Jobless claims rise sharply

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits rose sharply in early June, canceling out improvements in May, the government reported today.

Analysts called the steep rise worrisome and said it may mean that the economy has not bottomed out, as was previously thought.

For the week ending June 8, there were 448,000 Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits, an increase of 47,000 from the previous week.

In May, jobless claims had fallen for four straight weeks, something that had not happened since 1982, when the U.S. economy was pulling out of the last recession.

Woman goes out in Tiger style

FLINT, Mich. — Connie Scramlin loved the Detroit Tigers so much that she decided to pay tribute to them in death, as well as in life.

At her funeral Friday, she will wear the uniform of her favorite baseball team. She will be buried in a casket draped with tiger lilies, trimmed in midnight blue and orange, the team's colors, and emblazoned with the team's emblem.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" will be played.

Scramlin made the arrangements after learning in April that she had terminal cancer, said her daughter, Deborah Pillsbury. She died Sunday at 58.

"She loved them, she loved the game," her daughter said Tuesday. "Everything in her house is Detroit Tigers. When she was comatose, we turned on the ball game and she smiled."

By WICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City of Sanford will hold the 2nd Annual Health and Safety Fair tomorrow. The all-day event will be held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Bill Marcus, program coordinator for the city's utility department said, "Last year's event went over very well, and this year it will be bigger and much better." An estimated 500 people attended the Health and Safety Fair during the course of the day-long event which was held on July 12.

This year, the city will be once again assisted by the Central Florida Regional Hospital and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Marcus said, "One of the big attractions last year was the free health testing that was done. We also had plenty of safety-related exhibits and demonstrations that interested both young and old." He said, "This fair will have the same attractions, only a lot more of them." In the health areas, there will be free screenings and checks on blood pressure, cholesterol, hearing, blood glucose, TB skin testing, pulmonary function tests, anemia and glaucoma. Safety issues include identification of poisonous snakes, boating and water safety, electrical safety, in-home safety and crime prevention. The Sanford Fire Department will give several demonstrations including use of the jaws of life and a high altitude rescue simulation scheduled for 11 a.m.

Specialists participating in the event include plastic surgeon Dr. Bruce Walton, podiatrist Dr. Joseph Thomas, cardiologist Dr. Valeria, dermatologist Dr. Levett, gastroenterologist Dr. Mallalah, urologist Dr. Huaman, and ophthalmologists Dr.'s Sakowitz and Day.

Information and pamphlets will also be available on 51 subjects including alcohol abuse, Alzheimer's disease, employee assistance programs, home health care, organ donations, tissue banks, and wild animals.

For the children, a number of characters will be on hand including Smokey the Bear, Sparky the Fire Dog, McGruff the take-a-bite-out-of-crime dog, and a talking ambulance, plus others. There will also be balloons, I.D. bracelets, doctor and nurse hats, and finger casting.

The Health and Safety Fair will be held at the Sanford Civic Center, 401 East Seminole Boulevard at the lakefront, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Friday, June 21. It is being offered free of charge to residents as well as visitors.

Lake Mary referendum back tonight

By WICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The City Commission will again bring up the matter of what to do with a citizen referendum request. The subject is being scheduled for tonight's meeting at the request of Commissioner Tom Mahoney.

The referendum, proposed through a petition signed by a group of Lake Mary citizens, was designed to be placed on this fall's city election ballot. If passed, it would place certain restrictions on financial agreements entered into by the city, that could not be paid off during the fiscal year in which it is agreed upon.

At both the regular commission meeting held on June 6, and a subsequent special meeting on June 10, the commissioners heard City Attorney Ned Julian express his opinion that the proposed referendum could either be ignored or taken to court. "I'm not against the referendum," he said, "but the wording is improper." Julian recommended nothing be done. The vote was 4-1 on June 6 to agree with Julian's recommendation. No motion was made by the commissioners on June 10, at which time Mayor Randy Morris said, "With no motion, we will go along with our previous decision and accept the city attorney's advice to not place the matter on the ballot."

Firm recommends 'stormwater utility'

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A "stormwater utility" may be the fairest way to raise money to pay for a $15.5 million countywide drainage improvement program, is the recommendation of a county consulting firm.

The fee, which could cost homeowners between $2 to $4 each month, would pay to improve, replace and maintain major stormwater drainage systems throughout the county. It would be used to operate the drainage systems that carry stormwater from neighborhoods, though not individual streets, to major collection points which could be lakes and rivers or specially-built ponds.

The county estimates $15.5 million will be needed during the next five years to improve deficient drainage systems in the county and maintain all major drainage networks.

Seminole County commissioners will hear an overview of the program from consultants in the first of several worksessions on the subject Monday.

The county's drainage consultant, Camp Dresser & McKee Inc., is recommending the county charge a monthly fee for all developed properties in cities and unincorporated areas and may include vacant and agricultural lands. Although details haven't been worked out, cities may charge an additional fee to maintain street-by-street drainage.

Colleen Logan, the county planner working on the stormwater system, said CDM has recommended the utility fee approach because it is based on the average amount of structures, driveways and sidewalks covering the ground at a sampling of Seminole County homes. Businesses and other non-residential buildings will have to be considered individually, she said.

If a stormwater management program was paid out of property taxes, all property owners would be paying a similar rate, regardless of how much pavement they have to allow stormwater to drain off their property, Logan said CDM has recommended.

The county faces extensive drainage quantity and quality reporting requirements under federal National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) rules, Logan said. The rules require the county to assess all stormwater systems and drainage patterns by November. By November 1992, the county must have a stormwater treatment program in order to obtain a federal permit.

Sheriff searching for new jail administrator

Duane Rutledge, administrator of Seminole County jail since 1988, has resigned.

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County jail administrator Maj. Duane Rutledge will end three years with the county July 9 to become a private consultant, said Sheriff Don Eslinger.

"We both agreed it was time for him to pursue other career options," Eslinger said this morning. "There was no conflict. We both agreed it was the best thing."

