Truck in the lake

Workers from McConnell Towing extricated a pickup truck from the waters of Lake Monroe in Sanford this morning. Police say the vehicle had been stolen from a residence in the 200 block of Larkwood Drive in Sanford during the night, but the owner did not realize it had been taken until officers phoned to tell him his truck was in the lake. A 21-foot boat attached to the pickup truck reportedly had been unhitched during the theft. Police said someone drove the vehicle off the lakefront near San Juan Avenue and Seminole Boulevard. It was located early this morning.

School rezoning Neighborhood schools: Goal

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Now that the attendance zones for Seminole County high school students are settled and the calendar for the school year is finalized, the debate will begin over elementary school attendance zones in the northern half of the county.

Before lines are drawn, however, the public will have several opportunities to speak their mind on the matter.

A number of plans, assembled by both district officials and by the Edulog computer (a system which logically evaluates the number of residents in a given area, compared with the number of available classrooms) are available at the district office for review. The changes are necessitated by the construction of schools in Sanford, Winter Springs and Oviedo.

The schools are expected to be ready for occupancy by the start of the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years.

A committee of parents and school-based administrators have reviewed the plans and believe that the board, after input from the community, will be able to find an acceptable plan.

Downloading deadbeat parents State to name child support dodgers on Internet

By MIKE PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state has put together a list of almost 10,000 deadbeat parents, persons who have failed to pay child support. The list was to be made available for publication in the hopes that it would reduce the numbers of non-payers or help locate some who have evaded the law.

Larry Fuchs, executive director of the Department of Revenue said Wednesday he was officially releasing the list, but as of today, nothing has been released to the public or the media.

Fuchs admitted he was disappointed that a number of newspapers had indicated they would not publish the list even though a poll taken by a

Cops: Be on the lookout for murder suspect

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Altamonte Springs police department urges Central Florida residents to be on the lookout for a murder suspect.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Terrell Carlton Glee, in connection with the murder investigation of a woman whose decomposing body was found in the trunk of a car found abandoned on Oct. 13. The vehicle, reported stolen in Orange County, was located in the River Oaks Apartments on SR-434 in Altamonte Springs.

According to Altamonte Springs police, the victim has been identified as Jessica Denenweh, 18, white female. She was reportedly a runaway from her mother's home in Longwood.

Police say Glee was originally believed to be in Riviera Beach, where he managed to elude capture by two Altamonte Springs detectives.

Oath of office

Lake Mary City Commissioners Sheila Sawyer, (Seat 4), left, and George Duryea, (Seat 2) right, were individually administered the oath of office last night, to serve another term on the Lake Mary City Commission. Circuit Judge Wallace Hall conducted the swearing-in.

Dance party just for young teens

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — Middle school is a difficult time for students, academically speaking. The transition from the coddled elementary school environment to one in which they are being sculpted for impending adult responsibilities is an awesome one.

Even more difficult is the social change.

Not old enough to hang around with high schoolers and certainly too old to be seen with the elementary crowd, those in the middle are just that: floating in a social never-never land.

So, the Seminole County Police Athletic League and Fun World at Flea World are joining forces to help out.

Every Friday evening, beginning today, youngsters between the ages of 10 and 16 can get together to

Injured teen confesses to shooting self

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Officials of both the Seminole County school district and law enforcement agree that Expeditas "Odette" Reyes should not have had a gun on the campus of Lake Howell High School last month.

They said she will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law in relation to an incident in which she accidentally shot herself in the navel with the gun while trying to dispose of the weapon.

Reyes, 16, is expected to be charged with four felony weapons charges and one misdemeanor charge of filing a false police report, officials said.

According to school officials she has withdrawn from school so she will not be expelled as is the normal procedure for students found to have weapons on campus.

Agreement in legal dispute

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida House and Senate reached agreement in a legal dispute over a Senate district in the Tampa Bay area created to elect a minority.

The seat held by Sen. Jim Hargrett, D-Tampa, was targeted in a federal lawsuit by six residents seeking to overturn the district, claiming it was created solely to elect a minority.

House Speaker Peter Rudy Wallace and Senate President Jim Scott on Thursday announced a proposed settlement that would condense Hargrett's District 21 into parts of Hillsborough, Manatee and Pinellas counties.

The district currently takes in parts of those three counties as well as Polk.

Wallace, D-St. Petersburg, said black lawmakers had agreed to the latest plan, which reduces the voting age population of the district from 45 percent black to 36.2 percent.

A hearing is scheduled Nov. 20 in U.S. District Court in Tampa to hear testimony about the latest plan.

Widow and family awarded $1.25 million

MIAMI (AP) — The families of two alleged drug boat guards whose 1985 drowning deaths led to the "Miami River Cops" corruption trial may collect $1.25 million from seven former police officers, a jury has decided.

But the jury absolved the city of Miami of any constitutional violations suffered by Adolfo Lopez and Pedro Martinez.

According to the verdict Thursday, the widow and family of Lopez was awarded $703,000, while Martinez' family was awarded $553,000.

The lawsuit, brought by Ada Lopez and Juana Martinez, accused the city and the police officers of negligence and civil rights violations. It claimed the uniformed officers, with guns drawn, forced Lopez and Martinez into the Miami River after storming the boat the men were on.

Agency has new president

ORLANDO — Enterprise Florida, the public-private agency providing jobs and services for industry, has a new president.

John C. Anderson, now president of the Beacon Council in Miami, was appointed by the board of the Orlando-based agency on Wednesday. Anderson will replace Gainesville developer Howard I. Hoder.

The agency provides job training, financing for start-up companies and assistance to manufacturers. It wants to add 200,000 high-wage jobs to Florida's economy over 10 years.

UF squabble flares

GAINESVILLE — Just when the Board of Regents thought a recent squabble with University of Florida of President John Lombardi was over, it flared up again.

Regent C.B. Daniel of Gainesville called into the meeting Thursday from his hospital bed at Shands and criticized Regents Chairman Jim Heckin of Orlando for publicly criticizing Lombardi last month for proposing tuition changes to legislators without first talking with the regents.

Daniel called Heckin's action "reprehensible" during a five-minute phone dialogue with his colleagues. Regent Steve Uhlfelder of Tallahassee, who has also had public disagreements with Lombardi, defended Heckin and the regents voted unanimously to support the Orlando regent's criticism of Lombardi.

Domestic violence

HOLMBOURNE, Fla. — Joyce Rao quickly learned that Broward County Animal Control is not the place to call when a hamster gets trapped behind your kitchen wall.

She was stunned when communications operator Alex Joffe threatened to have her cited for animal cruelty if she did not immediately knock a hole in the wall and rescue the rodent.

Ms. Rao, who has filed a complaint about the Oct. 13 incident, said she was horrified because she did not have money to pay a fine. She said she only wanted to free the hamster her two young daughters called "Minnie Mouse."

Ms. Rao whacked two small holes in the wall before giving up and the hamster made its way out of the wall. It later escaped from the apartment and disappeared.

Broward County Fire Rescue Assistant Chief John Schilidnecht said the incident is under investigation.

Splendid dining aboard

PLYMOUTH, Fla. — A railroad that carries citrus fruit and freight for Lake County customers will undergo a transformation at the end of each day by hauling dinner trains for gourmet diners.

Ben Blican, general manager of Florida Central Railroad, plans to begin the new service later this month. Trains would depart from the Orlando area and run through rural sections of Orange and Lake Counties.

"It will be fine dining — a four- or five-course meal — and a leisurely trip through old Florida," Blican said Tuesday.

Tickets for the three-hour trip to Tavares and back will cost $49.95 including the meal. Cash bars will be available on the trains, which will depart from a small depot in Altamonte Springs, an Orlando suburb.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Florida Unemployment up

The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's unemployment rate climbed last month to 6.7 percent, up from 5.6 percent in September, a state economist said today.

The jobless rate is the highest it's been since November 1994 but Rebecca Rust, chief of the bureau of labor information, cautioned that the monthly unemployment statistic is based on a small sample size and shows a lot of variation from month to month.

A year ago, Florida's unemployment rate was 6.5 percent.

The national unemployment rate last month was 5.5 percent, down from 5.6 percent in September and 5.7 percent a year ago.

Among 11 populous states, Florida had the second highest unemployment rate, behind California, whose rate was 7.8 percent.

In Florida, some 6,379,000 people had full- or part-time jobs last month and 457,000 people were looking for work. The unemployment rate doesn't count the number of people who aren't in the market for jobs.

In September, 6,485,000 people were employed and 388,000 were looking for work.

Through September, Florida employers created 198,900 new jobs over the year, a gain of 3.4 percent for a total number of jobs of 6.4 million.

"Overall, when you look at all the economic data Florida is on a modest growth path," Rust said. "It's consistent with the national forecast that predicts a soft landing."

Report: Tax incentives not worth it

By ADAM YBOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Tax breaks to attract and keep businesses in Florida aren't the best way to use public money, a new state report concluded.

The state has given a wide variety of businesses, professional sports teams and other organizations at least $1.3 billion in tax breaks over the years, according to the draft report by the House Finance & Tax Committee.

But the review of economic development incentives said tax inducements lack accountability and are generally not focused on a job creation strategy.

"The use of tax incentives as a means of developing the state's economy does not create a positive return on the state's investment," said the report released Thursday. "Study after study shows that the return on investment for tax incentives is negative."

The Legislature will consider additional tax breaks next year as part of a major economic development package.

While Florida's economy has outperformed other southern states for most of the past 15 years, the region remains one of the nation's poorest, the report said. In 1992, Florida ranked 16th with a poverty rate of 15.3 percent compared with a national rate of 14.5 percent.

Tax incentives, however, aren't as important as other factors, such as labor costs, highway access, construction costs and a low crime rate, in attracting new businesses, the report said.

