

School Board Will Argue Integrate Midway By January, U.S. Orders

By MARYLIN SHEDDAN
Herald Staff Writer

The United States Justice Department has filed a request with U.S. District Court in Orlando that Midway Elementary School be integrated at the beginning of the second semester of the current school year, Jan. 30, 1978.

"We have received a response from the Justice Department to our proposed plan for Midway integration," attorney Ned Julian said today.

"They said they have no objection to the Seminole County school district attempting the proposed plan, but they want it implemented at the beginning of next semester instead of at the beginning of the 1978-79 school year as the court already ordered.

The proposed plan calls for some students now attending Goldsboro and Pinecrest Elementary schools to be transferred to Midway.

Argument on the starting date for the integration plan will be heard Thursday by U.S. District Judge George C. Young in Orlando. Judge Young had already ordered that integration take place beginning in September, 1978.

"The Justice Department also said in this response that, if an attempt to integrate Midway this next semester results in people moving out of the area or is otherwise unsuccessful the school district must submit another plan for integrating the following fall," Julian said.

"We (the school district officials) will be arguing against this early implementation," Julian said, "because of the court's previous order."

The plan would change Midway from its present almost totally black population to one where the percentage of white to black is "about 35-65," Julian said.

The plan under consideration was presented to the school board by Supt. William P. Layer as "the least disruptive and expensive way of complying with the court order."

Lake Brantley: A Week Of Human Rights Action

We care... We want to see some changes made—and help make them.

We want to spread the word. This is Human Rights Week at Lake Brantley High School.

Those are the messages that 130 11th and 12th graders at Lake Brantley High School want to spread. They are talking to other students, businessmen and clubs, and anyone who will listen.

They are students of civil rights, personal rights, women's rights "human rights" they emphasize. They attend a class in minority literature taught by Mrs. Tracy Sullivan, who created the four-part course herself.

"These students investigate 300 cases of rights violations," says Mrs. Sullivan.

"Let them lose in the library and they chose whatever interested them—but they were not allowed to duplicate each other. Each one had to study a separate case."

The students not only investigated human rights in books, but saw films, heard speakers and created posters telling about the violation of human rights in other countries—and in this one.

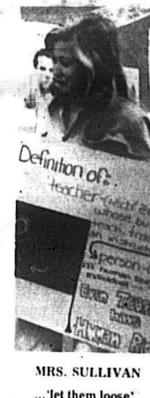

Mrs. Sullivan's course is divided into four parts: Jewish, Oriental, Indian and Black literature. In each section students make a special study of the treatment of that segment of the population by the rest of the world.

"We explore the meaning of prejudice and determine its source and discuss the side effects it has on our life as well as the minority groups," Mrs. Sullivan explains.

The classes this year are made up entirely of white students, she said, "but there are other races as well."

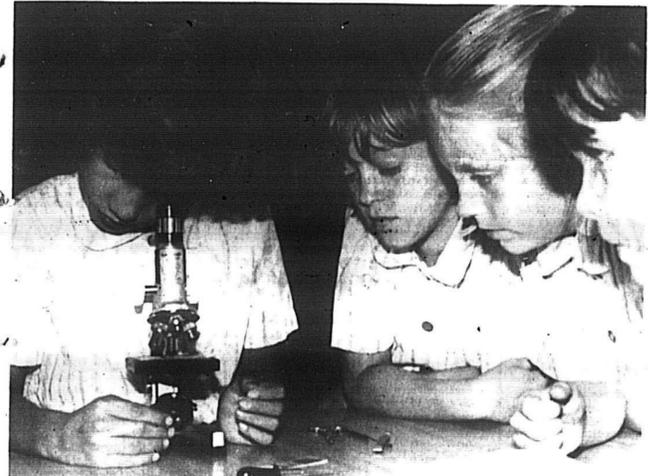

Speakers who help the youngsters explore prejudice have included Mrs. Tess Wise, an escapee from a Polish concentration camp when she was 16, and Rabbi Larry Halpern from the Congregation of Liberal Judaism, who told them of the divisions within the Jewish religion.

Similar speakers will acquaint students with the problems experienced by other "minorities" and problems of

In recent years as Seminole County has grown in population from a rural county to part of a metropolitan area, the sheriff's department also has grown.

This year with a $3.31 million budget and 192 employees, a new employee might find it difficult to become familiar with the many duties and functions of the department without being able to work in all the divisions. So Sheriff John Polk has instituted a new "on-the-job" training program for orientation of new employees.

Last week five new department members went through the one-week program.