Eslinger said he received Rutledge's written resignation Wednesday following a discussion Tuesday. Rutledge was appointed to the $43,000 job by former sheriff John Polk on Feb. 24, 1988. Rutledge, 47, earned nearly $60,000 this year.

Rutledge said he would decline substantive comment until Eslinger formally notifies sheriff's employees.

Eslinger said he has not decided on an interim replacement for Rutledge. He said he will stage a nationwide search for his permanent replacement.

Rutledge's departure ends a troubled year for the jail administrator. In January, there were two separate jail escapes where a total of five inmates escaped for up to a day. In February, Eslinger fired Rutledge's assistant, Capt. Robert Fischer after a trusty inmate assigned to the Animal Control shelter overdosed on barbiturates taken from the shelter.

It wasn't raining inside

A motion detector alarm summoned Sanford Police to Contractor Supply, 1221 State Street Tuesday night. When the investigating officer spotted someone inside the building, he called for backup units.

After additional officers arrived, they managed to persuade the man to exit from the building. He was identified as Edwin Lewis Jackson, Jr., 22, 2810 Highlawn Ave., Sanford. According to the police report, Jackson told the officers he was just in the building trying to get out of the rain, but when he saw the police coming, he was unable to leave. Jackson has been arrested and charged with burglary. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Arrested man threatens victim

Robert A. Fryer, 30, 370 Fryer Lane, Sanford, and Glen Edwin Green, 30, 4424 Radio Ave., Sanford, were arrested by Sanford Police officers Tuesday, shortly after noon. They were reportedly seen leaving the residence of Carla Fitzgerald, 4308 Francis Avenue, carrying a brown paper bag. Fitzgerald said all of her prescription medicine had been taken. She valued it at $255.

According to a police report, she identified the two men who were picked up at 2990 Sanford Ave., a short time later. They were charged with burglary, and placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

According to a second report, several hours after the arrest, Fitzgerald again notified police officers that Green had telephoned her from the jail, and threatened her safety for reporting the two men to the police. Officers are conducting an investigation into the harassing call.

More than just a bad tag

Sanford Police officers stopped a vehicle with an expired license tag, on U.S. 17-92 near 22nd Street Tuesday. The car was driven by Willard Richard Ivins, 25, 500 W. Airport Blvd., Sanford.

During questioning, it was learned that Ivins' drivers license had been suspended indefinitely, and a computer check discovered there was a warrant issued against him in Lake County for driving with a suspended license. Ivins was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility to await a transfer to Lake County authorities.

DUI arrest

The following person has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol:

Tina Rochelle Jackson, 22, 620 Clearne Court, Winter Springs, was stopped by Lake Mary Police, while driving west on Lake Mary Blvd., early Wednesday morning. She was charged with DUI and failure to maintain a single lane. She was taken to the Lake Mary police headquarters for further testing, then confined at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Parole violator turns himself in Clarence Hodge, 25, of Coral Gables, turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday night. Hodge was being sought in a warrant issued May 22, in Seminole County, for parole violation. He was on parole following a conviction on a charge of grand theft. He is being held without bond.

Democratic organization focuses on local issues

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Officers have been nominated for a new county Democrat organization that will focus on county and city races and issues.

"We are people who feel there should be more Democratic participation in city and county races," said Sandy Eldridge, an organizer of Today's Democrats of Seminole County Inc. "But we're not a contra-committee opposed to the Democratic Executive Committee. We want to work with them, but they are more focused on state and even federal issues."

Eldridge said the group is seeking local and state party permission to use the name "Democrat." She said the group must organize and elect officers before it can receive state permission to use the party name. The Seminole County DEC has not yet granted permission to use the name, she said.

Nominated for office by members are:

- Marvin Meltzer, Winter park, nominated for president.
- Ralford Hall, Casselberry, nominated for first vice president.
- Dawn Moncrief, Altamonte Springs, nominated for second vice president.

President's upper hand

With the Soviet economy continuing its disastrous plunge and Mikhail Gorbachev desperate for Western aid, the Kremlin suddenly has become more flexible in the arms control arena. This affords the United States a chance to achieve swift progress in reducing both conventional and nuclear arsenals.

In fact, Washington should seize this opportunity to wring as many concessions as possible from Moscow in the talks to cut long-range nuclear warheads.

To prop up his crumbling centrally planned economy, Gorbachev is seeking for large infusions of Western assistance. From the Soviet leader's perspective, the prospects of receiving aid from the industrialized democracies would be greatly enhanced by a summit meeting with President Bush.

But Bush has prudently held off rushing into another summit as long as the Soviet military was dragging its heels on slashing conventional armaments in Europe and delaying a treaty to reduce nuclear weapons. A meeting originally planned for February in Moscow was put off by the White House until the Soviets became more forthcoming on the arms issue.

Gorbachev now appears ready to comply with the far-reaching treaty he signed last November in Paris to cut the number of tanks, armored personnel carriers, combat aircraft and artillery pieces deployed from the Atlantic to the Urals. After a recent meeting in Portugal with Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Lemnitskiy, Secretary of State James Baker announced that Moscow is committed to observing the treaty "in all respects."

The shift in the Soviet position apparently ends the Kremlin's attempt to exempt three motorized infantry divisions from the limits set by the treaty.

To avoid counting the divisions and their 800 tanks and 1,700 armored personnel carriers, the Soviets reclassified them as naval shore defense units. Naval forces were not covered by the agreement. But, faced with the necessity of maintaining good relations with the West in the hope of receiving economic aid, the Soviets apparently have abandoned this bald gambit.

Moscow earlier had transferred thousands of tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery pieces from Europe to storage depots east of the Ural Mountains, according to U.S. intelligence reports. Forces east of the Urals are not covered by the treaty.

Intelligence experts said the military hardware was being prepared for long-term storage and thus did not pose an imminent threat to Western Europe. Although the transfer may not have violated the letter of the treaty, it certainly violated its spirit.

With the dispute over the conventional forces accord settled, Bush says he is willing to meet with Gorbachev this summer to sign an agreement in principle to cut strategic nuclear arms by one-third. This only will be possible, however, if Moscow is prepared to resolve several technical but potentially critical issues relating to verification procedures and counting rules.

