Secretary Denies Smut Letter Ties

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A secretary who says she was recruited to infiltrate the Tampa headquarters of U.S. Sen. Edmund Muskie during the 1972 Florida presidential primary claims she had "no personal knowledge" of a bogus campaign letter which led to the indictment of alleged political spy Donald Segretti.

"I had no personal knowledge of a letter written on Muskie's stationery regarding Sens. Jackson and Humphrey and their alleged indiscretions," Miss Patricia "Peg" Griffin is quoted in today's editions of The Tampa Tribune.

Robert Fields, her attorney, also told the Tribune that "The first she saw of the letter was when it appeared in the newspaper."

In a statement relayed by Fields to the Tribune, she said: "Over the past eight or nine months I have been cooperating through my attorney with the FBI and the U.S. Attorney's office. This culminated in my giving testimony before the federal grand jury in Orlando on May 22."

Segretti and Tampa accountant George Jearing were indicted last Friday on charges of "publishing and distributing a letter . . . which failed to identify those responsible" and with conspiracy to distribute it, Segretti, 32, is scheduled to be arraigned Thursday.

The fake letter, printed on Muskie letterhead, accused two of his Democratic rivals, Sens. Henry Jackson and Hubert Humphrey, of sexual misconduct.

Miss Griffin said last October she was recruited by Robert Benz, a former Tampa Young Republicans president, Benz was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator but not as a defendant.

Miss Griffin, 26, told a reporter last fall "I'm actually relieved you found me. This has been an awful weight on my conscience. I'd been waiting for that knock on the door, and now that it's finally come, I'm glad."

She said she penetrated Muskie's campaign office as a volunteer but has declined, on advice of Fields, to spell out her activities.

Fields also told the Tribune that Miss Griffin has received two telegrams from former campaign coworker Thomas "Tom" Pappas, now staff director for the U.S. House subcommittee on accounts.

I found the following "Turn Back the Clock" on my typewriter this morning, and felt compelled to share it with you.

It's getting to be more of a compliment all the time to be told that we are trying to "turn back the clock" when we stand up for a solid, time-honored principle.

Some back-tracking would be good for us all.

Before jumping to conclusions it would be well to think how Grandpa probably would have reacted to suggestions that he give up blessings like these:

Respect for the flag, now replaced by the kind of acts and utterances that were once punished as treason.

Safety on the streets, so far gone that men may assault their own store clerks in threatening to become the significant failure of American enterprise.

Pride in craftsmanship, now given way to the mediocrity, featherbedding and free-gouging prevalent in so many trades.

The right to spend one's earnings, instead of being forced to turn over an average of 35 per cent to tax collectors.

In addition the Supreme Court continues to rub salt in the wounds of those that still think the Ten Commandments are the yard stick for moral standards, when they eliminated the Bible from public schools and substituted sex education.

All in all, Grandpa may have preferred it like it was. And if it gets much worse, so may we. It's time to revive some old scruples, to rediscover the virtues of honest work, thrift, respect for authority and personal and community responsibilities.

If that requires "turning back the clock," then let's start turning.

Skylab Astronauts Will Evaluate Earth

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Astronauts will play their role as members of earth's natural resources when they board the Skylab space station.

They will use a $17 million array of six photometers to evaluate actual and potential resources over a wide area of the globe.

A dozen countries have asked the astronauts to employ the sensors to scan farmlands, mountain ranges, river basins and watersheds in search of everything from minerals to crop disease.

The Skylab is scheduled to be launched May 14, with the three-man crew joining it the following day.

"The Skylab earth resources experiments offer an almost unlimited potential for near term benefits affecting man here on earth," reported astronaut Paul J. Weitz. He is the senior expert on the Skylab 1 crew.

"During the five months the station will be manned by three crews, it will fly over 75 per cent of the earth's surface, including the entire United States except Alaska," Weitz said.

"With this excellent view, data can be obtained applicable to man's most pressing problems, such as weather, food production, pollution, flooding, erosion and the depletion of natural resources."

Weitz emphasized the sensors are experimental, designed to determine which instruments can best be used by man in space and which can be operated on unmanned satellites.

"But," he said, "they could lead to a science in such things as mapping snow cover and assessing water runoff potentials; mapping air and water pollution and their sources; assessing diseased and healthy crops; timber volume estimate; locating arable land; determining sea status and fishing grounds; and locating hidden oil and mineral reserves."

More than 90 principal investigators from the United States and 20 from other nations are involved in Skylab's earth resources study, which involves the use of multispectral, optical, infrared and photographic sensors.

A total of 132 targets have been selected for study by Skylab. They range from farm fields in Michigan to a timber stand in Georgia to an oil field in Oklahoma to a volcano in Italy. Entire regional systems such as mountain ranges, river basins and crop production areas will be surveyed and analyzed.

Most of the zones of interest are in the United States, but several foreign countries asked that the Skylab astronauts investigate various locations.

Iran, Israel, Sudan, Colombia and the Philippines asked for identification of potential wheat and date palm land and detection of crop disease and insects.

Agricultural Surveys and Israel requested an inventory of major soil types by vegetation.

Longwood Asked To Halt Rotation Of Ambulances

By DONNA ESTES
HERALD STAFF WRITER
A serious traffic accident occurs at a major intersection in a city and is reported to both the sheriff's department and the municipal police department.

Looking at the "rotation list," the sheriff's dispatcher calls Physicians and Surgeons Ambulance Service while the today there is merit in what Turney said especially as it concerns Longwood. He advised Physicians and Surgeons have two ambulances available to the city that company can probably guarantee better response time. But, he said, if only one ambulance is available at all times to the city, the city residents may see trouble periodically.

Two ambulances are on a collision course, going through traffic signals with red light and siren going.

city department, observing its rotation list calls Herndon and the two ambulances take off toward the scene of the accident.

This is when a problem is seen, Bob Turney, manager of Physicians and Surgeons, told the Longwood City Council last week. Two ambulances are on a collision course, going through traffic signals with red light along the vehicle flashing, siren wailing and ignoring all speed limits on the emergency run to possibly save a life.

With these arguments, Turney, whose company is based in Longwood, persuaded the council in work session to consider stopping the rotation system to give his company all calls within the city.

Longwood City Council at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday is to make a decision on Turney's request.

commissioners "should warn people." "The organism could cause fish kills, he said.

"However, if we closed down everything with a trace of the organism in it—including each of us—we'd have to close down the county," Adair steadfastly maintained.

Board action came after Adair and Commissioner Greg Drummond presented further results of tests on the Lake Howell drainage canal—with the latest studies showing strong concentrations of waste pollution in and around the Maillard sewage treatment plant.

However, both Adair and Drummond said, more detective work will be necessary to pinpoint sources responsible, with suspects including a nearby lift station belonging to the Indian Hills Utilities.

Requirements are strict for the operation of ambulance service in Seminole County, Sanitarian Va. Robbins said.

He said his office checks out the vehicles to be certain they are manned by properly certified personnel and are carrying the proper equipment. Besides annual checks unannounced spot checks are also made.

He pointed out, however, that Physicians and Surgeons are "draining rewards away." Now he won't know, he said, if a reduction is possible or in fact what the necessary subsidy will be until the end of the fiscal year. "Our revenues and expenses are tabulated for the Seminole operation."

In addition, to two full time ambulances on the road—one in Casselberry and one in Sanford—he said, the company has placed a day-time ambulance at Florida Hospital North in Altamonte Springs. At times Herndon also finds it necessary to call in back up ambulances from its Orange County operation.

The federal government pays 80 per cent of the approved land rehabilitation cost, but the program doesn't cover buildings, animals or crops.

Although Jefferson, Leon and Wakulla counties are outside the Suwannee valley, Pope said they suffered erosion from heavy rains and runoff. Jefferson and Leon counties have had 38.8 inches of rainfall this year compared to a normal of 17 inches.

Gov. Reubin Askew has asked President Nixon to declare 14 Florida counties a disaster area for the purpose of making available other aid in the form of low-cost loans.

Numerous roads, bridges and houses on the Suwannee flood plain are still under water.

G. L. Robinson of Jacksonville, director of the Florida Division of Emergency Government, said a full assessment of damage can't be made until the Suwannee pulls back into its banks.

It is still at flood stage or above from Ellaville to the river mouth at the Gulf of Mexico near Cedar Key.

State Tobacco Crop Weathers Floods, Rains

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Floods and heavy rains, which caused an estimated $8 million damage to North Florida last month, did not destroy the state's flue-cured cigarette tobacco crop, officials say.

The tobacco crop, which brought a record $21 million to Florida growers last year, was replanted on higher ground after the flooding waters of the Suwannee River swept over farmers' allotted acreage.

"A good bit of tobacco had to be transferred," said Frank Pope of the U.S. Department of Agriculture office here. "Some growers were forced to buy more plants and fertilizer, but the crop should be about normal."