"It's imperative that all new employees, regardless of the division they're going into, get an overview of the entire department," Polk said. "This way each one will basically know operations and problems of each division and the department as a whole."

"It will also prove helpful in emergency situations where a deputy from patrol may be brought in to work in other divisions," Polk said.

100-Plus Arrested In India Protest

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Police arrested more than 1,000 persons protesting the arrest on corruption charges of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, the national news agency Samachar reported today. Some 900 members of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party were arrested in her home state of Uttar Pradesh, in northern India, during demonstrations Sunday arranged by the party on what it called an "anti-repression day."

Miami 'Nightmare' Concert

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The rally at Amsterdam's concert hall was called "The Miami Nightmare." About 2,000 gay rights supporters paid between $10 and $40 each to watch Dutch entertainers satirize singer Anita Bryant. The Dutch Foundation for Free Human Relations sponsored the rally to pay for a $40,000 advertisement in Time magazine criticizing Miss Bryant's crusade in the United States against homosexuals.

ANI, Turkey (AP) — Eighteen Soviet divisions are stationed in the Caucasus northeast of the Soviet-Turkish border, but the Turks have only half that many divisions on their side of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's easternmost flank, senior NATO commanders report. ATLANTA (AP) — Bert Lance, who resigned as national budget director under pressure about personal financial dealings, says he knows nothing about a published report that $1,366,000 in federal funds was deposited in the National Bank of Georgia, in which he is a major stockholder. Longshoremen Continue Strike

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The port of New Orleans is losing thousands of dollars every hour as longshoremen continue a general strike. Union leaders are trying to get them to cooperate with a national strike aimed only at containerized cargo. The International Longshoremen's Association called a strike of container ships on Oct. 1, when work contracts expired, but workers in New Orleans, where a larger percentage of cargo is containerized, called a general strike.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dealings of a California insurance man could cost labor unions in eight states several million dollars, according to testimony before a Senate subcommittee. Up to $11.7 million in insurance premiums may have been misused between 1973 and 1976 by Joseph Hauser, an investigator said. Hauser was convicted in March of trying to bribe California union officials in exchange for their health insurance business.

Ombudsmen Hear Nursing Home Gripes

By JANE CASSELI BERRY Herald Staff Writer

Of the 21 million elderly citizens in the United States, many are living out their remaining days in the nursing homes. Although most nursing homes are trying to fulfill their function of providing good care, in some cases the elderly patients are the helpless victims of abuse and neglect in the very institutions paid to care for them.

Such patients are often afraid to report their complaints for fear of retaliation and some have no friends or relatives to look after their interest.

To whom can they turn for help and protection?

Thanks to the Nursing Home Ombudsman Committee established by the Florida Legislature, nursing home patients in this state now have an advocate.

District 7 serving Seminole, Orange, Osceola and Brevard counties was set up to protect the rights and interests of nursing home patients in matters pertaining to health, welfare and general care, according to Dr. Garrett J. Crotty, Seminole County representative on the committee.

"The purpose of this committee is to provide a focal point whereby complaints regarding nursing home care can be received, investigated and resolved as expeditiously as possible," Crotty said.

Dr. Crotty said complaints sent to this committee are treated with confidentiality and can even be made anonymously. The law provides protection from any retaliation because of complaints made to the committee, which is empowered by law to investigate and remedy any situation it finds in violation of Florida statutes.

There are 23 nursing homes within this district, five of which are located in Seminole County. Each nursing home is supposed to display a poster giving information on how to report a complaint to the Ombudsman Committee, and each patient is supposed to have a pamphlet and a complaint form, according to Florence Gluckman, chairman of the district committee.

The Ombudsman committee is composed of a doctor, nurse, social worker, nursing home administrator, lawyer, pharmacist, dietitian and five members of the community at large. Mrs. Gluckman said they hope to obtain another representative from Seminole County, as Mrs. Lois Jackson, a former member, resigned. Committee members are appointed by the governor to two-year terms.

Individuals wishing to register complaints with the committee on behalf of nursing home patients can call the client representative specialist Jean Cushman, at 645-5525. The complaint also may be submitted in writing to District Nursing Home Ombudsman Committee, 1350 Orange Ave., Winter Park, Fla. 32789.

Mrs. Gluckman said in the year and a half the committee has been functioning there were about 30 complaints and nursing homes were "very responsive" in correcting problems.

The majority of the complaints dealt with the disappearance of clothing or other personal items, overcharges, or lack of adequate attention—bedsores, bed linen not changed, not fed on time or those unable to feed themselves not helped to eat, or immobile patients left too long in one position, she said.

