commitment to the Cincinnati Reds makes it likely he would be unavailable for football until late September at the earliest.

Silver Hawks run away with Summertime Jamboree

Special to the Herald

LAKE MARY - There are two ways to look at a huge season-opening win: consider it a hopeful taste of things to come and use it to build confidence or dismiss is as just another competition with little impact on the rest of the season.

After watching his Silver Hawks snare the giris' team title at the Lake Mary Summertime Cross Country Jamboree on Saturday morning. Lake Howeli High School coach Tom Ham-montree chose the middle road.

"Certainly, it's a good way to start the season," said Hammontree, whose team had five runners finish in the top 10 on the way to outscoring runner-up Dr. Phillips 28-90. "It's nice to do well. Whenever you've been working hard, you like to be rewarded so that you know that the hard work does pay off.

"But one meet does not a season make. We just use it as a starting point, a way to determine which seven girls will run as the varsity team in the first meet of the season [Thursday afternoon's Lake Brantley Open). We use this to see where we are and go from here.'

Lake Howell was led by Cally Howell, who covered the two-mile course between Lake Mary High School and Greenwood Lakes Middle School in 13 minutes, 31 seconds to finish second behind Cocoa Beach's Erika Schlamer (13:09). One second back of Howell in third place was her teammate, Mia McCormick (13:32). Completing the Silver Hawks' team score were Beth Whitehead (sixth, 13:56), Amy Fitch (seventh, 14:11), and Missy Bedio (10th, 14:19).

Also finishing in the top 10 were Bynia and Myohia Reed of Dr. Phillips (fourth and fifth, respectively, in 13:42 and 13:50), Lake Mary's Megan Paget-Wilkes (eighth, 14:13), and Jessica Blundell of Deltona (ninth, 14:14).

Lake Brantley, which finished fifth (149) in the girls' team standings behind Lale Howell, Dr. Phillips, Flagler (120), and Cocoa (134), was paced by Katle Koepke (11th, 14:20) and Julie LaBret (15th, 14:32).

The top finisher for the Oviedo girls - who placed seventh (182) behind the Lake Howell B team (168) and in front of the squads from Lake Mary (229), Tampa-Leio (263), and the Dr. Phillips B team (277) — was Beth Janson (14th. 14:30).

While Seminole County runners dominated the girls' event, athletes from outside the county had their way in the boys' 3-mile race.

Lake Brantley's Tom Sanchez, who came in ninth at 17:29, was the only local runner in the top 10, leading the Patriots to a third-place showing (123) behind St. Cloud (113), and Rockledge (115). Rounding out the top 10 in the boys' standings were Oviedo (151), Lake Howell (152), Dr. Phillips (166), Cocoa Beach (182), Edgewater (204), Palm Bay (215), and Mainland (251).

Palm Bay's Tom Williams won the race in 15:55, finishing in front of St. Cloud's Kevin Harkema (16:11), Chuck Fritz from Dr. Phillips (16:24), Rockledge's Jeff Butler (16:40), and Corey Phillips of St. Cloud (16:59).

AAU board considering relocating to Florida

Associated Press

ORLANDO - The Amateur Athletic Union board is being asked to approve a headquarters move that would bring 100 national amateur championships including the Junior Olympics to Central

The AAU announced Saturday that if the board approves, it intends to move its headquarters by fall 1995 from Indianapolis to a site near the planned sports complex at Walt Disney World.

The proposal includes a promise to hold at least 40 national championships in Central Florida the first year and 60 championahips the second year, AAU spokesman Daye DeCecco said.

The country's largest noniprofit volunteer sports organisation and multisport sanctioning body, the AAU holds 112 such championships yearly. The Junior Olympics, played annually, would be held at Disney World every four years. It is the largest annual multisport event for youth in this country. for youth in this country.

"It will have a significant economic impact in the number of participants and speciators that follow national events and the amateur Olympics." said Reggie Williams, Disney's director of sports develop-

Williams said the arrangement would be good for central Florida and for Disney.

"A sports facility is nothing without someone to compete in it. he said. "This is ensuring there will be a number of high-quality sports events."

Likewise, the organization was lured to Central Florida by the promise of a stadium, DeCecco said. 'We'd love to have some sort of permanent home for all these championships."

Mediators hope to resume baseball talks

By RONALD BLUM AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK - Players and owners expect to speak to federal mediators today, the 18th day of the baseball

There wasn't any activity over the weekend, the third without major league baseball since players struck Aug. 12. Nine more games were canceled today, raising the total to 232, more than 10 percent of the season.

