Ford Tells Of Impeach Memos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford says the Justice Department, under former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, gave him nine memos containing tips for his 1970 effort to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

After receiving the nine memos from former Assistant Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, Ford testified Wednesday, he "conducted my investigation on my own with little or no cooperation from the Justice Department thereafter."

He called them "blank white papers," saying he meant they were not identified with the Justice Department's letterhead.

But Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., produced one of the memos at Ford's House Judiciary Committee confirmation hearings and said it was nearly word-for-word one section of Ford's April 15, 1970, House speech calling for Douglas' impeachment.

"I suspect that all nine will be word-for-word that speech," Waldie charged after the hearing. "And that would confirm that all of the investigating was done by the Justice Department."

But Ford testified the memo Waldie produced was probably more detailed than the others.

Ford said Wilson told him during a one-hour meeting in Ford's office that the Justice Department had information on Douglas but "would not go into depth or detail" and gave Ford leads he had to pursue on his own.

He said Wilson told him only of "areas of inquiry" that the Republican leader could profitably pursue to find evidence for the impeachment effort against Douglas.

Ford said the memos and the hour-long meeting on the information the Justice Department had was its only participation in his impeachment investigation.

Wilson came to his office and gave him the nine memos, Ford said, after Ford called them.

Ford called the Douglas' impeachment in 1970 largely because of his being president of the Albertus Foundation funded partly by gambling money, and on the basis of some of Douglas' writings.

He cited Douglas' book, "Point of Rebellion," as a ground for impeachment, saying it encouraged rebellion.

He also charged that excerpts of Douglas' "Points of Rebellion" had been printed in Evergreen Review which Ford called a pornographic magazine and displayed to the committee.

Douglas said in 1970 that his publisher permitted Evergreen to print excerpts from the book and that Douglas had no control over it. A select subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee investigated Ford's other charges and concluded there were no grounds for impeachment.

"Asked if he still believes Douglas should be impeached, Ford said he does not."

Agnew Obtains Job As Trade Consultant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been retained as a consultant for an international trade firm cofounded recently by his longtime associate, Frank Jameson.

Jameson, a former Rockwell International corporate executive who recently married actress Eva Gabor, said Wednesday that Agnew had been on the payroll at J.W. Industries since shortly after his resignation as Vice President.

"We thought it would be a good opportunity," Jameson said in an interview. "I've respected him and known him for a long time. I respect his ability and talent to communicate with people — that's where we can use him."

Jameson declined to state Agnew's salary but added: "I assure you it is not a substantial amount, but more of a consultant's fee — a retainer."

He said Agnew will remain on the East Coast because J.W. Industries is just one of several ventures in which he has become involved.

J.W. Industries was formed by Jameson and Leopold S. Wyler about three months ago and deals in many commodities with primary emphasis on trade in Latin America and the Far East, Jameson said.

Agnew resigned as Vice President Oct. 18 after pleading no contest to one count of income tax evasion.

An Orlando man was treated and released from Orange Memorial Hospital Monday after he shot himself in the leg on a dirt road near Winter Springs, police said today.

"He shot himself through the lower leg as he was attempting to draw his pistol," Leman said.

Pumpkin Si! Turkey No!

By JEAN PATTESON Herald Staff Writer

Turkeys are the theme of Thanksgiving. They overflow supermarket freezers, crowding frozen juices and TV dinners from their rightful shelves.

They feature in all the charity raffles, office pools and gas state give-aways.

Recipes for turkey, stuffing for turkey, sauces for turkey cover forests of paper in women's magazines in hearty defiance of a critical paper shortage.

Turkeys gobble across the nation from a million television screens, oozing butter, cranberries, and the promise of a day of monumental overeating.

Soon the nation will gobble those hapless turkeys, and strain its ingenuity to the utmost to disguise the fact it's still eating Thanksgiving turkey in early December.

There's got to be more to Thanksgiving than turkey. What about good ole pumpkin pie?

It's as American as Thanksgiving—far more so than turkey—and is quite as plumply, deliciously, goldenly good.

Ask your local baker.

"What's turkey?" he'll ask. But pumpkin pie? Or apple, mince, cherry, blueberry or sweet potato pie?

"Aah-ha!" he'll cry, and lead you to a pantry piled to the ceiling with flour, shortening and all of Mother Nature's fall fruit offerings.

Ralph Ellis Hare, 30, of 109 Mercury St., remains in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $8,000 bond. His arraignment on the new charges is set for Monday.

The two charges which Hare was acquitted and the three charges he now faces all stem from his relationship with Leona Hamilton, 19, who said she lived with Hare for a year and was his common law wife.

Detectives said the new charges resulted from further investigation which indicated that Hare unlawfully punished the woman's children.

"This is Thanksgiving! Without pie, your table is empty," says the baker.

"Place your order early," he urges. Bakers are up at 4 a.m. the day before Thanksgiving. They roll and fill and bake; roll and fill and bake their flaky, tasty creations until almost midnight, but unless you place your order early, chances are you'll miss out on the sweetest part of Thanksgiving.

Pumpkins ripen late in the year and Thanksgiving is early this year. Sanford baker Tom

THANKSGIVING PIES... Bakers Tom Stegner (l) and Joe Alexander

Stegner explains this situation causes headaches in bakeries large and small.

Activity in his bakery, as in all bakeries in the county, is feverish. Flour flies as the orders pour in. Frantic bakers jam their tall white caps firmly on their heads, and plunge to the elbows in oceans of dough. From the giant ovens come aromas so hot and spicy a mere whiff would melt a freezer-load of turkeys.

Turkey production seems like a leisurely pastime in comparison with the task of baking Thanksgiving pies.

And pumpkin rules supreme, the crumbly, spicy, creamy kind of the Thanksgiving feast.

An Altamonte Springs man was found innocent of attempted murder and killing an unborn child in circuit court Wednesday, but now he faces two assault charges and an unlawful punishment charge.

First Thanksgiving In Seminole County

By C. D. W. NELSON Herald Staff Writer

Most people know the story of the First Thanksgiving, way back there in 1630 or so, when the Pilgrim Fathers and the Algonquian Indians, I think it was, shared the world's first wild turkey bake and pumpkin pie eating contest.

Things sort of went downhill for the Indians since then, but not so for our forebearers, the Pilgrims, although the witches around Salem might disagree with that.

Well, the Thanksgiving story we're all raised on as kids is a nice enough story, as stories go, but it doesn't hold a candle to the First Thanksgiving ever held in Seminole County.

In fact, I'll bet that not many of you knew that such a story exists!

I didn't either, until recently, but let me tell you, for sheer story, it beats the stuffing out of any turkey tale you've heard for quite a while, although some folks think the tales coming out of Washington these days are topgers no one can ever hope to beat.

It didn't happen, of course, but the elderly gent sharing the shorefront that morning (and having the same luck, I might add) more than made up for the lack of action by recollecting his granddaddy's old story of the First Thanksgiving in Seminole County.

Here it is:

It seems that even before the Pilgrim Fathers blessed this land with their black hats and blunderbusses, Florida was being harassed by more exotic-dressed Spaniards.

The same sartorial habits have persisted to this day, interestingly enough. You won't find any white shoes and white socks in Boston, I can tell you!

Anyhow, round about 1570, not long after the settlers of St. Augustine succeeded in wiping out the local opposition, hardy explorers first penetrated the thick water hyacinth-clogged bays of Central Florida, looking for Walt Disney World.

The legend of Walt Disney World, well known even then, was that it resembled a combination Fountain of Youth-Seven Cities, and that if the Spaniards didn't get it, the English or French would, and it would be all over for Spain in the New World.

Well, this one set of Conquistadors, led by the half-brother of St. Augustine Governor Pedro Menendez, set out for Central Florida. Harassed by phalanxes of Live Boga clugging up their canoe paddles, getting in their helmets, and making their armor sticky, they were sitting ducks for the Central Florida branch of the Seminole Indian tribe, local 707, who heard on the radio that they were coming.

The Spaniards, being new in the county, hadn't had time to get building permits, or a septic tank permit, and even worse, had already pitched half a dozen or so mobile homes.

The Massacre of Osteen Bridge, which preceded the First Thanksgiving in Seminole County by just a few hours, took less time than it takes to tell.

Jacques and his men were wiped out to the last Spaniard.

The County Sheriff arrived with the pollution control officer, the chief building inspector, the chairman of the county commission and a news reporter who had been adopted by the Seminoles because he was too tough to eat and cheaper to feed than an alligator.

The Spanish were last seen heading back towards Cocoa Beach, planning to take up the north before Cape Kennedy security guards put the pinch on them.

Behind them on the riverbank was a pile of provisions including the now-famous tacos.

Well, the Seminoles, the Sheriff, and the county officials figured that even though the stuff had been brought in by non-union labor, there wasn't much point in letting good food go to waste, and solved the area's first energy crisis by declaring a holiday.

And the chairman of the county commission scheduled a public hearing on impact zoning to make sure no such riff-raff ever floated down river again, at least not without paying their fair share.

That's the story of Seminole County's First Thanksgiving, just as the old man told it to me by the shores of Lake Monroe the other day.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Solution Is Slippery

Lack Of Concern Helped Fuel Crisis

The imminence of a fuel shortage has long been considered, but unfortunately it was not considered seriously, soon enough.

The imperative is drawn. We now face extraordinary measures of control such as bans on driving and blue laws which close business on Sunday. Fuel policies heretofore unbelievable are on the verge of reality.

It would seem obvious that there is nearly a fixed amount of propellants that we are capable of harnessing, namely petroleum products, coal, wood and so it seems, even electricity. The rate of fuel expenditure has far exceeded the rate of production.

We stand on the threshold of reduced speed limits and gasoline rationing and in some areas an almost total lack of fuel oil for heat.

The technology is bogging down as a result of its very progress. The reason for this is easily understood in the way technology has manifested itself in the last century.

The manufacture of a better mousetrap prevented the existence of a new mousetrap which would circumvent the fuel shortage. It appears that the whole world has fallen prey to the same plight. In Italy, gas is now up to $1.32 per gallon. Some European countries are already practicing bans.

In a sense our world could be considered to be oriented to the gasoline and the electrical system. But even electricity is not effectively harnessed.

Is our technology, the very one which put a man on the moon, incapable of effectively powering a vehicle by electrical means? And what about atomic energy? We have the power to explode the earth and rock our solar system. Why can't we control that power to a reduced degree to propel vehicles? Perhaps, it is not so much that we cannot do it but rather that we have overlooked the possibility while we were obsessed with construction of roads, gas stations, petroleum lubricant plants and in general a world with an orientation fixed on petroleum.

We have flouted what energy we have to a horrifying degree. Statisticians have said that Americans effectively channel only 50 per cent of the energy they expend. It looks as though we are in for what we deserve; a long cold winter. We had the power to prevent it but chose not to perceive it in the warmth of the summer. Our technology can still pull us through but the time is now to strive to harness new propellants or old propellants in new ways. Petroleum products are on the wane anyway. We no longer need them for lubrication since we have silicon and graphite lubricants which serve the purpose in the majority of cases. The need for petroleum in other areas could also be dispelled.

Science has proposed that matter can neither be created nor destroyed and that in all elements there is energy. If we seek it the means to extract this energy may be in the winters hence we will not be so cold.

Second Man Selection

A Newer Method Is Required

Ideally, candidates for vice president should be chosen with as much pre-vention of scandal as possible.

Since the resignation of Spiro Agnew as vice president, most Americans have probably entertained the thought expressed by Sen. Howard Cannon of Nevada as hearings opened on the confirmation of Rep. Gerald Ford as his successor. The American people, Cannon said, should give as much attention to the choice of their vice president as they do to the choice of their president.

The Agnew resignation and the unusual political circumstances left in its wake certainly demand a fresh look at the way our political conventions nominate candidates for vice president. It is also being proposed that we consider changing the manner in which the vice president is elected. Even the 26th Amendment, adopted only five years ago to clarify the procedure for filling the vacancies in both the presidency and vice presidency, is turning out to have flaws that were not foreseen.

Clearly there is reason to doubt the wisdom of leaving it to a newly-nominated presidential candidate, in the pressure-cooker atmosphere of a political convention, to pick a running mate with assurance of rubber stamp approval by the convention. Ticket-balancing, the approval of party leaders and a cursory review of the candidate's personal background, tend to be the main considerations in choosing a person who by a twist of fate, could subsequently become president.

Nader Was Right

Oil Companies Behind It, After All

(Editor's Note: This column was written by John S. Knight, editorial chairman of the Miami Herald, and reprinted courtesy of the Miami Herald.)

