resentative.

Telephone No. 148.

Where is the editor of the Sopchoppy paper?

The statement of the First National Bank in this issue of THE HERALD shows a great increase of business for that institution.

If the land around Sanford continues to move as it did this week there will be very little of it for sale in a few months.

The Sanford & Everglades Railway is receiving favorable comment throughout the State and THE HERALD is proud of the fact that it is one of our home enterprises, developed by home capital.

Elsewhere in this issue is an able article upon deepening the channel of the St. Johns from our able Congressman, Hon. Frank Clark. The editor of THE HERALD intends to have Frank make a visit to Sanford at the close of the present session and our people will then have the pleasure of hearing him upon this vital question.

The latest title for Sanford seems to have caught the popular chord. Editor Howard of the Reporter-Star has the following:

First the "Gate City," next the "Celery City," and now "Lucky Sanford." "What's in a name?" Everything, and after all the changes we believe the last adopted is the most striking, because the name of the "lucky" town is indicated. Let her go at that—"Lucky Sanford."

Washington and Lincoln are the two names and fames that America gave to the world. They shall not die. Each year their hallowed memories are made the occasion of teaching the rising generation true patriotism, love of country, and a pure-hearted, blameless life. Not only in our own beloved land are these names the rallying ones, of all liberty lovers, but the world has appropriated them and made them her own.

THE QUESTION OF ADAPTABILITY.
In this issue under the head of "Voice of the People" is an article from the able pen of J. N. Whitner upon "Adaptability." It deals with the question of new people engaging in the trucking business with no previous knowledge of Florida soil and climate and gives an example of how G. C. Chamberlain made good this year by surmounting all difficulties and displaying the grit and determination that makes victory out of defeat.

WEATHER AS AN ASSET.

The Times-Union Short Talks man is still harping on the Orlando weather report and even attempts to drag in the editor of THE HERALD in the following:

Orlando is very sensitive about the weather report and takes the Times-Union to task about publishing an erroneous statement regarding same. The Reporter-star draws the mantle of charity over the affair and explains that while the Times-Union stated Orlando to be as cold as Jacksonville they did not really mean to say so. It is now up to the Times-Union to put Brother Howard on the back and all will be peace and automobiles in Orlando again. Sanford Herald. The fact of the matter is, the Times-Union made no such statement. It merely printed the report of the local weather bureau, for which it is in no degree responsible, and the statement which so excited the Or-landites occurred in that. As a matter of honor and good policy, the Times-Union never tampers with the official reports sent in to it. The information appeared under the sub-head, "From Assistant Observer Hurd," and quotation marks appeared at the beginning of each paragraph.
Now, what have Editors Howard and Holly, who are newspaper men and should understand the meaning of sub-heads and quotation marks, to say of their criticisms of the Times-Union? We pause for a reply!

No reply is needed from THE HERALD.
Sanford has no kick coming from the weather reports or the weather itself, and we respectfully refer the above to our friend, Howard, of the Orlando Reporter-Star.

HONORABLE PARK TRAMMELL

At a recent meeting of the Internal Improvement Trustees Mr. Trammell offered a resolution to the effect that as a majority of the suits against the Board had been settled, and no great amount of litigation is now pending, the trustees should not employ a general counsel for the present year, but turn over to the attorney general, without additional compensation, all legal matters for adjustment. To give one an idea of the approximate saving to the State by the adoption of this policy, it may be mentioned that in 1907 Hon. W. S.

Jennings received $18,000 for acting as such counsel, and last year his remuneration amounted to $17,800, plus expenses.
The people of Florida made no mistake when they elected Hon. Park Trammell to the office of attorney-general. His policy will always be toward the greatest good for the people.

MOB STARTS TO BURN NEGRO

Lakeland Stirred Up Over Assault On Young Lady

Lakeland, Feb. 11.—Charles Crumley, the negro, arrested on suspicion of being the man who attempted to criminally assault Miss Irma Newell on last Tuesday, was taken from the jail at Lakeland yesterday by a mob of one thousand men, bound to a stake, faggots heaped about his body and oil poured over the mass with the intention of burning him. However, Sheriff John Logan, his brother Alonzo Logan, and Special Deputy E. A.
Mullen pleaded for calm action, and the negro declaring he could prove an alibi, was spared.

Crumley was marched back to jail and a number of prominent men have sworn to prevent any further attempt upon his life. Many armed men are in town.

Miss Newell declares that Crumley looks like the man who attempted the crime, but is not certain.

As soon as it was learned that the negro had been arrested the mob surrounded the jail and Marshal Skipper was pounced upon, the keys taken from him and the negro was soon in the grasp of the frantic mob. A chain was put around the victim's neck and he was dragged to the scene of the crime. Here a pile of wood was heaped up and saturated with kerosene and the negro led to it and commanded to confess. He protested his innocence, but this doubtless would have had no effect had not Er. Dunklin, the girl's grandfather, declared that he was positive the wrong man was about to be punished. This with the resolute action of Sheriff Logan, who arrived at this moment, induced the mob to allow the negro to again be taken to jail.

Mrs. J. J. Cowan.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 10th, a large congregation assembled at the Methodist Church, to pay the last tribute of respect to the good woman whose name heads this notice. Mrs. Cowan was born in Volusia County, Florida. She was 46 years old when death claimed her on the 9th. She had been married to J. J. Cowan 27 years and six months.
She was a devoted member of the Methodist Church. She lived her religion. The universal sentiment was, her life was enough. She leaves a husband, five daughters, one sister, one brother, with other relatives, and many friends to mourn her departure.

Mrs. Cowan has passed from among us, but it is an unspeakable comfort to the church, and ought to be a solace to the deeply afflicted husband and children, that she illustrated the doctrines of the Christian religion, and died testifying all was well.

May we all meet again.
—A. E. HOUSEHOLDER.

For Sweet Charity's Sake

The Charity Ball to be given in Orlando next Thursday, Feb. 18, promises to eclipse all former efforts in this line.
The Charity Ball is looked forward to each year by the people of Orange county as the benefits go to the Church Home & Hospital and the county receives the benefit. The ball is always a grand event and this year will be no exception to the rule.

Sanford is especially invited to attend the Charity Ball at Orlando on the 18th.

unable to write and express her thanks,
but will do so whenever her condition im-

An Epitome of the Week's Most Important Happenings in the State's Domain.

At various points in Florida where Hon. W. J. Bryan has stopped during his visit to the state he has been welcomed by large gatherings of people, who listened to his words with rapt attention.

The annual state encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in St. Petersburg, beginning Feb. 17th. It is advised that visiting comrades take advantage of the railroad special rates to Tampa rather than try to secure other rates.

A negro named Bowman, living in Palatka, blew his wife's brains out during a quarrel last Saturday night. He then gave himself up to the authorities.

Hayward Summers, 13 years old, an only child, died at Largo this week from blood poisoning, the result of a wound received from a toy rifle.

F. E. Purse, the young man who attempted to commit suicide in Jacksonville last August by cutting the veins in his wrist, and failed, has succeeded at last, having taken a large dose of arsenic last week while stopping in Atlanta.

On Monday, Feb. 22, a party of twenty Canadian girls will visit Florida to compare climatic notes and enjoy the beauties of a Florida winter.

Senator Tallaferra is endeavoring to get an appropriation of $20,000 from Congress to be used for the construction, equipment and maintenance of schools for Seminole Indian youth.

P. F. Jenkins, the newly appointed engineer for the Everglades drainage work, has been looking the situation over in the vicinity of Miami, preparatory to pushing the work from that point.

B. M. Benras of Lake Magdalene section, near Tampa, exhibited ripe peaches in that city last week. They were grown on his home place and were of good flavor. Mr. Benras had a few ripe peaches in January.

Dr. James H. Randolph has been appointed chief physician of the State Insane Asylum in place of Dr. R. L. Goodbread, who has tendered his resignation, to take effect April 1.

The Unitarians of Jacksonville have just completed and dedicated a house of worship.

The Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Co. of Baltimore, Md., is to improve its Jacksonville service by new steamers and wharfage.

Auto races on Daytona beach will be held in March, commencing about the 22d. Wm. S. Jordan has purchased for $20,000 the Dewhurst homestead of some 400 acres near Ortega. It will be divided into building lots and put on the market.

A new Wesleyan Memorial church is being built in Atlanta on the site of the old edifice, at a cost of about $200,000.

Woodmen of the World, jurisdiction V, of Florida, will hold their annual convention in Tampa during March. This is the first convention under the new jurisdiction organization.

Fritz Johnson, 35 years of age, was run over by a street car in Tampa last Saturday and was so badly injured that he died in a few minutes. He was trying to avoid two approaching teams when he was struck by the car. He leaves four children bereft of parents, the mother having died a few months ago. The motorman and conductor of the car were arrested, but gave bail. The remains of the dead man were sent to Plant City for burial.

Tampa's fire chief now speeds to fires in an automobile recently bought for the department.

Morris, the lion tamer now performing at the state fair, had a narrow escape from death the other day. He went into the cage of Leo, the big lion, to feed him raw meat. Leo was in an ugly mood and wouldn't partake of the meat. Morris began kicking the beast in the ribs and retreated toward the door of the cage, reaching it just in time to slam it shut just as the lion made a spring. As it was, the animal's claws went between the bars of the cage and left bad-looking scratches on the trainer's face.

Contract has been let to J. J. Cain of Columbia, S. C., for the erection of the new building for the blind, deaf and dumb at St. Augustine. The bid was $87,427.

Florida East Coast Ry. system has been made into two divisions. Northern headquarters at St. Augustine; Southern headquarters at Titusville.

THEY FEAR FLORIDA CABBAGE

Up-State Growers Think It Will Keep Prices of Old Stock Down

New York, Feb. 8.—Under heavy receipts of Florida new cabbage and a dull demand, the market for old stock took to the toboggan this week. Western New York dealers sent liberal quantities of old stock in the market and prices declined to $30@35 a ton. The volume in which Florida stock is arriving has inspired western New York shippers with fear that it is not good policy to hold the balance of their cabbage any longer in expectation of higher prices. The cold snap in Florida is expected to curtail shipments for the next two weeks.

Late arrivals of Florida cabbage showed the effects of frost. The damage was done on the way here; otherwise the quality was excellent. The stock moved slowly at $2@2.50 a barrel crate. The demand for red cabbage was inactive and sufficient to absorb the offerings. Quotations were $4@4.5. A few small lots of imported Danish red brought $20. Savannah stock moved slowly. In quality and appearance it was inferior to the Florida offerings. Prices were $1.50@2 a barrel crate.

The demand for this variety was dull and there were accumulations almost every day.—Produce News.

The Royal Hungarian Orchestra

Sanford people and their visitors will be offered a rare treat on next Wednesday night at the opera house. The Royal Hungarian Orchestra is one of the finest orchestras in this country, being composed of thoroughly competent musicians. Several of this company have been connected with the greater symphony orchestras, both in this country and in Europe. This orchestra won the first prize medal in competition with many others at the Columbian exposition.

Louis Lipski, the conductor, is one of the ablest teachers in the country. He has appeared before the King of England and other royal personages.

The New York Herald says: "To speak of the playing of the Royal Hungarian Orchestra in such terms of praise as it deserves would be to use expressions that have the appearance of extravagance. If the general public knew how seldom musical performances merit unqualified praise it would appreciate how great a pleasure is afforded the musical reviewer in listening to efforts that merit only approval."

The orchestra will be the third number of the High School Lyceum course. Those who have season tickets may take them to Newlan's drug store, where seats will be reserved free. General admission, 50c; reserved seats, 75c. School pupils, general admission, 35c; reserved seats, 50c. The performance will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

OVIDEO OCCURRENCES

Special correspondent to The Herald.
Mrs. Dr. Henry Foster, one of our regular winter visitors, has arrived from her Northern home to spend the winter here and escape the rigors of the severe weather now being experienced in the North. Dr. Foster (deceased) will be remembered, spent his winters here, owing a beautiful home at Lake Charm. He was a Christian gentleman of sterling qualities and unblemished character. He accomplished much good in Oviedo in a financial and spiritual way, ever ready to lend a helping hand toward the advancement and upbuilding of the community, and was beloved by all who enjoyed the privilege of his acquaintance and companionship. He erected the Foster Memorial Chapel at Lake Charm, and during his lifetime was a staunch supporter of the Methodist Church here. Dr. Foster also supported a large sanitarium in Clifton, New York—a refuge and haven of rest for the ill of afflicted humanity—where a great and noble work has been successfully carried on for years.

Miss Taylor, an attractive young lady of Georgia is here, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCall.

A contingent of our Northern friends have arrived to spend the winter and are pleasantly domiciled at Lake Charm, the inimitable rendezvous of beauty and comfort. As yet we have been unable to ascertain the names of all, but we notice with pleasure among the representation our inevitable and welcome visitors, devotees at the "shrine" of Florida Climate, Dr. Kinney and daughter of New York State.

E. Y. Mallory, a prominent citizen of Macon, Ga., and wife, arrived last week. Mr. Mallory is an ardent sportsman, and every winter comes down to enjoy the excellent hunting and fishing afforded here.

Mrs. B. F. Wheeler visited her sister, Mrs. Carter, in Sanford, for several days last week.

In the Foster Memorial Chapel at Lake Charm Sunday afternoon services were held and well attended. "An eminent divine of Canandaigua, N. Y., who is spending the winter here, occupied the pulpit and favored the congregation with an able sermon replete with rhetoric and logic—truly a pleasing and convincing address—a product which can only emanate from the fertile resources of a highly educated and polished gentleman. We noticed with pleasure tastefully grouped around the altar, several orchids, fine specimens from the gardens of T. L. Mead, who takes great pleasure in the propagation of these beautiful flowers. The entire community hopes for a continuation of these delightful services on the Sabbath.

APOPKA ITEMS

Special Correspondence to The Herald:
Mrs. F. G. Connell and her daughter, Mrs. Annie Cummings, of Oakland were here recently visiting relatives.

Miss Keeling, of Leesburg is the charming guest of her friend, Miss Nellie Wilson. Messrs. Cunningham and Bird are now doing the East Coast. They may extend their trip to Cuba and return to Apopka via Tampa and the state fair.

Gillon McClure was over from Sanford this week on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McClure. He reports the celery crop as beginning to move now pretty rapidly. Prices are good. The McClure brothers, A. J. Lovell and Harry Witherington comprising the Apopka contingent in the Celery City, all have a prospect of doing well this season.

Miss Wanda Combs is at Coleman, preparing the young people of that community for a W. C. T. U. medal contest. Miss Combs herself has received quite a number of medals in such contests on account of her proficiency in elocution. In fact, she has received so many medals that she might well be called "The Lady of the Decoration."

Rev. L. D. Geiger spent part of last week in Tampa and while there visited the state fair. He reports that much of interest is to be seen, although a good many exhibits are not yet in place. With many people, however, the races seem to be the "most principal" thing.

Mrs. D. B. Williams has gone to Hazelhurst, Ga., to visit her mother for a few days, after which she will go to an Atlanta hospital for an operation. Dr. Williams will go up and be with her through the ordeal. Their many friends will deeply sympathize with them.

The ladies of the Methodist church held a bazaar last Friday night in the room under the Masonic hall. A good many things were offered for sale, including pillow, sandwiches, cake, coffee, home made candy, etc. There was a fine assortment of valentines and this table was presided over by Miss Wanda Combs, Misses Kate Witherington and Jennie Turner had charge of the candy booth. A most pleasant time was had and some $40 was realized. Mrs. J. J. Combs was at the head of the enterprise and she received many compliments on the business-like way in which its affairs were conducted.