"There's nothing going on," executive council chairman Bud Selig said Sunday by telephone from

Negotiations broke off Thursday and no further talks are scheduled to end the walkout. "I've had no contact with anyone," union head

Donald Fehr said. But John Calhoun Wells, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he probably will speak with the parties today and call another bargaining session for the middle of the week. Management negotiator Richard Ravitch said last Thursday he expects the delegations from each side will be smaller at future sessions. There were 55 people in

Gender equity creates long overdue growing pains

Will the pursuit of fairness result in reformation or revolution? One way or the other, the drive for gender equity is going to reshape the face of interscholastic athletics in Florida.

There's no way of avoiding it. And it's not going away any time soon. On the surface, it seems like a plausible enough proposal: girls should have the same opportunity to participate in athletics that boys have. That's only fair, right?

But as is often the case when a good idea is measured against the reality of the aituation, achieving some semblance of gender equity will force many schools across the state to go through some horrisic financial and administrative contortions.

In other sections of the state, including Seminole County, the impact will be hardly noticeable because, by design or by fate, the numbers aren't that far out of line.

Seminole County's six local public high schools will just have to add a sport, a few freshmen teams, and, for five schools, build or improve their softball fields. The 13-component self-assessment each school had to complete and submit to the Department of Education showed that the imbalance in gender participation sprung from two areas: a 3-to-1 ratio of boys to girls involved on the junior varsity and freshman levels and there being more sports for boys than girls.

To deal with the first half of the equation, Seminole County schools are adding freshman teams in girls' volleyball, basketball, and soccer this year. The only way to cancel out the other half of the "problem" is to add another sport for girls.

While just which sport is to be added hasn't been decided, the most-often mentioned possibilities are field hockey, lacrosse, and flag football (I kid you not).

One component of the survey deals with the equality of facilities. As of right now, only Lake Brantley can say that its baseball and softball teams enjoy comparable facilities, leaving the other five schools to do some catch-up work.

It's a hazale, but a relatively small hasale compared to the huge incquities at other schools (for example, boys' teams wear brand new uniforms and travel by chartered busses while the girls wear the boys' hand-me-downs and have to car-pool to games).

Yet, there are some inconsistencies in this well-intended quest, the primary one being the exclusion of cheerleaders, dance teams, flag corps and the like from the equation that determines gender equity.

Unlike other extra-curricular activities (band, school newspaper, etc.) where there are no gender restrictions, these activities are largely female exclusive (Lake Brantley and Lake Mary's cheerleading squads being the exception). Originally, these activities were offered as equal alternatives to sports. Please don't take this as a male chauvinist stand that a woman's place is on the sidelines celebrating the exploits of men. The point is that while the perception of these activities have changed, they remain as female-exclusive activities that enjoy privileges similar to those of athletes.

Several school administrators I've these young women may be the simplest answer to balancing the equation: offer varsity competition in rhythmic gymnastics, an Olympic sport that seems (to my uneducated mind) a natural extension of those activities.

While comparing varsity athletics with cheerleading and the like on the basis of gender equity might be comparing apples to oranges, the two exist in concert (would there be cheerleading without athletica?). It seems inconsistent to study one without the other.

The same could be said for student managers and athletic trainers, all of them vital members of the high school athletic community but not accounted for in determining the availability of opportunities for participation.

There are other questions that need to be answered, such as "Why isn't somebody holding city and county recreation programs to the same standard of gender equity?" That very well may be the next

It may all seem harsh, unreasonable, and occasionally unfair, like the aches and pains of exercising after years of idleness, it's a necessary evil that's been a long time coming.

Baseball in November?

By BEN WALKER AP Baseball Writer

The scene could seem like something from the World Cup: a bunch of teams, a bunch of fans following them and a championship game at a California stadium.

Only this might be the World Series, not soccer.

it all depends, of course, on whether the strike is settled. Both players and owners seem to think that Sept. 15 is the point for saving any part of the season, although no talks are scheduled.

"I don't see why we shouldn't play the playoffs if we can," said Eugene Orza, the No. 2 official at the players' union. "I don't see why we shouldn't play whatever we can, whenever we can."

There has been talk that baseball might go straight to the postsesson if there is a late settlement, raising the possibili-ty of a Thanksgiving World Series. The standings right now would mean the New York Yankees-Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox-Texas in the AL playoffs and Cincinnati-Montreal and Los Angeles-Atlanta in the NL.

Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington recently said it was possible that the World Series could be played in November at a neutral site.

The Series is set for Oct. 22-30. The Series has never gone past October. It is, however, sched-uled last into November in 1996

if it lasts more than five games. The World Series has been played every year since 1904, when New York Giants manager John McGraw thought his team was so good that it wasn't worth facing the upstart Red Sox.

