But Help's On The Way From Winter Park

Local Docs Ired Over Surgeon's Refusal To Treat Patient

By Diane Petryk
Herald News Editor

On Aug. 11 a 17-year-old Sanford boy with a gunshot wound to the head was "on hold" in the Central Florida Regional Hospital emergency room for about five hours. It was a bad time to be shot in the head in Sanford. Just weeks before, the hospital's only neurosurgeon had stopped taking trauma cases.

It was too risky, said Dr. Norberto Priu, in light of the malpractice claim that could possibly be brought against him. It was risky for Luray Demair Aikens, too. He died.

Chances are Aikens would have died anyway.

'...look what's happening with this damn malpractice liability. We really have a chance of it affecting us in this community.'

—Gary Snell
—CFRH Chief of Staff

But several of the roughly 90 members of the hospital medical staff, at their regular quarterly meeting Tuesday, were "irate," to quote one observer, that their Hippocratic oaths should look so foolish. Why, they wondered, should a young man lie untreated as their own neurosurgeon, and hospital after hospital refused to take his case.

It fell to the hospital administration and Chief of Staff Gary Snell to do something. In a hospital memo dated Aug. 12, the day Aikens died, it was announced that Winter Park neurosurgeons Bill Hoffmeister, Robert Shear and F.D. Kendrick would provide "full neurosurgical services" to patients of doctors practicing at Central Florida Regional. The memo was initiated by Snell and CFRH Administrator James D. Tesar.

Snell says he didn't write the memo, someone in the hospital administration did, but he suggested the first paragraph, which attempts to explain the situation. It reads:

"At the present time, we do not have an active staff neurosurgeon credentialed to accept patients with traumatic injuries. This has resulted in serious problems in the transfer of these patients to a qualified physician."

In the case of Aikens, the problem is somewhat understated. Emergency room personnel called around the state in the five-hour period that began after Priu was called. He didn't see the boy, he said. He simply replied that he had requested

Center Faces Crisis

Part Two In Series

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Even as the Sanford Christian Sharing Center faces the crisis of relocation and the need for greater support, local Christian agencies and churches are examining the needs of the poor, the homeless and hungry here and how they can best be met. Four local agencies are already working to coordinate their efforts to avoid duplication.

Several interested pastors volunteered at an informal meeting of local clergy and others held Tuesday at Holy Cross Episcopal Church Parish Hall to work with the Rev. Richard Daniefak, co-pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Sanford and president of the Sanford Christian Sharing Center Board, to come up with some concrete ideas to present at a future get-together.

They include the Rev. Fred Mann, rector at Holy Cross; Allen McDaniel, pastor of Sanford House of Praise; Ernie Cook, minister of education at First Baptist Church of Sanford; the Rev. Darwin Shea, pastor of Upsala Presbyterian Church; Andy Irwin, youth minister at First United Methodist Church of Sanford and the Rev. Edmund Czarnecki, pastor of All Souls Catholic Church.

Mayor Bettye Smith, who attended Tuesday's meeting, said there are a lot of well-meaning organizations, but the most important thing is they must show responsibility and stewardship. She said that during her administration there have been efforts to provide better housing for the poor by revitalizing certain run down areas of town, but the transients and homeless "fall through the cracks."

Lt. Sam Flanigan pointed to progress already made by local ministries toward better understanding and cooperation. He said that he has met with representatives of the Sanford Christian Sharing Center, Manna Haven and Rescue Outreach.

He said the Salvation Army provides help with rent, utility bills, prescriptions, emergency

22 Arrested In Drug Raid

Reputed Major Dealers Busted

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

About 50 lawmen moved in to clean up cocaine dealing on the outskirts of Altamonte Springs, netting 22 suspects, most on a targeted list developed through a three-week undercover investigation by City County Investigation Bureau agents.

The main targets of the 6:15 p.m. Wednesday raid — reputed street dealers of cocaine and crack cocaine and some of their suppliers — gathered under a cloudy sky as expected at two points from which many of them are said to have sold illegal drugs to CCIB agents over the last three weeks. CCIB scouts watched as the suspects grouped. The raiders waited at a central meeting point for a signal to move in to the area.

Within about an hour, most of the arrests were made on charges of sale of cocaine and conspiracy to sell cocaine. Bond on the first charge is $2,000 and on the second $1,000.

CCIB Commander Lt. Donald Eslinger of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department said in the investigation agents made 38 cocaine buys from 23 suspects, in the North Street area, east of County Road 427.

The area has long been known as an illegal drug supply center, which draws buyers from other areas of the county as well as outsiders. Lawmen have conducted several similar sweeps there in recent years.

First hit by the CCIB raiders, including the Seminole County SWAT team, Seminole and Volusia County sheriff's deputies, and Sanford, Altamonte Springs, Oviedo and Longwood police, were the Disco Food Store, on Magnolia Avenue at County Road 427, and the corner of Teakwood Lane and Jackson Street.

Lawmen then converged on other targeted intersections, set up roadblocks and stopped cars for checks for criminals. Four drug sniffing dogs were stationed at roadblocks.

In addition to the list of 23 identified through the undercover investigation, lawmen also had listed suspects wanted on warrants. Two persons were rounded up on warrant charges.

Arrested at a roadblock on a charge of driving with a suspended license was Robert Richardson, 29, of 207 Cadillac Court, Altamonte Springs.

The thrust of the operation, Eslinger said, was to sweep street dealers out of the neighborhood. This, he said, is expected to make the suppliers of those dealers afraid to trust them after the dealers' exposure to police.

The outcome may be that suppliers will be forced to seek out other street dealers to hire, and some of the new dealers may be police informants. The suppliers may be forced out onto the streets to deal drugs themselves, and Eslinger said that will make them easier prey for police.

Those on the wanted list and others with warrants issued for them who were not nabbed will be targets as lawmen continue the crackdown against cocaine.

One suspect passed out, fell and hit his head while being processed for transport to the Seminole County jail from the Altamonte Springs police station. His was the only reported injury. He was treated at Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs before being booked into jail.

Arrested on warrants charges were two Altamonte Springs residents: Kenneth Ferguson, 28, 704 Citrus Ave. — bad checks; and Angela L. French, 21, 207 Cadillac Court. — violation of probation, theft.

Longwood Interviews Attorneys

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commissioners will interview the three finalists for the position of full-time city attorney at 7 p.m. today at a worksession before a special called meeting.

Finalists chosen by the commissioners from a list of seven applicants include Lonnie Groot of Deltona, Seminole County assistant county attorney; Michael Kramer of Jonesboro, Ga., attorney with Sellers, Atkinson & Jose, Atlanta; and Morris G. "Skip" Miller of Tampa, attorney with George E. Mueller Jr. & Associates, Tampa.

This is the city's second attempt to find a replacement for Longwood's first full-time attorney Ann Colby, who resigned June 15 and is now serving as part-time city attorney on an hourly basis.