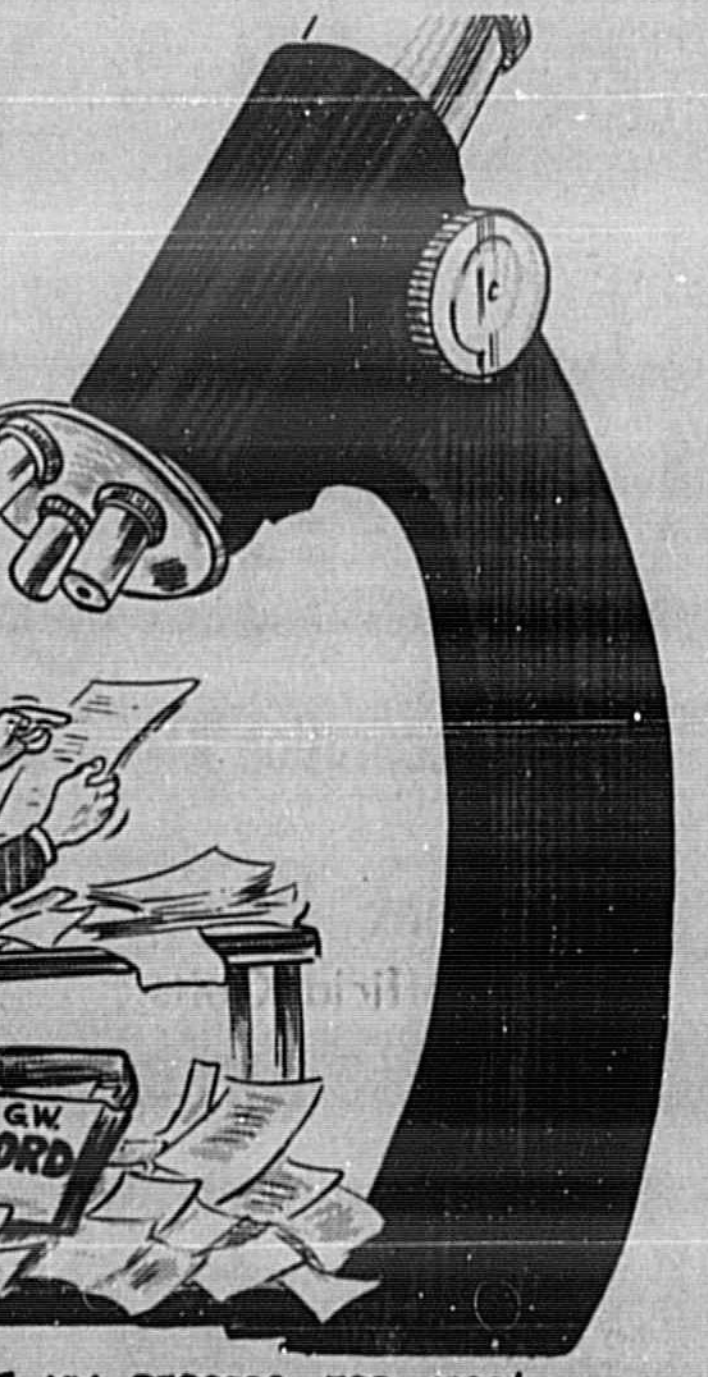

Last week, in discussing the energy crisis, I dismissed as "nonsense" Ralph Nader's statement that shortages were "orchestrated for political and economic benefit by the oil industry and that it chose to place the country in a short-term energy scare to gain dividends."

It now appears that I was wrong, or at least partially wrong. I had overlooked "Oil—The Created Crisis"—a three-part series by two outstanding investigative reporters—Donald Barlett and James B. Steele—which appeared in The Philadelphia Inquirer last July. That was the period when independent gasoline dealers were being forced to close their stations, and major refining companies limited the amount of gasoline a motorist could buy. The Philadelphia Inquirer wanted to know why.

THE FACTS

In abridgement, reporters Barlett and Steele uncovered these facts: 1. American oil companies some years ago made deliberate, long-term policy decisions to sharply expand operations in foreign countries to meet spiraling demands for oil products in Europe and Asia. 2. The Nixon administration failed to lift oil import restrictions after taking office in 1969, and gave assurances last winter that there were no oil supply problems. 3. At the same time American oil companies with world-wide operations were telling their customers at home to cut back on consumption, they were urging their customers in Europe and Asia to buy more oil products. 4. The American taxpayer is subsidizing the sale of petroleum abroad through a variety of tax allowances and benefits granted to American oil companies. 5. Contrary to the claims of the oil industry and the government that last summer's gasoline shortage was caused by an energy-zapping American public and unreasonable demands by the environmentalists, it was created through default and administrative bungling by the oil companies and the federal government. 6. Late last spring, the oil industry launched a massive advertising campaign designed to make the American consumer feel responsible for the nation's gasoline shortage. Yet for every barrel (42 gallons) of oil products sold in the United States, the five largest companies (Exxon, Mobil Oil Corp., Texaco, Inc., Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil of California) sold nearly two barrels in other countries. 7. The percentage of crude oil refined in the United States has steadily declined, and has steadily risen in foreign countries. (Note: Many coastal states oppose the building of refineries, as do the environmentalists.) 8. The demand for crude oil has increased 110 per cent in the United States over the last 20 years. In Japan the demand increase is 2,567 per cent; in West Germany, 1,497 per cent and in Italy, 1,079 per cent.

'AND HERE ARE MY RECORDS FOR 1922'

Exports to this country.

THE ARABS According to Barlett and Steele, our government does very little research of its own since it gets its advice from the Office of Emergency Preparedness told the Senate slightly more than a year ago: "We don't see a shortage in fuel oil, and we don't see a shortage either." In other words, the government people couldn't predict a fuel oil shortage three months in advance.

It is evident from The Philadelphia Inquirer's studies that the American people and at least one editor have been conned into believing a lot of things about oil and gasoline shortages that just aren't so.

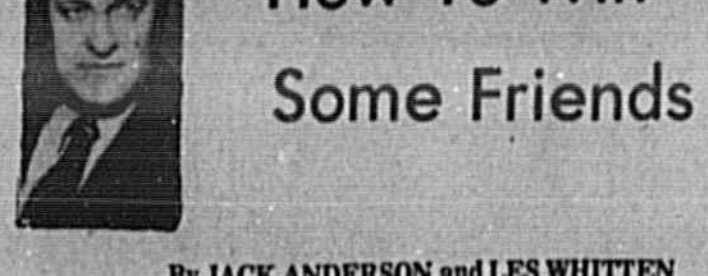

If you would like to know more about this fascinating subject which touches our personal lives so directly, write to The Philadelphia Inquirer, c/o Post Office Box 325, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19101, for a reprint of the Barlett and Steele studies.

Unfortunately, shortages in petroleum products do exist because the Arabs are buying their tramp card as an economic and political weapon. Everything else falls into the category of "what might have been." Unless Dr. Kissinger can rescue us, that's cold comfort for the wintry days ahead.

(Note: If any of the oil companies mentioned above wish to reply, adequate space will be made available in the Knight newspapers which publish this column.)

How To Win Some Friends

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Government investigators have uncovered sinister bonds between fugitive financier Robert Vesco and the leaders of the two nations that give him shelter: Costa Rica and the Bahamas.

In the Bahamas, where Vesco is now fighting extradition to the United States, said, Prime Minister Lynden Pindling has profited handsomely from his association with Vesco.

According to U.S. intelligence sources, Vesco bought a 450,000 house from Pindling near Nassau. Vesco's Bahamas Commonwealth Bank is said to hold the mortgage on an office building owned by Pindling's family and also made Vesco the Paradise Bakery, a Pindling investment.

In Costa Rica, President Jose Figueres is not only personally indebted to Vesco, but the financial security of his nation depends in part on Vesco's continued good will, the sources said.

COSTA RICAN BONDS

They said they have determined that Vesco has more than $10 million in Costa Rican bonds. A demand by Vesco for return of his money would seriously affect the Central American nation's finances.

Vesco is believed to have followed similar patterns in the Bahamas and Panama. In Panama, his deposits amount to several million dollars, the sources said. His investments in the Bahamas central bank are believed to be in excess of $10 million. Again, the sources said, sudden withdrawal would shake the nation's economy.

"Vesco has never given anyone as much as most people in these countries believe," one source told us. "What he has done is put his money where everyone can see it and hope to get a piece."

There have been reports that Vesco has invested as much as $25 million each in Costa Rica and the Bahamas.

WINNING WAYS

"Most of the money that he has put out is in deposits or loans that are payable on demand," the source said. "He takes care of the top people and a few others, and leaves the rest of the officials waiting for a chance to get some, too. It makes them very friendly."

The sources believe, therefore, that Vesco's carefully structured financial deals could enable him to escape extradition. They point out that when Vesco was arrested recently in the Bahamas on a U.S. warrant, the authorities did not seize the Costa Rican diplomatic passport he carries. Vesco has made a habit of reaching the leaders of countries where he does business. He hired President Nixon's nephew, Donald A. Nixon, to work in the Vesco financial operations both in Europe and in the Bahamas.

FOOTNOTE: We reported last May 21 that a recent CIA report showed Figueres' personal fortunes were at low ebb. The CIA noted that Figueres' nephew, Fernando, said "all members of the President's family are deeply concerned with family financial matters." It was at this point, we reported then, that the clever Vesco began to buy his way into the good graces of Figueres.

PERISHING PRIMATES: Two rare gorillas and an even rarer orangutan have died mysteriously at the famous Lion Country Safari zoo outside Atlanta. The animals were on loan from the respected Yerkes Primate Center of Emory University which had hoped they would reproduce on island at the zoo.

But a male orangutan perished while a female was being shot with a tranquilizer for medical purposes and jumped a low cliff into deep water. A gorilla also leaped into deep water and a second gorilla apparently died of food poisoning.

At Yerkes, a spokesman conceded that since the gorillas and orangutans cannot swim, they should never have been put near drops above deep water. He added somberly: "We wouldn't have put them there if we'd had enough federal money" for other outdoor quarters.

A Lion Country official said the details had been properly reported to authorities, but no state or federal action had been taken. Nevertheless, we have learned the humane society is quietly probing the deaths of three rare beasts.

SCHLESINGER'S SPANKING: Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger has such a dry, offbeat sense of humor that his associates cannot tell when he's kidding and when he's telling the truth.

One day last spring, when Schlesinger was director of the Central Intelligence Agency, he came to work with his hand in a cast. His aides asked him what had happened.

"I broke my hand while spanking one of my kids," replied the father of eight without a trace of a smile.

When we asked Schlesinger's office whether he had really broken his hand on a youngster's backside, he refused to comment.

LORI WILSON, State senator

AL NEUHARTH, Gannett exec

Sen. Lori Wilson To Wed Neuharth

Senator Lori Wilson and Al Neuharth, president of Gannett Co. Inc., will be married in a private family sunrise ceremony at Cocoa Beach, Dec. 31.

Sen. Wilson, 36, said she will continue her role in Florida government and politics. She is the state's only woman senator and only independent, Neuharth, 49, will continue to head the nationwide Gannett newspaper group.

"We both are dedicated to our individual professional careers, which keep us on the go; but we also are blessed with a very special personal love, which we look forward to sharing fully. We want our friends and associates to know that our personal and professional lives will be separate and distinct," the couple said.

After the wedding, they will continue their home at 3700 Ocean Beach Blvd., until their new permanent residence is completed at 311 S. Atlantic Ave., Cocoa Beach. Neuharth will also maintain an apartment in Rochester, N. Y., Gannett's corporate headquarters.

They each have two children by former marriages. Senator Wilson's daughter Rhonda is a freshman at Tennessee Tech and daughter Kim attends Pine Crest in Fort Lauderdale. Neuharth's daughter, Jan, is a freshman at the University of Florida and son Dan is a junior at Duke University.

Chiles Boosts Congress

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., told the Florida Society of Newspaper Editors that Congress is asserting itself more today than in recent years.

Chiles pointed Wednesday to bills now in the Senate that require public disclosure of a politician's personal finances, set limits on campaign spending and establish public financing of presidential races.

He said Congress is becoming more effective as the result of the Watergate scandals.

Mississippi Men Talk About Turner Firm

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two Mississippi men Wednesday recounted experiences with Orlando businessman Glenn W. Turner's operations in a federal court fraud trial for Turner and eight associates.

Previous government witnesses in the 10-week case have come from Oregon, Texas, the Carolinas and Massachusetts.

Larry Walker, 42, of Meridian, Miss., said he ran into problems getting cosmetics to sell and end up losing $623 while a distributor for Kosco Interplanetary, Inc.

Walker said he made a profit the first few months but his business failed when he couldn't get products.

Eldridge Atkins, 57, of Columbus, Miss., testified that he lost $145 worth of Kosco cosmetics when they were moved out of a cooperative warehouse without his permission.

Atkins said he tried to get help from a justice of the peace or a sheriff when he found the cosmetics being loaded on a truck but was too late.

U.S. District Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat allowed the defense to show a film Wednesday in which Turner made a dramatic talk for small businessmen and was cheered in the film by a large crowd.

Prosecutor Hugh Smith objected to the film because the government had no way to blunt its impact with cross-examination.

Judge Tjoflat told the jurors they were not to consider Turner's statements in the film.

In addition to Turner, defendants are Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey and Harry B. Atkinson, W. Leroy Beale, Ben U. Bunting, Clyde C. Cobb, Jess O. Hickman, Malcolm A. Julian and Hobart Wilder, all of the Orlando area.

They are accused of defrauding numerous buyers of distributorships in Kosco and Dare To Be Great, a motivational business.

Talks End For FPL, Strikers

MIAMI (AP) — Negotiations between Florida Power and Light Co. and striking electrical workers have been suspended indefinitely after all the original issues seemed settled.

An FPL spokesman said Wednesday that a settlement was blocked by the company's refusal to reinstate members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers accused of vandalism or violence.

"The company granted amnesty to those who committed violent acts in the 60-day-long 1969 strike," said L.C. Hunter, FPL's chief negotiator. "But twice...no!"

More than 1,000 incidents of vandalism and harassment have been claimed by the utility since 450 workers walked off the job more than three weeks ago.

The company spokesman said at least 20 incidents of vandalism were reported Wednesday and 50,000 Dade County residents were without power for part of the day.

Repair crews were harassed by the throwing of bottles and other objects at company trucks, the spokesman said.

One of the original issues was settled when the company agreed that a proposed Tuesday-Saturday work week for crew crews would be filled on a voluntary basis.

The utility also agreed to withdraw its proposal for the voluntary givling of electrified transmission lines and turn the issue over to a union-company safety committee for further study.

Ready To Die HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — "He was ready to die," says James Johnson Sr. of his son who died of leukemia eight weeks after marrying his teenage Italian fiancée. James Johnson Jr. traveled to Italy in September to marry 19-year-old Maria, whom he met while visiting Rome last summer.