When a complaint that a nursing home aide had struck a patient was passed on to a nursing home administrator in this district, the employee was fired immediately, Mrs. Gluckman said. "Sometimes nursing homes are understaffed or have problems keeping employees," she said. "Aides are a low-paid group of employees and when they get trained they quit to go where they can get more money, therefore there is a lot of turnover. If a nursing home wants to make money, they pay the minimum salary rather than try to attract better trained workers."

"Every complaint received is investigated by either a member of the committee or the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services," said Mrs. Gluckman. "Every one is assumed to be genuine until it is determined whether or not it is justified," she said. It is decided whether or not the condition is permanent or temporary and if it can be resolved, then it comes before the committee.

The investigators can go to a nursing home without warning and talk to the administrator, nurse in charge, and the patient and examine the facilities. They try to get an explanation and, if the complaint is justified, a promise to correct the situation. They then report back to the complainant, and if there is any further problem they then let the committee know and they will take immediate action, Mrs. Gluckman said.

The nursing home is forbidden to take retaliatory action against the patient or other complainant. "We respect anonymity, sometimes aides in nursing homes make a complaint on the behalf of a patient," Mrs. Gluckman said. "Sometimes people outlive their family and no one else is concerned. Medicaid pays the nursing home bills, but they have no one to look after their personal interest," she added.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Florida's Medicaid Study Sparks Major Controversy

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A study that was started by the head of Florida's social-service agency to find ways of improving the oft maligned Medicaid program has touched off a furor in the department. Secretary William J. Page of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) created the Medical Services Redevelopment Project last week to recommend sweeping administrative changes in the $251.3 million program. Meanwhile last week, HRS officials told a legislative committee that the Medicaid program will run up a $20-million deficit this year. Lawmakers provided about $11.9 million last spring to keep the program going during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

All Is Back To Normal

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Donald Tucker's decision to break off his pursuit of a nomination to the Civil Aeronautics Board in order to have returned the Florida House, of which he is speaker, to normal after months of uncertainty. "It's back to business as usual," says one veteran official. "Don has a lot of things on his mind right now, but there's no question that he's going to be more involved in the day-to-day workings of the house."

Poston Has 'A Lot To Say'

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — While his colleagues are preparing to draw up rules for his trial, state Sen. Ralph Poston may have decided to get in the first word. "There, I'm going to give you a load," the Miami Democrat said in urging newsmen to attend a press conference today at the Capitol. Poston's announcement was prelude to three days of committee hearings scheduled to begin Tuesday as both houses prepare for the 1978 session.

300 Join In Boeing Co. Strike

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — Some 300 Lockheed employees at Cape Canaveral joined 750 employees of the Boeing Co.'s spacecraft workforce today in strikes against the companies in separate contract disputes. The Lockheed employees voted "overwhelmingly" to join their strike, which began at a minute after midnight this morning, said Jim Minton, a union spokesman.

Fire Blamed On Smoking

MIAMI (AP) — A fire blamed on careless smoking was contained to one room but forced the temporary evacuation of all 46 patients at Westchester Hospital, firemen say. No injuries were reported. The one room was gutted by the Sunday blaze and smoke from it blackened nearly half the corridors of the 100-bed osteopathic hospital west of Miami. Fire officials lauded the hospital staff's evacuation procedures. But they also criticized what they called "stupid mistakes." The officials said there was an undue delay in reporting the blaze. They also said staffers showed bad judgment in not closing off the burning room.

No-Fault Speeds Washout

MIAMI (AP) — No-fault auto insurance enables injured drivers to receive speedy treatment and payment for their claims, resulting in lower costs, an ad hoc Automobile Insurance Study Commission has been told. "It doesn't cost any more to treat an arm broken in a fall from a tree than it does to treat an arm broken in an auto accident," according to Dr. Charles Virgin, a Miami Dolphins team physician and chairman of the commission's medical and fraud subcommittee. "But the accident costs more because of the need for medical reports and depositions (for use in a lawsuit)," he said at a weekend meeting of the commission. "Those additional costs should not be considered medical costs."

Churchmen At Services

WEST PALM BEACH (AP) — Members of the Church of the Holy Spirit who voted last week to sever ties with the Episcopal Church attended services at the church building Sunday. About 50 persons showed up for the 8 a.m. Sunday service and 110 for the 10 a.m. service — the usual weekday turnout, according to the Rev. Peter Watterson. The congregation voted 185-to-14 last week to break away from the Episcopal Church because of liberalization on several key issues, including the decision to allow the ordination of women as priests.

