Mild quake rattles L.A.

LOS ANGELES — A moderate earthquake struck the Los Angeles area late Wednesday night, swaying high-rise downtown buildings, causing thousands of dollars in damage to a Malibu market and slightly injuring at least four people.

The quake struck four minutes before 11 p.m. and was felt from northern San Diego County 100 miles south of Los Angeles to Santa Barbara about 100 miles to the north.

Seismologists at Caltech in Pasadena said the quake was centered about 8 miles south of Malibu in Santa Monica Bay and had a preliminary reading of about 5 on the Richter scale, which is strong enough to cause minor damage in urban areas.

Fatal wound goes unnoticed

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. — Police have arrested a suspect in the 1987 shooting of a Long Island partygoer whose buddies failed to notice his wound, attributed his stumbling to drunkenness and took him home to bed, where he died.

Dexter Turner, 18, of North Amityville, N.Y., was arrested Wednesday outside First District Court in Hauppauge, where Suffolk County detectives had traced him during a two-year investigation, police said.

"He had just been released from court after pleading guilty to harassment in an unrelated case," said Detective Sgt. Robert Doyle of the county homicide squad. "We'd been looking for him. He was very calm about it."

Riot scene a little calmer

MIAMI — Minor disturbances were reported Wednesday in a black neighborhood where riots broke out two days ago but police reported calm today in other areas disrupted by violence during the city's Super Bowl festivities.

"We are looking for a night of calm tonight, if we can get it," Fred Taylor, director of MetroDade County Police Department, said today.

"It has been much quieter than it was last night, up to this point."

A black teenager was killed and eight people were struck by bullets Tuesday during a night of sporadic gunfire and widespread looting in the Overtown, Liberty City and Coconut Grove areas.

Slain couple's son shot

Olson in critical condition after shootout with officers

Sergeant Ray Faulk (left), detective Brent Papania (center front) and Steve Plotnick (in white shirt) with the state attorney's office discuss the shooting near the area where Olson was shot. On the ground is Olson's cap and bandages from rescue personnel who treated him at the scene before transferring him to a local hospital. The man on the right is with the Altamonte Springs Police Department.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The son of a couple found slain in their house here Tuesday was shot by police this morning after he brandished a handgun during a confrontation at a busy intersection.

Joey Olson, 28, was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where he was described as being in very critical condition at mid-morning. He was wounded in the abdomen by a single blast from a shotgun fired by an Altamonte Springs police officer, according to accounts of the incident.

Gary McReynolds, owner of the Exxon station next to the shooting scene in the vicinity of I-4 and SR-434, said police gave Olson several chances to drop his gun before shooting him.

Police McReynolds said, told Olson several times to drop his handgun after he came from behind a rock in a field on SR-434 near Douglas Avenue.

"They gave him every chance in the world to drop the gun, but he just kept coming," McReynolds said.

He said Olson had chased police around a squad car twice before a policeman aimed a shotgun at Olson and fired a single shot into his left side.

That was the only shot fired during the incident, McReynolds said.

Olson had been missing since the bodies of his parents were discovered Tuesday at the house where they and Olson lived.

But police declined to call him a suspect in the case. They said they just wanted to talk to him. Today he was still not identified as a suspect in the double homicide.

Altamonte Springs police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said that at 7:41 this morning a man who identified himself as Joey Olson entered the office of Alan M. Gray, DDS, at 1149 Douglas Ave. and had a receptionist. "I want to turn myself in."

Hawkins said the receptionist noticed the man had a gun. She sounded an alarm.

The man left the dentist's office and went about one block to an open area next to a Gulf station at the corner of Douglas and 434 as police arrived at the scene at 7:45 a.m., Hawkins said. The man hid behind a rock. Police told him to drop his weapon.

Hawkins said he was uncertain whether shots were fired at this point. "I said an investigation is continuing," Hawkins said. Police could not fire due to heavy rush hour traffic on State Road 434.

Hawkins said the man identified as Olson and wearing a red cap and flip flops came from behind the rock and advanced on police at the roadside chasing them.

He moved away from police and was shot at least once in the abdomen. Police recovered the man's handgun from the grass and said he may have been wounded by a blast from a police shotgun.

Paramedics responded to the scene and Olson was airlifted to ORMC.

Hawkins said Olson was not a suspect in the homicides of his parents but was wanted for questioning.

Autopsies performed in Sanford on Wednesday showed that Pauline Olson, 66, was stabbed in the heart. Her husband, Jim, 60, was stabbed in the spleen. The time of death for both is estimated at late Sunday or early Monday. A possible murder weapon was not found at the scene.

The bodies of the Olsons were found at about 1 p.m. Tuesday when their daughter Debra came to their house to check on their well-being.

Missing from the house was the Olsons' 18-year-old son Joey, who lived with them, and Mrs. Olson's 1988 Chevrolet Celebrity Eurosport. Neighbors were questioned and reported not seeing or hearing any

Altamonte, county to study joint land, zoning proposal

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — In one of the first discussions of its kind, commissioners from Altamonte Springs and Seminole County agreed Wednesday night to study a joint planning area encompassing the city and unincorporated neighborhoods around it.

"I strongly support this type of effort," said Mayor J. Dudley Bates.

This "makes sense," said Commissioner Sandra Talbot, chairman of the Seminole County commission.

Under the proposed plan, jointly drafted by Sanford planners in 1986, the city and the county would agree to zoning and land use that are similar to each other, rather than having separate, often conflicting, zoning ordinances. Each city's proposed changes had been in power to affect changes.

The joint planning committee will meet regularly during the next several months to determine areas where city and county regulations match and where changes will be made. The committee members gave the staffers a June 1 goal to complete the work for their final approval. The agreements would then be included in the April 1990 comprehensive plan update for the state.

Similar agreements are envisioned with Sanford and other cities.

The planning coordination will be critical in the unincorporated areas of unincorporated land under city jurisdiction, largely surrounded by the city, County Manager Ken Hooper said. The zoning will require an agreement that the city will provide some services to those unincorporated areas although services by the county.

CASSELLBERRY — A body of a rural Casselberry convenience store was slain early today at the store.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies were called to the Fleeter on Eagle Circle at about 4:30 a.m. today, Capt. Roy Higgins said. The store manager advised a work of about 4:15 a.m. and a body of the clerk. The manager reported the find to sheriff's deputies. The female clerk had been

The name of the victim, possibly a woman, was not known today. Higgins said he does not know if the store had been burglarized or if the victim had been sexually assaulted.

Sheriff's investigators said they have identified a possible suspect in the case early today but no arrests had been made.

This body was the second one in three days in Seminole County.

City may purchase historic house

CLAYTON, Fla. — The city of Clayton is considering purchasing a historic house in the town's historic district.

The house, known as the Clouser Collage, is a two-story, brick building with a gabled roof and a prominent chimney. It was built in 1880 and is one of the oldest buildings in Clayton.

The city is interested in purchasing the house because of its historical significance. The house is located on a street that is part of the town's historic district, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The city is currently in the process of evaluating the house and determining the best way to preserve it. The city is also considering other ways to improve the historic district.

Next shuttle launch remains on schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL -- A crack in an engine bearing assembly and damage to the shuttle Atlantis's heat-shield tiles after its December flight appear to be isolated events that will not delay Discovery's upcoming launch, officials said Wednesday.

Forrest McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center, said he is confident neither problem will crop up when Discovery blasts off about Feb. 23 on the third post-Challenger flight, although he said meeting that target date will not be easy.

"Right now I think we can still hold the 23rd," he said. "I think we have a fighting chance of doing it."

Added launch director Robert Steck: "The vehicle looks real good."

Discovery is scheduled to be towed from its hangar into the rocket assembly building Sunday for attachment to its external tank and solid-fuel boosters. If all goes well the assembled shuttle vehicle will be hauled to launch pad 39B one week later for launch about Feb. 23.

Atlantis will follow Discovery off the pad April 28 when it is scheduled to blast off on a critical flight to launch the Magellan science probe to Venus.

Bogus church bishop convicted of fraud

ORLANDO -- The "bishop" of a bogus church and two associates were found guilty of tax fraud for advising people to write off vacations as religious pilgrimages and deduct the cost of beer as a religious sacrament.

The verdicts are another setback for the controversial Universal Life Church, founded in 1962 by Kirby J. Hensley in Modesto, Calif., with no traditional doctrines.

The church, widely viewed as nothing more than a tax dodge, constantly feuded with the Internal Revenue Service and finally lost its tax-exempt status five years ago.

Scott Slayback Jr., a 60-year-old financial consultant prosecutors called the church's Florida leader, faces up to 134 years in prison and more than $4 million in fines. A federal jury convicted him Tuesday of one count of conspiracy and 43 counts of helping taxpayers file false statements from 1979 to 1987.

"I think the jury saw through the scam," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Hinshelwood. "The verdicts show this so-called church is entirely bogus, and there wasn't a thing going on here but blasphemy and tax fraud."

Greenpeace launches seafood boycott

TALLAHASSEE -- Greenpeace activists chanting "Whales are dying while your fish are frying!" Wednesday kicked off a national drive to boycott Icelandic seafood with a demonstration outside a Tallahassee Burger King.

Greenpeace hopes a boycott will convince Iceland to stop killing endangered sei and fin whales. Miami-based Burger King is the largest American purchaser of Icelandic cod, which it uses, ironically, in its "Whaler" fish sandwiches.

"If Burger King were to join the boycott, it would probably be the straw that breaks the camel's back," said Greenpeace spokesman Craig Sinclair.

Burger King spokesman Doug Timberlake said the company's Icelandic suppliers are independent businessmen with no connections to the Icelandic government or whaling industry. He noted that the United States government considers the Icelandic whaling legitimate scientific research.

"It is Burger King's position that we do not condone the boycott, nor do we participate in it," Timberlake said. "Neither do we condone the wanton killing of whales."

Iceland, Japan and Norway continue to harvest whales despite an International Whaling Commission moratorium by claiming the whales are being killed for scientific study. Sinclair said that Iceland, one of only three nations that still allows whaling, killed 68 fin and 10 sei whales last year.

The whale meat is then sold in Japan, where it is considered a delicacy.

'Pirates' strike parade preparations

TAMPA -- Workers have begun erecting aluminum bleachers along a portion of Hayshore Boulevard near downtown Tampa in preparation for the annual Gasparilla Parade Feb. 4, and already modern-day pirates have attacked.

Jerry Freedman, director of Bay Bleachers Rental of Tampa, reported the theft over the weekend of a section of bleacher planks valued at about $1,900.

Police said investigators discovered Tuesday that a recycling company, unaware the planks were stolen, purchased them as scrap Monday, paying $622 for the 750 pounds of aluminum.

Company officials said three men in a pickup truck delivered the aluminum to the collection site.

Rioters calm down in Miami

United Press International

MIAMI -- Minor disturbances were reported Wednesday in a black neighborhood where riots broke out two days ago but police reported calm today in other areas disrupted by violence during the city's Super Bowl festivities.

"We are looking for a night of calm tonight, if we can get it," Fred Taylor, director of Metro-Dade County Police Department, said today.

"It has been much quieter than it was last night, up to this point."

A black teenager was killed and eight people were struck by bullets Tuesday during a night of sporadic gunfire and widespread looting in the Overtown, Liberty City and Coconut Grove areas.

Isolated rock and bottle throwing and several fires were reported by early evening Wednesday in the Overtown area. But officials described the incidents as minor, and Liberty City and Coconut Grove were relatively calm.

Rioting began Monday evening in Overtown after a Hispanic police officer fatally shot a black motorcyclist during a high-speed chase. The unrest resumed Tuesday and the violence spread to Liberty City and, to a lesser extent, sections of Coconut Grove.

"It has been our experience when you have a second day (of violence), you generally have a third," said Assistant Police Chief Don March Jr.

Police said 321 people were arrested in the two nights of disturbances that marred Miami's gala week leading up to Sunday's Super Bowl XXIII. Charges ranged from grand theft and burglary to attempted murder and arson. Among those arrested Tuesday were two snipers wounded by police.

Police were counting on those arrests — and the promise of more, if the violence continues — to keep the area quiet. Officials also promised a swift investigation into the police shooting that triggered the violence.

Miami city commissioners empaneled an 11-member independent board Wednesday comprised of Overtown residents and police to investigate the shooting and improve police and community relations.

The Dade County State Attorney's Office and the Miami Police Department are conducting a separate probe, and the Justice Department has begun a civil rights investigation of the shooting that prompted the unrest.

"We have a number of FBI agents working on the investigation at this time," said FBI spokesman Paul Miller.

Clement Lloyd, 23, was shot Monday as he and his passenger, Allan Blanchard, 24, led police on a high-speed chase prompted by a traffic violation. Lloyd died instantly, and Blanchard died Tuesday of head injuries suffered when the motorcycle collided with a car.

The Miami Herald reported Wednesday that Lloyd's license was suspended six times between May 1987 to August 1988. The accumulated convictions led to one-year suspension on Nov. 15, the paper said.

Also Wednesday, Blanchard's family issued a public plea for calm, saying they did not want the violence to be known as the Allan Blanchard riots of 1989.

Officer William Lozano, a member of the department for nearly four years who fired the fatal shot, was suspended with pay pending the investigation.

1980 riots' causes remain, expert says

United Press International

MIAMI -- A black psychologist who studied Miami's bitter 1980 racial riots said Wednesday the same factors that caused the 1980 disturbance remain and predicted future trouble for the city.

"I see the disturbances this week basically as a rehash of what happened here in 1980," said Marvin Dunn.

He said despite promises of positive change after 1980, most change for blacks in Miami has been for the worse. One problem is inadequate low-income housing and poor code enforcement for substandard housing. In 1980, vacancy rates for low-income housing in Dade County were half of 1 percent — which was then exacerbated by the arrival in Miami of tens of thousands of poor Cuban refugees from Mariel harbor.

Now, Dunn said, the housing problem is even worse, in part caused by Miami's urban renewal decisions to reclaim Overtown, a rundown neighborhood gullied by sporadic uprisings during the 1960s and 70s.

"Overtown's days are numbered," Dunn said. "Because the land value is now very high, the area is going to be converted to public use and housing for Yuppies."

A new $50 million Miami Arena at the edge of Overtown, home of the NBA Miami Heat, prompted bitter protests from residents.

In 1981, Dunn wrote that black Miami was almost totally alienated from the rest of the city. Dunn said Wednesday that this has not improved in the last 10 years.

"Keeping blacks in a position of economic and social isolation and political disenfranchisement can be allowed to continue only at greater and greater peril to the health, safety and peace of mind of every member of American society," he and co-author Bruce Porter wrote in "The Miami Riot of 1980." The study was funded by the Ford Foundation.

"I think this latest disturbance is America's wake-up call," Dunn said Wednesday. "It's the second one Miami's seen out in 10 years."