And tax breaks aren't usually cost effective. For instance, the state may exempt a business from sales tax on the purchase of machinery and equipment. But the exemption reduces the amount of depreciation the same business can take on the income, the report said.

Members of a House tax subcommittee greeted the draft report Thursday with mixed reviews, while business groups and economic development officials derided it.

"This report is very troublesome," said Jodi Chase, a lobbyist for Associated Industries of Florida. "This report sends a message to companies all over the world that Florida doesn't want them here because we're not doing it right."

Manatee deaths still high

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — In the first 10 months of this year, 162 manatee deaths were reported, nearly matching the 1994 total.

That compares with 166 manatee deaths reported through last October by the Department of Environmental Protection. The total for 1994 was 193, the highest since a cold spell 50 years earlier claimed nearly 50 manatees and pushed the 1990 total to 206.

Manatee deaths so far this year plus last year exceed 300. The population is estimated at 1,800 to 2,000, for a mortality rate of 17 percent.

"That is striking," state marine biologist Scott Wright said Thursday. "When you've got that level of mortality you've got to look at the long-term implications."

From 1991 to 1993, manatee deaths dropped, totaling 174, 163 and 145. Bruce Ackerman, another DEP marine biologist, said experts can't say whether the manatee is closer to extinction due to deaths over the last two years.

"No one's really quite sure if the population is going down steadily or staying the same or increasing," he said. "We have seen an increase in the number of deaths over time, something one has to be very concerned about."

As Wright analyzed the remains of two manatees in St. Petersburg, Mary Morris, an environmental specialist with DEP's Bureau of Protected Species Management, spotted two live manatees in an aerial survey over coastal regions in the Big Bend area.

"I think the mortality rate sort of speaks for themselves," she said, adding that Florida going to have to work hard save the manatee mammal.

Fewer manatees have died the year because of collisions with boats, usually the single biggest cause of death. So far this year, the number of watercraft deaths dropped to 33 from 45 in the same period last year.

"Most of our efforts are focused at preventing the human-caused deaths because we really don't have much control over the other things," Ackerman said.

At the same time, the number of undetermined deaths has jumped to 48 from 33 last year.

"We don't know what that's about," Ackerman said. "We're still discussing it amongst ourselves."

Vehicular burglaries

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a series of vehicular burglaries reported Wednesday in Altamonte Springs. Several times, officers were called to various neighborhoods, as person after person began noticing damage on their cars, jeeps and vans.

In all, deputies reported a total of 21 vehicles had apparently been burglarized. In cases where the door locks were forced open, an estimated damage of $100 per vehicle was reported. Very few items were reported missing. One vehicle owner reported $2 in coins having been taken, while a knife was removed from another vehicle.

The burglaries took place on Genevieve Drive, Hollyhock, and Dolores Drive in Altamonte Springs.

Double charges

Ricardo Lopez Johnson, 29, of 1006 Mangostine, Sanford, was arrested by both sheriff's deputies and Sanford police Wednesday. According to the sheriff's arrest report, Johnson was accused of robbing a convenience store, indicating he had a gun. Under $300 in cash was said to have been stolen before the robber fled in a vehicle.

Sanford police subsequently found the car and conducted a traffic stop at Olive Avenue and 13th Street approximately 10 minutes after the vehicle was identified and officers told to be on the lookout.

As a result of the investigation, Sanford police believe they have connected Johnson with the armed robbery of another convenience store in the 4100 block of S. Orlando Drive. At that time, the robber reportedly escaped with an amount of cash, and a bag of Doritos.

Sheriff's deputies charged Johnson with armed robbery with a firearm/other deadly weapon.

Sanford police charged him with armed robbery.

Retail theft

Jeanette Denise Knight, 28, of Winter Springs, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday. Officers responded to a call from the manager of a store in the 1800 block of S. French Avenue, identifying the get-away car used following a retail theft. Police located the car at 13th Street and French Avenue. They said they found the items reportedly taken from the store, five pair of socks valued at $22.35. Knight was subsequently arrested on charges of retail theft and trespassing after warning.

Traffic stop

Edward M. Holder, 36, 339 Rockwell Circle, Lake Mary, was stopped by Casselberry police Wednesday at Lake Howell Square. He was charged with driving with a suspended license, having an expired tag, possession of cannabis, possession of drug paraphernalia, and a traffic citation.

Warrants

Deborah Darlene Morrissey, 43, 2401 S. Palmetto Avenue, was arrested by deputies at her residence Tuesday. She was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended license.

Stephen Kent Stewart, 34, 802 S. Sanford Avenue, was located by Sanford police Monday at Third and Park. He was found to be wanted on a warrant for burglary, issued in Bloomington, Indiana.

Arlene Speed, 18, 1913 Landing Drive, was served a warrant at the jail Tuesday. She was wanted for failing to appear for bail.

Roger Casady, 19, 303 Cedar Creek Circle, Sanford, was wanted for failing to appear for bail Tuesday. He was wanted for conviction of burglary in a circuit court.

James Williams, 22, 3055 Lincoln Street, Sanford, was turned in at the jail by his bond agent Tuesday. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of battery.

John Patrick Moriarty, 25, of Geneva, was arrested by Sanford police at the State Probation Office in Sanford Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of burglary to a conveyance.

Christine Marie Vasquez, 21, 1311 Santa Barbara Drive, was located by deputies at Lake Jenny Apartments Wednesday. She was wanted for failing to appear for bail, on a charge of assignment to consent prostitution.

Charismayne Ann Fowl, 21, 109 Shannon Drive, Sanford, was arrested by deputies at her residence Wednesday. She was wanted for failing to appear for bail, and violation of probation on a conviction of prostitution.

Buster W. Owens, 28, with no local address, was reportedly found by Sanford police standing near the roadway at the entrance to Seminole Towne Center Wednesday. He was found to be wanted in Meade County, Colorado, for failing to appear on a charge of burglary.

Thomas Lee Lovett, 44, 3127 W. 25th Street, Sanford, was arrested by deputies at the County Probation office Wednesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of battery.

Krystal E. Conklin, 24, with no local address, was arrested by police at the Seminole County courthouse Wednesday. She was wanted for failing to appear in court.

Sanford police reports

Police attempted to stop a vehicle believed to have been stolen on Tuesday. They said during the chase, the car, a 1993 Dodge Caravan, crashed into another vehicle in the 100 block of E. 19th Street, at which time the driver, identified as a white male, fled from the area on foot and was not located. Officers found the vehicle had been stolen in the 100 block of E. 18th Street in Sanford.

A pair of curtains, a package of frozen sausage and a VCR with a total value of $310 were reported stolen Tuesday from a residence in Lake Monroe Terrace.

A .22 caliber handgun valued at $71.56 was reported stolen Tuesday from an apartment at Geneva Gardens.

An estimated $407 in items were said to have been taken Tuesday as the result of a vehicular burglary in the 800 block of W. Airport Blvd. in Sanford.

A truck was reportedly burglarized Wednesday in the 1800 block of Cedar Avenue. A stereo, tool belt and tools with a total value of $500 was said to have been taken.

A white 1985 Plymouth, license number LTF-931, was said to have been stolen Wednesday from the 700 block of E. First Street in Sanford.

Co-owner suspected of arson

By BARBARA WHISLER

FARGO, N.D. — A woman who claimed she was bound, gagged and slashed in what appeared to be a hate crime inside her family's burning restaurant was arrested on suspicion of setting the fire.

Zahleh Sarabakhah had a swastikalike symbol carved into her abdomen in the alleged attack. Her family also had reported harassment for about a month before the fire.

Sarabakhah, 38, was expected to be charged today with arson, endangering by fire and making a false report, prosecutor John Goff said. She could face up to 18 years in prison if convicted.

Investigators are convinced she acted alone in setting the Oct. 23 fire. Lt. Scott Gilman said Thursday, adding that the motive was not known.

Police did not say whether they think Sarabakhah was involved in the alleged harassment of her family or whether she carved the marks on herself. A state prosecutor had said the marks could have been a cry for help.

the family said it looked like a swastika.

A construction worker found Sarabakhah on the sidewalk outside the burning Kabob House, a Middle Eastern restaurant she owns with her brother, Mort, a native of Iran, and his wife, Stephanie. Mort and Stephanie Sarabakhah are not suspects.

Zahleh Sarabakhah had been bound and gagged with tape. Investigators traced a roll of tape, empty containers of flammable material and a pair of rubber gloves to a purchase she herself made, Gilman said.

The night after the alleged attack, hundreds of outraged residents, joined by Mort Sarabakhah, marched to protest what they saw as racial hatred in their community. Money was raised to help the family rebuild.

"Our family wishes to express our gratitude to the community for the support we have received in this entire ordeal," Mort and Stephanie Sarabakhah said in a statement Thursday night. "We are devastated by this final turn of events."

Zahleh Sarabakhah had told authorities she could not remember what happened when she was allegedly attacked. She said she had been cleaning up after the last customer left when her assailants approached her from behind.

She also said she did not remember how she got out the front door of the burning restaurant.

Before the fire, the family had reported that a swastika was painted on the restaurant, and they had received threats, hate mail and a package containing 10 plastic fingers, two plastic cars, a small doll with a noose around its neck and two swastikas.

Erv Inniger, a Fargo city commissioner who grew close to the Sarabakhah family after the fire, said the march and the speeches against racial hate will not go for naught. "People who marched did it for the right reason," he said. "And if they feel foolish, they should not."

Pictures from Hubble show stars forming

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — An astronomer is hailing photographs of stars forming inside a 6-trillion-mile-long cloud of gas as "perhaps the most spectacular picture we've seen from the Hubble Space Telescope."

