Seminole Win Slugging Contest From Anglers Saturday By 19 To 10

Locals Engage St. Augustine Here Tonight At Municipal Ball Park; Jeter Or Hudson To Hurl

Sanford broke even over the week-end, winning Saturday night from Leesburg 19 to 10 but losing yesterday to St. Augustine 5 to 6.

The Saturday night contest was the wildest game seen here this season, Sanford slugging out 21 safeties and Leesburg getting 14. Pierre Corley recorded his second victory since joining the Lookouts last week.

Yesterday at St. Augustine the Saints applied the pressure with a three-run rally in the last half of the ninth to take the game.

Tonight Sanford plays here against the Saints and either Frank Hudson or Cleo Jeter will pitch.

Trailing 5 to 6, Bauer and Leonard started the Saints' rally with singles. Both runners were advanced a base by Eagle's sacrifice bunt and Bauer scored when Eddie Seaman Kestel threw high to catcher Kintrel at the plate after taking La Piana's hopper to third. Leonard scored with the sacrifice on the play.

Having La Piana at second with a grounder to short. Pitcher Dick Horta singled to center and Guy Miller slammed a drive against the outfield fence to send Goff home with the winning tally.

Pitcher Frank Hudson relieved Jodie Howington on the hill in the middle of the ninth rally and was charged with the defeat.

Horta turned in his fourth win in an early official start for St. Augustine, getting 12 of the Sanford batsmen and yielding only one earned run. Seven St. Augustine errors helped the loop leaders run up their lead. Both sides collected nine hits.

JODIE HOWINGTON, young Sanford pitcher, has had a couple of chances to show his stuff and Manager Whitey Campbell believes that with more experience the hurler will become a permanent addition to the staff. Jodie is wild but has a world of stuff on the ball. Keep your eyes on this boy.

Red Cross Agent Makes Stop Here

Harry A. Kenning, field representative of the American Red Cross yesterday, visited Miss Eleanor Morrison, who will assume her duties as Sanford Recreation Director Thursday.

Miss Morrison stated, pointing out that without such facilities the Red Cross cannot properly conduct its program of first aid, life saving, and water safety.

After a short stay, Kenning left for Bradenton where he will conduct a week's instruction in life saving and water safety.

GOLF NEWS

By ALLAN STEWART
 Phil Grabhoff joined the select group of individuals who have attained momentary perfection in the game of golf, by holing out a beautiful tee shot on the very toughest of par three holes—Number Seven—at the Sanford Country Club. Few Sanford Golfers belong in the small group of players who have had a hole in one, Maxwell Stewart, is one and Jim Spencer has at least two such shots to his credit and, if memory serves us, the total is three.

Rollins College sent an eight man team to Sanford on Saturday afternoon and they were much too good for the local boys. Rollins 26—Sanford 10. Rollins' team was paced by long hitting Chat Arnould who scored a very neat 72. It was his first trip around the links. A return match is to be played at Dubred Country Club sometime soon.

Wild Flixor in profession covers the uncultured play at the Country Club and a controversy rages among the players as to whether or not all of this beauty should be destroyed in order that wild shoters be less penalized for their mistakes.

Next time you are in the rough save yourself a stroke or two on the hole by very carefully planning to be back in the fairway with one shot rather than trying to get off at all. If you stand with your feet a little closer together and hit down into the ball more sharply, you will find that the ball comes up out of the rough better. Concentrate on SEEING the ball not merely keeping your eye on it.

Colonial New Yorkers were fined three shillings if they refused to keep their chimneys clean and in repair.

I am very grateful to the voters of Seminole County and I deeply appreciate the help of my friends.

DISPELLING THE FOG

BY CHARLES MICHELSON

Democratic National Committee
These occasionally surprising historians, Fessenden and Allen, told a story in their Atlantic Round column recently that illustrates the significance of something or other.

It dealt with a recent visit of Senator Vandenberg in search of delegates. At St. Paul, say the historians, he received a delegation of farmers who ostensibly sought to learn what he as an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination knew about their problems.

"Senator, what do you think of the problem of the farm surplus?"
"Farm surplus?" exclaimed the Senator. "What do you mean by that? We produce less than half of our requirement in flax, so how can there be a surplus problem?"

"You're right, Senator," came the response. "We just wanted to see how much you knew about it. When Dewey was here we asked him the same question and he said: 'I regard the flax surplus as a very serious problem and something should be done about it.'"

The flax surplus is a very serious problem and something should be done about it. The flax surplus is a very serious problem and something should be done about it.

First Line Of Defense

With many controversies raging around the vulnerability of bath-tubs to air attack, much loose thinking and talking has been heard, some of which goes so far as to contend that the airplane has made the naval vessel a relic of the horse and buggy days.