Hardie D. Geiger, who is studying law in Wake Forest College, North Carolina, dropped out of school a day or two last week, went over to Raleigh and took the examination given by the Supreme Court. He passed with creditable marks, was admitted to the bar and given a license to practise in all courts in the state. However, he will continue in college for at least a year and a half yet, doing work with reference to a Bachelor of Laws degree. "Colonel" Geiger's friends here sincerely congratulate him on the success he is achieving as a student of law.

The members of the Baptist church had hoped that they could have the opening service in the new church building next day. However the doors and windows have been delayed and the service will have to be postponed until the fourth Sunday in the present month. By that time the building will have been fully completed and your correspondent is authorized to hereby invite everybody, including people of contiguous communities to attend the opening service. This building will be one of the handsomest and most up-to-date village churches in Florida, having baptistry, Sunday school rooms, a prayer meeting room and an unusually pleasing auditorium. The location is both central and beautiful. Our Baptist friends and the whole community have just cause to feel proud of this fine new building. Much credit is due Rev. R. N. Cate, who has charge of the work. Mr. Cate is a skilled mechanic and all of the work from foundation to finish is first-class in every respect.

The cold-blooded cruelty of mankind is responsible for the slaughter of six inoffensive girl kittens this week as their infantile bodies were discovered floating in the dark and turbid waters of Pump Branch last Saturday. One can only imagine the feelings of the mother cat as she realized that her feline offsprings were no more.

Gil Slusher went to the mourners' bench last Sunday and got up and told of a lot of mean things he wanted forgiveness for. One thing was he threw four dead cats in Aleck Smoot's cistern two weeks ago and everybody in church got up and forgive him but one, and that was Aleck, who went outside and waited for Gil and gave him the durndest licking he ever had. It's thought Aleck's conduct will much discourage other sinners from telling their cussed actions.

Reuben Glue has rented his two-room cottage on Plunkett avenue to Mose Huffstetter and will move his family into rooms over Gabe Mullen's meat shop.

St. Lingenfelter has bought a half interest in Seth Perkins' two-cow dairy.

Amos Bolliver's hired girl has tendered her resignation and accepted a position in Bill Cheezum's family to do general housework. She comes of revolutionary stock and has refused several offers of marriage.

Boys will be boys, but then Blitzer boys are positively devilish. They sheared Aunt Mandy Gulliver's horse's tail last Sunday night and threw two dead cats in Bill Joslyn's cistern. They need reprimanding, to say the least.

Skinny Jane Corkins is suffering from nervous constipation and bilious liver.

St. Blizzard's two-year-old twins wore thier first long pants last Sunday and looked quite comical. The little fellows seemed to realize that they had got past the colicky stage of thier existence.

Clemantny Slocum is taking treatment for warts and freckles.

Cyrenus Hybarger's wall-eyed son eloped with one of Zeke Slusher's spindle-shanked girls last Sunday and went to Trilby on thier honeymoon trip, where they have rich relations.

The printers on the Macaroni Bungalow starter struck yesterday because Editor Steve Baxter was wearing a pair of non-union made trousers. Steve hasn't got but one pair of breeches and he says he'll disunionize his office before he'll buy a new pair.

Sam Dingman's new milch cow was hurled into eternity by a Sanford & Everglades ear last week and her three-weeks-old calf is being brought up on a bottle. It raises one's sympathies to see the infantile cowlet trying to obtain nourishment in such a modern way.

The Lady of The Lilacs.

By Philip Kean.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Sherwood called her "The Lady of the Lilacs" because always on spring days there was a bunch of lilacs on her desk, offerings from the girls to a best loved teacher.

"You simply can't help loving her," Betty Baynes said to Sherwood in her emphatic young girl way. "You simply can't help it, Uncle Jack."

"I don't see," Uncle Jack ventured, "where her particular charm comes in."

"She's so sweet," Betty analyzed, "and dainty—and—and—sad"—Betty was getting into deep water. "Anyhow, she's lovely."

Sherwood always called for his niece after school and drove her out to Sherwood farm, where Betty and her widowed mother made their home with him. The farm was beyond the town—a great place, with great barns, where were housed the beautiful horses that had made the farm famous.

As he sat in the trap waiting he could look right into the windows of the room where Miss Duval taught, and he could see her head bent over her desk, with the great bunch of lilacs making a background.

"Look here," he said to Betty one afternoon as they drove away in the sunshine, "I'd like to paint her that way."

"What way?" asked Betty.

"Paint Miss Duval—just her head, bent a little, against a background of lilac blooms, with a circle of gold inclosing it like a halo."

"Oh, Uncle Jack," Betty's face was beaming. "It would be beautiful."

"I'd call it 'The Lady of the Lilacs,'" Sherwood planned. "By George, Betty, I believe it would be the best thing I've done."

But "The Lady of the Lilacs" when approached refused to be painted. "Oh, please tell Mr. Sherwood," she said breathlessly, "that I couldn't think of such a thing. I am sure he can find a better model, Betty."

"He can't," Betty said obstinately. "Please, please, Miss Duval."

The little teacher shook her head. "Don't insist, dear," she said. "I really cannot."

"Now, what do you think of that, Uncle Jack," said Betty, almost in tears, as they drove away that night.

"I don't know what to think," said Sherwood. "I hate to give up the idea."

"Well, don't give it up," Betty said. "You know you always get your own way when you want it, Uncle Jack."

"Yes, I do," said Sherwood thoughtfully.

Several days later when Betty came out of the school arm in arm with the little teacher Sherwood met them at the door.

"Won't you let us drive you home, Miss Duval?" he urged. "We will go the long way round, and it will do you good."

Miss Duval hesitated. "Oh," she began, but Betty interrupted: "Of course you'll go. You've never driven behind the Buckner team, and they are such beauties."

It developed that Miss Duval was from Kentucky and that she loved horses. "I used to ride a great deal out there," she admitted.

"Why can't you ride here?" Sherwood demanded. "We have a half dozen ladies' mounts in the stables that are growing fat and lazy for want of exercise."

"I haven't a habit," Miss Duval demurred.

"I have two," Betty announced promptly, "and you can wear one."

On Saturday Miss Duval in Betty's covert cloth habit and three cornered hat and mounted on Hulda Buckner was a transformed creature.

"I thought she was pretty," by Sherwood's mental comment, "but, by Jove, she's a beauty."

And more and more he yearned to paint her.

To that end he paid her most devoted attention, and it became a regular thing for the little teacher to spend the week ends at Sherwood farm. Betty's mother found her charming.

"I am glad to have Betty under her influence," she told her brother. "She is a lady to her finger tips."

"Yes," Sherwood agreed moodily, "but I wish she would let me paint her as 'The Lady of the Lilacs.'"

His sister stared indignantly. "I don't believe you ever look at a woman except from the standpoint of art."

Sherwood laughed. "I don't fall in love easily, if that is what you mean," he said and shrugged his shoulders and went on.

That afternoon he sauntered down to the end of the big garden where Dulcis Duval was pouring tea. The little table was set under a lilac bush, and the fragrance of the blossoms filled the air.

Betty, on the other side of the bush, was playing tennis with a boy from town. Mrs. Baynes had been called to the house, and Sherwood was alone with the Lilac Lady.

"I wish you would let me paint your picture," he said to her.

"No," she said slowly. "I am not sure that I like the idea of my picture hanging in a gallery for the public to gaze at."

"Surely," Sherwood urged, "one should not keep beauty hidden."

"I am not beautiful," she said quietly. She leaned back in the big wicker chair. Her face was very pale, and there were shadows under her eyes. Behind her the lilacs tossed their pale purple plumes in the spring breeze.

"I am not beautiful," she repeated, "but I think I ought to tell you why I do not want my picture placed before the public."

It was such a simple little tale. She was married. That was the fact that was borne in upon him with stunning force. Her husband had been her father's choice, not her own.

"We were rich," she explained, "but after my father's death my husband spent everything we had, and I was very unhappy. So I ran away and took my maiden name. And that is why I do not want my picture to appear. I do not want him to find me ever."