The economic straits confronting the Soviet Union and the potential for Western aid have given the Bush administration increased leverage to negotiate a sharp reduction in Soviet and American nuclear stockpiles. President Bush should continue to insist that at least the outlines of such a deal be in hand before he travels to Moscow to meet again with Gorbachev.

I'm proud to be 'politically correct'

Just in case you've been paying more attention to the fight for the NBA championship or bipartisan sniping on Capitol Hill, heaters in the media have been having a field day dumping on an academic phenomenon called "political correctness."

PC is something like Plato's notion of "beholding beauty with the eye of the mind." Perception depends on the beholder. To advocates, "political correctness" is an academic movement to infuse the liberal arts curricula with more ideas and philosophies from long-ignored women, black and Hispanic scholars whose literary canons have been rigorously tested.

To opponents — white male traditionalists or white phallicists (WFPers) — PCers are guilty of diluting the integrity of the classics, lobbying for academic affirmative action (nothing is lower than that) and politicizing the classroom.

When The Wall Street Journal, The New Republic, Newsweek, New York magazine, The Atlantic and conservative columnist George Will wrote disparagingly about political correctness on campuses, PC opposition suddenly ballooned into a different sort of "politically correct" canon.

Unarguably, some PCers have gone too far in zealously trying to reform college curricula. As Coleridge so wisely observed: "Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess that itself will need reforming."

Yet I am a proud PC advocate. Contrary to the argument of paternalistic PC opponents of affirmative action, I don't suffer from any loss of intellectual confidence because affirmative action may have influenced my bringing the "first Negro" seven times. Nor do I know of a single black or woman who feels inadequate about benefiting from affirmative action. How did Woody Allen put it? Take the money and run!

But political correctness was very much on my mind a week ago when I was the commencement speaker at Atlantic Community College in New Jersey. I couldn't resist reciting the first five lines of Mark Antony's funeral oration from "Julius Caesar":

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears:

I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.

The evil that men do lives after them;

The good is oft interred with their bones;

So let it be with Caesar.

I then translated it into a politically correct version — the way PC critics see it:

Multicultural class associates, multi-gendered citizens of Rome and countrypersons, heed my plea:

I come to conduct a funeral service for this deceased person, not to shower that person with encomia.

The evil committed by persons of all races, nationalities, genders and sexual preferences lives after them:

The good is invariably buried with their osteal diversities.

So, let it be for the deceased before us.

OK, so it's not William Shakespeare. But if Shakespeare were alive today, he probably would be far more comfortable with the creative rappers than the petrified WFPers. He might even spare a few kindly thoughts for the misunderstood PCers.

Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess that itself will need reforming.

Base closure issue grows

WASHINGTON — As the presidential base closure commission enters its final month of deliberations about which military installations should be closed, the process has grown increasingly contentious, pitting community against community, and the commission against the Navy and powerful congressional committee chairmen.

In a move that surprised many — although the commission had said for weeks it was forthcoming — a list of 36 additional bases to be considered for closure or realignment was released. These are in addition to the initial 43 installations that the Pentagon itself originally proposed for closure.

The new list represents three separate things: the commission's growing belief that the Navy has not recommended enough facilities for closure; an ambitious plan suggested by one community to reorganize the military's electronics repair capability; and the insistence of many communities fighting to keep facilities open that the Pentagon erred in not naming other facilities instead of theirs.

The situation surrounding the Navy's proposed list of closures is a mess. Congress set up an elaborate process for this round of base closures: Each of the uniformed services was to apply a list of eight specific criteria to all facilities in determining which bases to close.

A subsequent investigation by the General Accounting Office found that both the Army and Air Force evaluated their bases against the required criteria in a consistent, well documented manner.

The Navy, however, left no paper trail for the GAO to follow. In fact, the GAO all but accused the Navy of trying to stonewall its investigation. Subsequent to this public revelation, the Navy held meetings with the commission's staff. It now appears the Navy substituted its own criteria for the ones prescribed by law, and it is now having difficulty translating its criteria to meet those set up by Congress.

Meanwhile, another GAO study — still in draft form and unreleased — concludes that even if the Navy closes all facilities on the Pentagon list, it will still have significant excess berthing capacity. So, in what may become a controversial move, the commission is now studying the Navy's five so-called "homeports" for possible closing.

The five — in Mississippi, New York, Alabama, Washington and Texas — are all in various stages of construction with hundreds of millions already spent and hundreds of millions more still to come. During the 1980s the Navy decided to build the facilities in order to disperse the fleet in the face of nuclear attack. That threat has all but been eliminated, so the commission is looking at the question of whether all or any of the homeports are needed.

In another controversial action the commission is also deciding whether it has jurisdiction to close or consolidate facilities of the U.S. Corps of Engineers. The Army submitted to Secretary of Defense Richard Cheney a list of Corps closures. But Cheney did not add them to his list because it is generally understood that the congressional Senate and House Public Works committees have jurisdiction over the Corps. The commission's staff disagrees, and a very messy jurisdictional fight may be brewing.

Many of the bases on the commission's additional list are the result of communities fighting to save their own bases. For instance, those fighting to save California's Ft. Ord have said that New York's Ft. Drum should have been the one the Army chose for closure. Now the commission has of ficially told the New York congressional delegation and the local community that it is looking at Drum.

In like manner the Long Beach Naval Shipyard is being considered because supporters of the Philadelphia Shipyard say the Navy erred in choosing it over Long Beach. Other examples include the Naval training stations at Great Lakes, near Chicago, and at San Diego, which are being pitted against the one in Orlando, Fla., which is on Cheney's list, and Plattsburg AFB in New York, which is being proposed instead of two on the Pentagon's list — Loring AFB in Maine and Castle AFB in California.

The new list has many in Congress in an uproar. Many in delegations near the bases on the new list are insisting that the commission does not have the power to add bases to the Pentagon's list. From the very beginning of the process the commission has insisted that it does have the power to add bases to the list and that it will do precisely that.

