Longwood festival will continue today

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD - Santa Claus arrived in Longwood early yesterday with a grim face, a droopy beard and a slimmer physique than the round-bellied image for which he is known.

He was the Old World Santa Claus, made from chocolates molds dating back to the 1800s - before the days when he was rosy-cheeked and jolly.

The Old World Christmas trimmings were on display by Terri Folker yesterday at the 13th annual Longwood Arts and Crafts Festival. The festival in downtown Longwood will continue today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Folker's work is made from a chalk-like substance poured into chocolate and lollipop molds. The chalkware art is also known as "poor man's pottery" because the ceramic-type figures are made without

Folker, formerly of Altamonte Springs and now living in Leesburg, said some of her molds date back to the 1800s, before cartoonist Thomas Nast popularized a fat,

Sanford C of C decides to take a new direction

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is working to change its emphasis from social activity to economic development.

The chamber is rethinking the functions of its 14 committees in response to low turnout for membership drives, a shortfall in the group's treasury and a survey of members that demanded more attention to promoting area commerce.

Tony Russi is leading us back to a more businessoriented chamber," chamber Executive Director Dave Farr said.

"The one thing I felt strongly about is that the chamber should do more in promoting business within the community and not duplicating areas that civic clubs were designed to take care of," Russi said.

The chamber board of directors this summer asked each of the committees to draft mission statements before the board's December meeting. From those statements, the board will then draft an overall statement of purpose for the chamber, which will be used to establish objectives and programming.

At least half of the committees so far have put their purposes in ☐ See Chamber, Page 5A

Shuttle work behind schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL - Technicians awarmed over the shuttle Discovery Saturday, struggling to make up lost time and to keep the ship on schedule for the start of its countdown to a launch Wednesday on a military flight.

"Some of the activities have taken a little longer to complete than expected," said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. "It's a very tight schedule to make launch Wednesday. We're about 12 hours down on the schedule."

Already running two days late because of work to replace a faulty booster control unit and to fix a hydraulic leak. Discovery's countdown was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. today. the same time the ship's crew was expected to arrive at the Kennedy Space Center for final preparations.

But officials said privately it was uncertain if Discovery would be ready for the start of the countdown because of slower-than-expected progress completing repairs and testing and that launch Wednesday could be delayed.

NASA managers have said they would prefer to avoid launching Discovery on Thursday to give technicians a chance to spend Thankagiving Day with their families. But if bad weather is forecast for Friday and Saturday, a Thursday launch could be ordered in the event Wednesday is ruled out.

Promotion arouses Humane Society

TAMPA — Animal-rights advocates are up in arms over a self-described "lunatic fringe" radio station's plan to drop a cash-laden turkey from an airplane next week.

The outcry hasn't altered station WFLZ's plans, however, leading some to wonder whether the "turkey" could turn out to be something other than a bird.

"I do not think it's as they say. I do not believe they're dropping a live bird." Humane Society operations supervisor Karen Cheeks said Friday.

"To drop a bird that cannot fly out of an airplane is animal cruelty," said Cheeks, who called the station to protest after receiving 15 complaint calls at her office.

Gabe Hobbs, operations manager of WFLZ, wasn't disclosing any details about the promotional event, other than to insist that a "live turkey stuffed with cash" would be dropped from an airplane into the station's parking lot at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Video helps suspects go free

FORT LAUDERDALE - A television program aimed at exposing those arrested, usually for drug-related offenses, has helped four Dania men charged with possession of eocaine to go fee.

A videotape made for the show "Cops" shows Broward County Sheriff's Deputy James Fondo arresting the men, and the six rocks of crack cocaine they were charged with possessing.

But Broward Circuit Judge J. Leonard Fleet ruled the cocaine could not be used as evidence because the scene taped by the show's film crew contradicted earlier testimony by Fondo.

Fondo said one of the defendants tossed a plastic bag containing the cocaine to the ground as Fondo moved toward him, but the scene shows the deputy dropping the bag, then picking it up.

Assistant State Attorney Lawrence Shendell said in court documents that the scene represented a re-enactment, but attorneys for the defense argued otherwise.

Defense attorneys said it appeared as if the evidence was

Family faces rables shots

LIVE OAK - At least 19 members of a rural family that adopted a baby raccoon are now having to get costly - and painful — rables shots because the animal was rabid.

Suwannee County health officials would not identify the family, which adopted the animal last month when the family's dog killed the raccoon's mother.

The family called Environmental Health Director O.J. Baker on Oct. 30 and asked that he examine the baby animal because it was acting strangely. The animal was euthanized and sent to a lab for examination.

Due to a reporter's error in an article Friday about the Lake Mary moratorium, it stated that the ban on development would become effective 120 days after final approval. It should have said it will become effective immediately. The initial term of the moratorium will be for 120 days from passage and adoption of the ordinance and will not exceed a total term of eight months.

Honecker may be prosecuted

WEST BERLIN - East German leader Egon Krenz said Saturday former Communist Party boss Erich Honecker was being investigated and hinted he might be prosecuted, as more than 50,000 people took to the streets to protest Communist Krenz revealed in an interview to be published today in the popular Bild am Sontag newspa-per that the whole question of prosecuting the now-discredited former East German leadership was being examined by a special parliamentary committee.

"We have set up a committee of investigation. You know that I cannot interfere in investigations and may not pre-judge any-thing." Krenz told the West German newspaper.

"But the responsibility of the former General Secretary (of the Communist Party. Erich Honecker) has been establish quite clearly by name. We have hidden nothing. We want to make a completely new start," Krenz said, referring to paritomentary demands that Honocher be taken to task.

Krenz said former Economic Minister and Polithuro membe Guenther Mittag and former Propaganda Minister Joachim Herrmann fell into the same

Bulgarians demand reforms

SOFIA. Bulgaria - More than 50,000 people packed a central square Saturday for a peaceful rally to demand more democratic reforms and insist that former hard-line Bulgarian leader Todor Zhivkov be tried for curruption.

"It is the first gathering of the people who came here on their own initiative," a speaker at the rally said. Rallies in the past have been organized by the Communist Party or allied groups, and people were often ordered to attend.

The legal rally, organized by nine independant groups including the environmental and human rights organization EcoGlasnost, took place in Aleksander Newski Square in bright sunshine.

Witnesses described it as the biggest in four decades, with at least 50,000 people. Some put the crowd figure at 80,000 to 100,000.

The protesters demanded more democracy. human rights guarantees, and free elections and called on the Politburo to resign. The atmosphere was peaceful, and even orthodox priests were seen waving signs and placards.

New Communist Party chief and President Peter Mindenov on Priday promised free elections, but the context of his comments suggested he wants the Communist Party to retain its leading role.

Zhivkov stepped down last week after 35 years

At the rally, Peter Beron, a founder of EcoGlancot, drew great applicate when he said Bulgaria needs sweeping democratic reforms.

Romania turns back Hungarians

BUDAPEST. Hungary - Hard-line Romania has restricted entry for visitors from its reform-minded neighbor Hungary and expelled a French reporter so it prepared for a Communist Party congress that begins in Bucharest Monday

The official Hungarian news a first turned hundreds of Hungarians back Friday, telling them all hotels were full, and about 40 percent of all travelers who tried to cross the border Saturday were turned away.

Hungarian Radio, reporting from Debrecen near the border, said the main thoroughfares were being guarded by army solders in many Romanian cities in preparation for the crucial party congress beginning Monday in Romania.

The security actions illustrated the growing isolation faced by the hard-line government in Bucharest, which has resisted reforms sweep-ing other East Bloc countries. Hungary was among the first Warsaw Pact countries to embrace reforms.

Dimanche said Saturday Romanian authorities had expelled reporter Claude-marie Vadrot.

who had planned to cover the party congress.

Vadrot was arrested Friday evening while trying to rent a car at Bucharest Airport, the newspaper said. Four hours later authorities put the journalist on an airplane to Frankfurt.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Bucharest, meanwhile, that it had learned unofficially that security was tightened throughout the country in addition to the restrictions at the border.

Czechs call for protest strike

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia - Hundreds of people undaunted by a bloody crackdown on demonstrators confronted riot police on Wenceslas Square Saturday to protest police brutality, amid calls for a brief general strike and boycotts.

As tension in Prague mounted, Czech leaders indicated they would re-evaluate the "Prague Spring" period of reform quashed by the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion. The announcement in-dicated hard-line leaders might be edging closer to the reform movement sweeping East Europe.

Nonetheless, scores of helmeted riot police entered Wenceslas Square Saturday and blocked rallygoers from trying to proceed down Narodni Street, where police Friday night forced protesters to run a gauntlet while they were beaten.

The Saturday crowd chanted "Freedom. Freedom" and other slogans, and then called for another demonstration Monday afternoon before dispersing. Other police without helmets but carrying the familiar long white truncheons began checking identity cards of passersby.

Earlier, many of the several hundred who gathered at the main square laid candles and Demonstrators, estimated at between 20,000 and 50,000, had been given permission to march if they avoided Wenceslas Square — a favorite site of past anti-government protests. Violence erupted when some marchers disobeyed the order and

State may Joury more Wekiva land

By J. MARK BARFIELD oraid staff writer

SANFORD - Two more Wekiva River lands may added to the state lands purchase list Dec. 1, including nearly 5,000 acres in Seminole County.

Much of the Seminole County land lies directly south of the confluence of the Wekiva and Little Wekiva Rivers. The land has been used as a bergaining chip for NTS Properties Inc. to gain permission from county, state and federal agencies to destroy wetlands at their Lake Forest development west of Sanford. Federal Environmental Protection Agency officials appose the swap.

The Wekiva River Buffers, as the the 4,930 acres has become to be known, has survived one cut by the state Land Acquisition Advisory Council. The state council recommends spending for $50 million annual land preservation purchases, called the Conservation and Recreation Lands (CARL) program.

Final ranking of 97 projects will occur Dec. 1. The ranking is important because the state only pursues purchase of the to 30 of 60-project list. Lower-ranked projects, including the Spring Hammock acquisition project west of Lake Jesup, are pursued only if they are more than 70 percent complete. Spring Hammock is now over 80 percent publicly owned.

Two other Wekiva projects are currently high on the list. The 9,200-acre Seminole Springs tract, located east of the intersection of State Road 44 and County Road 46-A, is number 2 on the list. The owner of a large share of the land has announced the sale of most of the land to developer Sid Roche, making the land's preservation uncertain.

Number 3 on the CARL list. the BMK Ranch includes 5,850 acres in Lake and Orange Counties due west of County Road

A second, even larger Wekiva River CARL proposal is called the Wekiva-Ocala Connector. The massive 16,685-acre project spans land beginning north of Seminole Swamp in Lake County and runs generally northwest along Black Water Creek, including Lake Norris, to the Lake Woodruff refuge. The acquisition, if approved, would link the Wekiya River area to the Ocala National Forest, providing a safe wildlife corridor for black bear and other protected species.

SANFORD - The Sanford Housing Authority board of commissioners have turned down an invitation from a national group of housing consultants to determine if the agency needs private management. In another matter relating to SHA's decision to adopt private management, the SHA attorney said last night he has almost completed negotiations with a Coral Gables firm whose first contract with SHA was rejected last month by the U.S. Depart-ment of Housing and Urban Development.

The board voted 4 to 1 to turn down the invitation from the National Center for Housing Management, a non-profit agency created by the government to assist public housing agencies. Shirley Allen cast the dissenting vote.

Allen, who has opposed the concept of private management since she was appointed to the board in May, said the analysis of staff, finances and occupancy should have been done before the previous board decided to pursue contracted management

"Am I naive to think that has afready been done?" Allen

Chairperson Teri Buratti said an analysis had been done and discussed during the March 16 meeting when the board voted unanimously to seek private management. But Linda Williams. SHA interim executive director, said no such analysis had been done or discussed, nor had any reason been given for

When Tenant Commissioner Alberta Detreville said she recalled the vote on management. Williams questioned her about the reasons for the commission's vote. Detreville replied, "I don't have that in my notes."

Williams said she and the audience needed to know why private management was chosen. Buratti told her former chairperson Alexander Wynn III had noted problems with the staff, but Williams disagreed. "That's news to me," Williams

Commissioner J. Wain Cumngs made the motion to reject NCHM's invitation.

"We do not need some additional bad advise from anyone."

Cummings said.

NCHM offered its services at about $350 a day per consultant requested for the analysis. Williams said the cost of the services would depend on the type of consultation requested.

NCHM, created by executive order of former President Richard Nixon, has acted as consultant for neveral public housing agencies across the country. Most recently, NCHM has worked with the Housing Authority of New Orleans to develop criteria for negotiating for private management.

James Sweeting III, attorney for the housing authority, said he would have negotiated a contract with The Furr Company to submit to HUD and the board by Dec. 1.

The board tabled award of the contract until further references

J.D. Pirotta submitted the low bid of $1.458 million for the renovation of William Clark Court's 85 units.

The Volusia school board said in a reference sent to the housing authority the board will no longer allow the contractor to bid work for the school system. The director of facilities and construction there also recommended seeking references from the Seminole County school board, who would not comment on the contractor's construction of county schools.

The board last night also tabled awarding a contract to a coordinator for the modernization project until a conare found. The bids will expire tractor has been chosen.

Many oppose neighborhood improvement plan

The cost to Howeli Estates homeowners would be $693 each

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD - One of the Seminole County's leading supporters of a new neighborhood improvement is running into friction in creating such an improvement district in his own neighborhood.

"I feel a little bit frightened." said Barbara Nunez, a resident of the Howell Estates subdivision. "This is America."

Dan Bushrul, homeowner's association president and a creator of the improvement district mechanism, is not surprised with such vocal opposition. "I didn't expect it any other way." says Bushrut. There's been a lot of misinformation."

Bushrut and other leaders of the Howell Estates subdivision. located southeast of Lake Howell in the unincorporated southern areas of the county, have proposed creating a special assessment for the 225 homeowners to make improvements to the two entranceways to the subdivision and to heighten and partially reconstruct the wall that surrounds the subdivision.

Seminole County budget officials estimate the cost of the project at $155.877 or nearly $693 per home. At a current interest rate of about 8.5 percent, the sum can be paid over 10 years at $106 per year. Fathere to pay the amount can result in a county lien on the property.