Never before has the Series been played at a neutral site, although it has been considered twice in the last decade.

in 1984, there was a chance that the Chicago Cubs would've been forced to play in either St. Louis, Milwaukee or cross town in Comiskey Park if they reached the World Series. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn did not have to decide the controversy, caused because Wrigley Field did not have lights, when the Cubs lost to San Diego in the NL playoffs.

In 1969, after the earthquake interrupted the matchup between Oakland and San Francisco, baseball talked about cisco, baseball talked about shifting the Series to either San Diego or Los Angeles. But the Series remained in the Bay area and resumed 12 days later. But beseball would also have to work out a deal with ABC. ABC has Mondays set aside for NFL football and is scheduled to show college football games, including several doubleheaders, on Saturdays. There's also golf.

Strike

since the strike began. "That was a guess on my part," he said. "I haven't changed my guess." No progress is forseen in the talks until at least after the owners' quarterly meetings, scheduled for Detroit from Sept. 7-9. While there have been rumors that the meetings will be "At this point in time, I would think they would take place," he said Sunday. "Everything is subject to review."

called off, Selig said that's not

Four years ago, the quarterly session in Dallas during the owners' 32-lockout was canceled to allow negotiations to con-tinue. In 1961, a meeting in Kansas City, Mo., was called off - some say to prevent some owners from expressing dissent. Selig said he wouldn't want the meetings to interfere with bargaining. "That's always a concern," he said. "That's something we'll take a look at." Ravitch said the meeting isn't necessary because of the constant telephone conversations and conference calls. "Communication among the owners is very extensive at this point and, therefore, I don't know what specifically can be gained by a meeting." he said.

The AAU, which would relocate part of its 30-member staff to Florida, doësh't have a stadium in Indianapolis.

"It probably is not going to have major economic impact (on Indianapolis), but if there is a reason for them leaving then that is something we need to know about." Indianapolis city-county minority leader Rozelle Boyd. "We are very concerned about them leaving the city." "It's very close to a done deal," DeCecco said. "They ju have to go through some min points. Once the board directors gives its OK, we're percent there." The proposal was unanimously approved Saturday by the 21-member AAU executive committee. The 303-member board of directors meets Sept. 9 in Tuise, Okie.

Composting yard waste Efficient, economical and environmentally good

Concerned citizens are looking for ways of recycling their yard waste like leaves and grass clippings into valuable organic amendments. Composting is one way to utilize these materials instead of sending something biodegradable to the landfill.

Compost is the partial decomposition of organic materials. The best way to compost the organic materials in your yard is to start a compost pile. The area that you choose for your compost should be a well drained site. The structure itself can be in any of several forms; it can be a pit, a raised bed formed by boards, concrete blocks or fencing supported by stakes. Many simply start with a plle not confined in any structure.

An area of about 5 square feet or smaller is a good size to begin with. It can be convenient to have 2 small piles rather than one big one because it is easier to turn the pile this way, one pile can be composting while the other one is being used as untidy at times. Also, choose an area that is convenient to the garden and tools. Usually, a small area behind the garage or in the back yard near the fence is ideal for framing and constructing the compost pile.

Building the compost pile is simply a matter of layering different organic materials. Next, add about 5 pounds of a 6-6-6 or a similar fertilizer over the organic materials. The fertilizer is necessary for the soil micro-organisms to break down the organic together with the fertilizer. Next, add a 1- to 2-inch layer of soil which provides the organisms. A small layer of lime may be added, especially if manures are used. Continue to layer the pile as materials are available or until the pile is about four feet

Organic materials will decompose rapidly if they are shredded. Leaves can be shredded by running over them with the lawn mower and caught in the grass catcher. You may have to use the lawn mower several times to get the leaves finely shredded. Tree branches, even when shredded or chipped, decompose very slowly so you may want to use them as mulch or compost them in a separate pile.

Decomposition relies on micro-organisms and the length of time before the compost will be ready to use in the garden depends on several factors. Air, water and nutrients are needed for micro-organism activity. Warm temperatures, adequate fertilizer, turning the pile and the correct moisture level will hasten their activity. Generally, compost can be ready in about 4 to 6 months depending on these factors.

Compost can be used once ready in several ways. It is a good soil amendment for the garden and is certainly less expensive then purchasing peat moss. Incorporated into the soil, it is beneficial in providing soil tilth, water holding capacity and nutrient retention. Compost can be used as a mulch to control weeds and help retain soli moisture. Compost can be used as a component of potting soil.