Capitol police need to wake up

WASHINGTON — The police who guard the U.S. Capitol let a man carry a loaded .357 Magnum through a security checkpoint unnoticed last month. The man was arrested later in the day when someone saw the gun. Oddly enough, the Capitol Police seem nonplused.

A Capitol Police spokesman told us that while the force is "very concerned about this incident" there's no way to stop these incidents from happening on occasion. He added that there would be no tightening of security at the Capitol as a result.

We found that odd, considering how the police reacted two years ago when we tested their security and found it wanting. We carried a plastic handgun into the Capitol, also unnoticed, and gave it to a senator. We wanted to illustrate a security problem that the police defensively claimed did not exist. They responded by searching journalists more thoroughly for a time. There was even a note posted at some of the guard desks to watch for Jack Anderson and his associates.

What we did was harmless. We wanted to prove that a plastic handgun could be slipped into a government building without detection, and we were right. The police, courteously, did not attempt to throw us in jail, so it is with some hesitation that we rattle their chain again, but here goes.

What Mark Alan Weisberger, 43, allegedly did last month was not harmless. The .357 Magnum with a four-inch steel barrel was simply wrapped in a towel and stuffed in a briefcase, according to police accounts. Our sources say that a Capitol Police officer missed the gun as it slid through the X-ray machine. Weisberger allegedly headed for a hearing of the Joint Economic Committee, which was chaired by a senator from his home state of Maryland, Democrat Paul Sarbanes. That was where a woman noticed the gun in the open briefcase.

Weisberger was charged with illegally carrying a gun on the Capitol grounds. His briefcase reportedly also carried letters to the White House urging the arrest of several politicians, and the letters were signed "World President." He apparently blamed Sarbanes and others for the loss of his federal job. Weisberger is now in jail while his attorney fights efforts to have him transferred to a federal facility for a mental evaluation.

After the incident, a Capitol Police spokesman told our Associate Jim Lynch, "We work as well as we can within the parameters that are set for us."

From where we sit, those parameters are pretty clear — the police agency gets $65 million a year from the taxpayers and in turn it protects our lawmakers. That isn't an easy job, but, given the fact that there are two cops for every member of Congress, it should not be impossible either.

The force is headed by one of its 25-year veterans, Frank Kerrigan, who has no illusions about who is in charge. The Capitol Police are run by a committee of politicians. It is the only police force in the country that is exempt from freedom-of-information laws. Records about crimes committed in and around the Capitol Building, from petty theft to drunken driving, are strictly confidential, and that's the way Congress likes it.

Congress has stymied Kerrigan's predecessors who tried to convert the force from security guards and tour guides to real cops. Entirely too much time is wasted on non-police duties, including chauffeuring members of Congress around in Lincoln Town Cars, a job that pays generous overtime.

We carried a plastic handgun into the Capitol, also unnoticed, and gave it to a senator.

Manager John Litton requesting the matter be put in the agenda for the June 20 meeting. Litton said, "I will make a proposal to direct our attorney to file a petition for declaratory relief in the circuit court."

Mayer Morris said he agreed that the matter should go into court for a judicial decision. "While I dislike going against our city attorney's opinion," he said, "we could ask for 10 attorney's opinions and they wouldn't equal a judicial decision on the matter."

Julian had earlier informed the commissioners that if the legality of the referendum be taken into court at the request of the city, the cost would range from $2,100 to $4,300, depending on the amount of research, depositions and other needs that might be required in the case. The item had previously been opened for public discussion during both of the earlier meetings, and need not be reopened again tonight, Morris said however. "If the commissioners choose to allow more public discussion, there is nothing wrong with that."

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. tonight in the City Commission Chambers of the Lake Mary city hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

Study says major powers losing control of weapons

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The major industrial powers have sold advanced weapons so widely around the globe that they gradually are losing control of key military technologies, congressional researchers said today.

A growing number of developing nations such as South Korea and Brazil now are exporting weapons they produced with know-how that originated in the United States, Europe or the Soviet Union, said a report by the Office of Technology Assessment.

Even though arms sales worldwide are declining, the expanding club of arms producers makes it more difficult to limit the spread of modern weapons, including ballistic missiles.

Resign

In May, a federal inmate who had been wanted in Seminole County and a dozen other counties and states escaped from the jail exercise yard when the correctional officer was diverted.

Although Rutledge publicly supported Rutledge in May after the escapes, he said this morning the jail problems this year contributed to his decision to accept Rutledge's resignation.

"I'm not saying that (the escapes) had no part in my decision," Rutledge said.

And though Rutledge again praised Rutledge with the statement "He knew corrections, he was a technician," Rutledge said he will expect a new administrator to make changes at the jail.

"There's the saying 'if it's not broke, don't fix it,'" Rutledge said. "I believe that if it's not broke, you haven't looked hard enough for the problem. There should always be a constant process of change."

Ironically, Rutledge was appointed to jail administrator by Palk to resolve problems at the jail. Prior to Palk's replacement of Rutledge's predecessor Capt. Jay Lehman, the jail had been plagued a problem with unruly and suicidal inmates and disgruntled correctional officers.

Rutledge praised Rutledge for improving the situation at the jail.

"He has done his job," he said.

Hulk Hogan linked to 'Steroid Doctor'

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A doctor accused of illegally prescribing steroids supplied Hulk Hogan, "Rowdy Roddy" Piper and other pro wrestlers with the bodybuilding drugs, sources said.

Dr. George Zahorian III, an osteopath and urologic surgeon, goes on trial Monday on charges of distributing or intending to distribute steroids and other controlled substances. He was indicted earlier this year.

The indictment accuses Zahorian of supplying anabolic steroids to five wrestlers from 1988 to 1990.

Shuttle Columbia heads for Florida

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The shuttle Columbia left California on Wednesday, hitching a piggyback jet ride toward its home port in Florida.

A modified Boeing 747 carrying the shuttle took off Wednesday morning from Edwards.

