Impact Of Strike Is Light

The air traffic controllers' walkout has had little impact in Sanford so far, but its effects already are being felt at Orlando International Airport, according to an Evening Herald survey.

Wallace Cress, air traffic controller at the Sanford Airport, said he has noticed "very little change" in service. "The clearances at Sanford have been prompt and on time, and I don't think there will be any real problem," Cress said.

Air controllers at Sanford Airport are FAA-certified, but they are not paid by the FAA. They are employed by the city of Sanford, Cress explained, and therefore are not participating in the strike, which began this morning.

Randall Sanderson, director of operations at Herndon Airport in Orlando, said, "Everything is very quiet. We don't have any picketing."

Since Herndon is a general aviation airport, meaning a non-air carrier airport, operations there are routine, said Gerrie Cook, a member of the public relations staff of the Southern Region of the FAA.

headquartered in Atlanta. She said she foresaw little change in the airport's operations because of the strike.

However, Carolyn Sennell, community relations director for Orlando International Airport, said, "Basically I believe there have been some alterations in flight schedules here, but the direct air service bottlenecks will be in Atlanta and Miami."

"I would advise any passengers who are taking flights out of here, or meeting people flying in, to first check with their airlines or come to the airport to obtain more information," she said.

Some of the air traffic controllers are participating in the strike. The exact number was not available this morning.

Randy Rogers, ticket agent at the Sanford AMTRAK station, said the strike "is bound to have some effect" on the volume of passenger traffic. "But right now, I'd say it's a little too early to tell." He did say that he had been receiving "a lot of calls" from people inquiring about service schedules.

Reagan Threatens Firings

Air Controllers Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air traffic controllers walked off the job just after dawn today in defiance of a back-to-work order. President Reagan ordered the government to impound their strike fund and to try to decertify their union.

Reagan, during a speech at the White House, threatened to fire the striking air traffic controllers unless they return to work within 48 hours.

Reagan said air traffic controllers by law are prohibited from striking because they provide a vital protective service. "It is for this reason I must tell those who failed to report for duty this morning they are in violation of the law and if they do not report for work within 48 hours they have forfeited their jobs and will be terminated," the President said.

The Federal Aviation Administration said it asked the major commercial airlines to reduce their flights by 50 percent. "We hope to ease that later," a spokesman said.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Green ordered officials of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization to appear in court at 5 p.m. EDT today to show cause why union members should not be held in contempt of court for violating its back-to-work order.

The Justice Department had obtained the temporary restraining order before the strike began, at about 7 a.m. local time, since it is illegal for federal employees to strike.

"We are bringing the full force of the Justice Department down on the controllers," said Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis.

The strike forced one airline — Pittsburgh-based USAir — to cancel all of its flights until at least noon. Other airlines tried to continue their normal flight schedules, as supervisory personnel took over for the striking controllers.

Of the 17,000 controllers nationwide, 15,000 are members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

Train and bus lines reported their switchboards flooded with inquiries and reservations, and many people booked flights Sunday night to be sure of getting to distant cities before the strike today.

"I don't want to get stuck ... or have to ride a bus all the way home," said Frank Singleton, a Detroit businessman who was in New Orleans, but heading to Albuquerque, N.M., on the next leg of his trip.

The strike could ground more than half the nation's 800,000 daily air passengers, cost the airline industry $80 million a day and idle up to 65 percent of all air traffic.

The FAA said it had 2,400 supervisors and 150 military controllers available to replace the striking controllers, but they could handle only 40 to 50 percent of all air carrier flights. Most of the flights under 500 miles would be grounded.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was "personally disappointed" at the walkout and directed decertification of PATCO and impoundment of the strike fund.

Seniors Demand In Petition

Don't Decrease Elderly Benefits

A Seminole County Federation of Senior Citizens committee is collecting signatures on petitions demanding that federal authorities "keep hands off" the social security system.

They have set a deadline of Aug. 15 to gain 5,000 signatures on the petition in Seminole County. Some 3,000 signatures have been obtained so far in the effort which began four weeks ago, said Frank Joyce of Winter Springs, chairman of the committee.

Joyce is not a senior citizen himself, but being 100 percent disabled is vitally interested in the social security program. Joyce said the committee when it began the petition drive planned to submit the petitions to U. S. Rep. Bill McCollum.

However, since McCollum has said he favors phasing out a $122 monthly minimum benefit, the petition will be submitted to someone else, according to Joyce. They have not decided to whom the petition will be presented.

"We just want the federal authorities to keep their hands off the Social Security System," Martin Bacon Sr. said. "We want them to leave it alone the way it is."

On the committee with Joyce are: John Kurzer, president of the Federation of Senior Citizens, Gene Duffey, unsuccessful candidate for clerk of the circuit court last year; Bacon, a former Lake Mary city councilman, who represents the retired bakery workers of Central Florida and Bill McGarry, representing the retired iron workers of Central Florida.

Joyce said 16 organizations within the county are working on the petition drive. The wording of the petition is as follows:

"This petition is sponsored by a group of private citizens so that those seniors who are totally dependent upon their social security income may retain their dignity and not become welfare recipients.

"We who have contributed to the social security system for so many years have completely relied on our faith in the United States government so that if we live to retire, we could remain independent.

"Unfortunately, many who live to retire have an increased burden of medical costs which Medicare does not pay.

"Utilities, taxes, food, transportation are constantly on the rise. If we are lucky enough to own a home, upkeep is also rising.

"We are not seeking luxuries, but need to feel secure to be able to take care of the real necessities.

"It is far cheaper for the government to give the increase in cost of living allowance to seniors than to have a possible alternative which would be an institution and eventually cost the government more money.

"Someday everyone if they survive, will become a senior citizen. Do you want to look to the future with fear and apprehension?

"We therefore urge you to consider this petition and maintain the social security system in the manner in which it was intended, and allow us to live our years out in dignity and grant the cost of living increase as provided by law and not consider any reductions for the cost of living allowance. Remember 99 percent of the money paid out in social security payments is circulated back into the economy."

Joyce asked that those wishing to help circulate the petitions or to sign the petitions to contact him at: 71 Bombay Ave., Winter Springs, 32708 or to call him at 327-4792. — DONNA ESTES

Army Rebels In Bolivian Coup

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Two army divisions rebelled today in at least the fourth attempt to oust President Luis Garcia Meza since he came to power in a military coup a year ago, a rebel radio station said.

The rebel radio station in the eastern city of Santa Cruz said the uprising was led by exiled Gen. Alberto Natusch Bush, who at various times has been reported in the country in hiding while he organized rebels, and Gen. Lucio Anez. Natusch attempted a coup d'etat in 1979, but managed to hold the presidency for only two weeks.

Military sources said Santa Cruz, a traditional organizing city for military rebels, was the base of the latest pre-dawn coup attempt.

A rebel communique denounced the alleged involvement of the Garcia government in the international drug traffic and asked for the restoration of civil liberties and an economic reconstruction program.

In La Paz, business activity was normal. The official radio news network made no mention of the coup attempt.

A rebel radio communique said two army divisions, the 8th based in Santa Cruz and the 4th based in Villamontes, were involved in the rebellion and it called on other commanders to join, promising "unity and national dignity."

The rebels outlined a five-point program to re-establish civil liberties, restore a free press, initiate an emergency economic plan, launch a campaign of "moralization" and create "a stable democracy with solidarity."

Garcia Meza, the army commander, seized power from a civilian government on July 17, 1980.

He had announced in June he would leave office Aug. 6 in favor of a new president, but reversed himself and declared that he himself was to be the successor. The ruling junta backed Garcia Meza.

On June 27, Garcia Meza crushed an attempted coup led by his main rival, army commander Gen. Humberto Cayoja, who was exiled to Argentina with Anez, the army chief of staff.

There were at least three other attempted uprisings prior to Cayoja's fiasco.

Bolivian voters have not selected a president since 1966, and since that year the country has had fewer than 11 months of civilian rule by Congress-appointed caretakers.

More ramps for the handicapped are to be installed in Sanford

More Ramps To Be Built

The city of Sanford has applied for state money to provide 18 additional sidewalk ramps for the handicapped in the downtown area.

An application has been filed for $3,040 in funding from the state Department of Community Affairs. This would pay slightly less than half the cost for labor, materials and equipment to build the new ramps.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said today the city will spend more than $3,000 in labor and equipment for the project.

During the past two years the city has been building ramps for the handicapped in the downtown area and along Sanford Avenue where the highest pedestrian traffic occurs. So far about 40 ramps of this sort have been built in the city.

Knowles said the process involves removing a square of sidewalk and replacing it with a walkway that has no curb and thus is easier for those in wheelchairs to use.

City Commissioner Eddie Keith suggested that part of the funding be used to construct ramps along the lakefront to permit the handicapped to fish from their wheelchairs.

Knowles said, however, that type of ramp would not be considered appropriate for expenditure by the state.

"We are putting down as many ramps for the handicapped as we can," Knowles said, noting it is an expensive process. He estimated the cost of providing ramps at an intersection could be as high as $300.

Airport Noise Complaint Heard, But Officials Offer No Solution

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Hugh Pain of 2620 E. Elm Ave. has complained to Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles and Sanford Airport Manager J.S. "Red" Cleveland that aircraft, specifically in the fleet of the Westinghouse C.A.X. (Caribbean Air Express) are making a great deal of noise upon landing at the air strip.

Pain said today the turbo-prop aircraft have been landing at night occasionally. "And many flights recently appeared to be practice flights," Pain said.

He said he had filed complaints by telephone for himself and many neighbors and was told nothing could be done about the problem.

"Knowles was very courteous and Cleveland said he would try to do something but he wouldn't specify what," Pain said.

Pain, a six-year resident of Elm Avenue, also said he was disturbed by the fact that the city has no direct control over the operation of the airport. The airport, acquired by the city from the federal government in 1968 after the old Sanford Naval Air Station was closed at the site, is operated by an independent airport authority.

Pain said he is not taking his complaint any further. Airport officials say they have received about four complaints in many months.

Jim Hall, general manager of Westinghouse C.A.X. at the airport said today the firm does not normally operate at late hours, but travels as it must to take care of business.

The Westinghouse operation at the airport has been on-going for the past 18 months.

Hall said if aircraft is using the instrument landing approach late at night it can only come in to the east over the most populous areas of the city.

"There is no instrument approach to the other runway. If there is fog or thunderstorms we have to land to the east and obviously this takes us over the most populous area," Hall said. He said there was more than usual activity by Westinghouse C.A.X. weekend before last when semi-annual proficiency checks required by the Federal Aeronautics Administration (FAA) were taking place.

"Normally we just take off and leave and come back," Hall said, noting the firm's aircraft make five-to-six round trips to the Caribbean weekly.

"Normally neighbors shouldn't know we are around here and turbo prop airplanes are normally quieter than pure jet planes," he said.

"We can't have an airfield without flying airplanes in and out. We recognize there is a problem and comply with all the rules and regulations established," he said.

"Westinghouse has always been a good corporate citizen and cognizant of its relationships with the city. There is a fine balance between the kinds of things we can bring to a city and the things the city can do for us. We are not trying to keep people awake."