Groot was a finalist before, but withdrew his name from consideration.

Also on the agenda tonight will be proposed changes in requirements for parking and screening commercial vehicles, boats, buses, canoes, trailers, trucks and industrial equipment in residential and planned unit development areas. Workmen's Compensation Insurance proposals also will be considered.

Changes in the parking and screening requirements came about at the request of the code enforcement officer, who was having difficulty enforcing the existing ordinance because of vague and conflicting wording.

Petsos Plans Reelection Try

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Suspended Lake Mary City Commissioner Aurther "Buzz" Petsos, convicted Tuesday of attempted burglary and petty theft, apparently does not have to give up his commission seat and can run in the coming election.

Further, the law is hazy about whether Gov. Bob Martinez could suspend Petsos if he is re-elected to a new term Sept. 1, according to a state official. Petsos was convicted of the attempted burglary and petty theft in March of a delicatessen he once owned and one in which he maintained he had a legal right to

East County Residents Pan PUD Plan

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Residents of eastern Seminole County don't think much of the county commission's consideration of allowing clustered housing in rural areas.

Several Chuluota and Chula Vista residents expressed opposition Wednesday night to the county commission's Tuesday night decision to consider a Suburban Estates Planned Unit Development zoning category after a study committee determines parameters for such a classification.

However, county commissioners had far less public comment on the updated land use plan for the eastern half of the county Wednesday night than they did for the western half on Tuesday night.

Most of the land in the eastern part of the county is designated as general rural or suburban estates in the land use plan. Residents in that part of the county said they want to keep it that way.

Randy Capp, representing the Southeast Voters Association, and others from that part of the county spoke in favor of retaining the one-dwelling-per-acre development for the area. Capp and others said the area's low elevation, saltwater intrusion problems threatening the availability of potable water and low water recharge ability all supported residents' arguments that the resources are not available to support higher density development that clustered housing could bring.

Clustered housing, which would be allowed under the proposed new zoning classification, would allow housing units to be clustered at a higher density in some areas as long as the overall ratio of units per acre in the development remained low.

Capp asked that representatives of the southeastern part of the county, not only people in the western part of the county, be appointed to the new zoning classification study committee.

He, like Jeffrey Vita of Chula Vista and Drew Evans of Chuluota, all oppose allowing clustering of dwellings in the southeast part of the county.

However, no one from the eastern part of the county who spoke at the hearing objected to the land-use plan for their area. The eastern part was also the only planning area in the county which had no conflicts between the staff and the planning and zoning commission on recommended land uses.

Comment on the south central area's land use plan mainly concerned the corner of Chapman Avenue and Alafaya Trail just south of Oviedo, and the State Road 426 and its planned intersection with the portion of the expressway near the southern border of the county.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Car Bashing Brings Jail For Ex-Boyfriend

A Sanford man was arrested after his former girlfriend refused his request for a date and he allegedly bashed in the woman's car with a tire iron.

Sanford police charged Donald Edward Hampton, 33, of 2795 Richmond Ave., with criminal mischief with damage in excess of $1,000. He has been released on $1,000 bond.

Police report that at about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, Hampton is believed to have damaged the 1982 Ford Escort of Mary Lynn Tharaldson, parked her 1024 Sarita St. home.

Tharaldson told police she refused to go out with Hampton and he threatened to kill her and her father, who lives with her, before going out and bashing in her car.

Damage to the car is estimated at almost $1,600. The body was dented, windows were smashed and moulding damaged, police reported.

Hampton was arrested in downtown Sanford at about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. He is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 14.

Cash, Teller Card And Gun Taken

Residents of 203 Laurel Drive, Sanford, lost cash, house and vehicle keys, an auto teller card and a Smith and Wesson revolver in break-ins sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. Monday.

Gary Mason Polley, 29, and Marcy Ann Driscoll, 32, listed their losses at $580 — $150 in currency and $430 in the value of the gun and its accessories, in addition to the keys and teller card.

Police report the person or persons who broke into the home removed a screen from an open front window on the east side of the house. Taken was a purse, a wallet and other contents of the purse were found on the front step of the home, minus the cash, keys and card.

Polley's 1981 Chevy pick-up, which contained the gun, was unlocked, according to police.

2 Broken Noses Result Of Fracas

Fractured noses for both Timothy Ray Kern, 20, of 2430 Palmetto, Sanford, and Horace Hyatt, 35, of 147 W. Wilbur Ave., Lake Mary, were the result of an early morning fight Monday at 408 Springview Dr., Sanford.

Police said there was a party at that address hosted by Glenna Laws, who called police to quell the disturbance.

Four subjects were involved in hand to hand combat as Sanford police arrived at the scene just after 6:30 a.m. One of the others was identified as Roger Kern and the other only as John.

According to the Sanford Fire Department rescue workers who arrived minutes after police, Timothy Kern and Hyatt had facial injuries and were restrained in handcuffs by Sanford police. Both were taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital where they were treated and released, according to hospital spokesman Kay Bartholomew.

Kern had a fractured nose and multiple contusions to the face, she said. Hyatt had a fractured nose and a small laceration on the bridge of the nose.

No charges have been filed due to inadequate information and unreliable witnesses, police said.

Trash On Roadway Leads To Jail

A Lake Mary man who was stopped by police on suspicion of littering was charged with possession of marijuana after police searched him and found a bag of what is believed to have been marijuana in his pocket, according to Lake Mary police.

Police say they pulled over his car after he allegedly threw trash on Lake Mary Boulevard at about 2 p.m. Monday.

Joseph Wayne Bragg, 26, of 280 Short St. S., Lake Mary, has been charged with littering and possession of marijuana. He has been released on $500 bond to appear in court Aug. 28.

Clerk Dismissed For Thefts

A Wal-Mart employee was dismissed following discovery of a variety of thefts of merchandise valued at a total of $365.

Wal-Mart District Supervisor Thomas Rinehart told Sanford police Monday that he had obtained the employee's written confession.

Barbershop Window Broken

Nothing was taken, but barber Rick C. Floyd, 1981 Sipes Ave., told Sanford police he'd prosecute whoever broke the south west window of his West 13th Street Barber Shop at 1223 W. 13th Street. The window was broken sometime between the evening of Aug. 6 and Monday morning.

No cost estimate on the damage was provided.

Victim Says Rapist Made Return Visit

A 62-year-old Sanford woman, raped in her home at knife-point Aug. 12, called Sanford police when the rapist returned and was knocking on the door of her home at about 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Police nabbed the man as he rode a bicycle on Country Club Circle at Country Club Road, near the victim's home. She was brought to the scene and reportedly identified the suspect.