After an overnight stop at Biggs Army Airfield in El Paso, Texas, the craft will stop Thursday night at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio. NASA hopes to get the shuttle back to Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral by Friday night, but that depends on weather.

Captured Iraqi tank snared again

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. — An Iraqi tank captured during the Persian Gulf War was snared again — this time by state inspectors.

The 50-ton, Soviet made T-72 tank was on a flatbed truck Monday headed toward Fort Bragg when weigh station inspectors discovered it was too heavy and needed a special permit, state officials said.

The tank was impounded overnight. Because of the holdup, the tank arrived at Fort Bragg too late for a ceremony Tuesday morning.

Cheerios celebrates 50 years

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Cheerios, the cereal introduced to the nation on the Lone Ranger's radio show, celebrated 50 years on America's breakfast tables Wednesday.

Introduced by General Mills in 1941, the crispy, "O"-shaped cereal now is bought by more than 48 percent of all American households, the company said.

Cheerios accounts for almost a tenth of all ready-to-eat cereals sold in a $7 billion U.S. retail market. General Mills said.

From 1941 to 1949, Cheerios advertisements were broadcast during station breaks on "The Lone Ranger" radio show.

Bonn or Berlin?

BONN, Germany — In an emotional speech, Chancellor Helmut Kohl today appealed to federal lawmakers to vote for moving Germany's seat of government back to its historic home, Berlin.

Despite the chancellor's appeal it was still unclear whether the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament, would vote today to end Bonn's 42-year reign.

Various compromises have been proposed that would split the government between the two cities, at least for the time being.

Drawing on memories of the days when Berlin lay in rubble in World War II and was later divided by the Berlin Wall, Kohl declared "I am for Berlin."

"Berlin was the focus of Germany's division and of yearning for German unity," he said.

Gandhi minister chosen prime minister

NEW DELHI, India — P.V. Narasimha Rao, a former foreign minister and loyalist of slain Congress Party leader Rajiv Gandhi, was chosen by his party today to be India's next prime minister.

Rao was chosen unanimously by the newly elected Congress members of Parliament after a rival, Sharad Pawar, said he was withdrawing his candidacy for the sake of party unity. Pawar, a powerful Bombay-based politician, was chief minister of the western state of Maharashtra.

Congress won the lion's share of votes in national elections that concluded Saturday, but fell short of a majority. Rao's first task will be to shore up his government, either in a coalition or by guaranteeing reliable support from an outside party for a minority government.

Program preserves families

By KENNETH J. WILLS
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The boy said his parents had burned him with cigarettes; his mother said he had done it himself and made up a story of child abuse to tell his connectors at school.

In the past, a social worker would have put the boy in a foster home immediately, then tried to figure out who was to blame later.

But under a pioneering state program, the first-grader stayed with his parents while social workers began monitoring his family 24 hours a day for six weeks.

"In six weeks, you can reverse the risk to the child, stabilize the situation and get the family back on the right track," said Gary Stangler, director of the state Department of Social Services. "Our priority is, first, the preservation of the family."

More than 13,000 children in Missouri, and 330,000 nationwide, are removed from their homes each year because of abuse, neglect or abandonment.

Family preservation programs are under review in more than 20 states, but only two — Missouri and Michigan — are close to implementing them statewide.

Experts said the program does have its risks, particularly when children are left in potentially violent situations.

"There will come a time that a child will die when the kid is receiving family preservation services. But we always want to err on the side of safety for the child," said Phyllis A. Rozansky, executive director of Citizens for Missouri's Children, a non-profit organization that supports and monitors the family preservation program.

Its advocates argue that separation itself causes psychological problems and does not get to the root of the problems that led to the abuse.

"You cannot underestimate the trauma a child suffers from being separated from the family," Stangler said.

Officials said the program, started two years ago with seed money from the New York-based Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, could divert one-third of all foster care cases in Missouri when it is in place statewide by the end of next year.

The Legislature approved a $1.8 million increase this year for the program, for a total of $2.35 million.

The program is cheaper than foster care, state officials said. They said the average cost of placing a child in a Missouri foster home for a year is $8,600; it costs $3,000 per child to implement the family preservation program.

Counselors assigned to families are on call around the clock, offering advice, helping them cut through red tape at social service agencies, providing transportation and even waiting in lines with families.

Counselor David English, who is handling the case of the Kansas City child burned with cigarettes, said he hasn't dwelled on who really inflicted the burns.

Poll finds Americans intensely patriotic

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — An Associated Press poll taken just after the big welcome-home parades for the Gulf War troops found the American people intensely patriotic, with 87 percent saying they were "extremely proud" to be American.

The poll was taken June 12-16, after parades in Washington and New York gave the returning troops a flag-waving tribute.

The parades struck 29 percent of those surveyed as too much of a celebration. A majority, 62 percent, considered the parades about the right amount of celebration, and 8 percent said they were not enough. The telephone poll of 1,004 adults was taken by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa. It has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Ninety percent said they were proud of what the United States accomplished in Operation Desert Storm, and 95 percent deemed the U.S. military effort successful.

An even greater number, 97 percent, said they were either extremely proud or somewhat proud to be American.

The 97 percent figure was unchanged from a poll the Roper Organization took 10 years ago. But the AP poll showed 87 percent "extremely proud," compared with 81 percent a decade ago.

"The fact is that patriotism is not dead," said Joseph H. Flom, co-chairman of New York's parade. "I think maybe it is telling us it is time to feel good about some things rather than just beating ourselves about the head."

The poll found 57 percent rated the war successful, 39 percent called it partly successful and only 3 percent said it was not at all successful.

Protesters during the big parades argued that this "Vietnam syndrome" led to an unseemly jubilation at the U.S. victory, given the Iraqi death toll of more than 100,000.

World's drug kingpin quits, but drug trade expected to do well

By STEVEN GUTKIN
Associated Press Writer

MEDELLIN, Colombia — A ban on extraditions and a promise of leniency in his pocket, the world's most powerful drug boss settled today into a luxurious prison outside this city he has ruled by the bullet and bomb.