Gurney Rules Out Another Campaign

WINTER PARK, Fla. (UPI) — Former Sen. Edward Gurney, whose defeat in a congressional race in 1978 is his only political loss, says he has no thoughts of returning to Washington as an elected official but hopes for continued involvement in politics.

Gurney, now working as a stock broker, said in a newspaper interview he still owns an apartment in Washington and lived there a few months last year. "I was just enjoying the nation's capital," he said. "I still see the fellows — I go up to the Senate dining room and eat."

Gurney, 67, did not seek reelection to the Senate in 1974 after he was indicted on charges of participating in a campaign contribution shakedown scheme. He was acquitted of all charges but said the charges and trial destroyed his political career.

"I was doing well before the ceiling fell in," Gurney said. "My whole career was destroyed for nothing."

He lost the 1978 congressional race to Bill Nelson, a Melbourne Democrat.

"I should not have run in 1978," Gurney said. "I should have followed my instincts. But I gave in against my better judgment. When you get in politics, there are people who believe if you're indicted for a crime, you're guilty."

"I wish I hadn't run," he said. "I could have said I'd never lost an election, which I hadn't, until then."

The Winter Park Republican said it would have been fun to have still been in Congress following the Republican gains this past election.

"It isn't too much fun to spend your entire political lifetime on the losing side," he said. "I'd be chairman of a committee now."

Gurney said he became a stock broker because he was bored with being an attorney.

"I was bored stiff doing nothing," he said. "I am a lawyer by profession, but practicing law kind of bored me."

He said he tried selling real estate for awhile but "it just didn't turn me on."

Toupee Tightening

DENVER (UPI) — An inmate in the Denver County Jail has received court permission to have his toupee lightened every two months.

Wayne L. Gregory, 27, is serving eight years on a conviction of criminal solicitation for hiring a hitman in an unsuccessful attempt to kill his ex-girlfriend. Until last week, most jail inmates believed Gregory's full head of hair was natural.

NATION IN BRIEF

Kennedy Vows Last-Minute Fight On Reagan's Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., are at odds over the biggest tax cut in history. While Reagan says it is vital for a healthy economy, Kennedy says it is slanted for oil companies.

The Senate is scheduled to vote today on the final version of Reagan's prized tax bill, but before certain passage occurs a major battle — with Kennedy in a leading role — is likely.

Kennedy wants to send the bill back to a House-Senate conference committee to eliminate what he calls unfair tax breaks for the oil industry. But his chances of success in the Republican-dominated Senate seem nil.

"We want the conferees to go back into conference," Kennedy said, describing the $31 billion that would go to the oil companies as "unfair, unjust and unwarranted."

"Working men and women are having a hard time making ends meet," he said. "Then when untold billions go for oil, I say that's wrong."

Refugees In New Home

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Some 200 Haitian refugees will spend their first day today at the Federal Correctional Institution near Lexington after being transferred from a Miami detention center to relieve overcrowding.

The refugees spent most of Sunday being processed by prison officials and settling in to their separate dormitory — which will keep them isolated from the remaining 950 prisoners at this minimum security prison about five miles outside Lexington.

The dormitory is listed as having a capacity for 188 persons, but a prison official said there was plenty of room.

Husband Found Hanged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The husband of NBC-TV correspondent Jessica Savitch apparently committed suicide by hanging himself in the basement of the couple's fashionable town house, police say.

Dr. Donald Hollie Payne, 45, a gynecologist and obstetrician, was found unconscious by his wife when she returned from New York Sunday morning. Emergency personnel were unable to revive him.

"Foul play is not suspected," said Police Lt. W.O. Ritchie. Police refused to comment on whether a suicide note was left.

AFL-CIO Against Tax Plan

CHICAGO (UPI) — The AFL-CIO refuses to be awed by President Reagan's congressional success on his economic program, releasing a report today that calls it "a bonanza for the rich and disaster for the poor."

Although one major union leader compared Reagan's tactics to those of the late Lyndon Johnson, a friend of labor, he also predicted the impact could bring urban riots within two years similar to those that hit England.

Administration economic policy was the chief topic as leaders of the 15 million member federation, buoyed by the return of the 1.3 million-member United Auto Workers union after a 13-year absence, assembled at the Hyatt Regency Chicago for their annual mid-summer meeting.

Donovan Refuses Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan has refused a Senate subcommittee request to have his department investigate whether indicted Teamsters union President Roy Lee Williams should be removed from office, the panel said Sunday.

Donovan's decision, which he said was made on advice of department Solicitor Tim Ryan, brought an angry response from Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who headed a Teamsters probe last year by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

Nunn said Donovan's policy was similar to decisions by the Labor Department during past Democratic and Republican administrations.

"In summary, it is a hands-off policy, designed more to protect the interests of the union hierarchy than the rank and file," Nunn said. "The department's hands off policy has been, and continues to be, a mistake."

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Thunderstorms dotted the eastern half of the nation Sunday from Florida to South Dakota but mild summer weather prevailed most everywhere else. Heaviest showers were from across the Upper Midwest from Wisconsin into South Dakota. Flash flood watches were posted from southwest Wisconsin and across much of northwest Kansas.

Lightning Saturday struck and killed Sharon Remmeried, 17, Tilden, Neb., who was running through a bean field six miles south of the northeast Nebraska town.

AREA READINGS (9 a.m.): temperature: 80; overnight low: 73; Sunday's high: 90; barometric pressure: 30.05; relative humidity: 74 percent; winds: South East at 8 mph.

Shots Fired At Man On Leisurely Stroll

It's getting so that a man can't even go for a leisurely evening stroll.

Take Cleveland Mitchell, for example. Mitchell, 32, of Orlando, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that he was walking along State Road 431 and Arietta Street in Altamonte Springs about 10:15 p.m. Saturday when he was shot at twice from a passing vehicle.

Deputies said they have no motive for the assault, but said they are searching for an Eatonville man for questioning.

A DOGGONE CRIME

Sometime late Thursday or early Friday, someone cut the fence at the Seminole County animal control center at Five Points and released two dogs — a Doberman pinscher and a mixed-breed German shepherd.

The Doberman was recaptured, but the shepherd remains at large.

Anaconda and reptile keeper, Lisa Huey

Snake Survives

When mysterious lumps were found within the body of the Central Florida Zoo's rare Yellow Anaconda, Zoo Officials were puzzled.

The seven foot South American constrictor had not been eating well and the lumps were believed to be the reason. The reptile keepers immediately took her to the Zoo's resident vet, who after giving her a thorough examination consisting of poking, pinching and probing, was just as puzzled as was the Zoo Staff.

This was a case for an expert in the field of reptile maladies, and the Zoo's vet recommended just the right person. The serpent was transferred to the care of an Orlando vet, an animal doctor skilled in the treatment of scaly patients. X-rays solved the mystery of the lumps... Anaconda embryos lodged in the snake's egg tract. The developing offspring were at various stages of formation, but due to the blockage, were all dead.

Major surgery was needed to remove the embryos if the snake were to survive. Even with the operation, the prognosis looked dim, with the doctor giving the Anaconda only a 20 percent chance of recovering.

But without treatment, she would surely die. So the decision was made to proceed. Since this could well have been the first such operation ever performed, the vet could not consult any readily available literature on the subject.

Not only did she survive the ordeal, but soon after the stitches were removed, she shed her skin and began eating normally.

The female Anaconda is back on display at the Central Florida Zoo, sharing her roomy compartment with two others of her species.

Chester West of 97 Tollgate Trail, told deputies that the burglary occurred between noon and 6 p.m. when someone broke out a kitchen window and entered his home.

Stolen was various items of jewelry — including an $8,000 platinum and diamond bracelet — with a total estimated value of $9,950.

Deputies theorize that the theft was committed by someone posing as a repairman for the Winter Park Telephone Co. An old telephone company van, which company officials say is no longer in use, was seen parked outside West's house for over an hour Saturday.

UNGRATEFUL HITCHHIKER

Clifford Wade Williams picked up a hitchhiker near his home Saturday night and was robbed by his passenger.

Williams, 20, of 333 Crystal Circle Drive, told sheriff's deputies that he picked up the man on State Road 426 in Ovelto, and as he drove through the Geneva area his car became stuck in some sand on Lake Harney Drive.

At that point, Williams said, the hitchhiker threatened to beat him up if he didn't surrender his wallet and watch. Williams complied and the man fled into the woods.

He must have returned later, however, because Williams said he found his wallet minus $2 by his car the next day.

Golden Age Games Viewed As An Example To Follow

Dr. Richard O. Keelor, director of the program development for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, was in the state this past week promoting Sanford's Golden Age Games and the first National Conference on Fitness and Aging to be held Sept. 10 in Washington, D. C.

"I'm promoting the concept of the importance of physical activity and its relation to the conditions that plague older people such as the lack of mobility and reduced independence," Keelor said Friday.

"Intensive care of the elderly represents the largest health care cost for 20 million Americans," he said. "When they stay active and eat properly they can maintain vigor, stamina and strength with significant emotional and psychological parallels."

"I've seen no better example that what goes on in Sanford at the Golden Age Games," said Keelor, who was here for last year's event. "The Golden Age Games will be featured at the National Conference on Fitness and Aging as a simple low cost activity that shows how things can be accomplished at the grassroots level."

The Golden Age Games will be represented at the conference by Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Horner and Golden Age Games chairman Jim Jernigan, who also is Sanford's Parks and Recreation director.

Keelor said he hopes to be back again this year if his schedule permits for the Golden Age Games to be held here Nov. 9-14 for men and women 55 and older.

"One of the great things about events like the Golden Age Games is the positive effect they have all year, he said. "They give the older people something to look forward to, to plan for in anticipation of something that is joyful, playful, vigorous and exciting where everyone is having a good time. It changes their whole outlook" and gives them an incentive for keeping fit all year."

"The Golden Age Games are a celebration of a lifestyle committed to personal health and vigor," Keelor said. "Everyone is a winner."

Keelor added, "The President's Council is so happy and thankful for the good work of Post Cereals and all the leadership in Sanford, it's a great evidence of the President's concept for health and fitness of getting back to personal responsibility. Nothing manifests this better than all your citizens involved in the Golden Age Games."

To an older adult wishing to initiate a personal fitness program Keelor has this advice:

— Consult a physician to make sure there is no condition that might make vigorous exercise inadvisable.

— Start slowly with moderate exercise. Walking at regular intervals during the week is good exercise, but don't become overly fatigued.

— Work out with an exercise group from the YMCA or senior citizen group for the social interaction and group support.

— Get involved in a good exercise program, such as may be offered at extension day care centers, city recreation department of a community college. — JANE CASSELBERRY

Researchers Believe They Have Found The Ark Of The Covenant

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — The first known Ark of the Covenant from ancient Palestine has been found at Nabratein in Upper Galilee, a team of researchers from Duke University and the University of South Florida says.

A professor in the Duke religion department made the announcement Saturday, saying although only a portion of the artifact had been recovered, it was a significant find because it was the first such discovery of its kind.