Ernest Hollis, 34, of 1801 Jerry Ave., Sanford, was taken to the Sanford police station, where he was charged with armed burglary and two counts of sexual battery. Hollis was being held today without bond.

she awakened at about 1 a.m. to find a man assaulting her in her bed. He had armed himself with a butcher knife taken from her kitchen, she reported. The home had been entered through a kitchen window, according to police.

The victim said the man warned her not to scream. After raping her once, the man left her alone in her bedroom for a few minutes. He left behind the knife on the floor, which the woman found and hid.

The man returned to the bedroom and raped the woman again. He fled on foot, going east on 25th Street.

After the attack, the woman tried to call police but found her phone was out of order.

Another AM/FM radio and cassette player, this one valued at $400, was taken from a black Isuzu Impulse on the lot. Damage to the interior of the car was also estimated at $200.

Taken from the engine compartment of a Blue Toyota Cressana was an Elman battery valued at $50. The theft was discovered and reported by Luciana.

Bret Chugs West; Area Stays Hot

Staff And Wire Reports

Bret, the second tropical storm of the season, chugged west today with its 50 mph winds to warmer Atlantic waters that were expected to boost its strength, but with rains holding back, humidity high and near-record high temperatures, Seminole County was like an oven Wednesday.

The National Weather Service recorded a trace of rain at Orlando International Airport, and portions of southeast Seminole got a gully-washer, but it was dry nearly everywhere else. Today will be much the same.

The last report placed Bret, generated from a tropical depression that swept off the west coast of Africa Tuesday, 780 miles west of Sao Tiago in the Cape Verde Islands near latitude 15.5 north, longitude 35.5 west.

That position was about 1,700 miles from islands marking the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea and about 2,800 miles from Florida. It was moving westward at about 17 mph, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reported.

Hurricane forecaster Gil Clark said Bret was at least six or seven days away from land, but was expected to continue moving west toward warmer waters that would favor its development.

"We just have to watch it," Clark said. "Normally you expect a storm that forms there to go west for several days. As long as upper air patterns are favorable, it will strengthen as it moves west into warmer waters, but that is still a couple of days away."

Bret's maximum winds were estimated at 50 mph with higher gusts in squalls. Little change in strength was expected today.

Meanwhile, Arlene, which

Longwood Election Data Proclaimed

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood Mayor Ed Myers has officially proclaimed Nov. 3 as the date for the general election and 8 a.m. Sept. 4 until 5 p.m. Sept. 11 as the qualifying period for candidates wishing to run for the three city commission seats that will be up for election.

The proclamation was made at Monday night's city commission meeting. All three of the incumbents have announced they will run for re-election. District 1 seat is now held by Commissioner Harvey Smerlison; District 2 now held by Deputy Mayor June Lormann; and Dist. 4 now held by Mayor Ed Myers.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the following locations:

- Precinct 4 — Altamonte Springs City Hall, 225 Newburyport Ave., Altamonte Springs.
- Precinct 14 — Longwood Health Care Center, 1520 S. Grant St.
- Precinct 33 — Longwood City Hall, 175 W. Warren Ave. (on year's when there is no county elections all voters will cast their ballot at the city hall).
- Precinct 46 — Rolling Hills Golf Club, 1745 Jackson St., Longwood.
- Precinct 47 — Longwood Baptist Church, 1255 E.E. Williamson Road.
- Precinct 53 — Longwood Community Building, corner of Wilma Street and Church Avenue.
- Precinct 58 — South Seminole VFW Post 8207, County Road 427, Longwood.
- Precinct 72 — Longwood Elementary School, 830 E. Orange Ave.

Longwood voters will also be voting on the following proposed charter amendments: Changing the term of city commissioners from two to four years beginning with the 1990 election; selection of the deputy mayor by random drawing of the city commission elected in 1990 and rotated in ascending numerical order after that for one year terms; election of mayor by the voters for a four year term beginning in 1990; provision for recall of city commissioners in accordance with the state law.

In other business, the commission:

- Voted unanimously to annex the Allied Tire property at 1298 N. Highway 17-92 (at State Road 434) and assigned general commercial to the property as the Future Land Use designation and C-3 general commercial in the zoning ordinance.
- Gave final approval to the ordinance regulating fireworks displays in the city.
- Approved the site plan for Interlock Ceiling and Tile, Lots 30 and 34, Baywood Industrial Park submitted by Rob Hubbard.
- Approved funds for Deputy Mayor June Lormann and City Administrator Ron Waller and one other commissioner to attend the Florida League of Cities Conference Oct. 14-17 and Waller to attend the International City Managers Association Conference Oct. 24-29.
- Allocated up to $400 for the purchase of signs recognizing the Bicentennial of the signing of the U.S. Constitution for placement around the city and refer the purchase to the purchasing department to buy them as cheaply as possible.
- Heard a report by Waller on a meeting he and Parks and Recreation Director Bill Goebel had with Lyman High School Principal Carlton Henley on the use of school facilities for some city recreation programs. He said Henley was most receptive to their ideas. At the last meeting the commission told Waller to go to Seminole County School Superintendent Bob Hughes after Goebel complained that Henley had been uncooperative about letting the city use the swimming pool and gymnasium for programs.

Transits Face Marina Launching Fee

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford may start charging out-of-towners to use the boat launching facilities at the city marina peninsula.

City commissioners, after discussing projected parking needs in the marina area, and a request by the Lake Monroe Sailing Council for more sailboat launching facilities, decided Sanford taxpayers shouldn't have to shoulder the total cost of those improvements.

Bill Simmons, city engineer, told the commission that more parking spaces will probably be needed on the east side of the marina in the future. He cited the planned addition of 90 more boat slips by Monroe Harbour Marina owner Chuck Volk and the possibility of another excursion boat joining the Romance, as adding to the area's parking problems.

Simmons said increased demands for parking in the limited area available might mean limiting parking on busy days.

He said the council could consider limiting car-boat parking on the peninsula on holidays and weekends, forcing boaters to park their vehicles in nearby municipal lots after launching their boats. "This would have to be policed, and perhaps boat launchings should be supervised also," he said. Charging a fee for boat launching, parking, or both would help pay for the policing and supervision, he said.

Commissioners A.A. McClanahan and Whitey Eckstein said they favored charging some type of fee to boaters who launch in Sanford. McClanahan said the vast majority of boaters who use the Sanford ramp to launch their boats are not Sanford residents, yet city taxpayers pay for the launching and parking facilities.

A proposal by the sailing council for the city to add grass or sand beaches so more sailboats can launch is not feasible, according to Frank Faison, city manager.

Faison said removing rocks at the present launch site, as recommended by the sailing council, would entail getting the approval of two state agencies and one federal agency.

Adding another site just east of the present commercial development as also recommended by the sailing council is impossible because of building expansion plans in that area, Faison said. He said putting sand over the rocks at the launch site could be done again for the Citrus Bowl Regatta in December, but he recommended it not be done after that at total city cost. "It costs $2,000 to $3,000 each time we do it, and in a few days the sand is washed away," said Faison, who noted more sand would add to the problem of silt in the marina.