Billionaire cocaine lord Pablo Escobar was quoted by a Colombian journalist as saying he decided to surrender "because I could not remain indifferent before the longings for peace of the vast majority of the Colombian people."

The government has waged a costly two-year war on the country's drug traffickers that has demoralized Colombians, and Escobar's surrender Wednesday was widely viewed as part of a deal aimed at ending the bloodshed.

The 41-year-old Medellin cocaine cartel boss turned himself in just hours after a popularly elected government panel writing a new constitution voted to ban extraditions.

Park commeration missing

Sign praising volunteers to be restored

By ROCK FRENCH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A year ago, there was a large plaque at Park on Park, containing the names of local citizens who helped in the playground construction.

Now, it is gone and some people are upset.

But, there is hope for the sign is expected to be re-installed soon.

The property, on Park Avenue between 8th and 9th streets, has always been a park. According to Sanford Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan, "The land was designated for use as a park when the original plans for the city were laid out."

The transformation of the area into a children's park did not start until 1989. At that time, a group of citizens joined together in an 8-day long construction project. It involved building wooden structures, play-forts, and many other structures suitable for children to climb on or play in. Some of the construction work continued into the late hours of the night. The exact number of private citizens involved is not known, but authorities estimated nearly 2,000 hours of labor were volunteered during the time period.

Eugenio Beda and her family took part in the event. "My family and I volunteered roughly 78 manhours towards the successful construction of Park on Park," she said. "Within the time we were there, we purchased a dedication plaque, actually large ice cream sticks, which were being sold at the site for various prices according to size. Our family name was written on the plaque to be later displayed at the park with the rest that were purchased during fund-raising, which was boosted substantially by Rotarians in Sanford.

the construction." She said it took some time, but the display was finally erected at the west end of the park. She estimated the overall display to be 6 feet high and 4 feet wide.

Her question however, is, "What happened to the dedication plaque?" The only sign left at the park is one placed there by the Rotary Club of Sanford and installed by city crews when the park was first dedicated.

The chair person of the citizen project at the park in 1989 was Martha Yancy. "The city's Public Works department built us a frame," she said. "Then we took all of those popsicle sticks and glued them on. But over a period of 6 months or more, the glue began to melt and moisture from the rain had the display falling apart." She said the structure was eventually taken down with the hopes of rebuilding it, although it took a considerable amount of time to find someone willing to do the work.

The original plaque and the popsicle sticks are presently being stored by the Sanford Public Works Department. Local artist Molly Plueger is in the process of reworking the original names and efforts are nearing completion on restoring the entire structure.

Sanford Public Works director Jerry Herman estimated the work would be done soon. "We hope to put the plaque reinstalled at Park on Park by sometime this July," he said. Although complete arrangements are still being worked out, there is a possibility of another dedication ceremony when the structure is returned to the park.

MADD honors cops in county

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

Six law enforcement officials in Seminole County were among the 21 honorees at the Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) Law Enforcement Appreciation Night on Tuesday.

The Seminole County winners are: Lt. Jerry Riggins of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office; Sgt. Dennis H. Whirmire of the Sanford Police Department; Cpl. Virgil M. Pickleimer of the Lake Mary Police Department; Patrolman Ralph Mellon of the Casselberry Police Department; Master Patrolman Robert Fedi of the Altamonte Springs Police Department and Assistant State Attorney George McCormick of the 18th Judicial Circuit.

Chosen by the top officials in their respective departments, the half dozen award winners were thanked by MADD for their work in preparing and conducting community awareness campaigns or for making DUI arrests.

"These are the top cops in their departments as far as we are concerned," said Joe Lyons, chapter administrator for the Central Florida chapter of MADD.

Lyons said that MADD honors members of police and sheriffs departments as well as staff members of the state attorneys offices in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

"We tell the head honchos what we're looking for and they send us their best people," Lyons explained.

Sgt. Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department is the maintenance custodian of the department's breath intoxicilizer.

"He trains all our officers on how to do the testing, how to give testimony in court and things like that," said Lt. Mike Rotundo, the department's public information officer. "He is an expert witness and has done a lot of work helping with our drunk driving program."

According to Lyons the law enforcement officers who were honored have helped MADD cut down on drunk driving in Seminole County through their various efforts.

"We could not do our jobs without them," Lyons said.

Administration: states road-repair not enough

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration says it will press its fight to shift a greater share of the burden for paying for local and regional roads back to the states and cities.

But he said more needs to be done.

Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner applauded the five-year, $123 billion transportation bill passed by the Senate, 91-7, Wednesday night as "a step forward" to improve the nation's highways, bridges and mass transit systems.

"I am disappointed that the bill would reduce the funding required from state and local government for projects that address primarily local or regional needs at a time when more, not less, investment is needed," Skinner said.

He said the administration hopes that when the House takes up the bill, probably next month, "a more appropriate balance can be struck."

Several sites new on Black Heritage Trail

Associated Press

AMERICAN BEACH, Fla. — This oceanside community founded in the early 1920s by a black insurance company is one of a handful of sites named to Florida's Black Heritage Trail.

The trail, which includes specific monuments and entire communities, is a state-financed project to preserve and link the history of blacks and communities founded by blacks.

More than 150 sites were submitted for consideration. The selection process will take about two more months.

Also listed are Edward Waters College in Jacksonville, Fort Mose and the Lincolnville neighborhood in St. Augustine, and Florida's other three predominantly black colleges.

The trail sites will be featured in a brochure, which also will include annual black cultural festivals in Florida.

American Beach was named because "it represents the efforts of blacks to establish their own recreational area along the beach when they were barred from other beaches by segregation laws," said Joseph Taylor, who represents Northeast Florida on the commission which selects trail sites.

"It is justice. This is beautiful," said MaVynne Betach, an American Beach resident who backed the project.

The placement of American Beach on this trail is an overdue recognition of what the black community did to survive segregation, she said.

"You only hear the bad things about segregation. People don't know what black people did for themselves," she said. "This was a self-contained world. We pulled ourselves up by our bootstraps and we stuck together."