"Even though only the uppermost portion survives, this is the first intact Ark of the Covenant that has been recovered from ancient remains," said Dr. Eric Meyers, who also served as director of the archeological team that made the find.

Arks were used in synagogues to hold the Pentateuch — the first five books of the Torah, or Old Testament and symbolized the place of divine presence, Meyers said.

They were kept behind curtains in the most sacred sections of ancient temples and were displayed publicly once a year on Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

In addition to Meyers, others involved in the discovery included his wife, Dr. Carol Meyers, an assistant religion professor at Duke, and Dr. James P. Strange, dean of the college of arts and letters at USF.

The ark portion discovered by the team is made of white limestone and weighs a half-ton. It features two lions standing astride a gabled roof and a scallop shell.

Arks are derived from the original Ark of the Old Testament, an ornate gold-plated chest. According to scriptural accounts, it contained the stone tablets of the Ten Commandments Moses brought down from Mount Sinai to the people of Israel.

The Israelites often carried the Ark of the Old Testament into battle.

The term "ark" has become prominent in recent months because of the release of a popular movie, "Raiders of the Lost Ark," which depicts a search for a mythical ark that would make its owner invincible in battle.

Eric Meyers said discovery of a real ark, made earlier this year, is important because a similar engraving was found last year at Nabratein on a black ceramic bowl dating back to the sixth century.

The ark was found in buried in the prayer platform of a synagogue that replaced an earlier one damaged in an earthquake in A.D. 303.

"The placement of the ark shows how much succeeding generations venerated it," Meyers said. "Although the earlier building could no longer be used, the ark was kept in the most sacred part of the subsequent building."

AREA DEATHS

MR. FLOYD PALMER

Mr. Floyd A. Palmer, 88, of 535 Valencia Drive, Sanford, died early today at Seminole Memorial Hospital following a long illness. Born Jan. 31, 1893, in Grundy Center, Iowa, he came to Sanford in 1923 with his late wife, Olga Schultz Palmer.

He had been associated as a special agent with the Prudential Insurance Co. since 1943 and recently retired. He was an active member of the Sanford Kiwanis Club and belonged to Holy Cross Episcopal Church. He was a sports enthusiast stemming from his active participation and association with the Florida State Baseball League in the 1930s and 1940s. He is a past president of the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees in the 1920s when the Florida State Jaycees were founded.

Ulster's Bloody Sunday:

2 Soldiers, IRA Fester Dead

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Rioters fired Soviet-made rocket grenades at British soldiers in street battles raging into the early hours today in a bloody reprisal for the weekend deaths of two IRA hunger strikers — the seventh and eighth fasters to die.

The bloody Sunday riot left two British soldiers dead from an exploding land mine and a third wounded seriously in both legs when a Soviet-made RPG rocket smashed into an armored personnel carrier. Three other people were wounded in the wild rioting against backdrop of flaming barricades.

In the macabre chain of hunger fast deaths to gain political prisoner status, Kieran Doherty, 25, an IRA member who was elected to the Irish Parliament from his Maze Prison cell, died Sunday on the 73rd day of his hunger strike, after Kevin Lynch, 25, succumbed Saturday after 71 days.

Eight hours before Doherty died at 7:15 p.m., an IRA land mine killed two policemen in County Tyrone, about 45 miles west of Belfast. The bomb, hidden in a culvert, exploded underneath the police car. The dead officers were Andrew Woods, 50, and John Smith, 34. Woods was the father of six, Smith of three. Later, a British soldier was badly wounded when a Soviet-made RPG-7 rocket smashed into a trooper carrier. An unidentified young girl was also seriously injured in the attack, police said.

Poland Nears Brink, Again

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland's Communist government vowed to use the army to stamp out black marketeering and bluntly warned Solidarity that hunger marches and strikes scheduled this week over food shortages could lead to a "national tragedy."

The official PAP news agency announced Poland's top military chiefs met Sunday to discuss the "deteriorating, adverse and dangerous" nature of the demonstrations, and the government summoned top leadership of Solidarity to an urgent meeting today.

But in what was shaping up as a major confrontation, Warsaw's transport workers were rerouting their vehicles, planning to converge their municipal buses, taxis and trucks on Warsaw City Hall to protest the food crisis while Solidarity was meeting with the government.

Jawara Plans Hostage Rescue

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Fresh from crushing a leftist coup with the help of Senegalese troops, President Dawda Kairaba Jawara of Gambia today considered a decisive attack against the remaining rebels holding 29 hostages, including his wife and eight children under threat of execution, diplomats said.

The insurgents apparently rejected an offer by Jawara that they would be given "the most human treatment" if they laid down their arms, diplomatic reports reaching Dakar said.

But Jawara, who asked Senegalese troops to intervene, flew from Dakar to the Gambian capital of Banjul Sunday night, warning "if a hand touches one of the hostages, a total and terrible punishment will follow."

Graham Fumes Over Decision To End Land Purchases

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham and state Natural Resources Department officials are fuming over U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt's decision to end federal purchases of endangered Florida land.

The new federal policy, state officials say, could halt plans for dozens of large and small projects around the state.

It could jeopardize the Biscayne National Park, leave about 10,000 privately owned acres in the middle of the Big Cypress Preserve, halt completion of the Cape Canaveral National Seashore and jeopardize several projects still in early stages — including Crocodile Lake National Preserve, the Lower Suwannee National Refuge, and the purchase of manatee habitats in Citrus County and Florida Key deer in Monroe.

"The federal government made commitments on these projects and we have been depending on those commitments," Dick Ludington, director of DNR's Division of State Lands, said over the weekend.

Ludington and other state officials say Watt broke moral and possibly legal commitments in deciding to end federal environmentally endangered land purchases and, in some cases, to sell federally owned land to private interests.

Picnic Ends In Shootout

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Fort Lauderdale police say a neighborhood feud that boiled over left two men dead and two women injured during the weekend.

They were shot by a neighbor while they picnicked in their backyard, police say. The neighbor, Donald Misconis, is in jail without bond this morning, facing charges in the shootings.

"Apparently the guy went berserk," said George Crolius, a spokesman for the Broward Sheriff's Department. "Apparently it was the culmination of a long-running neighborhood dispute between the two families. We don't know what it was about."

Dead are Harry Howell, 23, and his brother Mark, who was on leave from the military when they were shot Saturday night.

Harry Howell's wife, Cindy, 18, and Mark's wife were also shot and were taken to Holy Cross Hospital. Police said Misconis, armed with a rifle, opened fire on the Howells during a backyard picnic. Police said Harry and Cindy Howell have two young children but they were not hurt.

"It sounded like a chain of firecrackers, then we heard the kids screaming," said one neighbor.

Bani-Sadr Sees Khomeini Ouster

United Press International Ousted Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr ordered the guerrilla leader who hid him to set up a government-in-exile and predicted the army will overthrow the "tyrannical" Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. In Tehran, Mohammed Ali Rajai was officially named Bani-Sadr's successor.

In a telephone interview Sunday with UPI from Paris, the head of Iran's leftist Mojahideen-e-Khalq guerrillas, Massoud Rajavi, said Bani-Sadr, who fled to Paris last week, had approved a draft of a new constitution and ordered him to set up a government-in-exile.

Rajavi said he was asked to form a National Resistance Council to bring all democratic, nationalistic and Islamic forces together "to make an Iran in which there will be no tutelage, no censorship, no injustice — and no dictatorship."

The official Pars news agency said Khomeini endorsed Rajai as Iran's second democratically elected president, following general elections July 24, in which the interior ministry said Rajai won 13 million of the 14.8 million votes cast.

Khomeini issued a decree legalizing the vote and called on the new president to abide by the laws of Islam, the Iranian constitution, the interests of the nation and God's orders.

"If, God forbid, he should act to the contrary, I shall take away the legality (of his appointment)," Pars quoted Khomeini as saying. Bani-Sadr had been ousted by Muslim fundamentalists who accused the moderate president of being too pro-Western.

In an interview in Britain's Sunday Times newspaper, the exiled Bani-Sadr branded the rule of Khomeini "the most tyrannical in our history."

Bani-Sadr claimed the backing of "at least 80 percent of the people," saying Khomeini has lost effective control of the country and predicted "the full collapse of the (Iranian) economy" by the end of the summer.

He anticipated the left-wing Mojahideen guerrillas and other dissident groups would "eliminate Khomeini's officials" throughout the country. Iran will reach full-blown crisis and the armed forces will intervene "to respond to the will of the people and invite the legitimate president to return home," said Bani-Sadr.

However, Bani-Sadr, in a tape made available Sunday by Iranian exiles in Paris, denied being interviewed by the Times reporter, Amir Taheri.

The French foreign ministry has appealed to journalists not to try to talk to Bani-Sadr because of the security of French diplomats and technicians still in Iran.

The ministry reminded the ousted Iranian president that when he was given political asylum in France last Wednesday he signed a paper promising not to make political statements.

Batista's Son Wants To Lead Castro Overthrow

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The jet-setting son of former Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista says he wants to lead the overthrow of Fidel Castro and rule the island nation as his father once did, even though most of the Miami-based anti-Castro groups say they want nothing to do with him.

"As far as I know, I think I am the only Cuban in exile who proclaims he would like to rule his country one day," the 38-year-old Jorge Luis Batista told the Miami Herald.

"And I would do a very good job, not only because I am my father's son, but because of my experiences abroad, my contacts ... and because I think I am the one who has the charisma to do it."

To help achieve that end, Batista, a fashion model, has enrolled in a finishing school. "We have television courses, eye-contact courses, social graces courses," he said. "It is a finishing school. For me, it is a public relations kind of thing. "It will help me lead. I am new to the United States. I want to do things the American way."

Batista came to Fort Lauderdale two years ago after jet-setting his way through Europe, jumping horses, discoing and rubbing shoulders with the rich.

He said he decided to return to Fort Lauderdale to "feel the political heartbeat of my exile compatriots." However, he has not yet made any contacts with the numerous anti-Castro groups based in Miami, and publicly, most of the groups say they will fight Castro's regime without him.

"I respect all the groups," Batista said. "I am not, though, involved with any of them. I would like us all to unite. I would like to be sort of the catalyzer."

Batista said he believes the anti-Castro groups will some day embrace him because of the Cuban expatriates who admired his father.

"It is my hope I can go back to my country one day and run for office. Today, I am very much politically motivated. I think it is carried in the veins."

The Batista family went into exile in the Dominican Republic after fleeing Castro's revolution on New Year's Eve in 1958. They later lived in Portugal and Spain, where the former dictator died in 1972.

Batista denies his father was the cruel ruler many historical accounts show him to have been, although he does admit "excesses may have been committed."

"If he was a cruel man, he had the opportunity to kill Castro twice," he said. "Twice, Castro was caught by the Army. But he didn't (have him killed). And my father's two revolutions were without bloodshed."

"Maybe a problem was that he was not surrounded by the right people later on. Maybe excesses might have been committed. But they were on both sides."

Even though Batista has led the life of the super-rich, wanting for nothing, he refutes reports that his father fled Cuba with up to $300 million.

