

Shortly after noon today, the Evening Herald received an anonymous telephone call from a person who claimed he knows the whereabouts of six-year old Brian Schultz.

The unidentified male caller gave an address where he said the boy was being held. The address turned out to be a mobile home park near Longwood. Deputies of the Sheriff's Department checked out the report. The boy was not at the address and the lawman now believes the call was a hoax.

Search Continuing For Boy Where Is 6-Year-Old Brian Schultz?

The search continues today for six-year-old Brian Schultz, missing from his Casselberry home since Saturday evening. The boy's fate is uncertain. While family members and top police officials remain optimistic the youth is alive, following Sunday's extensive search some at the command center are beginning to have doubts. Sheriff's officials said there is no indication of foul play. "If he was in the woods, alive, we would have found him," Trance, a volunteer searcher, said. "Everybody's discouraged, we though we would find him by now," Trance, a Casselberry resident said. Major Duane Harrell of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, confirmed that Sunday's search with more than 500 persons participating was extensive. "There's nothing more we can cover in this immediate ares," said Harrell said, "We've covered every place, so often the only thing we can do is send someone when

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviet TV Show On Dallas:

Hunt Planned JFK Slaying

MOSCOW (UPI) - Soviet television featured an hour-long film report on Dallas Sunday night, suggesting President John F. Kennedy's assassination was planned by the city's rich reactionaries.

The show, narrated by Moscow commentator Valentin Zorin, devoted 15 minutes to the Kennedy assassination and said it was planned by the late oil millionaire H.L. Hunt. The show on Dallas was one of a series of 11 programs on U.S. cities in the 70s being run on Soviet television.

Dead Mother Gives Birth

CARDIFF, Wales (UPI)- Dr. Jane Steiner knew she had minutes - maybe only seconds -to bring a live baby out of the womb of its dead mother, killed a half-hour earlier in a bicycle-truck collision. The 4-pound, 5-ounce infant won the race between life and death. She was in "poor but not critical" condition today at the special care baby unit of the Royal Infirmary.

1,200 Refugees Rescued

KUALA LUMPER, Malaysia (UPI)- A rescue tug reached more than 1,200 Vietnamese refugees marooned on a desolate inlet of Borneo waters and found them in reasonably good condition, a U.N. official said today.

German Terrorists Ambushed

DORTMUND, West Germany (UPI)-Police ambused three suspected Baader-Meinof terrorists holding target practice in the woods Sunday and captured Michael Knoll, a reputed international courier for the anarchist gang.

Prisoner Hacked To Death

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (UPI)-A mob armed with axes, spears, knives and sticks stermed a jungle tail and hacked a prisoper to death in the third such incident in less than two weeks, police reported today. Authorities said more than 50 prisoners fled during the weekend incident at the jail in the settlement of Benz, 24 miles east of Mount Hagen in the western highlands.

Massacre Hanging Ordered

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzanda (UPI)-Fourteen nomadic tribesmen have been sentenced to death by hanging for the 1976 revenge massacre of 21 unarmed persons from a rival tribe.

Syrians Assault Beirut Site

BEIRUT (UPI) - forces poured more than 700 rockets and mortar shells into the strongholds of Israeli-armed Christian irregulars during the weekend in the capital's bloodiest fighting in more than two weeks.

Basques Kill 2 Policemen

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI)- Basque terrorist shot and killed two policemen today in a burst of submachine gun fire at a crowded open-air market, officials said. The police were shot down two days after a bing in the neighboring Basque city of Vitoria killed another policeman. The outbreak of violence followed a warning by the basque separatist group ETA that it would open a "permanent armed offensive" against Spanish police forces in the north.

Viets: Chinese Mass Forces

BANGKOK, Thiland (UPI) - Vietnam today accused China of massing division-sized infantry forces, backed by hundreds of tanks, artillery pieces and warplanes, along their troubled border. Official Radio Hanoi, monitored in Bangkok, quoted the army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan as saying the purported buildup represented another escalation of the months-long conflict between the two countries.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Just as "law campaign buzz phrase of a decade past, "Proposition 13" his become the hula hoop of 1978 politics.