She said it vehemently, with a little flush on her cheeks. "My father said love would come," she went on hurriedly, "but it did not. I felt for Betty's sake I ought to tell you. It's such unpleasant history that you might not care to have me with her so much."

Sherwood flung up his head. Suddenly it seemed to him that there was nothing that he so much wished to do as to shelter her from misfortune.

"Betty will always be honored, by your presence, as we all are—as we shall always be," he said, and she smiled at him and held out her hand.

"Somehow I felt that I had found a friend," she said simply. "That is why I told you. It seemed best, and I knew you would understand."

That afternoon Sherwood went for a long ride on his favorite horse, Maxtell, and during that ride he fought a battle. Now that Dulcis Duval was out of reach she seemed the most desirable thing in the world. Indeed, from the first moment she had been desirable, but he had let the artist in him blind the lover. He had made himself think that it was her picture, not herself, that he wanted.

And now that he knew that she loved her he felt that he must go away—back to Paris to the studio—to the dreams that had of late been partially submerged in his practical plans for Sherwood farm.

When he came back that night, Betty met him on the porch.

"We are going for a ride early in the morning," she said, "Miss Duval and I, and I want you to go with us."

"Not tomorrow," Betty said, "he demurred. 'I've got a lot of things to do. I am planning to spend the summer in Paris.'"

Betty's dismayed exclamation brought his sister and Miss Duval.

"He's going away," Betty cried, "and he doesn't know when he will come back."

And Sherwood, watching the face of the Lady of the Lilacs, saw it grow pale, and his heart leaped at the thought that she cared.

In the early morning from his bedroom window he saw them ride away.

Five minutes later he was at the stables. "How does it happen that Miss Duval is riding Maxtell?" he demanded of a groom.

"Hulda is lame," said the man, "and Miss Duval insisted on riding Maxtell. We tried to get her to have one of the other mounts, but she wouldn't."

"Maxtell can't be trusted," said Sherwood sharply, "not with a lady. He never likes the flutter of skirts."

"I know, sir." The man looked worried.

"Well, get Buckner Belle ready," Sherwood ordered, "and I'll go after them."

As he cantered down to the gate a boy met him with a telegram. With out looking at the address, Sherwood tore it open, then as a half dozen words confronted him he saw that it was not for him, but for Miss Duval. Her husband was dead, her lawyer wired, and she must come at once.

In that moment the whole world changed for Sherwood. He knew that it was his duty to go to her, to grow light hearted because of the death of a fellow creature. But for her it meant freedom, for him happiness.

He paid the boy and spurred his horse to greater speed, and at last he saw ahead of him Betty, on a sturdy little mare, Dulcis, holding in Maxtell, who danced along the road in a way that spelled danger.

And even as Sherwood looked Maxtell bolted!

And after him, like a shot, went Buckner Belle.

The big horse was not a match for the brilliant mare, and presently Sherwood was beside Dulcis, his hand on Maxtell's bridle.

Maxtell, meek as a lamb at the sound of the well known voice, stopped suddenly that Dulcis swayed and slipped from his back inertly. Sherwood, dropping the bridles, caught her in his arms.

"Dulcis," he said impulsively; "Dulcis, dear!"

She opened her eyes. "Please," she said faintly, "let me go. You must not."

"Hush!" he said. "You are not strong enough to stand alone, and you have a right here. You are free at last, dear heart."

Her startled eyes met his. "How?" she questioned.

"He is dead," he said quietly. "You are to go to Kentucky this afternoon. Betty's mother will go with you."

He released her then and went on in steady tones.

"But you will come back, Dulcis. When you feel that it is right—you will come back—to me?"

Betty was pounding down the road on the sturdy mare. Dulcis looked up at Sherwood, strong and grave between the beautiful horses.

"Yes," she said, and suddenly her face was illumined. "Yes, I will come back, and you shall paint me—your 'Lady of the Lilacs.'"

A Market For Cores.

The garden of the new house of the Rev. Mr. Brown backed against the play yard of an orphan asylum. Eight-year-old Johnny Brown was allowed to scale the fence and play with the orphans. Presently Mrs. Brown noticed that her apple supply was dropping low. She asked Master Johnny if he were not eating a good many apples for a small boy.

"Yes, mother," he replied. "I got to."

"Oh, indeed?" queried Mrs. Brown. "Are you quite sure?"

"Oh, yes, mother; they're needed! I just got to eat all I can stuff down."

"But why, my dear?"

"Because," said Johnny earnestly, "the orphans need the cores."

Progress.

Let us, then, be of good cheer. From the great law of progress we may derive at once our duties and our encouragements. Humanity has ever advanced, urged by the instincts and necessities implanted by God, thwarted sometimes by obstacles which have caused it for a time—a moment only in the immensity of ages—to deviate from its true lines or to seem to retreat but still ever onward.—Charles Saving the Landlord.

Joseph Jefferson was playing a one night engagement in a small town, appearing in the part Rip Van Winkle, which he had so often and ably impersonated. At the hotel where he stayed there was an Irishman who acted as general assistant. Judged by the great interest he manifested in the hotel, he might have been taken to be the proprietor. About a quarter to 6 in the morning Mr. Jefferson was startled, not to say alarmed, by a violent thumping on his door. When he recollected that he had left no orders to be called so early, he was naturally indignant. His sleep was banished for that morning, however, so he arose, and soon made his appearance before the clerk.

"Look here, I say," he demanded of

No Sentiment.

One day in Geneva Ira D. Sankey entered a music box shop and asked to see some music boxes. The salesman graciously showed him a number, but none was what he wanted.

"Have you none that play sacred music?" he asked.

"Why," answered the salesman, "we have some that play a kind of half-way sacred music."

"What?" inquired Mr. Sankey.

"Oh, these Moody and Sankey hymns. I can't imagine what the people see in them, but we sell thousands of the boxes that play them. We have enormous orders for these boxes," continued the salesman, "from every part of Europe," and then he added apologetically, "it's a matter of business, you know, with us."

Question of Advertising

The question of advertising seems to have stirred other communities beside Sanford. In the Times-Union of February 7th, appeared a full page advertisement dated from Key West. While the announcement dealt with private enterprise, we have no doubt whatever that Key West will reap considerable benefit indirectly. The page ad. is probably only the beginning of an extended campaign, and should the Key West Commercial Club also put out advertising in conjunction on its behalf, the island city will make some of the gulf ports look to their laurels.

The incident only goes to show that the advertising put out by our real estate men in publications of wide circulation will ultimately redound to the credit of "Lucky Sanford."

And, by the way, we don't mind mentioning that the Key West campaign is being handled by Percy P. Vyle, the Jacksonville odd man, who has promised to outline and present a special plan for the consideration of our own board of trade.

Rev. McKinnon Will Deliver Address

Rev. J. F. McKinnon, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Sanford has been invited to deliver an address on "The Distinctive Features of Presbyterian Doctrine" at Laurinburg, N. C., on the occasion of the semi-centennial celebration of the organization of the Presbyterian church of that city, and the dedication of a handsome new church edifice. The exercises will embrace four days and will be held March 3-7. Other speakers for the occasion are Rev. Dr. W. W. Moore, president of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.; Dr. A. A. McGeachy, Charlotte, N. C.; Rev. A. H. McArm, Charlaw, S. C.; Rev. J. B. Currie, Dublin, Va.

You need a good typewriter and do not want to pay an exorbitant price for it, see the Blickenderfer, at The Herald office.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS HERE

They Will Give Sanford A System Of Good Roads

Messrs. Tilden, Lee, Overstreet, Merrill and Vaughan of the honorable board of county commissioners and Superintendent Branham assembled in this city on Thursday and accompanied by A. T. Rosseter, G. R. Calhoun and R. J. Holly were driven over the celery delta. The commissioners are desirous of making many improvements in the county roads near this city and also the system of drainage recently surveyed by the drainage commission.