Dunn blamed the city's racial troubles on the lack of national and local policies for change, and the failure to push a national black agenda for jobs, economic development, education programs and low-income housing.

Dunn said the latest outbreak and past Miami riots shared roots, such as the waves of Latin immigration that stoked ethnic tensions in 1968 and 1980. In the past month, hundreds of Nicaraguan refugees began arriving in the city.

The influx of immigrants has traditionally meant new competition for jobs held by blacks, Dunn wrote. In 1968, just as blacks nationally made big economic strides, the first wave of Cubans hindered black advancement in Miami.

Another glaring parallel, said Dunn, is the breakout of tensions during a major national event.

Governor sneers at Bundy's plea for life

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE -- Gov. Bob Martinez said Wednesday he rejected a "despicable" request from serial killer Theodore Robert "Ted" Bundy to delay his execution in exchange for information about scores of unsolved murders in which Bundy is a suspect.

"For him to negotiate for his life over the bodies of his victims is despicable," Martinez said of the notorious mass murderer's effort to stave off his execution, which is scheduled for Tuesday.

"He has basically lied through the entire process, and why anybody thinks he'd tell the truth now is beyond me," the governor said.

Martinez said Bundy asked through intermediaries to be allowed to live long enough — perhaps as much as three years — to discuss the unsolved cases.

The governor said he refused to consider delay.

"We have sent word back to each of these individuals that the rendezvous with the electric chair will be next Tuesday at 7 o'clock in the morning," Martinez said in a news conference.

"We are not going to have the system manipulated in terms of trying to extend time by wanting to talk to law enforcement people that he toyed with for years when they've tried to get information from him," the governor said.

"Our answer to each of these requests is, 'No.'"

Martinez signed Bundy's latest death warrant Monday, minutes after the Supreme Court refused to consider Bundy's appeal in the 1978 murder of Kimberly Diane Leach, a 12-year-old Lake City schoolgirl.

Bundy also was convicted for the murders that same year of two Florida State University students as they slept in their sorority house. He is suspected of 36 murders and disappearances of young women in Colorado, Utah and Washington.

Martinez said one request came through Volusia County State Attorney John Tanner, who operated a prison religious fellowship and was Bundy's spiritual adviser before his election last November.

Another call came from Jerry Gardner, an assistant to Tanner. Diana Weiner, a Sarasota lawyer who has represented Bundy in some civil matters, also contacted the governor's office, aides said.

Bob Cummings, assistant commissioner in the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, said Tanner passed word through him that Bundy wanted to talk to officials from Washington, but did not promise any formal confessions.

Andrea Hilyer, a legal aide to the governor, said Weiner indicated "he wanted to resolve all possible cases."

"He was making a firm commitment to immediately begin a full debriefing by law enforcement. The request is that the execution not occur during the debriefing. That means as long as law enforcement is talking to him, he couldn't be executed," Hilyer said.

Investigators from Salt Lake City were in Florida to seek information from Bundy about murders there. Officials from the FBI, Colorado and Washington also were considering interviewing Bundy, said Martinez' aides.

In Seattle, King County Police Sgt. Bill Dickinson said the agency has no intention of sending detectives down to talk to Bundy before the execution.

"If he desires to make a last-minute, clean breast of things, we will be happy to go down and talk to him, but it won't help much as far as the criminal investigation goes, because if they execute him the next day we couldn't go after and prosecute him," Dickinson said.

"The only thing it would be do is make the families of the victims feel better and close the cases, which are inactive right now."

Eleanor Rose of Seattle, whose daughter Denise Naslund was a killed in July 1974, said she has hopes Bundy will talk about other murders before he dies "to put our minds at ease ... but I've heard that a psychopath doesn't do that."

Woman reports rape

WINTER PARK — A resident at Sedgefield Apartments, State Road 436, rural Winter Park, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies she was raped in a laundry room there at about 10 p.m. Wednesday.

The 18-year-old woman, who has lived at that location for three days, said she was grabbed from behind and forced to the floor when she went to the laundry room alone. She said she never saw the man who raped her. She said he threatened to kill her. Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating the case.

House search nets several arrests

MIDWAY — City County Investigative Bureau agents report arresting five on narcotics charges after a search of a Midway house from which agents said they bought crack cocaine on several occasions this month.

The warrant was served at about midnight Wednesday at 2430 Crawford Drive, the house of James Long, 60, who is charged with maintaining a house for the use or sale of a controlled substance.

John Albert Long, 52, of 2241 Brisson Ave., Midway, was charged with possession of cocaine. Agents said he was in a bathroom where they found a container of cocaine.

Charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana were Redonda Monique White, 21, of 2520 Crawford Drive; and Veronica Catrice Burch, 25, of 2200 Roosevelt Drive, Sanford.

Samuel Louis Jackson, 36, of 2411 Crawford Drive, was charged with possession of an instrument used to smoke crack cocaine.

Agents reported that on Jan. 10, and on Tuesday and Wednesday undercover agents bought crack cocaine from John Long at the house of James Long.

Three arrested for possessing cocaine

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Three men, each accused of having crack cocaine, were arrested by City County Investigative Bureau agent in rural Altamonte Springs early today.

Charged with possession and sale of cocaine were Earl Wesley Maddox, 29, of 500 Ford Drive, Sanford; and Otis Jewell Peterson, 25, who refused to give an address.

Peterson was arrested on Salina Street, and Maddox was arrested on Magnolia Street.

As Maddox was being arrested, a bystander who appeared to try to hide something was confronted and reportedly found to have crack cocaine. That brought a charge of possession of a controlled substance against Thad Cortez Johnson, 29, of 1236 North St., Altamonte Springs.

Two arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol in Seminole County:

• James Nelson Howerton Jr., 24, of Orlando, was arrested at 10:19 p.m. Wednesday after his car was in an accident on 25th Street, Sanford.

• Sally Ann Spencer, 40, of 2429 Mellonville Ave., Sanford, at 7:57 p.m. Wednesday after her car was in an accident on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

Oviedo intersection closed Friday

OVIEDO — The intersection of state roads 419 and 427 in downtown Oviedo will be closed for resurfacing all day Friday, according to city police.

Discrimination claimed by 1,700 Hispanic customs employees

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Hispanic employees of the Customs Service filed a class action suit against the agency Wednesday seeking $50 million for allegedly discriminatory practices in assignments and promotions.

The Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund filed the suit in U.S. District Court on behalf of the more than 1,700 Hispanic workers in the Customs Service, an arm of the Treasury Department.

The suit is the third such action since 1985 charging that a federal law enforcement agency has discriminated against its Hispanic employees.

Hispanic FBI agents won a claim in September, and a similar suit is pending against the Drug Enforcement Administration.

The suit against the Customs Service charged 27 officials, including Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Customs Commissioner William von Rabb.

A Customs Service spokesman said the agency had no comment on the suit.

The suit charged that Hispanic workers suffer systematic discrimination in agency job assignment, training, promotion and discipline. Such treatment has kept Hispanics from holding a single position in the senior executive ranks and has reduced the number of Hispanics in upper management from nine to three, who represent only 1.5 percent of all top managers, the suit says.

"Since 1980, (von Rabb) has actively sought to reduce the number of Hispanic employees at upper management levels," the suit charged, and Hispanic workers "are virtually excluded from management and executive-level positions."

The suit seeks $50 million in back pay, retroactive promotions and related benefits, as well as a court order barring "future discriminatory employment practices and reprisals."

Mario Moreno, a lawyer for MALDEF, said Customs Service policies send a message to many Hispanics in the agency that they are not trusted.

"Maybe (von Rabb) feels Hispanics would be vulnerable to corruption ... with regard to the drug trade," he said.

MALDEF says Hispanics make up 11 percent of the agency workforce of more than 15,000.

The suit charged that qualified Hispanic employees often are passed over for promotion in favor of lower-graded, less-qualified non-Hispanics.

The suit also said a disproportionate number of Hispanic employees are assigned to the service's Southwestern, Pacific and Southeastern regions, with no opportunity for movement elsewhere.

"By unfairly segregating Hispanics into limited geographical areas ... the Customs Service has limited career choices and advancement opportunities for Hispanics," the suit said.

Committee to consider housing development

By LAURAL SULLIVAN
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The planning and zoning commission tonight will consider a 500-family development for low- and moderate-income families tonight.

The commission will continue a public hearing on the zoning request by Amefika Geuka of Oasis Development for a $5 million housing development between Celery and Brisson Avenues. The discussion was tabled Jan. 5 after several residents in that area spoke against rezoning the 72-acre parcel from agricultural uses to planned unit development.

The development will include rental units, apartments for senior citizens, townhouses and single family homes at varying price ranges. Thirty percent of rental units will be offered at below-market value.

At the Jan. 5 hearing, Celery Avenue residents argued that a convenience store proposed for the neighborhood would add to crime in the area. Other residents were concerned about increased traffic on the already congested Celery and Brisson Avenues.

Jay Marner, Sanford city planner, has recommended approval of the zoning request on conditions that the city set the pace for commercial development and certain specifics for landscaping and buffers.

1988 inflation held at same level as 1987

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose a moderate 0.3 percent in December to bring inflation in 1988 to 4.4 percent, the same as in 1987, the Labor Department said Thursday.

When figured on an annual basis, the December increase in the Producer Price Index was 4.1 percent, a rise caused primarily by price hikes in housing, food and medical care.

While the rate of inflation was the same in the past two years, the composition of rising prices was notably different.

Energy prices rose only 0.5 percent in 1988 after a 8.2 percent jump in 1987. Food prices, however, shot up 5.2 percent last year, as the summer drought caused shortages, after a 3.5 percent hike in 1987. The 1988 jump in food prices was the highest since 1960, according to the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Shelter costs increased 4.5 percent last year compared with 4.8 percent in 1987. Inflation, excluding food, shelter and energy, rose a rapid 4.7 percent in 1988, up from 3.8 percent in 1987, the department said, with prices for services leading the increase.

All monthly figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

Automobile finance charges jumped 8.3 percent and automobile insurance costs rose 8.4 percent last year while price hikes for clothing and tobacco products also contributed substantially to the rise in inflation, the department said.

Medical care rose 6.9 percent in 1988 while prices for apparel and upkeep increased 4.7 percent, transportation costs rose 3 percent and entertainment costs were up 4.6 percent.

The cost of living increases over the past two years contrast with a 1.1 percent hike in inflation in 1986.

In December, food prices rose 0.3 percent. Meats, poultry, fish and egg prices declined for the fourth straight month. Pork, poultry and egg prices fell last month, but less than in November. Fruit and vegetable prices rose 0.6 percent last month, the department said.

Prices for cereal and bakery products and dairy products rose sharply in December.

For the year, beef prices rose 5.6 percent while pork prices declined 3.1 percent. The drought had a big impact on poultry prices over the year, up 17.9 percent, and egg prices, up 16.5 percent.

During 1988, restaurant meals rose 4.4 percent and alcoholic beverages increased 3.9 percent, the department said.

Housing prices increased 0.4 percent last month, due mostly to hikes in fuel oil prices, which increased 2.8 percent. Fuel oil prices in December, however, were 6.3 percent below the level of a year ago and 34.9 percent below the peak of April 1981, the department said.

In the past 12 months, charges for electricity rose 2.8 percent and natural gas increased 3.6 percent.

Prices for local telephone calls increased 3.1 percent last month, offsetting declines in charges for out-of-state toll calls.

U.S. nuclear plants produce less power

UPI report

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — U.S. nuclear power plants produced the lowest percentage of their potential capacity compared with reactors in five other major industrialized countries, a new study showed Wednesday.

Researchers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology found that while some U.S. nuclear reactors performed as efficiently as the best in other countries, the rest performed so badly they dragged down the average U.S. performance to 60 percent of capacity.

"In all the other countries the performance has improved with time. The industry has collectively improved the problems," said Kent Hansen, a professor of nuclear engineering who helped conduct the study.

The research was based on data provided by national organizations.

Budget office casts doubt on deficit figures

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's assumptions about the economy are far too optimistic, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office said Wednesday, suggesting that even bigger tax hikes or steeper spending cuts may be needed to eliminate the budget deficit.

Appearing before the Senate Budget Committee, James Blum, acting director of the non-partisan group, said if the more pessimistic economic assumptions about interest rates, inflation and growth are correct, the deficit will continue to be at least $122 billion a year through fiscal 1994.

Blum noted that unemployment is 5.3 percent, the lowest level in 14 years, and factories are operating at high capacity.

"Because these high operating rates threaten to increase inflation, monetary restraint is likely to slow the economy's growth from recent high rates to a more sustainable trend," Blum said. "As a result, further reductions in the federal budget deficit will probably be modest if spending reductions or tax increases do not take place."

The administration — using assumptions of lower inflation and interest rates, and higher growth than those used by the Congressional Budget Office and most private economists — is forecasting that the deficit will be eliminated by fiscal 1993 as required by the 1985 Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

But if the new economic assumptions of higher interest, inflation and slower growth prove correct, the Gramm-Rudman law mandating elimination of the deficit by fiscal 1993 would require much larger spending cuts or tax increases than would be needed under Reagan's rosy economic assumptions.

If Reagan's assumptions are wrong, it would cost more to pay interest on the current federal debt and each dollar will buy less. Slower growth would bring fewer dollars into the federal treasury than Reagan has projected.

Using its own assumptions, the Congressional Budget Office estimated the deficit for fiscal 1990 at $141 billion, compared to the administration's estimate of a $127 billion deficit next year. Blum said under current budgetary policies, the deficit would drop to $140 billion in 1991 and to $122 billion by 1994.

The administration's inflation forecast is 3.8 percent for fiscal 1989, declining steadily to 1.7 percent in fiscal 1994.

Researcher reveals role of fantasy in sex killings

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Fantasy may serve as a key driving mechanism behind the violent crimes of serial sexual killers, a researcher reported at a major science meeting Wednesday.

"The findings support our hypothesis that daydreams of inflicting harm in a sadistic or other sexually violent way play an important role in repetitive sexual homicides," said Robert Prentky, research director at the Massachusetts Treatment Center in Bridgewater.

The small number of such crimes — less than 1 percent of all killings in the United States fall in this category — belie the "tremendous devastation" wrought by their perpetrators, Prentky said at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

For example, the 36 serial sexual killers originally in Prentky's pilot study murdered 118 known victims.

"The impact of this small, violent subgroup of offenders is disproportionately high," Prentky, who teaches psychiatry at the Boston University School of Medicine, said in an interview.

The findings also could apply to serial rapists, said Prentky, who collaborated on the research with FBI agents in the behavioral sciences unit and University of Pennsylvania scientists.

"None of us believed the common theory that if you took a group of men who engaged in serial sexual homicide — with three or more victims — and compared them with matched solo sexual killers — with one victim — the only difference would be the solo group got caught first," Prentky said.

"We wanted to know whether the serial people would have a higher incidence of fantasy, which motivated the serial act."