More than 50 homeowners showed up at a meeting Wednesday night, many of them to question - and oppose - the proposal. Suncz says the chances of approval are slim.

If approved by 55 percent of the homeowners, the improvements would be done by the county through a newly-created assessment mechanism called a "municipal services benefit unit" or "MSBU" for short.

They have buried a time capsule that contains artifacts of their culture to give their descendants a better understanding of life in the late 1980s as well as reflections on the history of the school by the students.

A grantte marker explaining what is under the spot and telling future generations when to open it was purched by the student government and placed at the site.

started coming to her with ideas on what to include in the capsule as soon as she announced the plan.

"We only decided a few weeks ago to do this," she said. "but they have really helped us throw together a

The student government invited out-going principal Willie Holt and various former principals to record on videotape their feelings about the school and the world in general during their tenure at the helm at Milwee.

Swimming opens doors for Lake Mary's Bridgewater

By TONY December Herald Sports Editor

If you'll excuse the pun, it'd be no wonder if Brad Bridgewater's head was swimming with all that is happening in his life.

A 16-year-old junior at Lake Mary High School and one of the top prep swimmers in the state. Bridgewater left this morning for a stay at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs. Co. Next month, he'll swim in the U.S. Open and, in late January, he's off to Paris and East Berlin for international competition.

But through all the excitement. Bridgewater has stayed focused. And with good reason.

"I really want to do well in the 200 freestyle at the state most," said bridgestyle as Bridge night. "I've been looking forward to it for the last three months. "I'll be swimming against Dave Bandy (of Lyman) and Mark Dieffenthaller (of Winter Park). We're all friends, so it'll be a big competition. This is for bragging rights.

Regardless of how he did in the Class 4A state meet yesterday at the Orlando International Aquatics Center, Bridgewater will still have some accomplishments to boast about (if he were the boasting kind).

Last summer. Bridgewater's dive into the national swimming spotlight began with a second place showing in the 200 backstroke at the Junior Olympics. His time was good enough to be invited to join the Junior National team, which he joined this work to start preparing for heir Europeantrip. While it has been his dream to do these th the suddenness of it has caught him a little by surprise.

"This is the first step," said Bridgewater, who wants to swim in the Olympics. "It makes the whole thing real for me.

"The first time I realized I could be good was my freshman year, when I started swimming in high school. I was swimming against guys who were a lot bigger than me and doing pretty well. Then things really came together last summer."

Part of the credit goes to Lake Brantley High School swim coach Clay Parnell, who coaches

ORLANDO - The University of Central Florida continued to build for the future on Saturday night by ripping Texas Southern University 49-12 before an announced crowd of 14,082 at the Orlando Citrus Bowl.

The Knights, who won their last three games, finished with a 7-3 record, their best since 1979 (when they finished 6-2). The Tigers completed their season with a 3-6-1 mark.

"I fell we were real lucky." said UCF coach Gene McDowell. "I thought it would be a lot closer and it would come down to the kicking game. We had an edge in the kicking game and I thought a kick return or a blocked punt would make the difference."

It was the high-powered UCF offense, though, that wasted little time getting points on the board. Using a no-huddle offense on its second possession, sophomore quarterback Rudy Jones hooked up with Shawn Jefferson on a 19-yard pass play to complete a 72-yard drive for the game's opening score.

Franco Grilla added the point after and the Knights led 7-0 with 8:52 remaining in the first quarter.

Angel Mesa scored on UCF's next possession, leaping from a yard out to up the advantage to 14-0 after Grilla's kick with 4:37 left in the opening frame. The game then evened out before the Knights' Scott Ariail blocked a punt that Eric Jones scooped up and returned 14 yards for UCF's third touchdown.

An interception by Ray Irvin on the Texas Southern's next play from scrimmage was returned 39 yards to the Tiger 6-yard line to set up the final score of the first half to give UCF a commanding 28-0 lead at the intermission.

Two interceptions early in the second half aided the Knights build a 42-6 lead with 5:01 remaining in the third quarter.

"Interceptions made the game look a lot nastier than it was," said McDowell, "Texas Southern is a very good football team. They did not show what they can do tonight."

LAKE MARY - Every coach says they play one game at a time. But after Seminole's 50-7 Seminole Athletic Conference football win over Lake Mary at Don T. Reynolds Stadium on Friday night, both coaches admitted to using the game to get ready for the future.

For Coach Emory Blake and his Seminoles, now 7-3, the future is next Friday night, when they host the Tarpon Springs Spongers in the 4A-Region IV championship game. Much of what the Tribe did against Lake Mary was in preparation for that contest.

"We felt what we had to do was establish ourselves as a running team as well as a passing team." said Blake, mindful of the fact that there was a contingent from Tarpon Springs in attendance to scout Seminole.

Base angiers, on the other hand, despise cold fronts. Blue skies and frigid weather are tough on base and they react by becoming almost dormant. Bass will either retreat into the sanctuary of deep water or bury themselves in thick vegetation, which helps to trap escaping

Trying to eatch base after the passage of a cold front is undoubtedly the most difficult challenges an angler could face. Most of the base have lockjaw and will not respond to a bait.

The most successful tactic to catch cold front base is to use lighter lines and scaled-down lures. Lines from 6-10 pound test, coupled with 4 -nch plastic worms, catch finicky base when larger offerings fail.

Citrus grower looking for foreign workers

LAKE WALES - A citrus grower wants federal approval to hire foreigners to pick Florida fruit in what would be the first time in 20 years alten laborers legally have helped with the harvest.

Oakley Brothers Inc. wants to recruit 942 foreign workers to pick citrus in seven counties from January through June. Federal law allows the use of alien labor only when domestic workers are not available.

"What it comes down to is whether there are sufficient U.S. and Employment Security has workers who are available and willing to work at the time and place they're needed," said Steve Becker, a Department of Labor official in Atlanta who will rule on the request.

A spokesman for the Lake land-based Florida Citrus Mutual, an industry association. says some growers expect a shortage of domestic workers at harvest time.

The use of alten labor requires a 60-day advance notice. "If you wait until the day there's nobody there to harvest the crop, you're going to be sunk," said Ernie Neff, a mutual spokesman.

Florida's Department of Labor

posted the labor jobs in state offices, community centers and churches. Becker is expected to decide by Dec. 16 whether to approve the use of foreign labor.

"For someone to bring foreign workers in, they have to have made a recruitment effort and demonstrate that they couldn't get domestic workers." Neff said. Florida citrus growers have not legally hired foreign workers since the 1980s. But illegal aliens, mostly from Mexico, have been used to harvest the crops. About 120,000 thousand altens. mostly Mexican, applied for temporary residency permits in 1988 to harvest Florida citrus.

The company would hire aliens to work in Martin, Lee, DeSoto, Highlands, Polk, Glades and Hillsborough counties.

Resort taces closure

DESTIN — A top-rated report in northwest Florida that has fallen behind in loan payments is facing a foreclosure by its chief

A 22-count suit was filed last week by Harbor Federal Savings & Loan of Fort Pierce, which had loaned Sandestin and its developer, Peter Bos, nearly $34 million since 1963. "People in foreclosure think it's like repossessing a car. We have a lot of claims and defenses in this thing. We will respond accordingly," Bos told the Pensacola News-Journal.

Sandestin, which has 1,500 seasonal workers, has been rated among the top 10 Florida resorts by Travel Guide magazine. Its 2.600 acres includes golf courses, a marine, restaurants, clubs and both rental and forasie housing.

The suit alleges Sandestin owes the thrift more than $28 million in principal, interest and other fees. It details a relationship beginning with an $18.5-million loan and seven supplemental loans totaling $12.5 million.

The suit said that by late 1988 all the loans were in default. The thrift loaned the resort $2.78 million this year in "working capita" to stabilize the financial circumstances.

"There's no question." Bos told the Northwest Florida Daily News of Fort Walton Beach. "Harbor Federal has been coopcrative with us through some difficult times."

Sandestin is financially strong with assets of $100 million and revenues totaling $37 million so far this year, said Bos, adding that a depressed real estate market caused problems two years ago.

Bos said the thrift put a freeze on $3 million in real estate closings that would have put money directly into the debt.

David Hankle, senior vice president of Harbor Federal, said the foreclosure is a bid to collect after other methods failed. He said he hoped lines of communication are kept open and the two can work our their differences.

He said the thrift does not want to take over the resort. Michael J. Brown, Harbor Federal's president, also said he hoped the conflict over the debt can be resolved. He said he did not want to see anything happen to the resort.

Daily intake of vitamin K. which helps blood clot, was set at 1 microgram - or onemillionth of a gram — per 2.2 pounds of body weight for both children and adults. Green leafy vegetables are the best source of vitamin K.

As for selenium, the report recommended men eat about 70 micrograms per 2.2 pounds of body weight each day and women about 55 micrograms per 2.2 pounds.

Recent studies in China have linked selenium-deficient diets to heart ailments in young children and women of child-bearing age. Good sources of selenium are scafood, kidney and liver:

Two states ban food supplement

SACRAMENTO, Calif. -California has ordered merchants to stop selling a non-prescription food supplement known as "nature's sleeping pill" until doctors can find out if it causes a painful blood disorder that has spread to State Health Director Ken Kizer issued his directive on L-tryptophan Wednesday, two days after New Mexico banned the sale of the naturally occurring amino acid that is sold without a prescription and touted as a cure for insomnia and premenstrual syndrome.

Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., said he plans to introduce legislation Thursday that would ban the sale of L-tryptophan nationwide until doctors determine if it is safe.

The national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said about 250 people in 22 states have contracted the never-before-seen illness that the CDC named eosinophilia myalgia syndrome, or EMS, on Tuesday.

Kizer said doctors report at least 19 people in California who have taken the supplement have become III

"We think that there are going to be a lot more cases identified in California, perhaps hundreds more, because of the widespread use of this product." Kizer said.

"We do think that hundreds of thousands of people are taking this in California."

Roughly 100 new unconfirmed cases were reported Wednesday to the CDC, bringing the total number of victims to 250, an aide to Richardson said.

Scientists have not determined a cause-and-effect relationship between L-tryptophan and the recent outbreak of EMS, whose symptoms include an unsually high number of white blood cells known as cosinophils, severe muscle pain, weakness, joint pain, swelling of the arms and legs, fever, skin rash and respiratory problems.

Mixing medications can be dangerous

ORLANDO — Dr. William Simonson of Oregon State University was in Orlando last week trying to educate elderly people about the dangers of taking medicines whose effects may conflict with each Simonson, who has 20 years of experience in pharmacology and geriatrics, says many elderly people go to various doctors for various problems and get prescrip-tions from all of them. Doctors, not knowing what other medications the patient is on, will prescribe a medication for the problem the patient saw him about.

The problem. Simonson says, is that the patient may have another prescription which negates the effectiveness of the new prescription: or worse, the combination of prescriptions can be danger-

Even over-the-counter drugs, purchased more often in the winter cold and flu season, can react with prescription drugs a patient is already taking. Simonson

"For instance," he points out, "Decongestants, often purchased to combat cold symptoms, can completely negate the effect of the high blood pressure medication a patient is taking. Anyone who has a prescription to control high blood pressure should use a vaporizer, or an external rub to combat stuffiness, not a decongestant," he advised. Dr. Simonson advises patients to get all their prescrippharmacy. "Even if you obtain prescriptions from different doctors, if you use the same pharmacy to get them filled, the pharmacist will be familiar with your prescrip-tions, and can advise you if a new one will conflict with another one you already have." Simonson said.

He said pharmacists can also answer questions about whether an over-the-counter medication will conflict with the effectiveness of a preecription.

Simonson said elderly peo-ple who come to Florida for the winter often face a problem with medications because they are away from their regular doctor and pharmacists.

He advises winter visitors to make a list of all the prescription medications they have. the dose they take and how often. The list should be carried at all times, and can be shown to a doctor or pharmacist if another prescription is obtained, or if medications are purchased.

Otto, 38, formally flying since his Air Force days, found "the aviation market flooded with pilots when Vietnam ended. I was an insurance claims investigator until eight years ago, when Ken and I bit the bullet and decided to do this."

Petty was born in Brunswick. Ga., to Leonard and Melba War-rick. She attended Glynn Academy in Georgia and, being musically inclined, she began her love of studying music while in the fourth grade. She continued her love and appreciation for this fine art by attending Albany State College, Albany, Ga., where she received a bachelor of science degree in School. Later, she taught at Milwee Middle School where she was director of the concert choir. conducted and coordinated talent shows, and presented the musical production "Team One and Two."

In 1985, she was given the honor of Teacher of the Year at Milwee. Her effective and challenging talents in teaching children music and, above all, to believe in themselves have made her a positive influence on her students at Croom School of Choice. There, she teaches music, fine art and musical drama in a simplified classroom style.

Petty says she likes to work with children and, at Crooms, has regular classes that are small, which gives her the opportunity to give individual attention to each student. This, she says, builds confidence and self-esteem. She instills into the student that they can do things, recognizing and bringing out their special abilities and talents.

Petty says that the driving force behind her love for her work is the needs she sees.

"You know that the students can do more and you see that more can be accomplished if you push them a little bit further." Petty said. "The desire to see the No. 1 goal accomplished gives you the driving force. I have always been taught to work for success in all of your endeavors," she said.

Wife wants to stay good neighbor after husband's adultery

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Jim." had an affair with a neighbor I'll call "Carol." Two neighbors told me about it. One said Jim would park his car on the side of her house and walk to Carol's. (Carol's husband worked nights, which made it very convenient.)

When I heard about this affair. I approached Carol (which I now regret) and asked her what was going on between her and my husband. She said if there was anything I wanted to know. I would have to ask Jim. When I asked him, he denied it, but I could tell he was lying. I know this affair would never break up Carol's home, because her husband is an easygoing guy and an excellent provider. She

How should I treat Carol? Our children are about the same ages, they play together, and our husbands are good friends. Carol has always been very nice to me. and I see no reason why I shouldn't be nice to her. After all, it takes two to tango, and I think it's over now.

We have a big difference of opinion on this, and I said, "I believe in that old adage, 'Ignorance is bliss.'" Can you please tell me who said it, and where did it come from?

She is serving as chairwoman of minority affairs for the Seminole County Education Association during the month of November. The Ottos said that local nudists have recently inquired about parachuting into a nudist colony.

