Chicken patties recalled

WASHINGTON — A Detroit-based firm is recalling 17,000 packages of chicken breast patties because some packages may contain small pieces of glass, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The 12-ounce packages of "1st Star Brand Chicken Grill'ems, Chicken Breast Patties" are made by Wolverine Packing Co. and sold only in Save-A-Lot stores.

The products were distributed to stores in Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

The packages in question are stamped with the code "3042" near the ingredients label. "P-2574B" appears inside the inspection seal on the label.

The company began recalling the patties after three consumers complained about finding glass. The packages should be returned to the store where purchased.

Man committed then forgotten

WEST PALM BEACH — A psychotic man with a slew of aliases, birthdays and criminal charges committed to a mental hospital and forgotten for 10½ years, was located in a state mental hospital.

"We found him," Assistant State Attorney Ellen Roberts told a judge Thursday. "He didn't die but we need to figure out what happened to him."

John Doe was committed to a state mental hospital in 1982. A judge decided he was mentally unfit to face charges that he threatened a Boca Raton police officer with a bottle.

Ten-and-half years later, no one knows what happened to Doe or why his case is unresolved. A clerk discovered the faded file in January 1991, and the case landed in the chamber of Circuit Judge Stephen Rapp, who ordered attorneys to find Doe.

Protecting drinkable water

Task force gets crash course

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

GENEVA — More study of the Geneva Bubble may be needed before additional protections can be considered, a scientist with the St. Johns River Water Management District recommended to members of the Geneva Bubble task force Thursday.

But several task force members disagreed and one member said the bubble may not need further protections.

Members of the Geneva Freshwater Lens Task Force, appointed by the governor and county commissioners, met Thursday for a crash course on the Geneva Bubble. The "bubble" is more like a lens, a very thin layer of drinkable water located in a 22-square-mile area of Geneva which is completely surrounded by undrinkable saltwater.

One scientist compared Geneva to Bermuda. See Bubble, Page 5A.

National Guard is highlight of July 4th event

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — One of the highlights of the July 4th celebration in Sanford this year will be the Florida National Guard appreciation event. It will be held in Fort Mellon Park, across E. First Street from the National Guard Armory.

Although billed as a barbecue, the prime purpose of the event is to honor the members of Company B, 124th Infantry, headquartered in Sanford, and several other national guard units within the county.

Efforts toward conducting such an observance have been underway for several months. Organizers believe the guard units need recognition for their humanitarian service during Hurricane Andrew, and their active duty service during Desert Storm.

Leading the observance will be an organization called Friends of the Guard. Member Bill Marcus explained, "As planning progressed, it seemed most fitting that this event coincide with the 4th of July. For before this country celebrated its

Dentist's trial set

TAMPA — The trial for a prominent Tampa dentist charged with bigamy and with kidnapping and shooting his wife has been set for Sept. 7.

Circuit Judge Barbara Fleischer also on Thursday denied bond for Charles A. Myers, who had pleaded innocent.

Tampa police said Myers lured his wife, Evelyn Davis-Myers, into his car, shot her three times, pushed her from the car and left her by the roadside.

Davis-Myers had filed suit for divorce the day before, alleging her husband was a bigamist. Prosecutors contend that was the motive for Myers' actions.

The defense said Myers was trying to take his own life when Davis-Myers was shot.

Identity confirmed on stabbing victim

BUSHNELL — Dental records confirmed the identity of a pregnant woman stabbed to death and dumped along a highway as a missing Mulberry woman.

Jahala Watson, 39, was seven months pregnant when she was found Thursday. The male fetus also died, according to Sumter Sheriff's deputy Bill Farmer.

The victim likely bled to death 48 to 72 hours before her body was left along a rural Sumter County road Wednesday afternoon, officials said.

Farmer said there were no suspects. Watson's car was found parked at a shopping center in Lakeland.

Her 19-year-old son, Shane Watson, said he last saw his mother Sunday morning as she slept. Her red car was parked in front of their home.

Police in search of counterfeiters

ORLANDO — Police have pictures but little else on two men who have scammed hundreds of thousands of dollars from Florida banks with bogus checks.

The counterfeiters, thought to be brothers, open savings or checking accounts under fake names by depositing $100 to $1,000. They later deposit counterfeit payroll checks from car dealers, doctors and lawyers in the accounts.

The men then withdraw huge amounts of cash from branch banks.

They have hit virtually every Orlando-area branch for well over $200,000, investigators said Wednesday. And they also have taken cash from banks in Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Tampa and West Palm Beach, they said.

The counterfeiters also used fake checks at Office Depot stores in the Delray Beach and Fort Lauderdale areas. Half of the scams have been in the Orlando area.

First Union looks to return money

FORT LAUDERDALE — First Union is looking for about 4,000 people who have apparently forgotten money in the bank — money totalling $44.2 million.

First Union on Thursday made an appeal for those customers to come forward and claim their money. The bank has already sent several mailings to customers with inactive accounts, and Thursday's announcement is simply another effort to contact customers who have not processed any transactions, said First Union spokesman Jeep Bryant.

The money, in inactive accounts throughout Florida, will revert to the government if the owners don't claim it soon.

Some customers may have thought the letters were junk mail and pitched them, Bryant said. He said seasonal residents may be missing their mail, and some customers may have died and their heirs are unaware of the account.

The affected accounts were originally established at Miami-based Flagler Federal Savings and Loan; Florida Federal Savings Bank of St. Petersburg; Daytona Beach-based Security First Federal Savings and Loan; and American Pioneer Savings Bank of Orlando.

Those institutions were all acquired in the past two years by First Union.

Helicopter crew locates marijuana

STUART — Helicopter search crews steered authorities to nine marijuana patches where 1,125 plants worth an estimated $9 million were found.

"This was a good pop," Martin County Sheriff's Lt. John Wardle said of the two-day operation.

Agents say they hope to charge at least three people in connection with the plants seized this week, but no arrests had been made by late Thursday.

The biggest haul was 889 plants discovered growing along the South Fork of the St. Lucie River.

The patch was so isolated it could be reached only by boat and included an irrigation system that pumped water from the river to the plants.

The operation involved agents in three helicopters and ground crews from the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, the National Guard, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs, Florida wildlife officers and the sheriff's office.

Ailing Homestead Base spared

By JOHN FACENTI
Associated Press Writer

HOMESTEAD — Nearly flattened by Hurricane Andrew 10 months ago, the ailing Homestead Air Force Base was a hard sell for proponents trying to save the base from the Pentagon's hit list.

But the Base Closure Commission, instead of dealing the final blow, gave Homestead a sympathetic boost by voting 7-0 Thursday to keep the base open in a smaller capacity.

"Psychologically, what it says to the people of south Dade is that you haven't been abandoned. That there's going to be a help," said U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla.

"That's the best news I've heard all day," said Bob Bumby, a Homestead builder.

The commission voted to keep air defense aircraft as well as two Air Force Reserve units in Homestead. The Clinton administration already has allocated $78 million for repairs for the base, which suffered $500 million in hurricane damage.

Psychologically, what it says to the people of south Dade is that you haven't been abandoned. That there's going to be help.

— Sen. Bob Graham

"I think there were moments over the last couple of months that we thought we could lose the whole thing," said U.S. Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla. "Clearly the decision ... is a signal of hope fulfilled."

The commissioners had "remarkable sympathy and empathy" for the residents of south Dade, said Commission Chairman Jim Courter. He called them "a strong and hardy group of people that was devastated as few communities have ever been devastated."

Judge gets boot over strange sentences and rude behavior

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — From ordering a speeding boater to spend 32 hours yelling "slow down" from a river bank to forcing a snake collector to kill his reptiles when one bit a woman, Judge Gary Graham had a penchant for the unusual.

