Russia Finishes Greatest Cattle Drive in History

A Million Head Moved From Interior West, Stripped By Foe

MOSCOW, Jan. 19 (Special)—The greatest cattle drive in history is over. It lasted six months and moved 1,000,000 head of dairy cattle, sheep and goats from the interior of the Soviet Union to liberated areas in the west. Planned with the precise detail of a military operation, this vast overland movement was carried out like clockwork by 25,000 specially trained herdsmen. Beside it, the famous movement of reindeer herds across northern Canada a few years ago seems insignificant.

The Russian plan was instituted by the government Dec. 15, 1943. It called for the gradual move the animals by train, but the job would have had to be done by a whole railway system for a month.

25,000 Herdsmen Used

So, in mid-October, preparations for an overland movement were made. Scouts started mapping routes through forest, fields and along highways. They picked river crossings and looked for watering spots. By the twenty-three routes were decided upon, totaling some 25,000 miles, leading from the east and northeast to the west and southwest. More than 250 camps were established.

Meanwhile 25,000 herders were obtained to accompany the herds, most of them women and children but with a number of war-injured soldiers included. Short-term courses were set up for 4,000 herdsmen, and 2,000 men with previous experience in driving cattle long distances were given special instruction. Seven hundred veterinarians were obtained to look after the animals en route, and 200,000 head of sheep were added to the cattle herds.

Most of the cattle and sheep started to move in the first week of November. At that time, the headmaster of the movement, who gave the exact number of each group of animals, was accompanied at river crossings by a camp and herdsmen, and at key points along the way. If a herd failed to reach a supply depot or a collection center, it was sent back to the starting point.

The animals were packed in night herds of 100 to 200 and families were kept on the truck. Some herds, for instance, one chief herdsmen covered about 1,500 miles, about bringing 600 sheep from Eurasia to the Byansk region. The sheep gained an average of more than a pound in weight.

Now the movement is completed. Livestock farms in the liberated areas have been restocked after the German depredations.

Dorazzo, Albania, flourished 2,500 years ago as Epidamnus of the Greeks, and was renamed Dyrrachium when it passed into the hands of the Romans.

Paris Is Snowy, Cold, Foodless, And Miserable

No Fuel, Potatoes or Milk, and 13° Below; Government Is Hit

PARIS, Jan. 19. (Special)—Parisians awoke this morning to face one of their hardest days since the war started in 1939. The city was covered with snow; the temperature was 13 degrees below freezing; the city could expect no electric power all day and no cooking gas after 8:30 P. M.; there was no coal, no firewood and almost no food on the market.

Shortage of coal has tied up almost all transportation. Potatoes have disappeared. No milk is reaching Paris. There has been no distribution of fats this month. The scarcity of flour has again produced a 20% shortage of the bakeries.

It is a common comment here today that this is like the winter of 1940-41, when the cold was bitter and the only food for three weeks was rutabagas and beets usually fed to hogs. There is intense criticism of the government, which is blamed with not having foreseen the cold or the food shortage, and with not having taken measures against both.

As a matter of fact, the government did see trouble coming. More than once General Charles de Gaulle said that even harder times were in store and that no improvement could be expected before spring. He and his ministers tried to get shipping from the Allies, but war needs came before France's civilian requirements. Now the cold has arrived, and with it public grumbling.