"That will be a unique trip!" grinned Larry. "RHIP, Larry," Otto reminded. Rank has its privileges!
"I think I've been demoted as pilot of that plane!" "Well." Otto said. "I guess whoever actually answers the phone that day will pllot that plane." Job enthusiasm is obvious in Otto's organization. "I'm doing what I love to do," Otto beamed. "Any given day to different. For example, I flew in from Washington, D.C., at one o'clock yesterday, and at two o'clock I was doing aerobatics in an air show at Heathrow." Larry added, "Everyone says there's money in aviation. We know that. We put it there!"

ATA pilot Tad laaksen smiled. Flying is the thrill of a lifetime. Experience it once!"

Yes, we like to have fun." Otto said. "But we're very serious about proper plane maintenance, which ensures a safe flight. After all, the pilot is always the first one at the scene of an accident."

The closest Otto has ever come to a catastrophe was "on a ski trip with eight people on a plane that developed a real sick engine," he said. "We landed uneventfully with partial power in one engine. We got to experience something as professionals that we seldom do, except in training."

Larry's dog. Killer, who loves to fly, and Prop Kitty, the hangar's mascot, wander away as Otto starts up his Aerotek Pitts S2-A. a smooth little red. white and blue plane designed for aerobatics. Fueled, the Pitts regally awaits her pilot and passenger.

"No one has been sick in the Pitts yet, but just in case..." Otto grins as he defily slips a "protein spill bag" into his pocket. He skillfully secures nine safety harnesses and a parachute around his charge.

"When you do aerobatics, you have to wear a parachute."

Seating and seat size are akin to the log ride at Disney World: pilot behind passenger in single seats, with legs extended.

Sky-blue canvas helmets, with earphones and a microphone. are adjusted and will remain the means of communication throughout the flight.
"Clear prop! Here we go!" Otto announces as the Pitts taxis nose-up in snakelike fashion down the runway. "We use 'S' turns to taxi, because I can't see directly in front of me.'

In line for take-off, Ted revs the Pitts' engine, a procedure called "engine run-up. We make sure the engine runs properly before take-off," he said.

"You can't get away now!" Ted exults as he rockets down the runway, like a sports car on Interstate 4, reaching 80 miles per hour before lift-off. "Nothing to it! Are you doing OK?" he asks as he climbs to a speed of 150 mph and an altitude of 2,000 feet. The glass-domed plane affords a breath-taking, panoramic view of Sanford, from the glittering lakes to the blue, blue sky. Although the Pitts appears to be moving languidly, she is actually maintaining almost two-and-a-half times the interstate speed limit.

Otto explains several maneuvers that are combinations of two basic ones. For the alleron roll, one might envision a pet dog rolling over. For the loop, you could imagine a looped roller coaster with no tracks. "And here's a Hammerhead!"

Otto announces as the Pitts screams toward heaven, and, like a shooting star, almost stops, turns and plummets toward Earth.

"How was that? Are you ready for more?" Otto asks as he coaxes the Pitts skyward for a

The effect of gravity on the under leaden eyelida difficult. Gravity's pull on the face and body works two ways. It either pushes you into (positive) or pulls you out of (negative) your seat. One sets your face into a grimace, the other into "a cheap, temporary facelift," Otto said. "Let's try it!" Otto said of the

Everyone should experience Cuban Eight, a maneuver that flight in a small plane at least originally "was a mistake. A once. I talked my sister Christa into her first aerobatics plane ride and I think she agrees. Everyone double loop. When asked what he called it, his every the control of the moment answer was spur-of-the-moment answer was Cuban Eight."

Inverted, or upside down. flight is akin to hanging by your knees from playground monkey bars, only the monkey bars are 2,000 feet in the air.

As Otto demonstrates, Tad and Larry, in a companion plane, take serial photographs. "We're working hard to heep each other in eight. We don't want to bump into these guys." Otto said.

Larry's voice crackies over the airwaves, "Are you going to do the 'Berserk Headache'?" referring to a Yugoslavian maneuver that would send the Pitts tumbling end over end.

"Not today." Otto responde, being sensitive to his passen ger's stomach.

The control tower requests a reacting on cloud attitude for the weather report, and Otto heads skyward, taking his passenger closer to beaven than some people will ever jet.

SANFORD - Education legislation and statewide school board policies are constantly changing and it can be difficult

Seminole County School Board chairman Ann Netowender and assistant super-intendent for business and finance Carey Ferrell keep up with the ine and outs of the business of education through their consulting firm. Educational Management Systems.

"It has forced us to stay backutely current," Neiswender

The company serves school districts around the state by, among other things, helping them to formulate or rewrite their school board policies so they are current and they com-

"We take a different approach than other consulting services, including the Florida School Board Association, that do similar work. We don't give them model rules," she said. Some consultants give their clients a packet of pre-formulated rules and ask them which they want and tell them which they need.

There is no room for personality there," Neiswender said. Instead, Educational Management Systems offers a matrix that, according to Neiswender "involves all that the state requires and authorises, plus which rules need clarification." The firm offers three drafts of the policy to the district and works closely with them. assisting with tailoring it to suit the needs of the district.

"We spend a great deal of time on site with the districts and talk to them and really get to know their needs," Neiswender said.

Sometimes, however, they find themselves in a situation where they must make a statement that they are not in support of a particular policy.

A few years ago, Bay County had hired Educational Management Systems to assist with the formulation of their policies. But a controversy over the banning of several books as a part of school board policy caused Neiswender and Ferrell to sign a ent that they were not wible for that particular

Her experience as director of personnel has helped Neiswender in another aspect of the business. Educational Management Systems also helps districts formulate job descriptions and to advertise for vacant positions.

Educational Management Systems does not do work for the Seminole County school district and Neiswender said that can sometimes be frustrating.

The Seminole County district has recently employed, at no cost, the Florida School Board Association, to do the same job that Educational Management Systems does. "They are going over our policies and helping us to update them." Neiswender said, "and it is frustrating to sit back and Neiswender said that running their business has been a learning experience for her. "I have no private business experience," she said. "I have always been in education. I knew nothing about running a entreprenurial enterprise. This has forced me to learn about things like cash flow and about performing before we are paid."

Educational Management Systems is still a small company, but it is that way by choice.

OVIEDO - The Publix Supermarket at Alafaya Woods in Oviedo recently gave more than 3,000 plain paper bags to the students of Stenstrom Elementary School.

This week they will be getting back an equal number of individual works of art into which shoppers can pack their Thanksgiving goodies and other groceries.

Each student at the school received an average of three bags to decorate with things they were learning in school.

The kindergarten students. who are currently learning about Indians, expressed that theme heavily in their art. Fourth graders who recently went on a field trip to Sea World included a lot of fish and marine life in their bag

"There are some wonderful bags in the collection," Cheryl Jessup, the school's media specialist who helped coordinate the event, said.

The students benefit from being able to express themselves, according to Jessup. But the expressions were not limited to art.

"Music classes wrote sonds on the bag. Math classes worked through problems on them," Jessup said, "We covered every discipline."

Dale Myers, manager of the Publix store, said the achool did a similar project last year and the bags were recieved positively by the consumers in his store.

"I heard a lot of positive comments from people last year so I was excited when she approached me with the idea again this year." he said.

VIEWPOINT

Supplement ban won't affect your Thanksgiving

In a National Center for Disease Control report od Priday, consumers were warned to attinue using a dietary supplement called nais for the warning stems from the k of several cases of what medical

m was first noticed last week in The protesm was first notices and tree of lew Mexico where 30 instances of osinophilis-myalgia, or EMS, were reported.

L-tryptophan is an amino acid sold over the ounter at numerous drug and health food stores across the country. It most often appears in pill or caplet form and is taken for incomnia, depression or pretrust syndrome.

The CDC report says symptoms of EMS include an elevation of white blood cells, severe muscle pain and an absence of infection or illness that can explain the symptoms. In severe cases, doctors report that patients can hardly and to be touched. Now the obvious questions are, is this betance contained in everyday foods; and, will it affect the big Thankagiving Day meal I have planned?

The answers to those questions are yes and no, respectively.

Local health and nutritional experts say the public should not panic because of recent reports of EMS outbreaks. L-tryptophan is contained in a few common edibles, including milk, and some nutritional journals say it is also contained in turkey.

But it's not, at least in its natural state, harmful to the human body.

"There's nothing wrong with it (L-tryptophan) in what we eat," says Dr. James Quinn, a Sanford physician. "The amount of it that's contained in the foods we eat every day won't Quinn, somewhat of a health nut himself, prefers a natural approach to staying healthy. You may recall that he was a member of a local bicycling effort last year in which three Sanford residents pedaled from Sanford, Maine to Sanford, Fierida.

He mays he would never advise his patients to the distance amplements and says that conn it comes to nutrition. He cited one le of a television commercial that compares cereals. In it, the announcer claims that 'd have to eat several bowls of one kind of cereal to get the same amount of vitamins contained in another kind.

"That's a bunch of hooey," Quinn said. "You take the kind that they say you'd need several bowls of and toss in a Flintstones vitamin and you'd have the same thing.

He says that medical experts and health officials have constantly campaigned against taking products such as L-tryptophan.

"The American Medical Association has said all along that people shouldn't take dietary supplements," Quinn said. "There is no medical evidence to prove that they help and, in the long run, they may just wind up causing you more

As for vitamin intakes, Quinn said people often take too much of one kind of vitamin and perhaps not enough of another. He cited a recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine regarding the consumption of Vitamin C. What we know about Vitamin C is that a lack of it cause scurvy," he said. "There is no proof to indicate that taking more of it is good for you. Too much of it may be carcinogenic. We just don't know. That's the type of thing that demonstrates our ignorance (of vitamins and nutrition)."

Eldon Chambers, director of food services for the Seminole County School District, is also familiar with L-tryptophan and was in New Mexico when the first EMS cases were reported.

Parents shouldn't worry about that element being present in their children's lunches, he said, adding that he was unaware of its presence in turkey products.

"We will be serving turkey-type products into the spring." Chambers said. "It's low in fat and a good source of protein. We get all our turkeys from the government and they would alert us to any potential problems with anything we receive from them. Chambers said the school district officially observed "Turkey Day", last Thursday when most of the birds purchased for the annual holiday lunch were prepared and served. However, he said some schools may not use their allotments of turkey until this week, adding that those schools must serve the turkey before Thanksgiving Day. Quinn says that the L-tryptophan in milk may be what helps people sleep better after drinking a warm glass of the product.

"There's no medical evident to support that theory." he said. "But the L-tryptophan in the milk probably does help people fall to sleep when they warm the milk up.

As for what we should and should not eat on Thanksgiving Day, the good doctor's advise is simple and to the point.

"Eat whatever you want, have a ball," he said.
"It's not one day's diet that's going to hurt you,

it's what you eat on a day-to-day basis."

Quinn says go whole-hog, or is it whole-turkey, on Thanksgiving Day but advises people to stick with a diet high in fiber and low in cholesterol once the holiday festivities are behind us.

Problem worst in the southern part of county

By Subab Loom Horald Staff writer

SANFORD — As the crack cocaine problem becomes the major crime problem of the nation, methods sed by both the criminals and law enforcement personnel have changed and evolved.

Local lawmen say their new approach is displacing dealers from some sites, but they aren't eliminating the problem.

What were once street scenes of marijuana sales have become major and distinct crack buy sites in north and south Seminole County during the last four years. Each region developed its own drug site character based on geographical location and the demographics of the community and those who shop for drugs there. All have common elements of drug sales making a negative impact on the communitransactions there, police say.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Har-

Lt. Donald Eslinger, left, and SWAT Officer Jeff Frazier section in that part of the county is the area in which there is the heaviest amount of street drug transactions arrest suspected crack buyer during Rock Pile sweep in rural Altamonte Springs. Police say a two-square-mile taking place.

The volume of street drug traffic is greatest here in a 2-square mile area of rural Altamonte Springs. where the neighborhood is split by the major route, County Road 427. with easy access to U.S. Highway 17-92, and State Road 436, Lt.

Donald Eslinger said. Eslinger commands the City County Investigative Bureau, the major, mult-agency vice squad in the county. He is also Central Florida intelligence coordinator for the Florida Sheriff's Statewide Crack Task Force, which in three ties while providing an economic anti-drug, statewide sweeps this base for those involved in the year netted about 5,500 vice suspects, most of which were crack cocaine buyers.

The rural Altamonte Springs area. with easy access to heavily populated Orange County, draws crack buyers from the northern Orlando area as well as from all cities and areas in Seminole County, Eslinger said. The typical crack buyer there is a 28-year-old white man from outside that area, who buys crack from a black male dealer. Eslinger said. The bulk of blatant street narcotics deals in the county. lawmen say, occurr in predominately black neighborhoods. with lower economic bases. The drug deals of the more affluent are better shielded, equally serious, but less likely to lead to arrest, because of their more private nature, police

Women are becoming more involved as crack dealers and users, motivated as men are by greed, or by addiction. Eslinger said. A street crack dealer might make $200 to $400 a day, or might deal drugs or prostitute themselves for their own supply of crack, he said. Most of the crimes against person or property throughout the county. Eslinger said, can now be directly linked to the use or sale of crack cocaine.

"They always will stay where the demand is." Eslinger said of drug dealers. "By displacing it, we're not eliminating the need for the drug. We're just giving the citizens on that particular street some shortterm relief. But we're not combating the actual problem, we're just treating some of the symptoms.

"Has all of this meant anything. no." Eslinger said of enforcement efforts. "It's going to take a committment not only from the criminal justice system, but from citizens can't establish a deterrent for those who buy crack without rehabilitation. We have to rehabilitate the addicts before we can eradicate the

Police shatter 'Pinder Cartel,' twelve arrested

United Press International

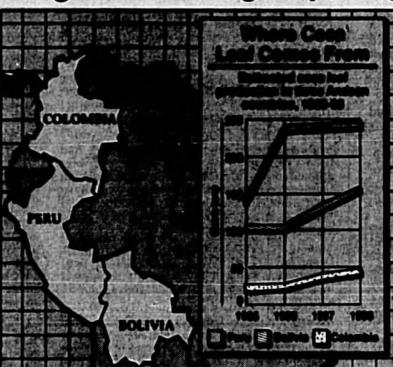

MIAMI - Federal officials said Thursday they have broken an alleged drug smuggling ring with the arrests of 12 people who are reputed members of the 'Pinder Cartel.'

