THURSDAY, JULY 12.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

RICH RELATIONSHIPS—Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman.—Prov. 7:4.

PRAYER—Gracious is the Lord and righteous. Yes, our God is merciful.

Al Smith is called the "Happy Warrior." We hope he is still in a good humor after the election.

Woman Killed in Auto Crash; Driver Held-headline. What was it, drunken driver, or puppy love?

There's no royal road to success, but there are a great many just ordinary political roads running in that direction.

Captain Lowenstein continues among those missing. He is now said to have dropped from the plane in a parachute.

We understand that Forrest Lake is highly incensed at the linking of his name with George DeCottet in that editorial last night.

"Carlton can appoint 604 state officers," declares a headline in the Eau Gallie Record. That is, he can if the Hathaway papers will let him.

According to Republican leaders Hoover can lose in the East and still win the election. We would not advise him to conduct his campaign on that basis.

The question everyone is asking now: "Why should the hard-up City of Sanford pay its city attorney more than the metropolitan city of Jacksonville pays its?"

Oregon's elected president of Mexico last Sunday. It was not necessary to count the second choice bullet.—Palm Beach Times. The second choice in Mexico is a matter of knives, not bullets.

If the pugnacious but pusillanimous editor of the Signal really wants to show his courage in journalism, we suggest that he call someone a liar to his face instead of fitting it in his paper.

An epidemic of the extravagant and bothersome signal lights seems about to seize Sanford. Personally we are of the opinion that drunken driving is far more potent evil to be curbed than reckless driving at intersections.

It appears that immediately before his "death" Captain Lowenstein drew out of the bank some five hundred thousand dollars in cash. That's a large amount of money to jump out of an airplane with.

We have had so many people come in to tell us goodbye during the past few days that we are beginning to believe there really are some people who take Mr. DeCottet seriously.

It would seem to us that navigators of a dirigible flying low over the ice floe on which Nobile's crew languishes, could drop rope ladders and rescue the surviving members, were it not customary to delay practical methods until too late.

"I can't marry every man I know," Peggy Joyce replied to a newspaper interviewer's question the other day. She might have added, "But I can try."—Sarasota Times. And she can bluff the rest of them into thinking that she is going to marry them.

Jacksonville has a splendid organization which is called the "Believers in Jacksonville". Sanford should have such an organization. Believers, we mean, in the fundamental economic wealth of Sanford, in the matchless healthful conditions of this locality, in the wholesomeness and progressiveness of most of the people who make up this community.

Just about this time of the year, some twenty years ago, the Sanford Chronicle carried this interesting suggestion: "If a certain beautiful, piqued and gay woman of this city would but seriously reflect on what a loathsome carcass she must ere long become in the grave, amidst worms and corruption, it would tend to mortify her pride, lessen her vanity, and teach her to be humble."—Tampa Times

Farewell To Bolters

Referring to the apparent tendency on the part of certain Southerners to bolt the Democratic party on account of their dislike for the nominee, the Orlando Sentinel, in an able editorial, calling attention to the principles of Democratic government, has this to say:

"In the United States of America the day of sectionalism is forever dead. There is no North nor South nor East nor West, but one America. The Democratic party is a national unit, not a thing of disintegrated or confederated, if you please, sections. Democracy must be Democracy all over this Union; and if there be a minority group banding to preserve the ideals and unity of Southern Democracy they are doing neither by repudiating the overwhelmingly elected nominee. The fundamental virtue of Southern Democrats has ever been loyalty.

"They declare against a third party. Then either they must vote for the nominee of the Prohibition party or for the nominee of the Republican party; or else not vote at all for president. The instruction will probably be, 'vote for Hoover,' though they assert that Southern Democrats are not asked to become Republicans. If these men and their followers vote for the Republican nominee, they are voting to keep the Republican party and its principles in power for another four years. If it does not constitute going Republican in national issues what does it constitute? It is but the adoption of the policy of those Republicans in Florida who vote the Democratic ticket on State and local issues, but the Republican ticket on national issues.

"As to the goal expressed, the election of dry Democratic senatorial, congressional and state nominees, all loyal Southern Democrats agree. But they repudiate any attempt to override the decision of more than two-thirds of the national convention, and deny that Governor Smith is a Tammany candidate; but affirm that he is the choice of the Democratic majority and as such is ethically entitled to the support of all who bear the name of Democrat. Further they avow their belief in the absolute separation of Church and State and that any body called together by ecclesiastics to compass the defeat of the Democratic party in the general election is contrary to the spirit of the constitution of the United States of America, without party standing, and repugnant to the central principles of Democratic government.

"We write not with bitterness or with malice; but in sober thought and with sorrow. If they so feel, let them depart as irreconcilables; but we beg the rank and file to consider well whether this ecclesiastically led political secession tends. For secession it is however it may be camouflaged with words."

Silly Adventures

Morton Hoyt, wealthy young clubman, who jumped from the deck of a trans-Atlantic liner into the icy waters off the Grand Banks, and was finally rescued after 30 minutes of floating about, declared to Washington reporters that he was only trying to prove that there was no danger for a good swimmer in fair weather.