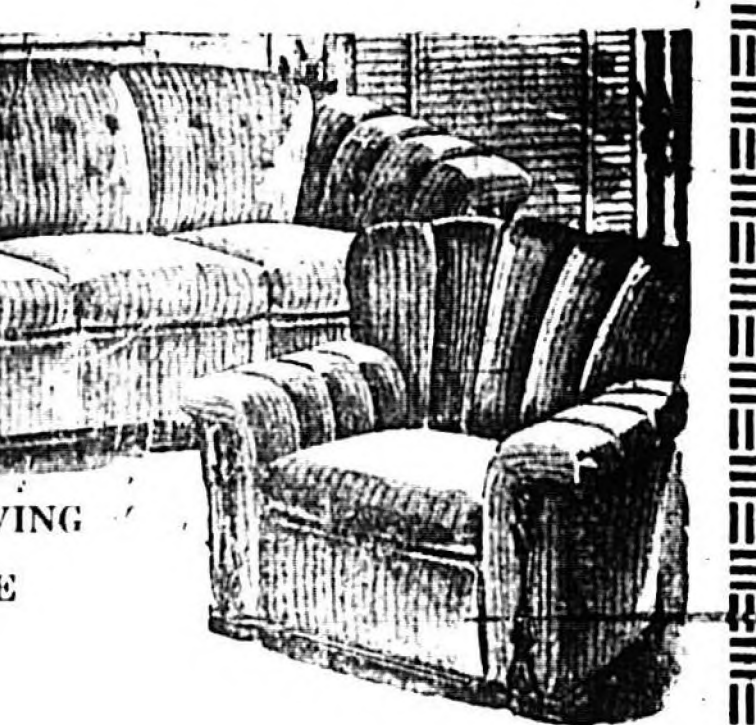

He has blocked the canals along which coal is usually shipped to Paris, as well as the streams of the Auvergne which normally generate power for the city. As a result, the city now goes without electric light until 5 P. M. and even factories cannot work in the daytime.

The coal shortage has forced the government to stop all passenger traffic except in Paris. There is a heavy load of Parisians going to Brittany or other rich provinces in search of food. The number of trucks which can bring food into the city has also been curtailed by shortage of spare parts and tires.

Even milk for children is now impossible to find. A few days ago a butter could be bought fairly easily on the black market for $0.50 pound. Today it has disappeared.

Paul Emmanuel, Minister of Food, is trying desperately to supply the city with meat and vegetables. But potatoes have vanished from the market since restrictions were lifted from their sale. During the fall, vegetables were plentiful—leeks, carrots, cabbage, radishes, lettuce. They are not to be found now.

Nazi Armored Column Is Hit By U. S. Planes

Tarlar Is Captured In Luzon Fighting; Formosa Is Blasted By Carrier Planes

Alfred planes today caught 3,000 German vehicles in an attempted sneakaway from the Ardennes salient on the western front and tore them to pieces in a ruinous day-long attack, threatening ruin to at least one Nazi reserve army.

The Germans are falling back into the Siegfried line from Belgium. Luxembourg is under American attacks that gained nearly five miles at some points. The Third Army fought into Wittlich, the German southern anchor. The British to north dug in deeper toward the Roer River, five miles away, after broadening the front to 12 miles.

In Alsace the American Seventh Army had a threat to Strasbourg but the snows hampered the French push farther south. The American First army fought in the snows, mired in mud and resistance in a slow close in on St. Vith.

In the Pacific about 600 American carrier planes struck Okinawa Island in the Ryukyu chain south of Japan for the second straight day. Tokyo reported, as U. S. armor rolled through the smoldering ruins of Tarlar on Luzon to within 60 miles of Manila. Allied amphibious forces captured Formosa.

Prison Director Advocates Habits Of Simplicity At Mayfair Meet

Chapman Reveals War Has Brought Reduction In Prisoners

Suggesting that if you have found someone who is healthy in the wrong direction you should try to lead him back to nature and the simple things of life, E. Chapman, superintendent of the State Prison Farm at Raiford, Fla., today spoke at a luncheon on the subject of "A World of Volcanoes."

Congratulating Seminole County as one distinguished by its small number of men it sends to the State Prison in proportion to population, Mr. Chapman said that the war has served to demonstrate the soundness of an old theory that crime is due largely to unemployment and poverty. Since the war began and these two factors have been eliminated except for small pockets, he added that the number of inmates at the prison has been reduced from 2,200 to 1,200.

Blazing his talk on the little volcano in a Mexican cornfield uncovered by a peon plowing his fields some two years ago, Mr. Chapman said that today this volcano is still spouting lava at the rate of 200 tons an hour and is affording the first opportunity in the history of the world for scientists to study volcanic action from its origin.

"There are thousands of these volcanoes which throughout time have contributed to the evolution of the world's surface," he continued, adding that human history has been made in much the same manner by similar volcanic explosions, some of which he listed as the birth of Christ, the reformation launched by Martin Luther, the American Revolution, the Civil War, Women's Suffrage, and the Eighteenth Amendment. The history of the world, he said, is what it is because of such explosions in human affairs as these.