"In my mind, this takes us in one jump from no real observational evidence that this process works — even though we suspected it — to very strong operational evidence that this process actually happens," said Professor Bruce Margon of the University of Washington in Seattle.

The photos, released Thursday, show three gaseous towers resembling stalagmites rising from a cavern floor, or perhaps the heads of sea serpents. At their edges are finger-like protrusions, each with tips larger than our solar system, in which stars are embedded.

The stars are cradled in EGGs, an acronym for Evaporating Gaseous Globules, feeding and growing on molecular hydrogen and dust, said Jeff Hester, an astronomer at Arizona State University in Tempe.

As the stars get bigger, the radiation they emit eats away the cloud, exposing them to view. The pictures show photoevaporating gas as ghostly streamers flowing away from the columns.

"This is the first time that we have actually seen the process of forming stars being uncovered by photoevaporation," said Hester, the principal investigator on the project.

Seeing the pictures for the first time, he said in an interview, "we were just blown away. This is the kind of science that justified it (the telescope) in the first place."

The clouds contain about 50 stars in various stages of development, Hester said. The photographs were taken April 1 and released Thursday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"For a long time, astronomers have speculated why stars are the size they are," Hester said. In the photographs, he said, "We seem to be watching at least one such process at work right in front of our eyes."

The photoevaporation ultimately inhibits further growth of the embryonic stars by dispersing the cloud of gas they were feeding from. The pictures were made of the Eagle Nebula, a known nearby star-forming region 7,000 light years away in the constellation Serpens.

Thus, the images show the scene as it was 7,000 years ago. The process of uncovering a star to view takes about 10,000 years, Hester said.

"If you were to watch that over the course of a million years, you could see the cavity get bigger and bigger as radiation eats further into the cloud," Hester explained.

"As that cloud gets boiled away, it uncovers things buried there. In the case of M16 (another name for the nebula) it's uncovering a region that is forming yet more stars; the cloud hasn't all been eaten away."

Welcome to Sanford

Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce officials say this weekend could be the start of holiday shopping. The chamber, Sanford Main Street and the Celery City Cruisers are sponsoring the Arts, Crafts and Antique Festival at Fort Mellon Park this Saturday and Sunday. Times are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Sanford has had the St. Johns River Festival for many years, drawing out artists and craftsmen from various areas of Central Florida.

Now, with the influx of antique shops in downtown Sanford and elsewhere in northern Seminole County, the antique aspects have been added.

Likewise, with participation by the Celery City Cruisers, the streets of downtown Sanford will be lined with some of the finest classic cars.

Naturally, a great many Sanford residents will turn out for this weekend of activities. They have in the past, and we hope they will continue doing so this weekend, hopefully in even larger numbers than before.

What would really be a boon for the city however, is if more and more people from the surrounding area would attend the festival. People from Deltona, DeBary, Orange City, Enterprise, Oviedo, Winter Springs, Winter Park, and all of the other surrounding neighborhoods will be warmly welcomed.

We suggest that people who have not been in the downtown Sanford area recently, take a few extra moments, and drive around the downtown and lakefront areas. Hopefully, they will be surprised.

Sanford residents are proud of their city, and with the expected out-of-town visitors expected downtown this weekend, we urge everyone to be more than just a good neighbor. Let's give everyone a pep talk. After all, nothing has ever succeeded without good promotion, and it won't cost local residents anything to become a PR person for this weekend.

Welcome Sanford residents. Welcome visitors. Enjoy this weekend's Arts, Crafts and Antique Festival in downtown Sanford.

The architectural sins of I.M. Pei

By sheer coincidence I happened to visit both Paris and Hong Kong in the past two months, and they combined to rouse in me a complaint that I want to get off my chest.

I.M. Pei is one of the world's most famous architects, and I'm told by people who have met him) easily one of the most charming. Of Chinese birth but an American since his youth, he heads an architectural firm whose services are in worldwide demand. I am sure he is responsible for many exemplary buildings, but in Paris and Hong Kong in recent years he has designed two structures that, between them, sum up almost everything that is wrong with modern architecture.

In Hong Kong Mr. Pei was commissioned by the People's Republic of China to design a new headquarters building for its Bank of China, on Hong Kong Island overlooking that breathtaking harbor. The island is mountainous, and had served as a dramatic backdrop for scores of gleaming modern buildings, until various thoughtless architects, with more money than sense, began designing buildings so tall that they overwhelmed their setting.

Mr. Pei simply took this process to its illogical conclusion, designing a building ridiculously out of scale with its surroundings. Then, to distinguish it further from its rivals, he abandoned the architectural values of symmetry or even balance, to which most of his predecessors had adhered, and came up with a skinny off-balance contraption with what appears to be an arm akimbo. The result is a sort of architectural equivalent of Marcel Duchamp's "Nude Descending a Staircase."

The notoriety thus acquired may have been what prompted the late French president, Georges Pompidou, to ask Mr. Pei to design a new entrance for the Louvre museum. The handsome old palace that houses it is a masterpiece of French architectural styles from the Renaissance forward, having been constructed and reconstructed over three centuries. The oldest part of the palace is built on the four sides of a central courtyard (the Cour Carrée), from which two long, symmetrical arms stretch westward. The green Michelin guide to Paris describes the Louvre palace as "grand" and "regal," and it is certainly that.

The museum, which boasts such treasures as the Mona Lisa, the Venus de Milo, and the Winged Victory of Samothrace, is housed in portions of the central structure, and in the long southern arm that stretches along the Seine.

This time, at least, Mr. Pei remembered the virtue of symmetry. But what he placed squarely between the great palace's outstretched arms was... a glossy milk-white pyramid, like those in Egypt, only smaller, looking for all the world like a huge plastic toy. It bears no relation to the rest of the architecture of the Louvre -- or indeed to almost anything else in Paris. Anyone trying to defend it would be forced to argue that its sheer contrariety is its greatest charm.

What both the Bank of China building and the Louvre museum entrance proclaim at the top of their lungs is, "Look at me! I was designed by I.M. Pei!" This seems to be a common feature of the modern architectural mind.

They combined to rouse in me a complaint that I want to get off my chest.

Who forgives Robert McNamara?

What's bugging the body politic? The mailbag knows:

C.S., Mt. Vernon, Ill.: Your outburst over Robert McNamara's confession made me sad, I firmly opposed Vietnam, yet I feel that McNamara's book is a cleansing of the soul. Sure, there are 58,000 names on "The Wall," but the man who was largely responsible for putting them there has now admitted his faults. I guess you're too hard of heart to forgive. Is that very nice?

Joe: Former Defense Secretary McNamara, a major architect of the Vietnam War, now says he privately opposed U.S. involvement, but ~~he~~ never thought about doing it," he said because it would have been wrong "to subvert the policies of the president." And why was Lyndon Johnson so bent on saving the South Vietnam regime? Because Republicans might accuse him of "losing" Vietnam. Put another way, 58,000 Americans died in a political game. Yes, I am hard-hearted. You may forgive Robert McNamara. God may forgive Robert McNamara. I do not.

What's bugging the body politic - The mailbag knows.

S.S., Carlsbad, N.M.: You have so much bitterness in you, and your picture only further buttresses the hate in your spirit.

Joe: Like the photo of Betty Crocker, the picture that many newspapers run at the top of this column is a computer-generated composite, the very best that technology can create. Clearly, the cybercreations have room for improvement.

R.M., Golden City, Mo.: Ask prisoners of war what they think of the flag amendment. You are determined to desecrate Senator Bob Dole who served his country with distinction and was severely wounded, as well as all other veterans who served in WWII. We need the amendment to protect the flag from you and the hoodlums across the country.

Joe: It bewilders me how some people can read simple words and not comprehend them. I did argue, as did the Supreme Court, that flag burning is protected speech, and that most politicians who favor the amendment are phonies looking for easy votes. But I specifically exempted Bob Dole, who was almost killed in World War II. His emotions "understandably becloud his logic." I said:

R.W., Doylestown, Pa.: It's apparent you are jealous of Rush Limbaugh, who is 1,000 times smarter than you.

Joe: I might not have his mind, but I've got a better body.

J.M., America Online: The Christian Right is so goofy, they thi... (Editor's note: Inexplicably, J.M.'s dispatch was terminated at this point by a bolt of lightning.) Ha Ha. I wasn't really struck by lightning. You gotta believe God has a sense of humor. How else do you explain the duck-billed platypus?

Joe: All God's creatures got a role, J.M. But for platypus. Australia would be overrun with worms and insects.

M.H., Conroe, Texas: Your column is much needed. Please never get so discouraged that you start believing most of us no longer care. And, please, never temper your comments.

Joe: Thanks, M.H. Your note gives me a chance to say how much I appreciate the positive letters so many of you send. There are times when they keep me going. I wish I had time to respond to all of them, but I do not. I hope you understand.

Keep it coming, friend and foe alike: Joe Spear, Newspaper Enterprise Association, 200 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10016.

P.S.: I was kidding about the composite photo. It is genuine, and further proof that God has a sense of humor.

Parent's point of view

Lyman is the school to be. Dr. Peter Gorman is the principal in action.

During the summer of 1993 my husband and I had to make one of the hardest decisions. We came to a final decision of sending our daughter to Lyman High School (a public school since she has been in a private school all her life. Not allowing her to see our fear we started the process. It was disappointing, at first, because when we tried to talk with the principal he was always unavailable to get back to us. For our daughter to know who the principal was, she had to attend a town meeting. The meeting implies her absence from school in which she always had a remarkable attendance.

The summer of 1994 changed drastically with the arrival of a new principal. First you would hear all kind of comments from the students: e.g. "he is great," "he is gorgeous," "he is fine," "he is young," "he has them in prison." The last remark was made because the gates, which have been there for years, were finally being used. The gates would be closed after the second bell. Every late student would have to go through the front.