"People think we are much richer than we are," he said. "We are well off. That is all."

Inviolable Contract

President Reagan inserted a few words about Social Security at the beginning of his address to the nation the night of July 20. He seemed to be pausing to douse a political brush-fire before its smoke could obscure the bigger issue at hand, his tax cut program.

Mr. Reagan is off to a rough start in his effort to foster a bi-partisan solution to the latest financial crisis overtaking the Social Security system. An administration proposal to eliminate the minimum benefit was rebuffed by a vote of 405-13 in the House—a vote taken under the eyes of elderly people jamming the gallery while another 5,000 rallied on the Capital steps.

Dropping the minimum benefit is typical of the reforms that may be necessary to keep Social Security in the black. The show of protest at the Capital is typical of what can be expected at any mention of a cut in benefits.

Social Security now provides retired workers with a minimum benefit of $170 a month, or $122 for widows and other beneficiaries, even if the formula based on a worker's wages and length of employment calls for a smaller benefit.

From the standpoint of maintaining a consistent link between the size of a benefit and the amount a worker has paid in to the system, the minimum benefit is indeed vulnerable. Many of the three-million individuals drawing the minimum benefit are "double dippers" with other support and are, in fact, enjoying an unearned bonus from the Social Security system. And for those who would suffer hardship if their benefit were reduced, there are other programs outside of Social Security which should take care of their needs.

So there is a reasonable argument that a Social Security retirement fund that is running out of money cannot afford to pay a minimum benefit to those who otherwise qualify for less. But what is reasonable from a fiscal standpoint is not always reasonable from a practical standpoint, something which Mr. Reagan's budget-makers overlooked in proposing to cut out the minimum benefit next year.

Mr. Reagan found it necessary to assure his audience that restoring fiscal integrity to the Social Security system would not be done at the expense of you who are now dependent on your monthly checks. This would appear to be his acknowledgment that benefit levels now in place must be viewed as an inviolable contract with those receiving them.

That, too, is not unreasonable, but it leaves both the administration and Congress to find other ways to meet the immediate problem in the retirement fund. The handiest solution may lie in the transfer of funds from the Medicare and disability accounts, which are running a current surplus, to the retirement account. This would buy a few years' time for putting some basic reforms in place.

Those reforms will not break faith with those now drawing a benefit, but they are bound to affect the rate of benefit increases in years to come, as well as the rules for determining eligibility and benefit levels for those who become beneficiaries in the future. If such features as the minimum benefit cannot be sustained, they can be phased out as a promise to workers approaching retirement.

Social Security began as an insurance, program offering no more than a supplement to one's own provision for retirement. With the cooperation of willing lawmakers over the years it was allowed to become more than that in the plans of millions of Americans. The truth emerging for the generation now working and paying into the system is that Social Security in the future will bear more resemblance to its modest beginnings than to the generous program it became.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Let's go see 'Tarzan and Bo Derek' — I mean — or — 'Tarzan, the Ape Man'."

By CONNA ESTES

There are no takers among the governmental units of Seminole County of the request of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement's (FDLE) Central Florida Crime Lab for donation of a 2.5 acre site for a new facility.

Sanford officials explained this past week it does not have property available for either sale or donation to the state for the site. The city government itself is looking into acquiring a five-acre parcel as the new site for its public works complex.

Tom Rucker, purchaser of the 7.5 acre city-owned tract adjacent to the Herald building for development into an apartment complex, has told the city he is interested in acquiring additional land.

While Rucker is getting the seven-plus acres for $130,000, Mayor Lee P. Moore said if the city acquires the five-acre site, this land will not be that inexpensive.

The difference in the two parcels, Moore pointed out, is development cost. The Rucker parcel, a former sanitary landfill, must be upgraded before development. The public works site has already been upgraded, meaning it is more valuable right now, Moore said.

Meanwhile, Lake Mary is willing to consider leasing to the state for its new crime lab on a long term arrangement two acres of the 10-acre city-owned parcel on Rinehart Road acquired three years ago at a cost of $53,000 for a future city hall complex site.

Seminole County would like to help the crime lab and wants it to stay in the county. But, according to County Administrator Roger Neiswender, the county also has no land it can give, sell or lease for that purpose.

The circumstances are a bit different in Volusia County. The Volusia County Council has instructed its staff to begin a search for a site which could be given to the state for the laboratory.

And Dr. Ralph Gunter, executive director of the University of Central Florida's research park, said he is prepared to offer a developed site for the lab at an attractive price.

He said an already developed lot at the park, adjacent to the university, south of Oviedo, is available. If the lab is located at the research park it could have the benefit of the university's forensic and criminology departments.

Sanford has been the home of the Central Florida Crime Lab since it was begun in the early 1970s through the efforts of Seminole Sheriff John Polk with cooperation from other area law enforcement agencies.

FDLE took over control of the lab in 1975.

The Florida Legislature during the 1981 session allocated $240,000 for acquisition of a site and for architectural drawings for a 31,000 square foot facility. If the site is acquired and the plans completed in time, the legislature is to be asked during its 1982 session to allocate money for the facility's construction.

If the crime lab is to stay in Sanford or Seminole County, the state may just have to buy or lease some land.

JEFFREY HART

Gloria Steinem Today

Dartmouth has a regular academic term during the summer, which means a series of outside speakers visiting the campus in the usual way; and a few days ago Gloria Steinem showed up to give a speech in the evening. It was a peculiar occasion.

Steinem, of course, was one of the major feminist figures who emerged during the 1960s, and she is the founder and editor of "Ms." magazine.

I was curious to find out what she is saying in 1981.

She drew a large and enthusiastic crowd of students. At least on the college campus there appears to be a substantial constituency for women's rights issues and for the whole complex of social issues connected with the role of women in the society. Much of the audience looked as if it were on a nostalgia trip back into the '60s: jeans, clogs, no bras, men with their hair in pony tails.

To risk a generalization: most of the men in the audience did not look to be Marine Corps material, and I saw no women of whom one would say, with the late S.J. Perelman, "When she walked down the street, men would hang on lampposts and weep."

Anyway, Gloria Steinem mounted the platform and got behind the podium, long blonde hair, the big owl glasses, loose cotton blouse, jeans, clogs. The whole bag of tricks.

In her speech, however, there was a curious gap. On the one hand, the things that she desires are not especially revolutionary or startling, and indeed most of them are well on the way to being realized.

But, on the other hand, she delivers these demands with an emotional fervor that would have been more appropriate to the storming of the Bastille.

What she wants boils down to the following: women should have equal pay for "comparable" work; they should resist sexual stereotyping, which means, I suppose, that if they want to be stevedores they should feel free to do so; they should have "reproductive freedom," including abortion; if they work, the husband should help with baby and dishes; and the term "family" ought to include various arrangements and not only the usual marriage.

Big deal. The Supreme Court has just ruled affirmatively on the "comparable work" idea, though tricky definitions will have to be worked out.

A lively philosophical and political argument over abortion is going on. Steinem totally ignores the point that in an abortion another entity besides the mother is involved. But women today do have a very large measure of "reproductive freedom." And the same is true of Steinem's other platform planks. We pretty much have them.

What Steinem is therefore forced to do is hype everything up.

She inflates the Moral Majority into some kind of jack-booted bogeyman. The audience shivers with delicious horror. She equates the views of William Buckley—entirely incorrectly—with the Moral Majority positions. Buckley's entire agenda is quite different; but, of course, the audience is ignorant of that fact. It knows only that it is supposed to disapprove of both Buckley and the Moral Majority.

Too Much Of A Mess?

After listening to President Reagan, I am convinced there are no visual aids or magic potion existing that will extract this nation from the mess it is in and has been in for years.

The quest for a leader that we Americans can trust has become greater than it used to be. A good man, like good water is never missed until it is gone.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, could talk to the nation and America would listen and believe him. The way he used the word FEAR was to explain fear.

Now we have half-truths and scare tactics coming out of Washington on the hour by the hour.

The American Medical Services have increased our life span to the extent that the cult of youth is done for. Maybe, just maybe, they have decided to scare the senior citizens to death, then Social Security will correct itself.

The fact is that whatever hits the fan is never evenly distributed anyway. We are now forced with a choice. Is our president a leader or is he still an actor?

"I have a dream, and I have been to the mountains," have turned into a nightmare that has flash backs of 1929-30.

America wake up, change your priorities, make do with what you have or do without.

Carl Without Horse

The 1981 Florida Legislature was no victory for public transportation. True, it came up with $8 million for some new buses but not a dime for operating expenses—like a cart without a horse! Either the task was too much for our legislators to handle or they found it more expedient to abet public extravagance than to address the real needs of people. Far less complimentary reasons for failure suggest themselves but we prefer to give our legislators the benefit of the doubt.

Now, it wasn't because they were uninformed or because they lacked suggestions that they failed. Just take our Omnibus Bill, for instance. It was a resource document literally bursting with legislative ideas. It dealt with unnecessary and inappropriate use of public moneys for certain road and highway construction to ways of strengthening Citizen Advisory Committees. In addition to diversion of funds from roads to public transit as a number one priority, we recommended new taxes and the use of capital surpluses as viable second and third options.

When all is said and done, maybe we're lucky to have gotten the buses. In the milieu of our cruelly opportunistic society, it may have been difficult for our legislators to see any political future in a bus!

Trooper Honored

As a citizen of Seminole County and the State of Florida for most of my life, a person who knew Trooper Tommy Tomlinson and the high caliber of men that serve us in public safety and service, I deeply appreciate and cannot commend enough the example and standard that he and they have and are setting for us, the rest of the citizens of this county and state.

May I suggest a fund be started for the families of this tragic incident. It would be incomprehensible to not show our compassion and gratitude to these men by not making secure the future for their children and wives which they will no longer be able to do. I've already made a direct donation.

Europe's Economic Agonies

OTTAWA (NEA) — At almost every economic summit held during the past seven years, the United States has found itself blamed by its allies for problems far beyond its control — and the recent meeting here was no exception.

Most of the heads of state of the other six leading Western industrialized nations sought to cast the United States in the role of scapegoat for a generally sluggish global economy, despite evidence to the contrary.

The considerable clamor over the supposedly deleterious worldwide impact of high interest rates in the United States was, in great measure, unjustified.

None of the nations participating in the summit, including the United States, would dispute the existence of the economic problems outlined recently by Allan E. Gollieb, Canada's undersecretary of state for external affairs.

In a Winnipeg speech, Gollieb cited "the tensions between fighting inflation and coping with the implications of low-or no-growth scenarios foreseen for most summit and other developed countries over the coming months, with their significant social and political overtones, particularly at a time of growing unemployment in many industrialized states."

At the summit, Italian Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini proclaimed that "we must defeat this monster of inflation and unemployment since they absorb ever-increasing resources."

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan quoted French President Francois Mitterrand as warning that "unemployment in France as well as in (West) Germany and other countries in Europe was getting to a flash point, to a point where it might cause social upheaval."

There is little doubt that Western Europe faces at least several years of economic agony. The Royal Bank of Canada, for example, predicts that the average annual growth in gross national product for the seven summit nations will range between 2.5 percent and 4.5 percent during the 1980s.