Bob Newman, an FBI spokesman, said the 12 were arrested early Thursday for allegedly importing 400 kilograms of cocaine from the Bahamas to Palm Beach County

The arrests stemmed from two federal grand jury indictments issued Nov. 8 and Nov. 15, and culminated a three-year investigation conducted jointly by federal and state officials.

They operated in this area with impunity," said Newman. ☐ See Cartel, Page 4D

Drug runners regroup, target the Caribbean

United Press International

MIAMI - Cocaine once again is flowing through the Caribbean at or near the level seen before the August crackdown in Colombia, but drug runners apparently have shifted their business eastward.

"The Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, especially that area around Vieques and Culebra, are particularly active," said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Jeff Karonis.

"It has never been that way before. It is almost as if you flipped the Bahamas and Puerto Rico," he said. "In the past, the Bahamas was a key area for transship-

Karonis said in a recent interview that the activity now being detected in the eastern Caribbean follows a period of relative quiet in the drug war.

Federal officials have attributed an apparent slowdown in drug shipments during late August and September to Colombia's crackdown on drug cartels.

The time between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day can be especially hard for some of the 72 million American adults who are single, widowed or divorced.

"Thanksgiving marks the official beginning of the holiday season, and unfortunately, it marks the unofficial beginning of the holiday blues for millions of people," says Jeffrey Ul-lman, founder and president of Great Expectations, a Los-Angeles based national video dating service.

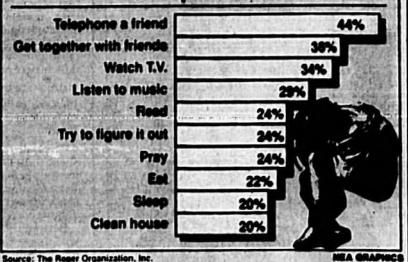

Uliman's company has put together a booklet offering 40 suggestions on how to overcome seasonal depression - one tip for each day from Nov. 23 to Jan. 1.

The suggestions in "A Singles Guide: 40 Days/40 Ways to Beat the Holiday Blues" are not outlandish. The most unusual suggestion is learning how to use chopaticks (Day 11) and the most daring could be making a list of personal accomplishments in the past year (Day 38).

The United States clearly has a compelling interest in easing its dangerous reliance on foreign oil. That goal cannot be achieved without permitting additional offshore drilling. But the interior Department has gone about it all the wrong way — which is a principal reason Mr. Lujan is probably correct in predicting that no exploration will occur anytime soon.

Beginning with former Secretary James

Watt, the department has plunged ahead with proposed lease sales in blatant disregard for the objections of environmentalists and imposed several moratoria on offshore drilin 1966, then-Secretary Donald Hodel and California's congressional delegation agreed to open 150 new nine-mile tracts for drilling. Yet, soon thereafter, Mr. Hodel reneged on this agreement and tried to bully the delegation and the California Coastal Com-mission into accepting a dubious plan favored by the petroleum industry.

Such heavy-handed tactics caused a politi-cal backlash, which, in turn, threatened then-Vice President Geore Bush's chances of winning California in the 1988 presidential race. Mr. Bush thus wisely promised to take a closer look at the department's proposed lease sales. As president, he honored that pledge by appointing a task force to assess the environmental dangers of offshore oil

Which brings us back to the National Academy of Sciences report, which warns that the government is proceeding toward a drilling decision without sufficient information on the potential risks to the coastlines of California and Florida. It would be rash for the government to proceed with the sched-uled lease sales next October.

Instead, the Interior Department ought to gather enough data about the dangers and ecological consequences of drilling in coastal waters to balance the potential hazards against the benefits.

David Policansky, NAS staff director for the research project, is correct when he says an informed decision on future offshore leases is impossible unless the department carefully investigates the environmental dangers. In the end, the federal government must ensure that the laudable goal of gaining a greater degree os energy self-sufficiency is not achieved at the cost of damaging vast stretches of California's magnificant coast.

Who's killing the wild horses?

BATTLE MOUNTAIN, Nev. — indicting people on charges of killing scores of wild horses in Nevada's sparsely settled "cow counties" appears to be relatively easy. Successfully prosecuting them is another

In August 1988, the carcasses of 41 slaughtered mustangs were discovered in one of the state's most desolate mountain ranges. In September 1968, the remains of another 153 horses were found. In October 1968, the bodies of another 257 were located.

Some were freshly dead while others had been killed up to two years earlier. All were gunned down in a 40-mile-long corridor in Lander County. Although there long have been random shootings of individual wild horses in rural Nevads, the scope of those massacres was unprecedented.

In late 1988, officials of the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management and Justice Department prosecutors began a major investigation into the deaths of the 451

Last January, a federal grand jury returned indictments against six individuals accused of illegally selling, abusing or slaying fewer than 50 wild horses. In the ensuing months, however, all of those legal cases have col-

Prosecutors dropped charges against one defendant after he proved that he was not even in the state at the time he was alleged to have killed the horses. A second defendant was found innocent by a jury after a trial in U.S. District Court in Reno.

A federal judge dismissed charges against two others, while prosecutors abandoned the case against the final two defendants after acknowledging they probably could not gain a conviction. "I think," said one Justice Department lawyer, "we underestimated the difficulty of proving these cases."

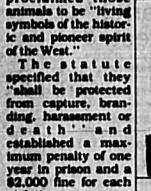

Wild horses, millions of which once freely roamed, are revered by many Westerners who view them as the last free spirits of the open

They are reviled, however, by cattle and sheep ranchers who see them as competitors for the scant forage remaining on the range. In Nevada alone, almost 600,000 head of live-stock graze on 48 million acres of public lands administered by BLM.

Between 1900 and 1970, almost 2 million wild horses were rounded up on BLM lands and legally killed for sport or meat. (Home meat is a delicacy in some European nations and is used in pet food in this country.)

That abuse was supposed to end with the enactment of the Wild Free-Roaming Horse groups believe the actual totals are less than half of what BLM claims. As many as 15,000 mustangs may have been slaughtered by individuals or destroyed by government employees in the name of herd management since the horses received federal protection 18

Trapped in the middle of a perpetual struggle among animal rights advocates. ranchers, environmentalists and others, BLM has always been uncertain about what to do with the wild horses. Many roam free but some are rounded up and dispatched to sanctuaries in South Dakots and Oklahoma.

Others are offered for adoption, but that program was abused by ranchers who "adopted" hundreds of mustangs, then shipped them off to slaughterhouses and pocketed the profits.

Meanwhile, one knowledgeable source says there could be important developments next year in the probe of the 451 wild horse deaths in Lander County. "There's something big really big - going on," he claims, declining to

JACK ANDERSON Vietnam vets reach

to Afghanistan vets

WASHINGTON — The problems of Vietnam veterans who couldn't leave the violence behind them have been duly recorded in the Soviet Union. For years, the governmentcontrolled Soviet press has disparaged the United States by writing about the trauma of American veterans.

Soviet soldiers were reading what was apposed to be anti-American propaganda.

but it struck a responsive chord. Now Soviet veterans of the war in Afghanistan are reaching out to American vets to learn from their experience.
Thanks to the propaganda, the So-viet vets developed the problems that stemmed from a prolonged and hope-less war. Now they strongly identify with their American counterparts. Some Vietnam vets have recently visited the Soviet Union to share their experiences and tell the Soviets what to expect. Just as

E That experi-ence mirrors what American vets found

American soldiers found indifference when they returned home, so are the Soviet soldiers becoming a lost generation of disillusioned and embittered young men. Some are turning to drugs and alcohol. Their complaints sound hauntingly similar to those of American Vietnam-era vets. One disabled Soviet vet, a double amputee who had stepped on a land mine, had to visit 10 different offices before he could get the paperwork that verified his injury. He complained about the terrible artificial legs he had been given that made what was left of his own legs bleed. The doctor responded, "So what? I didn't tell you to go to war." The Kremlin refuses to divulge the number of men who served the Soviet army during the 10-year Afghan conflict. Our intelligence sources estimate it at about 1 million. Some 15,000 were killed and another 25,000

Despite such losses and the suffering that continues to plague the vets, they get little support from older veterans who served in World War II. That experience mirrors what American vets found when they faced their older counterparts who remembered war as a more noble experience.

One veteran of what the Soviets call "the great patriotic war against German fascism," recently wrote to a Soviet newspaper. He complained about special privileges the vets of the Afghan conflict were getting. He called them "Afghantsi," and questioned why they deserved priority for scarce housing.

In 1974, the United States established minimum quality standards for the water that flows down the Colorado to Mexico. Massive irrigation projects along the river had increased the sait content to the point that the river water was no longer usable by the time it reached Mexico.

As part of the project, the Bureau of Reclamation was to build a massive desalinization plant near Yuma, Ariz. That project is still under construction. The bureau also is supposed to add smaller plants in the Upper Colorado River Basin. But an audit of the project recently concluded that there are no guarantees that the desalinization project will work at various times of the year and still provide enough water for irrigation downstream. Even worse, the cost of removing sait from the water has quadrupled over the original projections.

I want to thank everyone at Central Florida Regional Hospital for the loving care I received after being admitted on Oct. 26.

I did not know the shape I was in and had a very had time with cancer and my right kidney. The doctors explained everything in detail. How many doctors take the time to do that?

I would like to commend Drs. Acciols. Hussan, Johnson Jr. and Abraham of the CFRH staff. When they saw the shape I was in they started working on me right away.

I also want to say of the head nurse, staff nurses, CNA nurses and even the cleaning ladies that they were all so beutiful. They made me feel like royalty.

Merchant seamen sought

Forty four years after World War II, the merchant seamen who carred war supplies to the armed forces through hazardous submarine infested waters, and also manned the ship's guns, were finally granted Veterans Status by the Department of Defense.

It is interesting to note that their death rate was similar to that of the United States Marine Corps.

The problem is this time is: there is no list of surviving scafarers anywhere.

May I ask for your help to find som of these men by running a small notice in your newspaper headlined, "Searching For Merchant Seamen of WWII".

The story should indicate that they have been granted Veterans Status by the D.O.D. because of a campaign by the ombat Merchant Mariners WWII and that benefits await them.

Time of thanksgiving, miracles

If there is one thing that has been clearly evident since my return to Central Florida it has been the generosity of the inhabitants. Shakespeare expressed it thusly: "The quality of mercy is not strained; it droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven. Upon the place beneath: It is twice blest; it blesseth him that gives and him that takes."

The most celebrated holidays in our culture are imminent and many residents culture are imminent and many residents are busily preparing to share their time and material blessings. Whether it is the Salvation Army preparing to feed two hundred people at Thankagiving, the Tri-County Boy Scouts collecting tons of food, or the members of Kappa Sigma Omega Chapter. Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc. making preparations for luncheon for one hundred mature citizens. The central message each of these groups cappage is message each of these groups espouse is caring and concern for others.

Thanksgiving is something children should be taught from early childhood. Americans, probably more than any other people on this planet should give thanks for our country, our freedom and the multiple blessings that are ours.

We give thanks with the full knowledge that we still have many human problems in this country that need resolution. Among them are homelessness, adequate income for those at the poverty level, medical care for those at the poverty level, memcal care for all of our people. My faith that these human needs will be addressed was rekindled by the miracle that accured in Berlin. If the wall that divided the City of Berlin could come tumbling down, then other miracles can also take place.

One of the miracles hoped for at this time of thanksgiving is a return to family stability. Fidelity in marriage and con-sistency in child rearing should be the number one priorty of parents. Addi-tionally, youth should be continually edu-cated about the responsibilities of marriage out the responsibilities of marriage and parenting.

Another miracle hoped for is that none of our mature citizens are forced to live their lives in quiet desperation. Inflation and escalating cast of essentials like medication, food and clothing when contracted with a fixed income create management problems. Our mature citizens should be able to live their lives in quiet dignity, secure in their conviction that no matter how long they live they will be able to meet their needs.

Miracles are possible if we insist that elected officials address the human needs of the people in this land. That the dominant theme is government be an abandonment of self interest and greed, as evidenced by the HUD scandal, and a reaffirmed commitment of serving all of the people.

E. Germany also on verge of opportunity

PATRICIA KOGA

EAST BERLIN - Despite the decision of the ruling Socialist Unity Party, the formal title of the communists, to open up travel to the West and breach the Berlin Wall, it may no longer control events, either within its own ranks or overall on the political stage.

After the purge of many veteran hard-liners from the Polituro. rebellion has swept the party rank and file, pushing out many local party bosses and even reportedly leading to the suicides of three.

The genuine reformers pushing for change in the politi-cal system have yet to emerge from the shadows within the party, despite leader Egon Krenz's promise of "free, general and secret" elections.

On the contrary, the party leadership has seemed confident that it can hold onto power. At a news conference Thursday, East Berlin party leader Guenter was "theoretically possible" to lose in free elections, the party rejects "the suicidal notion that it could be swept from the political stage."

Yet four smaller parties in the parliament. The remaining par-Volkskammer, the East German liamentary seats are controlled parliament, have the potential to do just that, especially if they could work with the newly legalized opposition umbrella group, New Forum.

They are the Christian Demo-cratic Union with 130,000 members, the Liberal Democratic Party and National Democratic Party with 100,000 members each and the Democratic Farmers' Party with 110,000 mem-

The political events of the past few days have focused new attention on the rubberstamp Volkskammer, which was to meet Monday to vote on the confirmation of new Prime Minister-designate Hans Modrow, a moderate who is probably the most popular communist leader in East Germany.

The parties until now have been pliable partners of the ruling communists, but together Schabowski allowed that while it thay have sufficient voting strength to deprive them of absolute control.

The four parties control 208

by communist-run organizations such as trade unions and the communist youth league. In fact the most prominent leader among the smaller parties, Manfred Gerlach, is be-ing rumored as likely to take over the presidency of the Parliament from Horst Sindermann, who was ousted from the Politburo.

This could create the leverage needed to step into the power vacuum left by the embattled communist party leadership.

If that sounds unlikely, the precedent is fresh and close at hand with the Warsaw Pact alliance.

Only six months ago, the independent Solidarity movement in Poland was illegal. Now it leads the government, the first non-communist government in the East Bloc since the end of World War II.