Promising to cut taxes has been a favorite tactic of candidate especially those challenging incumbents, since the birth of the republic. In some campaigns it has worked; in others it has sunk like a stone boat. This year, after California voters over whelmingly approved the Proposition 13 initiative slashing local property taxes, politicians across the nation have been tumbling over each other in an effort to ride the issue to victory. There are issues in American politics that give off a lot of noise and heat, but really do not inflame the electorate. In the opinion of many political professionals, school prayer and abortion are two such issues - deeply and emotionally felt by specific groups, but not by the majority of voters

No one, however, discounts the potential impact of taxes and crime. Both involve every voter and no same candidate would kins them off. But both also are in the category of what used to be called "motherhood and the flag" - reflecting mainstream values that have no partisan coloration.

Republicans began exploiting the street-crime issue in the late 1908. After a period of trying to equate the issue with racism, Democratic candidates discovered they too could "pin on the sherif's badge" and be just as loudly in favor of law and order as Republican Law and order receded as a national campaign issue for two reasons. First, neither party was able to seize it exclusively Second, it became obvious there really was very little candidates for president and Congress could do about local crime besides

The tax issue, however, can be approached at all levels of government. In this, the GOP has been arguing with some historic atification that it has been fighting the anti-tax battle since the

Some observers think what is really at work is a broad trend toward voter conservatism. Citing Democrats Short, Boren and King and GOP conservative primary winners Roger Jepson in Iowa, Jeffrey Bell in New Jersey and Claude Humphrey in New Hampshire, these theorists deduce a national shift to the right. That is a possibility, but it should be noted that liberals and moderates also have won 1978 primaries. It will take a good deal more evidence than now is in to verify a real conservative trend. The November returns will provide some of that evidence and the record of the Congress that convenes next January should tell the rest of the story.

Open And

Shut Case

Openness in government proved to be one of Jimmy Carter's more effective issues when he campaigned for the presidency in 1976. Lamentably, the open-meetings law compliance record of federal regulatory agencies over which President Carter presides remains far short of what is should

As tabulated by Common Cause, the citizen lobby, fewer than 40 percent of the meetings of the 47 regulatory agencies covered by the federal Sunshine Act in its first year of operation were fully open to the press and public. That is distressing. What is worse is Mr. Carter's evident reluctance to exercise the firm leadership that could help remedy this situation. Within a few months of the new law's effective date of March 1977, Common Cause began to petition the White House to issue a directive insisting on agency compliance. Nothing happened. With some exceptions, the agencies continued to evade the spirit as well as the letter of the law.

Finally, just three months ago, Mr. Carter issued a memorandum urging, as opposed to directing, compliance with the open-meetings provisions of the Sunshine Act.

Common Cause reports little improvement since then in public access to regulatory proceedings. Granted, the Sunshine Act does include exemptions to the open-meetings requirement in cases where national security, commercial trade secrets, and the legitimate privacy rights of citizens would be infringed.

But even the most liberal interpretations of the exemption language could not justify closing nearly two-thirds of all regulatory agency meetings. Enforcement of this law rests with the federal courts, which cannot act unless presented with specific citizen complaints. Even then, enforcement orders are directed only to the specific question of a particular meeting. It is a slow, tedious process.

With little prospect of help from the president, it is up to Congress to exercise its oversight power. Accordingly, Congress should summion agency heads and compel their adherence to the law of the Federal agencies and the bureaucrats who run them should be no more exempt from the penalties of law-breaking than anyone else.

president for nearly half a century have quietly expired. Four states of "national emergency" were terminated under a bill signed Sept. 14, 1976, by then President Ford. The twoyear interval since the signing was allowed to determine if any void rould require new statutes. Included in the presidential authority was the power to institute martial law, selse property, restrict travel, send armed forces into action abroad and to take control of communication facilities.

The last four emergencies officially ended Sept. 14 were the Emergency proclamation of 1960, and directives pertaining to the postal strike of 1970 and the econamic woes of 1971. And future emergency declarations, in the wake of Watergate, will be subject to oversight or termination under the watchful eye of Congress. . The lingering acts have been called a time bomb. The bomb has been defused.