"He knew he would die a young man, but he decided against trying to do anything special," said Johnson Sr. "He thought the best thing would be to carry on his normal life and plans up to the end."

Mrs. Johnson is completing the paperwork necessary to obtain a permanent resident's visa. She knew of her husband's disease when she married him.

Murderer Divorced

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Teresa Schaefer, the wife of convicted murderer Gerard Schaefer, has been granted a divorce.

At her side during the brief hearing Wednesday was Elton Schwarz, the lawyer who defended Schaefer and who has been dating Mrs. Schaefer.

Schwarz, who said he started dating Mrs. Schaefer at the suggestion of his client, has been quoted as saying marriage "would not be a bad idea." But neither he nor Mrs. Schaefer would comment on marriage possibilities after the hearing.

Schaefer, 29, was given two concurrent life sentences last month for the mutilation murders of two Broward County girls.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., told the Florida Society of Newspaper Editors that Congress is asserting itself more today than in recent years.

Tampa Jet Skids

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Four passengers were slightly injured Wednesday when an Eastern Airlines jet skidded to a stop at Tampa International Airport after a brake gear locked.

Eastern spokesman Charles Carey said the injuries were limited to a few scrapped knees, a twisted ankle and a cut finger.

The plane, flight 344 from Palm Beach to Detroit via Tampa, blew out three tires and a section of steel assembly as it touched down. One tire caught fire but was quickly extinguished, a fire official said.

The two-engine jet was carrying 43 passengers and a crew of five.

City Official Quits

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Clifford O'Key, former city manager of Miami Beach, Fla., has been forced to resign as city manager here because of a disagreement with city councilmembers.

"The man's entire administrative philosophy was totally incompatible with the entire goals and purposes we had been trying to propose," said councilman-elect Robert Cauborn Wednesday.

O'Key resigned after told at a meeting that the Democratic majority had the votes to fire him.

Republican Mayor Lew C. Murphy, who led last year's move to hire O'Key, said the action could signal, "a purge of other good people."

Around The World Walk Astronauts' Thanksgiving

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Walking four times around the world was around the world was Thanksgiving plan for two Skylab 3 astronauts today.

William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson, wrapped up in water-cooled garments were treated with a liquid chemical after they were discovered Wednesday night. Mission control communicator Storey Musgrave told the astronauts: "Flare them on hangers and let them dry and we'll be there to look at them in the morning."

But the space trek might have to be delayed 24 hours if mildew found on space garments Wednesday night had not dried out by mid morning today.

Officials felt confident that mildew treatment would work and that Pogue and Gibson would be able to step outside as planned. During the excursion they were to load telescope film, mount scientific experiments and attempt to fix a stuck antenna as their space-shuttle took four trips around the world.

The third crewman, commander Gerald P. Carr, was to monitor from inside the 270-mile-high orbiting station.

Green offered traffic offense defendants a special deal Wednesday. They could pay the usual fine or donate the same amount of money to buy food-stuffs for needy families.

More than 50 of the 200 defendants opted to purchase the food.

"Some judges see traffic offenders as revenue producers but I don't buy that concept," said Green, who filled in for the regular traffic judge.

He said the idea came as he was discussing his assignment with his secretary. If the defendants chose to buy the food, they were given a slip of paper endorsed by the State Division of Family Services upon delivery.

Kennedy: A Decade Has Passed

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (SEA) — Even after 10 years, there are still requests for the eulogy Sen. Mike Mansfield gave before the coffin of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It was given Sunday afternoon, November 24, 1963, in the echo-filled rotunda of the Capitol, with the light filtering in dusty from the high dome windows. Jacqueline Kennedy, who knew her husband's admiration for the man, asked Mansfield to give the eulogy.

"Every week we get several requests for it," Peggy DeMichael, administrative-assistant to Mansfield, said recently.

The eulogy, nine short paragraphs, began: "There was a sound of laughter; in a moment, it was no more. And she took a ring from her finger and placed it in his hands."

Mansfield says he remembers staying up most of the night writing it and still takes it out and re-reads it often.

"The times have changed tremendously in 10 years," said Mansfield, in his office, "but the memory is still there."

It was mentioned that many young people have very little knowledge of President Kennedy and of the trauma the nation endured when he was assassinated.

"There is a fading with the passage of time," said Mansfield. "And new generations keep coming to crowd out the details of what happened. In a way, it is like asking Germans today about Hitler. It is the past. New events being to obscure the old."

Midway through the eulogy, Mansfield said, "A piece of each of us died at that moment. Yet, in death he gave us a good heart from which the laughter came. He gave us a profound wit, from which a great leadership emerged. He gave us a kindness and a strength fused into a human courage, to seek peace without fear."

They were stirring words at the time, but they don't seem to hold up 10 years later.

"Well," said Mansfield, "I think Kennedy was on the verge of greatness. Had he had a second term, we would have seen some wonderful things from him."

"But he did lay the groundwork for the Great Society, and President Johnson carried through with some of the plans, like the civil rights legislation."

Mansfield added that President Kennedy's youth and vitality "had inspired great hope in young people throughout most of the world. And I think he began to

U.S.-Europe May Confer About Mideast Oil Crisis

By CARL HARTMAN, Associated Press Writer

U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may meet with West European leaders early next month to discuss united action that can be taken on the Middle East situation and the oil shortage.

There has been no evidence what action he and the ministers might take in response to production cutbacks and embargos by Arab oil nations, but the subject of economic sanctions has been raised.

Wires from Washington and key European capitals are being kept busy by exchanges of views on whether there is enough unity of purpose for a meeting between Kissinger and the West European leaders to be effective. In the next three to four weeks the Arab boycott against the Netherlands and its shale oil terminals is expected to be cutting deep into Western Europe's oil supplies.

Kissinger is due in Brussels Dec. 10 to join foreign ministers from 14 allied countries at the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Council.

Both Europeans and Americans have means of pressure against the Arabs, including food and industrial resources the Arabs need, large Arab funds in their universities and technical schools.

For the present, though, U.S. leaders have said they are not considering limiting shipments of food to the Arabs — since these could be made up by the Soviets — and negotiations are continuing on the sale of U.S. warplanes to Saudi Arabia.

Kissinger took a generally conciliatory tone toward the Arabs at his news conference.

Reds Ambush In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Insurgents ambushed a government patrol on Highway 4 two miles west of Kompong Speu today, killing seven government soldiers, field reports said.

Kompong Speu is 30 miles west of Phnom Penh.

Fighting also was reported at Hong Ko, 1 1/2 miles from Takeo, 38 miles south of Phnom Penh. Military sources said insurgents have shelled Hong Ko for the past two days, killing 18 government troops and wounding 37.

In Phnom Penh, a military tribunal sentenced Maj. Yin Kheng to death for embezzling and misappropriating more than $300,000 from the Cambodian army's payroll.

The same court also sentenced four Khmer Rouge agents to death for supplying the insurgents with weapons and ammunition.

No date was set for the executions.

In Saigon, informed sources said President Nguyen Van Thieu fired five more province chiefs for failing to stop Communist gains of land and rice.

On Wednesday, Thieu fired the province chief of Quang Duc on the Cambodian border where three government outposts were overrun earlier this month by North Vietnamese troops and tanks.

Getty Ransom Letter Demands Quick Pay

ROME (AP) — A Rome newspaper today received five photographs purporting to show J. Paul Getty III, grandson of the American oil billionaire, without the ear that kidnapers supposedly cut off.

The photographs were accompanied by a "final appeal" from persons who identified themselves as the abductors.

"If you do not pay I will never return home, neither will my body return home," the letter said. The photos showed a young man squatting on the ground in a narrow cave, with shots of both sides of his head.

The letter and photographs were found by newsmen of Il Tempo under a sign on the Superhighway of the Sun between Rome and Naples before dawn.

An anonymous caller had instructed them to go there and pick up a plastic bucket with "evidence that the severed ear really belongs to Getty."

Compromise Worked Out In Ireland

LONDON (AP) — Details of a still-secret compromise agreement to share power between Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland were released by informants today.

The compromise reached in Belfast Wednesday will be formally unwrapped before Parliament today by William Whitlaw, the British administrator of Northern Ireland.

The Ulster power-sharing agreement gives the mainly Protestant Unionists six seats on a governing executive, the largely Catholic Social Democrats four, the nonsectarian Alliance one, and leaves one seat vacant, sources said today.

In addition, the informants said three non-voting advisory positions will be given to the Social Democrats and the Alliance.

Congratulations

Dear Abby Letters of thanks at this special time

By Abigail Van Buren... DEAR READERS: On Thanksgiving Day we thank God for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. Among them are the many letters I receive from those who read my column.

DEAR ABBY: How does a person say, "Thank you, for saving my life"? I will be grateful to you for the rest of my days for recommending Overeaters Anonymous to me.

DEAR ABBY: I will forever be thankful to you for your column giving the Eucharistia Council address, (250 W. 57th St., New York) so I could send for a Living Will, demanding that I be allowed to die with dignity when my time comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am able to wear blouses and slacks for the first time in 17 years. I am so grateful to you, Abby. You have given me new hope, happiness, and a feeling of self-worth I never knew possible. Love from all of us "O.A." members. GRACE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: I will forever be thankful to you for your column giving the Eucharistia Council address, (250 W. 57th St., New York) so I could send for a Living Will, demanding that I be allowed to die with dignity when my time comes.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling me to write to Frederick of Hollywood to order a false fanny. I ordered one and have never been happier. I have a fairly nice shape, but am so flat in back, nothing looked good on me. Also I am so bony, sitting for any length of time without a cushion was sheer misery. Now that I have this padded girdle, I look great and feel wonderful.

DEAR ABBY: For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 67100, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DEAR ABBY: I realize it is good merchandising to have a customer wander around the store and possibly buy extra items while waiting for a prescription to be filled at the drug store. It is also inhumane not to provide seating for at least one or two people. I am sure there are many senior citizens who would agree with me. I have seen them grasp the counter to keep their balance while the people behind the counter were laughingly discussing their vacations. I do not want to underestimate our appreciation for a pharmacist checking to be sure a prescription is correct and not in conflict with anything else the person may be taking — JERRY.

DEAR POLLY: — I hope my pointer will help Bernice remove the discoloration from her china. I have used liquid bleach on china many times to remove a stain from my good china. She might try a small place first and see if it helps. The bleach can be a rather strong solution and have not had it harm china or its colors so this should be worth a try. —D.D.

DEAR POLLY: — Before painting the frame work on the outside of windows with the window glass itself with a two-inch band of liquid detergent. When detergent is dry do the paint job and when the paint is dry it will take only a slight rub with a clean cloth to rub the pane clean. —MRS.H.J.

Florida Gas Earnings

Florida Gas Co. announced today that consolidated earnings applicable to the common stock for the three months ending September 30, 1973 were $3,704,000 or $5.58 per share. This amounts to a 29 per cent increase over earnings of $2,876,000 or $4.5 per share for the comparable period in 1972.

Earnings applicable to common stock for the twelve-month period ending September 30, 1973 were $15,321,000 or $2.42 per share. This compares with $12,104,000 or $1.91 per share for the twelve months ended September 30, 1972.

Revenues, some of which are subject to refund, were $20,482,000 for the third quarter of 1973, compared to $27,123,000 for the equivalent 1972 period.

(Rochester, New York, October 29, 1973)—Page Airways, Inc., (OTC) a firm serving general aviation, announced that earnings for the nine months ended September 30, 1973 exceeded earnings of any full calendar year in its history.

Earnings before taxes were $1,436,415 for the first nine months of this year as compared to $1,167,806 for the first nine months of 1972. After tax earnings were $689,115, a 23 percent increase over the $560,548 for the first nine months of 1972.

Revenues for the first nine months of 1973 were $31,092,911, an 18 percent increase over the $26,278,233 recorded in 1972.

The Company said the ever growing market demand by general aviation for private and business air travel, both domestically and internationally, is reflected in Page Airways' record earnings. Also a contributing factor is Page's ever expanding base operations. Prospective earnings for the full year are excellent.

Pan Am Profit Drops

Pan American World Airways, Inc., and its consolidated subsidiaries in an unaudited statement reported that its net profit for the first nine months of 1973 was $1,325,000, after a tax credit of $726,000, or three cents a share, compared with a net loss of $14,001,000, after a tax credit of $8,005,000, or 35 cents a share for the same period last year.

Net profit for the third quarter was $23,320,000, after a tax provision of $21,867,000, or 58 cents a share, compared with a net profit of $20,231,000, after a tax provision of $18,811,000, or 50 cents a share for the same period last year.

The net profit for September, 1973, was $4,062,000, after a tax provision of $3,871,000, or 10 cents a share, compared with a net profit of $3,485,000, after a tax provision of $2,843,000, or nine cents a share for September, 1972.

Recession Ahead?

Oil Cuts Concerning Economists

NEW YORK (AP) — Interviews with leading economists suggest that the immediate impact of the Mideast oil embargo will be to slow the economy more sharply than had been anticipated and perhaps pitch it into recession.

But as many of the economists point out, the early effects might not be felt equally throughout the country. Shortages of gasoline and heating oil, and factory closings and layoffs, are expected to appear in pockets.

In some areas these shortages already are evident. They will become more common in the next few weeks, especially as heating oil becomes scarce along the Eastern seaboard, which depends heavily on imports.

Factories and workers are expected to be affected soon, especially in industries that rely heavily on petrochemicals.

For such industries the problem is expected to be not so much a shortage of fuel but of raw materials.

"Already a very severe shortage of petrochemicals is developing," said Alan Greenspan of Townsend-Greenspan, Inc., a consulting firm.

To Greenspan this suggests "a large number of plastics, synthetic fibers and other products—an almost unbelievable number of such items—will be moving into short supply, with resulting job losses."

Estimating the job loss in advance is difficult. One consulting economist said almost all his clients have had energy task forces for the past year but that most are still asking rather than answering questions.