This rapid turnaround was due mainly to the decision of two minor political parties — the Peasants and the Democrats to abandon their traditional alliance with the Polish Communist seats and the communists only Party and join a coalition with 127 seats in the 500-seat Solidarity proposed by its leader

Granted, the Solidarity opposition commands much wider support in Poland than the minor parties or even the opposition New Forum can claim in East Germany. Also any at-tempt at redrawing the politial map in East Germany must also consider the yearning for order and stability burned into the national consciousness features not nearly as prominent among the flesty Poles.

It took Solidarity eight long years from the imposition of martial law in December 1981 until April 1989 to regain its legal status. It took New Forum. which emerged as an opposition group only a few months ago. just 46 days.

It was banned Sept. 22 and legalized last Tuesday.

The massive illegal demonstrations sponsored by New Forum during that period in Leipzig. Dresden and other major and smaller cities across the land are a clear sign that the opposition will support reform if only someone will take the stage and work for them.

Rebels raise fear of right-wing backlash

By DAMIEL ALDER

LVADOR. El Salvador - The outbreak of full-scale warfare in the Salvadoran capital has raised doubts about the survival of leftist political leaders and the Central American country's fragile democratic system.

Some fear that the 6-day-old rebel offensive on the capital could unleash a severe backlash by the country's radical right, raising the specter of a bloodbath among leaders of the leftist political opposition, labor unions and popular organizations.

Such a reaction would reflect unfavorably on the right-wing government of President Alfredo Cristiani, whose Nationalist Republican Alliance Party has been accused of having ties to right-wing death squads.

There is obviously going to be a reaction" to the rebel offensive, a Western diplomat said. "The question is whether the army and the government will be able to control themselves."

He said he had "serious doubts" about whether Cristiani was in full control during the current military crisis. An out-of-control right also would shake the base of El Salvador's fragile constitutional system and endanger the multimillion-dollar effort by the United States to bolster democracy in El Salvador. U.S. aid. now pouring into the small Central American country at a rate of about $1.5 million a day, has amounted to at least $3 billion since El Salvador's civil war broke out in earnest 10 years ago. The U.S. support has been conditioned on improvement in El Salvador's human rights record and slow but steady movement toward a more democratic political system. A bloody campaign against opposition political leaders would close existing avenues for democratic development rather than widen them. Worsening the situation.

the rector of San Salvador's Jesuit university. Ignacio Ellacuria, and seven other people who were in his house at the time were shot to death and mutilated Thursday by unknown assailants. "The horrid killings totally change the situation." a diplomat said. "They raise the specter of right wing groups out of control.

These killings, which struck at the heart of El Salvador's moderate-left intellectual community, intensified fears among the country's leftist politicians. They share the same goal as the rebel Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, but they have confined their struggle against the government to the political arena.

Several leftist political leaders were reported to be hiding in foreign embassies soon after the rebel offensive began.

Even more precarious is the position of members of popular groups that have organized opposition to the government around human rights issues.

Some members of those groups, which the government long has characterized as "front organizations" for the guerrillas, have taken up arms in recent days to join the FMLN in what they thought would be popular uprising.

Cristiani told reporters that the FMLN offensive has 'unmasked" some popular organizations as supporters of armed revolution.

But clearly many of the people who have joined such groups as the nongovernmental Human Rights Commission of El Salvador did so because of concern over the country's less-thandesirable human rights situation rather than as an expression of support for the

Don't be a victim of telephone scams

One of the most popular scams these days is to send a postcard informing a potential victim that he or she has won one of four prizes listed on the card.

One prize is always a car, and one is always worthless. That's the prize you win - AFTER you have called a phone number on the card to "claim" your prize and have been told that to "qualify" for your prize. you must buy some expensive, nearworthless item.

Invariably, the salesperson that you call will try to get you to give your credit card number. If they can do that, the purchase will be charged to your account before you have a chance to think about it.

To further cover themselves, the telemarketers usually won't send your 'prize' right away. It may be months before you see it. That way, you don't find out that your "prize" is worthless until it's way too ate to rescind the credit card charges. These scams result in thousands of people being bilked each month; telemarketing fraud is swindling an estimated $1 billion a year from its victims. At first glance, it would seem like an easy thing to stop: When the first victims report the scam, the Federal Trade Commission or the state Attorney General could clamp down and nip it in the

But for a variety of reasons, that isn't happening often enough. Television preacher Jim Bakker got 45 years in prison and

If prosecuted successfully, he usually will get a fine of only a few thousand dollars. be enjoined from doing such a thing again. and perhaps be made to pay restitution to those consumers who have complained (many never do).

Why no stiffer punishment? Attorney Mark Flanegain of the Missouri Attorney General's office tells me that in Missouri the harshest fine a fraudulent telemarketer can receive is five years in prison and a fine amounting to twice the offender's gain (up to $20,000). But the Attorney General's office is more likely to file a civil suit than criminal, he says, because wronged consumers have a better chance of getting restitution than if they file criminal charges.

Then there's the problem of finding the culprit behind the scam. Another reason these crooks don't send the worthless prize very quickly is to give themselves time to pull up stakes and get out of Dodge before the dogs sniff them out.

Craig Brightup, congressional liaison for the Federal Trade Commission, tells me the FTC is hindered by its inability to (1) sue multiple defenders in one court, and (2) seize physical evidence (instead of just paperwork) from suspected criminals. I had a hard time comprehending what he was telling me: that the agency charged with protecting us from unlawful trade practices couldn't just go in and clean the place out.

A bill currently in the Senate, sponsored by Sen. John McCain. R-Ariz., would give the agency those powers. It's still in committee, and the Senate has yet to hold hearings on it. Meanwhile, hundreds of thousands of people this year will receive postcards telling them they are "grand prize winners." They will be getting out their credit cards and reading the numbers over the phone to crooks.

When televangelist Austin Miles quit the PTL Club, he said. "Little old ladies and pensioners are eating cat food and buying second-hand clothes ... to have money to send to PTL." Little old ladies and pensioners are also losing as much money to telemarketers as smooth as Bakker. The only difference is that they do their bilking by phone.

Police here, he said, are in effect "guarding" locations identified as drug hotspots, and causing dealers to move elsewhere. Harriett said he would like to see this more effective police action move the drug trade out of the county, and then eventually out of the

This account of the Berlin Wall and its profound human impact on East-West rela-tions and the German people could not have in East Germany, and the author offered no forechilt that such momentum developments were at hand. Even so, Peter Wyden's history of the wall and its devastating effect on the lives of thousands of Germans is a fitting complement to the surge of democratic spirit that now sweeps through Eastern Europe.

"The Wall" is composed of a series of episodes related only in that they occurred because of the wall. But Wyden skillfully bridges the gaps with a narrative that presents a comprehensive history of the barrier that was built in 1981 to prevent the cream of the East German population from defecting to the Wyden's extensive interviews of top-rung government officials ranging from the administration of John Kennedy to those in both Germanys give an incisive view of the wall's role in East-West confrontations.

But most of all. Wyden's story is about people and how their lives were crushed by the wall. He weaves his history around a young East German couple, Ota and Barbel Grubel and their struggle to get to the West. In telling the Grubel's story. Wydner brings into focus the machinations of the industry spawned by the wall: the professional border crossers, the tunnel diggers, and the agents. official and unofficial, who schemed for legal

Michey Spillane first introduced readers to Mike Hammer, that no-nonsense private eye who packs a .45 he calls Betsy, in 1947. Hammer went about solving crimes and blowing away the bad guys until 1970, always aided by his secretary Velda and his police pal

Well, it's 19 years later and of Mike hasn't changed a bit or slowed down one step. Showing up for an appointment at his office on a Saturday morning, he finds Veida knocked unconscious and a strange man sitting in his chair, with a few dozen knife slashes in his body, all of his fingertips amputated at the first knuckle and a cryptic message: "You die for killing me." It's enough to make even the hard-boiled Hammer wince and it's enough to set in motion one of his most puzzling cases

The trail leads to a mysterious tool box, a drug ring, the CIA, the FBI, the district attorney's office and a couple of ravishing women, of course - what would Hammer novels be without all those gorgeous dames? Savvy readers might be able to figure out the murderer's identity long before the end, but no complete cessation of activity. Things were very. The traffic has since rebounded. "It is getting back to where it was," Karonis said. However, the Bahamas have med quiet, while activity has picked up in the vicinity of Puerto Rico.

"(Last) week alone, we have had three smaller interdictions where we were picking up smaller bales of cocaine that were apparently airdrops, all in the vicinity of Culebra and the Virgin Islands," Karonis said. "I don't think it is exclusivly one thing. What we are seeing right now is that the hot bed of activity for amuggling is over in that area now, not in the mas or over in western Karonis said the apparent shift may reflect the success of U.S. interdiction efforts in the as, or the effects of Hurricane Hugo. Hugo roared through the Caribbean in mid-September, causing extensive damage on Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. "Within several days of Hurricane Hugo hitting, we noticed activity starting around the islands of Culebra, Vieques.

Puerto Rico and in the vicinity of the Virgin Islands," Karonis said. "They (smugglers) might have presumed, because of what Hugo did, the forces over there might have been preoccupied."

Others discounted that idea, seize." he said. however.

"The hurricane disrupted us. but it also disrupted the means of supporting illegal trafficking," said Tim Wagner, acting special agent, in charge of the U.S. Customs Service for south Plorida. "If fuel was short for us down there, it was short for the bad guys, too." Wagner said traffickers apparently shifted their business because Tederal agents got better at finding them in the Bahamas.

"It is sort of a cat and mouse game, interdiction. As soon as the pressure gets unbearable in one area, they're going to shift to another area," he said.

Wagner said the eastern Caribbean appears to be just one of the areas currently targeted by

"I think it has shifted to alot of different areas. They are using more of a shotgun approach now. We are seeing a lot of interdiction in different areas" including the Gulf states and Mexico, he said. Nevertheless. Wagner said he believes the Colombian crackdown continues to affect overall trafficking activity.

"From my perspective in south Florids, it has had quite an effect, and I don't know that the total volume is back up to where it was prior to the crackdown," he said. "I would say we are still below that.

Pinder, 49, allegedly purchased hundreds of kilograms of cocaine in the Bahamas in May 1966 and stored it in his home at Frenchman's Landing in Palm Beach Gardens.

Holidays

of holiday blues and suggestions on how to keep from being trapped in a slump during what should be a happy time of year.

For example, Warren Farrell, the author of "Why Men Are the Way They Are," writes that holiday depression may be triggered by stimuli such as Christmas songs that make people think of traditions that can no longer be repeated.

"Holiday blues haunt us because the ritual etches itself on our unconscious mind," he says. "When something is left out like a cherished family member, it feels like looking at a puzzie with a piece missing. "The piece that is missing haunts us to such a degree it often prevents us from enjoying the puzzle."

Farrell suggests starting at least one new ritual that fits current and most likely future circumstances. He mays a traditions, like getting friends and children together to pull taffy or make tamales, are easier to repeat year after year.

Both Farrell and Peter McWilliams, also quoted in the booklet, suggest one of the best ways to cope with the holiday season is to realistically expect orme amount of depression.

"Treat the holidays like news of a new flu: build up your immune system, plan a counter offensive," Farrell says.

Dr. Barbara De Angelis, a therapiat and the executive director of the Los Angeles Personal Growth Center, says overindulging may be a season, especially if physiological cause of de- without a loved one.

"The more alcohol, sugar and heavy food you ingest, the more atrain you produce on your body and the higher your chances of feeling depressed, fatigued and Stewart says.

tting a bad case of the holiday use." Dr Angelia says.
"Enjoy with moderation, but remember that a treat ion't a treat if you feel til or dull after eating it," she says.

While the booklet offers many ideas that include family or friends, it also validates the idea of time spent alone during the holidays. A solo walk in the woods or at the beach can be as important as having friends over to decorate a Christmas tree.

But Richard Stewart, international president of Parents Without Partners, a support group for single parents, en-courages seeking the support of friends and family to survive the season, especially if it is the first

Letto jackpot new $21 million

TALLAHASSEE - No one picked all six winning numbers in this week's Florida Lotto drawing, so the grand prize jackpot rose to an estimated $21 million, the highest since last April, lottery officials said Sunday.

Because we're starting this week with the highest jackpot estimate we've had since last April, we urge Lotto players to purchase their tickets early and avoid the possibility of long lines," said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul.

With many lottery retailers closed Thursday for Thankagiving, Lotto sales traffic could be much heavier than usual on Friday and

The winning Lotto numbers drawn Saturday night were 4, 7, 11, 26, 39 and 44.

Although no ticket holder could claim the $13 million jackpot, more than 299,000 tickets qualified for smaller prizes.

Paul said 291 tickets matched five numbers to win $3,384.50. She said 16,076 matched four numbers to win $89.50 and 283,338 matched three numbers to win $5.

SANFORD - When Judy Cox arrived at a local convenience store early yesterday, she saw no clerk in the store where she normally aces one — sometimes two — while making a drop-off to the store's newspaper rack.

Although the newspaper carrier routinely to leery when making late night and early morning deliveries, she said nothing in the Circle K store at 1806 West First St., gave her a strange sense about what she might find there.

But before leaving the store, Cox peeked over the counter where she found Herbert Malcomb Allen, 48. a store employee, face down on the OVIEDO - Last week the Seminote County School Board approved plans to build 27 new schools, including 20 elementary schools, over the next eight years. The cost of the project could total more than a half a billion dollars.

But some schools need the help iday, Stenatrom Elementa was completed in January of this year and is already bursting at the seams. With a recommended student capacity of 769 students, the school currently houses 1150 students, according to principal Norma Ragadale.

"We have 12 portable classrooms on our campus." Ragsdale re-ported. "And it will probably get worse before it gets better."

Stenstrom Elementary is built on a 15 acre site with six permanent buildings, including classrooms and administrative facilities. There is, according to Ragsdale, only a limited amount of space where portables can be placed on the campus.

"By that time our school, Lawton Elementary and the new school will probably all be way over capacity." Ragadale predicted. Lawton Elementary is located at 151 Graham

As new housing developments are constructed in her school's zone, new students are registered; at Stenstrom almost every day, Ragadale said. "We have to accept them," she said. "We can't keep them from coming."

she said. "we will have no choice but to go to double sessions.