And similarly, he continued, the life of an individual may be affected by a volcanic explosion in his own life. Sudden port up emotions may cause him to do things for which he is not entirely responsible, he explained, adding that one should not be penalized forever because of some such explosion in his individual life.

As an anti-dote to crime, he suggested that one should remain close to nature, one should cultivate habits of simplicity and should never conclude that the goal has been reached. Though things may go wrong for the time being, one should remember that there is always a tomorrow always something, a future, which is worth living for.

Mr. Chapman was introduced by George A. Speer who had charge of the program. Visitors included Charles Goodman of Orlando, William Holler of DeLand, Edward Higgins Jr. and Andrew Stine of Sanford.

THE LORD'S PRAYER IS A PERFECT PATTERN, IT COVERS ALL HUMAN NEEDS AND HOPES, BUT PRAY WITH COMPLETE SINCERITY...

Foundation

(From Contemporary Poetry) Beneath the flow of words Light as lifted hair...

There moves the bone of thought, Socketed and clear, On its fine-tooled joint...

Delight who will the smooth Artifice of tongue, The silver-bowed, core On which the flesh is hung...

Is sweeter to the eye That sees the naked skull Luminous beneath, And knows it beautiful.

FRANCES MINTURN HOWARD

The only difference is, it is Vice President Harry Truman now.

Draft of Farm Men under 26 hits dairies—headline. The mind of old will come again into her own.

Real Estate advertising sees these days in some Florida newspapers is strangely reminiscent of the boom. Most people agree that real estate is coming back...

Sanford boys are beginning to get the bit of the world and it is noticeable how little they like to talk about their experiences.

According to a Cocon man, we aren't important after all when five years from now the headlines will all be new names.

Cocoa Tribune—Remember, a few years ago when not one percent of the people had ever heard of Eisenhower, Bradley, Nimitz, Montgomery or even MacArthur.

Geographical Names

One of the many woes inflicted by this world war is what might be called "pronunciation trouble"...

The leading news broadcasters are helpful in this matter. But it is surprising how many names of countries, cities, rivers, mountains, and so on, are pronounced queerly...

It is impossible and unnecessary to get such uniform pronunciation. Every nation naturally develops its own way of pronouncing geographical names...

Enemies In Politics

"The secret of success in politics is to have respect for your own abilities, and to have no enemies, even in the opposing party."

As Congressman Gallagher won, he probably knows what he is talking about. Yet this doctrine, like most others can be pushed too far.

In the 1916 presidential campaign Woodrow Wilson sent this defiance to Jeremiah O'Leary, an anti-British agitator who had threatened him with defeat unless he was easier on Germany...

Congressman Gallagher does not tell the whole story. Every one, even in politics, should have some enemies of the right sort.

Paper Jam

A perennial of this war, the waste paper problem, is with us again, and more of a problem than ever...

He says it's the fault of the weather. Remember the snow? Along with milk and coal shortages, and a positive epidemic of that painful complaint known as "snow shovel back"...

Northern paper salvage chairman are urging every one to have patience and hold their paper, soon school and other salvage organizations up there will be able to get going again.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor, Sanford Herald, Sanford, Florida Dear Sir:

Your editorial and quote, relative to the cancellation of food ration stamps on December 29th, was read with interest. It occurs to me that the writer of the letter quoted is in error...

The armed forces will need greater quantities of many items—canned food, meat and sugar, oil, gasoline and tires, rubber boots and shoes, virtually everything that is rationed.

Civilian supplies of processed foods from the 1944-45 pack will be the lowest in four years. While total production reached a record high, civilians will receive only 2/3 as much commercially packed goods as in 1941.

Home-front meat consumption will be less in 1945. During 1944, consumption was high because of record production in spite of a large share for the military. The country is now faced with possible shortages unless distribution and consumption are controlled...

Passenger tires. The new papers have just published news of WPB's cut in passenger tires for the first quarter of 1945...

Truck tires. Although scarcity of truck tires has been a serious problem for months, even fewer will be available in the future.

Stoves. The stove situation is tougher now than ever before and tougher than everyone thought.