American Beach was founded by the owners of the Afro-American Life Insurance Co. of Jacksonville.

The Amelia Island community and other sites on the list could become eligible for historical preservation grants, Taylor said. It and other black communities will be studied in schools across the country, he said.

The oldest of Jacksonville's four colleges, Edward Waters College, was founded in 1866 by the African Methodist Episcopal Church. It was for former slaves.

Fort Mose, just north of St. Augustine, was occupied by escaped slaves from 1738 to 1763. The Spanish gave the slaves their freedom if they agreed to convert to Catholicism and protect the city's northern border from attack. Its location was confirmed in 1987 after years of searching.

Lincolnville historically has been St. Augustine's black residential and business community. Originally known as Africa, this community in the southwest section of the nation's oldest city also dates to the end of the Civil War.

Also selected to the trail were New Smyrna Beach, Florida A&M University in Tallahassee, Bethune-Cookman College in Daytona Beach and Florida Memorial College, in Dade County northwest of Miami.

Southern League: SunRays roll

FORT MILL, S.C. — Cheo Garcia had a three-run triple and Mike Trombley scattered four hits over eight innings to lead the Orlando SunRays to a 7-1 victory over the Charlotte Knights on Wednesday night.

The Knights took a 1-0 lead off of Trombley (7-5) in the bottom of the first after a walk, single and ground out. But Trombley, who struck out nine, settled down to fire seven shutout innings.

Garcia's bases-loaded triple highlighted a four-run third inning for Orlando as the SunRays took the lead for good.

Southern League: Suns fall

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Shortstop Vinny Castilla hit a two-run home run to boost the Greenville Braves to a 5-1 victory over the Jacksonville Suns.

Relief pitcher Bill Taylor earned his third save this season after replacing starter Turk Wendell, who pitched 8 and two-thirds innings.

Wendell, 8-2, scattered 5 hits, allowing one run, while striking out four.

The Braves scored two runs early off Suns starter and loser Dave Fleming, 7-3. Sean Ross led off the frame with a single and scored on a groundout by Castilla, the first of three RBIs on the night for the shortstop.

In the eighth inning, Brian Champion doubled and scored on Rick Morris' RBI single through a drawn in infield, making the score 5-0.

Would Astros move to Florida?

HOUSTON — Investors who want to bring professional baseball back to the nation's capital say they have not contacted Houston Astros owners, but are trying to decide if they want to buy an existing team.

However, Chip Akridge, president of Metropolitan Washington Baseball, on Tuesday said his group is not looking at any team in particular.

Houston Sports Association president Bob Harter said Tuesday that an Astros move "is a realistic possibility if something reasonable does not happen."

On Monday, Lou Susman, who is managing the sale of the Astros, said that a lack of suitable buyers is forcing the Houston team's owners to open the sale to investors in the four cities who failed to win an expansion franchise: Washington, St. Petersburg, Orlando and Buffalo, N.Y.

Sanford Orioles pull out two one-run Legion wins

From Staff Reports

DeLAND — One of the joys of watching high school baseball is that anything can happen.

The Sanford Orioles, Seminole High School's summer team, won a pair of one-run games from North Central American Legion of Jacksonville, 7-6 and 5-4, Wednesday night at the DeLand Airport Complex to improve to 12-2 despite getting no-hit in the second game.

"I'm proud of the way the team played," said Orioles' manager

Kenne Brown. "They never gave up and came through in key situations."

Sanford used a four-run fifth inning to key the 7-6 victory in the first game. In the nightcap, Pittman of North Central tossed a no-hitter but walked six and threw four wild pitches as his defense committed three errors.

"What can you say when you get no hits and score five runs?" said Brown. "We capitalized on their mistakes and took advantage of our breaks. We forced errors. That's what you have to do to win ball games."

The doubleheader sweep is more significant considering that mainstays Dave Eckstein, Jeremy Churnat, Matt Freeman, Scott Ferguson and Robby Morgan are playing in a tournament in St. Louis.

As a result, Sanford used some players that normally don't see much playing time.

"These kids were very hungry," said Brown. "Many of our regular starters were in St. Louis, and these kids were hungry and wanted to win. They won two games against a very good team."

Todd Braden saw his first action of the summer for the Orioles, pitching in both games. He picked SANFORD — Wednesday evening was a position round at Pinehurst Park in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Softball League action.

In a battle of the league leaders, the Wrecking Crew (6-3), which had been alone in first place, dropped into a tie with Ed Bussard's Pro Bass Guide (6-3) as Bussard's erupted for 13 runs in the sixth inning to win going away, 16-8.

Bikini Beach (5-4) missed a chance to make it a three-way tie for the lead when H. D. Realty (6-4) scored three runs in the top of the seventh inning to pull out a 13-10 victory.

H. D. Realty moves into third place only one-half game behind the leaders while Bikini Beach drops to fourth place just one game out of first.

The evening began with Regency Mazda (5-5) making the scramble for the top a five-team race with an 8-3 victory over Enaley Inc. (0-9), moving to within 1½ games of the lead.

After a scoreless first inning, Regency Mazda took the lead with two runs in the bottom of the second. Three runs in the bottom of the fourth made the advantage 5-2.

Enaley got the three runs right back in the top of the fifth, cutting the lead margin to 5-3, but Regency Mazda pushed another run across in the home half of the fifth, then added two more runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Leading the 11-hit attack for Regency Mazda were Carl L. (triple, two singles, two runs scored), Wayne Kelly (double, single, two runs scored), Jeff Sladek and Don Causseaux (two singles and two

But in the top of the fifth, the first five batters in the H.D. Realty lineup reached base and scored, giving the visitors a 10-8 advantage. Bikini Beach knotted the score at 10-10 with a pair of runs in the bottom of the sixth, only to see H.D. Realty score three times in the top of the seventh.

Florida Manor (6-2) kept pace with an 8-4 win over Hall's Stucco (4-5).

In the first game of the evening, Hopkin's Meats (5-3) remained in third place only one game behind the leaders with a 5-3 decision over Smitty's Plumbing (2-7).