The work now being done on the Monroe road was inspected and several roads on the west side received the attention of the commissioners.

There are several good deposits of marl near Sanford and these beds will soon be opened up and the roads in this vicinity will be surfaced with this material thus giving the celery delta the benefit of the finest system of thoroughfares in the state. Many marl roads are now being constructed near Orlando and the commissioners being all good road enthusiasts are determined to give Orange county the best of roads at a nominal cost.

SAD ACCIDENT TO YOUNG BOY

Ronnie Muse Killed Last Sunday At Ice Factory

While playing in the plant of the Crystal Ice factory last Sunday afternoon, Ronnie Muse, aged seven, was in some unaccountable manner drawn into the machinery and suffered injuries that resulted in his death. His appearance in the factory was not noticed by the employees until his cries called their attention to the spot. Ronnie was a bright lad, the son of Richard Muse the well known vegetable grower, and the accident cast a gloom over the entire community.

The remains were prepared for burial at the undertaking parlors of T. J. Miller & Son and shipped to the old home near Lawtey where the funeral services were held on Tuesday.

The grief stricken parents have the sympathy of their many friends among whom the little boy was a general favorite.

Patronize Home Talent—It Pays.

Last month a merchant a thousand miles from Chicago wanted to place over his store an electric light sign he had heard about in Chicago. Made a special trip there for specifications and terms. Too high!

Mr. Merchant returned home and incidentally told the local electrician about his troubles. Mr. Home Electrician replied that he could reproduce the Chicago sign, with improvements, at a price that suited. And he did so.

The Irritating Mississippi.

The Mississippi is the greatest irritant in the United States. Its fickleness, conscious power and taunting eddies bring oaths to the lips of the most respectable and law-abiding residents along its lower course. The greatest admirers of the river, the people who sing its praises with the most emphasis, are the ones who go off on a tangent of temper quickest when they find a new caving of river bank headed toward the newest and most expensive levee, built to protect great plantations, while just across the stream rise worthless bluffs and useless sand bars. Talk to a Mississippi river man—shanty boater, pilot, raftsmen, plantation owner or city merchant—and he will brag about the river wonders. Its bigness charms him and makes him feel large and elated. Bring him around to his own experiences with it, and suddenly a shade of resentment crosses his face as he recalls a shanty boat wrecked by a cyclone, a steamboat snagged, a raft torn up in some bend, a plantation undercut and washed away or a season's trade spoiled by an overflow and crevasse.

"We love the river, damn it!" is a literal expression.—R. S. Spears in Atlantic.

A Queer Test.

The grocer said to the applicant: "Your references are good. Show me your style of weighing out five pounds of sugar. There's the scales."

The applicant wreathed his face in the amiable smile all salesmen wear and weighed out the sugar with dispatch and accuracy. He put on too little sugar at first; he added gently a full half pound before the scale balanced.

"You'll do," said the grocer. "You understand the scale trick. It is plain that you learned your trade in the thorough old school way."

"Yes, sir," the other answered. "I learned in the country, and almost my first lesson was that in weighing. You must add, add, add, till the beam tips, because all that adding pleases the customer—seems to him almost like a gift. But if, on the contrary, you subtract from the quantity on the scale the customer is affected in the opposite way—you seem to be robbing him. He goes away convinced that you are a shifty cheat."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Beaten at His Own Game.

"A few days since," relates a solicitor, "as I was sitting with my friend D. in his office a man came in and said:

"Mr. W., the livery stable keeper tricked me shamefully yesterday, and I want to be even with him."

"State your case," said D.

"I asked him how much he'd charge me for a horse to go to Richmond. He said half a sovereign. I took the horse, and when I came back he said he wanted another half sovereign for coming back and made me pay it."

"D. gave his client some legal advice, which he immediately acted upon, as follows: He went to the livery stable keeper and said, 'How much will you charge for a horse to Windsor?'"

"The man replied, 'A sovereign.'"

"Client accordingly went to Windsor, came back by rail and went to the livery stable keeper, saying:

"Here is your money," paying him a sovereign.

"Where is my horse?" said W.

"He's at Windsor," answered the client. "I hired him only to go to Windsor."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Wide Range.

When the surgeon who happened to be spending a night at Bushby Inn had set the broken leg of the weather-battered stranger who was the chief victim of an automobile accident the patient looked up at him anxiously. "See here, doc," he said in a husky voice, "I haven't got much of any money. Would you take out your fee in trade?"

"Yes, I guess so," said the surgeon cheerfully. "What is your trade?"

"Well, I've got a number of things I can do soon as I'm on my feet again," said the patient. "I can hang window blinds, or I can put on lightning rods, or I can play the cornet, and I can do 'em all first rate, if I'm the one to say it, doc."—Youth's Companion.

Women Oyster Gatherers.

The work of oyster collecting and culture is most unsuitable for women, but in France, owing to its tedious nature, it does not appeal to men. Often from an early hour in the morning till late into the evening the women are standing up to their knees in water, with a strong sun beating down on them. The result is that never a year passes without some of them going mad and having to be hurried away to the asylums. The work is well paid, as, indeed, it ought to be, while in the case of the few who own beds the profits are large, and small fortunes are quickly amassed.

A Mean Man.

Medical Man—Jobson has done the meanest thing I ever heard of. He came to my house the other night, ate a big dinner, got indigestion and then went to another doctor to be cured.

The most wasted of all days is that day on which one has not laughed.

About Eggs.

In a hen's egg only one-fifth of the substance is nutritious, one-ninth part is refuse, and the remainder, the greater portion, is water.

White-shelled eggs are not quite as good as yellow ones, for they contain a trifle more water and a little less fat. But your purveyor knows this and frequently colors his white eggs with coffee.

Judged by the amount of nutriment, a goose's egg is the most valuable. Next in order are ducks', guinea fowls', hens', turkeys' and plovers'. Eggs contain a large quantity of sulphur, which is purifying to the blood and good for the complexion.

To get the best egg you must feed your fowl on grain, and to cook it in the most digestible way you must not boil the water. Heat the water to 190 degrees and leave the egg in it for ten minutes. You will then digest every morsel. But if you boil it for three minutes no less than one-twelfth of it will fail to be digested. Thus if you eat two eggs boiled for three minutes every day you waste five dozen in a year.—London Mail.

The Leopard and the Pan.

One day a worthy Kulu housewife came out from her cooking and, standing on the ledge of rock at her door, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell, splash, on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut. What might have happened next? Who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang upon the rock, and the leopard took one leap downhill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock.

When last seen the leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan had whirled about 500 feet over it on the opposite side. The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan which first scalded half the hide off him and then bounded clanging in his wake from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something which he could not face.—London Chronicle.

A Mexican Tradition.

"Boys, what's the matter? Fever? Die, then; die, then." That's the song the doves sing down in old Mexico when a native has pneumonia, and almost invariably he lies down, refuses to swallow the medicine prescribed by the physician, resigns himself to his fate and in a few weeks he dies. The dove, however, sings the song in Spanish. It is a tradition among the Mexicans that once the fever accompanying an attack of pneumonia seizes them it is necessarily fatal, and because of this all medicine and all physicians are refused and the Mexican usually dies. The dove brings the story of death in its weird cooing, according to the belief of the natives, and many who have been seized with the fever who otherwise might have recovered have succumbed owing to their belief in the tradition. That is the reason, it is said, why pneumonia is fatal to so many Mexicans.—New York Herald.

Fortune displays our virtues and our vices as light makes all objects apparent.—La Rochefoucauld.

What Changed the Old Town's Name?

Mr. Brown of SLEEPYTOWN,

He wouldn't advertise;

So along came Mr. Strong

And took him by surprise.

Mr. S., as you may guess,

Was strictly up to date;

Knew the game and played the same

At early hours and late.