Sanford's EEO Boss Likes Horses

A Place In The City — And Country

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

What is an EEO (Equal Employment Opportunity) officer?

According to Francie Wynalda, who began her EEO job with the City of Sanford at a salary of $10,000 annually last week, the office:

Requires affirmative action, and personnel administration to see that the city is in compliance with federal guidelines.

She defines the word "affirmative" as an employment practice designed to remove barriers to the employment of minority groups, a way to provide employment, training and promotion where all classes of people are treated equally without discrimination of any kind.

Miss Wynalda, who is "32 and holding," and single, moved to Central Florida in March, 1968 from Greenville, S.C. Grand Rapids in Michigan, and her first job was as a secretary for General Electric.

"I got into personnel and professional recruitment and began working on a degree at night school. I liked college so much, I quit my job and went to college full time," she said.

She received her associates degree at Daytona Beach Junior College, her undergraduate degree at Florida Technological University (FTU) and her master of science degree at Rollins College. Her degrees are in business administration with major in management.

While at FTU she worked in the personnel office and she and another person operated the personnel office during her time at Rollins.

She was director of personnel at the Carlton House and was on the corporate staff at Florida Gas when she got involved with the EEO office there. "The job was finding minorities and getting them on the payroll," she said.

In August, Miss Wynalda purchased a home in the Markham Woods area — "the country" — and is raising three horses currently and another on the way. She bought her first horse two years ago. Caring for the horses takes up all her spare time. She does all the feeding and grooming herself and shows the horses or has a professional person do it for her. She also does her own fence work and hauls her horse feed and bales of hay.

Miss Wynalda is on the board of directors of the Arabian Horse Club, Orlando, and on the board of the Rollins College Alumni Association as well as a member of the Central Florida Personnel Association, a chapter of the national organization.

Her job with Sanford is her first in government. Currently, Miss Wynalda is "trying to read up on policies and procedures of the city and how it operates." She has taken tours of all the city facilities, the public utility plants and public works areas.

"I hope to meet more of the employees, get out and circulate and get to know them," she said.

Of personnel work, she said that the city job presents a challenge, adding it is important in this line particularly to be a generalist and well-rounded. "Initially, in her career, she hopes to be a director of personnel for a governmental unit or some organization."

While Miss Wynalda is still looking for the right man and marriage may be in her future, she has no desire to be a mother.

FRANCIE WYNALDA ON THE FARM

"I have been self-sustaining for some years, worked my way up from file clerk and paid my own way," she said. "I have become independent but don't consider myself a flag-waving liberal. Some women are cut out to be mothers and homemakers. I admire women who can work and raise children at the same time. "But I have enough responsibility. Perhaps a husband some day," she said.

More Time On ERA OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department opinion on whether Congress can extend the ratification deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment is due within 10 days, Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell says. "They (staff members) have been working on it possibly for two weeks now," he said Sunday.

The seven-year deadline was set in 1972. Thirty-five states have passed the ERA and three more must ratify it by March 22, 1979, to make it part of the Constitution. Bell was interviewed Sunday

Energy Department: Growth Inevitable

Energy czar James Schlesinger predicts the new Department of Energy will actually decrease in size over the years, heading for an ever lower profile as America emerges in an energy abundant future. That is to mollify those of us watching the rapid formation of a giant new bureaucracy in Washington with trepidation.

It would be very nice if Schlesinger turned out to be correct, that, say, twenty years from now the Department of Energy will be manned by some unproductive civil servant who spends his time drinking coffee and listening to Beethoven records. But there are two good reasons to remain skeptical about Schlesinger's prognostication.

One, of course, is that the whole history of bureaucratic momentum shows something radically different from the natural shrinkage, however involuntary, of government agencies. It is not difficult to take the cynical view that the professional E-men will do their best to create shortages so that they might have an industry to manage. Indeed, if you care to find a culprit for the shortages we've already weathered, you can walk blindfolded into Washington, D.C., spin and point.

The other reason to doubt Schlesinger's word is that on the subject of energy this complete cabinet member has been consistently and enormously wrong about nearly everything. We were on a collision course with a total exhaustion of fuel, Schlesinger used to say; that would happen (in the mid-1980s). But serious students of energy know that the earth contains energy galore, including thousands of years of natural gas, the loss of which the White House team saw as imminent. They now sound less alarmist, as reality unfolds before them.

Certainly there is enough natural gas to last us until the solar energy conversion materializes. And the quickest and most efficient way to speed that conversion is to allow the continued operation of the law of supply and demand, which the Rev. Dr. Schlesinger supposed had been repealed.