Ragsdale predicts that if the bond issue fails, the entire district will be forced into double sessions. "Every school will have to go that route. Without the funds to build new schools, there will not be any other

House's construction date remains a mystery to owners

By LAURA L. BULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Jim and Charlene Valerino know little history about their Victorian home at 717 Park

The home began appearing on fire insurance charts in 1910, but Charlene Valerino said her doubts concerning the building date are based on the gas piping found in the home during restoration.

Because the Montezuma Hotel on Magnolia Avenue advertised electricity in 1895, Valerino believes her home would not have been built 15 years later without electrical wiring. But the couple has few clues to go by.

The history the Valerinos do know about their home will be shared next month during the Sanford Historic Trust tour of homes. Seven other homes will be featured on the tour.

The Valerinos have spent more than $43,000 restoring the home since they moved there from "a run-of-the-mill neighborhood" in Altamonte Springs three years ago, Valerino said.

When the couple purchased the home, its exterior was purple and what Jim Valerino's parents called See Home, Page 5A

Cox, local residents, city officials and law enforcement say the proposed ordinance under consideration may have prevented the incident. The ordinance is scheduled for first reading Nov. 27.

The city of Gainesville, the first municipality to adopt the convenience store regulations, was compelled to adopt the ordinance after a similar incident, Harriett said.

Mobil Service owner and vice president of Service Station Dealers of Florida, said, "Why before we take action. What is one life worth?"

Chang's store hours are set at 6 a.m. to midnight by the Mobil corporation, he said. Otherwise, he said, his employees would not work those hours.

"It is lonely, it is haunting and It is a fearful situation for anyone who has respect for their own life," Chang said.

City Commissioner Lon Howell, who first called for the ordinance two months ago, said this morning. "If you had had two people in there, you may have had a victim and a witness."

"I am sorry we didn't bring it up sooner. I just hope that the convenience store people don't fight us now." Howell said.

The Senate Five

The malodor from the savings and loss scandal is becoming more pungent with each passing week. And much of it is emanating from the offices of the five senators who interceded with federal regulators on behalf of a major compaign contributor. Charles Hi Keating Jr.

Mr. Keating is the target of a $1.1 billion civil suit filed by the federal government. The suit accuses him of fraud and racheteering in siphoning funds from his failed Lincoln Savings & Loan Association in Irvine, California. According to federal investigators. Mr. Keating and members of his family received $55 aution to mission for his family received $55 aution to mission. Lincoln's colleges, the largest thrift failure in history, could cost the government more than $2 billion.

Federal bank examiners in San Francisco had reason to believe something was seriously wrong with Lincoln as early as 1966. Unfortunately, action on their recommendation for a fraud investigation and federal seizure of the troubled institution was delayed for more than two years. During that time, Mr. Keating is alleged to have milked the S&L of millions of dollars.

The delay was due chiefly to political muscle provided by the Senate Five. On April muscle provided by the Senate Five. On April 2, 1967, Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., John Glenn, D-Ohio, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and John McCain, R-Ariz., summoned Edwin Gray, then-chairman of he Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and complained that his examiners were harassing Lincoln. When the four were house their complaints to the

the Senate Banking Committee.

The 1846 senators subsequently were able to presuage. Mr. Gray's successor. M. Danny Wall, to take the examiners off the case and conduct the inquiry from Washington. At that point, Mr. Wall rejected a recommendation point, Mr. Wall rejected a recommendation from his own enforcement supervisor that the S&L be seized by the government. Instead, he conducted private negotiations with Lincoln executives for more than a year. All the while, the thrift was furching toward insolvency.

Despite his cash-flow problems, Mr. Keating took care of his political friends. In 1986, the conservative Arizona Republican donated $85,000 to the California Democratic Party's get-out-the-vote campaign, which helped Sen. Cranston win a close re-election race. Last year, Sen. Cranston solicited $850,000 from year, Sen. Cranston solicited $850,000 from Mr. Keating for three ostensibly non-partisan voting groups.

Although Sen. Cranston now concedes his actions were polically "stupid," he denies any criminal wrongdoing. Darry Sragow, his 1986 campaign manager, says the senator used the Keating money to further his political interests rather than his financial interests - a classic distinction without a difference.

Mr. Keating's financial dealings are the subject of a major congressional investiga-tion, but the Senate Ethics Committee is dragging its feet on probing the activities of the Senate Five. The first action the committee should take is to appoint an independent counsel to investigate whether the senators intervened improperly on Mr. Keating's behalf in exchange for large campaign contributions.

The taxpayers could fork over as much as $150 billion during the next 10 years to salvage Lincoln and other defunct savings

That unpredictability has led to an electoral schizophrenia with Americans choosing Republican presidents but voting for Democratic governors and legislatures. In an era of Puritan politics, that unpredictability may be the reason why Sue Myrick, the conservative Republican mayor of Charlotte, N.C., survived charges of marital infidelity and still won re-election. ### Business schools train for ethics

DENVER - Graduate students seeking a master's degree in business administration from the University of Denver now receive far more than the traditional instruction in marketing, management, finance and account-

Those MBA candidates also get what Denver business executive Bill Daniels characterizes as "a cram course in human decency" - an education in everything from ethical behavior and social values to proper manners and communications skills.

Daniels, a multimillionaire cable television pioneer, is paying for much of the innovative program. One year ago, he gave the university $10 million to finance a radical overhaul of its MBA curriculum.

After months of study and preparation, the university instituted many of the changes when students returned to the campus this autumn. "This isn't just a matter of sticking an ethics course into the curriculum," says Professor Bruce Hutton. "We're talking about integrating values ... into everything we teach.

MBA programs at universities throughout the country gained considerable notoriety during the 1980s as training grounds for amoral, greedy and ruthless young men and women who had little concern for others as they drove to enrich and advance themselves.

Now. however, the University of Denver is not alone in its determination to remedy the situation. Among other universities drastically overhauling their MBA programs to place unprecedented emphasis on personal integrity and professional conduct:

Harvard University's business school launched the trend last year by requiring all entering MBA students to take a three-week course in business ethics. (In 1987, the school was given $23 million by John S.R. Shad, a former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, to support ethics

But if Elliot Kline, dean of the Denver business school, is correct, much more needs to be done elsewhere. According to him, fewer than 10 percent of all the nation's business schools currently require their students to sign up for an ethics course.

Bakker says donations will ease his prison blues

ORLANDO - Jim Bakker. serving a 45-year sentence for defracting his television con-projection out of millions of delices, said in a letter to his followers that his troubles could be eased if they sent money to his wife, Tamony Paye.

In the three-page, single-spaced, typewritten letter, maker also said he hopes to resume his work on the PTL Ministry's Heritage USA retreat in Fort Mill. S.C., the center of-his fraudulent fund-raising activ-ities that he said was interrupted by the devil, the news media and the federal government.

"My dream, even now, continues for Heritage USA and the lifetime members." Bakker said of his adherents who typically paid $1,000 in exchange for three nights' lodging a year for life at the retreat — accom-modations that PTL could not meet.

But knowing he is in the Lord's hands makes my happy. Because now I can say he has the best babysitter there is.

For the ones that loved him. May they feel the same because I assure you he is now safe and he will never hurt again. Love, his mommy

Adcox killed in NASCAR crash

HAMPTON, Ga. — Veteran stock-car driver Grant Adcox died Sunday of massive head and chest injuries he received in a one-car crash at Atlanta International Raceway during the Atlanta Journal 500. He was 39.

Addox crashed on lap 202 of the 328-lap event, when his Oldsmobile slammed into the second-turn wall, caught fire as it slid down the track and then hit the inside wall. Rescuers had to cut the top off the car in order to remove the 5-foot-9, 170-pound driver.

Adoox was rushed to the infield care center before being transported by helicopter to Atlanta's Georgia Baptist Hospital. The driver was pronounced dead at Baptist Manufact at 4:15

Success is contagious. When one member of a team performs well. It has a positive effect of the rest of the team.

On Saturday morning at the Orlando Interna-tional Aquatic Center, Jennifer Moon and Sandra Spiller gave the Lake Brantley girls swim team a big boost that carried the Patriots all the way to a second consecutive Class 4A team state champi-

The Patriots outdistanced second place Winter Park by an awe-inspiring 57 points. At last week's district meet. Lake Brantley defeated Winter Park by 36 points.

"It started with first individual meet in the morning." said Lake Brantley coach Clary Parnell. "In a meet like this, you have to start out on the right foot. That gets everyone in right "In the preliminaries of the 200 freestyle. Jennifer Moon and Sandra Spiller, who I did not expect to place in finals, both made finals. They swam just fantasitic swims. That could have been a weak event for us and it turned into a solid event for us. Everybody got excited and we just placed everybody." By the end of the meet. Lake Brantley had at least one swimmer place in the top eight in nine of the 11 different events. On four different occasions, there were two or more Patriots among the top eight.

Jobee Lake led, the way with a pair of individual championships, winning the 50 and 100 freestyle while swimming a leg on the Patriots' second place 400 freestyle relay team.

Jodt Schwab and Ryann Pauley both won one event and placed in another. Schwab won the 100 backstroke and was third in the 100 butterfly. Pauley took first in the 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke.

Moon and Spiller, the two that started things off, as well as Beth Rosenbluth all placed in two events. Moon was seventh in the 200 freestyle and third in the 100 backstroke. Spiller placed eighth in the 200 freestyle and eighth in the 100 freestyle while Rosenbluth grabbed sixth in the 100 butterfly and fifth in the 100 backstroke.

Schwab and Rosenbluth combined with Dani Ohnsman and Cara Duncan on the winning 200 medley relay team.

"We did better, a lot better, than I thought we would," said Parnell. "When you get into a chance to win a meet like that, you start thinking of what the worst-case scenario might be and what you have to do for the win.

Pioneers end Raider win streak

FT. PIERCE - Tom Morgan hit two free throws with 40 seconds left to play as Indian River Community ge ended Seminole Community College's six-game win streak 74-71 in men's basketball action Saturday night.

The loss dropped the Raiders to 6-1 on the season. They will now return home to take on the Falcons of Florida College Tuesday night in a men/women doubleheader. The women play at 5:30 and the men will play at 7:30 p.m. at the Health and Physical Education Facility on the SCC campus.

The Pioneers improved their record to 3-0. J.J. Taylor and Lorenzo Lockett combined for 30 second half points as Indian River overcame a 35-30 Seminole halftime lead. Taylor scored 18 of his game high 24 points in the final 20 minutes while the 6-9 Lockett, who played at the University of Central Florida last year, scored 12 of his 20.

Taylor bit four three-public Beld goal attempts in the second half and was 6 of 9 for the game. Lockett was deadly from the foul line as he made 8 of 9 free throw attempts. He was also a force inside as he grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds and blocked three shots. The Raiders gained their halftime advantage when they went on a 10-0 spurt midway through the first half. The score was tied at 14-14 when SCC started its run behind guards Tony De Jesus, Mike Gaskill and T.J. Scaletta. Seminole led by as many as 11 points in the first half but two long three pointers by Taylor in the last minute closed the gap to five at the De Jesus led the SCC first half scoring with nine points. Gaskill and forward Patrick Shaw had six points each and Scaletta added four. But the Raiders were plagued with foul trouble and turnovers in the first half as starters De Jesus. Stephen Blackmon, Rishard Brown and Eric Hylton, plus Shaw all had to sit out part of the first half with two fouls while the Pioneers forced 15 turnovers.

The second half started well for SCC as De Jesus scored on an inbounds play to put the Raiders up 37-30. But Indian River scored the next 14 points to go ahead 44-37 with 16 minutes to play.

Bishop Moore holds off Lake Brantley

From staff reports

ORLANDO - Goalkeeper Erin Sutherland helped the Bishop Moore Hornets withstand a late Lake Brantley rally Saturday night and post a 2-1 in girls soccer

Now 2-0, the Hornets will return to action tonight when they host the Lyman Greyhounds. Lake Brantley fell to 1-1.

Erin kept us out of a tie and possibly a loss," said Bishop Moore coach Larry Betsinger. "She played an outstanding game.

"I was putting in some different combinations in the second half because I wanted to see what different people would do under the pressure of a good team like

Lake Brantley. And I think that disrupted ouor flow. Lake Brantley reall caught on in the second half and took it to us.

Bishop Moore scored both its goals in the opening 20 minutes of the first half. At 14:10, Stephanie Gringer took a centering pass from Amy Geltz and hit the back of the net to give the Hornets a 1-0 lead. Jennifer Smith also had an assist on the goal.

Then, about four minutes later, Bishop Moore took a corner kick. During the ensuing scramble in front of the Lake Brantley goal, a Patriot player was called for a hand ball. Geltz converted the penalty kick for a 2-0 Hornet advantage.

But the Patriots kept up the pressure, outshooting Gee Seccer, Page 2B

'Prayer' lifts Miami

United Press International

IRVING, Texas - A lightning-bolt kind of play that can change the course of a season vaulted the Miami Dolphins into a share of the lead in the AFC East Sunday.

Needing a spark to put life in a sluggish offense. Dan Marino hit Andre Brown with a 48-yard "Hail Mary" pass on the final play of the first half that helped rally the Dolphins to a 17-14 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

"Obviously, Andre's touchdown gave us a lift," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "He has great leaping ability, and he showed it on that play. "We were needing some help. And we got more help today than we expected to get.' That extra help came from the New England Patriots, who knocked off the Buffalo Bills, 33-24. Miami and Buffalo are now tied for the AFC East lead with 7-4 records.

Dallas, meanwhile, lost for the ninth time in 10 games, coming close to victory for the second straight week only to allow a big play at the wrong time. "We've come a long way," said Dallas Coach Jimmy Johnson. "We are at the point where one or two plays are costing us. That is little consolation, I guess, but we are getting in position to win.

Donald Igwebulke's 28-yard field goal with no time left gave the Tampa Bay Buccaneers a 32-31 win over the Chicago Bears on Sunday.

Iggy boots Bears

United Press International

CHICAGO - Tampa Bay coach Ray Perkins is hoping his club learned a lesson in Sunday's thrilling 32-31 triumph over the Chicago Bears. while his counterpart, Mike Ditka took the loss hard.

What looked like a miraculous come from behind Chicago triumph, led by quarterback Mike Tomczak, went for naught when Donald Igwebuike kicked a 28-yard field goal with no time remaining for the win.

The game saw Chicago's Kevin Butler tied the NFL record for 23 consecutive field goals set by Mark Moseley in 1981-82.