Simmons said improving the present launch site and adding one at the far east side of the planned commercial expansion are the only alternatives for improved sailboat launching areas.

Volk, the marina owner, said he was against putting a boat launching ramp east of the commercial area. Because that part of the marina is silted, there are often children playing in it and at the speed some boats take off from the launching ramp, an accident could easily happen, he said.

The commission decided to have the staff come up with an estimate of what percentage of marina users are Sanford residents and, based on that, what kind of a fee schedule could be adopted for parking or boat launching, or both.

Faison said the sailing council would be invited to a commission planning meeting in October to discuss the options for improving sailboat access to the lake.

Intruder Takes Nothing, Leaves Blood

Blood was smeared on walls throughout the inside an occupied residence broken into sometime between 8 a.m. Monday and 11 a.m. Tuesday.

The home, 330 Springview Drive, Sanford, belongs to Centex Homes. Keith Golway, custodian of the property, told police the intruders gained entry by breaking out a south living room window and lifting it up.

Golway said Wednesday the blood appeared to be from an injury the intruder sustained in the break-in.

Nothing was taken, according to the police report, but $35 in damage was done to the window and paint, according to the police report.

Ninety-One And Still Climbing

Hulda Crooks, the Californian who at the age of 91 became the oldest woman to scale Mount Fuji, serves as a special inspiration to the many Americans who feel handicapped by the potent — and potentially limiting — terms "senior citizen" and "retirement."

Just as many people dislike the "senior citizen" label, they also feel shackled by the term "retirement," especially if it clings to them as some sort of debilitating condition that strikes at age 62 or 65.

Senior citizenship and retirement have little to do with how a person feels and what he or she still can accomplish. Yet the terms typecast individuals as old by legislation, by policy and, worst of all, by image.

We prefer another view of so many Americans who have had 62 or 65 birthdays. We prefer to recognize them as "doers."

While we appreciate that many people look forward to retirement as an opportunity, we nonetheless worry about the mind-set of those who would dismiss this important group of Americans or classify them as a mere statistic or demographic category. We are loath to think that these Americans would accept being put on a shelf for the rest of their days, taken down only when the grandchildren need a baby sitter.

We prefer to think of such Americans as we do Hulda Crooks, who announced upon climbing the 12,388-foot mountain: "Even when people say old age starts at 65, you don't have to settle for that." We like to think that today's older Americans all have a little of Hulda Crooks in them.

Flexible Pump

Gasoline prices at the pump keep edging upward and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he believes the Khomeini regime is threatening new attacks in the Persian Gulf in a scheme to drive oil prices higher.

In a speech on the tension in the gulf area, Aspin said earlier threats from Tehran had a caveat — Iran would attack U.S. Navy ships if the United States attacked Iran, but that the latest flurry of threats lacked such caveats.

Much of the Khomeini regime's latest tough talk has not been reported in Iran and was not intended to be, Aspin said.

"The threats have appeared in interviews with foreign reporters and dispatches from Iran's news agency that have been distributed in English only," he said.

The rhetoric, he said, "soared just after analysts started saying war jitters were pushing up the price of oil. I submit that Khomeini and company are pushing their long-held goal of driving oil prices to new heights. And we are helping them do it."

In the last few weeks the price of oil on the spot market has risen from around $20 a barrel to around $22 a barrel, and analysts have been commenting that war jitters are causing the rise.

Aspin said he hoped that Americans understand what the Khomeini regime is up to when it tries to spread the jitters. "There is no need to give the Iranians their heart's desire on a silver platter. Every market jitter means more money in the Ayatollah's pockets. Let's not contribute to the jingle."

That is good advice. It ought to be followed by everyone who does not want to pay an extra nickel, dime, quarter or dollar a gallon for gasoline in the near future.

What President Reagan Hasn't Said Yet

President Reagan's recent speech to the nation was, as usual, a skillful performance. Reagan's years of experience as an actor remain his major political asset.

But anyone listening to the speech or reviewing the written text will have trouble accepting the president's explanation of the debacle surrounding the Iran-contra fiasco.

These are some of the issues the president chose not to discuss:

- It is against the law to sell arms to a terrorist government such as Iran unless the president makes a judgment that it is in the national interest to do so. The president must inform Congress of his decision.

Mr. Reagan not only personally approved the sale of arms to Iran, it also appears that he ordered that this foolish decision be concealed from Congress and from key members of the administration. Beyond his concern for seven hostages, what is the president's explanation for violating the law and the claimed keystone of his foreign policy — anti-terrorism.

Concern for saving the seven hostages now turns out to have prompted the seizing of other hostages, possibly as bait for more arms. But even if the seven hostages had been released when the arms were delivered, what about the hundreds of thousands of people the Iranians will continue to kill with the arms Reagan supplied to them. Will these missiles now be turned against our men patrolling the Persian Gulf?

- If it is true that profits from the Iranian arms sales were diverted illegally without the president's knowledge to the contras, what does Mr. Reagan think about such flagrant lawbreakers? Does he still regard Oliver North as a national hero?

He says that he should have been told about the diversion. Obviously he should have not only been told, but he should have known about and been directing key foreign policy judgments of this kind. Lt. Col. North and Adm. John Poindexter have both said that they were convinced they were doing what the president wanted.

Is that true Mr. President? If so, how do you justify breaking the law, which barred such shipments to the contras? What do you, Mr.

President, think of the repeated lying done by your top aides to Congress? Are you above the law and beyond the reach of the Constitution?

The president understandably wanted to move on to other matters in his address, and he chose the budget deficit as a point of emphasis. Here again, he did not face the hard realities.

For six and a half years he has submitted budgets to Congress that were so short on revenue and so long on arms spending that even if Congress had simply swallowed them whole, the annual deficit would have been about as large as it now is.

If not for the action of then Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., in 1981, the Reagan deficit would have been nearly $100 billion higher each year. Dole realized that the Reagan tax cut was so excessive that unless Congress reduced it, the deficit would be completely out of control. Dole put together a revenue retrieval package, which held the deficit to about $200 billion annually.

Now the president says only a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget is strong enough to save us from deficits.

It's All Greek To Me

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A daily newspaper has started a debate over the words of, of all ancient philosophers, Aristotle. Let me just say something about that and then, having read none of the disputed passages in the original context, I will let you up.

Permit me to observe that, generally speaking, it is difficult to prove a point by quoting an ancient philosopher, mainly because Aristotle, Plato and the crowd never were confronted by modern inventions, such as the Congressional Record.

Historians tell us moderns that Aristotle, for example, was born in Macedonia before the birth of Christ and the reign of King Philip. That should give you some idea of how ancient he is.

Certainly, he is more ancient than my copy of the current issue of Roll Call, a weekly published on Capitol Hill.