He said most other North Florida crops had not been planted before the Suwannee and its tributaries burst out of their banks.

"Erosion to the land was a problem, however," Pope said. "It will cost about $750,000 to rehabilitate the farmland."

He said five counties have qualified for federal aid and an initial allocation of $115,000 has been made under the Emergency Conservation program.

The funds are available to farmers in Hamilton, Suwannee, Jefferson, Leon and Wakulla counties so far, and others may be approved later.

The federal government pays 80 per cent of the approved land rehabilitation cost, but the program doesn't cover buildings, animals or crops.

Although Jefferson, Leon and Wakulla counties are outside the Suwannee valley, Pope said they suffered erosion from heavy rains and runoff. Jefferson and Leon counties have had 38.8 inches of rainfall this year compared to a normal of 17 inches.

Gov. Reubin Askew has asked President Nixon to declare 14 Florida counties a disaster area for the purpose of making available other aid in the form of low-cost loans.

Numerous roads, bridges and houses on the Suwannee flood plain are still under water.

G. L. Robinson of Jacksonville, director of the Florida Division of Emergency Government, said a full assessment of damage can't be made until the Suwannee pulls back into its banks.

It is still at flood stage or above from Ellaville to the river mouth at the Gulf of Mexico near Cedar Key.

Requirements are strict for the operation of ambulance service in Seminole County, Sanitarian Va. Robbins said.

He said his office checks out the vehicles to be certain they are manned by properly certified personnel and are carrying the proper equipment. Besides annual checks unannounced spot checks are also made.

He pointed out, however, that Physicians and Surgeons are "draining rewards away." Now he won't know, he said, if a reduction is possible or in fact what the necessary subsidy will be until the end of the fiscal year. "Our revenues and expenses are tabulated for the Seminole operation."

In addition, to two full time ambulances on the road—one in Casselberry and one in Sanford—he said, the company has placed a day-time ambulance at Florida Hospital North in Altamonte Springs. At times Herndon also finds it necessary to call in back up ambulances from its Orange County operation.

Commission Bans Lake Howell Use

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

Swimming and water skiing in Lake Howell has been banned pending a state health department study of dangerous organisms found in the waters by county pollution control officials.

Following the lead of Commissioner John Kimbrough, commissioners Tuesday night overrode objections of pollution control officer Langley Adair to "post" the lake "due to the gravity of the organisms" found in last week's tests.

Adair, commenting discovery of a variety of organisms was not sufficient in itself to close the lake without full study by state officials, conceded board action came after Adair and Commissioner Greg Drummond presented further results of tests on the Lake Howell drainage canal—with the latest studies showing strong concentrations of waste pollution in and around the Maillard sewage treatment plant.

However, both Adair and Drummond said, more detective work will be necessary to pinpoint sources responsible, with suspects including a nearby lift station belonging to the Indian Hills Utilities.

commissioners "should warn people." "The organism could cause fish kills, he said.

"However, if we closed down everything with a trace of the organism in it—including each of us—we'd have to close down the county," Adair steadfastly maintained.

Requirements are strict for the operation of ambulance service in Seminole County, Sanitarian Va. Robbins said.

He said his office checks out the vehicles to be certain they are manned by properly certified personnel and are carrying the proper equipment. Besides annual checks unannounced spot checks are also made.

He pointed out, however, that Physicians and Surgeons are "draining rewards away." Now he won't know, he said, if a reduction is possible or in fact what the necessary subsidy will be until the end of the fiscal year. "Our revenues and expenses are tabulated for the Seminole operation."

In addition, to two full time ambulances on the road—one in Casselberry and one in Sanford—he said, the company has placed a day-time ambulance at Florida Hospital North in Altamonte Springs. At times Herndon also finds it necessary to call in back up ambulances from its Orange County operation.

Opening The Watergate President On The Rebound Again?

Nobody would accuse President Nixon of being too gentle for the rough-and-tumble game of politics.

But he has been the target of deserved criticism for his reluctance to act firmly and decisively in the matter of the Watergate bugging and the assorted shoddy revelations that have surfaced from investigation of the case since last summer.

On April 30, Mr. Nixon asserted the toughness that has sustained him in a political career that has seen him rebound from seemingly devastating defeats to capture the highest political office in the nation.

The effect of his apparent hesitation to crack down on illegal and erratic behavior within his own administration on his own image and on public confidence in government itself remains uncertain.

Still, the wholesale staff changes culminating in the resignations of Richard G. Kleindienst, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman and the "firing" of John Dean III indicate that the President finally is determined to get to the bottom of the Watergate fiasco and give it the essential public airing.

And the appointment of Elliott Richardson as acting attorney general to head the continuing probe and the appointment of William D. Ruckelshaus as temporary director of the FBI are acts that should bolster the nation's sagging faith in the integrity of the White House.

Next Question

For a decade a succession of Congresses and Presidents has tried to get a handle on the great mass of advisory boards and committees set up to provide link between the public and the federal bureaucracy. A new run at the problem has turned up the first comprehensive picture of how many of these bodies there are and what they cost.

Now we know there are 1,439 of them, and their expenses last year totaled more than $25 million.

It is too soon to say whether the government is getting its money's worth out of this usually voluntary service of citizens. The next phase of the study, not due until later this year, will tackle the more important question: are these boards producing good advice, and then there is the final question — is anyone listening?

Richardson has demonstrated during his years in the State Department and as secretary of health, education and welfare and as secretary of defense a remarkable familiarity with the people and processes of government. He has won the respect of Republicans and Democrats with his ability to move into new, challenging jobs and take firm hold.

Ruckelshaus has been impressive in his administration of the Environmental Protection Agency, ignoring party considerations and lobbying pressures to arrive at practical, workable decisions affecting the livability of the world in which we live.

The President accepted responsibility for the prolonged clamor over Watergate and pledged "to be worthy of the sacred trust" of his office, regardless of personal considerations.

There was no denying the shabbiness of cheap, unlawful tactics during a campaign for the nation's most prestigious and powerful office. But the names being whispered in connection with the incident were those of old friends. The tawdry acts, deplorable as they were, were perpetrated in the name of party loyalty and loyalty to Mr. Nixon.

The challenge to the President's toughness could not be more formidable.

The ultimate response was inevitable. An entire nation prays that it came in time to preserve the traditional respect Americans hold for the office of the presidency.

agreement can be meaningful without a free exchange of people and information.

Moscow has resisted the concept as encouraging to "interference in internal affairs." The Soviet Union, in brief, endorses more business, more tourism, more cultural interrelations, so long as the Russian public is not exposed to dangerous capitalist ideas.

It is indeed time for re-inventions in the treaty that confirms our friendships and our responsibilities across the Atlantic.

And the bridges built by Mr. Nixon to Peking and Moscow can be strengthened by improved East-West communication in Europe.

A fiscal agent was hired and advised the city could afford to pay no more than $1.7 million for the system in light of improvements which would have to be undertaken.

A consulting firm of assessors was retained which reported depreciation and condition of various aspects of the utility made it worth less than $1.8 million.

The 30-year bond issue to acquire and improve the system totaled $4 million.

All revenues of the utilities are pledged to pay the bond payments, above normal operation within Casselberry's bounds.

Successful operation of a utility is usually based on good. The city's consulting engineer has informed the board twice in recent weeks it will be at least one year before any additional connections can be allowed.

The city auditor reported this week all excess utility tax funds must be set aside to help with bank deposits for interest and payments required by the bond issue.

If other sources of city revenue, such as cigarette tax or franchise tax, are dipped in to bail out the utility system, the only course left would be an ad valorem tax or to substantially raise water and sewer rates.

People in the know are giving Casselberry no more than six months in operating the utility system before financial problems will be evident to all.

Whether we like it or not, much of this persuasion to which we are subjected is deceitful, if only because it is insidious," says David Burmester, a California high school teacher.

Writing in Media & Methods magazine, a publication covering audio-visual and other modern teaching techniques for secondary schools and teacher education, he states that "audiences of the future must be educated to cope with the language of deceit."

Because the successful TV commercial does more than inform, "it conditions," the matter is of such urgency that courses in persuasion must be part of our high school curriculum but must be launched in the elementary levels, he says.

It is more than just a matter of bringing students face to face with the commercial advertising persuaders of our society, says Burmester. He points out that in the last presidential election, more than half of all promotion budgets were spent on television.

The military, too, habitually indulges in euphemistic phraseology, and did so especially during the Vietnam war, and the current "media-aware national administration," he charges, has been known to dip into the language of deceit on occasion.

Some of the ideas he suggests for such a course include finding ads for the same product in different magazines and studying the change in tone and language in each of the magazines.