Gasoline. Gasoline available for rationing during the first three months of 1945 will be slightly less than the amount rationed in the last three months of 1944.

Shoes. The reduced rate of shoe production probably means fewer rationed shoes for civilians in 1945.

Leather. The small supply of shoes that will be available, that will be available.

Mr. Kipp Describes General Lee's Life

Earl Kipp, principal of the Junior High School and Sanford Grammar Schools, spoke to the pupils of the Seminole High School at their regular convention on Thursday morning paying tribute to the memory of Robert E. Lee by stating that this great Southern general with a small army, few supplies, a host of problems, but with the joy and will of the South behind him, rose to an honored place in the hearts of every American.

During Lee's brilliant military career, Kipp called attention to his great victory at West Point in 1822, which was a "splendid" effort of Lee's genius as chief of the army for the Mexican campaign. At the end of this campaign he was commissioned a colonel and sent back to West Point as superintendent. In 1847, he became colonel of the regiment and upon Lee's withdrawal from the Union resigned this commission and later accepted a commission in the South.

He defeated the Federal army of McClellan in 1862, and with the aid of Stonewall Jackson defeated General Burnside at Fredericksburg. He then defeated the Federal army at Chancellorsville. Lee was a great tactician, but his military genius was not enough to overcome the superior numbers of the Federal army. He was a great leader, but his military genius was not enough to overcome the superior numbers of the Federal army.

Mrs. Watson Speaks On Subject Of Birds

Speaking of the material value of birds and the spiritual good derived from them, Mrs. W. E. Watson addressed the Rose Circle of the Garden Club Friday.

Stating that the subject, "Birds," is a voluminous and popular one, Mrs. Watson declared, "Exhaustive information is available of those wishing to encourage and protect bird life, to learn of their value, their beauty, song and companionship. They make a large contribution to the solace and peace of our gardens they add much to the charm of your community which in itself is a natural Bird Sanctuary. You cannot have a garden without having bird visitors, and the traveler who comes within our gates appreciates these little feathered people quite as much as they do any other feature our state has to offer."

Mrs. Watson went on to state that it is the value of birds in our life that she is speaking of. The material side always wins—but eventually awakes something within—that is sweet and becomes spiritual. It has been proved that the average bird consumes several hundred insects a day—four to five hundred and up into thousands counting the worms and eggs and other disagreeable things.

"Every child should know of the importance to sea gulls at Salt Lake City, a memorial to birds that saved the first crop of the early Mormons when a gas-choking plague threatened some of the settlement. Our government has established research laboratories to study and report the amount of weed seeds, insects and the like that the individual species of birds consume, this to educate us to the role that birds play in man's life."

There is an adage, "Up with the birds," and to those of us who have met them in the open and caught the first flash of color and the gayest burst of song—that never seems so lovely at any other time of the day—can remember that the personal observations prove the fact that the joy and pleasure are so closely related as cannot separate them.

Postwar rayons will appear in new guises, too, such as floor coverings, upholstery, linings and industrial fabrics where sturdy fabrics are needed.

Even during the war, rayon has been the astonishing range of textures, which can be achieved by the use of rayon yarns. Fabrics, ranging from handsome tweeds, worsteds, gabardines and flannels to linen-like weaves, sheer voiles, chiffons and velvets.

"Airhead" Seized By Airborne Men
is Essential Part of Operations

By HERMAN K. ALLEN
 STOUT FIELD, Indianapolis, Ind.—More and more Army men are using a new word—"airhead." An airhead is a patch of ground seized by airborne forces—parachutists and glider troops. It compares to a beachhead or bridgehead seized by ground troops.

The reason Army men are using the word more and more is this: Top war planners are no longer thinking in terms of airborne divisions or battalions or detachments, but in terms of airborne armies.

One good tip-off is the fact that the Army now has its own airborne laundry units, ice cream plants, shower units, many other things needed by troops staying a long time in the field.

Up until now, with the exception of the Normandy and Holland jobs, airborne operations were limited to the capture of a few key points, such as the capture of the bridges over the Rhine in 1944. Now the planners are beginning to think about something they call "development." Standard ground troops—infantry, artillery, etc.—would be flown in after the specially trained airborne troops have secured the airhead. The standard ground troops would expand the airhead, make it a battlefield in its own right. The operations and glider troops would be flown out to get ready for another job.