The confusion is evident in the airline industry. While some executives feel that cancelling some flights might result in permanent economies, others are calling the disruption of schedules devastating.

Otto Eckstein, former Johnson administration adviser and now head of Data Resources, Inc., a company that operates an incredibly complex economic model, or mathematical matrix of the economy, foresees a sharp rise in joblessness.

After feeding the latest energy data into the model late last week, Eckstein now estimates unemployment will rise from 4.6 per cent to about 5.5 per cent in the second quarter next year, when the impact of the shortage will be greatest.

However, the jobless increase probably won't stop there. Eckstein projects a peak of 5.8 per cent in the second half of 1974, a delayed effect of the damage done earlier by a lack of energy and raw materials.

Complaints Heard Markets Are Rigged

Complaints that the money markets are rigged to discriminate against the small saver continue, and with a cry of "To the rescue!" the mutual funds are increasingly offering opportunities to invest in portfolios of not only bonds but more sophisticated types of high-income securities.

One of the few ways to beat the discrimination, Scott believes, is to put savings into one of the several bond funds now offering shares. He is himself a director of the no-load Capital Preservation Fund, in Palo Alto, Cal. (No-load funds charge no commission to buyers.)

Just now, however, there's a chorus being raised in Wall Street, warning that this is no time to tie up money in bonds. This from the optimists who believe that a bull market has now arrived and that interest rates have peaked.

Who's right? Well, if the bulls are, they first of all have to be right about happy days being here again in the stock market. There are some dissenters who have their doubts about that.

Next they have to be able to tell you which stocks are going to produce plump gains for investors. Not all stocks do that, even in the roaring of bull markets.

Bonds, then, probably will continue to appeal to many investors. A group of the shrewdest money managers in the business obviously thinks so. The Rowe Price fund complex in Baltimore has three common stock funds, all no-load — has, over the past several years, turned in what's regarded as the best performance record among all mutual funds.

How S. Nakagama Views Economy

The economy will continue to bump along close to its capacity limits....

Copley News Service

Sam I. Nakagama, economist for Wall Street's Kidder, Peabody & Co., generally classifies himself as a monetarist. He is another University of Chicago-trained economist, sans Ph.D.

"I didn't bother to write my dissertation," he said in an interview.

Nonetheless, Nakagama is a very respected economist with a good batting average, and it is reassuring that he is not writing his hands and gnashing his teeth over the state of the economy.

While some other economists are predicting everything from a full-scale depression to a "growth recession," Nakagama said that for 1974, "the economy will continue to bump along close to its capacity limits while expanding at a moderate rate."

Recent behavior of the stock market indicates to Nakagama that "investors are committed to the idea that there will be no recession and that profits will be maintained."

To be sure, there are negatives, which he cites: "Consumer durable goods spending appears to be softening, particularly automobiles. Home building is headed down."

"One of the major uncertainties is on the supply side—the shortages we face. Energy is just one of them....

"Also, there is some uncertainty about economic expansion abroad."

But there are offsetting bright spots. "Capital spending should be up 13 to 15 per cent next year," he said, citing Commerce Department figures.

"There will be heavy spending by utilities and certainly by oil companies and manufacturing as well."

But didn't businesses have big capital spending plans which were later canceled during and immediately prior to the 1969-70 recession?

Central Furniture Opens

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

Owners of Central Furniture and Bedding Co. Inc., James Triplett and Paul Miller, invite all Sanford area residents to attend the grand opening of their new store located on French Avenue at 8th Street on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The store is relocating from its Magnolia Avenue site, and will be larger than the old one.

Door prizes and special bargain prices will be offered on a wide variety of home furnishing items for the duration of the grand opening. The 18,000 sq. ft. showroom and 1,000 sq. ft. warehouse feature a complete line of home furnishings. Furniture for the whole home includes livingroom and diningroom furniture, bedroom suites and individual items, porch furniture, and baby furniture. In addition Central stocks major appliances, stereo and television sets, and carpeting.

The two men have been negotiating for the French Avenue property since the beginning of this year. The construction of the modern showroom has long been their dream, and they say they are proud to see it materialize in such beautiful form.

Among the eight employees at the new store are Triplett's wife, Nettie, and Miller's wife, Nettie, who will do both office and sales work.

Triplett and Miller first went into the furniture business together in 1965 as Southern Furniture and Upholstery.

Within a year Triplett bought out Miller, and two years later merged with Bridges furniture.

The day after Thanksgiving two years ago, having bought out his partners in Bridges Furniture, Triplett opened his Central Furniture store on Magnolia Avenue. In February 1972 Miller once again became his partner.

Miller welcomed his first customer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert

Barton, to the store Tuesday following a brief ribbon cutting ceremony attended by Sanford city commissioners and a number of Commerce officials.

Miller's wife, Nettie, is a native of Fort Myers. Marlene, her husband Bill, their two sons, Gene, 15, and Greg, 14, live in Orlando.

Marlene's hobbies are hunting and fishing. She is a member of the American Institute of Banking and the Azalea Park Baptist Church.

Consumers Questions

By LIZETTE L. MURPHY
Consumer Education Specialist

Q: Do you have any information in insect repellents that are good to use when camping? Also, how safe are they to use on small children?

A: The U.S. Department of Agriculture has found that only a few of the repellents on the market are effective. According to the Food and Drug Administration insect repellents have not proven a safety hazard when used as directed.

Repellents with either diethyl toluamide (N,N - diethyl - meta - toluamide) or ethyl hexanediol (2 ethyl - 1,3 hexanediol) are best for keeping insects away. Of the two, the former lasts longer and is less oily on your skin. Read the labels. There are at least two or three familiar brands that have these repellents.

All insect repellents —ear off with clothing, swimming, sweat and weather. Therefore, they have to be reapplied.

Spraying your clothes will help keep mosquitoes, biting flies, ticks, fleas, and chiggers from biting or burrowing in to your skin. But, be careful what fabric you spray. Since some repellents don't stain your clothes, you should be aware that they can damage synthetics, especially rayon and acetate. They may also damage vinyl plastic sunglasses frames and fishing lines.

Misinformation Filed

Q: I believe there is some misinformation filed on me at the credit bureau. How can I find out what is in my credit file? And if there is an error how do I go about getting it corrected?

A: If you want to know what information a credit bureau or any other consumer reporting agency has collected about you, either arrange for a personal interview at the agency's office during normal business hours or write in advance for an interview by telephone. With proper identification, the credit bureau must reveal the substance of all the information in your file, except medical information.

During a personal interview you may take along your wife or husband or another person of your choice. This may be a good idea if you need assistance in interpreting or analyzing the information.

In the event that any information appears to you to be incomplete, incorrect, or obsolete request the agency to re-investigate it. Be sure you follow-up to determine the results of the re-investigation. All information in question must be verified, corrected or deleted from your file. After the investigation if you still disagree with information retained in your file, you have the right to file a brief statement giving your version of the facts.

When adverse information has been deleted or your statement added, it must be included in any future report. This information must also be sent, at your request, to those who have received employment reports within the past two years and credit reports within the past six months.

Remember in our charmed economy, the credit reporting system is aimed at identifying those who deserve credit and weeding out those who shouldn't have it. While most of those who are rejected are bad credit risk, many are unfairly hurt by erroneous, incorrect or obsolete information collected and sold by consumer reporting agencies.

In final analysis, your credit record is a prime measure of your personal integrity and financial dependability. It's your own special responsibility to use credit wisely and to see that information in your "Consumer Report," (the legal name for credit reports) is accurate and current.

For more details, you may obtain "Fair Credit Reporting Act" (free) from "Consumer Information," Extension Home Economics, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida 32611.

Q: If meat and cheese get mold on them while in the refrigerator are they still safe to eat?

A: Summer sausage, salami, smoked ham, bacon and other prepared meats, as well as cured cheeses, are safe to eat after the mold is completely removed. And, there should be little, if any, change in flavor other than that coming from several days of storage.

You should throw away all fresh meat, frankfurters and wieners when a mold appears. The mold itself is harmless, but it has provided a great opportunity for harmful bacteria to grow in the meat that could cause spoilage. While it may or may not be safe to eat, it is not worth the risk. Remember, when in doubt throw it out.

A Legal Ceiling?

Q: Is there a legal ceiling or control on the amount of interest or finance charge for financing an automobile?

A: Yes. This must fall within the maximum set by the State of Florida under the Motor Vehicle Sales Finance Law. This regulation provides for an add-on-rate, which means that the finance charge you pay is figured on the original loan. The finance charge varies with the age of the vehicle. On a new car or demonstrator that has never been titled, the finance charge cannot exceed 18 per cent for each $100 of the original loan. If you buy a used car, (any vehicle that has been previously titled), the maximum finance charge per year for each $100 of the original loan may range from: $11 for a car under 2 years old, $15 on one over two years old, but under 4 years old; and $17 for used cars over 4 years old.

Although regulations set these ceilings for finance charges on automobiles, you should be aware of the unscrupulous dealer or lender who may try to charge a rate that is higher. If and when you make a deal, be certain that your contract shows both the true annual percentage rate of interest, the total amount in dollars and cents and the amount of each monthly payment.

Q: Could you tell me how much meat there is in a beef patty? I am referring to the ones found packaged in the frozen food section.

A: At present, beef patty type products have no specific meat content requirements except that they must look and taste like beef patties.

They may contain chopped beef, fresh or frozen; with or without the addition of fat, seasoning, binders or extenders such as milk products or cereal; and water. The only guide you have in making a choice is the label which lists the ingredients.

The story of the meat patty should change soon. For the first time, the United States Department of Agriculture (the agency that sets standards for all food containing meat) are proposing certain quality standards for meat patty products that would enable consumers to be more selective in choosing the products that appeal to them for economic or nutritional reasons.

Under the new proposal, U.S.D.A. would establish two categories for these products. "Meat Patties" would have to be made from ground meat containing no more than 30 per cent fat plus seasoning. They would be labeled "Beef Patty," "Veal Patty," etc. to designate which type of animal was the source of the meat.

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT? Records mixup can be corrected

By FRANK CORRICK
Copley News Service

Q: I don't think I am getting what I am entitled to each month from Social Security. I think they might have gotten my records mixed up with someone other people with similar names. What can I do about it? — P.S.

A: Go to your nearest Social Security office. Take your tax returns, W-2 forms, pay slips, and whatever other papers you have to show where you worked. Try to make up a list of your employers and the dates you worked for each of them.

That list will be compared with your record of employment in Baltimore, Md., and if it does not match up, then corrective action can be taken.

Q: Since insurance owned by an individual on his own life is a major asset in many estates, how about the insurance owned on another's life? — S.R.

A: The use and ultimate disposition of insurance owned on the life of another is an important factor in the financial planning of many individuals. Such insurance often provides important protection for family members, and it can play a vital role in financial arrangements between business associates.

Very often a gift of life insurance to another family is a simple way of saving substantial estate taxes at little or no gift tax cost.

Before such a policy is given away, however, the insured should be fully aware of the future benefits that he is giving up. And to insure that the gift will accomplish its purpose, the transfer should be carried out under the supervision of an attorney and with the assistance of an experienced life underwriter.

Q: My first husband died after we had been married 29 years. I remarried before age 60. Is it correct to say I won't get any Social Security from my present husband if he dies before we have been married 30 years? — Mrs. H. J. P.

A: No. The 30-year rule only applies when the marriage has been terminated by divorce. In your case you can become eligible for wife's benefits at age 62 or for widow's benefits at age 60 if your present husband should die before you reach that age.

Q: I think it is wrong that my husband won't get any Social Security benefits just because he does not have a birth certificate. And I have been told they won't accept a delayed birth certificate. — Mrs. E.

A: It certainly would be wrong if someone were denied benefits just because he did not have a birth certificate. But that's not the case.

Social Security regulations say that if a birth certificate or baptismal certificate recorded before age 5 is available, it must be obtained. In the first case you can scream and holler, "I was robbed!" or, "Stop thief!" You can even recall the story later for your friends, adding little embellishments about how brave you were.

In the second — you can't do much of anything. You've been duped by a con man. You're embarrassed. You're humiliated. (You bought the Brooklyn Bridge and can't burn it behind you.)

But you can make sure it never happens again.

The Los Angeles Police Department says:

— View "fast bucks" with suspicion.

— Turn a deaf ear to a "sure thing."

— Don't come to the aid of a stranger in trouble — especially if you just cashed your paycheck or made a withdrawal from the bank.

— Always be on guard.

Although there are as many schemes as there are con men, some have such a familiar ring they've earned nicknames.

Currently making the rounds are the pigeon drop, the coin smack, the Jamaica switch, the Sick Engineer and the greenhorn swindle.

There's also the Williamson gang, the phony horse parlor, the penny hustle and the creeper.

You can get three kinds of washers for faucets. Two of them, neoprene and buna, are made of synthetic rubber and are relatively soft, while the third kind, made of fiber, is hard. Fiber is the original material used in faucet washers. But fiber washers do not make the seal as complete as the synthetic rubber replacements which were first developed about 25 years ago. A soft neoprene washer used on the hot side will keep you forever playing with the faucet to maintain a steady flow of hot water. The problem is that neoprene washers expand quickly as water rushing through the open faucet becomes hotter and hotter. Tapered washers expand even more readily than flat ones, even though a tapered washer

Schemes Trick Suckers

By BOBBI ELLIS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Being robbed is one thing.

But practically asking a crook to relieve you of your valuables is something else. In the first case you can scream and holler, "I was robbed!" or, "Stop thief!"

You can even recall the story later for your friends, adding little embellishments about how brave you were.

In the second — you can't do much of anything. You've been duped by a con man. You're embarrassed. You're humiliated. (You bought the Brooklyn Bridge and can't burn it behind you.)

But you can make sure it never happens again.