With the exception of Great Britain, which is at the bottom of the list, those projections all fall below the actual GNP growth rates experienced by each of the respective countries during the 1970s.

But high U.S. interest rates probably are less of a contributing factor than two other elements — a belated "baby boom" in Western Europe and the continuing economic impact of massive increases in crude petroleum prices.

The "baby boom" began in the United States almost immediately following World War II, in the middle and late 1940s, but many European couples delayed having children because of adverse economic conditions.

Large portions of their nations had been ravaged by the war, the industrial base had been crippled, housing stock was in short supply and food was difficult to obtain.

It was not until a decade later, when a degree of normalcy returned to those countries, that the "baby boom" began in Western Europe. Now in their early- to mid-20s, those post-war children finally are entering the region's job market.

Reagan Shouldn't Befriend Teamsters

WASHINGTON — President Reagan raised a few eyebrows by inviting Teamsters President Roy Lee Williams to the White House a few days after the union boss had been indicted by a federal grand jury. This was perceived as a gesture of appreciation for the only support Reagan got from a major labor union in the 1980 election.

But before he gets too cozy with the Teamsters brass, the president might be well advised to read a secret report on the union by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee. He could spare his administration the kind of embarrassment the Carter White House suffered from its strange relations with the Teamsters.

The bipartisan report shows how Teamsters bosses manipulated Carter's labor secretary, Ray Marshall, and other officials to cover up evidence of either political chicanery or gross incompetence in the government's investigation of Teamsters' corruption.

My associate Clark Mollenhoff has seen a copy of the subcommittee's report, and it is devastating. It makes painfully clear that the Labor Department under Marshall destroyed the effectiveness of its own investigation into the Teamsters Central States Pension Fund.

Teamsters officials have compiled a notorious record over the years for using every deceitful means possible to thwart government investigations into their pension fund. Yet Marshall's Labor Department chose not to use its subpoena powers to obtain pertinent records on the fund's loss of millions of dollars in dubious loans.

Instead, the department brass ordered its Special Investigative Staff to ask the pension fund managers for documents under a voluntary agreement. Needless to say, the Teamsters managers were delighted to agree. The agreement left them free to engage in the obstructive, foot-dragging techniques that have become a pattern in the pension fund's dealings with government investigators.

"The major shortcoming in the system was that it was based on 100 percent willingness of the fund to cooperate with the Labor Department," the Senate report states. "But that degree of cooperation was not forthcoming."

The trustees withheld some requested records, offered documents that were not authenticated or obtained under oath, and finally "made it a formal policy not to turn over any records" at all, the subcommittee reports.

Despite the union bosses' refusal to cooperate — and the Carter administration's strange refusal to force such cooperation — the Labor Department sleuths were able to uncover widespread abuse in the management of the pension fund.

Records indicated that loans had been made to companies on the verge of bankruptcy and to borrowers who had been delinquent on earlier loans — even to borrowers who used new loans to pay interest on their outstanding debts to the fund.

There were myriad other abuses, but when the investigators sought permission for a full-scale inquiry their requests were rejected. The inquiry was narrowed to the question of whether real estate loans had proper collateral.

According to the Senate report, Labor Department officials deliberately stifled criminal investigations, threw up barriers to any cooperation with the Justice Department and illegally destroyed files when an internal investigation indicated "conflicts of interest, obstruction of justice and sexual misconduct" by high Labor Department officials.

South African Police Seek Clues In Killing Of New York Attorney

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) — The killer or killers of New York lawyer Catherine Julia Tobin have so far eluded squads of police with tracker dogs but officials say they will scour the sugar cane fields of Natal province for clues to her assailants.

"We'll go on until we find something," a police spokesman said. "But we have nothing so far."

The body of Miss Tobin, 29, was found knifed to death beside an isolated, muddy road in the cane fields between Amanzimtoti and Illovo, two coastal villages about 20 miles south of Durban.

A postmortem showed Miss Tobin had been stabbed three times with a long-bladed knife, twice in the chest and once in her side. There were no wounds to indicate she had been sexually attacked but police would not yet rule out the possibility.

Knife slashes on her hands indicated she tried to fight off her attackers, police said.

The lawyer was an enthusiastic scuba diver and was in South Africa on a three-week holiday to visit a friend, Nico Roodt, 25, a surveyor from Johannesburg, with whom she had been on a diving vacation along the coast north of Durban.

She and Roodt had booked into the Park Beach hotel at Winkelspruit outside Durban last week and had dinner with a friend, Hilton Ralph. After dinner the three drove to the beach "and walked along the sands to see what the tide was doing because we intended going diving the next day," Roodt told reporters.

Miss Tobin took her rented Japanese car intending to return to the hotel, while Roodt and Ralph said they would walk back.

"I never saw Catherine alive again," said Roodt. He and Ralph were questioned by police and cleared of involvement in her killing.

Police officials of Durban's murder and robbery squad speculated Miss Tobin lost her way as she drove back to the hotel along the roads winding through the canefields.

A Durban police spokesman said an American lady came to him after midnight on Wednesday morning, saying she was lost, and he directed her to the nearest highway.

Police theorized Miss Tobin became lost again and may have picked up a passerby who then gave her false directions, into the isolated cane fields.

Letterio's Crew Plays Tuesday Night At 6

Altamonte Chases Williamsport Dream

Major League Tournament

Plant City

Monday

7 p.m. Mims vs. Sarasota

Tuesday

6 p.m. Altamonte vs. Monday winner

8:30 p.m. Belmont Heights vs. Monday loser

By BENTON WOOD
Herald Sports Writer

Altamonte Major League all-star manager Gene Letterio doesn't believe in the old adage that he'd "rather be lucky than good." Not one inclined to settle for second best, Letterio wants to be both lucky and good.

Tuesday night in Plant City, Altamonte can prove for the eighth consecutive time that it is good in its opening round of the state little league tournament.

The winner of the State Tournament advances to St. Petersburg for the Southeast Regional. Then, it's off to Williamsport for the ultimate dream of every Little Leaguer for the Little League World Series and a shot at Taiwan, the perennial champion of late.

However, lady luck touched Altamonte even before the tournament started as it drew a first game bye in the four team field. Of the other three teams, Sarasota and Mims, like Letterio's all stars were unbeaten in their sections.

The fourth club, Belmont Heights, already has a loss coming into the state tournament. They were the state and national champions last year and finished second in the world behind Taiwan.

Because of the draw, Sarasota faces Mims tonight. The winner will be matched against Altamonte at 6 p.m. tomorrow with the loser pitted against Belmont Heights in the 8:30 contest.

Ace righthander Mike Schmit is ineligible for mound duty tomorrow because he pitched nine innings in

Altamonte's undefeated Major League baseball team lets everyone know who's number one after whipping a stubborn Jacksonville-San Mateo team, 7-1 Friday night at Ocoee. Gary Nuss, the tall one second from the left, drove in the winning run and blanked San Altamonte's last game against Jacksonville. Therefore, Letterio will start Anthony Laszala on the hill in game one.

"I have complete confidence in him," Letterio said of the lone 11-year-old on the club who is unbeaten in 14 overall starts this year. "He's a gutsy kid. He will not choke."

One question that comes to mind is why would one keep making changes when he is winning? Letterio has kept shuffling his lineup around since Altamonte started tournament play three weeks ago.

"We haven't had the same lineup in any two games yet," he pointed out. "I'm not one who sits back and doesn't make changes because things are going okay."

His big change Tuesday will be Gary Nuss in leftfield. Nuss, who was the winning pitcher in relief against,

Jacksonville last Friday, will also bat fifth. "I'm going to take advantage of his size and height," Letterio explained. "He hits fastballs very well and with his size he might intimidate them."

"Then they might relax after they get by him. So Neal Harris will bat sixth and he has hit as many home runs, so far, as anyone on the team."

Another switch, Letterio plans on making is to move his son, Shane, from the leadoff slot to the third position in the order, and move Schmit down one spot to cleanup. The young Letterio has 14 hits in the seven tournament games while Schmit has 13 and coach Letterio figures he'll get more offensive punch with his two top hitters back-to-back.

Anything else Letterio does with his lineup depends on who isn't sick come game time. Harris, who is slated for relief work Tuesday, has been sick as has shortstop Bret Marshall.

"We took team pictures before practice today (Sunday) and when the pictures were over some of the kids went back home to bed," Letterio said. "Marshall looked so bad, I thought we were gonna have to stand him up."

When the other three teams hear the scouting report on Altamonte they may get sick. With Schmit or Laszala on the mound for Letterio (including the regular season with the Phillies), they have out-scored their opponents in 34 games 342-19.

One thing Letterio doesn't plan to change is that he intends to use the same tactic which he has been so successful with this year.

"We want to be the intimidator," he says. "We're not going to be intimidated by anything we see. We'll accept the fact that the other teams are good, because if they weren't they wouldn't be here. We just want them to know that we are good."

"We're timing it so that we'll be practicing when the other teams show up. Our boys are going to play home run derby for them. We can put on a batting practice that puts people in awe."

Letterio's bunch have already had a look at Belmont Heights. On an off day, Altamonte saw Belmont lose its only game. Then prior to last Friday's game, they witnessed Belmont avenge its loss to Tampa 2-1.

"Their best pitcher is everything of anybody we'll put on the mound," Letterio praised. "He has a hard fast-ball and a good curve. But, he doesn't throw as hard as DeLand's Brandon Turner, and we beat him so that will be our rallying point."

Letterio even admitted that he could be looking ahead to a clash with Belmont Heights even though the defending champs already have a loss. The Altamonte skipper predicted last week before the sectionals started that Belmont would be the favorite.

"You want to have the opportunity to play somebody that has accomplished what they have," Letterio replied. "We've been talking about Belmont Heights all year in Altamonte. Our goal is to have them walk away talking about Altamonte."

One thing is for certain. There are a lot of teams that have crossed Letterio's path so far that are talking about Altamonte.

Take Me Out To Ocoee; I Don't Care If I Ever Come Back

If you're ever in Ocoee, make sure you stop and see the Little League baseball diamond. It's somewhere by Silver Star Road, near a lake and up a hill. Ah, just look for the lights.

Because the lights are always burning. At least they have been for about 20 years now at the site of the Major League Baseball Tournament won by Gene Letterio's Altamonte crew 7-1 Friday night.

"I've never attended a better organized operation. Recreation Director Jim Beach handled the play-by-play with the expertise of a Harry Caray, the famed Chicago White Sox announcer. All that was missing was a can of beer to wave while he sang 'Take me out to the ball game.'"

"We're real lucky to have him," said one Ocoee fanatic as we sat on the roof of the concession stand to watch the game. The seats were comparable to the plush view at Yankee Stadium, but better. I've never had a lawn chair at Yankee Stadium.

Beach, a personable gent who's been at Ocoee three years, kept the players and fans alive with his quips and comments. "The first three batters for Altamonte will be Letterio, Fox and Schmit and please bat in that order boys."

A foul ball across the street. Before the ball leaves the playing surface it's, "Now look before you cross that street boys, we want that ball back and you too."