The newspaper contains a poignant account of how a former congressman was pronounced dead upon arriving at a local hospital.

Although Roll Call cites a report that "life-saving procedure was improperly administered during attempts to resuscitate" him, I assume we all know the real cause of his death.

The ex-congressman was watching a televised debate on the House floor and must have gotten overly excited. Man and boy, I have been watching congressional proceedings for years and I can tell you it is pretty difficult not to get overly excited.

That is medically true even if you are reading about the proceedings in the Congressional Record a week or so later.

The former congressman, according to Roll Call, had been watching a televised discussion of a bill concerning a nuclear power plant in the congressional district he once represented. I can understand why he keeled over.

Almost nothing gets the blood up faster than a televised congressional debate over nuclear power.

I looked up the Record and found Congress engaged in exciting stuff that whole blessed week. You didn't even have to tune in on a televised discussion of nuclear power in your old home district.

You could, for example, have heard the House speaker pro tempore seek unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the journal of the previous day's proceedings. That alone was almost as exciting as one of the Senate's famous quorum calls.

Jerry Falwell's Man In The Navy

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Praise the Lord and change the disposition! After a middle-of-the-night telephone plea and a followup letter from Rev. Jerry Falwell, then-Navy Secretary John Lehman overturned the decision of a high-level review board and approved a request to extend the active duty of a Navy chaplain affiliated with Falwell's Liberty Baptist Fellowship.

The subject of Falwell's concern was Lt. Gary L. Maxwell, 34. The urgency of Falwell's midnight phone call last Feb. 11 was dictated by the chaplain's scheduled separation from active duty on Feb. 20 — a disposition decided on by the Chaplain Corps 1987 Extension Board of five senior Navy chaplains.

The review panel denied Maxwell's request to extend his active-duty status beyond the three years he had already served.

Extensions are highly valued by Navy chaplains, and most requests are granted. But the board informed Maxwell that he was "non-competitive," a judgment call that was not elaborated upon.

Maxwell appealed — to Falwell. "I sent Dr. (Dennis) Fields (Falwell's executive secretary) a copy of the letter the extension board sent me, and I checked on an appeals process, but I was told there was none," Maxwell told our reporter Mike Rosenfelt.

Maxwell's decision to seek Falwell's help was a wise one. Fields told us that he initially tried to solve the lieutenant's problem by going through Chaplain Corps channels. But these attempts were unsuccessful. And Maxwell's release date was drawing near.

So on the night of Feb. 10-11, the big gun himself was brought in. Falwell, whose powers of persuasion are legendary, got on the horn to Lehman and also talked with Lehman's executive assistant, Capt. Joseph Prueher.

No one knows better than a television evangelist the importance of a follow-up letter. Falwell wrote to Prueher that very day, exuding reasonableness and humility.

"Thank you," he wrote, "for allowing our telephone conversation tonight. I apologize for calling you and the Secretary at the midnight hour. However, all other avenues have now been explored...."

"I am humbly requesting your intervention on (Maxwell's) behalf, because we believe he was unfairly evaluated by his commanding chaplain. His commanding chaplain was openly critical of Maxwell's denomination and our evangelical doctrine."

"All of his commanders and many of his co-workers have written me stating Chaplain Maxwell's excellent abilities and performance. I am enclosing some of these letters. They all support my conclusion that

Nopal Cactus Power

By Eda Chavez

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The lowly nopal cactus, which grows wild in nearly all of Mexico and is pictured on the national flag, could have a wide variety of medical benefits — for dieters as well as those suffering from diabetes and high cholesterol, researchers say.

Mexican scientists recently discovered that the juice of the nopal cactus may help alleviate a wide variety of illnesses and conditions — as many of the pre-Hispanic Indians who once lived in the area believed.

The nopal, native to Mexico and southwestern United States, can grow up to 6 feet tall and bears a fruit called the prickly pear or "tuna" in Spanish.

Its wide, thick leaves and the fruit are major ingredients for dozens of local dishes — from soup and salads to ice cream and pastries — and also serve as a base for shampoos and beauty creams.

"It has been proven that drinking nopal juice before each meal for at least 10 days lowers body weight as well as decreasing cholesterol, glucose and regulating insulin levels," said Dr. Frat Munari, who recently completed tests of the plant for the treatment of diabetes.

The cactus extract, however, is strictly in experimental stages. Dr. Javier Lozoya Legorretas, director of the Research Institute for Traditional Medicine, stresses that nopal is not a substitute for insulin.

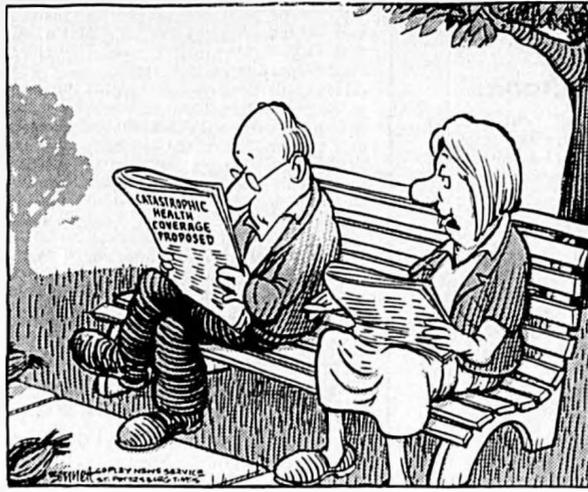

Diabetes in its most serious form is a disease characterized by the excessive discharge of urine and an insulin deficiency that prevents the body from properly using sugar and other carbohydrates. Insulin must be supplied every day by injection.

"... There has never been a medicinal plant to substitute for insulin. However, we have done studies on the medicinal qualities of the nopal and we know that the Meso-American people used it as an anti-diabetic agent," Lozoya Legorretas said.

The cactus, and the nopal in particular, is an important part of Mexican tradition.

Legend has it that when the ancient Aztecs were on their final tribal migration south, they received a vision to settle where they saw an eagle with a rattlesnake in its mouth alight atop a nopal cactus. According to the tale, they saw that sign when they entered the Valley of Mexico, present site of Mexico City.

The depiction of the eagle with a rattlesnake in its mouth, perched on the nopal, sits on the center of Mexico's national flag.

BEN WATTENBERG

August's Dwarf Days

The movie classic "Snow White" has been re-released. A sequel, "Snow White in Politics," is now under consideration. It goes something like this:

Once upon a time, in a land called America, there were many men running for president in a party called Democratic. People called these candidates "The Seven Dwarfs." Although they were bright and articulate men, all across the nation called America it was asked: Who are they? Why do they all say the same thing? Why are they so boring? Why do they say things that make it harder for Democrats to get elected in the fall of 1988?

There did not seem to be good answers to the people's questions, and so there was restiveness in the land.