That is like saying that the legislature can make this sun rise in the West, which of course is what Congress has been trying to do for two centuries. The law of supply and demand will continue to operate, though it will have to figure the costs of the energy bureaucracy into its equation.

Our prediction: The Department of Energy will grow like Topsy; the energy bureaucrats and the energy contractors will breed like bunnies. In a time when the White House proposes a corps of teen-aged neighborhood energy snoopers, surely that prediction is safer.

Lowly Mushroom

Post Robert Southwell said in the 16th Century that: "He that high growth on cedars did bestow gave also lowly mushrooms leave to grow."

Tell that to the French and Italians in the 20th Century. The French, it seems, are incensed that Italians are swarming to a choice mushroom-growing region in France and snipping mushrooms even before the French awaken.

Adding insult to injury, the Italians aren't even eating the mushrooms themselves because they are too valuable. Instead, they are selling them back to France for as much as $25 per pound.

"The flight of mushrooms," reports Le Matin, the Nice newspaper, "could lead to a culinary and economic disaster."

At the risk of being the Irv of French mushroom lovers on our heads, we admit some sympathy for the Italians. They haven't been accused of good planning, industriousness and execution of strategy too often lately. And anybody who is at a mushroom field 50 to 60 miles from his home at daybreak should be encouraged.

However, one should never underestimate the wrath of a mushroom lover scorned. We have no doubt that the mushroom cloud hanging over French-Italian relations is a genuine threat to peace.

As such, it should have a place on the United Nations agenda, well ahead of the annual down-with-Israel resolution.

County Commissioner Robert French may be having his official split with the Democratic Party sooner than anticipated.

He said Wednesday night that he and Rod Cahle, chairman of the local Democratic Executive Committee, will be meeting at French's office at the courthouse Monday morning to discuss their differences.

The two, according to French, have had at least two contacts — a letter from Cahle to French and a telephone conversation — since French announced that he is considering changing his political affiliation to the GOP.

At the time of the announcement French said that he is considering the change because of the refusal of local Democrats to permit him to participate in party decisions on the everyday operation of the party.

Neither the letter nor the telephone conversation were especially amicable, as the county commissioner relates the experience.

French said earlier that he would make a decision about whether to change or not before the end of the year.

Currently, with the appointment of John Alexander, the county's official political commissioner at this moment is two Republicans — Dick Williams (chairman) and Bill Kirchhoff — and three Democrats — French, Harry Kwiatkowski and Alexander.

French, this week, acted as chairman of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County during the absence of both the chairman and vice chairman. He operated the meeting under what he humorously called "Robert French's" rules of order.

French appears to have gained a great deal of self-confidence since he assumed office nearly 11 months ago. But, nothing seems to add to a man's self-esteem and self-confidence more than being elected to public office.

French told the gathering that Oviedo's new mayor, Ben Beasley fully intends to assume the chair of the organization at its November meeting.

The group had believed that the vice-chairman, Gerald Christensen, Mayor of Casselberry would step up as chairman when Oviedo's Mayor failed to seek re-election in his hometown until it was brought to their attention that the officers were elected as representatives of their respective governmental bodies rather than as individuals.

The qualification period has opened in the ballot will be candidates for the two council posts currently held by Nathan Van Meter and John Leighty and the mayor's office currently held by Christensen.

Tom Embree, who formerly served one term as a councilman and was selected by his colleagues as the council chairman for one of the two years, has qualified as a candidate for the city council now that he is back in the area again.

Embree, a career Navy man, declined to seek re-election when he was transferred out of state. His family retained his home in Casselberry during his absence.

Leighty, a veteran three-term councilman; Dick Lusk, who ran unsuccessfully for the council once before, and Van Meter, completing his first term on the board, have picked up qualifying documents for the council. Bill Grier, who served two terms on the council and 1 1/2 terms as mayor previously, has picked up papers for the mayor's office, as he earlier announced he would.

Campaign Funds For Defense?

WASHINGTON — Members of the House and Senate accused of criminal activity may soon be able to use money contributed to their campaign funds to pay the legal fees required for their defense.

A midwestern congressman has just received official sanction to use his campaign surplus to pay attorney's fees incurred while he was the target of five separate criminal investigations conducted by three federal law enforcement agencies.

The Federal Election Commission (FEC) "advisory opinion" technically applies only to the St. Louis Democrat who requested the advice. Rep. William D. Clay, but it also establishes an important precedent with far-reaching and potentially harmful implications.

Both houses of Congress amended their rules earlier this year to prohibit members from converting campaign funds to their "personal" use, but Clay argues that the criminal investigations were "relative to official conduct in office."