Beach's insights to the game plus his acknowledgements of local fans and visiting celebrities adds spice to the action. And he's always aware of an injury.

When a catcher for Jacksonville had a ball fouled off his knee, unsuspectingly to most, Beach informed the umpire, "take a look at that knee, blue." When further diagnosis was needed it was, "Come on out and look at your boy, coach."

Sam Cook
Sports Editor

And he does it in a casual non-demanding way. It's almost like he's talking just to the person involved when, of course, that's impossible because everybody in the park hears him.

One of the most touching moments came when home plate umpire Joe Sylvester keeled over while cleaning off home plate. Two people — Mickey Shiver and Beth Stroll — were immediately on the scene to administer first aid.

As Sylvester was being carried away on a stretcher, Beach responded, "Joe, I know you're probably not thinking too much about baseball right now, but the thoughts of everybody here are with you." The crowd then burst into a two-minute ovation as the veteran Inverness umpire was carried away.

Whether Beach's sympathetic handling of the situation had anything to do with it or not, it wasn't 15 minutes later that Sylvester returned with the assistance of District 14 Administrator Don Crawford.

"Well, will you look at this," yelled Beach before the crowd could realize it. "Old Joe's coming back. I knew this was too good of a game to keep him away."

Maybe the part I respected most about Beach was that he had tact too. Jacksonville's fine pitcher Cliff Gaines' mother was stricken with chest pains shortly after Sylvester's incident.

Beach summoned the Jax manager to the press box and inquired whether it would upset the boy if he said something to try and help the situation. When the Jacksonville manager decided against it, Beach moved on to another area.

Along with the excellent announcing, the game moves quickly because 10-15 people are involved in its operation. Some tournaments I've attended one man tried to keep the book, chase the foul balls and chalk the field.

Not so at Ocoee. Everybody wants to do something and willingly. When it was thought that Sylvester was going to need a man to go to the hospital with him, Beach already had it arranged.

And the men on the roof do their part too. This is kind of a special row of eight to 10 lawn chairs. When the ball becomes wet, the umpire tosses it up on the roof — and sometimes over the roof — for which he is immediately heckled by Beach.

One of the chair members brings out a kind of rosin which he coats the ball inside a plastic bag. The ball comes out with a better finish than when it came out of the box.

The main reason this operation is so well run is because the people care. "No, everybody doesn't have a kid playing," the fanatic told me. "We just love baseball." And that's right down to the mothers in the concession stand who served very good food.

Think this is too good to be true. Well, maybe I exaggerated a little. Beach, despite his harmonious tones, does not sing "Take Me Out To The Ball Game."

But when I come back for the next tournament I wouldn't be surprised if he has the whole crowd into, "Give me some peanuts and cracker jacks" And I won't care if I ever come back.

Broncos Finish Fifth In Region

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

JACKSONVILLE — Seminole's Broncos broke even with two victories and two losses over the weekend to finish in fifth place at the Southern Regional for age 13 and under girls softball teams.

After dropping a 6-0 contest Friday to eventual champion the Jacksonville Astros, Manager Roger Richardson's squad regrouped to win two straight before being ousted, 13-3 by another Jacksonville entry, the Doverettes.

"We were probably the fourth best team in the tournament," assessed Richardson, who is assisted by Mossy Helms and Jim Lewis. "We didn't get to play South Miami or we would have knocked them out."

The Miami entry finished fourth, while the Doverettes were third and Hollywood Hills was second.

After Friday's setback, the Broncos roughed up Tampa, 11-5 as Sheila Dixon led the way with three singles, while Kathy Richardson shut out the Tampanas for the first five innings.

Catcher Jill Lewis rapped two singles for two runs batted in. Denise Stevens, Lari Helms and Richardson all slapped two hits for Seminole.

In the next encounter, Richardson was at her best, hurling a three-hit shutout as the Broncos whipped Jappa's (Ala.) 4-0. The Five Points entry backed the smooth left-hander with almost spotless—one error—defense.

Seminole picked up all the runs it needed in the third inning when Kristia Kaiser singled, but was forced at second by Dixon. After Stevens popped out, Jill Lewis reached on error by the first baseman and Michelle Brown singled in the game-winning RBI. Lisa Sinkins followed with another hit to chase home two more runs.

The Broncos bowed out of the tournament against the Doverettes when the Jacksonville team erupted for nine runs in the last two innings. Seminole seized a 3-1 lead with two runs in the first frame and one in the second.

Kim Averill, Jill Lewis and Brown all singled to load the bases. Steven reached on an error by the shortstop in squeeze home one run and Richardson slugged a

Rusty Major Leaguers Re-Acquaint Old Skills

By United Press International

Major league players continued to get re-acquainted with performing their summer rituals and executives were mulling the issues left by the 49-day strike.

The biggest question appeared to be whether the leagues would adopt the split season option left in the agreement.

The National League vote seems too close to call and Cleveland Indians President Gabe Paul said the American League vote might be closer than expected.

"I don't think it's that cut and dried," Paul said when asked if the league would easily adopt the plan. "Our position is to go and see what the clubs are saying, hear the pros and cons."

The AL requires only a majority vote to place the split season over the top. The NL, which will require a three-quarters vote, shapes up as a much closer fight.

The NL vote is crucial since Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has said he wants both leagues playing under the same format. He appears reluctant to institute the split season if one league objects.

One veteran club official said a discussion last week in New York produced "three or four firm 'Yeses,' two very strong 'Nos,' a 'maybe' toward the no side and two more riding the fence." The official did not account for the remaining votes.

National League President Chub Feeney, who will chair the meeting in Chicago, is termed by a source to be "basically" against the split season. Feeney met Saturday morning with American League President Lee MacPhail.

The votes will take place Tuesday in Chicago. After the expected ratification of the agreement reached early Friday to send the players back to the stadiums, the owners will vote on the split season.

Al Rosen, president and general manager of the Houston Astros, added, "There are extenuating circumstances. One-third of the season has been lost. The important thing is that everybody gets a chance to voice their opinion."

The members of the Executive Council, Bob Lurie of San Francisco, O'Malley and Dan Galbreath of Pittsburgh, examined the concept of the split season, and recommended it. O'Malley said Sunday he expects the split season to pass.

Orlando Numbers Altamonte, 4-3, 7-2 In Legion Playoff

Altamonte Legion third baseman Jerry Winterhalter gets set to put the tag on Orlando's Dan Hayes after catcher Bryan Holzworth niftily picked the runner off third base. The former Lyman backstop faked a throw to second base on a steal attempt and then gunned the ball to Winterhalter who chased down Hayes. Altamonte dropped both games to Orlando and was eliminated for the season.

It takes no great amount of philosophical insight to surmise that when your number is up, it's up.

Orlando Post 286 has had Altamonte Post 183's number all season. Friday night and Saturday afternoon the percentages rang true as Orlando dusted Altamonte in two straight games in a special two-out-of-three playoff to successfully defend its American Legion league championship.

Orlando topped Altamonte three of four times in regular season play and encored their dominance over Altamonte with 4-3 and 7-2 decisions at the Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"Overall, I think we had a fine season," said Altamonte skipper Bob McCullough following the season-ending setbacks.

"We had a really good streak and won the DeLand Firecracker Tournament by playing four of the best back-to-back games we played all year."

Orlando managed to break on top of the first game with a 4-2 edge before rain halted play in the eighth inning of Friday night's opener.

Altamonte struck first, however, for a 1-0 lead when shortstop Bob Parker opened the game with a leadoff triple and scored on Rob Reich's sacrifice fly.

Orlando knotted the contest at 1-1 in the fourth when Jeff O'Dell singled with one out, stole second and moved to third when Jim Chickowski missed the throw from catcher Brian Holzworth and trotted home when Rob Reich threw the ball past third.

Altamonte countered the next time at bat for a 2-1 lead when Parker singled, stole second and came home on Rob Reich's RBI single.

Orlando answered in its half of the fifth to tie the game at 2-2.

Center fielder Bob Hepburn opened the frame with a double, stole third and scored on Leighton Cornell's RBI sacrifice.

Orlando went ahead 4-3 in the sixth inning when Phil Burgess singled in O'Dell and Lambert.

McCullough's crew rallied for one run in the ninth but came up short 4-3.

With one gone John Reich singled and moved to second on a fielder's choice. Parker laced a single to put runners at the corners with two gone. Left fielder Dave Martinez followed with a single to plate Reich but Altamonte's rally fell short when Brian Holzworth lined out to Orlando second baseman Jim Priest.

In Saturday's second game, Orlando shell shocked Altamonte with a seven-run first inning and cruised to a 7-2 final on the two-hit pitching effort of sidewinder Leighton Cornell.

Altamonte starter Gary Smith had trouble finding the plate in the first inning.

Smith beamed John Pleicones, walked Dan Hayes, surrendered back to back singles and a sacrifice before McCullough summoned Parker to the mound with the bases loaded and just one out.

Parker walked two batters and gave up a single before finding his range but Orlando closed the inning with a 7-0 bulge.

"What killed us was the seven-run first inning," agreed McCullough.

"It's hard to comeback like that, but Parker came in and shut them down."

After the first inning Parker was as effective on the mound as Altamonte was ineffective at the plate. The SCC stand-out held Orlando scoreless on three hits through the final seven innings.

Altamonte managed lone runs in the third and fifth innings.

In the third, Parker drew a walk, stole second, moved to third on an error and scored on Dave Martinez's sacrifice.

Mike Andriani singled in Tom Perkins in the fifth for Altamonte's other run.

"The Seminole County squad couldn't solve Orlando's Cornell despite nine walks and stranded a total of 11 baserunners.

"He pitched a good game," complimented McCullough on Cornell's mound success.

"He took just enough off his pitches where we couldn't set in on the plate."

Hall Of Fame Adds Gibson, Mize, Foster To Legendary Roster

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Jack Buck, sports director of KMOX radio in St. Louis, may have said it best when he sent this message to "all you Hall of Famers up there in baseball's Valhalla."

"Gibby, Rube Foster and 'The Big Cat' are coming."

Bob Gibson, Foster and Johnny Mize — Gibby and "The Big Cat" being the pride of great St. Louis Cardinal teams and Foster being the pride of Negro Baseball League pioneers — were inducted Sunday into Baseball's Hall of Fame. They brought membership in the shrine to 178.

Introduced to the crowd of about 2,000 by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn as "the fiercest competitor I have ever known," the sometimes-blunt Gibson said, "I'd like to be best remembered for giving 100 percent every time I went on the field."