The courtroom antics even earned him his own local-access cable TV program called "Your Citrus County Court."

But on Thursday, the Florida Supreme Court booted him off the bench, citing abuses of power, rudeness and improper criticism of other public officials.

Graham once ordered a boater who hit an endangered manatee to spend 32 hours hollering at other vessels on the Withlacoochee River to slow down. Two youths caught drinking in a cemetery were ordered to stand guard there from midnight to 8 a.m. for five weekends.

A man facing a traffic citation was once slapped with a 10-day contempt sentence for wearing a T-shirt bearing the words "Hauling Ass" and showing the posterior of some bikini-clad women. A reckless driver got 60 days off his jail sentence for destroying his pickup truck.

While Graham enjoyed broad local support in Citrus County, north of Tampa, the justices wrote "a judgeship is a position of trust, not a fiefdom," in an unsigned 6-1 opinion.

Some residents called it a miscarriage of justice.

"We think they're taking away our rights," said Patricia Cloward of Inverness. "We feel we put him in, we should be the ones to take him out."

The Supreme Court agreed with the Judicial Qualifications Commission that Graham, who was first elected in 1986 after his predecessor was removed from office, was guilty of repeated misconduct.

Graham had repeatedly claimed when the commission brought charges that he was the target of a political conspiracy triggered by his crusade to root out corruption and favoritism. The justices said Graham's motives were right, but his methods were wrong.

"We recognize that Graham is not dishonest, venal or guilty of moral turpitude," the justices wrote. "His zealous pursuit of a pure society apparently clouded his ability."

Graham, whose efforts led to the 1986 removal of Citrus County Judge Leonard Damron, said in a telephone interview that the court's backhanded compliment could help him win election as a judge again, or possibly to another office.

"If I do run for office again, I'll point out I'm the only politician who has an official endorsement of honesty from the Florida Supreme Court," he said.

State attorney launches jail abuse

By Associated Press

MIAMI — New allegations of abuse at the Dade County Jail have been uncovered by police, and the state attorney said it has launched an investigation of the facility.

The trash abuse allegations were discovered while Metro-Dade homicide detectives were investigating the June 1 death of Jose Meisidor, a mentally ill man on the psychiatric floor.

"During the investigation, we've uncovered other instances and allegations of crimes, brutalities, things like that," said Metro police legal adviser Valeria Bland Thomas. "That's what we want to submit to the state."

Corrections authorities confirmed Thursday that they are also conducting an internal investigation into the possible beating of Meisidor. They have declined to discuss their probe.

Investigators have been looking into abuse allegations at the jail since Meisidor was hosed down and dragged across the floor by jail officers, police said.

But Dade County medical examiner Joseph Davis ruled earlier this week that Meisidor died of bacterial pneumonia, not of physical abuse.

Meisidor was arrested on May 17 on minor charges after screaming obscenities in public. He remained in jail even after a court-ordered evaluation urged his transfer to Jackson Memorial Hospital's psychiatric ward. He died on his 15th day in jail.

Although homicide detectives ended their investigation Tuesday after the medical examiner's report, they stumbled on other troubling findings that will now become part of the state attorney's investigation, Thomas said.

"If something isn't a homicide, it doesn't mean there might not be other charges," Thomas said.

Theft, dealing in stolen property charged

Michael Edward Holloway, 35, 1405 W. First St., Sanford, was charged with dealing in stolen property, grand theft and with false verification of ownership by Seminole County sheriff's officers.

Officers said he stole more than $300 worth of property from Shivers Manufacturing, a business in the 1600 block of Beardall Avenue in Sanford. They said that he falsified the ownership of those items and that he pawned the items at Cash America in Sanford in March of this year.

Deputies arrested him Wednesday at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was serving time on unrelated charges.

Bond on the most recent charges was set at $2,000.

Death sentence upheld for killer of Seminole County reserve deputy

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court Thursday upheld two death sentences, including one for a man convicted of killing a Seminole County reserve deputy in 1977.

The court vacated the death sentences given to a man convicted in a 1982 double slaying, saying jurors should have heard evidence he did not actually shoot the victims.

The court also ruled that double jeopardy protections apply when a judge declares a mistrial over the competency of the defense lawyer.

The justices rejected appeals from death row inmates 31-year-old Victor Marcus Farr, convicted of killing a Lake City woman outside a bar in 1990; and 51-year-old Terry Melvin Sims, sentenced to die for the Dec. 29, 1977 slaying of Seminole County reserve deputy George Pfel.

The justices ruled 7-0 that 30-year-old Enrique Garcia was improperly sentenced to death in the Oct. 8, 1982 slayings of Willie and Martha West at their Manatee County farm store during a robbery.

Garcia's central contention was that prosecutors suppressed evidence showing he did not pull the trigger and that his own lawyers failed to submit the evidence during the penalty phase of the trial.

Prosecutors convinced the jury that Garcia made up the alias "Joe Perez" to hide his own deeds, but statements made by others indicated that an accomplice named Urbano Ribas actually used the Perez name and fired the fatal shots. Yet of the four men involved in the crime, only Garcia was sentenced to death. The others got life sentences.

The Supreme Court found that the suppressed evidence "raises real questions requiring factual resolution concerning the extent of Garcia's participation in the shootings" and vacated both death sentences. The case was sent back to circuit court for a new sentencing hearing.

The court also ruled unanimously that double jeopardy protections take effect if a judge declares a mistrial based on his or her own observations that the defense lawyer is incompetent or physically unable to proceed.

In such a case, the justices ruled a retrial could not be held unless the judge had considered every possible alternative before ending the case.

Senate approves Dems' tax bill It was close, but vice president broke tie

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — With Vice President Al Gore's tie-breaking vote, Democrats awarded President Clinton a crucial victory early today as they shoved a massive budget-cutting package carrying tax increases on the wealthy and cuts in Medicare through the Senate.

"Tonight, the Senate voted for growth over gridlock," Clinton said in a statement shortly after lawmakers — with Gore's decisive tally — approved the measure on a 50-49 roll call.

The plan, which Democrats said would trim half a trillion dollars from federal deficits over the next five years, is Clinton's most important legislative effort to date.

That made the political stakes sky-high for a new administration that has had a rocky start. White House officials said they were even prepared to bring Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., who was nearby recovering from surgery, to the chamber to cast a vote.

"I'll wager that this time next year, you're likely to see the individuals who had the courage to vote for this economic plan taking credit for the economy recovery," Gore predicted after the vote.

But Republicans scoffed that the legislation would hurt, not help, the economy because of excess taxes.

"This bill is not going to help the country," said Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee. "I believe it's going to cost us jobs."

The fight over the measure remained bitterly partisan to the end.

All 43 voting Republicans opposed the measure, joined by six defecting Democrats: Sens. Richard Bryan of Nevada, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey, Sam Nunn of Georgia and Richard Shelby of Alabama. Republican Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania also is recovering from surgery and did not vote.

It was the first time a vice president had broken a Senate tie vote in six years.

Despite their 56-44 Senate majority, Democrats had to labor to carry the day. It took a compromise with liberals to roll back $9 billion in Medicare cuts, and a busy day of phoning wavering senators by Clinton, to nail down the needed votes.

Although final passage occurred after 3 a.m., most senators appeared unusually perky for the hour.

But there were signs of weariness: Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., appeared to doze briefly in her chair, and Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., knocked his water glass onto the carpeted floor, where it shattered.

Senators will next meet with lawmakers from the House, which approved a similar measure a month ago, to craft a compromise plan. Congressional leaders would like to ship a final version of the legislation to the White House by lawmakers' August recess.

The legislation hews closely to the economic recovery recipe Clinton embraced during last year's presidential campaign.

Of its $243 billion in tax increases over the next five years, 78 percent would be borne by people earning more than $200,000 a year, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office said.