Hopkin's Meats led the start, scoring a run in the top of the first and second innings before rallying for three runs in the fifth.

Smitty's Plumbing, which had managed just two baserunners through the first four innings, matched Hopkin's three-run outburst in the bottom of the fifth. But they would get no closer, collecting only one hit during the sixth and seventh innings.

Phone bill charges add up to trouble

DEAR ABBY: I work with my brother-in-law. While routinely going over his telephone bill, I noticed there were recurring calls to the same telephone number made only on weekends and after work hours — all charged to my brother-in-law's private office line. Being suspicious, I called the number myself, and a woman answered!

I confronted my brother-in-law and told him either to tell my sister about this woman he has been calling — or I would. Well, he acted like I was crazy for even suggesting there was any impropriety.

I figured if I was really wrong in my suspicions, then he would tell my sister what I had accused him of, but so far she hasn't mentioned anything about it, and he has been overly nice to me.

ADVICE

Should I sit and watch this go on, or tell my sister of my suspicions? Or should I just keep checking the telephone bills? Meanwhile, I can barely stand the sight of my brother-in-law, and I can hardly look my sister in the eye.

KEEPING COOL. DEAR KEEPING COOL: Keep your mouth shut and your nose out of your brother-in-law's business. As an employee, you may be privy to bills and confidential information, but until you know something, you are only guessing.

DEAR ABBY: "Four Eyes and Well-Adjusted" should try my solution for all those boorish men who tell me, "You'd look better without your glasses."

I slowly remove them, and exclaim, "What a coincidence! You look better without my glasses, too!"

Severe neurological disorder causes advanced handicap

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is transverse myelitis, and how is it found in a person? Does it affect the brain, muscles and nerves?
DEAR READER: Acute transverse myelitis is a severe and unusual neurological disorder of unknown cause, marked by sudden back pain followed by weakness and numbness that ascends from the feet. The affliction often progresses to an advanced handicap: paraplegia (loss of leg movement) and loss of urine and bowel control. Transverse myelitis resembles viral infection of the spinal cord (meningoencephalitis) and may be associated with viral illness (such as flu), the use of intravenous drugs (such as heroin) and blood vessel inflammation (vasculitis). The condition is differentiated from spinal abscesses and tumors by a spinal tap (to see if there are white blood cells in the spinal fluid) and a CT scan (special X-rays to examine the spinal cord).
DEAR DR. GOTT: About three years ago, I suffered a rather serious stroke. Fortunately, I have recovered most of my faculties but suffer from dizziness and the inability to focus my eyes. The specialists I see have no answers. Do you?
DEAR READER: You are fortunate to have recovered almost completely from a serious stroke, which may have been caused by a blood clot that interrupted blood flow to a part of your brain. Under these circumstances, brain tissue does not regenerate; some degree of handicap ordinarily persists. This disability can result in permanent paralysis and inability to speak. Evidently in your case, you were able to overcome the major effects of the stroke, but you have been left with dizziness and difficulty focusing your eyes. I think you might be helped by a "team" approach. Depending on the reason for your inability to focus, an eye specialist may be able to help you. For example, in people with weakness of the muscles that control movement of the eyeballs, special glasses — called prism lenses — may partially correct the imbalance.

WATTS

By Phillip Alder
 Besides his technical edge, the expert has another advantage over a weaker player: table presence. This is a seemingly extrasensory perception that helps him to "divine" or "feel" where the cards are lying. It is hard to explain table presence, but often it is no more than drawing the correct conclusion from an opponent's unexpected hesitation. One of Britain's greatest players ever, the late Maurice Harrison-Gray, did brilliantly on today's deal. If you wish to test yourself, cover the East-West cards and pick your line of play in seven hearts, in view of the fact that East, a good player, tranced appreciably before his final pass. West then led the spade two. South took a slight risk in bidding seven, but he expected the contract to depend on a finesse at worst.

The "normal" play after South wins the spade lead in dummy is to cash dummy's heart ace, picking up the trump suit if East has all five or if West began with a singleton 10 or jack. But why did East pause over seven hearts? As he was an expert, he couldn't have been thinking of doubling with all five missing trumps. There would be no percentage in doing that. He must have been thinking of sacrificing in seven spades at the favorable vulnerability. This suggested he was short in hearts. Backing his judgment of the position, Gray led a low heart from dummy at trick two, collecting East's 10. At trick three, he led a low heart from hand and finessed dummy's nine. When it held, he claimed 13 tricks: three spades, five hearts, four diamonds and one club. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 June 21, 1991

A substantial amount of the financial stress you've experienced recently looks like it will be alleviated in the year ahead. Romantic and social trends could also take a pleasant upturn.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let your curiosity get the better of you today and cause you to become involved in the complications of a friend. Once immersed, you may have no time for your own interests. Cancer, get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Cancer's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to placate another, you may agree to do something against your better judgment today. You're better off saying "no" than making uncomfortable commitments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Let the old adage, "The best things in life are free," serve as your axiom for behavior today. Avoid any type of involvement that costs money.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The rules you may have to play by today are likely to be established by others. Resisting and complaining, though, will only make things more difficult.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There are indications that you may not hold yourself in the same high regard as your associates do. For peace of mind, trust their opinions, not yours.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are individuals who will help advance your self-interests today and others who aren't in a position to do so. Regardless of who delivers, treat everyone equally.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Two important objectives can be achieved today, provided you don't trip over your own feet. Try not to let your ego get in the way of sound methods and tactics.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions in general are rather favorable for you today, but you may view things from a negative perspective and take the edge off your opportunities.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be a welcome addition to social involvements today, provided you don't use any occasion to serve as a platform for furthering your personal ambitions. Keep everything light.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Individuals who truly know you will see nothing but good in you today. Unfortunately, the fault-finders may be those who are in the position to give your present aspirations a boost.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) As long as you are industrious and productive today, Lady Luck will remain in your corner. However, if you start to slow down, she's likely to throw in the towel. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