As the months prolong the comments about the prison changed, but the others continued. Students and parents seemed very happy. The first town meeting was very well attended. The second was overwhelming. This was never seen before. Dr. Gorman walks or runs to classes with the students. His presence is visible all over the campus. When the new office building was completed, Dr. Gorman changed the office, originally picked out by previous principal, to an area where he could see the students and they could see him. The news spread quickly. The attendance increased and drop outs decreased, but moreover the students, and teachers are very happy.

Dr. Gorman could and still can be seen at every game held at school. After one of his town meetings, he informed the parents that he was going to see the baseball game if they wanted to join him. The attendance increased tremendously.

It was after 9:00 p.m. on a Tuesday, Dr. Gorman was still in his office and his wife Sue was helping him to decorate. As a Social Worker I see or hear many stories daily, but the one I clearly remembered was a parent telling me her 14 year old had not gone to school in one week, and she did not know what to do. I immediately encouraged her to call Dr. Gorman. She did speak to Dr. Gorman and later on told me about it. It took him only one telephone call, and Dr. Gorman very quickly had the guidance counselor schedule a conference. Now her son is at school doing very well.

That reminds me of a story myself. My daughter was unusually quiet for a couple of days, and although I knew something was wrong, I could not get her to tell me what it was. I then called Dr. Gorman, and told him about my concern. He quickly set up a meeting with the guidance counselor himself and I. I left his office at about 7:45 A.M., but by 9:00 A.M. he called to inform me he had spoken to my daughter, and everything was all right. He will call me in later with details. My daughter later called me thanking me for caring enough about her to talk to Dr. Gorman.

Dr. Gorman did what seemed like an impossibility. For years, the previous principal could not secure or reserve an indoor facility for graduation. The excuses varied from calling too late, has to be reserved a year ahead; even though every year several people would pass out on the football field from heat exhaustion. However, the class of 1995 was very happy when Dr. Gorman informed them graduation would be held indoors at the U.C.F. arena. The first in almost 20 years.

Dr. Gorman then announced the exam exemption which very soon all the schools will be adopting. This past summer Dr. Gorman was one of the teachers who elected to go to Harvard to enhance his teaching ability. Needless to say, he brought back and has shared what he learned. What a pleasure it is to know Dr. Gorman and seeing now I have two children at Lyman and one more in a couple of years. My husband and I hope he will be there all the years to come.

Abused kids

Politicians at all levels are talking about reforming welfare and changing the way we in this country treat poor children and families. Most people agree that the nation's welfare system should be improved, so the why of reform is not so much an issue as the how. How can reforms be made while ensuring that vulnerable children are protected and have the basics of adequate food, clothing and shelter?

In all the discussions about changes in AFDC and other supports for poor families, one thing is important to remember. Welfare reform is not the same as protecting abused/neglected children. The two should not be confused.

Current federal law covering foster care and adoption assistance guarantees that abused and neglected children will be protected, regardless of where they live. The promise is to protect them and keep them safe, whether with their biological family, other relatives or a foster family, is long-standing and real.

The version of welfare reform that passed recently by the U.S. House of Representatives seriously threatens the safety of abused and neglected children. That legislation would block grant federal money for child protection along with the money for several other programs such as child care, child nutrition and school lunches. In addition to eliminating significant federal protections for abused children, the House bill would also mean that states would lose billions of dollars for child protection over the next five years compared with funding they could anticipate under current federal law.

It is a sad fact that more than one million children were victims of abuse and neglect last year in this country, and three die every day. Last year in Florida, 75,000 children were identified as victims of abuse or neglect.

Fortunately, the welfare reform legislation that was passed in September by the Senate did not call for the conversion of federal child protection programs into block grants. It appears the senators recognized that abuse and neglected children have been hurt enough, and that we as a nation should not weaken our support for them by giving states lump sums to be used as they see fit, for however long the money holds out, whether or not children need safe placements.

The fate of abused and neglected children should not become an accident of geography, which could happen when states run out of their block-granted funds.

We must insist that politicians, in their zeal to reform welfare, stay focused on the need to protect all abused and neglected children in Florida and the entire country. The committee in Congress now hammering out a welfare reform bill for both houses to consider should maintain child protection as an entitlement program that protects every abused and neglected child, whenever and wherever there is need.

"Hi there! Anything new with the glass-ceiling situation?"

Unemployment rate dips to 5.5 percent in October

By MARTIN GRUTENBERG
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate dipped to 5.5 percent in October, the lowest level in seven months, as moderate gains in construction and medical services helped to offset the effects of an aircraft manufacturing strike.

The Labor Department said today that the jobless rate improved from the 5.6 percent level where it had been for the past two months. Analysts said the small improvement did nothing to change their view that economic activity is slowing after a summer spurt.

Payroll jobs increased by 116,000, slightly below expectations, and the government revised sharply downward its estimate for the growth in payroll jobs for September, reducing the increase to just 50,000 instead of a previously reported gain of 121,000.

Katherine O. Abraham, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said today's report reflected a labor market that continues "to expand at a modest pace."

While the economy grew at a sizzling 4.2 percent annual rate from July through September, a number of recent reports indicated that business activity is slowing to a more sustainable rate in the final three months of the year.

On Thursday, chain retail stores reported their sales inched up last month at the slowest pace in four years and earlier this week a widely watched barometer of the manufacturing industry posted a significant decline.

That news helped to boost the stock market to a new record high as hopes were rekindled that the slow growth will give the Federal Reserve more room to cut interest rates.

Many analysts believe the Fed will pass up the chance to reduce rates at its November meeting, because of uncertainty of the budget negotiations between President Clinton and Congress, but will trim rates at their December gathering.

House GOP aim: Cut seniors' groups out of jobs program

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House Republicans plan to stop funding national senior citizens groups — including some that have criticized GOP policies — as part of changes proposed for a job program for older Americans.

"Our renewal of the Older Americans Act takes the Washington-based organizations out of the action," Rep. Randy Duke, Cunningham, R-Calif., chairman of the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee on youth and families, said Thursday.

Under Cunningham's plan to streamline the 1965 law, money that now goes to nine private organizations and the U.S. Forest Service to run the Senior Community Service Employment Program would go instead to states as block grants.

The states could then conduct competitive bidding for contracts under the program, which annually helps some 100,000 poor Americans over age 65 find minimum-wage jobs in libraries, nursing homes, day care centers and other community service.

Several of the affected groups, including the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Council of Senior Citizens, have sharply criticized GOP plans to reform Medicare and have been the targets of Republican legislation to limit lobbying by nonprofit groups.

"This is good old-fashioned vendetta politics," said Patrick Burns, a spokesman for the council. "It's injecting partisan politics into a debate about who should get federal grants."

Cunningham made public a General Accounting Office report that concluded that eight of the 10 organizations exceeded a 15 percent ceiling for federal grant money going to administrative costs by shifting some of those costs to another category. It said $20 million was lost because of this bureaucratic overhead.

socialize, dance and have a safe, fun environment. It's important, they can do it with their friends.

"I think it's going to be a real success for these kids," Tisha, marketing assistant at World said.

At 7:30 p.m., the kids will be taken into the theme park and have bumper rides, the games, even the two miniature golf courses.

And, of course, there'll be dancing. The music providers will change, but this week there will be a celebrity D.J. from XL 108.7 radio.

They will stay in that closed environment until 11 p.m. unless parents pick them up.

"We're going to have a really strict enforcement on the pick ups," Valery assured.

Five Seminole County sheriff's deputies will be on duty at the park to ensure everyone's safety.

Valery said no one that falls outside the 10 to 15 age range will be permitted on the dance floor.

"We just want to make sure the middle school students are given the opportunity to have fun," she said.

Tickets for the dance party are $8 per person. That amount includes the dance, 12 ride tickets, and 10 arcade tokens. Food will be available for sale.

The Police Athletic League will be providing bus transportation from and to Sanford Middle School for those students who have transportation obstacles. Valery hopes transportation will be available from other locations later on.

school district can do," Sheriff Halbig, the district chief, said. "Now it's up to the judicial system to do what it can do."

In addition to the charges regarding the filing of the false affidavit, the state attorney's office is charging that Reyes be charged with the following felonies: carrying a concealed firearm, possession of a firearm on school property, discharging a firearm on school property and possession of a firearm by a minor.

Halbig said he does not believe Reyes will be sent to jail as this is her first offense, but he said the consequences of her actions, if she is convicted, will still be serious.

"She'll probably get probation and things like driver licenses will be affected," he said. "I hope that other students will get the message that there is no tolerance for weapons at school."

Echoing the sentiments of Sheriff Don Estinger, Halbig said this is a "very, very serious problem"; one which the students need to understand.

Reyes had told investigators at the time of the shooting that two hooded men had assaulted her with a knife and shot her when she resisted. It was later discovered the gun with which she had been shot belonged to her mother.

Yesterday, under further questioning, she admitted that she had accidentally shot herself in an effort to rid herself of the weapon before she entered the administration building for a meeting with her mother and a guidance counselor.

Law enforcement officials have said they will not prosecute Reyes' mother, Expeditas O'Connor, with weapons storage violation. She has told investigators the gun was stored unloaded. There is no evidence to the contrary.

Reyes is recovering at the home of a relative in Lake County. She will not return to school in Seminole County.

Rezoning

The final decision will be made by the Seminole County school board in late January of next year.

According to Diane Kramer, facilities planner for the district, said the main criterion for the attendance zones which have been proposed is keeping "neighborhood schools".

The public hearings on the planned changes will be in the Oviedo High School auditorium on Tuesday, Nov. 28; in the Lyman High School media center on Tuesday, Dec. 5; and in the Seminole High School media center on Thursday, Dec. 7. All meetings will begin at 7 p.m.