Army's Two Airborne Arms
 At present two branches of the Army have the leading roles in airborne warfare: 1. AIRBORNE FORCES—Airborne soldiers are not members of the Air Corps. They are specially trained ground soldiers—engineers, signal men, medical men as well as fighting men.

2. TROOP CARRIER COMMAND (TCC) This outfit, frequently confused with the air transport Command (ATC), flies the parachutists and glider troops to the selected airhead. Later it flies in supplies and heavy equipment and evacuates the wounded.

Principal difference between TCC and ATC is that ATC does not usually enter combat zones. ATC does valiant service flying freight and passengers to the zone, but TCC takes over from there. Also TCC brings wounded out of combat zones and ATC flies them on to hospitals. ATC, however, is flying the "lump" in the China theater as well as TCC.

If the present thinking is carried forward, standard ground troops will have to be added to this list. When carried by air, such troops are called "air-landed" troops. They already have been used, most notably in the Burma operation under Winant, but not to any great extent.

One top Washington airborne planner told me before I started out on this tour of TCC and Airborne bases:

"There's no reason why you can't march troops into an air-landed area and tell them to sit down as easily as you tell them to sit down in a truck."

Brig. Gen. William D. Old, TCC commanding general, told me at his headquarters: "We feel that the only thing limiting airborne operations now is our carrying capacity."

Aerial Boxcars
 Already almost everything that can be carried by truck can be carried by plane, if necessary in several pieces. So windows are the things being done nowadays, there is no doubt that soon the Army will be able to carry everything but the very largest tanks

Courses in Aviation
Begin At Stetson

DELAND, Jan. (Special)—John B. Stetson University authorities, Deland, announced today the initiation of ground school courses in aviation which will follow a special arrangement with the Orange State Flying Service, Orange City, Fla. make it possible for Stetson students as well as other interested persons in Florida to obtain the necessary training and experience to qualify for pilots' licenses under the regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Ground school studies, including navigation, theory of flight, Civil Air regulations, meteorology, and airplane and engine maintenance, have been included in the university's curriculum for the Winter Quarter and will be presented in connection with actual flying instruction in Taylorcraft trainers under the direction of the Orange State Flying Service, of which Major General Coleman of Miami is the head.

At today's interview, Coleman stated that government aviation schools placed on civilian flying at the time of Pearl Harbor have never been substantially revised and it is again possible for civilians to receive flight instructions without crippling limitations. Formerly a flight supervisor for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Coleman began his flying career at Miami, Fla., where he sold in 1928 in connection with the government defense measures, he was an instructor in the Civil Pilot Training Program and for many months flight instructor at the Army Primary school, Douglas, Georgia. With previous flight experience in the CAA in 1943, Coleman supervised training programs for both the Army and the Navy in many parts of the South.

All ground school work will be under the supervision of Dr. R. J. Allen, head of Stetson University's department of physics. Dr. Allen, holding the primary CAA license for ground school instructor, was formerly in charge of Stetson's Civil Pilot Training Program giving ground school instruction to cover the student "in a course which failed to pass the CAA examinations," states Dr. W.S. Allen, president of Stetson.

The ground school will begin immediately, according to official state, but registration will not be closed for several weeks. An aviation license is issued to all interested persons, in addition to students regularly enrolled in the university," said Dr. Allen. "Stetson students will be required to have written permission from their parents or guardians before they are regularly enrolled in the CAA license for ground school," he advised, "but this regulation is established by the university itself and does not apply to those ground school students not attending the university."

and guns by an airplane. Perhaps the key to the problem will be the mammoth new C-47 glider.

Further airborne operations in Europe will not be surprising and you can look for a wide use of them in the Pacific. They are highly effective in connection with amphibious landings, cutting off supplies from the enemy's coast defenses.

Wide military applications have been found for the all-glass, scaled beam headlight developed before the war and almost universally used on American automobiles.