For more information about composting. please visit our composting demonstration behind the Cooperative Extension Service office: 250 W. County Home Rd.; across from Fiea World on Hwy. 17-92. We also have free fact sheets on composting to help you get started.

Our Florida soils are generally low in organic matter and due to the high temperatures most of the year, organic materials that are added are rapidly decomposed. It can be beneficial to incorporate organic materials into the soil yearly to improve the nutrient and water-holding capacity of the soil. Compost is one inexpensive, ecological method to provide organic materials in your soil.

regrets giving husband

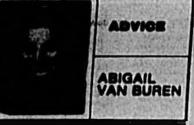

15 years suddenly has decid that marriage is a "trap," and he wants out. He wants his own apartment so he can come and mind you; he just wants to be free to do as he pleases.)

A wise friend suggested a cheaper way. Give him the spare bedroom and let him do as he pleases. The idea appealed to my husband, and that is what he is doing now.

This friend told me to let my huband have his flings and have a ball, and in time he will get tired of it and come back home. In the meantime, I should be pleasant and uncomplaining and be a good mother to our two

My problem: How can I endure the pain of seeing him come and go as he pleases? Can you give me a few pointers on how to put up with this when my heart is aching?

DEAR LOSTELY: Your friend sounds like she has shredded wheat where her brains should be. You have given up your role as a wife to become the "mother of a teen-ager" who has just discovered the opposite sex.

What are you getting out of this arrangement? The privilege of keeping your husband's room clean and washing his un-derwear? What if his "flings" last until he is 80? And in the meantime, what kind of example is he setting for his children?

Tell your husband we all make mistakes, and you made a beaut when you agreed to the spare room arrangement. And unless hit st willing to go for counseling and try to repair your marriage, he can clear out, and you'll see

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother recently remarried after having been a widow for a good many years. She to a dear, sweet woman, and I couldn't love my own mother more.

She and her new husband (who is 70) visited us last Christmas. During the evening. he made me a little uncomfortable just by the way he kept looking at me. He followed me into the kitchen once and said he wanted to give me a little Christmas kiss. I gave him my cheek but he grabbed me and said, "No, not that kind ... Then he tried to kiss me on the mouth. I got away from him and

Now he calls me on the phone when he knows my husband is at work. He says he wants to talk to me. I am afraid of him. Please tell me how to handle this. They live in another town not far from us, but we see them quite often.

PAPA PROBLEM DEAR PROBLEM Tell him that if he doesn't leave you alone, you will tell your husband that he has been bothering you. And if that doesn't straighten him out, make good your threat.

DEAR READER: Chronic cough is always a concern for doctors, even though it may be caused by nothing more than a post-nasal drip associated with allergies. Serious causes of cough include carreer, pneumonia, asthma, sinusitis, hiatal hernia, and many other condi-

Therefore, I urge your husband to be examined by your family doctor, who will probably choose to obtain blood tests and chest X-rays. If there is a treatable basis for the cough, with therapy your husband will be much more comfortable in the morning.

If nothing serious is wrong, he will at least have had a thorough examination, something that is appropriate for a man his age. Remember that chewing tobacco is associated with the risk of cancers in the mouth; therefore, this visit to the doctor should include a meticulous examination of the oral cavity.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuse protein in the urine of a diabetic whose blood sugar is controlled by oral medication. Can the protein amount vary from test to test, or is this progressive?

DEAR READER: Protein in the urine is always abnormal. Healthy kidneys conserve protein, so when this substance appears in the urine, doctors usually conclude that the kidneys are not functioning effi-

Although healthy people may, on rare occasions, show a trace of urinary protein, the consistent presence of this substance warrants medical testing, including blood examinations and kidney X-rays

Diabetics often "spill" protein because diabetes damages the kidneys. To a degree, this is to be expected, even in diabetics whose disease is well-controlled.

However, if large amounts of protein are chronically present in the urine, such patients should, in my view, be examined by nephrologists. In particular,

You pass, your partner opens, say, one club and you make a jump shift to two diamonds, two hearts or two spades. What does your bid mean?

Perhaps you answered "a maximum pass with a decent suit. " But that is only partly right. With almost all hands, you should make your normal response at the one-level. True, because you are a passed hand. your partner might pass. But he shouldn't if there is any chance of game.

A jump shift by a passed hand shows a maximum pass with length in the suit bid and in the suit partner has bid. Classically. you have five cards in the suit you have bid, four cards in partner's suit and most of your points in the two suits. This is called a fit-showing jump.

The North hand in today's diagram is a textbook example. And South, despite minimum count, jumps to game because of the known double fit. When you have a double fit, usually you can make a game with less than the normal point-count requirement.