The 1.5-year study, which will be published in the American Journal of Psychiatry, found 86 percent of 25 serial sexual murderers experienced violent fantasies, compared to 23 percent of the 17 one-time killers in the survey.

"We speculate the killer keeps trying to replicate the fantasy. Yet, since he can't control such events as the response of the victim, the outcome of the assault will never give completely with the fantasy," Prentky said.

"In addition, the fantasy itself changes with each assault as each murder provides input into the fantasy."

The researchers also questioned the two groups about paraphilias, or abnormal love-making behavior that includes exhibitionism, transvestism and fetishism, or sexual arousal through such inanimate objects as women's undergarments.

"If fantasy plays a part, then paraphilia — an expression of underlying fantasy — should be more common among the serial killers," Prentky said.

And so it was. Indecent exposure or exhibitionism was noted in 25 percent of the serial group, vs. only 7 percent of the solo killers; transvestism in 25 percent, vs. zero; and fetishism in 71 percent, vs. 33 percent.

Although fantasy plays a part, "We'd be naive to believe it's the only governing factor in a serial sexual killer," Prentky cautioned. "After all, there are people with horrifyingly violent and sexually anomalous fantasies who do not kill."

The study findings could prove useful in assessing the potential danger of a convict and the likelihood of a repeat violent performance; determining the most effective treatment — "the fantasy life clearly speaks to a cluster of treatments to deal with trying to extinguish that fantasy" — and understanding the origin for behavior on a scientific level, Prentky said.

Prentky plans to follow up with larger, more detailed studies.

In addition, research is needed to determine the role of testosterone, the most abundant male sexual hormone.

'Freedom' stirs in the Soviet Union

The Soviet Union, arguably the most systematic violator of human rights after Nazi Germany, wants to hold a conference on human rights in Moscow in 1991. To the victims of the gulag, this must seem like the Nazis offering to be host to a conference on Jewish culture.

But to Mikhail Gorbachev, it is a crucial step in his campaign to halt abuses of the past. Gorbachev is pushing the conference for two apparent reasons: He wants to remove the stigma of the Stalinist terror from the Soviet Union's image. He appears to want to grant some, but not all, human rights to his country.

Gorbachev has made significant human-rights progress in a short time. In the past year, many Soviet prisoners of dissent have been released from the gulag. The doors of emigration have opened for 100 Jewish refuseniks long denied visas. Some 60,000 Soviet Jews and Armenians may be permitted to emigrate this year.

Preparing for the government conference, the Soviets made contact with U.S. "citizen diplomats" on the issue of human rights to test the waters for further liberalization. At a recent conference in Moscow, the Soviets accepted, in principle, creation of an independent U.S.-Soviet Human Rights Commission to hold hearings, monitor violations, defend victims of abuse and advocate rights. This private commission, similar to such U.S. groups as the NAACP and the ACLU, would be a meaningful way to empower Soviet citizens to defend their own rights.

Some rights are being tentatively granted; others are still systematically denied and violated in the one-party state.

Freedom of the press has increased visibly, as long as the articles are about abuses of the Stalinist and Brezhnev eras. But criticism of Gorbachev and the present party chiefs is less frequent. Dissident journalists have been jailed and their publications closed.

Freedom of religion has been permitted in name, but the state still holds sole power to grant permission to religious denominations to open churches, synagogues and mosques, and to hold religious services.

Rights to dissent, to demonstrate peacefully, to emigrate freely, to be a member of an opposition political party are all denied categorically.

The basic right to own private property, upon which all other rights are based in our constitutional system, is denied to Soviet people. Instead, they have the right to "personal property," which amounts to little in a land owned by the state.

In his reform efforts, Gorbachev must feel at times like the pilot of a glacier. It may take decades or centuries to transform Soviet society into a land of freedom. But the crucial process has been started.

The United States, initially skeptical about Gorbachev's motives, has become increasingly convinced of the Soviet leaders' seriousness. Secretary of State George Shultz and President Reagan gave approval the other day for the United States to participate in the Moscow conference, scheduled for 1991.

This is a positive step in reducing tensions between the two countries. But U.S. pressure for human rights in the Soviet Union must be increased in the Moscow conference, not shoved aside in the interest of vague promises of glasnost.

When Congress promises to be good

WASHINGTON — Parents are universally familiar with a favorite ploy of ill-behaved children: They promise to improve their deportment in return for an ice cream cone, candy bar or some other treat.

Unless the parents are thoroughly exhausted or exasperated, they usually respond by firmly noting that (a) the kids' proposal involves an unacceptable bribe to terminate bad behavior, or (b) good conduct is the expected norm and deserves no reward.

That same reasoning ought to be applied to the members of Congress who now are promising the nation that they will abandon one of their more unconscionable practices if they are first rewarded with a huge pay increase.

The ethical lapse in question involves the acceptance of honorariums, not only for making speeches but also for such passive activities as participating in plant tours and attending breakfast or luncheon briefings on pending or proposed legislation.

Congressional rules place a ceiling of $2,000 on the amount legislators may accept on each occasion. In addition, there are limits on the amount they may receive each year — 40 percent of the salary or $35,800 in the Senate and 30 percent of the salary or $26,850 in the House.

But with hundreds of special interest groups passing out honorariums, the total mounts up quickly. In 1987, senators received $3.1 million and representatives received $6.7 million.

The proposal linking a congressional pay increase of more than 50 percent annually — from $89,500 to $135,000 — with abandoning honorariums has been advanced not by members of Congress but by the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries. (The pay raise will take effect nearly next month unless disapproved by Congress.)

But the concept of exchanging a salary increase for an honorariums ban has its origins on Capitol Hill. For example, in early August of last year — two months before the commission was even organized — House Speaker Jim

In 1987, senators received $3.1 million and representatives received $6.7 million.

Wright, D-Texas, publicly endorsed such a proposal.

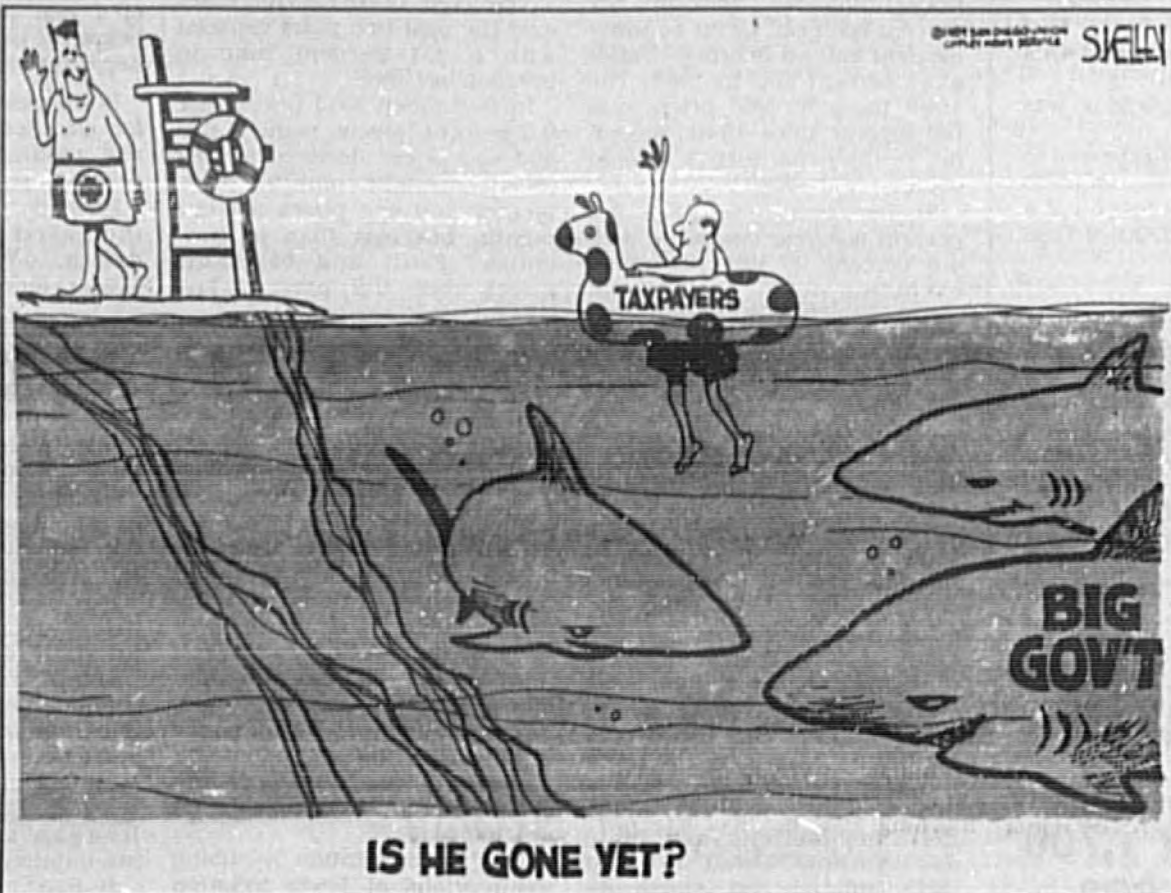

"The appearance of it has been made to look evil, so let's get rid of it," said Wright, unable or unwilling to acknowledge that the acceptance of thousands of dollars from strangers promoting legislative agendas is more than a matter of "appearances" or "looking" evil.

Although the scandal surrounding honorariums has been building for years, Congress has never attempted to take remedial action and now wants to postpone reform until after it receives the pay increase — but the legislators may lack the commitment to perform the difficult task.

To be effective, for example, the prohibition on outside income must include consulting, advisory and other professional fees. If not, special interest groups could continue to transfer cash to lawmakers.

Similarly, legislators must deal with payments from outsiders, ostensibly for services rendered, to their spouses and other members of their families. In some cases, those arrangements are entirely legitimate. In other instances, however, their only purpose is to indirectly enrich members of Congress.

As goes the book store, so too Western culture?

NEW YORK — With its ornate black Beaux Arts facade embellished with gold leaf, 597 Fifth Avenue looks like a building with a furrowed brow, a pleasantly serious place. It looks like a bookstore, which it is, but not for long.

Intellectuals like loitering in bookstores and they like detecting signs of the decline of the West. They can do both simultaneously on Jan. 22 when Scribner's bookstore closes its doors after 75 years. But discerning large cultural portents in small commercial decisions is usually, as in this case, a mistake. Bookselling is still a sphere of robust pluralism, even healthy eccentricity, among the more than 21,000 bookstores.

The 10-story Scribner's building opened in 1913 and until 1984 housed the offices of Scribner's publishing company, which was founded in 1846 and once dominated American publishing as no house has since done. Its authors included Edith Wharton, Edmund Wilson, Ring Lardner and Winston Churchill. In a fifth-floor office the celebrated editor Max Perkins dealt with Fitzgerald, Hemingway and the chaotic manuscripts of Thomas Wolfe. One of the first shoppers downstairs was Teddy Roosevelt.

But all that's beautiful drifts away like the waters, and when has beauty been a match for the iron laws of real-estate values? The basic problem is that Manhattan is made up of just 14,000 acres and those in midtown are so pricey that it is hard to book sales to pay the rent.

It can be done. There are several Fifth Avenue bookstores nearby. But the intractable problem is how to be sufficiently profitable while being interesting. What makes a bookstore worth supporting, or mourning, is a rich selection of slow as well as fast-moving titles drawn from back lists and from the smaller sources of the nearly 56,000 new titles published each year.

Away from the highest rent districts, bookselling on a small scale, as a haven of quirky individuality, is thriving, or at least surviving. Consider Bridge Street Books in Washington, D.C. It is the pride and joy of Philip Levy, 44, who in his bulky sweaters and unpressed slacks looks like what he is: a '60s radical who has come to terms with commerce.

Levy recalled, with middle-aged bemusement, an early crisis of conscience. He wanted to specialize in literature of the Left. Should he sell Henry Kissinger's memoirs? He did. Booksellers read election returns.

However, Levy's Georgetown store is a small island of individuality where his tastes and hunches are offered to the eclectic whims of bookstore browsers. He has packed about 8,000 titles into a two-story building 12 feet wide and 27 feet deep. He specializes in trade (high-quality) paperbacks and hardbacks, many of which you would not find in the sort of bookstores that sell board games and greeting cards.

His hardback best seller — he sold about 20 copies — during the Christmas season was Richard Posner's "Law and Literature" from the Harvard University Press. His second best seller was "1791: Mozart's Last Year." It is highly probable that no other bookstore in the nation had those two books at the top of its list.

One of the sublime delights of being an author is attending the teeming convention of the American Booksellers Association. There, you are apt to be told by a no-nonsense woman that she is "thinking about" ordering six, maybe even eight, copies of your book for her store. The Bookworm in Jackson, Miss. It is of course splendid when one of the large chains orders your book in the thousands, but there is a special pleasure in the personal judgments of these intense individualists who bring their interests to the attention of small portions of the reading public.

Among owners of, and aficionados of, small bookstores there is resentment of the big chains — Waldenbooks, B. Dalton, Barnes & Noble and Crown Books. The chains emphasize mass marketing and thus cater primarily to mass preferences. They enjoy economies of scale that enable them to get from publishers and give to customers discounts which small sellers cannot match.

But the existence of the chains does not mean the extinction of the small bookseller, any more than McDonald's has killed the neighborhood restaurant.

Bookselling on a small scale, as a haven for quirky individuality, is thriving.

Coast Guard sea rescue suspicious

WASHINGTON — When a freak wave capsized a charter fishing boat off Mexico's Baja coast, it was about 1 p.m. on a clear day. By the time the U.S. Coast Guard arrived to rescue the 12 passengers of the "Fish 'N Fool," it was after sunset and 10 of them were dead.

A Coast Guard jet had flown over the accident at 2:30 p.m., and picked up a distress signal. But rescue officials ordered the plane to continue on a prior mission. The plane was delivering a helicopter part to La Paz, Mexico. The pilot had planned to stay the night, needed a car, and wanted to get to La Paz before the car rental shop closed.

Family and friends of the victims claim the Coast Guard botched that rescue mission on Feb. 5, 1987. The details should alarm anyone who ventures out to sea.

The Coast Guard quickly dispensed of its investigation in a report that is missing one vital piece of evidence. Our associate Jim Lynch obtained that piece — a transcript of a conversation between rescue personnel who debated whether to find the boat or go for the rental car.

The first Coast Guard jet to fly over the accident was cruising at 37,000 feet on its way to La Paz. The pilot couldn't see the boat, but he picked up an electronic distress signal. His plane had a lifeboat and flares strapped to its belly for just such an occasion. The pilot called a Coast Guard base in San Diego for instructions and the details were radioed to rescue headquarters in Long Beach. The initial order from Long Beach was to find the boat.

Then this conversation followed between Coast Guard personnel in Long Beach and San Diego about the problem in La Paz:

"See, where they're going (La Paz) is an hour-and-a-half ahead of us right now."