Parents of students at Lake Mary Elementary School and Goldsboro Elementary School will have additional opportunities to discuss the situation with school officials. Those schools will remain, for the time being, on the year round calendar and, thus have special needs.

The Lake Mary meeting will be that school at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 13; the Goldsboro meeting will be at that school at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 27.

Goldsboro will also be affected by the construction of a school, which is scheduled to open in time for the 1997-98 school year, at the intersection of Old Lake Mary Road and Airport Boulevard. It will also draw students from the current Idyllwild Elementary zones.

Highlands Elementary in Winter Springs should be completed by the end of this school year, but won't be occupied until next school year. Students who currently attend Lake Mary and Winter Springs elementaries would likely be tapped to attend the new school.

Carlton Elementary in Oviedo will probably not open until January 1997 and will take most of its students from Partin Elementary School.

Most recently, on Oct. 31, detectives were canvassing an address off McNorton Road, Altamonte Springs, and reportedly located Glee's aunt, from South Florida.

According to detective Robert Johannmeyer, Glee is suspected of having returned to this Central Florida area along with his aunt. Johannmeyer said Glee also has friends in Altamonte Springs, Apopka and Orange County.

Glee is described as a black male, 23 years of age, five feet nine inches tall, weighing 150 to 165 pounds. He has a tattoo on his right forearm, "T.G. Lee." He also is said to have a scar on his left ear.

Johannmeyer stressed that Glee has been known to be armed with an unknown type handgun, and also has a crack addiction.

He urges anyone having information regarding Glee's whereabouts to contact Altamonte Springs police at 263-3706 as soon as possible, or the nearest law enforcement agency.

Tallahassee TV station indicated 79 percent of the people wanted the names released.

A number of newspapers however, including the Sanford Herald, intend to publish the names, but have been unable to obtain a listing.

The local Child Support Enforcement Division in Seminole County declined discussing the list, and referred calls to the State Child Support Division in Tallahassee.

At the Department of Revenue in Tallahassee, Donna O'Neil is charged with dealing with the media, but a spokesman in her department said, "We have the list, but we haven't decided how we are going to turn it over to the press."

deadbeats.

"We want the friends, neighbors, co-workers and bosses of these deadbeats to know that they have financially abandoned their children," Fuchs said Wednesday when he was supposed to have released the list to the general public.

The list doesn't necessarily represent the worst of the state's deadbeats but is a cross-section sampling of parents who owe child support, said agency spokeswoman Donna O'Neil.

In Pensacola, a woman who hasn't received child support for her two sons in almost eight years said she didn't know if the list would make any difference. But Linda Jenkins wholeheartedly supports the idea.

be among the worst offenders.

"How fair is it to the child who ... doesn't have adequate food, clothing or shelter?" Fuchs asked. "And how can we differentiate between case A vs. case B and decide which one is egregious?"

"We think it's a statewide problem that needs to be addressed on the largest scale possible."

The agency asked case analysts around the state to submit the names of 20 parents who are at least five months' delinquent on child support, Fuchs said. Every county in the state is included except Dade, which runs its own child-support program.

In a press release late yesterday, Fuchs said he has decided to make the listings available, tentatively Tuesday, and then, on the Internet computer network.

According to Associated Press, the state knows of nearly a quarter of a million parents who aren't paying the child support they owe. From it they have compiled a list of almost 10,000

"I think it's great," Ma Jenkins, 42, said. "I think they should have their pictures on milk cartons."

Everyone on the list owes at least $250. Revenue officials didn't know the highest amount owed, although at least one man owes nearly $400,000. All told, the parents listed owe about $111 million.

Fuchs defended the fairness of listing deadbeats who may not Based on their first names, all but 300 of the 9,900 seem to be fathers, Fuchs said.

In the meantime, although Fuchs has reportedly "released the list," it is presently being restricted for publication.

The department has set up a toll-free line for people to call with complaints or information about the deadbeat parents. The number is 1-800-781-9121.

not going to give you an incentive to come here."

Chape claimed the state's tax burden on businesses hurts its chance of attracting and keeping them, even though Florida ranks 40th nationally with a corporate income tax rate of 5.5 percent.

Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, D-Davis, said the report didn't say that tax breaks shouldn't be granted. "It does say we should set priorities and know what our goals are," she said.

Compared to $1.3 billion in tax breaks, the state spends about $361 million on economic development initiatives that have some sort of performance standards, the report said.

That includes Enterprise Florida, the public-private organization that provides financial and technical assistance to businesses, and array of programs for job training, international trade and other areas.

The report recommended that lawmakers establish a strategic plan before approving more tax breaks or creating more job programs.

Fewer Americans on the dole
WASHINGTON - As Congress wrangles over ways to break the cycle of welfare dependency among poor families, the number of Americans on the dole is shrinking steadily.
Democrats contend an improving economy is the reason; Republicans say families are trading their welfare checks for jobs as it becomes clear that Congress and the states are serious about forcing recipients into the work force.

SANFORD — For Seminole Community College men's basketball coach Bernard Merthie, success this season could literally be a matter of bare truths.

"I want to win 20 games this season," Merthie said. "I told my players that if we make it to the state tournament, they can shave my head. I believe we have the talent to get to the state tournament."

To get there, Merthie's must find a way to win without Michael Sheppard, Don Tillman and Bibb Allen this season because all three were lost to graduation. Sheppard averaged 19 points per game to lead the Raiders to a 16-15 record last season, while Tillman averaged 17 points. Allen averaged 12 points and seven rebounds in Mid-Florida Conference play to help SCC post a 7-7 mark in MFC play.

To make matters worse, the Raiders will be without power forward William Fitzgerald until next semester. Fitzgerald, a 1995 Preseason Junior College All-American who averaged 20 points

Tribe wins first CC crown

KISSIMMEE — The Seminole High School boys' cross country team won the first district title in school history with a relatively easy victory in the Class 5A-District 6 meet at Osceola County Stadium Thursday afternoon.

The Tribe, under head coach Ken Brauman, came up with 51 points to best, St. Cloud (78), Osceola (100), Satellite (138), Lakeland (140), George Jenkins (152), Merritt Island (192), Lake Region (203), Titusville (216), Auburndale (231), host Gateway (249) and Lake Gibson (no team score).

Seminole was led by Jeremiah Mitchell, who finished third overall with a of 16:58. Other Tribe runners were Willie Lawson (fifth, 17:13), Derrick Jones (sixth, 17:18), Keith Cain (10th, 17:46), Robbie Smith (27th, 18:58), Mike Morely (34th) and Quentin Henderson (51st).

The top five runners qualified for the Regionals which will be held on November 11th at Osceola County Stadium.

O'Neal, Armstrong on IR

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal was placed on the injured list and Orlando waived Todd Mitchell and Kevin Pritchard on Thursday to trim the Magic's roster to the NBA's opening-night limit of 12 players.

O'Neal, the defending league scoring champion, has a fractured right thumb and is expected to be sidelined six to eight weeks. Backup point guard Darrell Armstrong also was placed on the injured list with a sprained right ankle.

Orlando opens the season Friday night at home against Cleveland. The rest of the active roster includes Nick Anderson, Horace Grant, Geert Hammink, Anfernee Hardaway, Jon Koncak, Donald Royal, Dennis Scott, Brian Shaw, Larry Stewart, Brooks Thompson, Jeff Turner and David Vaughn.

Heat finalize roster

MIAMI — Guard Rex Chapman and forward Ronnie Grandison will be out indefinitely after being put on the injured list, the Miami Heat announced Thursday.

Chapman has been hampered in the preseason with acute tendonitis in his right Achilles. Grandison is out with a strained ligament in his right hand and a bruised tailbone.

Dolphins sign tight end

DAVIE — The Dolphins on Thursday signed tight end Joe Planansky to the practice squad. He was signed to the active roster Oct. 21 after Eric Green underwent arthroscopic surgery and was waived from the active list Wednesday.

Panthers claw Flyers

PHILADELPHIA — Mike Hough had two first-period assists and the Florida Panthers held on to defeat the Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 Thursday night.

The loss was the first at home this season for the Flyers (4-1-1).

The Panthers, 7-0 this season when scoring first, outshot the Flyers 15-3 in the opening period and went ahead 1-0 on a rebound goal by Rob Niedermayer at 17:15.

Rudek Dvorak's first NHL goal 3:19 into the second period gave the Panthers a 2-0 advantage.

Philadelphia score came on Eric Lindros' 11th goal of the season in the second period.

Virginia upsets FSU

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — In a stunning upset Thursday night, Virginia snapped Florida State's 29-game Atlantic Coast Conference winning streak and probably ended the Seminoles' bid for a national championship.

Tiki Barber had 297 all-purpose yards and scored two touchdowns and the No. 24 Cavaliers stopped second-ranked FSU inches from the goal line on the final play for a 33-28 victory.

It was Florida State's first ACC loss since joining the league in 1992. The Seminoles (7-1, 5-1) had won their first 29 ACC games by an average margin of 33 points.

After building a 27-21 halftime lead, the Cavaliers (7-3, 6-1) shut out the Seminoles for most of the second half and got two field goals from Rafael Garcia, who had four in the game.

Florida State pulled to 33-28 on Warrick Dunn's 7-yard touchdown run with 6:13 left in the game, and drove to the Virginia 6 in the final seconds. But Dunn, on a direct snap, was stopped inches from the end zone by Anthony Poindexter and Adrian Burnim on the final play, setting off a wild celebration at Scott Stadium.

Raider women headed for Okaloosa-Walton

By GARY COATOAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Going into last season, the Seminole Community College women's basketball team wanted to be a contender on the Mid-Florida Conference. The Raiders accomplished that goal with a second place finish in the conference.