Tomczak fired three TD passes in the fourth quarter, the last giving the Bears a 31-29 lead with 1:46 left to play.

But behind Vinny Testaverde, the Bucs drove from their 34 to the Bears 10 to set up the winning kick with two seconds left to play. Testaverde, who completed 19 of 42 passes for 288 yards, hit four of five on the last drive, the big one to Mark Carrier for 31 yards to the Bears From there the Bucs ran the ball to set up the winning kick.

"I never had any doubt we'd win," said Testaverde.

team to replace her on the field.

And if that wasn't bad enough, the call also came in the Lyman penalty area and Orange Park was awarded a penalty kick, which it converted for the game's only score.

Rather than debate the call. Lyman coach Laura Roundtree preferred to praise her girls for the way they responded to the circumstances. "The girls played really well." she said. "We even had two opportunities when we were a man-

THE PERSON NAMED IN Notes, Cowboys snag wins

Herald correspondent

The Seminoles won their second game of the season and the Cowboys again defeated a combination team in Sanford Recreation Department Flag Football League action at Chase Park Saturday morning.

The Seminoles (2-4) gained more yardage than the Gators (4-2) in overtime to post a 6-0 win in the Minor division lages 7-9). To decide ties, each gets team five plays from the 50-yard line. The team that moves the ball the furthest wins. The Seminoles had a chance to score on their opening possession when Brett Witte took the opening kickoff and ran the ball back 20 yards to the Gator 20. Adam Dryden ran to the 12, but a bad snap, a 10-yard penalty and an incomplete pass ended the threat.

Neither team was able to do much the rest of the half and the score remained 0-0. The Seminoles had 20 yards of total offense in the first half as Dryden ran for 13 yards. Joshua Brulport four and Witte three. The Gators eight yards of offense in the half came on a pass from Jim Slaughter to Alan Smith.

The Seminoles again had the best chance to score in the second half. Witte's run for 10 yards was offset by a pair of bad handoffs and a loss. But on fifth down. Witte ran for 15 yards before Jason Lawrence made the touchdown-saving grab of the flag and end the threat.

Slaughter had runs of 10 and five yards to get the ball into Seminole territory but the clock ran out, forcing overtime.

Be Our Guest!

The Seminoles won the coin flip and ran its plays first. A fumbled handoff lost eight yards before Witte gained six. A 10yard penalty, a Brulport 1-yard run and a bad snap made it fifth down. But Witte ran for 20 yards to put the ball in Gator territory.

Slaughter lost three yards, but then ran for 20 to put the ball on the 29-yard line. That gave the Gators two plays to move the ball a vard and gain the victory. But the Seminole defense rose to the occasion and caused 2 and 6-yard losses to end the game. In the Major division (10-12).

the Cowboys gained a 6-0 victory over a team made up of Ram and Bulldog players. The Cowboys threatened to score on their opening drive when Cedrick Williams returned the opening kickoff 20 yards. and Robert Dickerson passed to Williams and Bobby Fisher for 25 and 10 yards, respectively. But a fourth down pass fell incomplete and Dickerson was stopped short of the goal after a 3-yard run.

After the Bulldog-Rams were unable to move the ball, the Cowboys regained possession and moved in to score the only touchdown of the game. Dickerson ran for 10 and passed to Williams for five. A bad snap and a five-yard Fisher run made it fifth and goal from the eight. Dickerson then ran around left end for the only score of the contest.

The second half was a defensive battle. Mike Ashly passing to Vernard Smith was the only offense the B-R team could muster. Ashly completed three passes to Smith for 5, 5 and 30 yards. The only offense for the Cowboys were a 2-yard run by Fisher and four runs by Dickerson that totaled 14 yards.

While there were county team champions in the boys' competition, there were three individual winners. For starters. Lake Howell's John Paulovich scored a narrow victory to capture the state crown in diving. Last year, Paulovich was second in the event.

Dave Bandy led Lyman to a sixth-place team finish, the highest of any county school. Bandy was the state champ in the 500 freestyle and placed third in the 200 freestyle. John Jones grabbed sixth in the 50 freestyle and Kevin Scott finished eighth in the 500 freestyle while the Greyhounds' 400 freestyle relay came in third.

Lake Mary placed 13th in the standings behind Brad Bridgewater's win in the 100 backstroke and second place showing in the 200 freestyle. The Rams' Chris Snively was fifth in the 50 freestyle and 10th in the 100 freestyle.

For Bridgewater, who made times to be considered for All-American status by Scholastic Swimming in both events, also managed to post a Senior National qualifying time in the backstroke. In the 200 freestyle, all Bridgewater could do was watch Winter Park's Mark Dieffenthaller set a state record.

"Diefenthaller was not to be beaten," said Lake Mary coach Sandy Brown. "Brad swam the best time he ever swum of his young life and couldn't catch him. It was also Brad's best time ever in the 100 backstroke. He missed the state record by .8 of a

In Friday's Class 3A state meet, Clasy Burgess completed her prep swimming career at Seminole High School by placing 11th in the 100 butterfly (finishing in 1:01.19) and 16th in the 100 freestyle (56.71). "She had to swim back-to-

I pray my daughter realizes that it was not for lack of love that I gave her up, but because my love was brave and mature enough to let her go when I was but a child myself.

I pray that when she is 18, she will decide to look me up through an adoption search group and we will meet again. The last time I held her tiny hand, she was only 10 days old.

Until then, my thoughts and prayers are with her and her parents.

Many ambulatory eye-surgery centers depend on volume for profit. Therefore, the doctors in these centers may choose to operate sooner. ## Pick diplomats on better basis

The Bush administration's new amremark that insulted his hosts and embar-rased his government. The new Italian navy, declared Peter Secchia, has glass-bottom bosts "so they can see the old Italian navy." Lamentably, the undiplomatic wisecrack was not the last time Mr. Secchia offended the Italians and strained good relations between Washington and Rome.

Like many other of the administration's new ambassadors, Mr. Secchia, a Michigan building-supply executive, is a political appointee with no foreign-policy experience. His prime virtues are that he is a major parton of the Republican Party and a long-time supporter of George Busis.

Of the 87 ambassadors named by the White House this year, 48 are political appointess rather than foreign-service officers. Some, such as James R. Lilley, a Bush Friend who is ambassador to China; and retired Army Gen. Vernon Walters, who is ambassador to West Germany, bring to their pluts a wealth of knowledge and global experience that are invaluable assets. The President's envoy certainly does not have to be a covercertainly does not have to be a career diplomat to be a good ambassador.

It recently was disclosed that the FBI investigated more than 250 Americans who criticized its library-awareness program. Apparently, they searched for evidence that Soviet intelligence stirred up the controversy.

The FBI seemed to suggest there was something sinister about foreigners marching into American libraries and brazenly reading public information.

The librarians had good reason to com-plain. The next time FBI agents visit the library, they would be well-advised to check out a book on the importance of Americans' right to dissent.

But because the abortion dispute already has led to many individual acts of violence and because the ill-will that has poisoned all efforts to mediate the dispute seems to be growing. Americans who do not believe all politics must be framed by the abortion question have reason to be alarmed.

There's no time for nostalgia

BOSTON - On the store shelves there's a brand-new version of Trivial Pursuit: The 1980s Edition. The manufactuers of the game are asking us to remember the Eightles before they are over.

I am not surprised by this. The entire decade has been spent in a state of nostalgia. We, looked back to the Fifties, then to the Sixties and Seventies. The Eighties were bound to be

Indeed, we now have a message from Washington that Americans are supposed to be equally nostalgic, even sentimental, and reluctant to say goodbye to another pair of instant antiques: the Cold War and the Iron Curtain. They are being described as homely old driends, political antimacassars against which to lean our weary heads.

The contrasts are striking. In Berlin, a wall comes apart and streams of exultant Europeans move forward. In the New World, our leaders look backward. The formerly dour Soviets talk openly about new possibilities. The can-do Americans talk fearfully about "Inetability."

At this cusp of the 1980s, when the President appraises these changes, his mouth says yes, but his eyes say no. When the secretary of State talks, it is in negatives: "Let's not jump here...Let's not be pre-mature...We shold not disarm..."

You do not have to be a child of the Fifties to recognize in all this some longing for the Good Old Days. Indeed. Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger expressed it earlier this fall: "For all its risks and uncertainties, the Cold War was characterized by a remarkably stable and predictable set of relations among the great powers."

Stable? Predictable? The Berlin Crisis, the Cuban Missile Crisis? We are all subject to may memories, but the Cold War was not my idea of a high-school football game. Yet this is how we are, in retrospect, supposed to remember the thermonuclear arms race, the backyard shelters, mushroom-cloud nightmares and trillions of dollars thrown down missile silos.

"We had this great stable situation called the threat of annihilitation," anys Pam Solo ironically. The co-director of the institute for Peace and International Security describes the Cold War and deterrence as a culture of violence in which "you believe you can control the behavior of another nation by fear and unpredictability and the threat of destruction."

Most of us alive today grew up in that culture. The Threat divided the world into us and them. The Threat required enormous sacrifices for defense. And if those cold warriors in power seemed blue on Armistice Day it was because The Threat had been the organizing principle of postwar America.

During the most frigid days of the Cold War. the American identity itself was forged by its enemy. To be American meant that you were not something amorphous called un-American. Now, as the Soviet's Georgi Arbatov said this week. "We deprive you so an enemy...This compele you to introduce many changes in traditional political thinking."

If the Cold War is over, what excuse is there for a bulging military budget? If there is no enemy. how could we act in the world? And what does it mean to be American? So It's not just pieces of the Berlin Wall that are shaking loose, that are destablilizing, but the whole elaborate way we view the world. Can we shift from defining stability as a balance of terror to defining stability as a matter of common The language of the Cold War, says Solo, "used words like fear, threat, unpredictability, control. The alternative has words like interdependence, interrelatedness, and mutual vulnerabibility." As Arbatov put it, "If you sneeze, we sneeze as well."

The Threat devided

the world into us

and them.

The risks of change are not all psychological ones. I was not the only one raised on war movies who felt uneasy watching East and West Germans raise their voices in Still, many of us are more comfortable replacing enemies than replacing a structure built on enmity. Many Americans are already viewing Japan as an ememy. It would be ironic if Germany also regained that label.

As for the old Cold War model? This is not some well-tarnished antique to be cherished. it's an obsolete monster and we're well rid of it. What we need now, and quickly, are new models for the postwar world. There is no reason and no time for nostalgia.

East Germany sees Finland as model

HELSINKI, Finland - Once the novelty of a permeable Berlin Wall wears off, East Germans will have to get serious about what kind of government they want and what kind of ties they will maintain with Big Brother, the Soviet Union.

In spite of talk about reunification. East Germans are more likely to look to Finland than West Cermany as a role model. When Soviet lender Mikhaii Gorbachev visited Finland last month, he dodged questions about creating more Finlands in the Eastern Bloc - more countries friendly to Soviets.

The Finns were elated. Never before had a Soviet premier acknowledged anything but Finland's "aspirations for neutrality." In light of developments in Eastern Europe. Corbachev's admission is more than an exercise in semantics.

Finland is a robust, market-driven. Western-style, parliamentary democracy. Conversations with officials and ordinary people on our recent visit here confirmed just how independent the Finna feel they are from the Soviet Union. Instead of capitulation, one finds here a sense of "siau," the Finnish word for "guis." It was guts that sustained them through 60 separate wars with the Soviets — the most recent being World War II.

The Soviet Union invaded Finland in 1939. In the 15-week war that followed, the desperate Finns fought back with homemade gasoline bombs, and called them "Molotov cocktails," after the Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, whom they believed started the war.

In the end, 24,000 Finns died and the Soviets lost more than a million, but the Finns also lost the war and had to cede territory to the Soviet Union. In 1941, Finland joined the Nazis in invading the Finland joined the Naxis in invading the Soviet Union. They lost that fight too, but the Soviets probably realized they could never subjugate the Finns. Finland was never forced to join the Warsaw Pact.

A careful and complicated co-existence was worked out by the legendary Finnish President Urho Kaleva Kekkonen, who served from 1956 to 1981. He kept the Soviets at bay as he built a modern economy and democra-

Finns like to tell a story - probably apocryphal - of Kekkonen fishing with Leonid Brezhnev. Brezhnev suggested that the two countries should drop their borders. Kekkonen replied, "I am too old to govern such a large country." That was how Kekkonen handled the Soviets, at arms length with no fear.

Gorbachev is clearly pleased with Soviet-Finland relations, but he does not want the idea to catch on. He fears other East European countries will shuck the Commu-nist Party leadership that the Finns never Gorbachev also knows, according to U.S. intelligence reports, that Hungary has already sent emissaries to study the Finnish model and that, secretly, some top East German officials are planning a visit soon to learn some lessons from the Finns.

Congress trying to adjourn

WASHINGTON — Congress, desper-ately trying to adjourn so members can get home for Thanskgiving, faced two major hurdles — repeal or major modification of the catastrophic illness insurance program and passage of a deficit-cutting bill.

Fascinations offers full range of services for personal care

From LA to New York City, complete service salons are being opened to allow men and women the availability of any type of beauty service. And now Sanford has its own all-in-one salon: Fascinations. Their list of services goes on and on.

Owners Jerry and Jill Gongwer began their business five years ago with just all natural weight control programs. The programs, which used no drugs, were available in either tablet or injection form and allowed people to lose about four-to-seven pounds a week. Still going strong, the programs offer a free maintainence program to aid you in keeping the weight off.

After a year, they added tanning beds.
Following a great deal of research, they chose the Klafsun Wolfe tanning systems which give the deepest tan in the shortest amount of time. The tanning perms at Fascinations are clean and the tanning bulbs are changed regularly. They offer 30 minute sessions and their most popular price suckage is the $35 monthly tanning plan that allows unlimited daily tanning for a month with no contract to sign.

Two years ago, passive exercise toning tables were added at Fascinations. Passive exercise toning offers a good alternative to exercise by letting the machines do the work of toning and firming your muscles, increasing joint mobility and increasing circulation. The system is recommended by doctors for patients who can't or won't exercise.

In November of 1988. Fascinations moved to their present location next to Little Caesar's pizza in the Sanford Square/Winn-Dixie Marketplace on the corner of 17-92 and 15th Street in Sanford.