It was said that these seven male political dwarfs would soon be joined by a female named Schroeder, who would add sparkle to the race. But expert opinion was divided about the role Schroeder would play: Was she Snow White, or was she the Evil Witch? No matter: The public knew not who she was either, for what she proclaimed was what the Dwarfs proclaimed, only more so, and — so it was thought — she might make it even more difficult for the party called Democratic to get elected.

In this restive land, councils of wise-persons met in rooms that of yore were described as filled with smoke. In other places, portly felines with many dollars huddled and shook their heads in dismay. Comments and questions issued forth: The wise-persons and multi-bucked felines said, "Hey, something is missing from this political fairy tale — where is Prince Charming? Why are the Dwarfs and the Dwarfette all liberals? Where are the moderates? Where is the candidate who can carry the South? Where is the candidate who can bring the Democratic Party back to the middle of the road?"

And, so, as the tale is told, there was such a man at that time and in that place called America. In August, when the institution called Congress went into recess, he flew off to Europe with his wife to attend a meeting on U.S./Soviet relations and to think seriously about whether or not to run for president. It was important that the potential prince decide, for he had told the scribes that he would have an answer on or about a day called Labor.

At critical moments in political fairy tales such as this, potential princes, such as Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., are usually in need of advice. It is usually tendered by a Good Fairy. In August, however, Good Fairies are away at the beach, and it may be necessary for columnists to step in. So here is advice for Sam Nunn:

1) Go for it. You'll probably never have a better shot. How often can a man of political stature get the opportunity to run in a field called dwarfish?

2) Be yourself. When candidates announce for the presidency, advisers tell them to change their speaking manner, their politeness, their demeanor. Don't. You're fine. You're the different Democrat; these days that's good, especially in a seven- or eight-person field. There may be a time to trim sails, but that time isn't now.

How does this political fairy tale end? Will he or won't he? I don't know, but if he does, the movie may soon be re-titled "Sam White and the Seven or Eight Dwarfs."

'Noles Look For Boost In Membership Friday

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
Seminole High School is on the threshold of an excellent athletic year.

Every so often great athletes cluster during the same season. That cluster is made up of this year's senior class. Many of these youngsters have already established themselves as all-state performers. Others will this year.

The Seminole seniors are sensational.

In football, linebacker Earnie "Sackman" Lewis and quarterback Jeff Blake will lead the charge. Look for outstanding contributions from linebacker Steve Warren and defensive back Leonard Lucas.

In basketball, guard Andre Whitney and 6-foot-8 center Craig Walker supply the nucleus. Walter Hopson is just a couple bounces behind.

In wrestling, Tracy Turner can become Seminole's second state champion in two years. His brother, Troy, won the 171-pound title a year ago.

Preps

In track and field, Dorchelle Webster and Shownda Martin are already national-class performers. They have led the Lady Seminoles to back-to-back state titles and expect to add a third jewel next spring.

With these 10 stellar performers on the horizon, the Seminole faithful is anticipating a spectacular season. Great athletes, however, are not enough for a school to enjoy a successful year.

There must be enough funding to ensure these athletes have the proper training room aid, travel expenses, housing, food, etc. Money, as any booster club will tell you, is as essential to a successful athletic year as the students.

Friday is "Money Day" for Seminole High. Its athletes will be calling on Sanford businesses and residents from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. to join the Seminole Booster Club. Memberships cost $10, but the school will readily accept more. The membership provides free parking at the booster lot for Seminole's football games. Football season tickets are also on sale at the high school for $20.

Seminole Athletic Director Posey has set a goal of $1,500. Last year, the club raised just half of that total. He said the community is usually "very receptive" but sometimes it is a problem reaching all the potential donors.

The Seminole High Booster Club has never been bulging with members. It is a small — but mighty — band. It pales in membership to the other county booster clubs. Over the past 10 years, the membership has fluctuated from 80 to 160.

Of the membership, secretary Gayle Tipton said "about 30 members" are very active and get involved with the actual duties of the club. Posey and Tipton said they would like to

Cuban's Right Silences Bowe

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A Cuban with a sledgehammer for a right hand has shut the big mouth of American boxer Riddick Bowe at the Pan American Games.

Bowe, a fast-talking super heavyweight from New York, bragged on Tuesday how he was going to beat world amateur champion Jorge Gonzalez. He even wrote a poem about it, which he gleefully recited for all who would listen.

Gonzalez apparently wasn't amused by the muse. He knocked down Bowe in the first and third rounds Wednesday night and went on to a 3-2 victory to advance to the finals, sending the American searching for an excuse.

He found one. Bowe claimed he lost because of a fractured right hand. He said he hurt the hand at the Olympic Festival last month, but U.S. coach Roosevelt Sanders said it was the first he'd heard of.

"If my hand wasn't bothering me, I would have been able to put away the peasant," Bowe said.

Bowe, though, did credit his opponent.

"That cat can punch, believe you me," Bowe said. "I didn't think he had a good right hand, but unfortunately he did. ... The young man was able to withstand the pressure. He was stronger than I anticipated."

U.S. boxers split their other two fights with Cubans. Flyweight Michael Carbajal of Phoenix, Ariz., scored a unanimous decision over Juan Torres, but Andrew Maynard of Fort Carson, Colo., suffered what is believed to be torn ankle ligaments in the second round against Pablo Romero and was unable to continue.

Cuba has won five of seven bouts with Americans in the three days of competition. U.S. boxers have a 15-5 record, with all the losses coming to Cuba. All of Wednesday's losers earn a bronze medal.

Featherweight Kelece Banks of Chicago, the world champion at 125 pounds, won his bout as did welterweight Kenneth Gould of Rockford, Ill. Banks gained a 3-2 decision over Esteban Flores of Puerto Rico and Gould defeated Rey Rivera of Puerto Rico 5-0.

Banks was knocked down in the first round for the second straight fight and took a standing eight count midway through the third round. But he scored with solid jabs the rest of the fight.

"Even though I was knocked down, I thought I was a clear cut winner," Banks said. "I scored on more punches. He got with me some good shots but he didn't hurt me."

The United States had 157 gold medals with 109 silver and 74 bronze for a total of 340. Canada and Cuba were tied for second place with 151 medals, although Cuba had 62 gold to 29 for the Canadians.

American teams are headed for several gold medals. The U.S. men's and women's softball teams could win golds tonight, although the women's chances appear a lot better. U.S. women need only to defeat Puerto Rico, a team they already beat, to win the gold while the men must defeat Canada twice to win the gold medal.

The U.S. women's basketball team, behind Cynthia Cooper's 14 points, defeated Cuba 85-80 to move a victory from the gold medal.

Coaches Concentrate On Finding Offensive Linemen

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

After three days of grueling conditioning practices in shorts, the Seminole County football teams strapped on their pads for the first time in 1987 on Wednesday.