The lawyers' fees "were incurred in order to defend my right to maintain my position as a public official," the 46-year-old black congressman argued in an Aug. 5 letter to the FEC.

Because "my position as an elected official was placed in jeopardy by certain grand jury investigations, to the same degree used when challenged by an opponent, I contend the legal expenses incurred are proper campaign expenses," Clay added.

On Aug. 25, the FEC voted 6-0 to grant his request, on the grounds that the applicable federal law allows a congressman to use excess campaign donations "to defray any ordinary and necessary expenses incurred by him in connection with his duties as a holder of federal office" or "for any other lawful purpose."

Investigations of Clay involving narcotics trafficking, tax evasion and campaign finance violations have been terminated by the Drug Enforcement Administration, Internal Revenue Service and Justice Department without any charges brought against the congressman.

His former administrative assistant pleaded guilty following a probe of payroll padding in Clay's congressional office. In the last case, Clay paid the Justice Department $1,754 as reimbursement for allegedly fraudulent expenses collected in connection with congressional travel.

Clay's political obscurity to political power has been smooth and subtle. He has the air more of a college professor than an energy czar. But behind the pipe smoke and contemplative manner, he has the heart of an industrial tycoon.

He has been an unabashed advocate of nuclear power, for example, ever since he came out of the Atomic Energy Commission in the early 1970s. The big utility companies desperately want to develop energy, of course, that will utilize their existing grid systems and permit them to go on selling electricity to the populace. A more revolutionary form of energy, such as solar power, might put the utility industry out of business.

There is disquieting evidence that Schlesinger may be quietly stacking the new Energy Dept. with subordinates who share his enthusiasm for nuclear power. Top policymaking positions will go, for example, to John O'Leary and Dale Myers, who are regarded as nuclear proponents.

Dr. James Liverman, a nuclear apologist, has been mentioned as Schlesinger's choice to be his new environmental chief. This possibility has so outraged environmentalists that a coalition has drafted off a private letter to Schlesinger, warning that they "would oppose" Liverman's nomination.

Schlesinger's most controversial choice, however, may turn out to be Robert Thorne, who has been mentioned as Schlesinger's choice to be his Research and Development Administration (ERDA). Schlesinger has Thorne in mind as his assistant secretary in charge of technology, an

Why Depressed Market?

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the stock market depressed because of fears of higher interest rates, the imbalance of trade, worry about upcoming income tax proposals, or concern that Congress will over-react to the slowdown?

Or perhaps because it is feared a recession is just over the horizon, that the Carter administration's programs are slow to develop, that government is anti-business, that the Fed is confused, that U.S. productivity is slowing?

Still searching? Try these: a belief that consumer confidence is slipping; that capital investment by industry isn't taking up the slack that we are headed into the depths of the economic cycle.

All were offered this week by market analysts, who found that "explanations" are as much a commodity for sale as are forecasts of things to come.

The grab-bag of explanations is now over-stuffed with plausible theories, always available to those who claim to have some understanding of the market or who simply cannot afford to appear mute before puzzled clients.

Although he has offered some theories of his own in the past — mainly that the Fed's money policy is the cause — John Wright this week breaks with the ranks, avoids explanations and just tells where the market is.

Measured in inflation's adjusted dollars, he observes, the Dow Jones Industrial Average is now about the same as its average price 23 years ago, lower even than in the 1974 bear market.

Meanwhile, he continues, earnings are now 30 percent higher than in 1954, and dividends are about 8 percent greater and growing faster than earnings.

He used $113,250 of the taxpayers' money to establish the Energy Awareness Project — an idea advanced by a registered nuclear lobbyist group known as the California Council on Environmental and Economic Balance (CEECEB).

There is a suspicion that the Energy Awareness Project was really supposed to make the public and Congress more aware of nuclear energy, although a CEECEB spokesman told us the project was intended to inform the public on all energy alternatives.

The CEECEB stated in its original proposal, without mentioning nuclear power, that "we would want participants to write their congressmen to ask them to support specific legislation, pass resolutions, write letters to the editor."

Thorne's office adopted this idea to the tune of $113,250 over the objections of at least one subordinate who warned in an internal memo: "I believe much as effort to be both ill-conceived and mis-directed." He added with emphasis: "The logic of the proposal not only escapes me; but, it outline would appear to be an excellent plan for one of the greatest political bondages of modern times."

The suspicions of Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., have also been aroused. He has asked the

VIEWPOINT

Failure To Regulate Gas Prices

By KENNETH ESKEY

A new study by a North Carolina economist confirms what many energy experts have been saying all along — that Congress will be making a serious mistake this fall if it fails to deregulate the price of natural gas.