"Right."

"And the car rental place, if they don't get down there when it's open, they can forget it until tomorrow."

"OK, yeah. I know it's going to put them in a jam if they don't get down there ..."

"OK, I tell you what. I have another airplane up on a test flight. Maybe I can get them."

"OK, if you can ... We need someone to go out there and take a look at it."

The pilot of the jet was then told to forget tracking the distress signal and proceed to La Paz. Another plane would be sent to track the boat.

The second plane was on a test mission and had to be refueled and pick up a new crew. It did not find the Fish 'N Fool until 5:30 p.m. By the time rescue personnel arrived on the scene to pull passengers out of the water, it was 7:30 p.m. and dark.

Meanwhile, the Fish 'N Fool passengers had been clinging to debris in six-foot swells. One of the two survivors later recounted how two of his friends struggled to stay alive. One clutched an ice chest, another a Clorox bottle. They both drowned before the Coast Guard arrived. One survivor said many of the victims were still alive when the sun went down. Only two bodies were recovered.

In its final report, the Coast Guard blamed the boat captain for fishing too close to a rock. The unexpected wave smashed the boat onto that rock. As for its own performance, the Coast Guard claimed it lost only 1½ hours in response time by letting the first jet go on to La Paz.

How they reached that conclusion is a mystery to us because the second jet arrived three hours after the first.

The details should alarm anyone who ventures out to sea.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending sharp gains won in the previous session.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which jumped 24.11 Wednesday to post its highest closing level since the market crashed Oct. 19, 1987, was up 1.25 to 2240.00 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 319-252 among the 951 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,352,000 shares.

Before the market opened, the government said that consumer prices rose 0.3 percent in December, just under the 0.4 percent hike most analysts had forecast due to rising oil prices.

Stock prices posted sharp gains in active trading Wednesday as investors, spurred by strength in the dollar and bonds, staged a buying spree despite concerns over a widening of the U.S. trade deficit.

The government said the seasonally adjusted U.S. merchandise trade deficit widened to $12.51 billion in November.

Dollar continues to climb

United Press International

The dollar was higher Thursday in active trading on major foreign currency markets despite a round of central European interest rate hikes. Gold edged higher.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8725 West German marks, up from 1.8550 mark on Wednesday.

Shortly after the market opened in Frankfurt, the West German Bundesbank boosted its discount rate to 4 percent from 3.5 percent, and its Lombard rate to 6 percent.

from 5.5 percent. The rate increases will take effect on Jan. 20.

The central banks of Switzerland and Austria also raised their discount and Lombard rates by 0.5 point.

The Swiss discount rate was raised to 4 percent from 3.5 percent and the Lombard rate to 6 percent from 5.5 percent.

The Austrian discount rate was raised to 4.5 percent from 4 percent and the Lombard rate to 6 percent from 5.5 percent.

In early New York trading, the dollar was higher against key foreign currencies.

Housing starts down 2.2 percent

United Press International

WASHINGTON — New house construction dropped 2.2 percent in December, the steepest drop in eight months, ending the worst year for house building since 1982, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

New house projects were launched at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.524 million units in December, down 2.2 percent from November, the sharpest drop since a 12.1 percent plunge in May, the department's Census Bureau said.

That followed a revised 1.6 percent rise from October, which was a little more robust than the previously reported 1.4 percent.

For the year, 1.487 million units were started, an 8.2 percent drop from 1987, the bureau said. That was the worst year since 1982 when house starts totaled 1.062 million units.

Single-family housing dropped 1.9 percent in December to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.114 million units, after a 0.1 percent drop from October to November, the bureau said.

Inauguration ceremonies begin

United Press International

WASHINGTON — George Bush and Dan Quayle bobbed their heads in unison to the good vibrations of the Beach Boys as the beaming duo moved nearer to becoming the nation's next president and vice president.

"Ba ba ba ... ba-ba-ba-ran," the Beach Boys belted out Wednesday night at a festive formal opening of a five-day inaugural extravaganza attended by Bush and Quayle, their respective families and a crowd estimated at 250,000.

To the delight of the gathering and a bevy of television cameras from around the world, Bush's grandchildren danced to one song after another on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial — from "Barbara Ann" to "Kokomo" to "Help me, Rhonda."

Bush and Quayle are to take their oaths of office Friday, following another slate of inaugural events Thursday focusing on Quayle, the much-maligned vice president-elect.

Quayle, who polls show has yet to gain the nation's confidence, was to address a group of high school students at the District of Columbia Armory and then attend a reception for himself at the National Museum of American History.

In between, there was to be a salute to soon-to-be first lady Barbara Bush at the Kennedy Center, and Thursday night there was to be a gala in honor of President-elect Bush.

At Wednesday's celebration, which featured plenty of country and rock 'n' roll music and ended with a Fourth-of-July-like fireworks display, Bush said:

"Let this inauguration be a time to celebrate who we are and let it also be a time to remember who we can be."

Quoting the phrase "government of the people, by the people and for the people," Bush, standing beneath a near full moon, said: "That is the kind of government I plan to lead."

Bush said none of the previous 40 presidents "ever achieved anything good or great as president without the will of you, the American people, and I will try hard to be a president of all the people."

He praised Ronald Reagan as "a great president," but noted that "the job is not complete. Some are still hurting and we care. Many important tasks lie ahead."

After lighting a torch he said was symbolic of "the brightness of America's future," people in the crowd lit about 40,000 small flashlights to dramatize Bush's campaign theme of a "thousand points of light."

"America is a nation of communities," Bush said. "The American people represent a brilliant diversity, spread like stars, like a thousand points of light in a broad and peaceful sky."

Bush asked rhetorically: "What is it that produces the light? What is it that makes these thousand points of light shine? What is it that will make America a kinder and gentler nation?"

"The answer quite simply is you. It's individuals doing their part to make America a better place to live."

In addition to the Beach Boys, Bush's address and fireworks, Wednesday's event also included music by the Gatlin Brothers and Up with People, a 21-plane aerial salute and a precision jump by members of the Army's Golden Knights Parachute Team.

And it was all free — in stark contrast to the most expensive event of the five-day period — a $1,500-a-head dinner at three locations Wednesday night.

Suspected teen kidnappers caught

United Press International

PROVO, Utah — Two prison escapees accused of kidnapping Florida teenager were arrested Wednesday in central Utah, where they allegedly had fled after freeing their young hostages in Baltimore, police said.

Patrick Paige, 21, Ocala, Fla., and Anthony Cokley, 23, St. Petersburg, Fla., were arrested without incident on Interstate Highway 15, about 55 miles south of Salt Lake City, said Marion County, Fla., Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Jennifer Fanzlaw.

Troopers arrested the two on federal kidnapping charges, and Florida officials said they would try to bring the pair back to Florida to face escape charges.

Authorities said two Utah Highway Patrol troopers arrested the suspects as a lucky "fluke" stemming from a routine traffic stop after checking the license number on their 1975 green Buick Century purchased in Baltimore.

"They had been pulled over to begin with for displaying temporary handmade plates" near Nephi, Utah, said UHP dispatch supervisor Peggy Smith. "A check turned out they weren't wanted. They gave aliases."

The troopers tried to contact the registered vehicle owner in Maryland and left a message on his answering machine, Smith said, then let the suspects go.

But, within minutes the UHP was contacted by an FBI agent who "happened to be at the Maryland man's house when he listened to the answering machine" messages, she said.

Troopers then arrested the pair a second time, about 30 miles away, near the town of Santaquin, Smith said.

"It happened very quickly. It was kind of a fluke," she said.

Three FBI agents questioned Paige and Cokley in the Utah County Jail Wednesday afternoon, a jail spokeswoman said. Paige and Cokley were scheduled to appear in a court Thursday.

thing out of the ordinary in their quiet neighborhood.

Mrs. Olson was head pastry chef at the Oviedo Inn, Oviedo, for about a dozen years. Her husband was a retired security guard who worked part-time. He was also a U.S. Navy veteran.

Late this morning, police said they found Mrs. Olson's missing car about two blocks from the shooting scene.

They said evidence found in the car apparently links Joey Olson to the homicides and police are now calling him a suspect in the killings of his parents.

Police are asking persons who may have seen Olson or the car in the Markham Woods Road-area where the vehicle was found to call police if they have any information in the case. ■■■

Baleman, 16, hanged himself in a Seminole County jail cell on Aug. 27, 1987.

It was a combination of good behavior, crowded prison conditions and an early release program which cut Phillips' prison time to 25 percent of her original sentence, according to authorities.

Even if Phillips had served the average length of her prison sentence, she would not have been released until December of 1989, the according said.

Phillips' boyfriend had been living with her at her parent's home, 1532 Franca Drive in southwest Seminole County, about one mile from the florist shop, when they were arrested.

McGinnis was working alone when the teen-agers robbed and killed her. Her body was discovered in the woods about 150 yards from the store.

Phillips was a student at Crooms School of Choice, Sanford.

Donald D. McGinnis, the victim's husband, was not available this morning but his son said they both would have "no comment."

Prosecutor Thomas Hastings was involved in court proceedings this morning and also was unavailable for comment.

Phillips' lawyer, former Circuit Judge Dominick Salft, said this morning that the teen-age girl "worked hard" toward her early release.

"Her attitude has tremendously changed. She is really a much different young lady. There are no indications that she hasn't done everything to put herself on a real rehabilitation path," Salft said.

Phillips is residing with her parents in Forest City, according to the lawyer.

Salft said that the judge entered a 15-year sentence on Nov. 2, 1987 which provided that after a period of six years, Phillips should be placed on probation or community control.

disagreements with Altamonte Springs during the past few years, with the exception of the city's creation of a special taxing area along the State Road 436 corridor to improve traffic conditions.

The county feared losing taxes needed to maintain county roads and streets in the area. The two governments compromised this year when the city agreed to take over maintenance of some of those county streets.

The city and the county are close to an agreement which would allow joint construction of traffic improvements on portions of Center Street and Montgomery Road and Eaden Park Avenue. Under the agreement, which could be completed in about four months, the city and the county would share impact fees to complete improvements to the roads.

County commissioners plan a similar meeting with Sanford commissioners within the next month. The meetings were spawned out of a request by Seminole County Commissioner Pat Warren to meet with the cities to hash out ways of ending friction between them and the county.

"It's the most positive thing I've seen governments do," Warren told the city and county commissioners.

reduced to rotted wood, miscellaneous rubble, and gaping holes which attract opossums, raccoons and snakes. Broken windows and torn-out bathroom plumbing are also the handiwork of vandals.

"It's historical all right," Commissioner Richard Bullington said while inspecting the termite-riddled wall.

"Repairs must be made. It might be that the only value is in the land," Terry said. The 100-by-100-foot piece of land the home sits on abuts city property.

The old wooden home would require at least another $50,000 to refurbish and make usable, according to Helms.

"If it was mine, I would tear it down," he said.

However, because it is located in the heart of Longwood's historic district and because of its historic significance, Terry said the city would probably seek ways to preserve the structure. He suggested a community effort to get the work done. If the home is refurbished, it could possibly be used for city purposes such as office space, according to Terry.

The last inhabitant of the home was Garland Shaw, who passed away, according to Helms.

The city will decide what to do about the building after the commissioners make their recommendations.

State corrections director slain

SALEM, Ore. — Police offered bodyguards to top state officials following the slaying of Corrections Director Michael Francke, who was found stabbed through the heart near his office on the grounds of a mental hospital.

At least one official refused the offer and it was not known if others, including the secretary of state and attorney general, had accepted protection from the State Police.

Superintendent Emil Brandaw said Wednesday there were no suspects in the slaying and his department had offered unprecedented police protection to other state officials until more was known about the case.

Francke, 42, whose department was overseeing the largest prison expansion in state history in response to severe overcrowding, was found dead Wednesday near his office on the grounds of the Oregon State Hospital.

All patients were accounted for during the night in the ward for the criminally insane, officials said.

Questions after the bloodbath

STOCKTON, Calif. — Many parents of the victims of this week's schoolyard massacre had fled the killing grounds of Vietnam and Cambodia only to have their children die on a playground in their adopted homeland. Some fear the violence against them has only begun.

Police said Wednesday they have no evidence that the killer was racially motivated, but for many of the estimated 30,000 Southeast Asian refugees in California's San Joaquin Valley, the massacre that left five children dead and 29 wounded evoked the horrors in their homelands.

Samonn Koent sobbed uncontrollably as he spoke of Rathanan Or, his 8-year-old playmate who was among the dead. Rathanan Or's father, a rebel Cambodian soldier, was reported killed in 1977 in a fire fight against forces of the murderous Khmer Rouge. The mother, in Or, fled Cambodia with her two children because, she said Wednesday, she "wanted to be in a place of peace and freedom — the United States."

Polish leader offers resignation

United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski offered his own resignation and those of three top government ministers during a stormy Communist Party meeting in which members passed a resolution on re-legalizing Solidarity trade union, the official news agency PAP said Wednesday.

The nearly 200-member Central Committee rejected Jaruzelski's offer and instead gave him a nearly unanimous endorsement, with only four abstentions, PAP said.

In sharp contrast, the resolution on Solidarity's legal status passed by a vote of 150 to 46, a party source said.

The division, unusual in a situation where near unanimous approval is much more common, clearly indicated a split between pragmatists and hard-liners on the Central Committee.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa met with his advisers into the evening in the northern port of Gdanak, birthplace of Solidarity, to assess the resolution.

Initial indications pointed to a rejection because the measure imposes a probationary period and demands that the trade union support government economic reforms, be loyal to the state and refrain from strikes.

In 1980 Solidarity led strikes that crippled Poland. It was declared illegal in December 1982 with the imposition of martial law and was not re-legalized when martial law was lifted 12 months later, but the union has remained active.

The bitter Central Committee meeting lasted until 3 a.m., PAP reported. The news agency indicated that Jaruzelski, architect of the martial law declaration, had reversed his view on Solidarity and had come under attack by hard-liners.

Political observers said Jaruzelski's bold move was an apparent effort to secure a mandate for formally legalizing Solidarity later.

Battle in Supreme Court over affirmative action

United Press International

WASHINGTON — White firefighters in Birmingham, Ala., trying to overturn an affirmative action plan they say discriminates against them, told the Supreme Court Wednesday they deserve a chance to argue the case in court.

In arguments before the justices, lawyers for the city and black firefighters countered that the whites already had their chance when the plan was drawn up and claimed the latest attack represents just another chapter in their long-running opposition to repairing the city's "egregious history" of racism.

"What has been going on for 14 years is something between guerrilla warfare and massive resistance to affirmative action," said Robert Joffe, who represented the black firefighters.

The federal government, bolting from its original position in the case, has sided with the white firefighters. The Reagan administration has repeatedly, and generally unsuccessfully, fought affirmative action plans on the ground they discriminate against whites.