The fact that Mr. Hoyt was successful in beating the tremendous odds against such a feat does not prove that it would be advisable for others to attempt to leave a ship two hundred miles at sea and expect to be picked up. At such a distance from shore the ocean gets very big and hunting for a man, especially at night, presents a task, the successful fulfillment of which is little less than miraculous.

In fact, it would seem to be from divine providence, that the pilot of a huge steamer could swing his boat in a large circle, after he had heard the cry of "man overboard," and return through the murky night to the exact spot where the youth was floating.

Why young Hoyt chose the deck of a passenger ship from which to make his experiment, he did not divulge but it is more suitable location could have been found and would have been found by any one who was not suffering from a mental aberration. Perhaps Mr. Hoyt did not take into consideration the enormous cost of maneuvering and stopping a big ship, the delay and confusion it would cause the passengers, and finally the suspicion which such foolishness would arouse in sensible people.

RETIRING FRANK HARRIS

For more than sixty years the editor of this paper has been part and parcel of the Ocala Banner in one capacity or another.

It is now and has been for a long time recognized as Ocala's oldest landmark. Through vicissitudes of fire, frost, and bank failures, it has survived every other institution. There is not living a single person in any profession, fiscal, financial, mercantile, or business occupation of any kind here that was here when this paper was founded.

The editor of this paper, though delicate and frail at the beginning of his career, has outlived all of his contemporaries, but now that he can no longer read printed page or with pen or pencil follow the dotted line, and the tapes of memory make dictation troublesome, so he surrenders his position to other hands. In doing so, he has the fullest confidence in his successor.

Frank Harris Jr. will continue as business director and business manager. Born and reared in Ocala, his father is proud to say he has led a blameless life, and one of which any parent may be proud.

To William Harris Powers, our grandson, we surrender the editorial chair. Also born in Ocala he is the son of the late Dr. William H. Powers, a popular physician of this city, and is a grandson of Stephen Powers, an author of note, and for a long time agricultural editor of the Florida Times-Union and Citizen. He attended the University of Florida and Northwest University where he received a B. S. degree in journalism.

In retiring, we hope that the same measure of consideration will be given our successor, as has been accorded us for we believe he will make the paper a beacon light along the lines of toleration and good journalism.

We also wish to express our sincere thanks for the many courtesies and expressions of good will that have been so universally bestowed on us and we hope that we have lived to deserve them.

With a wish for an enlarged tolerance and the spread of universal happiness, I am, FRANK HARRIS

A WISE MOVE LAKE WORTH HERALD

Disgusted and impatient with the handling given bond funds which they were required by law to intrust to the handling of special trustees, the county commissioners took drastic action at their meeting Thursday and called for the resignation of every bond trustee in Palm Beach county. They declared their intention of putting into safe keeping of trust companies the county board can demand adequate security, exercising an active supervision over the funds at all times.

It is a wise move. Some of the trustees, possibly, have taken their responsibility seriously, but if that be true very few of them have come to light so far. In taking the action recorded at Thursday's meeting, the board evoked an act of the 1927 Legislature which gives the commission the right to designate trust companies instead of individuals to handle trust funds.

The commission under date of June 25, called on every trustee for an accounting. It is a sad commentary in their faithfulness in line of duty that only one trustee has replied to date and the only thing he could say was that another trustee had the books, and he was away on vacation!

The board is so serious in its intention to get the county's financial house in order that it is believed the commissioners will declare vacant the places of any trustee who refuses to resign, or fails or may even take the matter to court to have their places declared vacant.

Bond funds are sacred, and should be so considered and handled by every person charged with their safe keeping.

FEW BANK FAILURES IN FLORIDA ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

Recent failure of three banks on the East Coast to open their doors for business will give the knockers on Florida another chance to renew their assault. The failure of the banks in Florida will no doubt be prominently displayed in some northern newspapers and given greater prominence than would be accorded bank failures in other states.

Actual statistics show that Florida has had very few bank failures and is in better condition in that respect than most states. Rose Petals, a new publication in Orlando with Walter Rose as editor, had the following in last week's issue regarding bank failures in the nation as a whole: "You have heard a lot about bank failures in Florida. Every time a small Florida bank closed news was broadcast all over the country because the eyes of the country were focused on our problems. By the time the stories reached northern centers they were magnified a hundred times. People thought Florida must be absolutely flat and down and out."

Let's see what the record shows. In the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1927, the total number of banks, including both state and national banks, which failed in the whole country was 1,333. Of that number just 24 failed in Florida. A comparison with ten other states, in sections of the country supposed to be well established financially shows that bank failures from 41 to 161 (for the same state) but we must have some figures of comparison and the figures are as follows: Total U. S. bank failures 1,333; Florida, 24; New York, 103; South Carolina, 83; North Carolina, 97; Missouri, 97; South Dakota, 103; Georgia, 134; Minnesota, 161; Iowa, 161.

Florida is financially the few failures that have been proved this year. Banks would not be in view of the unusual conditions that existed in 1924 and 1925. The number of failures has been very small in number and amount of money involved, and most of Florida generally are on a solid foundation and managed."