"Teaching kids to deal with the language of deceit is really an exercise in becoming a resourceful and critical media consumer while directing students to become the same," he says.

No doubt such courses would be worthwhile, if only by making students more aware of the language we use, and misuse, grammatically and otherwise.

Here Comes Ad Valorem

"Ad valorem, here we come," softly, but sarcastically sang to the tune of "California Here I Come," is being heard in Casselberry from those who fear that the city's operation of the water and sewer utility system to begin May 24 will be an even bigger "flopero" than the city garbage service was a few years ago.

Remember when the utility tax was hiked substantially with the accompanying promise that "free" garbage and trash collections by the city would be one of the resulting benefits to the citizens? As many citizens recall vividly the attempt was a fiasco.

The municipal operation lasted far less than a month and garbage and trash were stacked at every corner as the scent of Casselberry wafted on the breeze.

Municipal eyes next coveted the privately owned and operated water and sewer utility within Casselberry's bounds. Although the city only a few years earlier turned down a chance to buy the utility for $800,000 insisting the price was too high, its value suddenly took on larger and larger proportions.

Acquisition negotiations dragged on and on. A fiscal agent was hired and advised the city could afford to pay no more than $1.7 million for the system in light of improvements which would have to be undertaken.

A consulting firm of assessors was retained which reported depreciation and condition of various aspects of the utility made it worth less than $1.8 million.

'Language of Deceit' We're 'Carefully Taught'—by TV

By DON OAKLEY

By the time an American youngster reaches the age of 14, he has watched 20,000 hours of television, has seen approximately 18,000 murders or acts of violence and has watched 350,000 commercials.

"Whether we like it or not, much of this persuasion to which we are subjected is deceitful, if only because it is insidious," says David Burmester, a California high school teacher.

Writing in Media & Methods magazine, a publication covering audio-visual and other modern teaching techniques for secondary schools and teacher education, he states that "audiences of the future must be educated to cope with the language of deceit."

Because the successful TV commercial does more than inform, "it conditions," the matter is of such urgency that courses in persuasion must be part of our high school curriculum but must be launched in the elementary levels, he says.

It is more than just a matter of bringing students face to face with the commercial advertising persuaders of our society, says Burmester. He points out that in the last presidential election, more than half of all promotion budgets were spent on television.

The military, too, habitually indulges in euphemistic phraseology, and did so especially during the Vietnam war, and the current "media-aware national administration," he charges, has been known to dip into the language of deceit on occasion.

Some of the ideas he suggests for such a course include finding ads for the same product in different magazines and studying the change in tone and language in each of the magazines.

"Teaching kids to deal with the language of deceit is really an exercise in becoming a resourceful and critical media consumer while directing students to become the same," he says.

No doubt such courses would be worthwhile, if only by making students more aware of the language we use, and misuse, grammatically and otherwise.

Council authorized Swofford and the city clerk to execute an agreement with the Office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) relative to the Legacy of Parks grant.

City Atty. Joe Davis explained the agreement terms the city will not convey property benefited through the Legacy of Parks without the permission of the HUD secretary.

Council also authorized the mayor to execute a contract with the State Department of Pollution Control for an interim loan in the sewer system expansion for $2,500,000.

Comptroller Dick Baxter said the interim financing from the revolving fund loan will carry the city until permanent grant moneys are forthcoming for $4,750,000.

W. C. McAfee, a proponent, said with the unprecedented area development the only way to preserve the ecology is to "go up." Mayor Lawrence Swofford concurred in noting this was the answer in order to preserve a green area. Swofford mentioned a hi-rise was better development of the area than a two-story building.

Conner's Farm Slips State House Probe

By TOM RUA Associated Press Writer TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Many public officials feel they live their lives in a fish bowl always on public display, but only Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner would think of maintaining a farm in a fish bowl — literally.

People Connally Heading Down Rough GOP Road

In The News

Lloyd Bucher

By WALTER R. MEANS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — For John B. Connally, there is a job of political salesmanship ahead if he is to establish firmly his new Republican credentials in time for what looks like a crowded 1976 presidential contest.

As he switched parties, Connally said he sought no office, appointive or elective. That is the kind of thing politicians say three years in advance of a presidential campaign.

It is also the kind of thing other politicians discount.

Formally joining the GOP in its hour of Watergate trouble, Connally has been warmly greeted by the party establishment. But some of the same Republican leaders who welcomed him aboard are likely to be his rivals in the years immediately ahead.

When that time comes, men like Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Sen. Charles H. Percy may well be pointing out that Connally after all is a fledgling Republican with a long Democratic past.

Agnew, Percy, and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California all are potential enemies in 1976 Republican presidential competition. There may be more.

So Connally clearly is not going to move to the top of his new party without a fight.

Having forsaken his Democratic ticket, the former Texas governor now needs to get his lines open and his alliances made in the Republican party.

Some already have been tempted, during his days as Nixon's secretary of the treasury and 1972 campaign ally.

He has the advantage of his role as head man of Democrats for Nixon, an assignment that demonstrated his political prowess, and leaves him out of what has become the Watergate scandal.

One obvious step for Connally now is to start on the Republican speechmaking, fundraising circuit. Beyond that are the 1974 congressional and state election campaigns. By that time, if he is to make a move in 1976, Connally will have to be a Republican on active duty, working for GOP candidates for Senate, House and governor.

A more immediate, and more difficult question is the Watergate affair: how does he handle that one? So far, he has denounced the incident as stupid, while saying that it was not the work of the Republican party itself.

Senate To Vote On 'Parents In Schools'

By TOM RAUM
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted today on proposals by Gov. Reubin Askew's Citizens Education Committee aimed at increasing the involvement of parents in the public schools.

One bill would require annual report cards to be issued — with parents helping to write them — on the progress of every public school in the state.

The other would establish citizens advisory councils at the local level.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Robert Graham, D-Miami, said he was optimistic the Senate would adopt both measures although it turned down an earlier proposal by Askew's committee calling for nonpartisan election of school board members.

Senate Democrats also caucus today to select

Sen. Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, as Senate president designate. He will serve as Senate leader in 1975 and 1976 if Democrats retain control of the 40-member chamber.

Barron, now chairman of the pivotal Rules and Calendar Committee, says he has pledges of support from all 25 Democratic Senators.

Sen. Alan Trask, D-Port Maudie, is scheduled to be made Senate president pro tempore designate at the same time.

The House is scheduled to debate a bill by Rep. Robert Johnson, R-Sarasota, reforming Florida's adoption laws to provide more protection for children being adopted.

The bill would permit a married person to adopt a child without the consent of their spouse if a court decided there was a prolonged unexplained absence of that spouse.

"We haven't decided on the future," Mrs. Bucher told the San Diego Evening Tribune. She said she has "mixed feelings" about Connally's decision to retire after 22 years in the Navy.

Mrs. Bucher was interviewed by telephone from Guam, where her husband returned Monday after commanding an element of the U.S. mine-sweeper force clearing mines from North Vietnamese waters.

Bucher, 45, was commander of the Navy ship Pueblo when it was captured by a North Korean naval force Jan. 23, 1968.

Mrs. Worfield

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. William Caesar Worfield told a special hearing her divorce suit — just the restoration of her maiden name, Leontyne Price.

She was referred Governor Rockefeller's first due to Mrs. Worfield's identity, and after granting the divorce, she was granted the Metropolitan Opera star to sing.

Miss Price declined, pointing out that the courtroom had no piano.

She and actor-singer Worfield were married in 1952 and separated seven years later.

Major Lockhart

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A former Vietnam prisoner of war has been awarded a divorce after 11 years of marriage, eight years of which he spent in a North Vietnamese prison camp.

Air Force Maj. Hayden J. Lockhart Jr. is to give his British-born wife, Jill, a lump sum alimony payment of $5,000. She was awarded custody of their 7-year-old son, James, and $100 monthly for his support.

Lockhart, 34, saw the boy for the first time when he returned to this country on Feb. 16.

The divorce was granted Tuesday on grounds of "gross neglect of duty" and extreme cruelty.

Lynda Bird Robb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, daughter of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, showed up at the White House Tuesday and her presence aroused curiosity for a while.

It turned out she had come to see Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and to hitch a ride with him to Charlottesville, Va., a White House spokesman said.

Agnew was going there to speak before the University of Virginia Law Forum, which is headed by Lynda's husband, Charles Robb.

Unionists In State Slacking

By IKE FLORES
 Associated Press Writer
 MIAMI (AP) — The United Farm Workers Union, an increasingly active force in the state's citrus, sugar and vegetable growers, has sharply curtailed its activities in the state's recent weeks.

The UFW has closed its state headquarters in Belle Glade, pulled out most of its personnel and virtually suspended its important organizing activities among migrant and seasonal workers in the state's top three agricultural industries.