The middle class would be squarely hit by a 4.3-cent-per-gallon rise in the gasoline tax — costing the average $40,000-a-year family $122 extra annually. Some higher-income Social Security recipients would also pay higher levies.

The measure omitted one key ingredient Clinton had long since abandoned: tax cuts for the middle class, which the president admitted the deficit-laden government could not afford. That prompted one Republican after another to tauntingly wave copies of Clinton's campaign manifesto, "Putting People First," at the television cameras covering the debate.

"If candidate Clinton had run on this economic plan, he would not be President Clinton," said Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla.

"Republicans, as good as they are, as friendly as they are, really don't oppose paying taxes," said Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark. "They just oppose rich people paying taxes."

Democrats tended off a slew of amendments by Republicans trying to carve the higher taxes on motor fuels, some Social Security recipients and other levies out of the bill. GOP lawmakers finally got enough Democratic support to win an amendment exempting jet fuel from the energy tax, which they said would help the financially teetering airline industry.

Democrats said they designed the bill to slice a record $500 billion from budget deficits over the next five years. Even so, that would leave the 1998 budget gap above $200 billion — and heading upward unless laws are enacted reining the government's ballooning health-care costs.

Laughter is best medicine

Some of the biggest laughs were about Sanford.

Recently, jazz musician Michael Franks performed at the Bob Carr Auditorium in Orlando. A comedian preceded him, warming up the audience, enlisting their laughter by sharing special insights as if he were allowing them to be privy to his private jokes.

And Sanford was fodder for many of those jokes.

The comedian bounced onto the stage, grinned affably, shook his surfer-cut blond hair and told the audience he had flown into an area airport.

"But not Orlando airport. No, No, Sanford International airport!!" The inflection was on International. Laughter rang from 1,500 concert-goers. "Oh, I see you've been to Sanford!" Big grin, big wink. Private joke. "Well, you better go back. You can't see Sanford all in one day!" Knee-slapping laughter belled up and toward the stage.

And a little later, after joking about rednecks drinking beer while driving, the buddy-like invitation was extended to the audience to grab the beer and head for Sanford.

We can take a joke. And in the interest of fairness, we have some good-natured barbs for our neighbors to the south. You know, the ones who are held hostage on the interstate not just once but in rush hour traffic twice a day! Wink, wink. We might be laid back in Sanford, but we don't take hostages!

Speaking of the interstate, wasn't Orlando clever when they designed several of the off ramps? Those dead ends you run into while trying to get back onto the interstate will really keep you spinning around downtown neighborhoods looking for a way out. You get to see the area that way!

Yes, Sanford is small. Maybe when we grow up we can have a real shopping mecca, just like Orlando's Inter-national Drive! You just can't see all the t-shirts in one day! Laugh, laugh.

Laughter is indeed good medicine. And for all the nuances, quirks and funny stories about Central Florida cities, big and little, let us all remember that it doesn't hurt to poke a little fun at ourselves, now and then.

On Coach Blake's suspension

They ought to give Coach Blake a raise, not a suspension!

I don't know anything about what happened or any of the people involved, but from your story alone it is clear that:

- The student cursed in class — it doesn't matter if he cursed his teacher! — cursing in class is outrageous.
- The student took a swing at the teacher.
- The student is no little child but a 19-year-old man.
- The trigger incident was very petty — a turn at a game!

This is behavior that should not and cannot be tolerated in our schools. It is behavior that is "one small step" away from the guns and knives you deplored in your editorial. It all shows a lack of self-control and contempt for authority.

Did you ever hear the story of the mule and the two-by-four? The punchline is, "First you have to get his attention."

It looks to this outsider like Coach Blake was getting this guy's attention the only way to get it.

Now, what is the message the school system has sent this boy and all his friends? Is it, don't worry, nothing will happen to you. If your teacher disciplines you the way your behavior calls for, we will suspend him.

Don't be surprised if a lot more teachers don't follow Coach Blake into the sunset or if the ones who stay are the ones who don't have a choice. Lord knows what some student will do next year if, say, a teacher tells him to stop talking to his friends and pay attention in class and frustrates the ill darlin'!

Thank you, Coach Blake, for caring enough about that kid and the other kids in the class and about me and all the other people who will have to live with them and their tempers, to try to do something to protect and help all of us. God bless you, and please forgive them, for they knew not what they did!

CHUCK STONE

What a week for women worldwide!

It was a moment immortalized. Once again, President Clinton parted historical waters, even if his dillydallying tarnished the nomination of the first Jewish woman to the Supreme Court.

To add an uncommon grace to the occasion, Ruth Bader Ginsburg's statement soared to Valhalla heights in tender eloquence. But the history of this moment and its warmth were quickly put on hold.

"Mr. President," queried ABC's oleaginously respectful Brit Hume, "the result of the Gulinier nomination, SIR (my emphasis), and your apparent focus on Judge Breyer, and your turn, late it seems, to Judge Ginsburg may have created an impression, perhaps unfair, of a certain zigzag quality in the decision-making process here. I wonder, SIR (my emphasis), if you could kind of walk us through it and perhaps disabuse us of any notion we might have along these lines."

Interpolative translation: "You really faked us out on this unanticipated appointment, SIR. Her distinguished legal and academic careers may be impressive to you, but I wish you would explain what — besides your commitment to demographic democracy — influenced you to dump the white male you had conned us into believing you were going to appoint, SIR, especially after you had already dumped a black woman, Lani Guinier."

Hume's inquisitorial assault was charitable, compared to a headline masquerading as straight news reporting. No wonder the public believes the media are unfair. A Wall Street Journal Page One headline abandoned all pretense of objectivity: "Clinton Picks Ginsburg For the Supreme Court After Tortuous Search." Subhead: "Again His Wavering Raises Questions About Ability To Make Hard Decisions."

If any beginning copy editor had written such a flagrantly ideological Page One headline for 95 percent of the nation's newspapers, he or she would have been reassigned.

But my carping diminishes the magnitude of Judge Ginsburg's appointment. This is a moment, as the Scriptures say, "when the morning stars sang together and the sons of God shouted for joy."

Within the last three weeks, women around the world have been on an egalitarian roll:

• Ruth Bader Ginsburg, 60, appointed as the second woman and first Jewish woman to the Supreme Court.

• Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison, 49, a lawyer, elected as the first woman from Texas to the U.S. Senate.

• Republican Christine Todd Whitman, 46, is the first female nominee of a major party for governor of New Jersey. Her chances in November are rated high.

• Canada's trilingual Kim (Avril Phaedra) Campbell, 46, was elected as that country's first female prime minister by her Progressive Conservative Party.

• Turkey's Tanu Ciller, 47, head of the New Path party, will form a new government, thereby lining up the University of Connecticut-educated economist to become that Muslim country's first female premier and only the third woman to head one of the world's 35 predominantly Muslim countries.

• Carol Lani Guinier, 43, was jettisoned by President Gergen-Clinton as his nominee for assistant attorney general for civil rights.

"Cloning dinosaurs and bringing them back to life . . . Gee, Nancy, I wonder if this would work with supply-side economics?"

ROBERT WAGMAN

The 'borking' of Bruce Babbitt

WASHINGTON — White House insiders say it was a done deal. Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt was within 24 hours of being nominated for a position on the Supreme Court, and he was busily writing an acceptance speech.

Then, as they say inside the Beltway, he got "borked." President Clinton was seen backing away from his shocked nominee. In the end, Babbitt was done in — in about equal parts — by his friends and his enemies.

To "bork," or to be "borked," is a verb in the modern political lexicon derived from the defeat of Supreme Court nominee Judge Robert Bork in 1986. As used today, it means to defeat an appointee, prevent an appointment, or to be on the receiving end of such an action.