The Raiders are looking to top last season's respectable 2.76 GPA with a 3.0 mark. Even though SCC lost four starters from last year, coach Ken Patrick is looking to Academic All-American Kelli Gardner to lead a team that Patrick says is "unselfish and multitiered" as it tries to top last year's success.

Gardner, who posted a 3.81 GPA last season, gives SCC a sophomore trio of prolific three-point shooters. Johanna Lautala hit 59 percent of the three-point field goals she attempted last season, while Jessica Ziegenfeldt can shoot from beyond the arc and is a force under the basket.

Sophomores Theresa Flowers and LaRhonda Jenkins give the Raiders a pair of experienced rebounders, while returning sophomore Feleasha Wilson will provide experienced leadership at point guard. The six sophomores will be joined on the roster by seven freshman this season.

The top freshman is Sabrina Crump, who was named Miss Florida Basketball in 1995 after her senior season at Clearwater Countrywide high school. Patrick feels Crump, who loves to pass and has an excellent shooting touch, will make the entire SCC roster a threat to score. Fellow newcomer Charlotte Griffin brings additional quickness and outside shooting to SCC after leading Starke to a state title last season.

La Toya Griffin and Daungi Carter give the Raiders two players who were seasoned by Team Florida's European tour last summer. Patrick feels Carter is a coachable shooter who brings added confidence to the roster, while Griffin will provide help inside.

Mia Hansson brings international experience and strong shooting to the SCC roster. Hansson, who is in her early twenties, is expected to provide strong leadership for younger players this season. Nadia Soletsky attracted the attention of college scouts with aggressive play and strong shooting in a summer AAU league. Nija Westfall, 6-foot-1, is a hard working, motivated player who could be a force inside.

Crazy Wings, Nobles stay in race

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Crazy Wings and Nobles Construction kept their title hopes alive and in the process eliminated two of their main competitors in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League action at Pinchurst Park.

Crazy Wings came up with six runs in the seventh inning to hold off Beer:30 11-5 and Nobles took an early lead and held off Ken Rummel Chevrolet 9-4. In the other game, Ken Rummel held on to beat Beer:30 11-8.

Steve Woodley was the winning pitcher and had a sacrifice fly as Crazy Wings beat Beer:30 11-5.

M.A. Erectors sweep to top of softball league

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Hits turned into runs for the winners in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

M.A. Erectors broke a two-game losing streak and retook the league lead by collecting 12 hits in a 12-2 victory over TEC Mortgage and 20 hits in a 20-0 whipping of the Scrubs. In the other game, TEC Mortgage also ripped the ball for 20 hits in a 20-8 clubbing of Sanford Tire.

In the games at At Pinchurst Park, Crazy Wings topped Beer:30 11-5; Nobles Construction held off Ken Rummel Chevrolet 9-4 and Ken Rummel outscored Beer:30 11-8. With two weeks left in the season, the championship race is a three team battle between M.A. Erectors (10-2), Nobles Construction (9-2) and Crazy Wings (8-3). Trailing the leaders are Beer:30 and Ken Rummel (both 7-5), TEC Mortgage (4-8), Sanford Tire (1-10) and the Scrubs (0-11).

What's up in the N.F.L.? Week 10: Back on track

Well here we are in week Ten, and I have one thing to say. Can I borrow a dollar? I was beaten so badly this weekend. I resorted to selling my lawnmower and a few other yard tools. Sunday was so full of surprises that even a seasoned veteran like myself got buried. Adding salt to the wound, I cowardly refused to "double down" with the Bears on Monday Night. Not only would it have bailed me out, but I loved the Bears (+4), and let fear cost me money. If he weren't my friend, I would find comfort in the fact that Tony Guru was also a victim. He was out in Vegas for the Breeder's Cup, and by some cruel twist of fate, he drifted into the sports book to bet Cincinnati and Washington. I'm still trying to comprehend how the Bengals could allow me to be beaten in overtime.

Carolina and Giants both had upset wins, but the Saints stole the show. As I promised in my column, the Saints not only played the Niners outright, they won the game. New Orleans is still an awful team, but this gives them something to be proud of for the rest of the season. The Bears had the biggest win of the week by crushing Minnesota at the Metrodome. Chicago is now in firm control of the N.F.C. Central, and boast the second best record in the League. As predicted, my beloved Bills were unable to overcome countless injuries in a key loss to Miami. The last two weeks have been painful to watch as my Lock Of The Week record has fallen to 8-2. Cash in a couple of the kid's savings bonds, we're going on a roll starting Sunday. What's the difference between saving for college, and building for college, by skillfully investing in the outcome of a football game?

Focusing on Florida's teams, let's take a quick look at the Dolphins in Sunday's victory against the Bills. Marino and crew looked confused. Kelly and company would have beaten them if not for the long list of missing talent. Miami should have been able to capitalize on these injuries, but instead put in a mediocre performance. If the Dolphins are planning to win Sunday, they better wake up. They go to San Diego to meet Beau and the rest of the Chargers in a must win situation. This will be an exciting rematch of last year's A.F.C. Title Game. To gain ground in the A.F.C. East, Miami needs a victory. I'm sure that Shula is pulling his hair out trying to put the pieces together, he better hurry.

I debated whether I would even talk about my team this week. Tampa Bay put in a horrible effort in Houston and it makes me sick. The Buc's offense has once again failed to do its job. I warned you last week that if Tampa lost we were risking another dismal season. At 5-4 we still have a chance at the playoffs. I'm not going to back down from my preseason prediction of the Buc's making it to the postseason, but the bye week couldn't have come at a better time. Sam needs to get his troops focused, and more importantly, healthy. The extra week should give him plenty of time to do that and figure out his quarterback problem. Differ just isn't getting the job done, and the defense is suffering because of it. Hardy "Hulk" Nickerson has kept this team in every game, and it's time for the offense to show some appreciation. K.C. Weldon deserves to star next week, and I hope he does. The last time I made a suggestion Sam took my advice and the Buc's offense healed.

INDIANAPOLIS (-8) vs BUFFALO. I hate to say it, but without Thurman Thomas and Andre Reed the Bills can't win. The Colts rested in their victory against the Jets last week, they'll be ready. Colts 24 Bills 13

MINNESOTA (-1) vs GREEN BAY. The Vikings' postseason hopes will be "up in smoke" if they lose to the Pack this week. Green Bay fans have turned on Big Al after he sat out against Detroit. Locals have speculated he faked the "postgame" celebration injury, but Al claims it's still bothering him on long routes. He'll win the fans back with a solid performance Sunday. Packers 31 Vikings 17

NEW ENGLAND (-9) at N.Y. JETS. I knew the Patriots weren't the contenders everyone thought they were, but this is the "Jet". The Pats worry me with the loss to the Panthers, but it was in overtime. Look for Bledsoe to have a career day. I love Boomer, but they don't stand a chance. Patriots 35 Jets 13

ATLANTA (-1) vs DETROIT. The Falcons looked O.K. against the Cowboys, but Emmitt almost ran to Dallas. If Emmitt can do it, so can Barry. The Falcons are able to score points so it may be close, but Detroit gets the win. Lions 27 Falcons 23

CLEVELAND (-7) vs HOUSTON. The Browns really impressed me with their victory over Blake and the Bengals. I guess they finally realized they needed to start winning. Cleveland will win the game, but with their offense and Houston's defense, this is too many points. Take the seven points and buy your wife something nice. Browns 23 Oilers 18

KANSAS CITY (-9) vs WASHINGTON. Kansas City is sitting real nice at -1. The Skins have got to be disappointed after the loss to the Giants. They may not have the talent to do anything about it. Chiefs are coming off an extra week of rest. Chiefs 24 Skins 13

NEW ORLEANS (-8) vs ST. LOUIS. The Saints are still drinking after beating the Niners last week. If they wake in time for Sunday's game, they're in for a surprise. The Rams are as furious after losing three straight, and will try to take it out on the Saints. If the Saints can sober up for kick-off they may have a chance. I don't think they will. Rams 27 Saints 20

CHICAGO (-8) vs PITTSBURGH. This one will be a great. The Bears are on a roll, and Cowher has finally taught his players that your are supposed to beat expansion teams. The Steelers are backed into the corner as they enter Soldier Field, but that may not be enough to beat a hot Erik Kramer. Bears 20 Steelers 13.

NEW YORK GIANTS (-8) at SEATTLE. Forget my uncle in Seattle, this team stinks. Reeves thinks his Giants can still make the playoffs, they'd have to beat the Seahawks to have a chance. I don't think they can make the playoffs, but they can beat a lousy Seattle team. Giants 20 Seahawks 17.

DENVER (-8) vs ARIZONA. Denver looks to take advantage of the bye week as they prepare for Arizona in the Rockies. If this team is planning on being a factor in the playoffs, which I think they will, a string of victories is required. The Cardinals will be the perfect team to start with as they come off beating Seattle last week. Broncos 31 Cardinals 10.

OAKLAND (-7) at CINCINNATI. This will be a great game to watch on television. Two explosive offenses duke it out in a filthy city. Blake needs to recover from last week's heartbreak. I'm trying to convince Congress to bet the over on this one, we could fix the deficit. Bombs away! Raiders 34 Bengals 31.

SAN FRANCISCO (-15) vs CAROLINA. I find it hard to believe that after losing to the Saints, the Niners are favored by fifteen points. Even if Steve Young does return this is too many points to give a hot Panthers squad. Take the points and run, don't walk, to the bank. Niners 28 Panthers 14.

SAN DIEGO (-8) vs MIAMI. This game means do or die for both teams. Miami needs to play perfect ball to beat an angry Charger team. In the past couple of weeks they haven't been able to do that. San Diego should be pumped after the bye week. Sorry Shula. Chargers 24 Dolphins 20.