Dr. Edward W. Erickson of North Carolina State University argues (in a report prepared for the gas industry) that Americans could save at least $10 billion in fuel costs over the next 12 years if gas producers were given a financial incentive to drill new wells.

Without the new wells, Erickson points out, the country will have to import expensive oil from the Middle East, convert power plants from gas to coal and rely more heavily on synthetic and liquefied natural gas at premium prices.

Erickson's analysis is timely because the Carter administration wants to stamp a lid of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet on the price of natural gas. The House already has approved this dubious proposal. And the vote in the Senate is likely to be close.

The administration, it seems to us, is being penny wise and pound foolish on the deregulation issue. What's the sense in keeping natural gas prices artificially low (rolling them back from $2 to $1.25 in some states) if production falls off and the country is forced into using more expensive forms of fuel?

For an example of why good Samaritanism could be expensive, consider the financial problems being encountered by a small-but-generous hospital in South Williams, Ky.

The 143-bed hospital, operated on a shoestring by the Presbyterian Church, offered refuge, meals and medical care to hundreds of coal miners and their families who were driven from their homes in Williamson, W. Va., last spring by flooding along the Tug River, which divides the two towns.

Hospital staff members served 1,500 meals a day, provided insulin to diabetics and took part in a measles immunization program to prevent typhoid, typhus and diphtheria epidemics in the valley.

Yet when the hospital, which has been losing money for years, asked the government for $125,000 in reimbursement, the request was turned down by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration because the aid hadn't been officially authorized.

It is, of course, always gratifying to learn that federal agencies are doing their best to protect the taxpayer's dollar. But it seems to us that when donors are killed and hundreds made homeless by flash flooding, a hospital can be excused from neglecting the normal chain of command.

But these sentences were too strong for scholarly Stuart Eizenstat, the President's top domestic policy adviser. He drafted off a confidential memo to Carter, declaring, "I am very concerned about the marijuana section of this message."

Eizenstat protested that "the section on marijuana is written in an almost laudatory tone, which I believe is unfortunate." Some of the sentences, he objected, "almost seem to be a positive recommendation of the drug."

The president struck out the sentences that Eizenstat didn't like. Nevertheless, the final message endorsed decriminalization of small amounts of pot.

MORE ON MOORE — West Virginia's ex-Gov. Arch Moore is a most sophisticated and witty man. He has a clean-cut, American look. Yet we have been obliged to write from time to time about his shenanigans. This finally led to an investigation of Moore by the state's ethics committee, which keeps a watchdog's eye on West Virginia lawyers.

The ethics committee, however, never got a chance to inspect the exhaustive files that the Justice Dept. and Internal Revenue Service have compiled on him. In the name of privacy, the federal agencies refused to divulge the information to the ethics committee.

The committee can't produce enough documentation, therefore, to take action against Moore. Of course, he could dissolve the cloud over his head simply by authorizing the federal government to release its files on him to the ethics committee.

First Woman To Try Flying The Atlantic Is Dead At 73

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ruth Elder, a flamboyant beauty who gained world fame 50 years ago after an unsuccessful attempt to become the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, is dead at 73.

Miss Elder died quietly in her sleep Sunday at the home she shared with her husband of 21 years, Ralph King.

In the half-century that followed the flight that began at Roosevelt Field in New York on Oct. 11, 1927, Miss Elder made movies, met a president, hobnobbed with royalty, married six times, made a lot of money — and spent it all. They called her the "Miss America of Aviation."

"She was a beautiful person, a real woman," said King, 79. "I tried to wake her, but she was dead."

King said his wife had suffered from emphysema for several years.

King said his wife's remains will be cremated, then, in accordance with her wishes, following his death both their ashes will be scattered over the sea from an airplane.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's name appears on the cover of the FBI's latest uniform crime report. The director of the FBI is Clarence Kelley.

"Isn't this a conscious downgrading of the independence of the FBI?" Bell was asked on a television interview show.

"Well, I haven't downgraded them. They must have downgraded themselves — if you think it is downgrading it to put it out under my name," Bell said.

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban says Israel would trade slogans for compromises if prospects for peace in the Middle East appeared real.

"We should be urgent in action but patient in expectation," Eban said at a news conference Sunday before speaking at Emory University.

He said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was not as inflexible as some of his hard-line statements might indicate.

BOSTON (AP) — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt says pornography is "the buzz word of the 70s, like communism in the '50s."