The Los Angeles Police Department says:

— View "fast bucks" with suspicion.

— Turn a deaf ear to a "sure thing."

— Don't come to the aid of a stranger in trouble — especially if you just cashed your paycheck or made a withdrawal from the bank.

— Always be on guard.

Although there are as many schemes as there are con men, some have such a familiar ring they've earned nicknames.

Currently making the rounds are the pigeon drop, the coin smack, the Jamaica switch, the Sick Engineer and the greenhorn swindle.

There's also the Williamson gang, the phony horse parlor, the penny hustle and the creeper.

At this point, a second operator enters as an uninterested person, suggesting the two finders try to find the owner saying he will back the wallet for 24 hours asking the others to put up a specified amount of money to show good faith.

If the pigeon and first operator are unable to locate the owner they are to return in 24 hours and collect their security plus half of the money in the wallet.

When the pigeon leaves, the operators get together at a prearranged location and split the victim's security money.

One operator makes contact with the mark. The second operator is set up as a sucker who is going to be "taken" by the first operator and the mark.

The first operator strikes up a conversation with the mark and suggests the innocent matching of coins.

The second operator arrives on the scene and joins the game, leaving shortly thereafter to visit the rest room.

During his absence, the first operator suggests that he and the mark should always have their coins match. Thus, the sucker would always lose.

After the sucker returns and the game is worked for a period of time, he suddenly "fumbles" and threatens to call the police. The first operator offers $500 (or whatever amount they hope to get from the victim) to the sucker to forget the whole thing.

The victim usually comes through with something in order to stay out of jail.

Winn-Dixie Energy-Saving Drive

Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. has begun a company wide drive to help conserve energy in the company's retail food stores across the southeast, Winn-Dixie's Executive Vice President Joe A. Adams has announced.

In a memorandum to Winn-Dixie division managers outlining the firm's power saving program, Adams said, "Conservation of electric power through proper refrigeration, electric lights, proper thermostat setting for store heat and air conditioning will help our country during this grave power crisis."

Adams outlined immediate steps to be taken by Winn-Dixie to help conserve energy including:

— Resetting of all store thermostats to lower heat temperature (or raising the setting in cases where air conditioning is in use).

— Using only half of store lights before opening and after closing hours.

— Eliminating refrigerated cases spillover causing colder store aisles.

— Requesting all Winn-Dixie employees to reduce the speed in their personal automobiles to conserve fuel.

— Checking for small heaters in stores and eliminating their use when possible.

Adams also requested that "all maintenance personnel be alerted for ideas to further conserve oil, gas and electricity" and suggested that store managers review their early week deliveries on perishables in order to consolidate truck shipments of those items.

Using the theme "Thanks a Million for the Watts you Save" the six week program is designed, in Adams' words, "To help our country during this grave power crisis."

Plumber's Advice Seems Contradictory

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q: I am confused. I get what seems to be contradictory advice from plumbers on the type of washers to use to repair leaky faucets and make other replacements. One tells me to use only flat washers, another says the type of washer determines whether a flat or tapered washer should be used. And how about this — for hot water faucets, one plumber tells me that hard washers are best while soft washers are recommended by another. What can you say about it? — N.T.F.

You can get three kinds of washers for faucets. Two of them, neoprene and buna, are made of synthetic rubber and are relatively soft, while the third kind, made of fiber, is hard. Fiber is the original material used in faucet washers. But fiber washers do not make the seal as complete as the synthetic rubber replacements which were first developed about 25 years ago. However, fiber washers are strong and do not expand when they become hot. This feature, in my opinion, makes the fiber washers excellent for use on hot water faucets. A soft neoprene washer used on the hot side will keep you forever playing with the faucet to maintain a steady flow of hot water. The problem is that neoprene washers expand quickly as water rushing through the open faucet becomes hotter and hotter. Tapered washers expand even more readily than flat ones, even though a tapered washer will make a tighter seal on an old faucet where the seal is bound to be worn. Buna washers are neither too hard nor too soft, and I would say a flat buna washer is your best bet on most hot water lines. Neoprene, tapered or flat, is fine on the cold water side.

Q: The facade of our living room fireplace is another brick. The builder told us that some sort of acid could be used to clean the brick and mortar to bring out the real color. Can you please explain how this can be done without ruining the hardwood floor or the rug that comes close to the hearth? — Clem S., Meriden, Conn.

A muriatic acid, mixed one part to nine parts of water, is often used to clean mortar off brick or stone. This is quite difficult to use on a vertical surface and great care should be taken. All areas around the fireplace should be covered with plastic or heavy canvas. Also, your self-protection, wear rubber gloves and goggles. However, smoke and other stains can be cleaned from masonry by more simple methods. There are good masonry commercial cleaners on the market, available at masonry or building supply stores. Use a stiff brush to clean the rough brick.

Millions suffer from emphysema

By JOHN T. WATTS
Copley News Service

Dear John: My husband's doctor has told him that he has emphysema. I have heard of this disease, if it is a disease, but have never known what it is all about. — B.M.

Dear B.M.: His doctor should have explained. It's a disease, for sure. More than 10 million persons over 45, and from all strata of society, suffer from it. It is listed next to heart ailments as the cause of death.

You are not alone in being in the dark about it. Very little is known outside the medical profession about emphysema. It is closely akin to chronic bronchitis. Shortness of breath and dry morning coughing, in fact, mark both ailments. Victims of both diseases breathe in three times the air they exhale, thus the shortness of breath or panting.

Authorities say a good tip is to carry a balloon around with you, blowing it up once in a while to get the excess air out of the lungs.

The Rocky Mountain states are said to have the most emphysema sufferers in the United States.

There is an organization, Emphysema Anonymous, Inc., from which you can get more information. Don't ask me why the anonymous.

It offers free booklets and a monthly newsletter called "Battling the Breeze." You might request them from the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Carl Willis, at Emphysema Anonymous, Inc., P.O. Box 46, Fort Myers, Fla., 33902.

The organization is 15 years old and is a volunteer, non-profit service foundation dedicated to aiding sufferers from chronic bronchitis and emphysema, by means of education, encouragement and mutual assistance, according to Mrs. Myron F. Barkus, the president.

Dear John: I am 72 years old and have lived with my sister (59) all my life. We are spinsters. For the past 20 years she has provided 75 per cent of my support. My Social Security amounts to $17 as of now.

My question is this: If my sister should pass on before me I understand I am not entitled to any of her benefits even though she has paid in many dollars for years and years. Why is this and don't you think this should be amended and be put on the same basis as married couples?

There must be thousands of people in the same position and I think it is time we single people got a break. I would have to go on welfare and that doesn't make sense, does it? — Rosalie Hippey.

Dear Rosalie: No, it doesn't make sense. This is one of those things set up for the majority, so I doubt if I can give you a very encouraging reply.

What to do about it? The only thing I can think of is to try to get your congressman interested. Also seek the cooperation of other single persons in a similar plight. If anyone reading this wants to contact you I will be glad to give correspondents' addresses in this column for security reasons.

Letters may be sent to Mainly for Seniors, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Volume of mail prohibits individual replies.

Is Daylight Saving Time Returning?

By FRANK T. MARTIN
Copley News Service

Daylight time, which appears to be on the way back in the United States as an energy saver after having been briefly last Oct. 27, has a spotty history if you look at it counter-clockwise.

Germany came up with daylight saving time in 1915 to conserve fuel to help fight World War I. In Britain a one-hour time change became law on May 17, 1916, and the Britons turned their clocks ahead 60 minutes the following Sunday.

So the nation had daylight in 1918. By early 1919, however, opposition was developing among farmers, who complained that cows were unable to adjust to a new milking time and that dew in the earlier hour was heavy enough to hinder farm work. Congress bowed to the wishes of the farmers and repealed the daylight time act Aug. 20, 1919, over President Woodrow Wilson's veto.

In the years that followed, daylight saving legislation was enacted by some states and municipalities, until World War II again gave it national significance.

"War time," an hour in advance of standard time, went into effect nationally on Feb. 6, 1942, and continued until the end of September, 1945.

It has been a seasonal way of life for many—but not all—Americans well into the third quarter of the century.

About half the states observed daylight time for many years, usually from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September. But in 1967, Congress passed the Uniform Time Act requiring that all states, the District of Columbia and U.S. possessions observe daylight time beginning at 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in April and ending at 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in October.

Any state, however, can exempt itself from the law. Hawaii did so in 1967, Arizona in 1968, Michigan in 1969 and Indiana in 1971.

A 1972 amendment to the Uniform Time Act authorized states split by time zones to take that into consideration in exempting themselves. As a result, Indiana's exemption law applies only to the eastern sector of the state.

The Department of Transportation, which oversees the act, in the last three years has modified some boundaries in Indiana, Michigan, Utah, North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oregon and Texas because of local time problems.

Turning the clock back to the early 20th Century, an Englishman named William Willett in 1907 published a pamphlet entitled "Wasted Daylight" and financed a campaign to push time ahead by 90 minutes in four moves of 20 minutes each in the spring and summer months.

Best bets in old sets are Zenith and RCA—workhorses that rarely die. And, since transistors are more difficult (expensive) to replace than tubes, avoid those tempting little transistorized trade-in sets.

REPUTABLE, WILL give you something to individual can: a guarantee.

Since dealers have space problems ("Let's get that big one out of here at any price, Joe!"), and buyers seek compact models, black and white consoles (large) will cost you far less than what you'd pay for a small portable. BONUS: Larger sets tend to live longer than their smaller relatives!

Forget appearances: paint, decals, or glued-on fabric will make any old television more attractive. Find a set with the right price tag and, if it turns you on, turn it on!

His Story Nets Cold Shoulder

related to the underside of the big toe.

The power of the press is an awesome thing, and many people are likely to believe anything in print, even if they haven't read it.

For instance, take my wife's big toe.

We were sitting in the living room the other evening. It was after 11 o'clock and we were having a glass of rose wine before going up to bed. I noticed my wife still had the snafles from a lingering cold.

I got a clipping from some reader today. "A medical story from Chicago reporting how a couple of doctors claim they can cure the common cold by freezing the big toe."

She said: "Freezing the big toe? Come on, you aren't serious!"

I said: "I'm just telling you what I read. These doctors said they experimented with more than 100 patients with colds and had extraordinary success freezing the big toe."

She said: "That sounds silly. How could it possibly work?"

I said: "I don't have the slightest idea. They said the toe seemed to be connected to the nasal passages. The big toe, that is, and only the underside part of it."

She looked at me with — well, I think askance is the word I want.

She said: "Wouldn't you get frustrated if you actually freeze it?"

I said: "That's what I would think. But they say they only freeze it temporarily. You know, for a very short time, they guess they have some kind of device they use. The article said they gave the big toe a sudden drop to 22 degrees and the cold clears up in minutes."

She sniffed.

I said: "The doctors said it was as sound a principle as the Chinese acupuncture. They said that each part of the body is reflective to some other part. The nose apparently is a well-tuned engine gives off less pollutants.

Use less air conditioning. Try using it only when you really need it during the heat of the day. Some drivers have developed the habit of running the refrigeration system constantly, even starting up with it.

That's bad for the engine. The ventilation system will do just as well unless it's a sweltering day.

Check the front end. Misaligned wheels can eat up extra gas needlessly.

Drive better. Stop pumping the throttle. Start up gently, accelerate smoothly. Drive as though you had an egg between your foot and the gas pedal.

Drive less. Knock off those auto trips whenever you can. Sharing a ride whenever possible still is the best answer to getting the one-man auto off the streets, even if your neighbor smokes cigars on the way to work.

Idle less. Don't believe that old saw about having to let your engine run for five minutes before you drive off. It doesn't help your motor, gulps down gas needlessly and causes pollution. Get in, buckle up and take off.

Keep your engine tuned. They never have needed more attention than they do now, with all the pollution control gadgets. You'll save fuel and help to keep the air cleaner, for

The Second Hand TV

If It Turns You On.....Turn It On!

By MARTIN PORISS
Copley News Service

Television is an addition to every household? They help us learn to need expensive new products, they teach our kids the basics of violence, and they television—another cheap but good viewpoint.

Stalking the One-Eyed Monster requires no technical knowledge of television electronics. You just have to know where to go and what to look for when you get there. Since few private owners will go out of their way to sell an old TV unless it's stricken with slow death of the picture tube, it's generally a safer bet to buy a trade-in from a reputable dealer. The price, if you haggle wisely, won't be very different from that of a privately owned set. More important, a dealer can (AND, IF HE'S REPUTABLE, WILL) give you something to individual can: a guarantee.

Since dealers have space problems ("Let's get that big one out of here at any price, Joe!"), and buyers seek compact models, black and white consoles (large) will cost you far less than what you'd pay for a small portable. BONUS: Larger sets tend to live longer than their smaller relatives!

Use less air conditioning. Try using it only when you really need it during the heat of the day. Some drivers have developed the habit of running the refrigeration system constantly, even starting up with it.

That's bad for the engine. The ventilation system will do just as well unless it's a sweltering day.

Check the front end. Misaligned wheels can eat up extra gas needlessly.

Drive better. Stop pumping the throttle. Start up gently, accelerate smoothly. Drive as though you had an egg between your foot and the gas pedal.

How To Save Gas: First, You Slow Down

By FRANK T. MARTIN
Copley News Service

Government experts say that many U.S. drivers use about a third more auto fuel than is necessary to keep their cars rolling.

A check of some auto manufacturers and mechanics who know what goes on under the hood indicates that these gas-saving tips make the most sense:

Drive slower: if possible at all times within the 50-mile-an-hour limit suggested by President Nixon in his recent energy crisis message to the nation. Do you really have to move that fast, or is it just a habit?

Drive better. Stop pumping the throttle. Start up gently, accelerate smoothly. Drive as though you had an egg between your foot and the gas pedal.