DALLAS (-14) vs PHILADELPHIA. This Monday Night game will have all the bookies running for cover. Nobody wants to bet against Dallas, but fourteen points is a heck of a lot. Deion and company will show the world what they're made of in this blowout. Take cover. Cowboys 30 Eagles 13.

Every week I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contemplation, I feel most comfortable releasing as my LOCK OF THE WEEK. At 8-2, I need to get back in control of my life. I've sought counseling which seems to have helped. The recurring advice was to work through the slump, and I will. I'm a Clydeade of football handicapping, there is no quit in me. This week Denver (-7) qualifies as my LOCK OF THE WEEK. This team should be ready to pummel an awful Cardinals team. I see Elway winning the game by multiple touchdowns. Good luck this week, and save the pruning for March.

and 10 rebounds per game last season, is academically ineligible to start the season. The good news is that Shawn Washington and Torrey Thompson give the Raiders some experience at the forward position. Washington, a graduate of Seminole high school and a Sanford resident, averaged 17 points and seven rebounds last season and was named to the MFC All-Conference team. Thompson steps into the starting line up after playing as a reserve last season.

"Torrey will give us leadership on the floor," Merthie said. "He matured last year as a reserve player, and I feel he can give us the minutes we need this year. Our sophomores need to show the maturity of players who have experience at this level to help the freshman adjust. We need to work together as a team and be consistent in all areas."

Arnette Young, a transfer from Bethune-Cookman College, averaged seven points and five rebounds for the Wildcats in limited play last season. Forwards Jerome Crump and Jimmy Louis return from last year's squad, but both are academically ineligible to start the season. Merthie plans to help his players regain and retain their academic eligibility by holding study hall and monitoring their class performance.

The Raiders are relying on freshmen Edward Butler, Bennie Taylor and John Mobley to make an immediate impact. Butler, a 6'9" center from West Palm Beach, averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds per game as a senior at John I. Leonard High School. Taylor (18 ppg) and Mobley (24 ppg), who are both guards, will also play key roles for the Raiders this season.

"We recruited some good freshmen, and we are counting on them to play right away," Merthie said. "Hopefully, they will mature in time, but the jump from the high school level to the college level is difficult because college freshmen are usually stars of their high school teams."

Freshman guards Leon Stroy and Phillip Jackson, and freshman forwards Reggie Williams and Chris Henderson round out the Raiders 1995 roster. Despite the mix of seven freshman and five sophomores, Merthie remains optimistic about this season.

Florida
First Round - 1. Florida, Winterwood (Hough, Hartley), 17-11. Postville - Bradford, Fla (Hankins), 11-10. Mac/Tech, Fla (Interference), 6-52. Lindsay, Fla (Interference), 9-52. Dyalts, Fla (Interference), 12-41.
Second Round - 1. Florida, Dyer 1 (Hough, Murphy), 2:19. 2. Philadelphia, Lindsay 11 (Fry), 9:33. Postville - Mac/Tech, Fla (Interference), 12:57.
Third Round - none. Postville - Barnes, Fla (Interference), 12:54. Lindsay, Fla (Interference), 12:54. Dyer 1, Fla (Interference), 12:54. Mac/Tech, Fla (Interference), 12:54. Dyer 1, Fla (Interference), 12:54. Mac/Tech, Fla (Interference), 12:54.

The Raiders play six top 20 junior college teams, including No. 1 Okaloosa-Walton, the defending state and Junior College National Champions, Gulf Coast CC, Tallahassee CC, St. Petersburg JC, Daytona Beach CC and Pensacola CC are the other ranked teams on the schedule. DBCC is the defending MFC champion. Merthie feels composure, mental toughness and controlling game tempo are the keys to success this season.

"Rankings don't mean anything to me, but they are good recognition for a school," Merthie said. "Ranked teams have to prove they can win each night just like everybody else."

T-shirt causes rift between father and son

Dear Mary: Last week my husband and our 13-year-old son got into a screaming match over a stupid T-shirt. It ended with my husband doing the "You'll do as I say as long as you live in my house" routine. So, our son packed his things and left before we got home from work the next day.

The T-shirt had blood and guts art on it and is really ugly, but I don't think that's enough reason to lose our son, who for the most part is a good kid. My husband still won't budge. He says he can wear whatever he wants when he's supporting himself, but until then, he'll listen to us. I want my son to come home and for us to be a family again. But my husband won't make the first move (we know where he's staying) and I don't think my son's pride will let him come home until his dad apologizes. I don't know what to do.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

Turn Between Them.

Safety tips to serve holiday food

The Meat and Poultry Hotline is a USDA service to consumers. They get hundreds of thousands of questions every year. Here are some good holiday questions to keep you and loved ones safe.

Whether you have party plans for fifty of two, the food safety tips are the same. Consider what you know about kitchen cleanliness, sanitation, and thorough cooking rules to keep food safe any time you prepare for a crowd at home or away from home.

Want some information on how to handle party preparation? These answers to questions consumers are asking USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline (800-635-4555) can help you safely prepare food so that everyone enjoys the festivities. Common questions and answers.

Q. I'm planning a large dinner party and I like to cook ahead. Last night, trying to save time, I cooked three large briskets in the same big roasting pot. I refrigerated the cooked meat in the roasting pan while still quite hot. This morning the meat was still warm. I'm concerned about the safety but I've got $90 worth of meat in there!

A. Unfortunately, your meat may not be safe. It has taken much too long to cool. In that time, and in that warm, moist atmosphere, bacteria have had a good opportunity to grow and multiply. Further cooking now could not guarantee the destruction of toxins that may have formed.

CONSUMER FOCUS

For the future, when cooking ahead, it's best to divide hot, cooked foods into small, shallow containers to promote fast cooling in the refrigerator. Don't worry about putting warm foods, in smaller packages, directly into the refrigerator. It's not safe to counter-cool them first.

Q. I bought a cooked, stuffed whole turkey from the local gourmet deli and picked it up at 1 p.m. for a dinner at 6 p.m. The butcher told me to leave the foil-covered container on the counter and reheat it in the oven the last hour before serving. What do you think of these suggestions?

A. It is best to bring home a hot, deli stuffed-and-cooked turkey and serve it immediately. We would not recommend buying a fully cooked stuffed turkey, reheating later at home. Next time plan to pick up the pre-cooked turkey right before serving.

Q. How can I stay ahead of the guests by keeping the food looking and tasting good for several hours during a holiday buffet?

A. Plan to prepare a number of smaller platters and dishes ahead of time. The back up plates should be either refrigerated or kept in the oven prior to serving. Hot food should be served from chafing dishes or warming trays registering 140 degrees F. Check your chafing dish, because often the warmer only holds food at 110 or 120 degrees — a good growth temperature for some bacteria. For cold foods, rest the serving dish on a bed of crushed ice, and remove when two hours have elapsed or when the platters are empty. Replace with fresh, full trays. It is unsafe to add new food to a serving dish that has already been out at room temperature over two hours.

Q. My husband is planning to smoke a large turkey to serve at our annual open-house. But he's never used a smoker. Any tips?

A. Your best bet is to follow the instructions that come with your smoker. But beyond that, yes we do have some tips.

To begin, purchase high quality charcoal and wood chips to ensure the fire is maintained throughout the long cooking time. Dry chips produce a fast smoke, so start with chips dry. Then add wet chips for slow, sustained cooking toward the end of the smoking process. A full pan of water must be in the smoker at all times for proper humidity.

For safety, it's most important to use two thermometers. One should be a meat thermometer to determine the doneness of the meat. The other should be used to test the temperature of the smoker itself. Slip an oven thermometer through a cork and place it on the rack. The smoker temperature should be at least 180 degrees F. at the thickest part. Remember, too, that the outside weather conditions can greatly affect cooking times. If it is very cold and windy, it may take an additional several hours before the food is finished cooking. Check to make certain that the fire has not gone out.

Q. I'm taking 100 pieces of marinated chicken to my church for a holiday dinner. I'm thinking about transporting them in one of those large plastic trash bags. Is that a good idea?

A. First, consider that the bag will not provide the insulation required to maintain a safe temperature during the transportation of your foods should that take over two hours.

Then check the package containing the trash bags. Very often there will be a statement indicating if the bag is approved for use with food. If there is no such statement, assume that the product is not approved, and do not use it to store or transport food items.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, I married a man who had been married before. (This is my first marriage.) Recently, "Rita," his 26-year-old daughter, was married. At the rehearsal dinner, my mother-in-law asked my husband (her son) what time he would be at Rita's house the next morning.

This was the first I had heard about it, so I asked my husband what his mother was talking about. He explained that Rita wanted him to be at her house the morning of the wedding to have some pictures taken and ride to the church with her since he was giving her away.

The next morning, my husband drove over to Rita's house, and I was left to go to the church alone.

When I saw the proofs of the wedding pictures, I knew why I had not been invited to Rita's house the morning of the wedding — his first wife (the bride's mother) was there, and she and my husband were in all the pictures together.

Am I wrong to be upset about this?

DISAPPOINTED IN MY HUSBAND

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You have good reason to be disappointed in your husband. It appears that his daughter was trying to re-create the "family" she once knew — and you were not a part of it. Your husband should have reminded his daughter that he was no longer married to her mother and refused to exclude you. But if I were you, I wouldn't allow this to affect your future relations with your stepdaughter.

ADVICE

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and I want to get a tattoo. My mother is against it. I would pay for it myself, and I wouldn't get anything gross or outrageous. I'd like a flower, or maybe a little butterfly, on my ankle.

I know a licensed tattoo artist uptown. He uses sterilized needles, so there would be no risk involved. Mother says she is against my getting tattooed because we are Jewish and it's against our religion. She says if I am tattooed, I can't be buried in a Jewish cemetery. Is that true?