BERRY'S WORLD

Around contract neg During that time I have developed certain thoughts on the negotiations that could not fit neatly in a story, but now may be a good time to the these items together in a little package. I often wondered what would happen if chief negotiators Ernest Cowley and Steve Rosenthal did $\langle \cdot \rangle$ not have pipes to pull on. If one day they left their offices and forsot t bring their pipes. I somehow believe their whole routine would get thrown off course. If you have ever been to a negotiating session you will realize just how important these objects are The Clock to each of the men.

By LEONARD KRANSDORF

They are actually a part of their character and just watching how they puff on their respective pipes you can tell what their response will be to a statement.

Assuming the county's 1,775 teachers and the five-member school board approve the new three-year teacher contract that would end four months of

If Resenthal is in disagreement steady puffs of moke will suddenly stream out in rapid succession from his pipe.

Cowley has on frequent occassions been puffing profusely on his pipe until he hears a statement he disagrees with, at which time he would suddenly stop remove it from his mouth and state his response or quickly jot down a note.

And speaking of notes I often wondered just what was on the little notes that individual bargaining team members would pass to Cowley or Rosenthal. They would of course argue that the notes pertained to something the other negotiator said.

However, I wouldn't be at all surprised if they wrote a note reminding Cowley or Rosenthal that it was late and there was a television show on they wanted to watch. Or more likely they were probably inquiring as to what restaurant they wanted to go to that night when the negotiations were over. And then there is the matter of federal regotiator Margaret Rose who in almost 20 hours

ANGLE-WALTERS 'Reform' Bill Not Wanted WASHINGTON - First it was the Bert Lance F flap. Then "Korengate." And now, the rapidly burgeoning scandal within the General Services GSA CONTRACTOR PAINTING Everytime a new scandal erupts involving top-level government officials, the clamor begins. "Quick - name a special prosecutor.

The Justice Department can't be trusted to conduct an impartial investigation." The only change since the Watergate era the last time the nation actually had a special prosecutor - is the party affiliation of those seating the drums. Now that the Democrats control both the Congress and the executive branch, their enthusiasm for circumventing the Justice Department in criminal investigations with political overtones has largely evaporated. It is the Republicans, both on Capitol Hill and elsewhere, who are suddenly gung-ho for the appointment of special prosecutors.

They have made no headway in achieving their demands thus far in part because the Carter administration has repeatedly ignored their pleas but also because none of these recent indals has generated the level of public indignation and concern that Watergate produced.

It is not that Americans feel any great conidence in the integrity of the Justice Department and its ability to pursue allegations of official corruption with no holds barred. Indeed, public opinion polls continue to show a dismal lack of voter confidence in all government ifstitutions. But people are burned out, weary of scandal; they are distions about the ability of anyone to nail crooks in high places.

The lack of public response to GOP efforts to drum up interest in the various investigations commenced during President Carter's Lenure has allowed the Democratic Congress to drag its heels on one of the major legislative initiatives to emerge from the entire Watergate experience.

That is a bill which would automatically trigger the appointment of a special prosecutor certain specified, top-schelon officials - the president, vice president, senior White House staffers, Cabinet and subcabinet appointees and the like - or which threaten to prove politically embarrassing to the party which controls the executive branch.

If enacted at any time over the years since it was first introduced, hard on the heels of Watergate, that legislation would probably have resulted in a special prosecutor heading all three of the probes mentioned earlier - Lance, Koreagate and GSA.

But although the Senate, which drafted the bill to begin with, has passed it at least twice, the measure cannot seem to get through the House. This year, it was approved by the House Judiciary Committee back in May — only to disappear quistly into limbo between there and the House floor.

Remembering Lyman Bostock

NEW YORK (UPI) - Lyman Bostock was thinking to himself how good it felt to be alive. He had just come off his best season yet in baset ball with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League where he had hit .333. He was only 24 and was due to report to the parent Minnesota Twins in a couple of months for the beginning of a new season. Right now, though, he was getting a taste of winter ball with the Maracay club in Venezuela and enjoying it tremendously. On this particular day, he and four other members of the team, Bill Campbell, now with the Red Sex; Duane Kuiper of the Indians; Doug Flynn of the Mets, and Adrian Garnett, who hit a ion of homers in Japan this year and had shots with the A's and Cubs before that, were in a car going out to the ball park and simply taking in the scenery. Fiyns, doing the driving, remembers the spisode well, so we'll let him tell it. "From out of nowhere, this guy in a green truck comes up from behind and forces me off the read," says the Mota' second beeman.