In the confirmation fights of the last five to six years, political groups have learned that the best time to defeat a nominee is before the person is officially named. That way, a president and his supporters need not suffer the embarrassment of seeing a nominee defeated or of having to withdraw the nomination.

When it became clear that Clinton was serious about naming Babbitt to the court, some very disparate groups sprang into action. Some saw Babbitt as a potential enemy who could do great damage on the court. Others considered Babbitt indispensable in his present position, and waged an intensive battle to keep him at the Interior Department.

Within hours of Babbitt's name surfacing as a potential court appointment, a package of anti-Babbitt material landed on the desks of several influential Republican senators and staffers on the Judiciary Committee, as well as at some conservative media outlets. The package contained details of never-proven, two-decade-old rumors linking Babbitt to Las Vegas gambling and mob payoffs.

In 1977, allegations surfaced that Babbitt, then Arizona's attorney general, ran up large gambling debts in Las Vegas, which were ultimately paid off by the mob. The allegations further state that he was given a large cash payoff after he withdrew his objections to an allegedly mob-connected company running six greyhound racing tracks in Arizona.

An FBI investigation in 1977, and a later investigation by the Arizona attorney general's office after Babbitt became governor, failed to substantiate the charges. The charges resurfaced again in 1986 when details of a 10-year-old, previously unknown wiretap tape surfaced. The tape had been made during the 1976 investigation into the murder of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles. The tape — of a conversation between a police informant and a man with connections to the Arizona greyhound racing circuit — contained statements that Babbitt had received a $45,000 cash payoff.

It is widely believed on Capitol Hill that the National Rifle Association is behind the information package, although a spokesman for the group strongly denies it had any hand in compiling or distributing the material. Babbitt is viewed as "soft" on the absolute right to keep and bear arms, although he supports continued access to sporting weapons.

Robert Corbin was Arizona attorney general in 1986, and it was he who reopened a major investigation of Babbitt after the tape surfaced in a civil case. Today, Corbin is president of the NRA. He told The Washington Times, which ran several stories on the charges, that in 1986 his office tried to substantiate the charges, but kept running into roadblocks — people unwilling to talk.

"We couldn't put it all together," he is quoted as saying.

At the same time these charges surfaced, environmental organizations — which had lobbied for Babbitt's appointment to the Interior job — were fighting furiously to keep him there. When the White House began a frantic search for a replacement at Interior, these groups let it be known they would vehemently oppose any of the people on the White House's short list.

In the final hours before naming Babbitt, Clinton reportedly made the final condition of his nomination the finding of a replacement at Interior that was acceptable to environmentalists, and who could be easily confirmed in the Senate. Reportedly, environmental groups responded that such a person did not exist. Anyone they approved of other than Babbitt would be bitterly opposed by Western Republicans.

The death knell of the Babbitt appointment came when Judiciary Committee Republican Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, told the White House that Babbitt's confirmation "might be difficult." Above all, the White House does want any kind of confirmation fight over the Supreme Court nominee.

It is widely believed on Capitol Hill that the National Rifle Association is behind the information package.

Big timber could be export winner

WASHINGTON — Japan may be winning the trade war over cars and computers, but the United States practically owns the export market in raw logs.

Why isn't the Clinton administration, which has been pushing Tokyo to open up its markets, touting this "accomplishment"?

It may relate to the fact that exporting raw logs is trade typical of Third World economies. But even countries such as the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia have grasped the futility of auctioning natural resources, and re-focused on exporting value-added products like furniture.

Japan desperately needs American logs. They want the pulp, not the final products. Clinton could propose banning log exports as part of the legislation now being drafted by the White House to settle the Pacific Northwest timber dispute. But it's an option Clinton is expected to reject.

Weyerhaeuser would be a big winner. The timber giant has fought a potential ban for over a year — fertilizing Congress with $1,000 fund-raising breakfasts, free John Denver concert tickets and large campaign contributions.

Weyerhaeuser sells 25 percent of its harvest overseas, and Japan is the biggest customer. That has helped boost the company's profits, which last year — in the trough of recession — soared to $372 million.

Oregon's sawmill operators see Weyerhaeuser's export-derived profits as a death certificate because that means fewer logs for domestic processing. Hundreds of mills have shut down or scaled back in the last decade, throwing more than 40,000 people out of work. Congress passed a law banning the export of timber harvested on federal land.

Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Ore., has embarked on his own arm-twisting campaign to curtail timber exports on private lands, claiming credit for the fact that Weyerhaeuser no longer exports any raw logs harvested in Oregon. He may have overstepped a line when he began urging the elimination of timber exports from private lands in neighboring Washington.

"I've been threatened by members of the Washington delegation if I raise the issue of private log exports," DeFazio told our associate Andrew Conte. "They threatened to retaliate against me politically and in other ways because they don't want the issue to (get raised). They're afraid."

As a Democratic member of the Washington state delegation, Rep. Norm Dicks represents longshoremen who deliver the logs overseas. He chalks up the political conflicts between congressional delegations to the reality of "capitalism."

"Obviously, we'd prefer it if we could get the Japanese to export only all finished wood products. But for people who own property there is a higher return in the export market. . . . That's called capitalism and that's the way our economic system works — you sell for the highest return."

DeFazio says there are some 15,000 "inefficient" mills thriving inside Japan, while 350 mills are "struggling" to stay afloat in the "timber breadbasket of the world." Japan is clearly protecting its markets from wood-processing competition in the United States.

Frank Mendizabal, a Weyerhaeuser spokesman, framed his company's case in starkly financial terms — a departure from the fuzzy "informals" in which they've invested millions. "Truth is, overseas customers are willing to pay more for logs," Mendizabal said.

The United States practically owns the export market in raw logs.

Durham

engaging in criminal activity. Durham left the Ocala motel where he was living in December and went to Ohio, failing to make his required monthly reports to his probation officer. While there he was arrested for disorderly conduct.

On an earlier probation violation in May 1992, Dickey sentenced Durham to time served in jail awaiting the hearing. At the time, however, he admonished Durham that if he violated his probation again he would go to the prison for at least 10 years.

The case is expected to be appealed to the 5th District Court of Appeals by Durham's attorney, public defender Janelle Howard. The case involves the complex issue of gain time and administrative credits given to inmates to relieve prison overcrowding. Durham served slightly more than four years of a 17-year sentence for second degree murder in 1987 in the death of Karen Barkley, 20, because of administrative credits and gain time he received from the DOC. Durham was also convicted of robbing his former high school tutor.

While discussing the case, assistant state attorney Stewart Stone noted a new law states that the DOC shall cancel administrative gain time for individuals returned to prison for violating terms of their probation. Thus, probation violators may serve more years of their original sentence along with the VOP sentence. The new law came about, in part, from the public outcry over the early release of inmates convicted of violent crimes.

Before the sentencing, Dickey said in a letter from the defendant, Durham did not take responsibility for his situation but blamed other people. In part, Durham wrote that his probation violation was the fault of actions by his probation officer. Durham claims he was unable to contact her when he was evicted from his motel residence and could not find employment because he was required to carry a letter stating he was a convicted murderer.

Despite the high profile of the case in the media and pressure from the murder victim's family, Dickey said he based his decision on his interpretation of the law.

"I don't worry about pressure," the judge commented. "The family of the young lady you killed hates my guts." He added some people may think he is a good judge while others do not.

"I do the best job I can in any given circumstances," Dickey continued. "I follow the law as best I can. I have made mistakes. You are one of the cases I was wrong in."

The parents of Karen Barkley, Cecil and Dee, and her sister and brother-in-law, Cheryl and Bill Park were in the courtroom during the hearing. The parents wrote letters criticizing the judge after he did not send Durham back to prison on the first VOP.

Some of the spectators wore T-shirts which read "Stop early release for violent criminals" and "Put Karen Barkley's murderer back behind bars—where the animal belongs."