The reason is the AFL-CIO union's nationwide struggle with the state's citrus growers. The union's jurisdictional conflicts in the grape and lettuce fields, union sources say. Originally concentrated in California, the Teamsters-Farm Workers battle has grown to include other important migrant-labor states in the Midwest and Southwest.

The UFW's founder and director, Cesar Chavez, has ordered most of the union's organizing personnel to stop activities in non-essential areas and report to California and other states considered pivotal in the jurisdictional fray, according to union sources.

Florida UFW Director Elinor Medina is reportedly working on boycott activities in Ohio after participating in massive picketing of growers in California's San Joaquin valley at the end of April, they sources said.

"Why should we organize (sign up farm laborers) when we may not even have a union if we lose the fight with the Teamsters," said one of about a dozen UFW workers left in Florida.

Although organizing activities have come to a halt, the union is maintaining open its five "boycott centers" located in Miami, Avon Park, Fort Pierce, Haines City and Apopka. Its lobbying activities in Tallahassee against right-to-work bills helped to defeat one such proposal.

House Critic Retreats

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A second right-to-work supporter has backed down from charges of misconduct by legislators after he was summoned to testify before the House Standards and Conduct Committee. Craig Bryant, president of Brody Construction Co. of Orlando, told the committee Tuesday that he was angry and chose his words poorly when he wrote to Commerce Committee members. Nearly a month after the committee voted 15-3 in March to kill a right-to-work bill, Bryant sent members a letter that said, "your conscience was obviously influenced by monetary or other considerations by an outside factor."

The bill would forbid making union membership a condition of employment.

The Standards and Conduct Committee decided after Bryant backtracked that there was no reason to believe Commerce Committee members were guilty of wrongdoing.

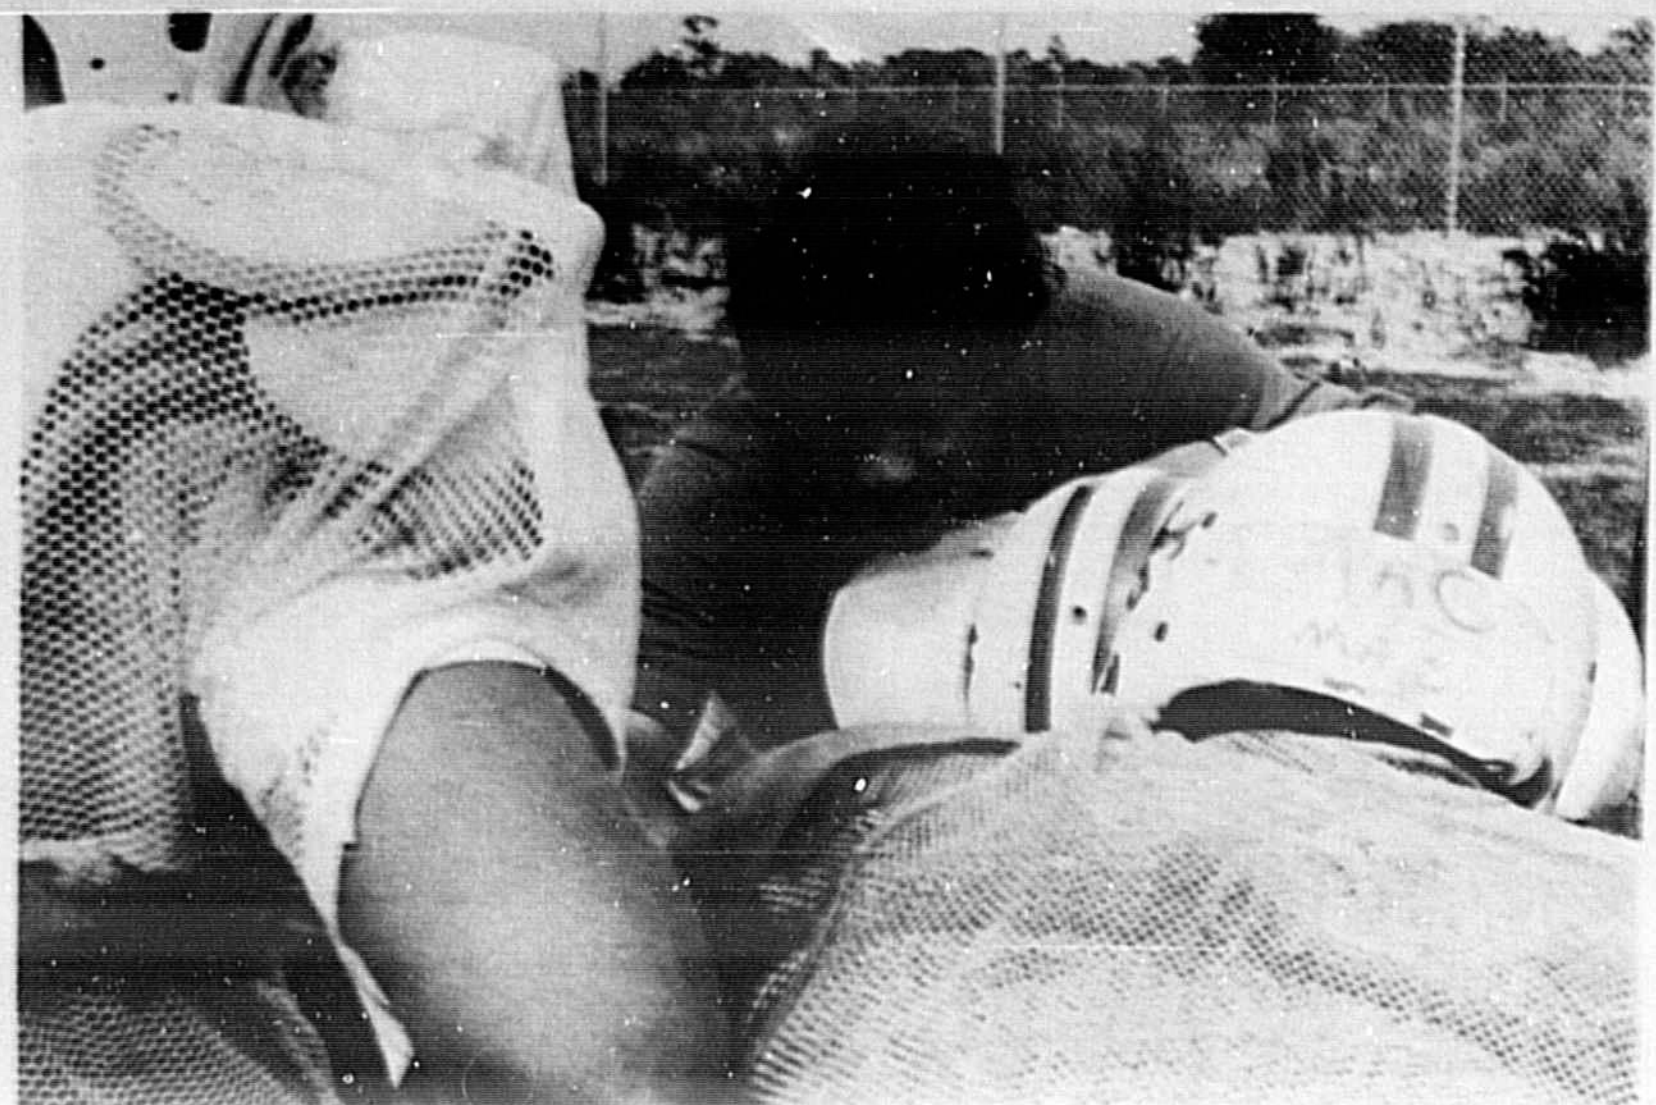

It made a similar finding last month on charges by Alan Blincoe, executive director of Florida Citizens for Right to Work, that supporters of the right-to-work bill were intimidated before the committee.

After the standards committee contacted him, Blincoe sent a letter of apology about charges that big labor "bought and paid for legislators."

Mid-East Outbursts Follow Cease-Fire

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas clashed near the Beirut airport again today despite proclamation of a new cease-fire. Guerrilla attacks also were reported near the Syrian border.

Witnesses said guerrillas near the airport opened fire with mortars and rockets, and the army retaliated with tank cannon and artillery. Three fires were reported burning behind guerrilla lines near the Shailla refugee camp. A senior army official said a joint cease-fire commission was making "desperate efforts" to stop the shelling.

Guerrilla attacks today also were reported against a number of army installations and villages in southeast Lebanon, near the Syrian border. There was speculation in Beirut that the attacks were made by Palestinians who had crossed into Lebanon from Syria, as they did during the fighting last week.

Connie Taliaferro, Lester E. Bush Exchange Vows In Double Ring Rites

Connie Larue Taliaferro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin W. (Sonny) Horning of DeBarry, and Lester Elton Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Bush, 1275 South Garfield St., Hawthorne Hills, DeLand, were united in Holy Matrimony April 6, 1973, at 8 p.m. in the banquet room of Holiday Inn, on Marina Isle.