Lawyers for the white firefighters, however, maintained they were not aware of the plans' details when it was approved or that it would affect their chances for promotion and should be able to argue against it at trial.

The court heard a virtually identical case one year ago, involving a challenge to a consent decree by white New York City police officers.

Gorbachev outlines Soviet defense cuts

United Press International

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced a 14.2 percent cut in the defense budget and said nearly half of the 500,000 troops being demobilized from the armed forces will come from the European area.

In remarks Wednesday to members of the Trilateral Commission, a non-governmental organization of politicians and businessmen from the United States, Western Europe and Japan, Gorbachev also said production of weapons and military technology would be reduced by 19.5 percent.

The Soviet leader elaborated on a Dec. 7 speech before the United Nations in New York in which he announced that 500,000 troops were being retired from the armed forces.

He said Wednesday that 240,000 of those being demobilized will come from the European part of the country — the forces facing the Western NATO alliance. Another 200,000 will come from the Far East and the remainder, or 60,000, from southern republics, he said.

Gorbachev said the 500,000 reduction represented 12 percent of the entire Soviet armed forces.

Gunmen kill 2 judges, 11 others

BOGOTA, Colombia — A band of gunmen ambushed two vans of judicial officials investigating mass murders in the province of Santander Wednesday, killing 13 people, including two judges, authorities said.

The attack occurred near the town of La Rochela, 250 miles north of Bogota. The unidentified attackers hurled sticks of dynamite and shot at the two vehicles, government officials in the capital said.

Two of the people in the two-van convoy survived and were in satisfactory condition Wednesday night in a hospital in the city of Barrancabermeja.

Judges Mariela Morales and Pablo Beltran, their two secretaries, two drivers and seven police detectives all died in the ambush, according to General Farouk Yanine, commander of the Second Army Division based in the area.

Yanine blamed the ambush on the leftist Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces rebels, but Justice Minister Guillermo Plasas said the identity of the attackers had not been established.

Botha's condition stable after stroke

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Pieter W. Botha's condition "stabilized further" at a military hospital in Cape Town Thursday after suffering a stroke, and an announcement was expected on whether he would designate an acting president, aides said.

Botha, 73, suffered what was described as a mild stroke at his residence Wednesday, triggering uncertainty over his continued control of the minority white government with an election looming and South Africa preparing to surrender control of Namibia.

He was expected to address the opening session of parliament Feb. 3 to outline a legislative program for the year and possibly announce elections in advance of the constitutionally required deadline of March 1990.

Botha was rushed to the No. 2 Military Hospital on the grounds of a military base on the outskirts of Cape Town after suffering the stroke.

A source close to Botha was quoted in the pro-government daily Citizen Thursday as saying Botha was "in full control of himself" with no visible signs of physical impairment such as paralysis or speech difficulties.

Settlers to chart new Jewish state

JERUSALEM — Scores of right-wing Israeli settlers met to outline the framework for a Jewish state in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, a move designed to pressure the Israeli government to annex the territories.

While the move Wednesday to form a second Jewish state appears to have minimal support among settlers, it came amid growing worry among settlers that Israel will be pressured to trade land for peace to end the Middle East conflict.

In the occupied territories, soldiers shot and wounded at least six Palestinians during scattered disturbances, Palestinian sources said. One youth was shot in the head and was in serious condition, the sources said. The army confirmed four wounded.

Meanwhile, Israeli officials continued debating military policy in the occupied territories. During a stormy session of Israel's parliament, the Knesset, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin walked out because of persistent heckling by critics.

The debate came a day after Rabin announced a tougher policy to curb stone-throwing in the territories, including increasing the number of soldiers allowed to open fire during clashes.

Japanese OKs half-trillion dollar budget

TOKYO — The Japanese Cabinet approved a $491.8 billion budget for fiscal 1989 Thursday that holds defense spending to less than 1 percent of the gross national product and makes Japan the world's top donor of foreign aid.

Japan's booming economy has increased tax revenue, allowing the government to boost spending by 6.6 percent in 1989, the highest budget increase in seven years.

The strong economy puts Japan in the enviable position of being able to cut taxes, increase social and defense spending and reduce the growth in deficit spending.

The draft budget, written by the Finance Ministry, will be hotly debated by other ministries competing for funds and must win final approval from the Diet, or parliament, but no significant changes are expected.

According to the draft, defense spending will increase 5.2 percent to $31.8 billion in fiscal 1989, which begins April 1.

Anderson's 36 boost Sixers

For a player who doesn't see himself as a hero, Ron Anderson performed like one Wednesday night. The former Indiana Pacer scored a career-high 36 points, leading Philadelphia to a 115-104 victory over the Boston Celtics.

"I don't consider myself a hero but it sounds good anyway," said Anderson, a fifth-year pro who sank 15-of-22 shots from the field and scored 17 points in the fourth quarter. He has flourished since the Oct. 3 trade to the 76ers.

"He had just a great game," Philadelphia Coach Jim Lynam said. "But he's done that enough now that we've become used to seeing it."

The 76ers won for the sixth time in seven games; Boston lost its third straight, all on the road.

Due largely to Anderson's effort, the 76ers' bench outscored Boston's by a 54-6 margin. Philadelphia played tenacious defense, forcing the Celtics to go inside for most of their points.

Krishnan shocks No. 1 Wilander

MELBOURNE — Unseeded Ramesh Krishnan of India humbled top-seeded Mats Wilander Thursday in the second round of the Australian Open, scoring a shocking 6-3, 6-2, 7-6 (7-5) victory.

In the 2-hour, 17-minute match in Flinders Park Stadium, Krishnan, ranked 51st in the world, outmaneuvered the world's No. 1-ranked player, Wilander, the defending champion, last year also won the French and United States Opens.

The upset removed a major obstacle from Boris Becker's march to the final. Becker will meet unseeded Mexican Leonardo Lavalle in the third round.

The last time the top seed in the Australian championships failed to advance past the second round was 1973, when defending champion Ken Rosewall lost to Germany's Karl Meiler.

The center-court crowd of 14,300 sat stunned as Krishnan outfoxed the hard-hitting Wilander with a mixture of line drives and volleys.

Indians pick up reliever Allen

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians moved to strengthen their bullpen Wednesday by signing veteran reliever Neil Allen.

Allen, who turns 31 Tuesday, was 5-3 with a 3.84 ERA for the New York Yankees last season and has a career record of 58-69 with the Yankees, New York Mets, Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals.

Allen was a free agent, but Cleveland will not be forced to compensate the Yankees, Indians President Hank Peters said.

The Indians also signed reliever Tim Stoddard to a minor-league contract. Stoddard, 2-2 with a 6.38 ERA for the Yankees in 1988, will be invited to spring training.

Rookie Granato leads Rangers

The schedule told Tony Granato that Wednesday's contest against the Chicago Blackhawks was a road game, but his heart told him something different.

The Rangers rookie, playing his second game in his home town, made up for a disappointing debut with a hat trick and an assist that lifted New York to a 6-4 victory and into a tie with Washington atop the Patrick Division.

"It's an unbelievable feeling," said Granato, who raised his rookie-leading goal total to 29. "It probably won't sink in until I watch the tape. Anytime you have a game like this in front of your family and friends it's special."

In other games, Montreal tripped Hartford 3-1, Buffalo tied Minnesota 3-3, and Edmonton ripped Winnipeg 9-4.

LSU, Auburn survive; Vols top Gators

It was a night of dramatics in the Southeastern Conference Wednesday night with a freshman and a senior as the stars.

The freshman was Chris Jackson, the LSU sensation, who hit an 18-foot jumper as time ran out in Baton Rouge to give the Bengals an 85-84 victory over Vanderbilt.

And at Auburn, senior Mike Paul sank an off-balance layup with four seconds left to boost Mississippi to a 65-64 win over Auburn.

Jackson scored 34 points in pushing LSU to its 11th win in 16 games, pushing the Bengals into a three-way tie with Alabama and Vanderbilt for second in the SEC at 4-2.

Tennessee, no. 20 in the UPI national rankings, beat Florida 83-76 to boost the Vols' overall record to 12-2 and their SEC record to 5-0 - tops in the league.

In the other SEC game, Alabama beat Kentucky 76-64 at Tuscaloosa, plunging the Wildcats, 8-9, to fifth in the conference at 3-2.

Georgia is at Mississippi State in Thursday night's only SEC action.

Elsewhere in the Southeast Wednesday night, no. 14 Florida State fought off Arkansas for a 112-105 overtime victory at Little Rock, Ark., and South Carolina beat Memphis State 78-66 at Columbia, S.C.

Ricky Blanton added 28 points for LSU, including 12 during a 20-6 streak that gave LSU a 63-60 lead with 12:25 to play.

Frank Kornet hit a basket from the lane with 49 seconds remaining to give the Commodores an 84-83 lead and the Tigers held onto the ball until Jackson sank his decisive basket in the final seconds.

Guard Barry Goheen had 24 points for the Commodores, who dropped to 9-8 overall.

Dyron Nix scored 29 points for Tennessee while Dwayne Schintzius scored 28 points to pace Florida, 8-9 and 2-4.

Gerald Glass scored 30 points for Ole Miss, now 8-6 overall and 2-3 in the SEC. Auburn, now 7-7 and 0-6, jumped to an early lead and built a slim 33-31 halftime margin over Ole Miss. But Auburn went cold at the foul line in the second half and Ole Miss managed to keep close.

Paul drove to the board with six seconds left and banked in a shot from high on the backboard to ice the win.

Auburn was paced by Matty Geiger with 21 points.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Senior guard George McCloud poured in 28 points Wednesday night, including a game-tying 3-point shot, to help No. 14 Florida State survive unranked Arkansas 112-105 in overtime.

McCloud, who hit six of 11 from 3-point range, pulled up on the run with one minute left and popped the shot from 23 feet to tie the score at 100-100.

Forward Irving Thomas had hit a jumper in the lane with 1:17 left to cut Arkansas' lead to 100-97 and Florida State got the ball back quickly when Keith Wilson's driving layup bounced out on the opposite end.

Reserve guard Derrick Mitchell scored 7 points in overtime to ice the game for the Seminoles.

Raiders rip Saints

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Terry Acox and Terrell Barnes combined for 47 points and led Seminole Community College to a 92-77 victory over Santa Fe Community College's Saints Wednesday afternoon before 501 fans at the SCC Health Center.

The Raiders improved to 17-5 overall and 5-0 in the Mid-Florida Conference and will host Central Florida Community College on Saturday. The Saints dropped to 11-8 overall and 3-2 in the MFC.

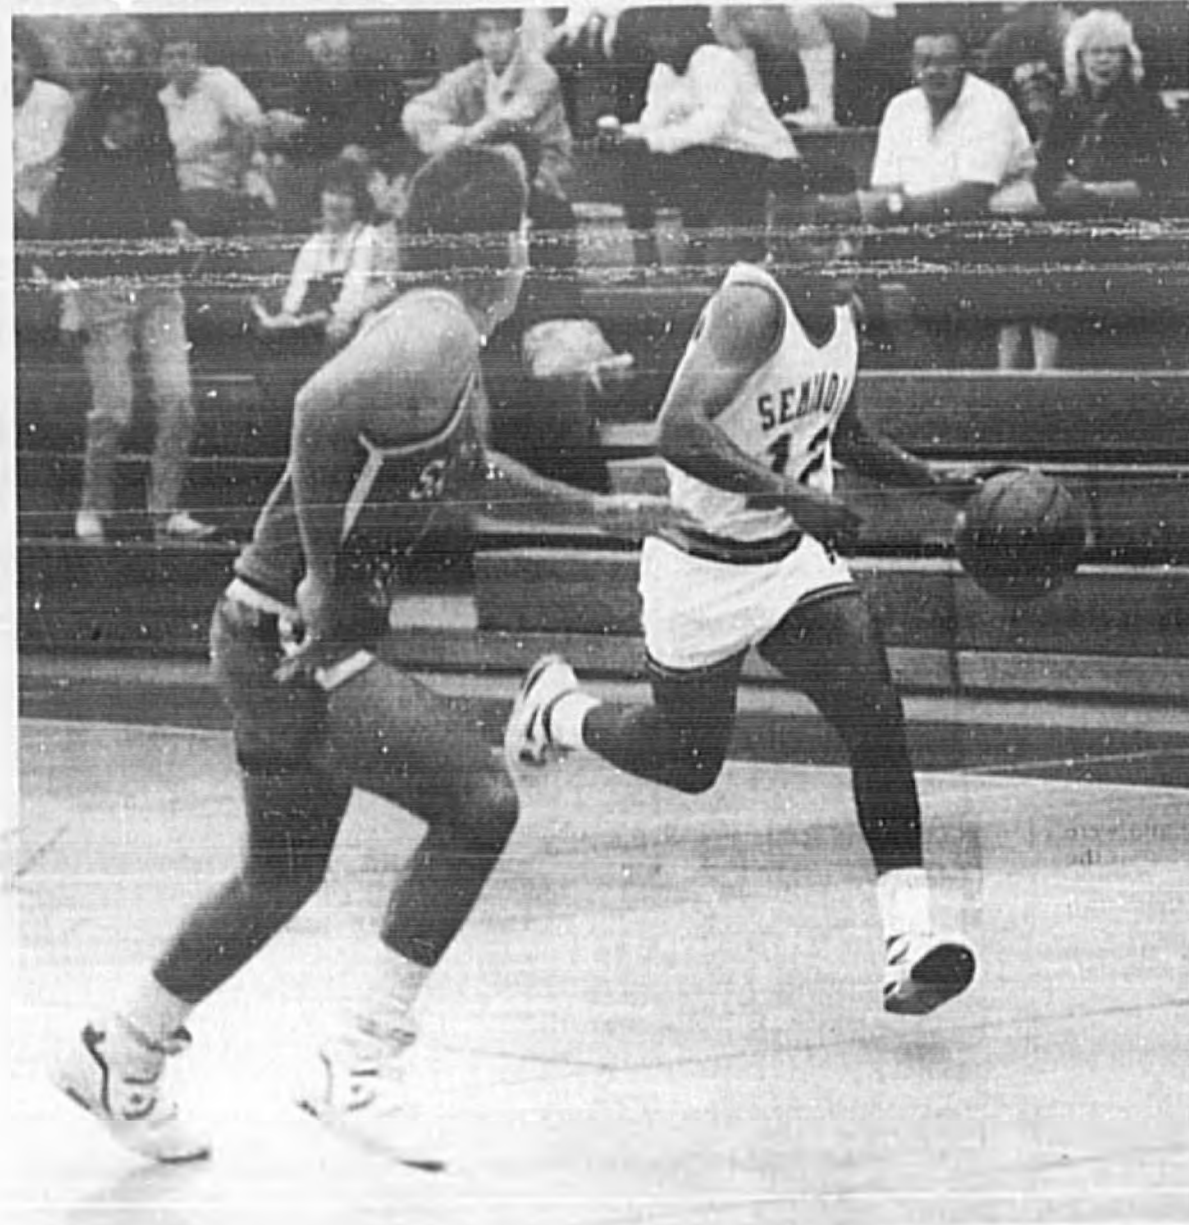

"We had some real trouble with their halfcourt 1-3-1 trapping defense," Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "I'm really suprised they switched back to playing man-to-man. They're making us stand around a lot and they kind of took the momentum there for a while."