Service Bill Is Helped By War Reports

Resignation of Madame Perkins As Secretary Of Labor Rejected By President

LONDON, Jan. 24. (AP)—The battle of the sexes developed in the House of Commons today over the question of sending the British equivalent of the WACS overseas, with the men mostly in favor and the women for sending them abroad. The main issue hinged on the temptation the girls would face.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP)—The heads of the armed forces made a secret war report to Congress today and backers promptly claimed a big boost for National Service legislation. The meeting, an annual event started last year, was attended by most of the members who heard talks by General George Marshall, Admiral Ernest King, War Secretary Stimson, and Navy Secretary Forrestal. Representative Wadsworth, New York, said the talks dealt primarily with the progress of the war, stressing the need for an all-out effort.

The resignation of Frances Perkins has been turned down by President Roosevelt and she will continue as Secretary of Labor. It was learned authoritatively that she had intended her resignation, submitted as a formality, to "stick" and had been preparing to leave after the inauguration.

The President rejected her resignation orally last Saturday and followed through with a letter. Meanwhile from the Pacific it was reported that Superforts joined today in a softening up of two Jima island fortresses 750 miles south of Tokyo.

A potential American invasion objective, enemy radios intimated that carrier raids on Forouma have gone into the third successive day.

Pfc. McIntyre Repairs Captured Equipment

Repairing captured German equipment is one of the specialties of Pfc. Charles H. McIntyre, a member of the 29th Central Postal Directory, U. S. Army, at the Atlantic Food Supply Company of Orlando, according to a recent article in the Jersey Shore (Pa.) Herald.

Prior to entering the Army at Camp Blanding four years ago, Pfc. McIntyre was a member of the National Guards unit in Sanford for three years.

The article refers to a unit of the Seventh Army, a cannon company. "In battle outside an Alsatian town, the unit set up alongside a cur mill, Sgt. Anthony Augustine of Minneapolis, Minn. and Pfc. Charles H. McIntyre of Jersey Shore, Pa., the company's spare time mechanics went to work again. They repaired the mill's electric generator and plugged in two German radios captured on the road to Germany. As a result, each battery fired to the tunes of Tommy Dorsey and other orchestras."

Once again the cannons were located near a sawmill where the broken-down machinery was an immediate challenge to a group that included Pfc. McIntyre.

Trucks United To Move Fruit In Rail Jam

ODT Orders All Rail Shipments Of Fruit And Vegetables Deferred Till Sunday

Many efforts are being made by vegetable and fruit shipping organizations here to mobilize trucks to move, at least partially, Seminole County's large supplies of vegetable and citrus fruits, rail shipments of which into freight congested northern areas were blocked at 11:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by action of the Office of Defense Transportation due to rail traffic jam caused by blizzards.

During a seven day period ending Tuesday, food shipments by rail from Seminole County were estimated to have been 500 cars or about 50 percent each of citrus fruits and vegetables. Citrus shipped from the Sanford district by rail amounted to 50 cars, in this period, according to estimates by J. E. Wathen, secretary of American Fruit Groves, Inc. and of the Seminole County Farm Bureau.

Total shipments by rail from the Sanford area during the seven day period were estimated to have been 150 cars of which 100 were vegetables and 45 citrus.

Robert H. Early, sales manager of Chase and Company, declared that the embargo of rail shipments only applied to citrus north of the Titusville-Viera road, and that this embargo did not affect shipments to the south past or west of the Mississippi River. The embargo, he added, will be in effect until midnight today.

Most of the concentrated market for citrus is in the northern areas affected by the embargo, and demand is high for the smaller quantities of citrus which are plentiful in this area. Shippers declined to estimate the price effect of the embargo on points of vegetable, but stated that it was likely to cause a higher rate of shipment than usual.

R. D. Keene, of Orlando, president of the Florida Growers and Shippers League, has been quoted as saying that the embargo would prove beneficial to growers. He added that this would benefit Florida growers by preventing the citrus industry from sending its produce to other areas where it would reach the market in a condition that cannot be shipped.

The ODT order does not affect truck shipments and Motor Vehicle Division of the State Farm Bureau Market predicts that truck shipments of fruit and vegetables from the market would be very heavy during the week as the result of the embargo. Trucks haul up will probably be delayed.