When Durham left the courtroom, he winked at the family. They began applauding.

"I never said we hated his guts," Dee Barkley said, referring to the judge. "I don't hate anyone except Donn Durham," Cecil added.

Bubble

which has a layer of fresh water replenished from rain underneath it. The layer is surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean and more saltwater beneath it.

The task force was created by the Legislature at the request of Geneva citizens concerned about the longevity of their fragile source of water. The task force must recommend whether additional safeguards are needed by Dec. 1 this year.

Members of the task force first toured several features in the bubble area. Sanford's Site 10 wastewater disposal site, the county dump and Heath Spring. They then spent the afternoon listening to college-level presentations of the makeup of the state's hydrogeological features and the conditions which produce the bubble.

Hugh Mitchell-Tapping, a geologic scientist and director of the water district's water use division, told task force members more studies of the bubble are needed to more accurately understand the extent and vulnerability of the bubble area. Most of the present knowledge of the area is based on a 1962 report and a 1986 report. Several models have been largely based on that information.

"The data collected so far is very good," he said. "It's very good to have models, but if they don't correspond to real life, the information is not very useful."

"You can't have any room for error in this. You don't want to suck it dry."

Task force director Naomi Whitney said the studies suggested by Mitchell-Tapping could take from one to five years to complete.

The suggestion raised the concern of two task force members, Ken Wright, a lawyer representing the borrow pit industry, and Devo Seereeram, a hydrogeotechnical engineer.

The (1990) HydroGeoLogic study seems very comprehensive," said Seereeram. "I don't see the need to spend any more time on this."

Wright added "I hope the conclusion of the staff and task force is not to do something early on."

Task force members made no decisions Thursday, but will meet again in July and August to learn more about county and state programs affecting the bubble before considering proposals to recommend to the Legislature.

At Site 10, system designer Bill Holmes of Conklin Porter and Holmes, told the group the area when under agricultural production, will take nearly 3 million gallons per day of drinking-quality wastewater from Sanford's treatment plant on Lake Monroe. The wastewater will be used to irrigate hayfields and citrus groves.

Mike Rich, representing the Save Our Bubble citizen's group, expressed concern wastewater may flow through a hill on the property to the nearby Excavated Products borrow pit.

John Garlanger, of Ardaman and Associates, said a small amount of groundwater may flow in a southeasterly direction towards the borrow pit, but most will flow northwest. Most of the wastewater will evaporate or be taken up by the crops and not flow underground, Garlanger said.

After a visit at the county dump and the site of a 1990 gasoline leak, task force members visited Heath Spring, a unique formation within a few steps of State Road 46. Groundwater, not "bubble" water, seeps from the base of a steep sand cliff and flows in a tiny stream to a nearby ancient sinkhole, where it soaks into the ground. The drinkable water was once bottled and sold as a health product.

Mitchell-Tapping said the proximity of the sinkhole to SR 46 should be of concern because the sinkhole may provide a direct tap into the bubble. Gas and oil washing off the highway during rainstorms could reach the bubble through the sinkhole, Mitchell-Tapping said.

Tony VanDerworp, county planning director, said he would find out whether the county's Environmental Lands Committee had considered the site for preservation. Coleen Logan, county natural lands planner, said the committee had not considered the spring. Logan said she would ask the committee to review the site.

police claim was the last person to see 13-year old Kathy Engles before she disappeared without a trace six years ago, has requested bond be set for him. He has been in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility since his arrest in May. Meyers, arrested at his Orange County home, was held briefly in jail there.

A bond hearing was conducted earlier this week. Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey will make a ruling after reviewing case law and the investigation file.

Meyers' attorney, Ed Leinster filed the motion seeking bond because he claims the evidence against the defendant is not great and involves the testimony of questionable witnesses. Three witnesses called to testify before the grand jury were prison inmates.

No body has ever been found and the defense attorney claims there is no proof Engles was killed. Further, Meyers is presumed innocent until proven guilty, according to the motion.

An indictment by the grand jury is no different than the state attorney filing a criminal charge, Meyers' attorney asserted, because a grand jury is a "non-adversarial proceeding and the grand jury invariably bows to the state's direction."

In opposing bond, assistant state attorney Jim Braedyn called three witnesses, Engles' grandfather, Charles Hooper, Lake Mary Police Capt. Sam Belfiore and Det. David Gildford.

The Lake Mary teen was staying with a friend the night before she was reported missing. Engles left her friend's home in a Sanford mobile home park. She reportedly asked Meyers for a ride home. Meyers lived near the mobile home park.

When Kathy did not call home the next morning to be picked up, her grandparents began looking for her and called police. None of her clothes were missing and money in her bank account was untouched. Although she and her grandparents were close, they have received no calls since she disappeared.

Police claim Meyers was seen with Engles about 2 a.m. May 25, 1987. At the time she disappeared, Meyers had represented himself as 19-years-old to Engles and her 12-year old friend. Meyers was 27 at the time. The night before Engles disappeared, Meyers bought beer for himself and the two minor girls.

Further, Meyers said he dropped Engles off at a convenience store when it was open, but police later learned the store closed two hours earlier.

When questioned about the missing girl, Belfiore said Meyers had scratches on his arms and the imprint of what appeared to be a Reebok tennis shoe on his abdomen. A photo was made of the image. Engles was last seen wearing tennis shoes, according to the police investigation.

Meyers was arrested and ultimately convicted on an unrelated sexual battery which occurred one week before Engles disappeared. During the investigation, police interviewed a prisoner who was at the Brevard County Jail with Meyers. The man claimed Meyers described killing a girl. At the time, Meyers was jailed on a separate sexual battery charge.

Independence, the citizen-soldiers, i.e., the original Minute-Men, quickly abandoned their homes and possessions and rushed to insure our freedom with courage and incredible marksmanship.

"Now," he continued, "as it was then, these men and women are our neighbors and relatives."

In addition to Company B, commanded by Capt. Tony Ross, Seminole County also has the 2nd Battalion headquarters, commanded by Lt. Col. Charles Craig, HIB 265th Air Defense Artillery commanded by Capt. William Petty, and the 1265th Ordnance Company commanded by Capt. Larry Morris.

The July 4th event will begin at 12:45 p.m. when the National Guard will march from Sanford Avenue down Seminole Blvd., along Lake Monroe to a reviewing stand in front of the park.

High ranking civilian and military dignitaries will then present commendation plaques to the commanding officers of the various units.

The formation will then reform for the national anthem and a 21 gun salute by the Florida National Guard Field Artillery.

From that point on, it's fun and food. Costs for the huge barbecue event are $5 for adults and $3 for children, with $1 off on advance ticket sales.

Advance tickets are now available at various Sanford area merchants and the First Union and Sun Banks.

The barbecue is expected to continue until 5 p.m., with families of the National Guard units as guests during the public barbecue.

A number of special features will also be held, including entertainment for adults as well as children.

Static military displays of the National Guard capabilities will be open to the public, such as a mobile field kitchen, a medical aid station, emergency tent housing, communications Humvee-vehicles, Humvee Stinger missile, and military weapons.

Joining in co-sponsorship of the National Guard celebration is the City of Sanford, Seminole County, Florida National Guard, Elks, Jaycees, Kiwanis, Rotary, American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Fleet Reserve, Paralyzed Veterans Association, and the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council.

Pay

table so far. The district's first offer is asking employees to accept only the automatic two-percent raise they get annually based on their level of experience.

The unions have not offered a counter-proposal on the salary issue at this time.

According to Nancy Wheeler, executive director of Seminole UniServe (the umbrella organization over all the unions) and chief negotiator for the employees, the union will wait until next week when year-end budget figures are available for the district.