Strong is still in WAKEFULVILLE,

The merchant of the town;

He advertises and still surprises

A Landseer Story.
Landseer, riding down Bond street, London, saw the following notice in a picture dealer's shop window: "A Fine Landseer on View Within." He went into the shop and asked to see the "fine Landseer." The dealer, who did not recognize him, proudly pointed out the work. It was rather an early one. The dealer was, of course, loud in his praise.
"And how much do you want for it?" said Landseer.
"Two thousand guineas, sir," was the reply.
"Two thousand guineas? That seems a long price for an early work." "I could not take a shilling less," said the dealer. "He's gone, sir," touching his forehead significantly. "He's out of his mind. He'll never paint another."
"Is he indeed?" said Landseer. "I'm very sorry to hear that." And as he was coming away he noticed a large picture by Staudfeld. "May I ask what you want for this Staudfeld?"
"That, sir, is also 2,000 guineas."
"What?" said Landseer, touching his forehead and imitating the dealer's gesture. "Is Staudfeld gone too?"

The Evil Eye.
The possession of two eyes does not confer upon us any advantage. One of them serves to show us the good things and the other the evils of life. A large number of people have acquired the bad habit of shutting the first eye, but very few shut the second, and that is why there are so many people who would rather be blind altogether than see all they have to see. Happy the one-eyed who are only deprived of that evil eye which spoils all that we look upon—Voltaire.

Feeling Sandy.
An old Glasgow skinklit breakfast every morning on porridge and in order to save fuel cooked a whole week's supply every Saturday.
One Friday morning the stuff seemed very cold and very salt, and he felt he must abandon the struggle to eat it.
But his stubborn nature forbade any such thought. So he fetched the whisky from the cupboard, poured out a glass and placed it before him on the table.
"Now, Sandy," said he, "if ye eat that parritch ye'll hae that whisky an' if ye don't ye won't."
He stuck again at the last spoonful, but, keeping his eye steadily on the glass of whisky, he made a bold, brave effort and got it down.
Then he slowly and carefully poured the whisky into the bottle, with a broad grin, as he said to himself:
"Sandy, my lad, I did ye that time, ye auld swindler."

Had Been to Sea.
An Irishman, brought before a New York police judge on a charge of vagrancy, was thus questioned:
"What trade do you follow?"
"Shure, yer honor, I'm a sailor," Pat made answer.
"What—a seafaring man? I doubt whether you were ever at sea in your life," exclaimed the irate justice.
"Shure, and does yer honor think I came over from Ireland in a wagon?" grinned Pat.

His Clever Scheme.
The man with the large head and the protruding eyebrows stepped into the cigar emporium.
"Give me the poorest cigar you've got."
"Five or ten center?" queried the man behind the showcase.
"I don't know whether you're going to give me a five or ten center. I'm going to give you a dime. Remember, now, the poorest cigar in the place."
The clerk handed out a box, and the customer selected one, calmly lighted it and puffed contentedly. Then he left, with an air of supreme satisfaction.
"Ah, this tastes good!" he muttered on the outside. "I knew my little scheme would work. The fellow gave me the best cigar he had in the store."
The cigar dispenser on the inside so-lliquided:
"I just took that old codger at his word. I handed him a box of three for a nickel."—Lippincott's.

Huffed.
In the olden times a woman in the north of Scotland went to visit her husband, who was condemned to be hanged on the following day. The doomed man began to give his instructions to his wife preparatory to bidding her farewell, when all at once she broke in upon the conversation and exclaimed: "By the bye, John, whaur will I plant the tattles this year?" The unfortunate man, as may be imagined, grew exceedingly indignant at the indifference of his wife and exclaimed angrily: "What need I care whaur ye plant them? I'm not likely to need any o' them." "Hech," replied the woman, turning to the warden, with a wag of the head, "oor John's huffed because he's gaun to be hanged the morn' and marched out of the cell."

When Hypnotized Tramps Meet Death.
A No. 1, the well known tramp, states that riding upon the truck beams between the wheels of a flying passenger train or even of a slower going freight train is exceedingly difficult. The flying cinders deluge the eyes and at times make breathing almost impossible. More than this, he says that unless one strictly watches himself one is in danger of becoming hypnotized. The rhythmically pounding wheels jolting over the joints of the rails have a way of insistently commanding attention that is extremely dangerous. This noise, sharp and repeated with devilish persistence, can hypnotize the unwary, he says. Often he has had to use every resource of will power which he has in order to ward off the effects of this endless and mind compelling "click, click, click." He believes that many a tramp who has fallen to his death from the trucks has been first hypnotized in this way. This is perfectly sound psychology, and the probability of such hypnotism will be indorsed by any good specialist in this science.—Bohemian Magazine.

A Winnipeg Sermon.
A story is going the rounds about one of the Winnipeg clergy, which he himself has told with great delight. A farmer and his wife came to Winnipeg on a visit, and on Sunday their host requested the farmer friend to go with him to church.
"No," said he, "I never go to church." And his wife backed up his assertion.
The visitor was finally persuaded to go to a local church and was told the pastor was also an American. After the service he was introduced to the pastor, and the following conversation took place:
"Well, doctor," said the visitor, "I enjoyed your sermon."
"I am very pleased to hear that," replied the pastor.
"You know," explained the farmer, "I do not go to church very often, but that sermon of yours was the best I ever heard."—Winnipeg Telegraph.

Modern Witchcraft.
Says a correspondent of the London Chronicle: "This writer knows of a west country English farmer, a hard headed business man, who uses the latest machinery on his farm, yet holds the belief in pixies as firmly as any article of his religious creed. Having been visited by a series of minor misfortunes, he confided to the writer in the utmost seriousness his fear that he had offended a pixy by inadvertently stepping into a fairy ring and stated that he intended going on the morrow to the white witch at Exeter to get further misfortune averted. And this level headed business man took a day from his farm in the busiest time of the year and journeyed to Exeter and back—a matter of some sixty miles—for this purpose. On his return he was as one who had cast off a heavy burden. But the white witch's mysteries no persuasion could induce him to reveal."

A Violin For a Vane.
One of the most curious vanes to be seen on any church in Great Britain is that at Great Gonerby, a parish adjoining Grantham, in Lincolnshire. It is in the form of a fiddle and a bow and is unusually large. Its history is a curious one. Many years ago a peasant resided in Great Gonerby who eked out a modest livelihood by performing on an old violin, which was almost a part of his life. At last he decided to emigrate and out in the far west prospered and became a rich man. One day he sent to the clergyman at Great Gonerby a sum sufficient to build a church and attached to the gift the curious condition that a metal replica of his old fiddle and bow should be on the summit of the edifice. The gift was accepted, and the vane may still be seen on the church.

Sweet Revenge.
Mrs. Shopper (after inspecting everything in the store)—I don't see anything here that suits me. I suppose I may as well go down to Stacy's and see what they have. They usually have a good assortment.
Salesman—Here's a card of one of their salesmen. Won't you kindly ask for him?
Mrs. Shopper—Ah! A friend of yours, I presume?
Salesman—No, madam, he has owed me $10 for the past three years.—Puck.

Highly Practical.
"Your business college for young ladies seems to be all right."
"It is all right."
"Do you give the girls a good practical business training?"
"In reply to that question I can only say that 99 per cent of our graduates marry their employers the first year."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Jessie.
It is related that when the young man who afterward became General Fremont ran away with and married Jessie, Tom Benton, the great senator, made terrible threats of what he would do to the young man. He would give him roasts and bullets, and so on. To all of which Mrs. Benton quietly remarked: "You had better give him Jessie, my dear."

How Celery City Vanity Fair While Away the Golden Hours—Social Gossip.

At Mrs. Keelor's

Mrs. R. L. Keelor and Miss Keelor entertained at bridge at their suburban home on last Saturday evening. The guests from the city fared hither in a large bus. Owing to the inclemency of the weather many were unable to attend yet enough braved the elements to have several tables of bridge. Light refreshments were served and an evening of genuine enjoyment was accorded to the guests.

The Valentine Party

For several weeks society has been upon the qui vive awaiting the arrival of the evening scheduled for the valentine party at the Sanford House, the date being on Thursday, the 11th.