Drive less. Knock off those auto trips whenever you can. Sharing a ride whenever possible still is the best answer to getting the one-man auto off the streets, even if your neighbor smokes cigars on the way to work.

Idle less. Don't believe that old saw about having to let your engine run for five minutes before you drive off. It doesn't help your motor, gulps down gas needlessly and causes pollution. Get in, buckle up and take off.

The Phoenix became the world's first ocean-going steamboat when it steamed from New York to Philadelphia in June 1809. The trip was made after Robert Livingston, who owned an exclusive right to operate steamboats in New York, refused to allow John Stevens' ship to ply the Hudson River. The voyage revealed that the Phoenix's construction was more seaworthy than that of Fulton's steamboat the Clermont.

Effects of bumper crop far off Signs indicate high food prices will become economic staple

By Eliza Paul

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Throughout the summer and into the fall, residents of one of Washington's posh apartment complexes overlooking the Potomac River have nurtured record crops of decorative cherry tomatoes on their balconies.

In a large retail grocery store across the street, the city's not-so-rich have been buying more day-old bread and cheaper, damaged produce than ever before.

Both are signs of the times. The assessment is probably correct. The Administration is now predicting that retail food costs for the year will be 20 per cent higher than they were in 1972 — in practical terms, the loss of groceries that cost $10 last January will cost $12 by December. But many private economists predict an even greater increase — possibly as much as 25 per cent.

Food prices at the retail level dropped last month for the first time this year, but nobody is claiming that the 0.7 per cent decline will set a trend for the remainder of 1973.

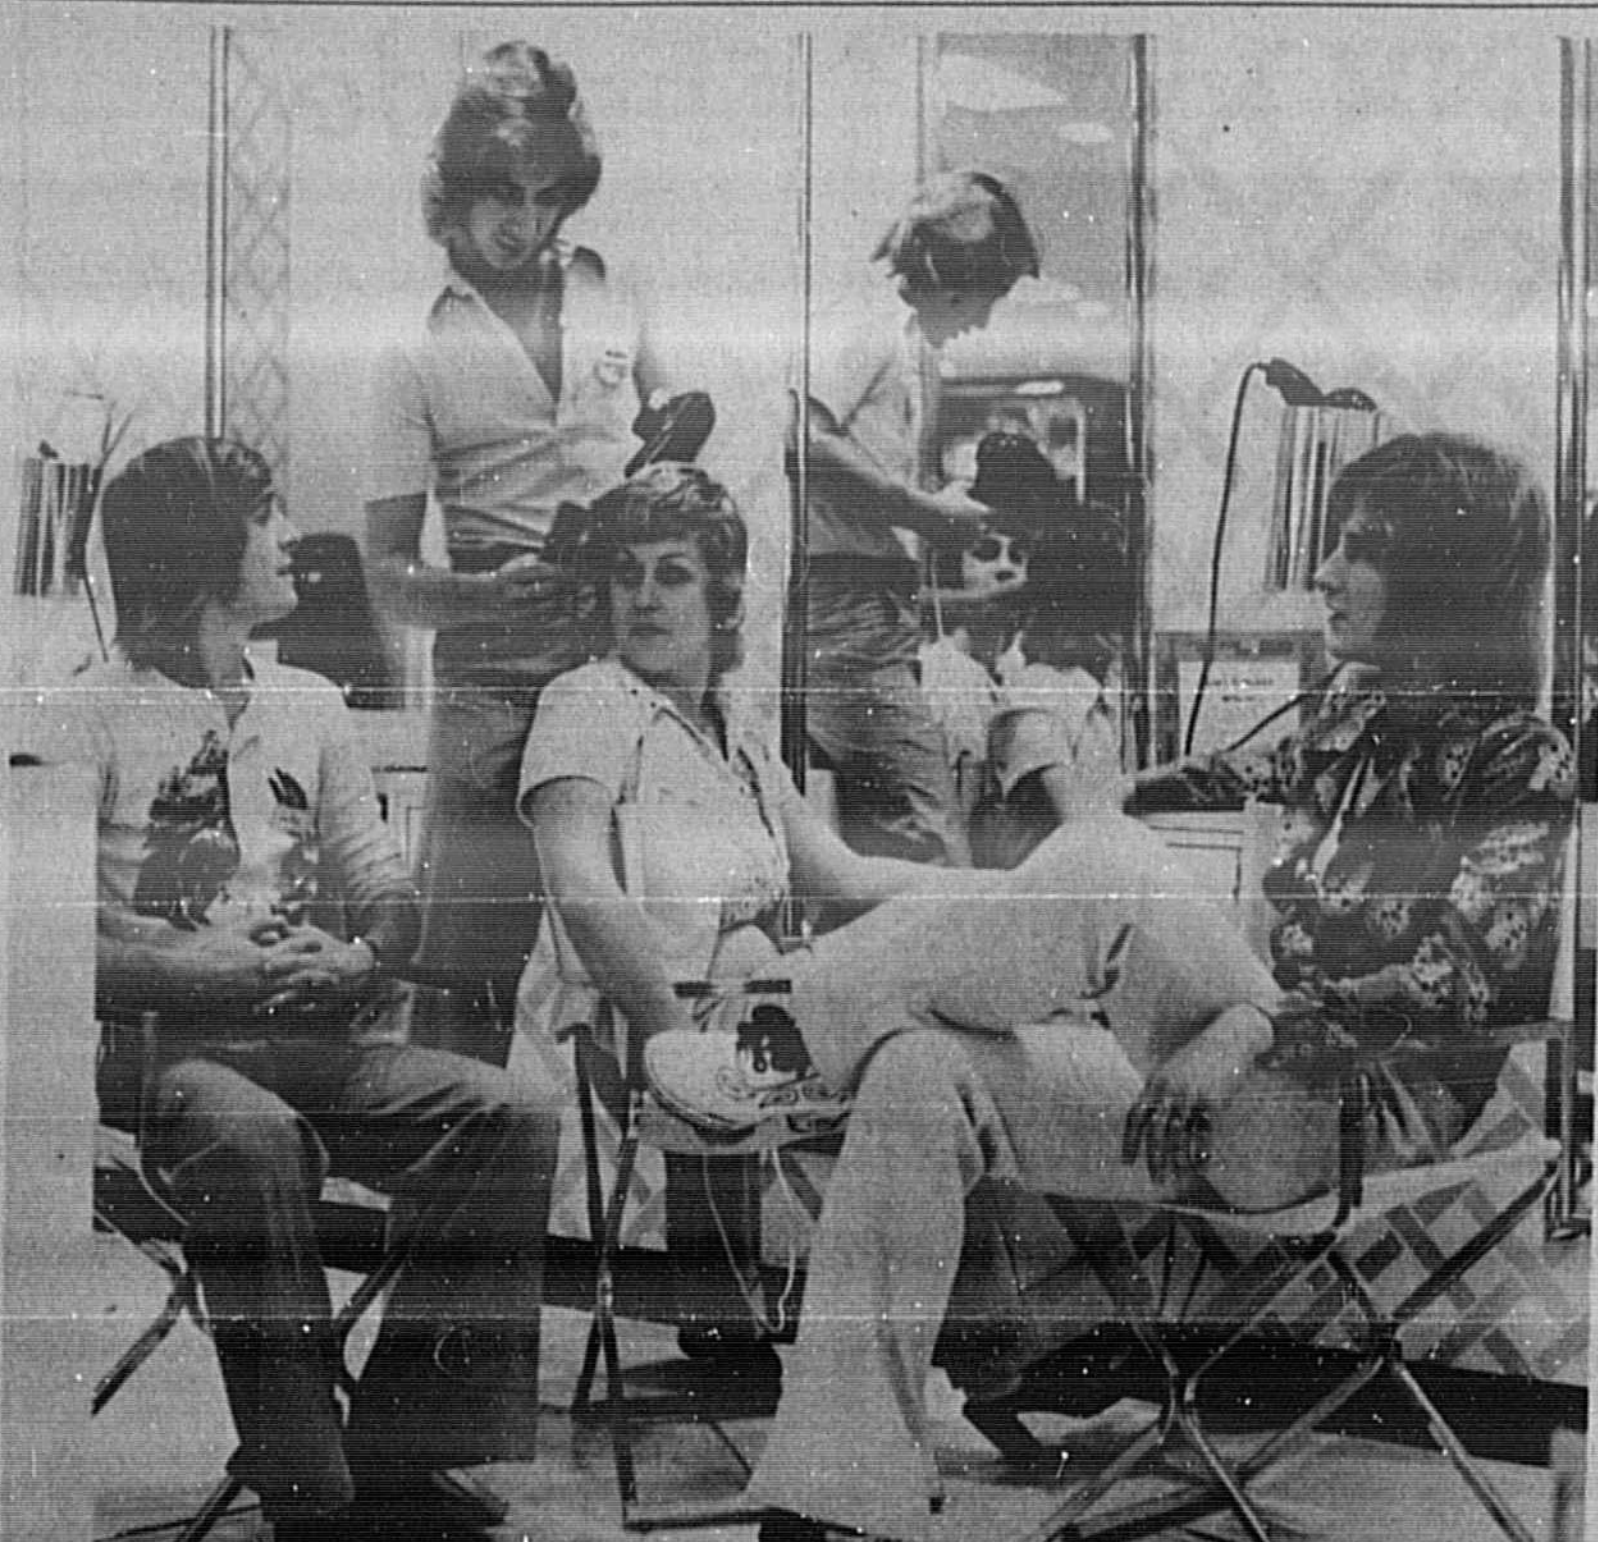

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, says the dip in retail prices seems to "support the view that the worst of inflation is behind us." Nonetheless, he warns, "it is probable that we will see some larger increases in the months ahead."

Behind official optimism that most food price increases will slacken is the much-heralded "bumper crop" this year of vital crops used for food and animal feeds: wheat, oats, barley, sorghum and corn.

But agricultural economist John Schmitzer, undersecretary of agriculture in the Johnson Administration, notes that the bumper crop is already committed for domestic use and exports. He predicts that any benefits from continued good crops won't be seen at the grocery store until late 1974 or early 1975.

Gains from the large feed grain harvest — if any — will probably be offset by new price control regulations that allow processors and retailers to pass on some of their spiraling operating costs to consumers.

Prices for milk and other dairy products are already rising and increases can also be expected soon for canned and frozen foods, which will be in short supply this year, President Nixon, in a mo-

Financing your college education Many sources offer scholarships, loans

By S. Robert Freede

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Here are some ways in which a college education can be financed.

1. College-Administered Awards: The greatest amount of all kinds of financial aid which college students receive is administered through the financial aid offices of the individual colleges themselves. Most colleges make money available first to their incoming freshman students. The first year of a student's adjustment and freshman students are not expected to devote much time to working at outside jobs. Flat grants are often provided in place of work-study funds or job offers.

2. Scholarship Search: This firm locates sources of scholarships and financial aid, matching high school and college students by computer to those sources for which they are eligible. The data bank contains 250,050 awards worth about $500 million. Many are not dependent on scholastic ability or financial need. For a $29 computer processing fee most students receive a five to ten page personalized list of 10 to 20 sources of scholarship aid for which the applicant is qualified. Money back guarantee if student does not get five or more sources. The company does not promise a student will receive a scholarship. To inquire, send $1 for illustrated brochure, questionnaire-application to Scholarship Search, 7 West 51st Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

3. Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (EOG) to students whose parents can contribute relatively little money toward college expense and who could not attend college without the grant. Range from $200 to $1,000 and must be matched by aid from the college.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author is president of Scholarship Search and a consultant to the National Scholarship Foundation. This is the second of three articles on how to finance a college education.)

4. Health Professions Loan Programs: These are available to students studying for an undergraduate degree in one of the allied health professions such as pharmacy. (Note: Pre-med students are not eligible.) Repayment of the loan begins nine months after the student graduates or withdraws but may be deferred up to three years while in a uniformed service or the Peace Corps or graduate work. Up to 100 per cent of the loan may be canceled for service in an area having a shortage of personnel in the borrower's health field.

5. Health Professions Scholarship Programs: Students can receive up to $3,500 per year while studying for an undergraduate degree in pharmacy. Contact the campus financial aid office or Grants Management Staff, Division of Physician and Health Professions Education, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. 20814.

6. Nursing Loan Program: Awards of up to $2,000 per year are available to qualified nursing students.

7. Nursing Loan Program: Nursing students may borrow while undergraduates. Repayment of the loan begins nine months after the student graduates or withdraws from school. Contact the campus financial aid office or Grants Management Staff, Division of Physician and Health Professions Education, Bureau of Health Manpower Education, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. 20814.

8. Life Insurance: Various life insurance programs are often used as a protective measure and a way of assuring that educational funds will be available to children when they are needed.

9. Planned Investments: The cost of college has increased considerably so it is essential that parents do advanced and long-range planning. Contact your accountant or trust officer at a local bank for personal advice.

10. General Scholarships, Grants and Loans: Various organizations have a program to help students with college financing. Local branches of the PTA, Elks, American Legion, etc. often offer aid in specific locations.

11. United is receiving usually reliable field reports which indicate the USDA and United October estimates of 16 million boxes of round oranges may require December reduction. Orange pickouts and crops are reportedly showing lighter than expected and dry weather is increasing fruit drop which, in many areas, is now reported to be verging on abnormal.

McGee said he hoped the 100 million forecast could be maintained.

The United spokesman said it was this demand and growing industry reports of a shortening orange crop that justified an immediate wholesale price increase to $2 a dozen 6 oz. can equivalents. Current price is $1.84.

Frozen OJ Sales At Record High

ORLANDO — An all-time frozen concentrated orange juice sales record will be established on the Dec. 1 pack year carryover date, United Growers said Monday.