"I wasn't always good," said Gibson, who won 251 games and two

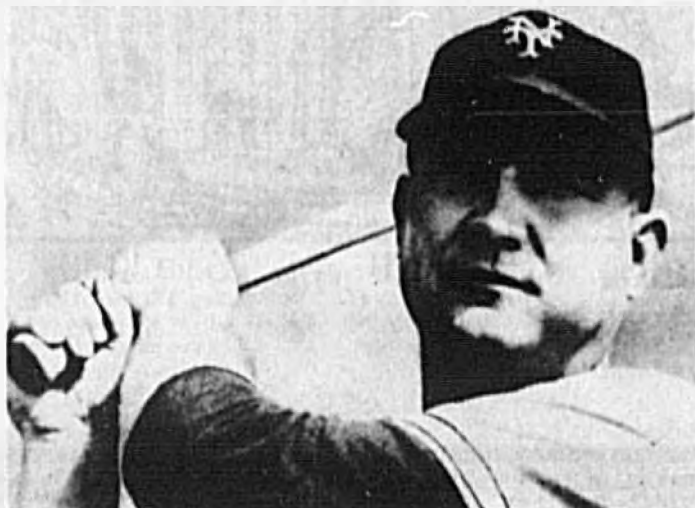

Cy Young Awards in addition to being one of the greatest World Series pitchers in history. "But nobody can accuse me of not giving my best. Baseball has been my life. There are many great people in it and I hope baseball will make an effort to retain them so it will return to the quality we once knew."

Gibson's remark was an apparent slap at some current players who he has accused of "just sittin' and countin' their money" but didn't elaborate.

Mize, a four-time National League home run king who had a .312 lifetime batting average and 359 career homers, had sometimes expressed bitterness about not being elected to the shrine earlier.

"Years ago, the writers told me I'd make the Hall of Fame," he said. "So, I prepared a speech. But somewhere along the 28 years it got lost."

Mize said one writer asked him if being elected by the Veterans'

JOHNNY MIZE was known for his sharp batting eye. At 6-foot-2 and 215 pounds, he was nicknamed "The Big Cat." Mize is a former DeLand and Osteen resident according to veteran baseball wizard Charlie Paulus.

Committee meant he was entering "through the back door."

"No, I told him," said Mize. "Look who's on the committee — writers, managers, players — most of 'em Hall of Famers. Who would you want to pick you? If you're picked by your peers, you know you belong."

Earl Foster, the new Hall of Famer's son, flinched when he approached the microphone and his voice trembled as he said, "I thank you ... I thank you ... I thank you."

"They gave me a little speech," he said. "But I don't think I can make it, no way. Thank you."

Some in the crowd greeted Buck and Kuhn with boos but they were drowned out as the ceremonies proceeded and Gibson received a standing ovation when he was introduced.

Champions Oosterhuis Oozes To Canadian Victory

TORONTO (UPI) — The fan with the broken glasses and a group of eight golfers all gave until it hurt on behalf of Peter Oosterhuis in the final three holes of the Canadian Open.

The affable Oosterhuis accepted the gifts, though they were offered unwillingly. They helped him win his first PGA championship after seven years of struggle.

Oosterhuis, a dominant power on the British pro circuit who became an also-ran on the PGA, won the $340,000 tournament by one stroke Sunday with a 1-under 70, in a trafficjam finish with nine players.

After 19 holes, the last three groups — the biggest names in golf among them — were all within three strokes of the lead.

Oosterhuis and Oklahoman Mark Hayes were tied for the lead; Jack Nicklaus, Andy North, Bruce Lietzke and third-round leader Leonard Thompson were within one.

Tom Kite and Tom Purtzer were two back, while David Graham was three off the pace.

The par-71, 7,060-yard Glenn Abbey layout managed to produce the almost unthinkable. The challengers squandered a combined total of 13 strokes with 11 bogeys and one double bogey in the final three holes.

"What a way to win, after watching those big names come in and mine still stay up there on the leader board," said the 33-year-old Oosterhuis, who won 19 international events before joining the PGA tour in 1974.

Oosterhuis himself had a bogey at 16 to make the total lost strokes 14 for all nine players in three holes. His second shot at the par-5 18th would have gone dangerously far from the hole had it not smacked a fan, cracking his glasses.

His third shot at 18 was not much more ambitious. It landed in the bunker, but that is where he at last decided that if some one had to win, then it might as well be him.

Caponi Coasts To LPGA Win Over Stephenson

DANVERS, Mass. (UPI) — The warning came early in the round and the response by the co-leaders paints a vivid picture of why Donna Caponi won and Jan Stephenson didn't.

The two were tied for the lead of a $150,000 LPGA tournament with 14 holes to play Sunday when an official told them they were 21 minutes out of position and had best speed up play.

Stephenson was so affected by the warning she didn't even take a practice swing, promptly drove into a sand trap and took a bogey. Caponi shrugged off the warning, birdied the hole and went on to post a lopsided 6-stroke victory, largest this year on the LPGA tour.

"I thought it was really poor timing, I was so mad he did that," said Stephenson, who triple-bogeyed the next hole and never got closer than two shots the rest of the way.

"It really upset me, I was flustered the rest of the round. Here I am tied for the lead and he tells us to speed up or it's two shots (penalty). I think it's a lack of experience."

The official, Ken Sojka, said the LPGA rules were clear on slow play. He said normally a group is warned after it leaves the green, but the large crowds necessitated the warning to be on the tee.

"When a group is out of position, it's our responsibility to warn them," Sojka explained. "It's a pretty consistent application of the (LPGA) rules."

Caponi paid little heed to the warning, saying it mainly came about because she had threeputed the first and third greens. But she found her touch, making the first of her five birdies when she rolled in a six-footer.

"Except for the front nine today (2-over par 37) I played great the whole tournament," Caponi said. "I probably played better last week when I finished sixth in the Open. The course was a little tougher today with the wind and pin placements."

The victory was Caponi's fifth of the year and the $22,500 top prize topped her 1981 earnings to nearly $160,000, tops on the LPGA circuit.

Many Motions Expected In Atlanta Murder Case

ATLANTA (UPI) — A flurry of motions, including a request for access to the prosecution's evidence, is expected to be filed this week by lawyers representing Wayne B. Williams, charged in the slaying of two of Atlanta's 28 young black murder victims.

"I understand some motions will be filed," Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton told UPI, but he claimed to have no knowledge of their content.

Various attorneys say that Williams' defense team probably will file a motion seeking laboratory analyses conducted on fibers taken from Williams' car and home as well as a change of venue request.

Renowned Georgia defense attorney Bobby Lee Cook said that defense attorneys "most assuredly" will ask for results of lab tests on fiber materials that are believed to be the prosecution's strongest evidence linking Williams to the deaths of Nathaniel Cater, 28 and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

"Normally, what you do in this type of case is ask for disclosure of all scientific evidence gathered and analyzed by the state," Cook said.

It was reported that defense attorneys were delaying filing the motions until Clarence Cooper, the judge who has been selected to preside over Williams' trial, returns to Atlanta from Reno, Nev. where he was attending the Judicial College. Cooper was due back the beginning of August.

Attorney Mary Welcome, who along with Tony Axam is representing Williams, was out of town and unavailable for comment but an associate said no motions would be filed before her return. Axam declined comment.

Ms. Welcome recently said a change of venue request was under consideration but that no decision had been made. She said that it would be difficult to find a place where a fair trial could be carried out because of extensive publicity surrounding the case.

Hotel Reopening Depends On Safety Assurances

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Hyatt Regency Hotel — where 111 people were killed and 188 injured by collapsing skywalks — will be reopened for business after the public and authorities are assured it is structurally sound, the president of Hallmark Cards says.

However, Donald Hall, commenting for the first time since the day after the July 17 catastrophe, set no date for that reopening.

Two aerial walkways plunged to the lobby floor of the hotel's six-story atrium during a big band dance contest, trapping dancers under a shower of steel and concrete.

The 40-story Hyatt building was the newest jewel in Crown Center, owned and developed by a Hallmark Cards subsidiary.

In an in-house newsletter distributed Friday, Hall assured Hallmark employees the firm is impartially probing the skywalk disaster. He said he wanted to keep employees informed on the status of the company's investigation and wanted to dispel rumors that Hallmark is "behaving in a secretive and suspicious manner."

Although offering little new information on Crown Center's investigation into the Hyatt accident, Hall said it is in the company's interest to find out why the skywalks collapsed so that lawsuits filed by Hyatt victims could be successfully challenged.

World's Largest Army Marks 54th Birthday

PEKING (UPI) — The world's largest army celebrated its 54th birthday Saturday, apparently willing to accept a lesser role in Chinese life.

The 4.5 million-man People's Liberation Army considers Aug. 1 its founding date because on that day in 1927 communist-led troops staged the first armed attack on the ruling Kuomintang.

Western diplomats had expected military parades for the first time on this year's anniversary, but there were no reports of parades nor any signs of preparation in Peking's Tiananmen square.

China's top generals attended a banquet Friday evening with new party Chairman Hu Yaobang, Premier Zhao Ziyang and Defense Minister Geng Biao to display army-party unity on the country's current political direction.

"We must further strengthen unity between the army and government and between the army and people," Geng said in a formal toast applauded by 800 Chinese and foreign guests.

Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping is attempting to push the army back into the barracks to become a more professional, modern fighting force, diplomats say. Particularly during the turbulent years of the Cultural Revolution, the army has been the most powerful force in the land.

'Trailside' Suspect Faces Seven Murder Charges

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — Suspected "trailside killer" and convicted sex offender David Joseph Carpenter now faces a total of seven murder charges in Marin and Santa Cruz counties.

Carpenter, 51, was charged Friday with shooting to death five hikers, two of them women who were first raped, along popular trails in Marin County.

Awaiting trial for the killing of two young women in Santa Cruz County, Carpenter was accused in the new charges of 13 counts of "special circumstances" which could send him to the gas chamber if convicted. Ballistics tests have confirmed that all seven murders were committed with the same .38-caliber weapon.

Marin County District Attorney Jerry Herman, under a gag order not to reveal details of the case, said Carpenter would be charged with using a gun and lying in wait in the five murders, the raping of two of the victims and attempted rape of another.

Herman said formal charges had been delayed while investigators analyzed all available evidence. He said there was "some new evidence" in the case, but refused to discuss specifics.

An affidavit in support of the charges noted that Carpenter was picked out of a lineup by Steve Haertel, who was wounded in an attack in Henry Cowell State Park near Santa Cruz that left UC Davis student Ellen Marie Hansen dead.

The affidavit included no mention of eye-witnesses in the five Marin killings.

Four of the Marin victims were found within a half mile of each other at the Point Reyes National Seashore last Nov. 28. Searchers looking for two missing women accidentally found the decomposed bodies of a young couple in a shallow grave.

The pair, missing since Oct. 11, were Cynthia Moreland, 18, Cotati, Calif., and Richard Stowers, 19, stationed at the Coast Guard training base at Two Rock near Petaluma, Calif. Both had been shot in the head.

Shortly afterwards, the searchers found the nude bodies of Diana O'Connell, 22, New York City, a former Cornell University student and Shana May, 23, a San Francisco woman formerly of Pullman, Wash.

Carpenter was charged with forcibly raping Miss May and attempting to rape Miss O'Connell before killing them.

He was also charged with slaying and raping Anne Alderson, 28, of San Rafael, whose body was found in the outdoor Mountain Theater on Mount Tamalpais on Oct. 15, 1980.