Acox led Seminole with 24 points and 10 rebounds while Barnes netted 23 points and 10 boards. William "Wimpy" Woods added a spectacular all-around performance with 14 points, a game-high 10 assists and five steals as T.J. Scaletta came off the bench to contribute 11 points. George Gilmore led Santa Fe with a game-high 27 points with Jeremiah McCrae adding 16.

The Saints scored the game's opening four points before the Raiders reeled off seven in a row. Acox opened Seminole's scoring with a three point play followed by a steal and a short jumper. Barnes then came up with a slam after a Woods steal on the press defense.

Gilmore then connected from three point land to even the score at 7 apiece with 16:06 to play. Robert Thomas answered with a three pointer of his own and the teams traded field goals until the 12:50 mark when Arthur Vauk put down a short jumper for the Saints to cut the lead to 17-15.

Super running backs on display Sunday

United Press International

MIAMI — Forget the hoopla, remember the running backs.

Super Bowl XXIII features two coaches, Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers and Sam Wyche of the Cincinnati Bengals, who often have the label offensive genius connected to their names.

The game will spotlight Joe Montana, a quarterback in the twilight of a splendid career for the 49ers, and Boomer Esiason, embarking on the same path for the Bengals.

But it may well be the performances of the brash rookie from Cincinnati and the fierce running back from San Francisco that will decide Super Bowl XXIII.

Ickey Woods of the Bengals and James Craig of the 49ers have paced their teams to within a victory of football's version of immortality — becoming Super Bowl champion.

"They have the best running game in the league and I think we are a close second statistically," Walsh said. "So, you'd have to say the top running teams are in this game. I think you're accurate in saying the quarterbacks are outstanding, but the running game and defense will make the difference."

The Bengals finished first in the NFL in total offense and rushing, paced by Woods with 1,066 yards. The 49ers were ranked second in the league in offense and were second in rushing. Craig gained 1,502 yards on the ground.

Both backs stand an even 6-foot and both are punishing runners who produce. Woods scored 15 touchdowns and developed his Ickey Shuffle post-touchdown dance.

Craig scored nine TD's on the ground. He also had 534 yards on 76 receptions and one TD.

"Roger Craig gets his head in front of his body and drives through with his legs," said Cincinnati nose tackle Tim Krumrie. "He is not the kind of running back that you can pull down with one arm. He is very strong from the hips down."

"Primarily, I am a bruising type of runner, an Earl Campbell type of back," Woods said. "But I have the speed to go inside and I have the speed to get around the corner. I'm just a versatile back that's trying to get from point A to point B as fast as I can."

While both are difficult to bring down, they are quite adept at churning out chunks of yardage in the open field. And both have become the focus of opposing defenses.

"Every week they come out and they say they have to stop No. 30," Woods said. "And if they key on me then that leaves (running back) James Brooks, Boomer Esiason, (wide receiver) Eddie Brown or (tight end) Rodney Holman open."

Says Craig: "I go into the game expecting the defense to key on me. I hear them say they are going to hit Craig really hard and I just laugh to myself. I mean, how much harder can I get hit?"

Where the two differ is how they prepared for this season. Craig, who travels with his own chiropractor and masseuse, tried an off-season conditioning program for the first time last summer. Part of that program includes a five-mile or an eight-mile run up a hill next to his house.

"What it did for me was develop the strength in my legs and improve my endurance," Craig said. "My stamina was outstanding throughout the year. But most of all the hill builds character. Sometimes your body is telling you you can't do it, but you have to call on your mind to carry you through."

Woods' chief rookie worry was whether he would have to cut his long hair, which he wears in a ponytail.

Slap shot

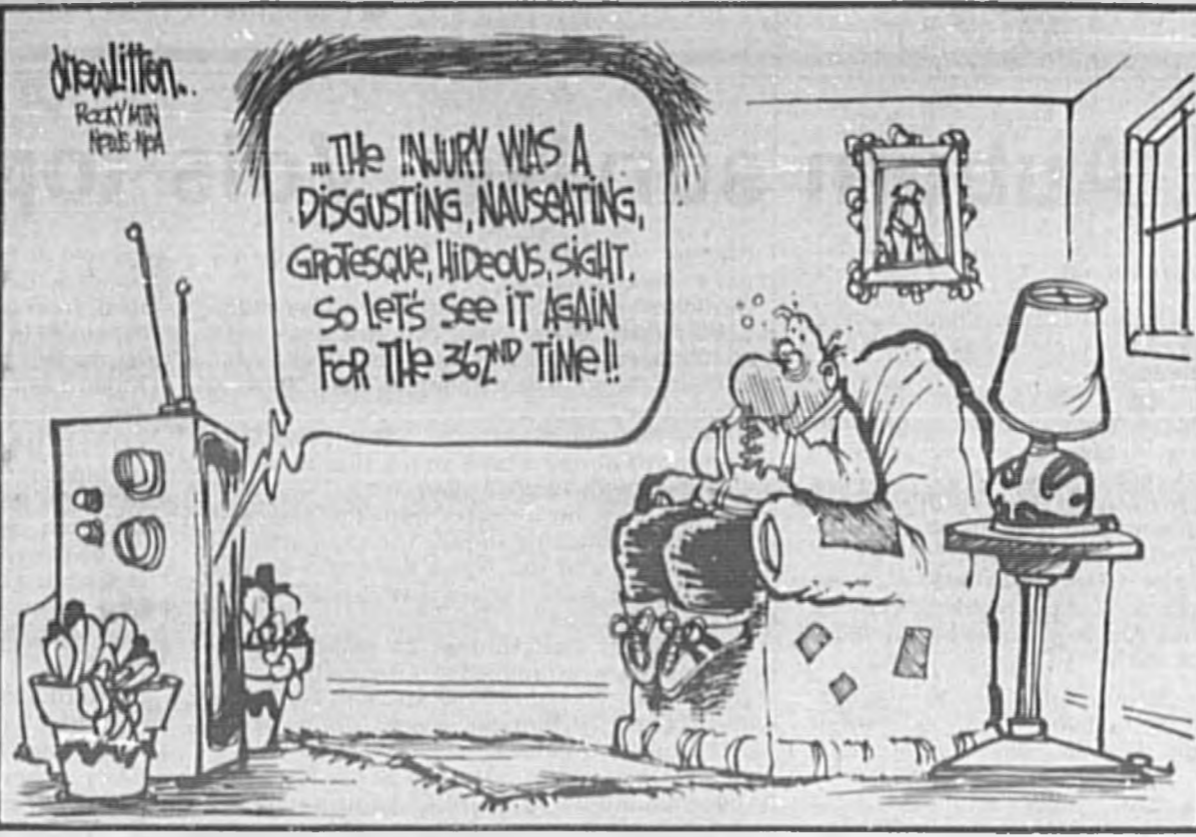

SCC's Carolyn Kuhl's shot is impeded by the slap of a Brevard player in action last week. SCC is 4-14 overall going into tonight's game and looks to snap a four-game losing streak. The Lady Raiders return to the court tonight at home against Valencia Community College.

North Carolina knocks off No. 1 Duke

United Press International
 Reputation has enabled Duke to hold the No. 1 ranking all season. After an embarrassing 91-71 loss to No. 12 North Carolina Wednesday, the Blue Devils will need to work on repairing that reputation.

Duke fattened its record early in the season by playing mostly marginal teams. The Blue Devils posted a 13-0 record while going virtually unchallenged for the No. 1 spot in the UPI rankings.

That should change next week when the UPI Board of Coaches casts its next vote. Illinois, now the only undefeated team in Division I, is a strong bet to unseat Duke if the Illini can beat Georgia Tech Sunday.

North Carolina, on the other hand, should climb high in the rankings off the victory over Duke. The Tar Heels were coming off a weekend loss to Virginia, but pounded Duke on the boards to win impressively.

"It is kinda like we have been dodging a bullet and we got hit by an artillery shell," said Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski. "They played like men and we played like boys."

Scott Williams scored 22 points and led North Carolina's dominating effort on the offensive boards. The Tar Heels had 38 offensive rebounds, scored on 11 of them, and outrebounded Duke 43-27.

"We talked among ourselves about coming out with the right attitude and playing hard," Williams said. "We wanted to take it right at them.

King Rice scored 14 and J.R. Reid added 13 points for North Carolina, 15-3 and 2-1 in the ACC. The Tar Heels lost all three games against Duke last season, but won this year's first meeting even though guard Jeff Lebo was out with a sprained ankle.

Robert Brierley had 20 points and Phil Henderson scored 16 for Duke. 13-1 and 3-1. Danny Ferry, who had 14, was bothered by a sore back that prevented him from sitting whenever he was out of the game. Ferry only scored four free throws in the second half.

In other games involving ranked teams: No. 4 Georgetown downed No. 19 Providence 80-77. No. 6 Oklahoma demolished Kansas 125-95. No. 14 Florida State topped Arkansas 112-105 in overtime. No. 15 North Carolina State beat Wake Forest 82-64. No. 20 Georgia Tech defeated Alcorn State 88-63, and No. 20 Tennessee shaded Florida 83-70.

At Providence, R.I., Charles Smith scored 35 points and hit the go-ahead baseline jumper with five seconds to play in the second game boycotted by Hoyas Coach John Thompson in protest of the NCAA's recently approved Proposition 42.

At Norman, Okla., Mookie Blaylock scored 30 points, including back to back 3-pointers that blew open the game and powered Oklahoma over Kansas in a rematch of last year's NCAA championship.

At Little Rock, Ark., George McCloud

scored 28 points, including a game-tying 3-point shot, to help Florida State survive Arkansas Reserve guard Derrick Mitchell scored 7 points in overtime to ice the victory for the Seminoles, 13-1.

At Raleigh, N.C., sophomore Chris Corchiani scored a career-high 22 points, including 6 free throws in the final three minutes, to lift North Carolina State, which improved to 12-1 and 3-0 in the ACC.

At Atlanta, Scott Dennis scored 23 points and Tom Hammonds added 16 in the first half to power Georgia Tech, 11-4. Hammonds, a 6-foot-9 senior, bruised his shoulder in the first half and did not play the second half.

BIG TEN RECRUITING

Big Ten basketball coaches face a crippling disadvantage in recruiting because of rules adopted by NCAA and conference officials.

Coaches nationwide have objected to Proposal 42, the NCAA's new regulation prohibiting financial aid for academically ineligible athletes. Many athletes now attend school on scholarship but lose their first year of eligibility. Under Proposal 42, those players would have to pay their own way while ineligible or attend a junior college to improve grades and skills.

The move is expected to increase the number of top players forced into the junior college ranks because of poor grades. That worries Big Ten coaches, whose athletic directors and faculty representatives adopted a rule last winter forcing junior college transfers to sit out a year.

"It's an absolutely stupid rule created by people who don't understand college athletics," said Indiana coach Bob Knight.

No other conference in the nation has a rule benching JUCO players. That's why Big Ten coaches fear that when the rule takes effect Aug. 1, the Big Ten will get no more JUCO players.

"The feeling of our coaches is, 'If it's on a national level, fine, but don't put us on an island by ourselves,'" Illinois coach Lou Henson said. "There's no question it will hurt us."

Purdue coach Gene Keady said Big Ten coaches will be the only ones in the nation ignoring a junior college market that has produced key players.

"It's ridiculous. It takes us out of the junior college business," Keady said.

Had the JUCO transfer sit-out rule been in effect two seasons ago, Keith Smart and Dean Garrett could not have played for Indiana. With their help, the Hoosiers won the NCAA title.

"(Proposal 42) is going to force a lot of kids to go to junior college for a year and this league is out of the junior college recruiting market," Knight said. "Kids aren't going to come to this league, nor should they."

Knight speaks from experience. Michael Boykin of Atlanta signed a letter of intent to attend Indiana but was academically ineligible and chose to attend Vincennes University, a southern Indiana junior college.

Boone trips Evans

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — Scriptwriters long for the fantastic finish the Boone Braves wrote in their 64-62 overtime victory over Orlando Evans Wednesday night amid 501 boisterous fans at Orlando Boone's gymnasium, alias Rickman's reservation.

Not only did Boone's sophomore center Iven Jones connect on an off-balance three-pointer two seconds before time expired in regulation to leave the score tied, 60-60. But Charlie Bouton calmly canned two free throws with two seconds left in overtime to seal the fourth consecutive victory for the Braves (15-3, 5-2).

"We got a nice prayer," said Rickman, in respect to Jones' first three-pointer this season. "It just all worked out when it looked like it shouldn't have."

"What pleases me the most is that our kids still wanted to win when they were down. There were no gripes. That (kind of attitude) is what it's all about."

When Quentin Smith connected on consecutive free throws with 19 seconds left in the fourth period to propel the Trojans to a 60-55 lead, Evans (13-5, 3-3) seemed assured of its seventh consecutive victory and third place in the Metro Conference standings behind Orlando Oak Ridge and Winter Park.

Jones (15 points) took advantage of the Trojans' failure to block out by snatching an offensive rebound and converting it to a basket to slice the lead to 60-57.

Evans' ensuing inbound pass came to crafty senior guard Derrick Sharp, who was squeezed towards the middle. Suddenly the ball popped away and into Jones hands. Jones let it fly.

Three points. Tie game. Most fans flew to their feet in exhilaration.

In overtime, senior forward Ricky Morris (game-high 20 points) hit a pair of free throws, but Ron Smith's basket enabled Evans to tie the score (62-62) for the 10th time.

Smith (11 points) intercepted a pass with 15 seconds remaining and passed to Quentin Smith, who was tied up. The jump ball belonged to Boone, and Bouton was fouled in the paint by Delmar Poteat (13 points).

Bouton's only two free throws in the conference contest climaxed what appeared a sure victory early in the third period.

Heavyweights boost Lake Mary

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

LAKE MARY — After getting off to a slow start with one of the most difficult schedules in the state this year, the Lake Mary Rams have found that old winning magic that has made them one of the most feared teams in Florida. The Rams' latest victim: West Orange.

The Warriors, who have almost always had a tough squad, ran into a runaway freight train in the Rams Wednesday night. With the score tied at 22 apiece, the Rams used wins in the last four matches to pound the Warriors, 43-22. In prep wrestling action at Lake Mary in front of 821 fans.