Of course, no one outside of naval authorities on the scene of operations knows for certain how effective have been German air attacks on the British fleet, but granted for the sake of argument that it has been considerable, there is ample proof in the history of the development of new weapons to indicate that every new threat to the fundamental methods of waging war has been met by revision and not by abandonment.

Thus the advent of the machine-gun, with its devastating fire power, did not make the foot soldier a thing of the past, but merely altered the manner by which infantry operated, changing from close formations to deployed positions. Artillery proved very effective against machine-gun nests, but machine guns still play an important part in any army plan because ways and means have been developed to offset the effectiveness of artillery fire.

The submarine and destroyer were at times proclaimed as sounding the death knell of the battleship units, but the challenge of these two destructive forces were met and overcome to a satisfactory degree. The magnetic mine threw fright into Allied forces soon after the present war started, but in a few days a perfect defense had been found.

Without minimizing the power of the air arm, it is safe to say that warship design can and will be altered to neutralize any advantage air bombs may have. The strengthening of the top side of naval craft, more anti-aircraft guns, and more protection for their operating crews, according to Secretary of the Navy Edison, are the changes needed to keep the American fleet our first line of defense.

What Is The Law?

The difficulties under which businesses are operating these days are clearly shown in the recent decision handed down by the Supreme Court against 12 oil companies charged with conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws.

The beginning of the case harks back to the days of the N. R. A., when, the Bradenton Herald points, despite the "presence of the Sherman anti-trust law on the federal statute books, the government urged, practically demanded, different lines of business to go into huddles and emerge with price agreements on a scale which would insure profit and fair wages. So far so good. The intent was good, and to some extent the result also was good.

But years later, after the courts had done the only thing they could do when N. R. A. came up for a test on legality—throw it down—came a group who prevailed upon the government to institute proceedings against certain industries on the ground that they were operating in violation of the anti-trust act, in fixing prices for their product. So now we find the Supreme Court handing down a decision against twelve Midwest oil companies for alleged conspiracy of the Sherman act of 1890. They pleaded that what they did was under urging from N. R. A., and proved it by correspondence. Too bad, says the court, and added: "Though employees of the government may have known of the programs and urged at them, no immunity would have been thereby obtained. Any combination which tampers with price structures is engaged in an unlawful activity."

"Now that is the law. It was the law in 1933 when the N. R. A. was set up to issue orders, which orders included price-fixing, and if any individual in business protested against the orders the 'blue eagle' screamed 'un-American' at him and he was threatened with the court for being 'in violation' of the N. R. A. law.

"We're a funny people!"

Doctor Townsend Says

Doctor Townsend says that the example of his more experienced rivals for the nomination, and confine himself to discussing about the short-comings of the Democratic administration, even in the face of the facts that he has no definite policy beyond asserting that he would do better than what that administration is doing and has done.

The salary of the Prime Minister of Great Britain is 10,000 pounds (about $38,000 at present rates of exchange) per year.

Civic clubs, county commissioners, school boards and other organizations and individuals have contributed free chairing for the youngsters, who have done outstanding work during the past year.

One big-time swing band has instruments worth $25,000, including three Strads and a Caspary.

The population shown in the first United States census was 3,929,214. There were 88,527 farm houses and 67,784 shacks.

Country Dances Are Staging New Comeback In U. S.

By TOBY WIANT
 Associate Press
 "Hang up your coat and split on the wall; choose your partners and promenade all."
 Shades of grandma and the country dances are coming back! In fact, the country dances—square, circle and contra—are back in vogue in communities.

San Antonio, Tex., some hotels have called for professionals to demonstrate; many square dance clubs are meeting weekly; in outlying New York counties, enthusiastic square dance groups include even society folk on Long Island.

In El Paso, Tex., country dance clubs have a total membership of 2,000.

"Run across and don't get lost and give your opposite lady a kiss."
 Arthur Murray, the dance teacher, says the square dance is definitely coming back. He has received numerous requests to show how it is done.

"He has a theory about the revival. "When people are worried," he says, "they like to get into groups and huddle. People are worried nowadays by the conditions in Europe. Square dancing enables them to get into groups and have fun together."
 "Around you go just like a wheel! The faster you go, the better you feel."

Murray's demonstrators are square dancing as Grandma and Grandpa would have done it, and also in a streamlined fashion. Dancers seem to go for both versions.

This is all a square dance requires. Plenty of people out for fun, lively fiddler or an orchestra familiar with the right kind of music, and a clever caller.
 "Does that gal and hag beg light? Don't forget your date for Wednesday night."
 When times are quiet, Murray finds, the dances usually are subdued.

Two top girls cross over. And by your opposite stand. Next two girls cross over. And all join hands.

"Salute your corner lady. Salute your partner, all. Swing your corner lady. And promenade the hall."

The National Geographic society has more than one million members.