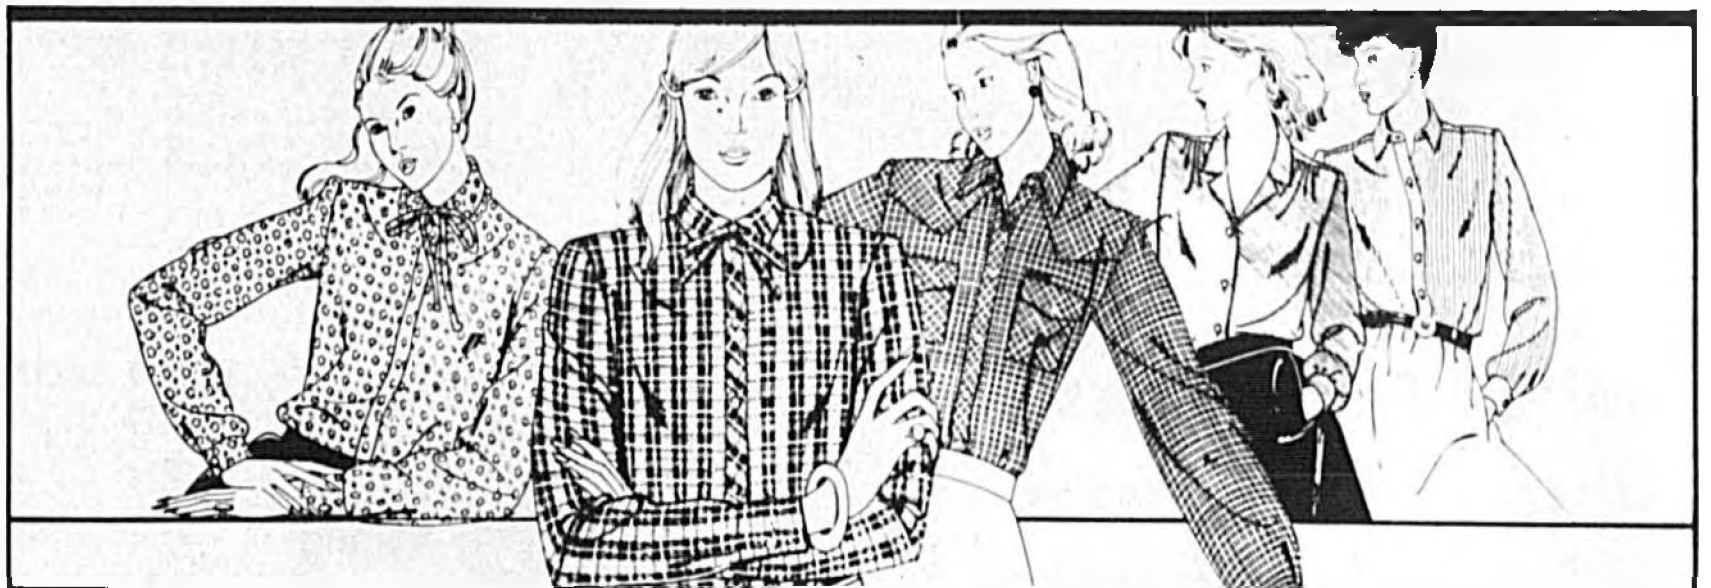

The suspect had been described by authorities as a possible woman hater who would be "lying in wait" for his victims and then torture them before shooting them execution style.

Carpenter, employee of a Hayward, Calif., printer trade school, was arrested by a task force of officers in San Francisco in May and taken to the Santa Cruz County jail, where he was charged in March 29 slaying of Ms. Hansen, 20, and the May 2 killing of Heather Skaggs, 21.

Miss Skaggs was a co-worker of Carpenter and disappeared the morning she had an appointment to meet him.

Miss Elzey, R. Reim Wed In Church Rites

Martha Eleanor Elzey and Richard David Reim were married Aug. 1, at 1:30 p.m., at All Saints Episcopal Church, Enterprise. The Rev. Robert Phillips performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Joseph Elzey of Enterprise. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reim of Merritt Island.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows her mother's wedding gown of pure silk taffeta and imported Chantilly lace. The bouffant skirt terminated in a chapel train.

Her headpiece was a mantilla of illusion bordered in Chantilly lace. She carried a Prayer Book topped with an arrangement of peach-tipped sweetheart roses lily-of-the-valley and baby's breath.

Dallas Meredith Elzey, sister of the bride, Enterprise, served as the maid of honor. She wore a peach floral marquisette gown with matching cape and carried two long-stemmed silk peach roses.

Robert William Reim, twin

brother of the bridegroom, Winter Park, was the best man. Ushers were Thomas Russell Reim, brother of the bridegroom, Panama City; and Gregg Rasor, Orlando.

Following the reception at the church parish hall, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to St. Petersburg Beach.

They will make their home in Orlando where the bridegroom is employed as an electrical engineer at Martin-Marietta, Orlando Division.

Diamonds Are Forever; And Bigger Is Better

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married 31 years ago, he gave me the smallest diamond I had ever seen. I was glad to get any diamond at the time, but as the years passed, my husband became more prosperous and I kept hoping he would replace it with a larger one. He never did.

On my 25th wedding anniversary, I gave him a fine piece of jewelry with money I had saved out of my household allowance. He gave me 25 roses.

Soon after, I lost the diamond out of my ring. My husband promised to buy me another one, but he didn't. When we passed a jewelry store, I'd stop to look in the window, but my husband would walk away.

Last year on our 30th anniversary, my husband handed me a tiny box. When I opened it, I found my old ring with the tiny diamond replaced! I tried to put it on my finger, but I had gained some weight and it wouldn't fit. I put it back in the box, where it's been ever since.

Dear Abby

What should I do? Have my ring made larger and wear it? My husband could well afford a bigger diamond, and I feel like a poor relative among my friends who have lovely jewelry.

LIKES DIAMONDS (BIG) DEAR LINES: Face it. Your husband is not likely to buy a bigger diamond unless you ask for one. If it's that important to you and he can afford it, ask him. Besides, diamonds are not only a girl's best friend, they're also a good investment!

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are planning our wedding, which will take place in December. Between us we already have just about everything we need to set up housekeeping, and with things the way they are today, we would really prefer money instead of wedding gifts.

Would you please advise us how to let our friends and relatives know how we feel about this? I mean, is there some tactful way of including 'his information with our wedding invitations? HAVE EVERYTHING

DEAR HAVE: If they ask what you want or need, you could tell them. But to include this information with your wedding invitations would be more tacky than tactful.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question in response to STILL IN SHOCK at the funeral of the husband she had had for 20 years. Just what could anyone say that would have made her "feel better"?

When my husband (age 30) died, no one could have said anything to make me feel better. I heard the usual dumb questions, tacky remarks and the automatic "If there is anything I can do..." Although these comments were thoughtless, I realized that behind each of them was a frustrated person who wanted to comfort me, but just didn't know what to say. The usual remark was, "Don't worry; you're young, you'll get married again."

What really mattered to me was that the people were there. Had they stayed home, I never would have had the warm feeling of being surrounded by family and friends who cared about me and my children in our sorrow.

Some of our friends didn't contact me at all. That hurt more than any tacky remark. I interpreted it to mean "I don't care."

I would advise mourners who don't know what to say that a simple "I'm sorry" is sufficient. Believe me, your face and eyes express the feelings you can't put into words. You really can't make the survivor feel better, but try not to make him feel worse.

The most meaningful expressions came to me in the form of hugs, pats on the shoulder and squeezes of the hand accompanied by, "I just don't know what to say." They didn't realize it, but they had already said it all. LENORE

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, August 4, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY August 4, 1981

Try to get out and move around as much as possible this coming year. Go to new places where you can meet others. You could make some very fortunate contacts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't discount any bright ideas you get today, even if they appear to be a trifle grandiose to others. They may be big for them, but not for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your material prospects are very promising both today and tomorrow. However, don't put off until manana that which you take care of now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things should work out very fortunately today, especially in matters where you are involved with persons who have helped you in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Devote your energies now to fulfilling your secret ambition. The breaks are going to start coming your way, but keep them to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have some special knowledge or expertise you can utilize now to benefit yourself as well as others. Outlets may be found today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Much good can come your way today through showing a willingness to be cooperative. Think in terms of what is best for others, as well as yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to take care of those numerous chores around the house you've wanted to attend to. You'll be pleased by your accomplishments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your optimistic attitude and demeanor today will greatly enhance your popularity. Others will be drawn to you, especially members of the opposite sex.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) You're luckiest today in financial areas and in situations where you are trying to do something worthwhile for family members or relatives.

Fat Level In Blood Not So Important

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last spring at a health fair endorsed by the county medical society a blood test revealed that my triglycerides were 219. Since many people took the blood test it would help if you would comment on triglycerides in your column. Also, if your level is high, should you be on a special diet or do you need to take medicine?

DEAR READER — Triglyceride is fat. When the triglyceride level in your blood is measured, the amount of fat in your blood is measured. Don't blame the long word on doctors. It is the work of the chemists and indicates there are three fatty acids in the molecule. Monoglycerides and diglycerides are also fats, containing one and two fatty acids respectively. These terms are commonly seen in the ingredients listed on food labels.

It is generally agreed that your triglyceride level should be below 150 mg. Its importance is based on the belief that high levels may contribute to an increased chance of having fatty-cholesterol deposits in your arteries that lead to heart attacks and strokes. However, there are good studies that show that if your triglyceride level is high, but all your other studies such as cholesterol are low or optimal that the triglyceride level is not so important. It is important if you have both a high cholesterol and a high triglyceride level.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 15-2, Understanding Your Cholesterol, Triglycerides and Other Blood Fats, to explain these relationships.

The test is not as reliable as most cholesterol tests. It has no value unless taken in the fasting state. Since the stomach may not empty a heavy fatty meal for 12 hours or more, it is clear that your eating habits may influence your immediate test results. Fat is readily absorbed from your small intestine into your blood stream once it gets out

Diabetes can be caused by damage by the mumps virus of the islets of Langerhans that produce insulin. It has been proved in another case to be caused by the coxsackie virus. It can be caused by any process that causes pancreatitis that damages the islets. In other instances you can have an inherited tendency for diabetes. Like a rash, diabetes can be caused in many different ways. There is also a difference in diabetes that begins in childhood and adult life.

WIN AT BRIDGE

serendipity, it refers to a totally unexpected though not necessarily undesired stroke of luck.
Alan: "His first hand is an old format South has to locate the all important queen of spades and when he finally gets around to looking for it he is certain of success."
Oswald: "Fred Karpin is unique among writers on play in that he always uses hands with logical bidding. South has a standard two-notrump opening and North a perfect raise to six."
Alan: "South wins the diamond lead in dummy and leads the queen of clubs for a finesse. Of course, it would be super-serendipity if South played his ace of clubs by mistake, but South finesses and loses to the singleton king. Now South needs three spade tricks and must locate the queen."
Oswald: "West leads a second diamond and East shows out. Now South plays a club and West shows out. When South plays a heart West shows out immediately, so West started with six spades, six diamonds and one club. East has only one spade so South cashes his spade ace and finesses for West's queen with certainty of success."