Rev. Bob Loy, pastor of Central Baptist Church, was officiating minister at the candlelight, double ring ceremony. Frank Dunn, organist, presented appropriate nuptial selections.

The couple exchanged vows under an arch, flanked by two basket arrangements of pink gladioli, pink and burgundy carnations, burgundy spider mums and two seven branched silver candelabra with white burning tapers. Other decor in the area included silver candelabra and arrangements of pink pom poms, gladioli, greenery and softly burning candles at vantage points.

The bride, escorted to the altar by John Kader, chose a formal-length gown of pink organza knit with loose fitting high neckline, high waist, front bodice inset, gathered front skirt and flared back with full 2 1/2 in. train. Pink and white daisies trimmed the full length sleeves, neckline and bodice.

Her multi-tiered veil of silk illusion, flower spray in the waist and featured a headpiece in an off-the-face design of pink silk and pink carnations. She carried a formal French type bouquet of burgundy and pink carnations, baby's breath and

AIM Uprising Costs U.S. $5-7 Million

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer
WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — The costly 70-day confrontation between Indian militants and the government at Wounded Knee has ended, but the task of policing and cleaning up the village remains.

Kent Frizzell, Interior Department solicitor, estimates the government's cost since the start of the siege at $5 million to $7 million.

Most of this would be the overtime pay and living expenses of federal negotiators and lawmen, along with the costs of transporting men and equipment to the tiny southwestern South Dakota Indian reservation town.

Stan Lyman, superintendent of the Pine Ridge Reservation, said a preliminary survey showed that in addition to the government costs, it would take $240,000 to put houses in the village back into livable condition.

Some 200 American Indian Movement members and sympathizers seized the hamlet Feb. 27 to protest what they called corrupt management of Indian affairs on the reservation by the federal government and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Terms of a settlement call for government investigations of those allegations, as well as a new government look into treaties made with Indians.

AIM supporters who infiltrated the village at times swelled the numbers inside Wounded Knee to about 300. But by at 9 a.m. EDT Tuesday, the time the surrender was scheduled, only about 120 remained, according to Frizzell.

Consul Suffers Mental Anguish

By VICENTE MORALES
Associated Press Writer
GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Troops and police searched today for the terrorists who held U. S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy hostage for 76 hours. A government spokesman said several arrests had been made but declined to say how many or where.

The 58-year-old diplomat was abducted Friday night as he drove home alone by members of the previously unknown Revolutionary Armed Forces of the People. He was freed Monday night after the flight to Cuba of 30 prisoners from Mexican jails and the payment of $80,000 ransom.

"There was no bodily torture, but the mental torture was really something," Leonhardy told a news conference Tuesday.

"You have to pray a lot," Guadalajara's police chief Jesus Ahumada Mercado said. "350 of his detectives were seeking the terrorists along with special political police from the interior ministry, other federal agents, troops and state police."

A sketch was made of one of the kidnappers from the description of two witnesses to the abduction. A spokesman for the interior ministry said the hunt was on for two prime suspects, one of them a brother of one of the prisoners taken to Cuba.

Leonhardy said despite his own ordeal, Secretary of State William P. Rogers would have little to fear when he arrives in Mexico Saturday for the first stop on a Latin American tour.

"Anyone who gets protection will not be touched," he commented.

Bloodless Method Success For Brain Tumor: UCLA

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new bloodless method of dissecting certain cancer tumors by blocking their blood supply has been used successfully to treat a brain tumor in a 70-year-old woman, UCLA physicians report.

The blockage is accomplished by injecting silicone—the rubbery material used to enlarge women's breasts—through a small tube to the site of the tumor.

Unlike conventional surgery, the method requires no cutting and only a local painkiller for the insertion of the tube.

However, Dr. Robert Rand, who developed the method, along with Dr. James A. Mosso, noted Tuesday that only a limited number of growths—those with a well-defined blood supply, can be treated this way. Rand said the technique is is ever present in the surroundings of our home and in the conduct of our staff. Through the years, residents of the community have come to depend on our capable and dignified assistance.

The solution was to mix a small amount of iron filings into the liquid silicone. After the liquid was injected into the vessels near the tumor, a powerful helium-cooled electromagnet pressed against the patient's body holds the mixture in place until it sets.

Since the danger of the procedure is minimal, the doctors said, it can be used in elderly patients or in cases where the tumor is considered inoperable.

'Zeta Xi Installs Officers 'Amateur Hour' Highlights Meeting

Installation of officers for Zeta Xi, of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Marge Beine on Temple Drive.

After the business of the meeting was completed, Sue Ceynowa, outgoing president, installed officers for the coming year.

Installed were president,

Marge Beine; vice president, Barbara Gorman; recording secretary, Donna Craig; corresponding secretary, Lois Falgione; and treasurer, Lillian Mitchell.

The program, "Amateur Hour," was presented by Lois Falgione and Eve Rogero. "Round and round she goes and where she stops, nobody knows," a familiar old quote from the late Major Bowes of the old radio Amateur Hour fame, was the introduction Lois used for the program.

The first act, right from the Ozarks, featured the famous "Zeta Pickers" consisting of Faye Siler on guitar (toy), Evelyn Serrae on spoons, Barbara Gorman on maracas, and Marge Beine on the classic "gut bucket," the best "gut bucket" plucker of all times.

To the hoodlum tune of "Mama Don't Allow," these gals got the show off to a hilarious start.

A dramatic reading by Jean McLain of Shakespeare, — well not exactly, would you believe the story of "The Queen of Hearts." This was drama at its nursery rhyme best.

To the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York," sung or hummed by the members, Sue Ceynowa did her famous waltz dog. Not that they asked for an encore, but she got up again and did a fast buck and wing, that's a dance 'n'all.

Every show must have a comedienne and who else but Marion Farella whose fast-paced patter was only exceeded by the delivery of those funny jokes she told. If you go to Club Lai or Club Juana, you may find Marion there doing her thing.

So far the show had a little country, a little Broadway, a little concert reading, a little burlesque and now for the piece de resistance, a classic.

A "Swan Lake," it was not, but our prima ballerina, primere danseuse Donna Craig led her ballerinas Faye Carroll, Wanda Hubbard and Rory Burgess in dance. Members were able to identify a pas de deux but the other steps were just a little hard to identify. It was all grace as they danced to the theme from "Love Story."

Lois reminded all listeners that the number to call was Murray Hill 8-9933 or write Post Office Box 99 in New York City to vote for their favorite act. The girls have been asked to repeat their performance at the last social of the year which will be a slurrup boil at the home of Faye Carroll.

Dear Abby

Help! My husband needs spelling lessons

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's spelling. It's horrid. I swear I don't know how he ever got out of high school.

It is just beginning his career as a policeman, and his poor spelling has already started giving him trouble. He has to make out reports in writing and when he writes, "susiphian" and "reztling" or a report, it raises a lot of eyebrows.

He talks well, but his spelling is outrageous. I told him to carry a small dictionary and to look up any words he isn't sure of. He says: "You have to know how to spell a word before you can find it in the dictionary so what's the use?"

Abby, do you know where an adult can learn how to spell from scratch? Even if it took a year, would it be a miracle enough for us. Thank you. WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Call your board of education and ask them what is available for their adult education department. Evening classes, or special tutoring could be the answer, but first your husband should take some tests to determine the kind of special help he needs.

DEAR ABBY: You've made reference to May-December marriages, but you have never given any advice with regard to them. You should, and it should be one word, DON'T!

I have witnessed four, including my own, and all of them have been very unsatisfactory. Especially for the younger partner. Older husbands make poor fathers. Children make them nervous, and all they are tried to go anywhere with their young wives, and all too soon they are inadequate lovers.

A young woman is flattered to be pursued, by a dash, sophisticated "older" swain. But after they are married, she becomes a very old woman. When she is 22 and he is 35, the age difference doesn't show much, but when he is 35 and she is 49, things start to go downhill for her.