The winning effort was the Rams' fourth in a row and puts Lake Mary at 6-2 on the season. West Orange fell to 6-3 on the year. To keep their winning streak alive, the Rams will have to dethrone the number one Class 4A team in the state, Sarasota, Friday night at Lake Mary. The Rams don't get much time to recover as they board the bus to Miami to take on Sunset in another top 10 battle.

"I like to wrestle teams like Sarasota and Miami because I feel that the competition makes the team better," head Ram coach Doug Peters said. "It's going to be a tough weekend, but we're looking much better than we did a couple of weeks ago."

The night started out with an uncharacteristic undertone as the crowd was silenced early as the Warriors took the first two matches and built a 9-0 lead. However, at 119, the Rams' Aaron Jordan took on one of the better 119-pounders in the area in Danny Rose. The two battled back and forth but the sophomore Jordan put on an early surge and hung on to defeat the senior Rose by a 6-3 count.

"Aaron wrestled a heck of a match," Peters said. "He's having a great year so far. Rose is a senior and a pretty tough guy and Jordan is only a sophomore, so that was a big win for him."

Jordan's stunning victory brought the crowd to its feet and the Warriors to their backs as Robert Doniero shutout West Orange's Ed McDowell, 9-0, and teammate David Petrone pinned Nester Crespo in 2:33 to give the Rams a 13-9 lead.

The Rams got a big win at 140 where Jose Carbia kept the winning ways in his family going with a 4-0 decision over the Warriors' Chris Dow. Then at 152, Shane Stanley got the crowd rockin' with some head knockin' as he pinned West Orange's Evan Trowell in a quick 1:21 to set the stage for the four heavyweights.

"I thought Shane sparked us with that pin," Peters said. "We were sitting around waiting for something to happen and it did. He's got that certain flare about him that makes him a winner."

The Rams lost at 160 which tied the score at 22, but Justin Naumovitz, Ori Kantor, Allen Lewis, and Chris Israel all came up with big wins to seal the victory. Naumovitz pinned Neil Keoppen in 1:13, Kantor pinned Willy Figueroa in :36, Lewis downed Chris Simmons in :43, and Israel took a hard-fought 7-2 decision away from Ramon Clayton.

Girls soccer: Mary puts SAC lead on line

From staff reports

So far in the Seminole Athletic Conference girls soccer race, Lake Mary's Lady Rams have made all the right moves to put themselves in position for their first league title.

The Lady Rams, 18-2 overall, stand at 8-0 in the conference with the big win a 2-1 triumph over Lake Brantley early in the year. Tonight, Lake Mary will look to move closer to its first title while Lake Brantley hopes to stay alive in hopes of a third consecutive crown as the two rivals meet at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary High.

It will be the third meeting of the year between the two with Lake Mary winning the first and Brantley (17-2-3, 6-1-1) taking a 2-1 decision in the finals of the Burger King Classic.

In tonight's battle, both teams will look to their senior leaders

Wildcats upend Warriors

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald Correspondent

WINTER GARDEN — Winter Park boys basketball coach Kerry Patrick has had lots of reasons to rejoice these days. Topping the list is the birth of he and Ann's first child, Chelsea Rae, 10 days ago.

A distant second is Wednesday night's stunning 65-62 come-from-behind victory over host Winter Garden West Orange — a win made more memorable with starting forward Clay Hair sidelined with an injury.

Spotting West Orange a 38-20 halftime bulge, Winter Park (10-5) remained unbeaten after seven Metro Conference contests because of a relentless second-half defense and balanced fourth-period offense.

And the emergence of an unlikely hero, junior Carlous Pollard.

Pollard, starting in place of Hair for the second time this season, slipped inside for a basket with 12 seconds left. He capped the Wildcats' comeback with a free throw, much to the delight of his girlfriend.

Winter Park overcame some weighty obstacles en route to snapping a two-game losing streak.

Outside Hair there was starting center Danny Rubin, who finished with a team-high nine rebounds despite being slowed by the flu. And there was West Orange (4-9) with its seven three-pointers in the first half.

"My dad (Jack) came over after the game and told me that was the worst ball of basketball he'd ever seen any of my teams play," said Patrick, coaching in his first game since the birth of his daughter last Monday. "We weren't rebounding, missed the front end of three one-and-one situations and were 3-of-8 from the free-throw line."

"We didn't talk about anything special at halftime, but I told our guys that we should win this game."

Winter Park sliced the Warriors' seemingly insurmountable lead to four points in the third period, but the hosts held a 51-41 cushion entering the fourth quarter.

The Cats' unrelenting pressure began taking its toll, though. A turnover here. A turnover there. West Orange got out of its rhythm. And Winter Park got a pair of three-pointers from Dan Ostergaard, another six points from Rubin and five points apiece from Willy Daunic and Pollard.

Trailing 55-54 with 3:16 remaining, the official timekeeper suddenly sounded the buzzer and called the officials over the scorer's table. After a brief conference, West Orange was awarded two points.

"We were tired, really dead. We had been pressing the whole second half, and I'd told the guys to just keep going until you fall over and we'd get somebody else in," said Patrick. "We're not the most physical team in the world and that break (the conference) gave our guys a chance to catch their breath. Particularly Danny (Rubin)"

Winter Park finally tied the score, 62-62, setting up Pollard's heroics.

The Wildcats, paced by Daunic's game-high 20 points and Rubin's 17, play four games in the next week. Included are Friday's road game against Orlando Edgewater and Monday's home game against third-ranked Class 4A Orlando Oak Ridge.

Brantley frosh rout Howell

Lake Brantley's freshman basketball team used a 14-2 run in the third period to bury Lake Howell's Silver Hawks Wednesday night as the Patriots came away with a 48-24 victory.

Lake Brantley, 7-2 on the season, has a big matchup today against unbeaten Lake Mary at Brantley.

Lake Howell took a 9-6 lead after one quarter and Brantley came back to take a 16-14 lead at the half. By the time the third period ended, though, the Patriots had built a 30-16 lead.

Kyle Bradfield led Brantley with 12 points while Curt Dyer added seven points and 12 rebounds.

Fishermen share universal language

The sport of fishing is a universal common denominator among people all around the world. People who enjoy fishing not only share a love of the sport, they also have in common a love of the outdoors and of certain basic human values.

In the world of work and the concomitant social structure, men are often not regarded as equals and are frequently differentiated by artificial criteria such as job status, attire, mode of transportation and price and location of residence. The dignity and importance of each individual is often lost or clouded by their place in the social scheme.

On the water, an amazing transformation takes place. Water serves as a melting pot, and men are no longer bound by the social structure left behind in the city. They associate as equals and share a comradeship that is free of artificial barriers.

If there is a social structure in fishing, it is very similar to that of pioneer days when a man's worth was judged in terms of his ability and his integrity. On the water men are not judged by superficial standards, but upon their ability as an angler and by their honesty and character as a person.

I may be a little naive and slightly biased, but I can't help believe that this world would be a much better place in which to live if men everywhere treated and judged each other as openly and honestly as do fishermen.

Shupe's Scoop

Water broken down into its basic components is nothing more than hydrogen and water and has no curative powers. Scientific data aside, there is undeniably something therapeutic about being on the water, fishing and relaxing. Things that may have so ominously take on a less somber perspective after one has spent some time on the water.

Observe other people the next time that you are on the water. You will see that people on the water are happier and more carefree than those left behind on the crowded streets and cities.

Fishing Forecast
Lemon Bluff Fish Camp reports good bass fishing in the Puzzle Lake area with dropping water levels. Anglers are still catching plenty of specks in Lake Harney.

Steve Gard at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that the weather is beautiful, but that the specks are spotty. It is feast or famine in Lake Monroe, with some anglers loading the boat while other only catch a few. Bass are finicky, but anglers might be wise to scale down their lures with the dropping water levels. Bass feed heavily on grass shrimp and ditch minnows as these small baits are forced out of creeks into the main channel. Bass will shy away from large lures when feeding on these tiny baits.

Snook season is closed for the next two months, but the warm weather has afforded snook anglers some late-season action at Sebastian Inlet. Flounder, bluefish, and seatrout are providing fishermen with enough filets to take home for the freezer.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports hot offshore fishing with the calm weather. Two 80 plus pound wahoo were caught last week just east of Pelican Flats. Anglers are also connecting with plenty of sailfish and dolphin.

When kids brush with the law

Pilot program may prevent crime careers

By SUSAN LODEN
 Herald staff writer

In Volusia County, Stetson University students in conjunction with the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services have developed a "Big Brother"-type organization called BEFRIEND, to help juvenile offenders turn their lives around.

The children who qualify for the program are "status" offenders, meaning the "crime" they have committed is only considered a crime because of their age. They may have skipped school or broken curfew.

"I think it's a terrific idea," said Christina Frank, who manages the Prosecution Alternatives for Youth program in Seminole County, whose volunteers conduct hearings and offer counseling for juveniles who have committed crimes such as shoplifting, or acts for which adults too would be arrested. Frank said she thinks a program such as BEFRIEND would be ideal for Seminole County as well.

"This would help them before they commit a real crime," she said. She added that most juvenile criminals start out as status offenders, and it would be good for them to be identified early enough to be rehabilitated through having a positive role model.

"It would be good to get college kids involved as volunteers," Frank said.

Frank, whose 2-year-old program is funded by HRS and Seminole County, said she'd like to expand her volunteer force of about 80. More volunteers would allow volunteer attention to be given to the status offenders in Seminole County, before they are arrested for a "real" crime. Many, she said, have negative role models at home.

The Grandmothers Hospitality Club of Seminole County, church groups and individuals visit with and offer support to inmates of the Seminole Juvenile Detention Center in Sanford. But a spokesman for the JDC said they are not allowed to initiate further contact with the youngsters after they are released. The juveniles may contact the volunteers if they choose, but the spokesman said, "We can't have it looking like they are trying to recruit kids. We have nothing at all to do with anything like that.

When released from the JDC, youngsters may return home, while an HRS counselor is assigned to their case to monitor their probation, the JDC spokesman said. Or they may have been sentenced to some type of treatment facility.

Many Seminole County officials said they have no knowledge of the Volusia County program, so could not comment on its effectiveness. "I don't recall something like this coming up in Seminole County," said district HRS director Sid McAllister. "I'm not familiar with the program. I can't see any objection to the program, depending on how it's structured."

The Stetson program

BEFRIEND is the idea of political science senior Garth Goodman, a veteran camp counselor and Little League manager, who became concerned about youth after serving as an intern in juvenile court in Daytona Beach.

"The young people who came before the judge often were disadvantaged in one way or another," Goodman said. "Many were from broken homes and many were solely responsible for themselves. They didn't have a role model."

He began to ask what happens to the status juvenile offender who doesn't have a criminal record, but who has been introduced into the court system.

"History shows these children often repeat the same behavior and end up in jail," Goodman said. "Sometimes it's a misde-

DEAR AMELIA: This is the kind of simple, creative thinking I love. You're meeting your own needs and your son's too. Your helpful pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week Award, a copy of my book, Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Hints for Making Everything Last Longer.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY: A reader wrote in a while back to ask how to care for a sheepskin. I have one from New Zealand. Infants who sleep on them are said to gain weight faster, and our grandson has slept on ours for 18 months. Needless to say, we have washed it many many times.

After washing it in the machine, I usually line dry it, but sometimes I fluff it on the no-heat cycle of the dryer. I brush it with a bristle hairbrush when dry. It's still beautiful and soft. An oil that is not available in our local stores is recommended on the label, but we have done well without it.

HELEN

DEAR POLLY: Here are some more uses for jelly that didn't jell. Use it as a delicious pancake syrup, as an ice cream topping,

JEAN

DEAR POLLY: Tell your readers to save the plastic foam trays that most fruit, meat and bakery products come on. When washed, they make great unbreakable trays for small children. Most have raised lipped edges so that little spills and crumbs are contained on the tray, not the rug. They're great outside — no broken glass to worry about.

When snack time is over, the trays float and can become a multitude of creative and imaginative items in a kiddie pool, large sink or bathtub.

URSULA

DEAR POLLY: When I feel my sheet curtains need a cleaning, I soak two bath towels in water mixed with 1 cup of ammonia and then wring them out. I put the soaked towels on the curtains in the dryer on air. The curtains come out looking like new and are fresh without wrinkles.

MARIAN

DEAR POLLY: I've been so successful in my "Polly's Pointers" column that I've been asked to write a book.

Cuties and cookies

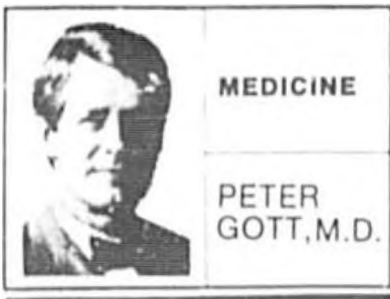

Those irresistible peddlers, Girl Scouts, are knocking on doors these days peddling those irresistible sweets, Girl Scout cookies. The girls will be ringing doorbells and phones through Jan. 22. The seven varieties of cookies and crackers—Thin Mints, Frodo-daws, Jubilee, Golden Vanilles, Savannah Short Breads, and Classic Creams sell for $2 per box and raise money for clamping traps, equipment and other scout activities. Because the Girls Scouts miss you, call 645-1020. Pictured above giving sales pitches to Nancy Brackett of Sanford are (from left) Jenny Lamer, Sarah Ganas and Melissa Brackett.

Crohn's disease can be treated for symptoms but not cured

DEAR DR. GOTT: My doctor told me I have Crohn's disease. Is it treatable?

DEAR READER: Crohn's disease (regional enteritis) is a form of chronic intestinal inflammation that most often occurs in a spotty distribution, especially in the ileum, the portion of the small intestine that attaches to the colon. The cause is unknown. The disease typically produces chronic diarrhea with abdominal pain, loss of appetite and weight, fever and a tender area in the right lower abdomen. When acute, it mimics appendicitis.

Crohn's disease is associated

MEDICINE

with arthritis, mouth ulcers, skin rash over the shins and, in some cases, a severe skin reaction leading to blisters and disfigurement.

The diagnosis is most often made during X-ray studies called "small bowel series with spot films." The patient drinks a thick, flavored substance called barium, which outlines the inflamed bowel segments when it reaches the small intestine.

No specific therapy is known, although treatment usually improves symptoms.

Antibiotics are used to treat infections, such as abscesses that tend to occur near the anus.

Immunosuppressive drugs — medicines that quell the body's inflammatory reaction — are still experimental, but show some promise.

Surgery may be necessary to remove extremely diseased portions of bowel or to drain large abscesses.

In short, Crohn's disease is incurable by present means. However, much can be done to diminish symptoms and improve the quality of patients' lives. In my opinion, people with Crohn's disease should be under the care of gastroenterologists. (Peter Gott, a syndicated columnist for Newspaper Enterprise Association, can be written to at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101 3369.)