The players look forward to first day of full contact as they have been anticipating it all summer long. The coaches also like contact work as it gives them a chance to see how their offensive line is shaping up.

Here's a look at how the Seminole County coaches felt about the first day of hitting and their offensive lines:

● At Sanford, first-year coach Roger Beathard said that the intense heat put a damper on the Seminoles practice. "It was so hot out there (98 degrees) that we only went in shorts and shoulder pads," Beathard said. "We will go in full pads today, though."

Beathard said that "Noles defense, which returns eight starters, looked impressive in a perimeter period in practice. "The defense is way ahead of the offense at this point, but that can be expected," Beathard said. "The kids are all hustling, and overall I'm pleased with the effort that they have given so far."

The Seminole offensive line, which has not been overly powerful in the past few seasons, is one area that Beathard feels will be stronger this year. "We have some good battles going on in the line," Beathard said. "I think that we will be stronger than we have been in the past few years."

The Seminole offensive line is anchored by veteran guards Kevin Straub and Wilton Hooks. Beathard said that offensive line coach Al Lewis has done a fine job with his group of youngsters. "Al has done a heck of a job," Beathard said. "The kids have retained what they learned from the spring."

● At Lake Mary, coach Harry Nelson said that he was enthused with the way that his team hit. "We had a very crisp practice," Nelson said. "For the first day, I was extremely pleased with the way the kids hit."

Nelson said that he was particularly impressed with the play of his offensive line. "The offensive line doesn't usually get the credit that it deserves," Nelson said. "But these guys did a heck of a job today and they deserve to be rewarded."

The Rams line, which has a pair of brother combinations, consists of senior guard Eric Birle, junior tackle Alex Birle, senior center Jason Reib, senior guard Chad Gay and junior tackle Jason Gay. Chris Cornelious is alternating with Chad Gay. Todd Wright, a senior, will also be seeing considerable action according to Nelson.

"We aren't that big," Nelson said. "But I think that we will be a good blocking team."

One Ram that hopes the offensive line will be explosive is running back John Curry. "John is looking good," Nelson said. "He should have a super year if the line comes through that way that I think it will."

Nelson said he is taking a different approach this fall. "I'm going to ease them in," Nelson said. "I remember the first few years I was here, I used to bust their butts right off the bat."

● At Oviedo, coach Jack Blanton said that his team didn't get much of its practice in on account of the weather. "There was a lot of lightning out there, so we went into the weightroom and lifted," Blanton said. "We had a decent morning workout though."

Draft For Carter, Gladman

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NFL's decision to hold a supplemental draft for Ohio State All-American wide receiver Cris Carter and Pittsburgh running back Charles Gladman presents "a threat to the structure of both intercollegiate athletics and professional football," university officials said.

The NFL Wednesday announced it will hold the supplemental draft Aug. 28 for Carter and Gladman, who lost their college eligibility for improper dealings with agents.

"Needless to say, I'm quite disappointed they've chosen to do that," Pitt Director of Athletics Dr. Edward E. Bozik said. "The short-term consequences are bad enough, but the long-term potential consequences are even worse."

Attractants? Scents Don't Replace Sense

Fish scents and fish attractants are becoming more and more popular with bass fishermen. Many people insist that these secret mixtures actually attract bass and make them strike the lure.

What are the facts? Do they really work, or are these fish scents just another gimmick for the fishing industry to make more money?

First of all, for a scent to work, there has to be fish in the immediate area. If we fish in non-productive waters, nothing will help produce fish.

Secondly, there are times when the fish are inactive and even the best angler using the best technique will have a tough time catching them. A prime example of such tough conditions is the period of time immediately after the passage of a strong cold front.

Lastly, there is a lot of confusion about fish scents. Two key factors determine a fish scent's effectiveness. First, it must contain substances that smell attractive to a fish. Secondly, once the scent smells good, it must also disperse in a manner so that fish can smell it.

Some scents are oil-based and do not mix with water. You can test to see if a scent is oil-based by dropping some on the water surface. If it floats, as a oil slick, it's oil-based. If it spreads out in a cloud-like fashion, then it's water-soluble. Fish scents that are water-soluble work better because they disperse in the water and attract fish.

Oil-based scents work only once the fish takes them into their mouth or touches them. They can't, however, be smelled at any distance by fish.

Water-soluble scents, since they disperse into the water, can actually be smelled and tasted by fish. Some water-soluble scents disperse too quickly and come off the lure during the first foot or two of the retrieve.

The ideal situation is for the scent to disperse slowly. Scents that disperse slowly are effective for longer periods of time.

Experts agree that fish scents do work, but there is a rule of thumb that should be considered when using fish scents. The slower our presentation, the more important smell becomes. The faster our presentation, the less effect smell has.

So here is the bottom line in fish scents. Fish scents can work if utilized properly. Find a water-soluble scent that will not disperse too quickly and use fish scents primarily on slow moving lures such as plastic worms.

Fish scents are not magic and will not produce stringers of giant bass with no little effort. A fisherman has to be knowledgeable in order to have success with fish scents. Fish scents will never replace fish sense.

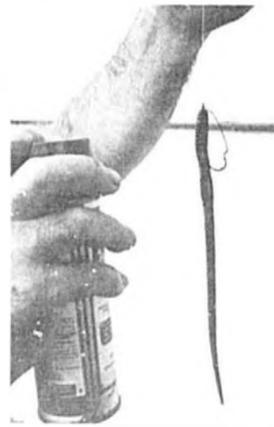

SHUPE'S SCOOP — Do you have a problem with kinks in your monofilament line? A simple way to remove kinks is to pull the mono through a small square of inner tube. The heat caused by the friction will remove even the toughest of kinks.

WEEKEND CAST — Rick Rawlins of Highland Park said that fishing is very slow this month, but Dell reports that the bass in the 1-3 pound range are biting good for this time of year. Plenty of bream and speckled perch are still being caught around the new bridge and catfish are cooperating in virtually all parts of the river. The area around Pleasant Point has produced some monster fish in recent weeks.

Traut, redfish and snook are being caught in good numbers at Sebastian Inlet. Snook and redfish must be released, but trout are fair game. Mirror lures, Mavericks and jugs are producing most of the fish. Finger crabs and large blue shrimp will also catch well.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral says that a wild school of tarpon is migrating and showed up offshore Friday. Eight in the 30-40 pound range moved in close to shore and fish all hooked. Water have moved into water deeper water. All fish big and beautiful. Some 2000 fish caught in the Port.

Molitor Gets 34; Grasps The Irony

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Paul Molitor grasps the irony of his hitting streak.

"I know Joe DiMaggio's 56 game hitting streak ended here in Cleveland (July 17, 1941)," the Milwaukee Brewers designated hitter said. "I read about that, but I'm not going to think about it. I just know I have to face Ken Schrom (tonight) and that's all that's on my mind."