Each lady was instructed to wear a blue gown and mask and the gentlemen were to wear pink gowns and masks of the same hue. When they had all assembled in the large dining room it was a difficult matter to determine who was who. Stumon's celebrated orchestra was on hand to furnish the music that always starts the feet to moving and as the pink and blue robes mingled on the floor there was many a conjecture to discover the partners. The gowns and hoods made a most complete guise and most of the dancers remained incognito until the time to unmask.

Delicious punch was served and the dance continued until a late hour.

The Misses Stringfellow, Schumpert and Keelor made all the arrangements for the affair and to them the thanks are due for a most delightful evening.

Ralph Stevens reached his eighteenth birthday on Monday last and in honor of the event tendered his friends a whist party.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant evening spent by the young folks.

Billy Beardall secured first prize, a silver-mounted nail file. Martin Raines was awarded the booby prize, a beautiful tin horn.

Those present were Messrs. J. C. and Emery Close, Rowe, Baker, Brady, Adams, Lovell, Tolar, Hill, Biggers, Lawson, Lane, Watson, Peabody, Hamilton, Raines, Woodruff, Beardall, Roumillat, Higgins and Perkins.

Man Dies Suddenly

Billy Connors, a white man employed as a cook at the "City Restaurant," died very suddenly last Saturday night. Connors had just returned from a week's visit to Tampa, where he had been on a drunken spree, suffering from the effects of alcoholism, and had laid down in the rear of Hand's restaurant to sleep. He was found dead by one of his friends and appearances indicate that death had been very sudden. The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Miller and interred Sunday afternoon in Lakeview cemetery.

Connors had no relatives, and few people here knew him intimately. His home is said to be in Pittsburg.

Cream of Celery Soup

The following has been given to THE HERALD for the benefit of all housewives:

Wash one head of celery, cut in small pieces and simmer in one pint of water until perfectly soft. Mash in the same water, add one minced onion, and let cook ten minutes longer, then pour in one pint of scalding milk. Strain, return to saucepan, add one tablespoonful of flour stirred smooth in a little cold milk, one tablespoonful of butter, and salt and pepper to season. Serve hot with crackers. Try it. —BEULAH H.

Monster Strawberries

In the window of J. N. Whitner's real estate office this week was a basket of strawberries that for size and appearance took first premium. They are of the Hefflen variety and were raised by Archie Cameron upon his place east of town. Capt. Dick Marks upon beholding the berries wanted to know whether you had to peel the berries or bore a hole in them in order to eat them. They elicited much comment and were undoubtedly the largest strawberries ever grown anywhere.

Preparing for Brick Paving.

Engineer Ginn and a force of assistants are busy surveying First street, and will prepare plans and specifications at once for the brick paving and the trolley line tracks. The work of paving will start within a few days and First street will present a busy scene. The rails for the street car line are shipped and the trolley officials are prepared to lay the tracks when the paving starts.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

Miss Minnie C. Croft and H. T. Avant Married Wednesday

Holy Cross Episcopal church was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday at 1:30 when the marriage ceremony of Miss Minnie C. Croft and Mr. H. T. Avant was solemnized by Rev. Dr. B. F. Brown, the rector.

As the peals of Mendelssohn's wedding march performed by Mrs. Fannie Munson at the organ burst forth, the bridal party preceded by Messrs. F. P. Forster and B. F. Whitner proceeded slowly up the aisle to the altar. The bride and groom were followed by the Misses Mettinger, the maids of honor, and the whole party grouped at the altar where the service was performed which made the popular couple man and wife.

The altar and chancel were beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers and while no ostentatious display was sought, the church presented a very pretty scene.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple followed by their many friends left for the station where they took the train for Tampa and points in South Florida.

The bride wore a travelling gown of blue broadcloth with chiffon trimming, hat and gloves to match. Both bride and groom are very popular in Sanford.

Miss Croft has made this city her home for nine years, being identified with the millinery department of J. K. Mettinger's dry goods emporium. Her genial, sunny temperament and charm and grace of manner have won for her a large circle of friends in Sanford. Miss Croft is a native of Maryland but the people of this city claim her as a resident.

Mr. Avant is well known in Florida having for a number of years been engaged in the lumber business in Jacksonville and coming to Sanford about six months ago has become identified with Sanford people and interests at once. He owns some valuable real estate in and around Sanford and upon his return expects to make this city his future home.

The Herald joins a host of friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Avant a long and happy life.

New Business Methods.

Reports are current that farmers have taken a tumble to the true situation, and are closing deals for the sale of their crops of celery straight through the season at a fixed price. Handsome margins are being put up, and bank accounts are growing, even while the celery is in the field doing the same thing.

Another Fine Residence

The Pope Contracting Co. are preparing to erect another fine residence on First street, near French avenue for John Meisch. The house will be large and commodious and will greatly enhance the appearance of this section of the city. First street west of the railroad is rapidly becoming popular as a section of fine dwellings.

High Prices For Sanford Lettuce

Sanford lettuce and Sanford celery are gaining a reputation in the markets of the north. The high prices for lettuce early in the season have been overshadowed this week when Sanford lettuce jumped to $3 per crate. This is equally as good a price as the lettuce raised under cover in other sections is bringing and demonstrates that the place to raise good lettuce that will bring good prices is Sanford.

HAPPENINGS DURING THE WEEK

Here the Readers Will Find a Brief Historical Spring Flowing For Hurried Readers

The wireless call of "C. Q. D." last week was the means of saving the lives of all on board the four-masted schooner Sarah W. Lawrence that had gone ashore on the Hen and Chickens shoals in the vicinity of the Delaware Breakwater. Assistance came in answer to the call just in time as in less than five minutes after the last person had been taken off the wreck the vessel broke up and was ground to pieces on the rocks.

A torch operated by oxygen and acetylene, radiating a heat of 6,300 degrees, the most terrific known to science, has been invented in Cleveland, Ohio. By its use it is possible to weld aluminum, a feat heretofore considered impossible. The flame will cut through two inches of solid steel in less than one minute, and pierce a twelve inch plate of hardest steel in less than ten minutes. It would take a saw almost twenty hours to do this work.

The American Sugar Refining Co. has been detected in falsely marking the weight of barrelled sugar and is being sued for $230,919 damages. A clever device in possession of the weigher made it possible to do the false weighing. The discoverer of the fraud was offered a large sum to keep quiet, but wouldn't accept.

CLYDE LINE IMPROVEMENTS

Extensive Repairs at Dock Are Rapidly Nearing Completion

The great importance of Sanford at the head of the St. Johns river seemed to be overlooked by the Clyde Line for a number of years but with the marvelous growth of the city and the great developments in the vegetable industry the Clyde officials were quick to note that better facilities for handling this great business were needed and for the past month a large force of men have been busily engaged in building and repairing. A larger and better dock has been built and a new pier connects the same. The old car track has been torn up and wagons, carriages and automobiles can now go to the end of the pier. The old offices and freight house have been repaired and painted and are used as a waiting room with separate rooms for white and colored people. The offices and freight depot are at the end of the pier and all the business can be transacted at the dock. The buildings have all been put in first-class shape, and made double the former size as the business demanded. The building at the corner of Palmetto and Commercial has been repaired and painted and will be rented for store purposes. From a mass of old buildings and worn-out dock the Clyde Line now presents a beautiful appearance, the new buildings looking neat in new paint and will fly the blue flag of the company to further embellish them. The work has not been finished but enough has been done to demonstrate that Sanford will in a few weeks have the neatest and best appearance on the St. Johns river line.