Wheeler said the she was not prepared to make a statement on how much the employees would like to receive in pay and benefits increases until they know how much money the district has left to carry into next year's budget.

Even Supt. Paul Hagerly took only a 1.5 percent raise this year, opting to take less money in a year when the district had to be prepared to ask teachers and other employees to tighten their belts again.

Knowing that the district has traditionally opened negotiations with the request that employees settle for their step-raises only, Wheeler was not upset by the district's initial offer. She said she will wait until the latter part of next week before countering the offer.

The union represents more than 2,000 teachers and more than 300 bus drivers district-wide.

The union is focusing their attention this year not on the salary controversy but on changes in operational procedures, including changes that will allow for more faculty involvement in decision making at the school level and procedural changes that govern how a teacher makes a transfer from one school to another.

The clerical workers' union and the union that represents the custodial staffs will meet with district negotiators for the first time on Thursday, July 8 to present one another with opening proposals.

Negotiations will begin between the two sides on Monday, July 12. Both sides said they hope to avoid the gridlock that has sent negotiations to a federal mediator the last two years.

Official wants to expand food stamp, needy programs

By The Associated Press

HAINES CITY, Fla. — Congress must approve several multibillion-dollar budget bills to expand food stamp programs, and programs for pregnant women, infants and children, says Agriculture Secretary Michael Espy.

"It is time we acknowledged... that we do have a hunger problem," Espy told a symposium on hunger sponsored by the Florida Association for Community Action.

Although 27.4 million Americans are receiving food stamps, they represent only 60 percent of the needy, said Espy.

He told the symposium Wednesday that he plans to intensify the outreach efforts of his agency.

Espy said the government had failed in large part to reach the most needy and he intends to improve programs to eradicate hunger. Among his goals is a food stamp "credit card," which would replace food stamps.

Program requirements need to be streamlined, forms made shorter, paperwork reduced and the poor educated on everything from nutrition to managing household budgets, he said.

Soup kitchens, food banks and other charitable groups say they are taxed to their limits, feeding growing numbers of the hungry.

"We get people who are so conditioned to programs that they cannot survive without a program," said the Rev. James T. Blount, director of Orlando's Daily Bread, which is operated by the Christian Service Center for Central Florida.

"I just don't see the end in sight. The poor we'll always have with us."

Families existing on the minimum wage of $4.25 an hour can't make it, said Elaine Roberts, legislative coordinator for Florida Impact, a hunger advocacy group taking part in the symposium.

Ms. Roberts said monthly expenses such as rent, child care and transportation for a mother at a minimum wage job with two children ran about $1,115 a month. But the monthly salary of a minimum wage worker is $680 per month.

And while the maximum food stamp and welfare allowance is $592, she said, it includes health care coverage for children.

"This is an important consideration for a person deciding whether to do what society tells her to do — to go out and get a job," Ms. Roberts said. "People can no longer support themselves on a minimum wage."

de Bruin's two goals lift Florida into semifinals

From Staff Reports

COCOA — Despite being one of the youngest members of the Under-18 Florida team playing in the United States Youth Soccer Association's Southeast Regional Tournament this week, Lake Mary's Jody de Bruin has stepped forward as one of the team's key players.

On Thursday night, de Bruin scored two goals for the second game in a row, rallying Florida to a 2-1 win over South Texas. de Bruin, who will be a senior at Lake Mary High School in the fall, had two goals and two assists in Florida's 6-2 victory over Louisiana Wednesday.

Also on the Florida squad are Lyman High School graduates Frank Cipolla and John Bernard.

In other games Thursday at the Cocoa Expo Center, Arkansas blanked the Florida B team 1-0. North Texas ripped Georgia 5-1. Oklahoma edged South Carolina 2-1. North Carolina trimmed Tennessee 2-1, and the Combination team (made up of players from states around the region) clipped Louisiana 3-1.

With the win, Florida (3-0 in the tournament) vaults into one of this evening's semifinal games against North Carolina. In the other semifinal, North Texas will play either South Texas or Tennessee. The championship game will be played Saturday.

Game times were to be announced this morning.

On Thursday night Florida and South Texas battled through a scoreless first half. Two minutes into the second half, South Texas broke the deadlock with the game's first goal.

It took 26 minutes for Florida to equalize. Maro Kaiman of Key West played a cross to de Bruin, who flicked a header from eight yards out to the far post in the game's 68th minute.

Seven minutes later, Lakeland's Chris Crawshaw played a cross from the right wing, de Bruin took the ball in the air and ripped a right-footed half-volley into the net from 15 yards out for the game winner.

The tournament, which serves as a tryout of sorts for the USYSA's Olympic Development Program's Southeast Regional team, is being played at the Cocoa Expo Center located near the junction of Highway 520 and Interstate 95 in Brevard County.

Prep, Babe Ruth teams set

By DEAN SMITH

HERALD Sports Writer

SANFORD — If practice makes perfect, are Sanford's two Babe Ruth All-Star baseball teams ready to win their respective district tournaments?

Both the Preps (13-year olds) and the Babe Ruth All-Stars (14-15 year olds) have been successful in pre-tournament scrimmages and have shown signs of coming together as a team in their four weeks of practice, giving Sanford fans hope that their teams can return to state tournament play.

The Babe Ruth All-Stars will get the first opportunity to show their wares, opening play in the Florida District 2 Tournament this afternoon at Tavares, starting at 3 p.m. Sanford will play the winner of a 9 a.m. contest between Longwood and Daytona.

To get to the Tavares Baseball Complex, go north on Highway 441 into Tavares. Go to first stop light (St. Clair Abrams Road), turn left and go to first street (Clifford Street), turn left again and go to the ball fields on the right.

SANFORD — Where were we?

The Sanford Church Softball League will pick up its Spring Tournament on Saturday morning at Chase and Pinehurst parks, resuming play after a two week layoff.

After playing nine games on Saturday, June 12, the Church League had to take last weekend off to make way for the Sanford Officiating Service's Tournament.

The tournament will pick up with a pair of losers' bracket games at 8 a.m.

At Chase Park, No. 9-seeded Sanford Christian plays No. 11-seed Grace United Methodist of Lake Mary. Meanwhile, Winter Springs' St. Stephen Catholic, the No. 2 seed, will play No. 3-seed Central Baptist of Sanford at Pinehurst.

The winners' bracket semifinals are scheduled for 9 a.m., top-seeded First United Methodist of Sanford playing No. 5-seed Trinity Assembly of God from Deltona at Chase Park while No. 6-seed Sanford First Nazarene takes on No. 7-seed Sanford Church of God at Pinehurst.

There's only one game scheduled for 10 a.m., No. 4-seed Church of God of Prophecy from Sanford playing the survivor of the St. Stephen-Central Baptist game in a losers' bracket contest at Pinehurst. The winner of that game turns around and plays the loser of First Methodist Trinity Assembly at 11:30 a.m. at Pinehurst.

The 11 a.m. game at Chase Park pits the winner of the Sanford Christian-Grace Methodist contest against the loser of the First Nazarene-Church of God game.

After that, the rest of the tournament will be played at Chase Park, beginning with the winners' bracket final at noon. Losers' bracket games are scheduled for 1 p.m. and 2 p.m., leading up to the championship game at 3 p.m. and the "if necessary" contest at 4 p.m.

Gordan Clark and Church of God plays First Nazarene in the 9 a.m. game at Pinehurst Park when the Sanford Church Softball League tournament resumes Saturday.

Marlins climb out of early hole, rally past Bucks

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — After digging an early hole, the Oviedo Marlins rallied to beat Bates Sporting Goods Bucks, 6-4, Thursday in a National Amateur Baseball Federation high school summer league game at Lake Howell High School.

Leading 1-0, Oviedo made three errors and was called for interference during a four-run rally by the Bucks (Lake Howell's summer team) in the bottom of the first.