Gen. Mgr. Wilson McGee of the Orlando-based grower organization said weekly average sales of 2 million "plus" gallons assured total sales of approximately 160 million gallons "or more" even with normal sales in the three weeks remaining.

The previous record in a 52-week period was the 137.9 million gallons sold in the 1971-72 season. The new record would be minimum of a 16 per cent increase.

"National warehouse holdings are reported extremely low in some areas. According to some industry analysts this has caused some chains to turnover stock as much as 60 times a year which is unprecedented but a tribute to demand for our Cinderella product," McGee said.

The United spokesman said it was this demand and growing industry reports of a shortening orange crop that justified an immediate wholesale price increase to $2 a dozen 6 oz. can equivalents. Current price is $1.84.

McGee said he hoped the 100 million forecast could be maintained.

Personal Finance The catastrophic cost of illness

By Carlton Smith

How family financial ruin can result from the costs of a major illness has again been emphasized by a study of 115 middle-income families. Many of them literally reduced to poverty within less than two years.

If anything can dramatize the need for the best possible hospital and medical coverage, it's this study, made earlier in the year by Cancer Care, Inc. and the National Cancer Foundation.

Many families studied were financially devastated by illness costs which ran to as high as $50,000. Even the best insurance coverage, unfortunately, can only minimize the family's financial burden. Though all but three of those studied carried typical family hospital and medical expense insurance, about half of the 115 families studied incurred costs that exceeded insurance reimbursements, often by many thousands of dollars. For example, 97 families had costs of more than $10,000, yet only 45 received insurance payments of that much.

All were cases of advanced cancer. The average cost per family was $20,700. Half of the families had annual incomes of less than $10,000. In nearly a third of the families—32 of them—costs totalled between $25,000 and $50,000. But only seven families received medical and health insurance payments of $25,000 or more.

Family income was $15,000 or more for only about 16 per cent of those in the study—18 families. The highest income, $30,000, accumulated costs of $75,550 over a period of three and a half years.

Families were "reduced to poverty" or "driven to the verge of bankruptcy" in many cases, the study found. Financial hardships resulted in "early retirement of the well spouse, depletion of lifetime savings, change of career and life plans, loss of home and other assets." The financial devastation, plus the emotional trauma of a terminal illness, made for an experience variously described by family members as "a living hell," "a time of horror and helplessness" and "a very real experience in hell."

One clear message of this shocking study is every family's need for good major medical insurance. Such policies pick up when basic hospital and medical coverage runs out, typically paying 75 or 80 per cent of the remaining bills. They commonly cover up to $25,000, though some provide coverage up to $75,000 or more.

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT? Ailing couple can seek assistance

By FRANK CORRICK
Copley News Service

Q. My husband had a heart attack three years ago and is retired. I am in bad health myself, but I am only 52 and cannot draw my Social Security. Our income is too small to take care of our food and medicine. What can we do?

A. If you are in immediate need, you should apply for Social Security credits if you have a net profit of $400 or more during the year. The law does not permit an individual to contribute voluntarily into Social Security.

Q. If a man retires at age 62 can he draw both Social Security and black lung benefits?

A. Yes, he can. Black lung benefits are payable to miners who have contracted pneumoconiosis as a result of inhaling mineral or metallic particles over a long period of time.

Q. Should an individual draw up his own will? — T. W.

A. Your will is an important and technical legal document which will control the final disposition of your property. The drafting of a will is too important a matter for you to attempt on a do-it-yourself basis. You will should be drafted only by an experienced attorney, who should be consulted early in your estate plans.

Q. I need a few more quarters of coverage to entitle me to Social Security benefits. On Aug. 1, 1973, I started a new business — a service station and grocery store. Some people have told me I can go back 18 months and pay Social Security and get my extra credit that way. Is that true? — L. L.

A. No. One way to get credits (or quarters of coverage) under Social Security is by working as an employee and being paid $50 or more per quarter (a three-month period) beginning Jan. 1, April 1, July 1 or October 1.

People who own a business get Social Security credits if they have a net profit of $400 or more during the year. The law does not permit an individual to contribute voluntarily into Social Security.

For Most Americans Moonlighting Is Now Becoming Increasingly Popular

By ART ARTHUR
Copley News Service

CHICAGO—By the light of the silvery moon, the song goes, I love to spoon...but, to increasing numbers of Americans, that light is being used for plain, old-fashioned work.

Moonlighting, the practice of holding a second job, "is becoming a way of life for more and more Americans," says a special labor force report issued here by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The report places the number of moonlighters nationwide at about 4 million, which means approximately one of every 20 working Americans fits into the category, and provides a simple reason for the upclimb: the need of money.

However, union leaders here, although disagreeing slightly in their explanation, get back to the moonlighters' major stimulant: money.

"The number of moonlighters seems to increase as the cost of living goes up," says Morris Wishnick, president of the Chicago District Council of the AFL-CIO Retail Clerks Union.

"It used to be that most part-time workers in stores were women. Now we're getting a lot of men. Times are getting a little harder."

John A. Coleman, international vice president of the AFL-CIO Service Employees International Union, agrees to the extent that "people work a second job to make extra money," but adds: "Those second jobs wouldn't be available if we were having hard times."

Areas covered by Wishnick and Coleman's unions—retail sales and security guard positions—are particularly popular among moonlighters. Wishnick, for example, estimates that about 50 per cent of the 30,000 jobs in his union are held by moonlighters.

How Christmas Spirit Rescued Inner-City Gang

By JAMES BURNS
Salvation Army

In a recent year, as Christmas approached, a street gang declared open season on the other gangs of an inner-city area. "Kill for Christmas" was the slogan. It was no idle threat — 12 young men were shot and killed.

Tensions increased towards Christmas Eve to the point that the Christmas celebration at the Salvation Army conference was in danger of being called off for safety's sake, although danger was nothing new in the Salvation Army's experience working with members of tough street gangs.

The police were working overtime to patrol the streets and could not spare any men for protection, but they advised the Salvation Army officer to keep the place open. "The Salvation Army better go on as usual," one policeman told her.

In a night interrupted by flashing police lights and sirens and street searches, the Salvation Army's party began.

Businessmen Seek New Sabotage Law

Sabotage of a construction site, or any place of business, should be a Federal crime, in the view of a huge majority of independent business owners polled nationwide.

Legislation has been introduced in Congress to deal with violence in labor-management disputes, to make willful injury or damage at a place of business or construction site in excess of $2,000 a Federal crime punishable by a $10,000 fine and up to 20 years imprisonment.

The sponsor, Representative John B. Anderson, Illinois, says such legislation is necessary because state and local police or authorities have failed, in a number of instances, to prosecute cases of union-inspired destruction, and the Supreme Court has ruled a Federal extortion law cannot be applied to such cases, although Representative Anderson sees such violence as extortion against employers.

His legislation has won the backing of 85 per cent of the independent business owners polled by the National Federation of Independent Business, against only 11 per cent who dissent and 4 per cent who take no position.

The response from Florida business people shows 86 per cent in favor, 10 per cent opposed and 4 per cent undecided.

When introducing the legislation, Representative Anderson cited $200,000 damage caused by 1,500 construction workers in West Palm Beach, Fla., in 1970; an assault against a fuel oil facility in Port Allen, La., where the National Guard was called out in 1972; and Associated Building Contractors' documentation of 170 acts of violence against ABC members in recent years.

Last February, the Supreme Court ruled that the 1948 Hobbs Act prohibiting robbery or extortion, or violence toward that end, does not allow Federal prosecution of violence to achieve legitimate union objectives.

A Minnesota respondent to the Federation poll commented: "As consulting engineers, we have seen many instances of sabotage to construction equipment left on the

Photograph Contest Winners

DELTONA — Winners in the Deltona Corporation Photo Competition have been announced by Howard Holsberg, public relations representative of the Deltona Corp., sponsor of the contest.

In the September-October Photo Contest, winner of the $50 U.S. Savings Bond was Mrs. Ruth Pullen of 1344 East Hancock Drive for her color slide of a beautiful rose.

First honorable mention, went to Lief Svenson of 1309 Gainesville Drive, for his beautiful 8 x 10 color print depicting a sunset over Twin Oaks Lake.

Second honorable mention, was awarded to Walt Witzke of 128 West Portillo Drive, for his photo of roses in bloom in a backyard overlooking Lake McGarity.

Holsberg announced that the November-December Competition has been cancelled due to lack of participation. Only seven entries have been received. In accordance with the rules of the contest, this number is insufficient.

Santa Claus To Start Sanford Plaza Visits Friday

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

Hey kids! If you've been good boys and girls this year, get your Christmas gift lists ready because Santa will be paying an early visit to the Sanford Plaza at 3 p.m. Friday, and he hopes to see you all there.

If you plan to be the first to spot Santa arrive, here's a tip: don't gaze up into the sky for signs of a sled and reindeer—or the modern equivalent, a helicopter. Listen instead to the sound of a siren and clanging fire bells, for this year the jolly old fellow will be arriving in a fire truck.

News of the energy crisis has reached even the North Pole. Santa decided to save on helicopter fuel and arrive in a fire truck instead. He thinks the gleaming red and white colors of the truck will match his own gay outfit perfectly!

In his sack he'll have lots of candy to give away as usual—to all good boys and girls, remember, so make sure you can tell him of the good deeds you've done this year, in case he asks.

If you don't get to talk to Santa Friday, you still have plenty of opportunities because he'll be visiting the Sanford Plaza every weekend from now until Christmas.

The festivities Friday will continue into the evening, with the grand tree-lighting ceremony scheduled for 7 p.m. The Sanford Plaza Merchants Association, who are responsible for the decorations and ceremonies, have bought a giant new Christmas tree and new pole ornaments this year. The tree is all gold and should look magnificent when the colored lights are twinkling.

Sanford City Commissioner Gordon Meyer will officiate at the tree-lighting ceremony. Flipping the switch to set the tree ablaze with twinkling lights.

The Rev. Blair McGarvey will give the invocation and the Lakeview Middle School Glee Club and Band will present a music program. They have been rehearsing hard, and Sanford area residents can expect to be delighted with the selections they will perform. WTRR Radio will be at the Plaza to do an on-the-spot broadcast of the activities.

All the stores in the Plaza will be getting into the Christmas spirit, many of them staying open until 9 p.m. or later, and some on Sunday afternoons. The Sanford Plaza merchants hope to see you all at Friday's festivities and invite you to be sure and visit their stores before Christmas shopping days run out.

The wide variety of stores at the Sanford Plaza offers a complete selection of popular gifts for everyone.

While Christmas shopping thoughts turn first to the children, the emphasis today on children's toys is variety, safety, and educational value. Playtime is valuable when children are "learning by doing." A child's age is usually a pretty safe guide to his or her current interests.

For slightly older children do-it-yourself kits are always popular and instructional. If you prefer, make up the kit item yourself and give a really personal, handcrafted gift to someone special. Several stores in the Sanford Plaza have these "crafty" kits for creative gift giving.

Sanford Plaza stores offer jewelry, clothing and accessories, sports equipment, household items and beautifully packaged toiletry gifts. On-the-go guys and girls will fall for items such as heated shave cream dispensers, cordless hair detanglers, and mist hair dryers. Give a camera or other photographic equipment for Christmas, and you're sure to get all your holiday fun in the picture! Sanford Plaza is going to be a beautiful and exciting place this Christmas. Be sure to attend the opening ceremonies Friday.

In order to serve you better during the Christmas shopping season, OUR Drive-up windows will be Open 'til 6 PM Monday thru Thursday, and of course we're still open 'til 8 on Fridays. These hours begin December 3, and continue through December 21.

He may be arriving by dog sled, fire engine, choo-choo train, helicopter or even parachute. He's Santa Claus and he's on his way.

But no matter how he makes his grand entrance, one thing is for sure—when the jolly man in red first shows his rosy cheeks and jingles his bells the Christmas Gifts Season is officially open.

All indications are that this Christmas will be the merriest ever for families everywhere. Stores have stocked their shelves with new merchandise and every aisle is sure to offer solutions to "what-to-give" problems.

Santa's traditional message can make the difference between a relaxing holiday or a frantic last-minute rush. His message is simply, "Shop Early."

Vacationers Are Returning To The Railroads Rather Than Risk Running Out Of Gasoline

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

The fear of running out of gas while on Thanksgiving Day outings prompted many more people than usual to use the railroads rather than drive their own cars to and from Sanford Thursday.

Seaboard Coast Line's

Sanford ticket agent Frank Gebhardt said "quite a few passengers" told him Thursday they wouldn't be traveling by train if they could be sure there was gas to get them home again after the holiday.

"I expected it to be real dead around here yesterday, but it was a lot busier than anticipated," said Gebhardt. "As a rule holidays are light on the trains, but Thursday was like an average day—which is heavy for a holiday. Traffic on the southbound trains was especially heavy."

Gebhardt said there are always more passengers on the trains over the Christmas season, but this year he has had more phone inquiries than usual, a lot of them checking on train schedules in case the gas shortage becomes worse.