Molitor stretched his hitting streak to 34 games with four hits that included a three-run homer and Rob Deer added a grand slam in an eight-run fourth inning Wednesday night, helping the Brewers to a 13-2 rout of the Indians.

Molitor's streak is the longest in the major leagues since Pete Rose of Cincinnati hit in 34 straight games in 1978, and the longest in the American League since Don DiMaggio of Boston hit in 34 straight in 1940.

It's a great honor to be among this company, Molitor said. When I retire, I'd like to go back and enjoy this nostalgia.

Stewart Stymies Toronto

United Press International The Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees need to look no farther than Oakland for a Toronto Blue Jays killer.

"I've just been real lucky," said Dave Stewart, 17-8, who led the A's to a 7-3 victory over Toronto Wednesday, his third triumph this season over the Blue Jays without a loss.

The A's victory knocked the Blue Jays from first place in the American League East, as the Tigers defeated the Minnesota Twins 7-1 to take a half-game lead. New York is 2 1/2 game back in third.

Stewart, 17-8, has won 10 of his last 11 decisions and passed Bret Saberhagen to become the major leaguers' top winner.

Mets Fail to Return Favor, Lose in 10th

United Press International When the New York Mets failed to return a favor, they shortchanged themselves.

The Houston Astros helped the Mets by beating the National League East-leading St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, giving New York the chance to close within 2 1/2 games. The Mets, however, did not reciprocate against the West-leading San Francisco Giants, falling 10-6 in 10 innings.

The Giants' victory prevented the third-place Astros from drawing within half a game of the West lead. Instead, San Francisco gained a game on the Cincinnati Reds and maintained its 1 1/2-game edge over Houston.

"They took advantage of every opportunity we gave them," New York losing pitcher Roger McDowell said. "We did not cash ours."

At New York, Chili Davis hit a sacrifice fly to key San Francisco's four-run 10th inning. He drove in Candy Maldonado, who had opened the inning with a walk off McDowell. Will Clark's single sent Maldonado to third. Scott Garretts, the winner and fifth Giants pitcher, doubled home Clark with the insurance run.

At Houston, Bob Knepper and Larry Andersen combined on a four-hitter and Ken Caminiti doubled home a pair of runs in the seventh inning to hand the Cardinals their fourth straight loss.

Expos Blow Big Lead, Streak

MONTREAL (UPI) — Shortstop Craig Shipley started a five-run rally with his two-run bases-loaded single in the eighth inning Wednesday night helping to carry the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 10-9 victory over Montreal, snapping the Expos' five-game winning streak.

Shipley sent a single up the middle after Joe Hesketh had walked two batters and his replacement Jeff Parrett, 4-5, had walked another to load the bases.

"I just wanted a ground ball to get at least one run in," said Shipley.

A grounder by Steve Sax tied the score 8-8 and pinch hitter Alex Trevino singled home the winning run. John Shelby doubled home the insurance run.

The Dodgers needed that last run because Mitch Webster made the score 10-9 in the eighth with his 10th home run.

Mandlikova Joins 500-Win Club

TORONTO (UPI) — Gaining membership in the 500-victory club has taken Hana Mandlikova seven years, and she doubts she will be able to double that total.

Mandlikova joined an elite group in the tennis world Wednesday by scoring her 500th career match victory in the second round of the $280,000 Canadian Open Women's Tennis Championships.

Mandlikova completely outclassed Alycia Moulton to take the first set 6-0 and held on to win the second 7-5.

Only seven other women players have reached the 500 club: Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Virginia Wade, Evonne Goolagong Cawley, Billie Jean King, Wendy Turnbull and Rosie Casal.

Fouts Leaves Camp, Misses Spanos

United Press International
LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Quarterback Dan Fouts left the San Diego Chargers' training camp for a medical examination in Los Angeles Wednesday, the day team owner Alex Spanos was to make his first public appearance since threatening to trade the 15-year veteran.

By leaving, Fouts missed an opportunity for an audience with Spanos to tell him face-to-face he would play for the $750,000 called for in his contract, which has two years left.

"He has been excused from this afternoon's meetings and is going to Los Angeles," Chargers Coach Al Saunders said.

Saunders said Fouts, who has a strained lower back and has not yet been cleared to play, was expected to return to camp Wednesday evening. Spanos was expected at the Chargers' UC-San Diego camp late Wednesday afternoon.

Spanos announced Aug. 12 he would trade Fouts because the quarterback had demanded a raise and rejected an offer that would have given him $1 million this season.

TAMPA — Steve DeBerg will quarterback the first half and Vinny Testaverde will take care of the second half at the Tampa Bay quarterback duel enters its second week Saturday at home against the New York Jets, head coach Ray Perkins said Wednesday.

Testaverde, the Bucs' No. 1 pick, threw for three TDs in the final 6:18 in Saturday's 31-30 setback to Cincinnati. DeBerg completed 4 of 5 short passes in the first half.

Mike Shula, apparently relegated to No. 3, threw a first-half scoring pass.

245-pound standout, have also been impressive. The smallest Howell lineman is guard Jason Rosenball, a 5-foot-10, 190 pounder.

At Longwood Lyman, coach Bill Scott said that his squad was in a working mood. "Things were very serious out there today," Scott said. "The kids have been working hard, and I feel that we will be a good team."

The line is an area that the Greyhounds would also like to see improve this season. "Our line wasn't all that great last season," Scott said. "But I think that we are bigger this season, and I think that we will be a lot better."

Scott said that nobody has nailed down a starting job as yet. "We (the coaches) are being very objective," Scott said. "There are a lot of good battles going on, and that's good."

At Altamonte Springs Lake Brantley, coach Fred Almon said that his team is already banged up. "We had four kids go down with injuries today," Almon said. "It has started early."

One player that the Patriots lost for two months in receiver Steve Popp. Popp chipped his elbow in Tuesday's practice.

Almon said that he is going to keep his hitting to a minimum in order to keep his players healthy. "We can't afford to lose anybody because we don't have much depth," Almon said. "We won't be hitting all that much."

The Brantley offensive line, which was shaky last season, should be stronger this season as it will be more experienced. Veteran guards Pat Gibson and Derek Williford will lead the line. Tackles Tim Randolph and Chance Wistrom have also looked good. "We are small," Almon said. "But the kids know the wishbone, and we should be in good shape."

Almon said losing senior tackle Randy Green and sophomore tight end Jerrey Thurston also hurt. Green, who has been bothered by a knee injury, and Thurston decided to concentrate on baseball.

Arena Football Eyes Florida

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Arena football may be coming to Florida.

Commissioner Jim Foster said Wednesday that the league is planning to expand and would like to place a team in Florida.

Orlando is building a new arena for its National Basketball Association expansion team, but the facility will not be finished in time for the 1988 arena football season. One scenario has a team in Daytona Beach in 1988, then moving to Orlando the following year.