I wish someone would have wised me up! Until a woman has lived in such a marriage, she has no idea how many problems arise. SHORT-CHANGED IN KANSAS

DEAR SHORT: I rarely give advice with regard to marriage and because one's condition is far more important than his age. Shortage of money is a much bigger shape than some nuts of 26. While virtue is prized, it's an assurance of vim, vigor, and virility.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WHITE VERSUS PURPLE" IN PANAMA CITY: Neither to be appropriated as a basis for divorce hearing. I'd vote for BLAKE. In a sense, one is burying a dead relationship.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 0790, L. A., Calif. 90008. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 0790, Los Angeles, Cal. 90008.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you need to avoid at almost any cost any argument or discussion with anyone else and to make sure you do not get so involved in the small things of everyday life that you neglect a pleasant and kind word for those with whom you are allied. Hasty words or acts could lead to estrangement.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Handle all those replies to letters and other responsibilities you have very intelligently today and get good results. Don't waste time criticizing a worker. Just make sure you get your benefit later.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Put yourself in professional brands and improve your appearance considerably. Get into those hobbits tonight that gave you much pleasure. Try to be a more active person and you become happier.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You will want to make good changes at home so there is more charm, beauty, there, but first get approval and cooperation of kin. Throw out whatever is old and ugly. Replace with the new and charming.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are in a fighting mood so be sure you do not get into arguments with associates. Keep your temper. Don't let some disappointing letter floor you. This can be your benefit later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Cultivate the habit of economy now and you soon have a tidy sum for more constructive investment. That business expert is not in a good mood. Await letters. Just discuss with him. Take it easy tonight.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Don't waste time bickering with another over some small matter. Keep busy at whatever is important. Take the time to improve your particular surroundings and get rid of the jitters. Out to dinner tonight.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) You're now able to get at all those duties awaiting your attention, but do them in a methodical fashion for best results. Cheer mate who may be in a sad mood. Smile more.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) You may not see things as your friends do, but if you give in a little, you gain much instead of losing a good deal. Don't be argumentative or forceful with anyone. Duplicate what you see.

Feeding College Belles

By TOM HOGUE
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

What do you feed 750 southern college belles to keep them healthy and happy? Ask Miss Betty Carr who has been planning meals for the girls at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Va., for the past 30 years.

I had a chance to talk to Miss Carr, known to the students as B.C., during a recent visit to my family's home in Staunton. I soon realized what a problem it must be to feed so many young women three times a day, six days a week and twice on Sunday.

I give them plenty of home-made biscuits and rolls, and I have discovered that their love for such dishes as hominy grits, said B.C.

"But I don't try to serve that soul food from the Deep South. I gave the girls turnip greens once; they simply didn't go for it."

Actually the girls at Mary Baldwin are not all from the South by any means. They come from all over the United States and many foreign countries and their preference for food follows no set pattern.

If there is any common denominator, it lies in the fact that almost all the girls are vegetarians.

"They avoid most anything that goes to fat," said B.C., adding quickly, "except for the homemade breads and biscuits made each day in our kitchen."

Hungarian Goulash and Beef Stroganoff are favorites at Mary Baldwin. So is southern fried chicken with rice and gravy, which is not exactly a diet dish.

Ordering food for 750 girls is a major operation in itself. It involves such shopping items as 500 gallons of milk, 200 dozen eggs and 130 pounds of sugar. It also involves brewing 298 gallons of coffee and making 2,500 rolls each week.

"The girls are tremendous breakfast eaters," she said. "Those who do not skip other meals altogether, but rarely breakfast. In fact some students will eat 10 to 12 eggs."

When B.C. tries out a new recipe she watches the plates as they are returned to the kitchen to see how much food has gone over. B.C. traces her love of cooking to the fact that her mother was a good cook and an easy boss in the old southern tradition. The family came from Charlotte, N.C.

"If you make work out of cooking and get all upset and tied in knots, then the end product is not going to be any good," she said.

Here is B.C.'s recipe for fried chicken:

1/2 cup flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
 1 egg, slightly beaten
 2 tablespoons water
 A 3 lb. frying chicken, cut into pieces
 1/4 cup shortening or cooking oil

Combine flour, salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Combine egg and water - dip chicken pieces in egg, then shake in flour mixture. Heat shortening 1/2 inch deep in skillet. Cook over medium heat - brown on all sides, reduce heat and cover. Turn pieces over. Fry tender or about 30 minutes. Remove cover during last 10 minutes to make chicken crisp. Serves two people.

GOOD SUPPER
 Creamed Ham and Mushrooms
 Rice
 Green Peas
 Cupcakes
 CREAMED HAM AND MUSHROOMS

A bouillon cube helps make a well-flavored sauce.
 3 tablespoons butter
 3 tablespoons flour
 1 1/2 cups milk
 1 chicken bouillon cube
 1 1/2 cups diced 1/2-inch cubes leftover baked ham
 1 cup finely diced celery
 1 can (3 ounces) broiled sliced mushrooms, well-drained
 White pepper to taste
 Cooked rice
 1 can (3 ounces) chow mein noodles

In a medium saucepan over moderately low heat melt the butter; stir in flour. Add milk and bouillon cube; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly; making sure bouillon cube is dissolved. Add the ham, celery, mushrooms and pepper; reheat. Serve over cooked rice and top with some of the chow mein noodles, passing the rest of the noodles. Makes 4 generous servings.

Officials Propose National Diet To Control Prices

By JANE GLENN HAAS
Copley News Service

If everybody would eat less, there wouldn't be such high food prices.

So south some dingbat in the Nixon administration.

Not content to leave us headless, gasless and devoid of energy, our leaders now propose to put the nation on a diet. A sort of compulsory national calorie count.

Next we'll get tax benefits for pounds lost, I suppose.

If they thought that was going to put a halt to the meat boycott, they're barking up the wrong side of beef. Women may talk a lot about diets, say they really ought to watch what they eat, but we unto him who tells them they should reduce.

Particularly some fat calf, pork-bellied administrator.

Now that we're well into the "Roaring 70s" and all its ninnymy of the "Roaring 20s," it's obvious our politicians want to bring back another nostalgic bit — Prohibition.

This time, instead of starving for a drink, the nation gets a new thrill — starving for beef. Presumably, if we all stay glassy-eyed we won't notice the rickets setting in.

Some enterprising entrepreneur ought to start franchising "beef easies."

It's reassuring to know that the "experts" expect this price acceleration to slow down by the end of the year. By that time, though, no one will have the strength to peddle their wares around a grocery store.

What hasn't been successfully explained as yet — at least to me — is what the heck happened? Just last November we were looking forward to four more years of Nixon prosperity. How can a few months bring such a drastic shortage of chickens?

Now it's patriotic to eat fish. A little while ago fish was full of mercury and a health hazard.

Now we should eat cheese. Cheese is high in protein — and also in cholesterol, a grave concern to many Americans. This diet of ground beef is bound to grind us down. That's something the administration ought to cheer up about.

Once upon a time politicians promised us a chicken in every pot. Will our mania for nostalgia make that the 1976 campaign slogan?

If that's their game

remember when it was first used in 1923, the year before the Big Crash.

Meanwhile, not content to expose our bones, our leaders labor in foreign fields to shred the value of our dollar.

They talk about balance of trade and send food abroad to bring oil in. Idle cars are bound to result in the Alaskan pipeline and to heck with the tundra.

The only obvious result of all this will be a reverse Marshall Plan — with the United States getting aid from the Common Market and the Japanese.

You'd noticed, no doubt, that the West German and Japanese currencies are doing dandy. I suspect the "Odessa File" isn't fiction.

My fellow countrymen, we are about to lose World War II.

She had studied therapeutic diets and general nutrition at the University of Minnesota, and she loved to cook.

Mrs. Rigler knew that tougher cuts of meat were just as nutritious — and sometimes more flavorful — than choice steaks. Yet she saw these tougher cuts relegated to America's stewpots.

She stopped and thought. Why couldn't chuck roast be eaten as steak? Why couldn't short ribs be broiled instead of braised? Why couldn't the heel of the round be open roasted instead of stewed?

She started experimenting with meat tenderizer. Before she was through, she'd figured out how to turn 23 different tough cuts into America's favorite steaks and roasts. Chuck steak, family steak and breakfast steak — now familiar to meat shoppers — are a few of her innovations.

Mrs. Rigler found that meat tenderizer also made tough cuts more nutritious. Slow, moist cooking caused these cuts to lose minerals and vitamin B. Nutritionists were amazed when the meat was cooked quickly at a high heat.

Meats treated with tenderizer also shrink less.

Mrs. Rigler's ideas were in the country demonstrating her ideas to supermarket meat men and convincing them to introduce the new cuts.

Her discoveries were a real godsend to post-World War II Americans. Meat, when available, was very expensive in those days.

Ironically, Mrs. Rigler once again finds herself in an era when meat prices are skyrocketing.

Mrs. Rigler shares her expertise in "The Modern Meat Cookbook," published in 1968 by Bobbs-Merrill Co. Inc. and updated in 1969. The 435-page paperback edition is now in its seventh printing, and has proved to be a best seller. One critic called it "the most complete meat cookbook I've seen."

"Jeannette Frank," a company-owned name, just like "Betty Crocker."

There's no such person, but the company name gives the public a feeling of continuity when staff members come and go. So far, Ruth Rigler has been the only "Jeannette Frank," and the name holds special significance for her. She and her brother created the name to honor their parents, Jeannette and Frank Rigler.