WANTS A TATTOO IN NEW YORK

DEAR WANTS: I consulted Rabbi Joshua Berkowitz, an orthodox rabbi at Temple Beth Jacob in Los Angeles, who told me the only sin that would prevent a Jew from being buried in a Jewish cemetery is the sin of apostasy — renouncing one's Jewish faith. However, he also said, "Tattooing is forbidden by Jewish law because it involves piercing one's skin for non-medical reasons."

THE MEMORIES LAST FOREVER.

There will be a $2 ticket donation. This Broadway style musical tells the story of Bill, a man who is too busy for Christmas, and his encounter with a mysterious stranger named Bartholomew who reveals the spirit of Christmas in an adventuresome travel through past Christmas celebrations. Audiences will experience music and drama that captures the wonder of Christmas. Produced by Paul Valo, directed by Lydia Sells.

For more information call the church office at 425-5766.

Organ recital announced

LAKE MARY — Markham Woods Presbyterian Church, 8310 Markham Woods Rd., will host an organ recital for the dedication of the pipe organ to its three-manual organ. The dedication will take place on Sunday, November 5 at 3 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call the church office at 333-3030.

Softball league forming

SANFORD — Westview Baptist Church, 4100 Paola Rd. (48A), is forming a Thursday night recreational outreach softball league. Games will be played in Lake Mary.

The season will begin January 11, 1996. Registration deadline is December 18, 1995.

For more information call Dennis Littleton at 323-0523.

Stallworth shares singing expertise

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

SANFORD — Singing hymns effectively is the topic of the Sanford / Central Florida Musicians' Guild sharing meeting at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Historic St. James AME Church, corner of Cypress Avenue and Ninth Street.

Sylvia Stallworth, minister of music at Historic St. James AME Church, will discuss how the ministry of hymns are used to bring peace and comfort.

"Hymns are a vital part of the service," said Stallworth. "We should make a place in our service. A lot of people say they (the hymns) are boring, but they can be sung without being boring by adding decant or modulating a half or whole step."

The breakfast meeting in the church's fellowship hall is open to the public. This is a regular sharing meeting conducted by the guild to allow area musicians to impart their knowledge with others.

For more information, contact program chairman Elaine Turner at 323-1547.

Ask the preacher Bible questions

Question: This year has been filled with hurricanes and other natural disasters, not to mention the man-made atrocities. Where can a person go to feel safe?

Answer: I suggest that we open the Bible and read Psalms 23. If you long for a place trouble cannot hurt you, the answer is there. The picture becomes clearer when we realize that the psalmist did not say, "I will meet no evil." He said, "I will fear no evil."

No one is completely shielded from the negative forces of life, but they should not become a source of anxiety and fear. If we possess faith in the Lord, His presence will keep us from the grip of fear. But troubles are a part of living.

Some troubles are quite manageable. A positive outlook and a few appropriate actions enable us to get past their power to trouble us. Other problems turn out to be assets.

By confronting them with faith and resourcefulness rather than doubt and resentment, we are strengthened. No one likes trouble. We complain about it. We try to avoid it. Yet, many lessons of life would be missed if not for problems.

Finally, there are the problems that we cannot understand. Facing these challenges bring us to a new revelation about ourselves. We are not in control. We cannot conquer this world on our own. We are forced to turn to God for help and solace.

In Psalms 23 David speaks of walking "through the valley of the shadow of death" and being in "the presence of my enemies." How, in view of these problems, can he express comfort and hope?

The answer is found in the first and the last verses. In the first verse the psalm affirms, "The Lord is my shepherd." The last verse shouts, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

When one is assured of the Lord's presence and guidance in this life...and then an eternal home with him...it really makes little difference what troubles come - he is where trouble cannot hurt him.

Tony Black is the minister for the Sanford Church of Christ. He will answer any Bible related questions by writing to him at 200 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32778.

Garrett to perform

File Photo

Luke Garrett will be in concert at First Baptist Church, 519 Park Ave., Sunday at 7 p.m. Garrett is considered by many to possess exceptional talent with a rich, heart-warming voice and a contagious excitement for his ministry.

There will be no charge for admission. A love offering will be taken.

For more information call the church office at 323-6041.

Fall festival set

LAKE MARY — Church of the Nativity, 2351 North Country Club Road 427, will hold its 12th annual Fall Fun Festival on November 3 from 6 to 10 p.m., 4 from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. and 5 from noon to 6 p.m.

The event will feature carnival games, rides, arts, crafts, a silent auction, plant sale, continuous ethnic foods, live entertainment and a $1500 grand prize raffle.

For more information call the church office at 323-3961.

Applications still accepted

SANFORD — The First Baptist Learning Center, 519 S. Park Ave., is still accepting applications for enrollment in its preschool and daycare programs.

For further information call 324-4115.

Parenting with love, consistency

Being a parent holds its share of joys and sorrows. Just when you think you have mastered the art of parenting a set back comes into play.

Days on end will be filled with laughter and kisses, then the little rug rats bring in the dirt from the world. Positive dispositions become filled with sour faces and negative attitudes.

Sweet spirits are replaced by stomping and yelling. I like a poem by Dr. J. Kurianaky that says, "Remember, when your child has a tantrum, don't have one of your own."

How many occasions have I met my child's resistance with sin of my own? It's hard to keep that in mind when they rebel. I need to handle my own emotions in an appropriate manner.

I Corinthians 9:25a says, "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things." Mastering anything is an ongoing process. Overcoming the evil effects of the devil can keep us all on our toes.

In humor I'd like to conclude with a poem by Dorothy Parker. "The best way to keep children home is to make home a pleasant atmosphere - and to let the air out of the tires."

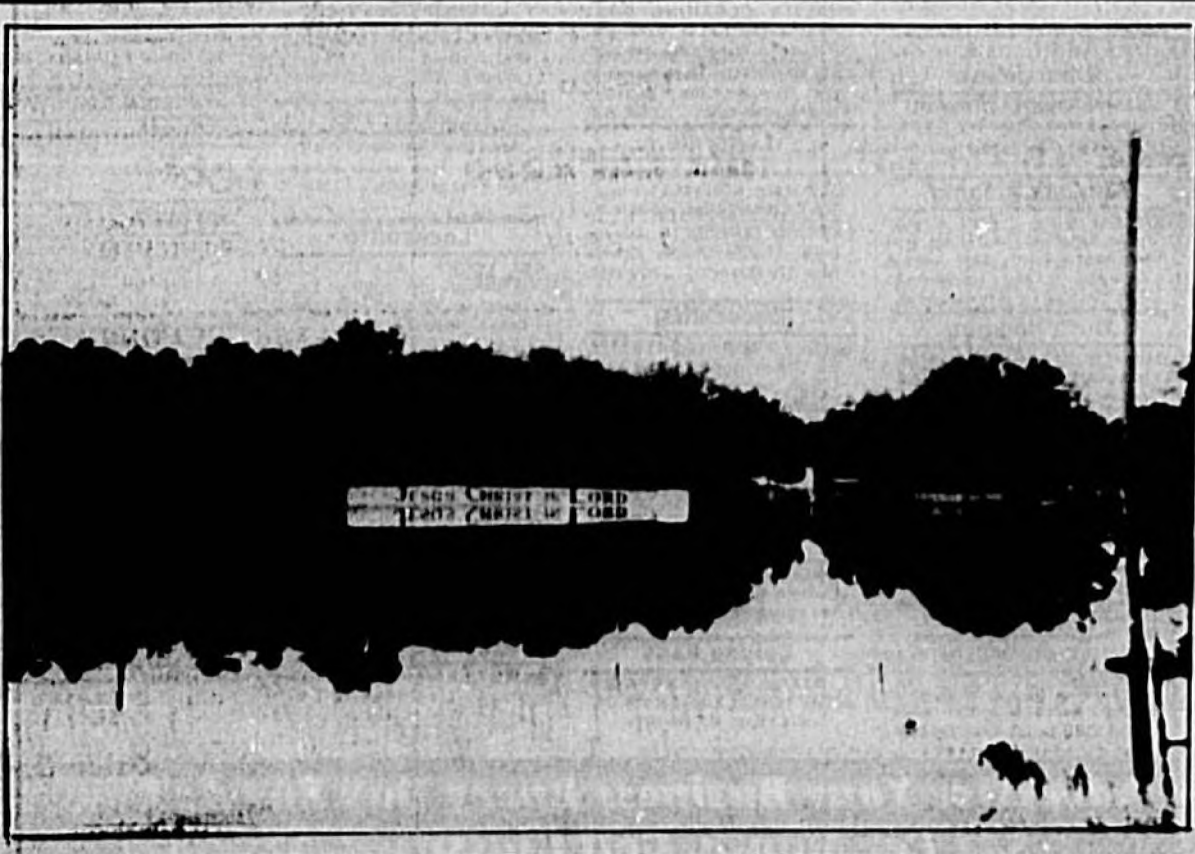

CHURCH OF CHRIST

GOSPEL MEETING

ALL ARE Welcome!

Double message presented

Heavy area rain last month produced this double message of hope. Seen from I-4 near the Longwood rest area, members of Wekiva Assembly had this sign posted by their softball field.

The church resides on a hill so the building was unaffected by the downpour. Children will resume softball activities when the waters fall and the land dries.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Kibitzers ask experts questions like "How did you know that East had the spade jack?"

This subject has been covered in many bridge books. Another has been added to the list: "Card-Playing for You" by Andrew Kambites...

There are 40 pages of practical advice followed by 47 (why 47?) declarer-play quiz questions on which to test yourself.

This deal comes from the quiz section of the book, where the author never gives the East-West hands. How should South plan the play in four hearts?

North's two-diamond cue-bid shows a good hand with, usually, at least 12 high-card points. After ruffing the third round of diamonds, declarer has only one chance to avoid two trump losers...

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 169...