ABOUT OUR IRRIGATION

Good Article Appears In Louisville Paper

COVERS THE ENTIRE SUBJECT

Has Created Considerable Discussion In Many Sections Of The North

The following article from the pen of J. N. Whitner appeared in the Louisville Market Growers Journal, and has caused considerable discussion in the North:

If there is nothing new under the sun the Sanford system of sub-irrigation is at least unique and, as far as we know, original. Like most inventions, it is the daughter of necessity, the fruit of disaster. Under the whip and spur of necessity the bankrupt people of Sanford, robbed of all they had by the freeze of 1895, have taken waste lands, which for years have been sold for taxes, and made them the most productive in crops and dollars of any farm lands on earth, so far as we can learn. It is true that we have the incomparable climate of Florida, enabling us to grow crops in winter when worth the most money, but we always had that. It is also true we have the gushing artesian wells but we have had them, too, for decades.

When in desperation we tried to utilize these flat barren lands to grow vegetables for the northern market, attempting to irrigate on the surface or through ditches from our flowing wells, disappointment met our efforts. If we succeeded at all in the distribution of the water to all parts of the lands (which was seldom) we found we had only furnished the necessary moisture at the expense of saturating the soil, thereby driving out the air by replacing it with water, and the last state was worse than the first. If the weather was hot the roots scalded, the bark slipped from them, the plant withered, drooped and died, or stopped growing till new roots were formed. If the weather were cold, and consequently there was little or no evaporation, the ground was sodden and no growth was possible. As though this was not enough, nature seemed to resent our efforts and often just as we got all the water we wanted, which was generally more than needed; heavy rains finished the work of destruction. In this extremity we began to supply the water from below, little dreaming that it was the beginning of a revelation in scientific irrigation and drainage, the perfection of which has resulted in marvelous crop productions; not only marvelous in quality and quantity, but in the almost automatic regularity and certainty of results, as well as definiteness of time to produce crops. All of which is so very remarkable that a recent visitor said, "You don't grow vegetables, you manufacture them."

The first essential of this system is a liberal supply of water at the highest point of ground to be irrigated. Second, comparatively level soil. Third, sandy or loamy soil through which water runs by gravity or is rapidly taken up by absorption or capillary attraction. This soil must not be less than eighteen inches deep and should not be more than three or four feet to some substance impervious to water, like our hard pan or marl, or clay; otherwise in very dry times the water goes on down instead of wetting the land. With us this impervious stratum is generally from two to four feet deep. The tile is usually laid eighteen inches below the surface from twenty to twenty-five feet apart. By running water through this tile the ground soon becomes full of water as deep as the hard pan or other sub-stratum and we thus have a reservoir eighteen inches below the surface of the entire field.

Detail of working plan: Leading from the well at the highest point is a water main laid as nearly level as possible and running preferably along a fence or road so as to be out of the way of cultivating. This water main, as it is called (made most cheaply from four-inch sewer pipe cemented at joints to keep from leaking) is usually placed a foot to fifteen inches below the surface, while at intervals of twenty to twenty-five feet and at right angles the tile is laid, ordinarily eighteen inches deep. This tile should be three inches in diameter and simply laid end to end so water can run in or out at the joints, for practically there is no such thing as porous tile. A slight covering of sawdust, cinders, moss, fiber or other substance over the tile to prevent the sand from running in at the joints is desirable. The tile should have a fall of not less than one inch to the hundred feet as it runs from the main, and may be much greater. At the head of each row of tile and between the tile and water main a stand pipe of eight to ten-inch sewer pipe or cement box is placed, connected on one side with the main and on the other with the tile by an iron pipe, an inch and a half in diameter being large enough. By inserting a plug into this connecting pipe which is ordinarily only six inch long, water can be run into each row of tile or as many as desired. To facilitate this distribution a solid stopper is supplied for the connection of the main, while the one leading into the tile has a half inch hole through it. No water being desired in a given row of tile, insert solid plug next to the main, if a small quantity, open that and insert other plug in tile connection. If more is needed leave both connections open.

At the lower end of the rows of tile a discharge ditch is dug. This ditch provides for your drainage and should have fall enough to empty itself quickly in time of rain. This in my opinion makes a complete and effective system, because with a constantly supplied reservoir eighteen inches below the surface, capillary action will supply every need of growing crops.

It is only when setting out plants or sowing seed in very dry weather, that resort should be had to the use of stop boxes, which consist of standpipes into which the tile discharges and from which the flow of water into the outlet ditch is controlled by various devices. In this way water may be discharged directly from the tile at the same level to be forced to any level desired, even to raising the water to the surface of the ground. What ever injury has come from the Sanford sub-irrigation system has come from the careless or injurious use of these stop boxes. By carelessly leaving them plugged at night, heavy rain falling, the farmer is chagrined next morning to find his beautifully tiled field a good duck pond. By injudiciously raising the water level in his ground too near the surface, the water packs it and excludes the air just as high as he brings the water, forcing the roots too near the surface, to suffer from too much heat or cold and not sufficient nourishment. If these stop boxes are to be used it should be seen to that the connections with the tile and discharge ditch are at least of as great capacity as the tile, remembering always that drainage is of first importance. No matter how tired and sleepy the farmer is when it begins to rain, he should see to it that the discharge pipes and drain ditches are all open, in which case all is well, because it is a gravity system and as long as water runs down hill he is safe.

With this system we always have eighteen inches under ground a current of warm air and water, the latter being seventy degrees, which doubtless adds much to the fine quality and large yields from this formerly worthless land. If I had space I would set forth in detail that these lands produce larger and better crops in winter than any other point at any season; three to four carloads celery, two or three cars of lettuce and other crops in proportion, selling at $1,000 to $2,000 per acre. We are just trying strawberries and the result is phenomenal.

CAMERON CITY, THE NEW

Another Metropolis To Be Built On Lake Jessup

MANY NEW BUILDINGS ERECTED

On the Line of The Sanford & Everglades Railway and Borders On the Lake

The great Celery Delta has sprung many surprises in the way of developments in the past six months, and not the least of these is the new town of Cameron which is being built upon the shores of Lake Jessup, about five miles from Sanford and on the line of the Sanford & Everglades Railway.

The new city derives its name from Joseph Cameron, who at one time owned most of the land now traversed by the new railroad and who is one of the pioneers in the growing of celery and lettuce and has done much toward improving and making greater the vegetable industry.

The Howard-Packard Land Co., about one year ago, purchased 1,000 acres of land on the shores of Lake Jessup and, realizing the great possibilities of the celery delta, have worked indefatigably to build up and improve this section. They have already disposed of over 300 acres in ten-acre lots in the vicinity of Cameron City. The greater part of this land is now under cultivation and the new city of Cameron will offer great inducements for people to locate and build homes. A lot is offered free to any one who will build a home upon the same. A large brick warehouse and general store will be erected at once and a small saw-mill will be established in order to work up the lumber that abounds in this vicinity and will furnish much of the material for the new houses.

Mr. Sussex of Michigan is one of the first to build a new residence in Cameron and is now erecting a fine two-story home in which he expects to reside. Several new houses have been erected upon the neighboring farms and the location of the new town makes it an ideal one for a home. The town has been platted into forty-five lots and anyone wishing to purchase can get further information from the Howard-Packard Land Co. The Cameron City property was intended primarily for homes of those who had farms in the immediate vicinity, but so great has been the demand for these lots that they have been placed at the disposal of the public and in the near future will become very valuable as the tide of homeseekers sweeps southward toward Lake Jessup.

The Sanford & Everglades Railway has made possible the new city of Cameron and many other improvements in the lands which a few years ago were given over to the cattle for grazing purposes.

It is the prediction of many that in a few years the entire celery delta, from a distance of ten miles west of Sanford to Lake Jessup, will be one vast settlement and farming land will become as valuable for building purposes as it is now for the growing of vegetables. Such a prediction stands a good chance of being fulfilled if the people continue to buy property as they have in the last few months, and while there is plenty of land at the present time, the demand is constantly increasing the price and the property is becoming more valuable every day.

With the advent of the street railway from Sanford to Cameron City the eyes of the prospective settlers and our own citizens will turn to suburban homes and the City of Sanford, instead of being confined to its present narrow radius, will embrace a much larger territory and become a Greater Sanford.