One of Mrs. Rigler's grandsons wanted to be sure to get a hardbound copy of the cookbook. When asked why, the 10-year-old replied, "I like to read it every night before I go to bed!"

Mrs. Rigler became a successful career woman through necessity, not choice. She found herself alone with a small daughter to raise, and when Adolph's was founded, she accepted a position because she needed the money. But her first love has always been her family. She proudly whips out pictures of her three grandchildren.

Mrs. Rigler not only develops recipes for meat tenderizer, but she creates all the artistic set-ups for advertising pictures. The picture she created for the meat marinate package won a packaging award.

Lawrence Deutch founded the suburban Burbank company 25 years ago, they hired her to find new ways to use the firm's product: meat tenderizer. The job was a natural for Mrs. Rigler.

SPAGHETTI WITH WHITE CLAM SAUCE
A foolproof recipe!
1 package (8 ounces) thin spaghetti
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) minced clams
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon olive oil
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Cook spaghetti according to cooking directions; drain in a colander. To the clean empty cooking pot add the clams (liquid included), garlic, butter and oil; place over low heat until butter melts. Add the cooked spaghetti; toss thoroughly and cook just until the clam liquid is absorbed. Add pepper. Serve at once. Makes 2 to 4 servings.

JEAN'S BAKED FLOUNDER
A Kentucky neighbor of ours fixes fish this way.
4 flounder or similar fish fillets (about 1 pound)
4 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup salted cracker crumbs (medium-fine)
Line a very shallow baking pan into which the fillets will just fit with foil; butter foil.
Arrange fillets in pan. Sprinkle each fillet with 1 tablespoon of the cheese. In a 6-inch skillet melt butter; stir in crumbs; sprinkle over fillets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until fish is opaque through and flakes when tested with a fork — 10 minutes for flounder or longer for thicker fillets. Brown crumb topping under broiler. Makes 4 servings.

Americans Don't Know What Is In Their Food

By ELAINE COLONNELL
Copley News Service

"The whole problem with the way Americans eat is that we don't know what is in our food," says Barbara Kraus, who has written a book, "Calories and Carbohydrates." Just looking at the slim, energetic Miss Kraus, it is hard to believe that she could possibly have any firsthand knowledge of the frustration of being overweight. But she is quick to explain that weight watching has been a life-long necessity for her, and that at times it has been more frustrating than one can imagine. "For years, I had fooled-up metabolism," she said in an interview. "I would gain weight if I ate anything over 800 calories. I was starving myself, but I couldn't lose weight." By carefully limiting her calorie intake, Barbara managed to keep out of the "fat" category. But she did weigh 20 pounds more than she does now. Eventually, an endocrinologist found her problem and corrected it. Now her body will burn a more normal amount of calories—about 2,000 per day. But the utter frustration of those years of calorie counting weren't forgotten. "I remember asking myself, 'What is a medium apple?'" she says. "When you're starving, that medium apple gets bigger and bigger."

She found that incomplete and confusing listings of calories made it easier for the dieter to rationalize his way into extra pounds. "I kept saying, 'Why doesn't somebody do something about it?'" Then I realized that somebody was. Barbara was no stranger to the publishing world, having authored the "United Nations Cookbook" about 10 years ago. "That gave me the courage to try 'Calories and Carbohydrates.'"

The new book is a listing of 7,500 foods and brand name products, giving the calorie and carbohydrate content per common measure. It also includes some hints on how to use the listings to regulate weight and plan better nutrition. "What the book means to a person watching his weight is this: If you want to eat a Nabisco Oreo cookie, you can look it up in the tables and know that it is going to cost you 56 calories and 7.1 carbohydrates to eat the 4-ounce cookie. And you can do the same for any of the other listed foods."

Barbara advocates a practical, long-range plan for weight control. The plan is based on the simple scientific fact that there are 3,500 calories in one pound of fat. If a person eats 3,500 calories more than his body needs, he will gain a pound. If he eats 3,500 calories less, he will lose a pound. She said that many people confuse water loss with real weight loss. "It is common to lose several pounds of water during the early stages of dieting. This is particularly true of fat diets. But the body will eventually regain its water balance."

To begin a program of real weight loss, Barbara advises people to see a doctor. "And you have to face the fact that there are no panaceas or easy ways out." Then it is helpful for the dieter to know how many calories his body burns in a day of average metabolism. A person weighs himself at the beginning of the week. During the week he keeps an exact accounting of the number of calories he is consuming. "You can be perfectly honest with this list," Barbara said. "Nobody is going to see it but you."

One week from the time of the first weighing, the person again weighs himself at the same time of day, on the same scales and with the same clothing. If there has been no gain or loss of weight, he simply divides the number of calories consumed during the week by seven. This is how many calories his body burns a day, if he has gained a pound, he subtracts 3,500 calories from the total and divides by seven. If he has lost a pound, he adds 3,500 calories to the total and divides by seven. It is a good idea to double check by doing the test a second week. Sometimes the figures can be thrown off by water retention or other factors during any single week.

Once a person knows how many calories his body burns, he can plan a program of weight control. For instance, if one limits his calories to 800 less than the average number he burns in a day, he will lose one pound a week. And that's one pound of fat, not water. Barbara insists that a person can cut out those 800 calories without deprivation or starvation. In fact, a person can even splurge now and then. "Don't give up all your favorite food, but budget your calories just like you would a limited income," she said.

Fish Good For Meatless Menu

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

Do you protest the high cost of meat by boycotting meat? Are you in a quandary about how to prepare and serve fish several times a week and still keep your family's support of your meatless menus? You need to start at the fish counter planning your menus. You need to know what you are buying, how many persons it will serve, how to store it and some basic methods of fixing fish.

First, you won't be cheating your family by serving fish. Fish and shellfish are low in calories and provide complete, high-quality proteins and essential vitamins and minerals. Also, good news for persons in your house who must watch cholesterol, fish is fat is of the polyunsaturated type.

Know what type you are buying. Fillets are side pieces of fish cut lengthwise away from the backbone. Steaks are cross-section slices from a large, dressed fish. Dressed or pan dressed means the fish has been cleaned and scaled. The head, tail and fins may or may not be removed. When buying fish, you will need to plan one-third pound per serving of fillets and steaks, one-half pound per serving of dressed or pan-dressed steaks and three-quarters to one pound per serving of whole fish.

Because fish is highly perishable, it should be kept under refrigeration at all times. Protect it in foil, plastic bag or tightly sealed container. Do not store it longer than one to two days. If you plan to freeze fish, wrap in heavy-duty aluminum foil or freezer paper. Freeze immediately and once thawed, do not refreeze. For the best quality, use within two months. Thaw fish in the refrigerator overnight. If you must thaw it fast put fish in plastic bag and place under cold running water.

Fish should not be thawed at room temperature, in warm water or directly immersed in cold water as there may be a loss in the delicate flavor. There are three general rules to follow when preparing fish. Handle as little as possible and turn only once. Don't overcook. Fish is done when tender, and flakes easily with a fork. Serve with lemon slices or an appropriate sauce.

When baking fish, season with salt and pepper and place on greased baking dish. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes for steaks and fillets and 30 minutes per pound for whole fish.

To barbecue or broil, place seasoned fish on well-greased broiler pan or hinged wire grill. Brush with melted butter or margarine and lemon juice. Broil four to six inches from heat until lightly browned and tender, or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Cook fillets three to five minutes, steaks six to 12 minutes; whole fish, six to 20 minutes. Steaks or whole fish should be turned during broiling time, but most fillets do not need to be turned.

To pan-fry, dip fish into milk or beaten egg and then into seasoned crumbs, cornmeal, or flour. Heat one-eighth inch of salad oil in frying pan.

Saute fish until nicely browned; turn and saute until fish is tender, three to five minutes per side.

It's a good idea to rinse a serving plate with cold water before unloading a gelatin salad or dessert onto it. Dry the edges of the serving plate with a paper towel after the unloading.

When oven-frying fish, dip into milk or beaten egg and then into crumbs, cornmeal or flour. Place in well-greased shallow baking dish. If desired, pour melted butter or margarine over fish. Bake in hot oven, 500 degrees, until fish flakes easily with a fork, eight to 15 minutes, depending on size of fillet, steak or fish. To poach, place fish in shallow pan. Barely cover with water, bouillon, wine or milk, season with spices and herbs. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer until fish is tender, six to 10 minutes.

Fish also goes well in casseroles as its delicate flavor combines well with other foods. And don't overlook canned salmon and canned tuna. They will be a boon to countless meals as one or two cans will usually serve six persons.

TURKISH FISH TURBANS - Gravy seasoning and browning sauce helps flavor the tomato and eggplant sauce deliciously.