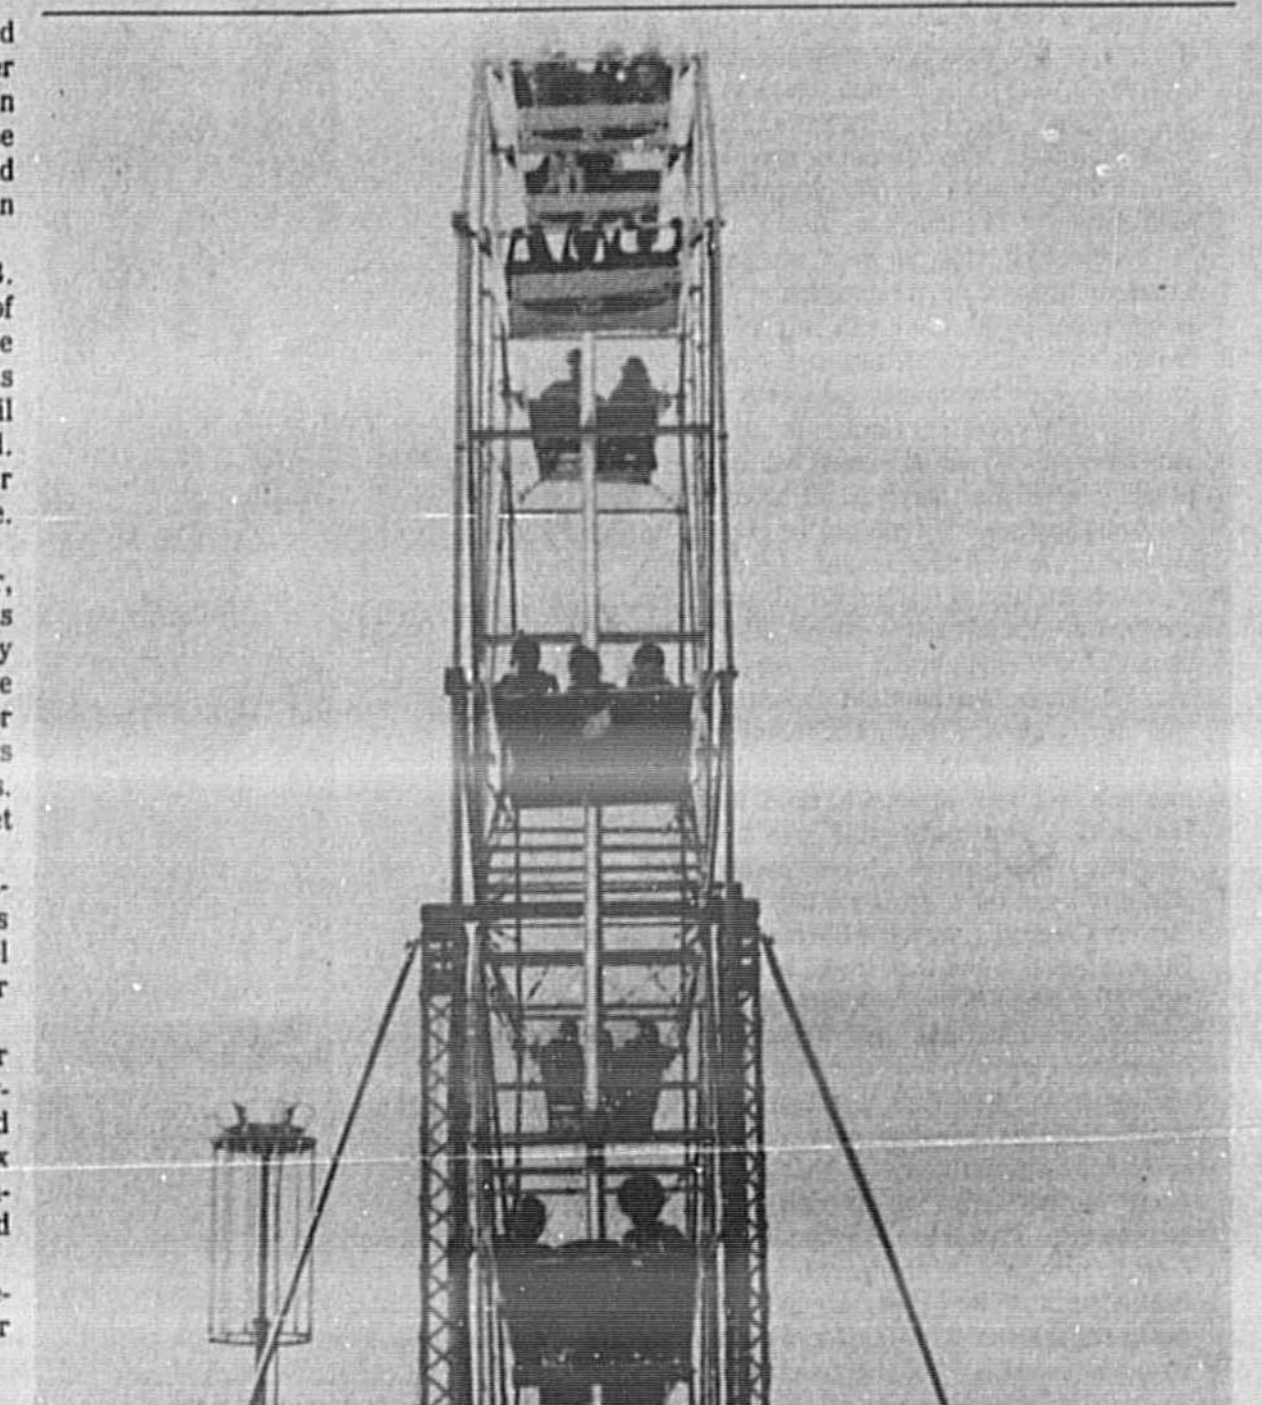

Manager of the Auto-Train depot in Sanford, R.L. Johnson, said because of the nature of their business which does not cater for short trips or many customers without advance bookings, it was impossible to tell whether there had been a rush for seats over Thanksgiving.

Overall, however, he said the number of calls and advance bookings is increasing. "In two years we've had nothing but progress, but with the gas shortage it appears business will be more than what it has been in the past," said Johnson.

He said Auto-Train will be adding a third train on Dec. 1 to handle the increased holiday traffic from December to May. He said the other two trains are almost at the limit of the number of cars they are permitted to carry, but if the demand continues to increase, they may add a few more cars to each train as they have done in the past.

Auto-Train, which takes reservations up to a year in advance, has been sold out for months, said Johnson. He said they carry a 100 per cent load daily.

Cities, County To Mull Pacts For Regional Sewer System

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Representatives of county and Lake Mary and Sanford city governments will ask their commissions next week to investigate inter-governmental agreements that would result in joint participation in studies, planning and applications for federal funding for a regional sewer system for north

Sanford. The study area encompasses the north 40 per cent of Seminole County—from Longwood Hills Road north to needed but should now be planned for.

The first in a series of steps toward a regional system is now 70 per cent complete, according to Conkin. The Dietz firm is making a $15,000 Interim Water Quality Management report for the city of Sanford. Nixon Tried To Limit Cox Investigation

By John A. Spolki

A most enjoyable Thanksgiving Day was had by the Spolki-clan; hopefully, yours was the same or better.

Only two "business-type" calls were received...one reporting an orange-glowing light hovering over the Sanford Airport. Took myself away from the Alabama-LSU game for about an hour to watch for flying UFOs instead of footballs (and didn't see any, sorry!).

The other call had to be one which I shall treasure indefinitely. A prominent public official took time while sharing his table of plenty with his family to pick up the phone and say, "I'll do the talking...while I'm reflecting on my blessings, I want to call and tell you how much I value your friendship."

And he hung up...

Help. There are some hundermadmen on the loose. Before they actually maim or kill someone, the law enforcement agencies should tag and arrest those two or three air boat drivers seen yesterday on the St. Johns River and in Lake Jessup.

They're actually firing their guns at ducks while the boats are in motion and under power (which is against the law), and come crashing through the high weeds on unsuspecting hunters and fishermen.

If and when the arrests are made, some local lawman is going to have a real face. One of the violators is a member of his family!

Sanford met Wednesday night with Conkin and Sanford City Manager Warren Knowles.

Kimbrough said the county is interested in the regional sewer study and exploring methods of agreement between the local government entities.

The joint advisory committee scheduled a meeting for Dec. 14 with planners and attorneys for the three government bodies. Conkin said the committee is a "sounding board" to consider alternatives to be advanced by the study.

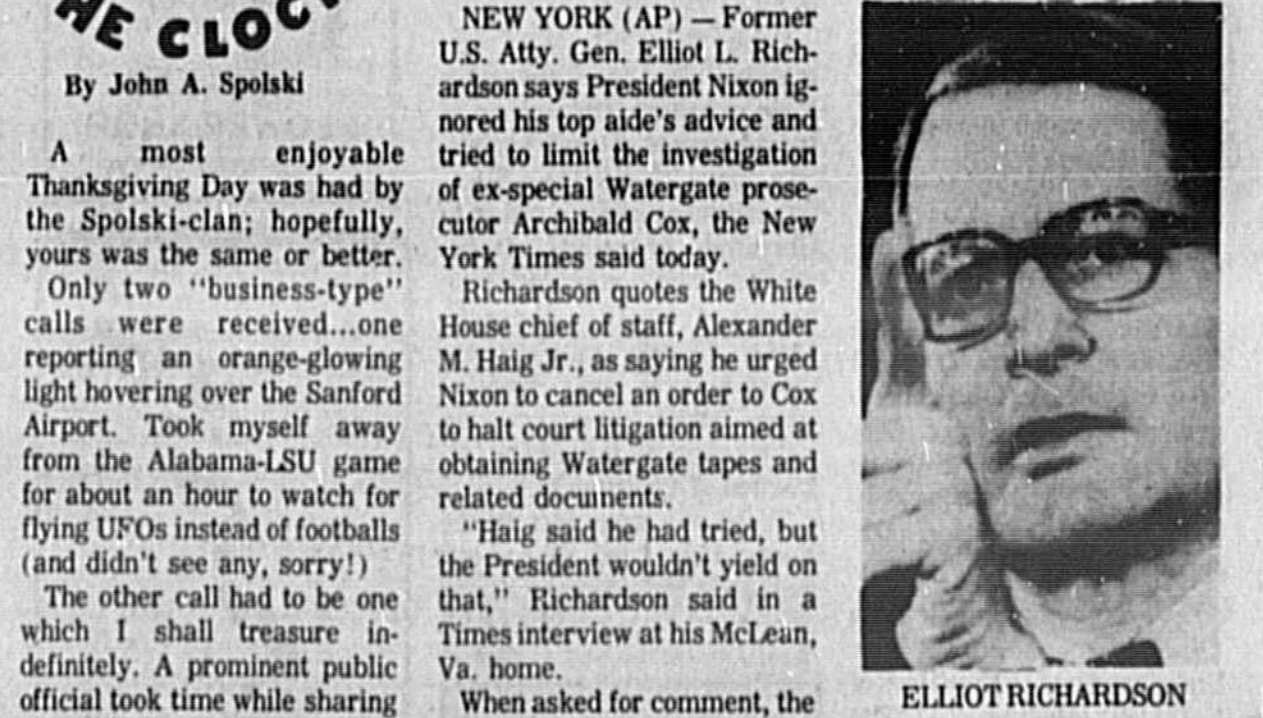

"We want to know if you think they are good and how they will affect your communities," Conkin said. "You may think of others that should be included."

Conkin said the initial study should be completed within 30 to 45 days and the alternatives will first be presented to the joint advisory committee.

"The study is to find the optimum, least cost way to serve the area with sewer service with the most protection to water quality," Conkin said.

Regional studies are required in order to get 75 per cent federal funding of a sewer system to serve the area.

East Central Florida Regional Planning Council engineers and planners are working with Conkin's firm to correlate population projections for the study area. Once the final figures are available the current Sanford study can be completed quickly, he said, and alternatives set forth on what type systems will be most acceptable to all regulatory agencies involved.

ELLIOT RICHARDSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson says President Nixon ignored his top aide's advice and tried to limit the investigation of ex-special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, the New York Times said today.

Richardson quotes the White House chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr., as saying he urged Nixon to cancel an order to Cox to halt court litigation aimed at obtaining Watergate tapes and related documents.

"Haig said he had tried, but the President wouldn't yield on that," Richardson said in a Times interview at his McLean, Va. home.

When asked for comment, the Times said, Haig replied, "I don't discuss what discussions I had with the President."

According to Richardson, Haig was turned down by Nixon on Oct. 19.

On Oct. 20, Nixon ordered Cox dismissed. Richardson resigned in protest, and William French Buckley III, who was assistant U.S. attorney general after he also refused to fire Cox.

The prosecutor was dismissed by the solicitor general, Robert H. Bork, hastily elevated to acting attorney general.

Richardson said the White House sought to answer the Cox subpoena of some tapes and documents—the big guys did well, and the little guys scrambled a lot, and sometimes just threw in the sponge.

Area Holiday Turkey Sales Vary, Use Of Duck Substitutes Noted

By CHRIS NELSON

Thanksgiving holiday turkey sales went pretty much like competition in other fields these days—the big guys did well, and the little guys scrambled a lot, and sometimes just threw in the sponge.

While managers from Sanford area Fairway, Park & Shop and Public Markets nearby all used the phrase "quite a few" when asked how turkey-day sales went, one small store manager said he didn't even order any turkeys while another reported sales

Sanford Ave., sold 120 turkeys in 1972, but only 75 this year, despite pricing the big birds at wholesale levels, and says he'll order just enough Christmas turkeys for his regular customers.

Spillman said he noticed a considerable increase in "substitutes" such as ham, ducks and capons and even expensive roasts—even though prices are up across the board.

Another "small" market man, Bob Newson, owner of Newson's Grocery, 1600 South West Road, said he didn't bother to order turkeys this year "because I didn't want the trouble."

Newson said he sold a "few" more hams than usual, but no more ducks because "they're even higher than turkeys."

Newson, however, provided a clue to the rosy picture painted by the big chain managers, noting the chains must provide the turkey sales, but feel they must provide them to meet their customer's demand.

"Actually," Heath concluded, "I don't think anyone made money on turkeys this year, and once you figure the overhead, you may lose on individual sales. In the long run, we'll make our money on the other things."

"Turkey sales were up from last year," Heath reported this morning. "People still wanted turkeys, even though the price was up—usually people will spend the money because this is a once a year sort of thing."

"I don't expect Christmas sales to be any different, unless something drastic happens to the economy, of course," Heath added.