Man bitten by raccoon gets rabies

By J. MARK BARK Heroid staff writer

SANFORD — A resident of The Springs development is undergoing treatment for rables following raccoon bite earlier this month, county office confirmed Tuesday.

Pern Drive. The street is in The Springs development near Longwood west of interstate 4.

Dr. Jorge Deju said the man has begun taking a series of five vaccine shots to assure he does not contract the potentially fatal disease. Deju is the director of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services-Seminole County Public Health Unit.

Because the man also suffers from leukemia, he will be required to have samples of his blood tested for up to six months. Deju said there is in information available on the effects of leukemis or its treatment on rables or its treatment.

The man apparently was bitten early in November but did not seek medical attention until shortly before Nov. 16 when it was reported to the health department, said Ron Lefebvre, Seminole County Animal Control official.

Lefebvre said the man told him a raccoon had wondered into his yard from the nearby woods and he "played" with it with his foot. The animal bit the man's foot, then ran back into the woods, Lefebyre said.

All systems go for tonight's space shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL - Rocket crews this morning readied the shuttle Discovery for a spectacular blastoff this evening that was expected to be visible across Central

The exact timne of the launch for the secret military mission is classified, but sources said the giant space freighter was scheduled to flash to life about 7:30 p.m. EST, painting the Thanksgiving-eve sky with a white-hot streak of flame from its 14-story booster rockets.

"We are optimistic and confident we can launch." NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said. Work has gone very smoothly. We're right on time."

It will be the first night shuttle launch since a flight in November 1985 that was visible from North Carolina to Cuba. The weather outlook for launch time Wednesday called for generally favorable conditions, but officials said Tuesday possibly high winds in the launch area could be a factor.

Commander Frederick Gregory. 48, co-pilot John Blaha. 47 - both Air Force colonels - Navy Capt. Manley "Sonny" Carter, 42. Kathryn Thornton, 37, and Story Musgrave, 54, were expected to launch a secret military payload during their seventh orbit, according to Aviation Week & Space

An identical satellite is believed to have been launched in January 1985 during the first military shuttle flight. The Air Force and NASA will no discuss such payloads or reveal and other details about such missions hamper Soviet efforts to learn the nature of U.S. military space flight While NASA managers were timistic about an on-time lifton Wednesday for the seventh post Challenger shuttle flight, officials said Discovery could be launched on Thanksgiving Day, weather permitting, in the event of last-minute problems.

"Obviously the goal is to launch before Thanksgiving day, although a Thanksgiving day launch has not been ruled out," Malone said. "We would like to give as many people off that day as we possibly could if the weather for Friday looked more Bee Shuttle, Page 3A

Lech Walesa is no Polish joke

WASHINGTON — In all that I had read and heard about Lech Waless. I had somehow missed one important fact: he has an irrepressible sense of humor. As the leader of Solidarity toured Washington, he was followed by waves of cheers — and of laughter.

in a closed-door session with members of Congress, fretting about the pay-raise vote they were facing the next day, Walcan offered consolstion. "If it doesn't go through," he said, "come to Poland. It's one place you can afford

Later, at a public question-answer session. he finished off almost every response with a quip or story that made his point. On dealing with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, for example, he said, "There's no point in pulling the bear by his moustache. Better to tickle

Many of his jokes were at his own expense At the end of the plea for American investment in Poland: "There is a huge business opportunity. So come. You will make money. And I will win the Nobel Prize — for economics."

On his own decision to stay out of the Solidarity-led Polish government and remain with the union: "When I was offered the job of prime minister. I like the idea. Everywhere I went, they would play the National Anthem. But I said no."

To an exceptionally carnest man, asking his views on freedom of choice and the abortion issue: "I have eight children. Why don't you, follow my example?" , Waless is no clown, but you could see how the humor undergirding his stubborn faith in freedom could help him gain a following and sustain him and his movement through the years of repression.

As President Bush reminded listeners in a moving speech at the White House ceremony where he awarded Walean the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Walean's neventh child was born while the Gdanak shipyard electrician was under arrest for his union-organizing activities. There was an empty chair at her baptism. Bush said, as there were empty chairs on the platforms of many U.S. colleges which awarded Walesa honorary degrees that spring of 1962.

"We saw empty chairs in Maine, in Pennsylvania. Rhode Island and Illinois." Bush said. "At Notre Dame, the crowd stood for three minutes in cheering tribute to the empty chair and to the man who wasn't there. At Holy Cross. (AFL-CIO President) Lane Kirkland accepted the award on Lech Walesa's

"For eight years, these empty chairs and the American people have waited. Today, the waiting is over. Lech Waless, man of freedom. is at the White House. We think of it as the house of freedom. And Lech Waless, on behalf of the people of the United States. I am proud to say to you. "I'she your place in this house of freedom; take your place in the empty chair."

What stirred the President to unusual eloquence was felt by almost everyone who was exposed to Walcan's direct, even blunt, but passionate advocacy of Poland's cause. It fused the chamber of the House of Representatives, when Walesa recounted the struggle which now 'has opened up entirely new horizons," a crusade, like our civil rights movement, in which the victory of freedom was all the sweeter because "this struggle was conducted without resorting to violence of any kind."

The impact can be measured in many ways, none more dramatic than Walesa's effect on R e p . D a n Rostenkowski (D-III.). the hard-bitten political veteran who has

You will make money. And I will win the Nobel Prize for economics.' risen from the Chicago wards to the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee. Rostenkowski was the last speaker at the dinner honoring Waless in Statusry Hall of the Captiol, and by the time he was called forward, the guest of honor had departed to get some much-needed sleep.

But Rostenkowski was a man transformed. A colleague in the House whispered to me. "Look at his face. I've never seen that expression." And, in truth, the usual calculating, appraising eyes glistened with tears. "Today," he said in a choked voice, "if you are Polish, your heart is filled with so much pride!"

And then, this power-wielding pro spoke to a roomful of other politicians and guests as if he were unburdening himself to his closest friend. 'For a long time in my political life." he said quietly. "I really didn't want to admit I was a Polish-American. I wished I had someother name....And today I feel ashamed of such feelings...Lech Walesa came to us and made a speech so simple, so direct, so honest...and, God bless us. we responded...And today we are ten feet ta'l."

It was almost as if Rostenkowski had forgotten the audience, had fogotten the television lights in his eyes, and was speaking to himself, making his own resolutions.

In a graviting night of instalative maneuvering, the Bessie failed to convince the House to accept a modified catastrophic staces program that dropped the incomebased surfax that had angered many senior elizana but hept sense benefits.

Benature worked out their proposed compression in a final bid to rescue something out of the program Tuesday afternoon, rushed it to the floor and then over to the House refused to budge, voting for the fourth time — in this case $46.55 — to insist upon repeal and the Seriate was forced to go along.

Ben. John McCain, R-Ariz., chief proponent of retaining parts of the program, gave

The Senate's proposal was to retain heapted coverage but raise the out-of-pecket payments needed to qualify. It would have been financed by a monthly fee pull by all senter citizens that supporters said would start at $3.90 in 1980 and reach $6 in 1984.

House Speaker Tom Fuley, D-Wash, acknowledged that repeal of the controversial law will not be the end of the issue, saying, "Obviously we're going to be looking at some of the problems involving health care."

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine noted that the Senate's acquiesence to the House position cause on a voice vote rather than a roll call, saying it was "a quiet end to a bud and long controversy, but I hope all will agree not the end of the issue."
"By repealing the legislation, we have not repealed the problem. It is bad and getting worse, large and getting larger." Mitchell said.

WASHINGTON - The White House sought to determine today the fate of several Americans. including some Green Berets, who were not immediately accounted for in the aftermath of a rebel takover of a Salvadoran hotel.

The spokesmen said, however, that an undetermined number of U.S. citizens remained unaccounted for. There was no definitive word of up to a dozen armed Green Berets who were said to have been in the hotel. At one point, the State Department said at least 23 U.S. citizens were in the Sheraton.

Oviedo in Rotary Bowl

Tonight at Lyman High School, amid all the hoopia and trappings typical of football bowl games, the Oviedo Lions and Oak Ridge Pioneers will book up in the 16th annual Rotary Bowl.

While Oviedo and Oak Ridge both have appeared in the Rotary Bowl before (Oviedo battling Lake Howell and Oak Ridge tangling with Lake Brantley), the two schools have never met before on the gridiron.

Tickets for the contest, which will kick off at 8 p.m., are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Proceeds for the contest will go to local charities. According to Larry Keller of the Rotary Club, $10,000 was given to the Seminole Children's Abuse Center.

CASSELBERRY - Freshman goalkeeper Robert Colon turned away 10 Lake Mary shots as the Lyman Greyhounds upget the Rams 1.0 to highlight the Seminole Athletic Conference boys' soccer jamboree before 500 fans at Lake Howell Stadtum.

In other action, Deland downed Seminole 2-0. Oviedo defeated De-Itona 1-0 and Lake Howell and Lake Brantley battled to a 2-2 tie.

"I think Robert played outstanding," said Greyhound head coach Ray Sandidge. "He was very complete and cool.

Colon's biggest save came when he stopped a bullet fired by Brian Coduto from only eight yards out with 11:23 left to play. Erik Leiben scored the Greyhounds' only goal when he took a pass from Brian Fouks and ricocheted a shot off the Ram goalie 15:09 into the match.

The Buildogs dominated the Seminoles, outshooting them 19-2. Daryl Meyer scored at 23:19 and 39:10 to account for both the Buildog goals. Meyer's first was set up by a pass from John Black.
Seminole did not manage a shot on goal until there was 5:28 left in the game, when Jimmy Reynolds' shot sailed wide left.

"I'm not surprised they played well," commented DeLand coach Robert Ruiz about his Buildogs. 'We've got players that are capable' of playing different roles."

Although the Lions only scored one goal, they unleashed 21 shots on Wolves' goalkeeper Randy Landers, who managed to come up with 10 saves. Sophomore fullback Chris Roper knocked in the Lions' goal 7:23 into the game.

Lion head coach Dave Jekanoski praised his team's performance, saying. "I'm thrilled with every part of their performance. I know they can play - it's just a matter of making sure they go out and play good every night."

Everyone can give thanks

update on my traditional Thankagiving column:

Tomorrow is Thankagiving, so why not take a few minutes to count your blessings? How's your health? You have a few minor complaints? Well, thank God they're not major. Obviously you're still alive. You can probably think of at least one person who isn't around this

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds and read the newspaper with two good eyes (or even one). praise the Lord! A lot of people

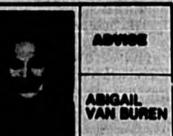

How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. No Medicare. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight. Would you rather be in Pakistan, Ethiopia or Nicaragus? Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, pick up the phone and call somebody. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. If you don't like your elected officials, you can go to work and vote them out of office. We still have the soapbox and the ballot box.

Freedom rings! You can still worship at the church of your choice, or not worship at all if you don't want to. You can cast a secret ballot, and even criticize your government without fearing'a knock on the head or a knock on your door in the middle of the night.

And if you want to live under a different system, goodbye and good luck! You are free to go.

There are no walls or fences to keep you here. As a final thought, I'll repeat

O. heavenly Father, we thank thee for food and remember the We thank thee for health and remember the sick. We thank thee for friends and remember the friendless.

We thank thee for freedom and remember the enalayed. May these remembrances stir us to service That thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen. Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, and may God bless you and instant high? The surest cure for the post-holiday blues is to do something nice for someone. Why not call someone who lives one and invite him or her to join you for lunch or dinner?

Better yet, call and say, "I'm coming to get you, and I'll see that you get home." (Many older people don't drive, and those who do don't like to go out alone after dark.)

P.S.S. Special greetings to wrote from remain corners of the world to tell me that you are using my Thanksgiving prayer.

Let the Sanford Herald help you

Polymyalgia responds to cortisone therapy

seband has been diagnosed ith polymyalgia rheumatica and is being treated with predstanne. It helps some, but his progress is very slow. How long can be remain on the nedication, and is there some-sing betier he can take for it?

DEAR READER: Polymyalgia rheumatics is a common disease that causes muscular pain and stiffness leading to muscle atrophy (wasting). It is often appetite, malaise, apathy, ane-mia and temporal arteritis (inflammation of the arteries over the skull's temples). The cause is

The diagnosis is usually con-firmed by the sudden and dra-matic improvement brought about by prednisone (cortisone) therapy. The medicine relieves symptoms within 24 hours. Once the patient is symptomize, the dose of prednisone is gradually tapered. Flare-ups may require repeated courses of treatment. Prednisone is the most effective drug to treat polymyaigis.

The rapid response to pred-nisone suggests that the basis of polymyalgia may be an immune disorder in which the body inappropriately attacks its own normal tissues. Because longterm prednisone therapy is fraught with complications such as diabetes, bone softening and cataracts—patients with polymyalgia should be carefully monitored by their doctors, and every effort should be made to reduce or eliminate the dose of prednisone as soon as possible.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any potential harm in taking niacin 500 milligrams with each meal, as I have done since last September? My cholesterol dropped from 278 to 223. Because of this success, I'm willing to endure the discomfort of itching, yet I have concern regarding the effect niacin might have on my cancer-prone skin.

nilligrams of niecin to olesterol, in doors of 500 milligrams with each meal. acin will not prediaptee you to veloping akin cancers. Rarely, patients may experience low-grade liver inflammation.

When playing a hand, give mied a four-card major, and South quickly bid three nothe hand just as quickly. Declarer won West's heart queen with his king and immediately ducked a diamond to East. Back came a heart. Declarer held up once and then won the ace. He played A-K of diamonds, but that suit did not split. So he now tried dummy's spade king and then the nine, playing low from his hand. West won the queen. cashed the last heart and exited with a low club. Declarer won his ace and hopefully cashed the spade ace. When the jack did not fall, there were only eight tricks. Declarer played his suits in the wrong order. It is right to try for the game-going trick in spades as well as diamonds, but the correct approach to lead a immy's nine. Declarer then win the heart return and duck a diamond. He will now make the contract if the spade queen falls under the king and ace or if diamonds are 3-3. Because the spade queen does come down, the contract is made. Note carefully that the earlier spade play of cashing the king and leading the nine had little chance. If East originally held three spades to an honor, he should cover the nine with either the queen or the jack. thus ensuring that West would make two tricks with what would in that case be an honor and the eight-spot.