Bates' first-inning explosion began when Chris Tolliver reached on an error, Mark Desabrais' sacrifice bunt was thrown away, putting Buck runners at first and second. Rich DiTore then hit into fielder's choice, forcing Desabrais at second.

Mike Hernandez's grounder then was kicked by the Marlins, allowing Tolliver to score and DiTore to go to third. Gill followed with a double that scored DiTore and, eventually, Hernandez.

On the play, Hernandez bumped into the Oviedo shortstop after rounding second base on his way to third. Because of the contact, Hernandez was awarded home, giving Gill a second RBI. Sanford later singled to score Gill.

Trailing 4-1, Mark Metcalf led off the Oviedo fifth by drawing a walk. An out later, Ted Brown singled and Jason Fore reached on an error to load the bases. After Juan Rodriguez came on as a courtesy runner for Fore, Carlos Martinez singled to score Metcalf.

Tim Slavik then hit a slow ground ball to third that allowed Brown to score and Rodriguez to move to third. With two outs and two strikes on John Salas, Rodriguez stole home to tie the score. On the next pitch, Martinez scored on a wild pitch to put the Marlins ahead.

Salas paced the Marlin attack by going 4-for-4. Rugenius doubled, Martinez collected a single, RBI, and one run scored. Brown singled and scored a run. Slavik had a single and an RBI. Todd Belhonn also had an RBI. Adam Coleman, Metcalf, Brown, and Juan Rodriguez each scored a run.

For the Bucks, Sanford singled twice. Gill had a double, run, and two RBI. Desabrais and Mike Ganci each hit a single. Tolliver, DiTore, and Hernandez each scored a run.

Oviedo hosts Winter Park tonight at 7 p.m.

Definition of severe storm terms

For a good reason, there seems to be more attention to the fact that we are currently in the hurricane season. More people are aware that a disaster could happen to anyone. During the summer this column will deal with some of those crises.

Hurricane season — June 1 through Nov. 30 is officially designated as hurricane season.

Advisory — A message released by the hurricane center, usually at 6-hour intervals, updating information on the storm or hurricane, including watches and warnings whenever they are in effect. A special advisory is a message given any time there is a significant change in weather conditions or change in warnings previously released. An intermediate advisory updates information in advisories at 2- to 3-hour intervals, whenever a watch or warning is in effect.

Small craft warnings — When a hurricane or tropical storm threatens a coastal area, small craft are advised to remain in port and not to venture into the open seas.

Tropical disturbance — An area of low pressure, rotary circulation of clouds and winds to 38 mph.

Tropical storm — Counterclockwise circulation of clouds and winds 39 mph to 73 mph. The storm is assigned a name.

Hurricane — A tropical storm that has reached winds of 74 mph or more.

Storm surge — A rise in tides caused by a hurricane as it moves over or near the coastline. It can be much higher than the normal tidal rise, with breaking waves on top.

Gale warning — Storm with non-cyclonic winds of 30 to 54 mph expected.

Storm warning — Storm with non-cyclonic winds of 55 to 73 mph expected.

Hurricane watch — The alert given when a hurricane poses a threat to a certain coastal area within 36 hours.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES / GREGG

Hurricane warning — A hurricane is expected to strike your area within 24 hours with sustained winds of 74 mph or more, accompanied by heavy rain and high waves.

Tornado watch — Tornadoes and severe thunderstorms are possible in your area.

Tornado warning — Tornado detected in your area: TAKE SHELTER.

All hurricanes are dangerous, but some are more so than others. The way storm surge, wind, and other factors combine determines the hurricane's destructive power. To make comparisons easier and to make the predicted hazards of approaching hurricanes clearer to emergency forces, NOAA's hurricane forecasters use a disaster-potential scale, which assigns storms to five categories. Category 1 is a minimum hurricane; category 5 is the worst case.

Category definition and effects — the criteria for each category are shown below. This scale can be used to give an estimate of the potential property damage and flooding expected along the coast with a hurricane.

*Actual storm surge values will vary considerably depending on coastal configurations and other factors.

Category 1 — Wind 74-95 mph or storm surge 4-5 feet above normal.* No real damage to building structures. Damage primarily to unanchored mobile homes, shrubbery and trees. Also, some coastal road flooding and minor pier damage.

Category 2 — Winds 96-110 mph or storm surge 6-8 feet above normal.* Some roofing material, door and window damage to buildings. Considerable damage to vegetation, mobile homes and piers. Coastal and low-lying escape routes flood 2-4 hours before arrival of center. Small craft unprotected anchorages break moorings.

Category 3 — Winds 111-130 mph or storm surge 9-12 feet above normal.* Some structural damage to small residences and utility buildings with a minor amount of curtainwall failures. Mobile homes are destroyed. Flooding near the coast destroys smaller structures with larger structures damaged by floating debris. Terrain continuously lower than 5 feet at sea level may be flooded inland as far as 6 miles.

Category 4 — Winds 131-155 mph or storm surge 13-18 feet above normal.* More extensive curtainwall failures with some complete roof structure failure on small residences. Major erosion of beach areas. Major damage to lower floors of structures near the shore. Terrain continuously lower than 10 feet at sea level may be flooded requiring massive evacuation of residential areas inland as far as 6 miles.

Category 5 — Winds greater than 155 mph or storm surge greater than 18 feet above normal.* Complete roof failure on many residences and industrial buildings. Some complete building failure with small utility buildings blown over or away. Major damage to lower floors of all structures located less than 15 feet at sea level and within 500 yards of the shoreline. Massive evacuation of residential areas on low ground with 5-10 miles of the shoreline may be required.

Is alcoholism a 'disease'?

DEAR MARY: I've been hearing alcoholism referred to as a "disease" lately. That makes no sense to me. If it's a disease, how do you get it if you never take that first drink? I can't help wondering if we're calling it a disease these days so that the alcoholics can blame their drinking and destroying their lives and their families on their "illness." It looks to me like it's just another example of excusing self-indulgent weakness and failing to hold people accountable for their behavior. I'd be interested in hearing the logic of the folks trying to sell us the idea that alcoholism is anything other than what it really is — moral weakness and self-indulgence.

STRAIGHT TALKER
DEAR STRAIGHT: While not everyone endorses the "disease" model for alcoholism, this concept is endorsed by the American Medical Association and the World Health Organization. Part of the reason they do is that alcoholism and other drug dependency share many of the characteristics that doctors associate with "disease".

DRUG COUNSELOR

•The illness takes a predictable course: It is chronic and progressive.

•There is a specific prognosis: physical and emotional deterioration and/or death unless treatment is given.

•There is a specific treatment: abstinence.

Specialists further believe that there may be a genetic predisposition to addiction, just as there is to diabetes, heart disease, and cancer.

The disease concept can also offer alcoholics and other addicts hope for recovery. It's a positive message that says, "You can get well again." An important difference, however, is that alcoholism and other addictions are not treated with medicines; there is no magic pill that can move an alcoholic or other addict into rehabilitation and learning new ways to think, act, and feel.

Boys learn wrong lesson when violence is ignored

DEAR ABBY: I have been working as a health-care provider for 15 years, and I see a lot of mothers and children in waiting rooms. What I see appeals and angers me.

I see mothers letting their little boys hit them and their sisters. In a doctor's office, there was a mother who came in frequently with no consequences. His mother gave him a hug.

I saw a boy of about 10 yell at his mother and hit her! She said nothing, only weakly defended herself against the slaps.

Recently, I had a 3-year-old boy as a patient. His mother and little sister were in the room. His sister touched his wristwatch, and he punched her in the chest with all his might! His mother saw it and didn't do anything about it.

Who's setting the example for this kind of treatment of women? Why are these children allowed — even encouraged — in such violent behavior against women?