For Your Company

Serve Tasty Stuffed Fish Fillets

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Here's a fish dish that's good enough for company. It has great flavor. Serve this dish with heated French bread because lots of sauce goes with the fish fillets and the sauce tastes delicious with the bread. Add a green salad and you'll have a fine main course.

TURKISH FISH TURBANS
1/3 cup butter
1 large eggplant, pared and cubed
2 large onions, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 green pepper, finely chopped
1/2 pound mushrooms, coarsely chopped
1 can (12 ounces and 3 ounces) plum tomatoes, partially drained
1 bay leaf, crumbled
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon oregano
3 teaspoons gravy seasoning and browning sauce
1/4 cup grated (medium-fine) Swiss cheese
3/4 cup packaged herb-seasoned bread stuffing, crushed fine

2 tablespoons salad oil
4 large fish fillets
In a large skillet heat the butter, add eggplant and cook gently until softened. Stir in onion, garlic, green pepper and mushrooms; cover and simmer about 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, bay leaf, pepper, oregano and 2 teaspoons of the gravy seasoning and browning sauce. Remove about 1/2 cup of this mixture and reserve. Pour remainder of mixture into a

3-quart oblong glass baking dish (13 1/2 by 8 3/4 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven for 35 minutes. Meanwhile, mash the reserved 1/2 cup vegetable mixture with the cheese, 1/4 cup of the bread stuffing and 1 tablespoon of the oil. Spread the fish fillets flat and pat dry with paper toweling. Brush with remaining 1/2 teaspoon gravy seasoning and browning sauce. Divide this stuffing mixture among the fish fillets and spread in a thin layer. Roll fillets and secure with wooden toothpicks. Sprinkle the remaining bread stuffing over the eggplant mixture in the baking dish. Arrange stuffed rolled fillets on top, pushing them into mixture so they stand upright. Brush fillets with remaining 1/2 teaspoon oil and return to 350-degree oven. Bake uncovered until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork - 20 to 25 minutes longer. Remove toothpicks before serving. Makes 6 servings. ## Here Comes A New Tamale Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Here's a different kind of Tamale Pie - that ground beef dish that has been popular for years and years. Usually Tamale Pie is made with a cooked cornmeal mixture, but here it is given a topping made with butter, termilk biscuit mix and canned whole-kernel corn. When we tried it in our test kitchen, all our tasters liked it. OLIVE TAMALE PIE

1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
2/3 cup finely chopped green pepper
2 cans (each 8 ounces) tomato sauce
2/3 cup chopped (medium-fine) pimiento-stuffed green olives
1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Batter Topping, see below
12 slices pimiento-stuffed green olives
In a large skillet over moderate heat, cook beef, crumbling with a fork, until it loses its red color. Add onion and green pepper and cook gently, stirring often, until onion is wilted. Stir in tomato sauce, chopped olives, chili powder and pepper. Turn into a 3-quart oblong glass baking dish (13 1/2 by 8 3/4 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil. Spoon batter topping over meat mixture, using a small metal spatula to spread and completely cover meat. Top with sliced olives. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

BATTER TOPPING
1 egg
1 1/2 cups buttermilk biscuit mix
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
1 can (7 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained
In a medium mixing bowl beat egg until soft and white are combined. Add remaining ingredients; stir until well mixed. This is directed in "Olive Tamale Pie" recipe.

X-Rated Neighborhood? HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — City fathers aren't advertising the distinction, but this South Florida city of palm-lined suburban streets now has what may be the first X-rated neighborhood in the country. The dubious title was bestowed on an outlying residential area when the Arrow Drive-In theater recently began showing X-rated films which many label hard-core pornography. The drive-in's giant screen is all too clearly visible from surrounding homes. Children can see it from their bedrooms windows and carloads of youths too young to be admitted to X-rated movies gather in the neighborhood to watch the action. "When I'm driving my children home in the evening, I have to stop on the corner and tell them to shut their eyes before I drive down the street," complained neighborhood resident Bette Watts. Already upset over the showing of the porno classic "Deep Throat" in a suburban indoor movie, city officials moved to close the drive-in only to learn that they were helpless because the theater is located on land leased from the Seminole Indian Reservation, adjacent to the city limits. "We have explored every possibility, from the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs on down," says Asst. City Attorney Bart Budetti. "First of all, we can't prosecute under state obscenity laws because a pending case before the U.S. Supreme Court has placed us on restraint," Budetti said. "The county has no power to pass anti-obscenity laws or regulate the theater. And the city can't do it either because it's on the reservation."

Thompson Dismissal Appealed

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

Assistant State Atty. Gen. Andrew L. Berry said Wednesday he has filed a petition with the state supreme court asking the high court to take jurisdiction in the case of Mabel Frances Thompson, 29-year-old Sanford mother of four. The attractive blonde remains in Lowell State Prison where she has served three years of a life sentence for the murder of her fireman husband, Bobby Thompson. Lindsey said the Fourth District Court of Appeals has granted the state's petition for stay of mandate and thus Mrs. Thompson will remain in prison until May 17. The appeals court overturned Mrs. Thompson's conviction in April saying circumstantial evidence in her 1970 trial at Sanford is legally insufficient to support the circuit court jury verdict. Lindsey said he expects the supreme court to decide if it has jurisdiction in the Thompson case by May 17 or issue an order that Mrs. Thompson be held in prison until the decision is reached. Defense Attorney Roger Berry said if the high court takes jurisdiction on the state's appeal of the appeals court ruling overturning the conviction he believes his client will remain in prison "for at least 45 days" until the supreme court disposes of the case. Mrs. Thompson has been granted numerous trips home to visit her children and family — several since December. The Thompsons lived on West Fourth Street in Sanford when Bobby Thompson mysteriously disappeared in the summer of 1968. Notices in the press and signs in the court house lobby will direct the public to the meeting room.

Redding, Clinkert Dismissals Stand

By JEAN PATTESON Herald Staff Writer

The Redding and Clinkert dismissals stand. The Redding school board fired two Seminole school principals by Superintendent Bud Leyer Tuesday night without a final splutter of protest from any school board member. Jack Redding of Seminole High School and Robert Clinkert of Bear Lake were fired. Leyer told the board that he had been in contact with Carey Ferrell, general counsel to the State Education Department, who said because the school board failed to act on Leyer's recommendations by the May 3 deadline, Leyer's recommendations automatically stand. "This nothing has come of board members Stuart Culpepper's stalling motion that no school principals be hired until the Redding-Clinkert issue is resolved. Protest marches by students and petitions from staff and parents that Leyer change his mind about firing the two principals had little effect, and the superintendent remained adamant throughout the controversy that Redding and Clinkert lose their jobs. He said he was waiting for all applications to be processed before making his recommendations for replacements. "But I will make them just as soon as possible," added Leyer. The board also approved a new policy that high school seniors who have at least a 3.0 average in any subject, with no average in any subject, will no longer be given a "C" at the conclusion of the course, but exempt from taking the final examination in that subject. The place for school board meetings in Sanford was changed to the Seminole county courthouse, in either the county commissioners' chambers, or Courtroom A or B.

NEWS DIGEST (continued) In South Florida Rain Damage Hits MIAMI (AP) — Heavy rain has been blamed for an estimated $1.5 million damage to a furniture store in Miami and for 27 traffic accidents on the Florida Turnpike in Broward County. The Wednesday afternoon downpour ranged from 4.07 inches in North Miami Beach to 1.40 inches in West Palm Beach in about five hours. A spokesman for the Levitz Furniture near Miami said that with 23 of an inch of rain, and rock water of the one-year-old building collapsed after the building's flat roof sagged from the weight of water. William Levitz, national buyer for the firm, said that after the collapse a layer of water poured into the building to cover more than 110,000 square feet of furniture space. No injuries were reported as supervisors huddled more than 200 persons, most of them employees, in the center of the 27 traffic accidents and then ushered them outside. Levitz said it is not yet known if the roof's drain pipes were functioning or if there were structural defects in the $3 million building. He agreed with firemen that the total loss was at least $1.5 million. Meanwhile, the State Patrol reported at least 20 accidents on a 10-mile turnpike stretch in a five-hour period when thunder showers hampered driving at least nine persons were reported injured, but none seriously. "Oh, Lord, it was a madhouse," said Jas Wilcox, a tow truck driver who helped clear vehicles away from an accident involving 13 cars and trucks. Patrol spokesmen blamed the accidents on people driving too fast for road conditions. A seawall collapse in north Miami, which took with it a portion of sidewalk, was also blamed on the rain. Elliott H. Hill of the National Weather Service said the heavy rain was caused by arrival, the first of the year for the South Florida area, of a warm tropical air mass which converged with a weak cool front. Weather Yesterday's high 80 low 69 with 23 of an inch of rain. Partly cloudy through Friday. Chance of afternoon or early evening thunderstorms. High in mid to upper 60s to low 70s.