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Oslo
YOUR BIRTHDAY
January 20, 1989

In the year ahead you may become involved in an enterprise or movement that will be both unique and important. Your participation could come about through a strange set of circumstances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Solutions will not be found in a heated exchange if you get involved in a discussion today with someone whose outlook is diametrically opposed to yours. Keep a cool head. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't inject yourself in delicate matters today that do not directly concern you. If you interfere where you shouldn't, you could end up regretting it later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you do not manage your resources wisely at this time you are likely to spend more money than you can presently afford. Unfortunately, your extravagance may be dedicated to frivolous involvements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to avoid situations today that have competitive elements, especially where your career is concerned. There's a possibility that you might be outmatched.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best not to take impulsive risks on someone else's ideas today, particularly if they are authored by someone who has bungled things in the past. Think for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make it a point not to bring up an old issue today that previously provoked a disagreement between you and a close friend. This matter still needs more time to cool off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to get others to cooperate with you today, try making suggestions instead of issuing directives or commands. If you come on too strong it will only stiffen their resistance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be inclined to make some hasty repairs around the house today. This is well and good, provided you have the proper tools and materials to do the job right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Have fun and enjoy yourself, but guard against overindulgence in the good things that life has to offer. You'll feel better tomorrow if you practice moderation today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is a possibility you might have to make some adjustments in your plans today in order to accommodate someone else. Should this occur, don't blow things out of proportion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you are rather easygoing and flexible when dealing with others, but today you may make companions feel uncomfortable by being unreasonably insistent on having your own way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When socializing with friends today, subdue temptations to spend more than you should in hopes of making a good impression. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand.

Stepmother says wicked stereotype is fairy tale

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a widower who is the father of three young children, so now I am a stepmother. I love these children and they love me, but here's the problem:

I hope you won't think I am being childish or silly, but while reading bedtime stories to the children, I am deeply hurt when I come across a character in the story who is described as the "wicked stepmother." Abby, this is terribly unfair to all the kind and caring stepmothers.

Is there anything we can do to stop perpetuating this ugly myth? How can we good stepmothers combat the "wicked stepmother" label?

A NOT-SO-WICKED STEPMOTHER

DEAR STEPMOTHER: Don't take the "wicked stepmother" label personally. She's been in the fairy tale literature for generations, and until and unless a more contemporary author of bedtime stories replaces her with "a kind and loving" stepmother, all you good stepmothers will have to let your deeds speak for themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My father left our family when I was a young girl (I am now 26 years old.) He changed his name and cut off all family ties. It's been nearly four years since I've heard from him—but that doesn't stop him from putting my name and telephone number on all of his hospital forms as "next of kin." The only reason I know of his recent heart attacks (he's had three) is because the hospitals have called me numerous times regarding information as to his whereabouts for non-payment of his bills.

I realize this may sound cold, but I want nothing to do with this man. My concern is, when he dies, am I financially responsible for his funeral expenses or any of his unpaid bills? He and my mother are legally divorced and everyone else in the family feels the way I do about him.

What should I do? Please hurry your answer.
CONCERNED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CONCERNED: According to Arthur Groman, my legal consultant, there are specific provisions in the law of California governing the obligation of children to support their parents who are in need. There is also a provision of law that any adult person abandoned by a parent prior to the age of 18 may bring an action to be relieved from the obligation of support. Because of the nature of these laws, you should consult a California attorney.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EUNICE IN NEWARK": Not all men cheat on their wives. But it's a fairly safe bet that the man who says they do cheats on his.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Juveniles

meanor and sometimes it's a felony. Florida and Volusia County are undergoing a needs assessment for early intervention to get to these offenders when they are young and give them a role model. Early intervention is the key."

In the Stetson program, which began this month, the HRS will recommend children to 25 Stetson students who will befriend them in DeLand. HRS and Stetson will assign the cases after personal interviews with the children and students. The "FRIENDS" will meet a minimum of two hours a week.

"We want them to talk...talk about school; talk about family; talk about music or movies or sports." Goodman said. "We are encouraging the students to teach their FRIENDS a sport and take them to practice. They can help them with homework. They can go to the beach, to the park or to the mall, but we don't want the students to buy them gifts or spend a lot of money. That's not what the program is about."

The program is modeled after the national Big Brother program and uses the same principles of assigning an adult as a role model to a child. Only, in the Stetson program, the youngsters are different.

"What makes FRIENDS different from Big Brothers is that these are children ages 9 to 14 who are status offenders. They have experienced the court system and they have no choice as to whether or not to participate. The judge requires this of them," Goodman said.

Because participation is court-ordered, Goodman said, the youths may show some initial apprehension and resentment toward their FRIEND. If that's the case, the student can call on the child's HRS probation counselor and Stetson faculty advisors for help, he said.

The program is open to both boys and girls. Goodman said he hopes good rapport will be established between the Stetson students and the FRIENDS before summer vacation.

Letter writing will be an end-of-semester assignment, with students teaching their charges how to write, address and mail a letter. The youngsters will be encouraged to maintain regular correspondence throughout the summer.

Funds will be available for the students to return to DeLand at least twice in the summer for visits with the children.

"The letter writing will help the children's self-esteem and probably will help with other social skills," Goodman said.

Stress may make children sick

United Press International

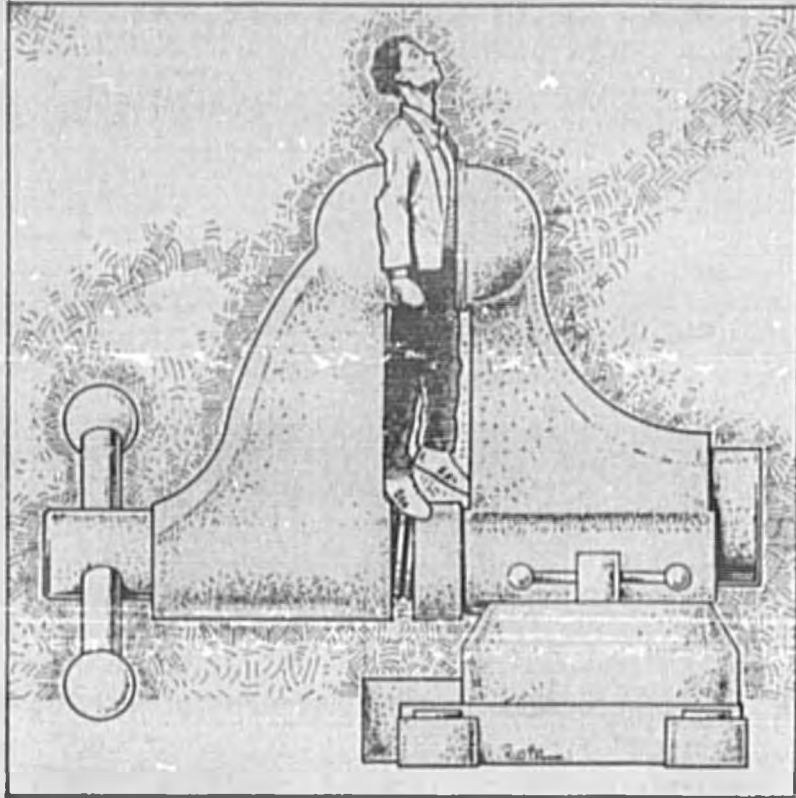

SAN FRANCISCO — Doctors were puzzled over the symptoms of an 8-year-old boy who was suffering from chronic headaches—until they asked him to describe his pain.

"It feels like my heart is in my head," replied the boy, whose parents had recently divorced and whose father moved away—at about the same time his complaints began.

The headaches were eventually diagnosed as psychosomatic—a reaction to emotional stress—although the pain was very real to the boy, who thought it was being caused by a new pair of glasses.

"His answer was a metaphorical way of expressing a broken heart," said W. Thomas Boyce, a physician and director of the Child Study Unit of the University of California, San Francisco Medical Center.

Youngsters of all ages come under varying amounts of negative stress and react to it in different ways, headaches being one of the more common

"A lot of the problem is not neglect, it's dealing with the exigencies of life, the demands of work and of just living," said Boyce, who nevertheless believes the responsibilities of guiding and helping children rests primarily with the family.

Signs of stress are different for each age group, said Boyce, but parents should be alert to such symptoms as depression, usually in the form of withdrawal; acting out anger by unusual aggressive behavior; poor school performance; or continuing illness or pain.

He prescribes the following anti-stress measures for parents:

—Spend more time with children.

—Maintain regularity and predictability in their lives.

—Help children adapt slowly to changes; lessen disruptions, perhaps by not moving immediately after a divorce.

—Encourage play and fantasy as a way of coping.

VeLora Lilly, a clinical social worker and psychologist at the Alta Bates Herrick Hospital and Health Center in Berkeley, Calif., said adolescents are often vulnerable to stressful situations in the family.

Statistically, some half million young people ages 12 to 24 attempted suicide last year and an estimated 7,000 took their own lives, but these figures are only the most alarming examples of youth under stress, said Lilly.

manifestations.

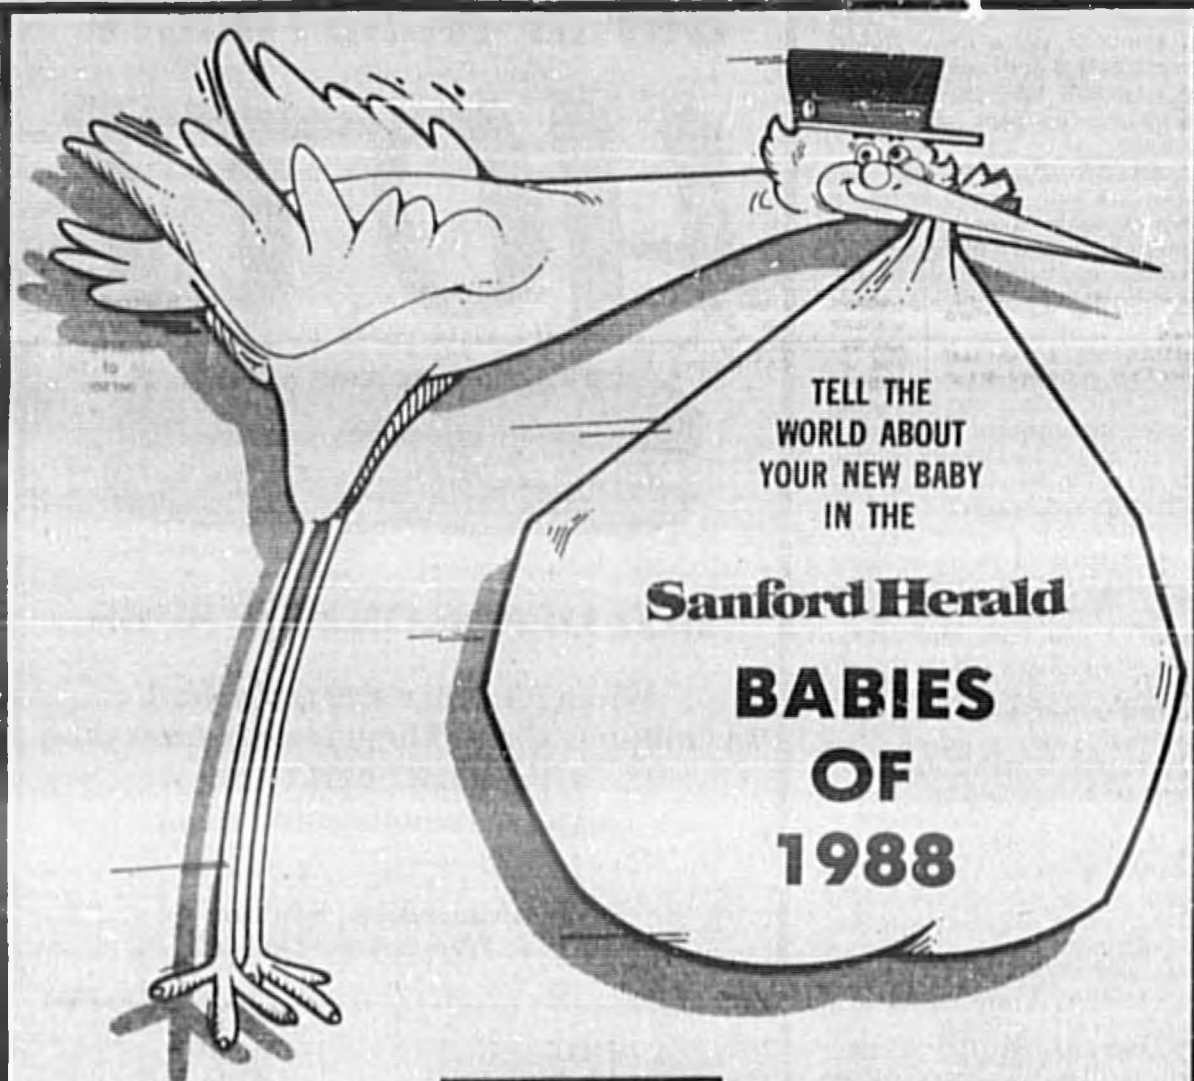

Pre-schoolers and young children often become physically ill, inattentive or suddenly turn aggressive; teenagers are often self-destructive, turning to alcohol and drugs or even suicide.

Divorce is one of the leading stress factors, said Boyce, whose unit specializes in dealing with behavioral problems and learning disabilities of children from infancy to early adolescence.

Other stress factors include a death in the family, residential mobility, spending little time with busy parents, family pressures to excel in academics, sports or social skills, and mixed messages on how to relate to sex, drugs and money.

Spending time with children is very important, not just so-called quality time but lots of time, said Boyce.

HAVE A HOME FOR RENT?
 Mr. J.M. did and through advertising with the Sanford Herald, he received more calls than he knew what to do with! Rental property means income but a vacant home means expense. Let us help you slash the expense and bring in the income. Remember the more you say the more response you'll receive. The cost of 1 additional line is less than a $1 and can mean the difference between an occupied home and a vacant home. Call a counselor today!

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Favorable vulnerability encouraged East to bid two diamonds. That crowded the bidding just enough so that North was constrained to raise partner's two-spade bid with only a doubleton. The contract was reasonable but required a little bit of educated footwork from Denmark's Stig Werdeltin when he played this hand at the World Team Olympiad in Venice last October.

East won the ace of diamonds and shifted to a trump. The ace won in dummy and declarer turned up his nose at the club finesse. For one thing, it might not work. For another, trying the club finesse would botch his communication for ruffing a diamond. So he played ace of clubs and ruffed a club, ruffed a low diamond and ruffed another club as East discarded a heart.

He now played K-Q of spades, throwing hearts from dummy. Then he played his last spade, throwing a club from dummy, and waited for East to discard. If East let go a diamond, declarer would play king and a diamond, and East would have to play away from the ace of hearts. If East threw another heart, declarer would simply duck a heart all around. The play was logical, since it was quite unlikely that East would overcall two diamonds on only a five-card suit without the heart ace.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. (C)1989. NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