ADVICE

CAROL IN LONG BEACH
DEAR CAROL: Don't blame the children. I regret to say they don't know better. And neither do their mothers, who must believe that women deserve nothing better.

Violence is wrong, and when it goes unpunished, it sends the message that the bigger and stronger person rules the roost (as is observed in the animal kingdom).

I would guess that children who act like this have seen women slapped around all their young lives, with no one lifting a finger to protect them.

Children learn by example, from adults who set limits on their behavior. If no one sets the tone at home, there is a potential problem in the making.

DEAR READERS: One of the most frequently asked questions concerning homosexuality is the title of a new book, "Is It a Choice?" by Eric Marcus. It contains the answers to 300 questions about gays and lesbians — leaving none unanswered. The publisher is HarperCollins.

Many of us have heard this familiar adage concerning horseshoes and certain explosive devices. In certain situations, almost really doesn't count. Neither does almost count when we speak of our relationship with God. This relationship needs to be personal, trusting, and fulfilling... not almost but total. Yes, we have a much better chance at winning at "the game of life" when we solidly connect with the Source of all life's blessings. As we worship this Sabbath, may we not be "Almost Persuaded," as was the soul in that sacred hymn, but may we be totally persuaded to entwine our lives with the will of our Heavenly Father.

Honduras bound

Local volunteers, physicians, dentists leave on medical mission

LAKE MARY — Imagine if you can spending a week in a far away land helping those who are much less fortunate than American born citizens.

This adventure will become a reality for 19 local residents as they leave with members of St. Peter's Episcopal Church for Quince de Enero, Honduras, on Saturday to participate in a Tending His Flock Medical Mission.

The Rev. Beverly Barge and his wife Anne, of Longwood; Dean Byers, Donna Rector, and Stephen S. Israel, all of Sanford; Ty Dedman, and his wife, Bettye, Lois Jackson, John Millong and his wife Susie and Dr. Bobby Sharp, all of Lake Mary; Dr. Stephen Knight, of Ormond Beach; Friley Knight, of Cocoa; Dr. Ernesto Torres and his wife, Annabella, and sons, Ernesto Jr., and Ruben, and Christine Young, all of Deltona, will depart from the Orlando International Airport on a mission of mercy.

Throughout the week the physicians, dentists and volunteers who have donated their time for the trip will see about 1500 patients in the remote village of Quince de Enero in the mountains of Honduras.

A glorious ending

The closing ceremony of the Community Vacation Bible School was celebrated in the new facility of House of Refuge Ministries, on Celery Avenue, with singing, reflections and prayer based on the theme of "Let's Go with Jesus and Worship God." The Rev. Amos C. Jones, pastor of St. Paul M.B. Church, and Elder Elijah Richardson, pastor of House of Refuge, left, opened the ceremonies with songs of praise. The event was then taken over by the young people who participated in the weeklong study. Among the talents in attendance were three young ladies explaining the many things they learned and later the 6 to 8-year-olds recited the Lord's Prayer.

Finding the source of chronic rib pain

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the inflammation that gets under the rib cage, causing pain and discomfort? Is there a treatment for this condition?

DEAR READER: I'm not sure what you mean. Pleurisy (inflammation of the lung covering) can cause pain beneath the ribs. This is caused by infection, blood clots or injury. The pain is typically worsened by deep breathing.

Costochondritis is another source of chest pain in the area you describe. It is due to an inflammation of the cartilage that attaches the ribs to the breast bone, and -- over the lower chest -- to themselves. The cause is unknown.

Finally, a variety of non-pulmonary diseases can cause pain under the ribs. These include gallbladder disorders, a swollen liver, an enlarged spleen, and abdominal distension that may push the diaphragm up, causing the perception of chest discomfort.

These various conditions are diagnosed by blood tests and X-rays. Treatment depends on the cause.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an 83-year-old ambitious man diagnosed with prostate cancer that is traveling to the bone. I've had an orchiectomy, yet the cancer has spread to my lymph system. Do you know of any treatment, even of the experimental type, that might help me?

DEAR READER: Hormone therapy for prostate cancer is now universally prescribed. If the tumor has spread beyond the prostate gland itself. The two most commonly used drugs are Lupron (which suppresses the production of testosterone) and Eulexin (which blocks the effects of testosterone).

Ask your doctor about this. Given your situation, I believe you should be on one (or both) of these medications. In addition, prostate cancer that has spread to bone is often treated with radiation to shrink the tumor and relieve pain. In your case, you have not exhausted the possibilities of traditional treatment; therefore, you needn't consider experimental therapy yet.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 74-year-old female who has had a complete hysterectomy. I've been prescribed estrogen pills that I am reluctant to use for fear of contracting cancer of the vagina. Am I justified in this concern?

DEAR READER: Your fears are ungrounded. Estrogen therapy, which is used in postmenopausal women to retard osteoporosis and maintain a healthy reproductive tract, can cause uterine cancer. This risk can be minimized by using an additional female hormone, progestin, in a cycle with the estrogen.

However, your uterus was removed. Hence, you need have no concerns.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Moviemakers use music to set the mood for a scene, and we respond accordingly. No one hearing tense, Jaws-like music expects Julie Andrews to burst through a door singing some cheerful tune. Only if the movie is by someone like Mel Brooks do we expect the unexpected.

In bridge, we know how to handle certain suit combinations. But occasionally a deal sneaks up and finds us unprepared. We do the instinctive thing and -- if the Fates (suit breaks) are unkind -- go down when an unconventional approach would have yielded a more profitable outcome.

How would you play today's spade combination in isolation? What about within the confines of this deal? West starts with three top diamonds against your four-spade contract.

South thought he saw 11 easy tricks: five spades, one heart and five clubs. And to try to accommodate jack-fourth of spades in the East hand, South ruffed the third diamond, cashed the spade king and played a spade to dummy's ace.

However, when East discarded on the second round of trumps, suddenly the contract perished. Whether South tried the heart finesse or played on clubs, he was down.

"Sorry, partner," said South. "I suppose I should have ducked the first trump to East."
"I don't think that's best," replied North. "Why not cash the K-Q of spades in your hand? If they break 3-2, draw the last trump and claim an overtrick. But if either opponent discards, play on clubs. The spade ace is the entry to the rest of dummy's clubs, and you win 10 tricks."

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Saturday, June 26, 1993
Conditions that have been restricting you should begin to dissipate very soon. Your new freedom and mobility will substantially enhance your possibility for success in several critical areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persons with whom you're involved will tolerate a lot of your shortcomings today, with the exception of selfishness. If you're too self-serving, it's an automatic turn-off. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be wary of inclinations towards unrealistic thinking today. You could run the gambit from wishful expectations to a defeatist attitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Take with a grain of salt business proposals offered you by others today. The presenter's intentions might be honorable, but his/her deal could be flimsy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The impression you'll make on others today will not be a good one if you're so self-absorbed in your own interests that you're oblivious to theirs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best to understate your accomplishment today than to have friends think you're exaggerating or being boastful. In fact, the less you say the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Just because you're able to afford something today, don't assume everyone else can as well. A sensitive friend won't react kindly if you call his/her lack to the attention of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't delegate your authority today to someone who might not have your best interest at heart. What is important to you might not be of significance to this person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to get associates to help you today, you might make some rather lavish promises. Remember, others will take your commitments seriously, even if you don't.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you cater to your extravagant whims today and spend more than you should, your day of reckoning might come about much sooner than you think.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be fair with the your family and loved ones today regarding your expectations of them. Unreasonable demands may be met with anger and resistances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Criticizing another's behavior could backfire on you today. You might be the one branded the disruptive influence and shown the door.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely careful in both your business and personal financial affairs today. If you do things in a slipshod manner, there's a chance you might suffer a severe loss.