"We wendered what was on his mind, but we hept going. A little while later, this same guy in the green truck comes along again and drives me off the road a second time. I figured he either knew one of us or else he was just looking for trouble. "I cought up with him and we all yelled at him, wondering what the devil he was trying to do. We gave him a pretty good going over from the car.

"Buddenly, without giving us any warning," Flynn goes on, "this guy reaches down to the floor of his truck and comes up with Tony Dorsett rushed for 154 a gun. By MAX ERKILETIAN Herald Staff Writer

Winter Park Police K-9 units and Orange County Sheriff's Department helicopter were brought in to join Casselberry police and the Seminole County Sheriff's Department today in the search for a 6-year-old Brian Schultz, missing from his Casselberry home since Saturday evening.

The searchers today centered on a woode area just south of South Seminole Middle School near Queen's Mirror Lake in Casselberry. A sixth grade boy and an eighthgrade girl reported to school officials they spotted a boy in the woods about 9 a.m. today "They just said the boy told them he was

At Plane Crash Site Looters Grab $,

SAN DIEGO (UPI)- A force of 100 Marines stood guard against looters Monday night and early today at the site where a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet smashed into a residential neighborhood following a collision with a private plane. Several persons were arrested as they scurried into the burning wreckage to rob the dead, stripping bolies of their meney and

Aviation authorities, meanwhile, reported today that the tw pilots involved in the worst inflight aviation disaster in U.S. history had been alerted that their planes were flying in the same air space and acknowledged they had each other in sight minutes before the crash that killed 150. The crash further sparked the already heated debate relocation of the airport from downtown. "I'm sure this will excite the debate," said Mayor Pete Wilson after touring the crash scene. "We will be compelled to look at other sites. Obviously, there are other factors involved, too. A light plane should not be in thesame airpace as a commercial Airport manager Bud McDonald agreed, noting that the airport

location had nothing to do with the crash. "It was the result of two aircraft trying to occupy the same space at the same time," McDonald said. The crash destroyed a city block, killing more than a dozen people in an inferno of wreckage and flames, and authorities expected it could take days to identify the dead from charred fragments of bodies.

A spokesman for the Federal Avialtion Administration said that "within minutes" before the jetliner collided with a single-engine light plane, the control tower at San Diego International Airport alerted them in a "traffic advisory" and "both pilots acknowledged having the other craft in sight."

At Plane Crash Site Looters Grab $,

SAN DIEGO (UPI)- A force of 100 Marines stood guard against looters Monday night and early today at the site where a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet smashed into a residential neighborhood following a collision with a private plane. Several persons were arrested as they scurried into the burning wreckage to rob the dead, stripping bolies of their meney and

Aviation authorities, meanwhile, reported today that the tw pilots involved in the worst inflight aviation disaster in U.S. history had been alerted that their planes were flying in the same air space and acknowledged they had each other in sight minutes before the crash that killed 150. The crash further sparked the already heated debate

relocation of the airport from downtown. "I'm sure this will excite the debate," said Mayor Pete Wilson after touring the crash scene. "We will be compelled to look at other sites. Obviously, there are other factors involved, too. A light plane should not be in thesame airpace as a commercial Airport manager Bud McDonald agreed, noting that the airport

location had nothing to do with the crash. "It was the result of two aircraft trying to occupy the same space at the same time," McDonald said. The crash destroyed a city block, killing more than a dozen people in an inferno of wreckage and flames, and authorities expected it could take days to identify the dead from charred fragments of bodies.

A spokesman for the Federal Avialtion Administration said that "within minutes" before the jetliner collided with a single-engine light plane, the control tower at San Diego International Airport alerted them in a "traffic advisory" and "both pilots acknowledged having the other craft in sight."