In an interview news conference here Sunday, Flynt also said he saw no reason why pornography should be prohibited on television.

"It's the price we have to pay to live in a free society," he said. "We have to tolerate certain things we don't like."

Flynt compared himself to Watergate Judge John Sirica. "More people have to single-handedly stand up and be counted. I'm serious about social change."

20 Years Later: Soyuz Blows Mission

MOSCOW (AP) — The third decade of the space age got off to an inauspicious start today as two Soviet cosmonauts failed in an attempt to link up with an orbiting space laboratory.

Tass reported that the flight commander, Lt. Col. Vladimir Kovalenko, and flight engineer Valery Ryumin, were preparing to return to earth in their Soyuz-25 spacecraft.

The two cosmonauts who were launched into space Sunday began operations to link up with the Salyut-6 space laboratory from a distance of 120 meters (393 feet), the Soviet news agency said, but "because of some deviations from the planned docking regime, the docking operation was canceled."

Soyuz-25 was launched from the same pad at the Baikonur space center from which Sputnik, the world's first manmade space satellite, opened the space age on Oct. 4, 1957.

"It's the beginning of the third decade of the space age and it's going to be a working decade," Kovalenko said as he climbed aboard the spacecraft.

"There's a lot of work to be done," he said.

He and Ryumin were assigned to dock on to the space laboratory sent into orbit on Sept. 29 and then move aboard her for a program of experiments.

Their specific tasks were not announced, but Kovalenko told a television news conference before they took off: "Ours is a simple goal — to learn as much as possible about our earth so that we can contribute to making life on earth better."

Tass said the cosmonauts carried with them a copy of the new Soviet constitution adopted Friday.

Western experts speculate that the flight may also include a walk in space or some other such space spectacular. In addition to the 20th anniversary of the first space flight, the Soviet Union on Nov. 7 is celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

It is the first manned Soviet space flight since the Soyuz-24 cosmonauts linked up with an earlier space lab, Salyut-5, last February. That mission lasted 19 days and included photography and scientific observations. Salyut-5 was destroyed by radio signal from the earth on Aug. 8 after 16 months in orbit.

The United States has not sent up a manned space flight since the joint Soviet-American flight in July 1975.

The Soviet Union launched its first manned space ship with Yuri Gagarin aboard 16 years ago on April 12, 1961. Since then 34 Soviet cosmonauts have gone into space, but four of them were killed on their return flights.

Legal Services May Aid School Integration Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is considering a five-year extension of the Legal Services Corp. that would give its tax-paid lawyers power for the first time to represent parents and children in school integration cases.

The corporation is a private, nonprofit organization established by Congress in 1974 to provide legal assistance for poor people. The bill to extend it, facing senators as they prepared for a Columbus Day session, is expected to arouse renewed debate on the issue of school busing to achieve racial balance.

The House, which took a four-day holiday weekend, will return Tuesday to an agenda including an appropriations bill that provides $150 million for a controversial nuclear breeder reactor.

While President Carter wants to abandon the Clinch River, Tenn., project, a House-Senate conference committee would like to keep the proposal on schedule without starting construction.

The House, which has supported the project in earlier floor votes, was considered likely to approve the appropriation.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee will take testimony all week on the proposed Panama Canal treaty. Former Secretaries of State Henry Kissinger and Dean Rusk are scheduled to testify Friday.

The judiciary committee opens confirmation hearings Tuesday on Carter's nomination of U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson Jr. of Montgomery, Ala., to head the FBI.

Meanwhile the Senate Finance Committee will work on alternatives to Carter's proposed taxes on oil and natural gas, which the panel killed last week.

Basques Murder 3, Vow All-Out Terror

BILBOA, Spain (AP) — The Basque separatist organization ETA says its guerrillas murdered the Basque president of Vizcaya province and his two police bodyguards and will continue their attacks on the Spanish government.

An ETA statement telephoned to news agencies said the outlawed organization "will continue to attack all instruments of domination of the Basque country by the Spanish oligarchy."

ETA seeks independence for the three Basque provinces of northern Spain. Last year it killed the president of another of the provinces, Guipuzcoa.

The Vizcaya provincial president, Augusto Urcia Barrenechea, 53, was gunned down Saturday as left his car for his morning game of jai alai in Guernica. His two bodyguards were also killed and his chauffeur was seriously wounded.

More than 5,000 persons attended funeral services Sunday for the three slain men, and afterward about 1,000 persons carrying Spanish flags and chanting anti-ETA slogans marched through the streets of Guernica, a symbolic center of Basque nationalism.

Meanwhile, the national government announced the arrest of 11 right-wingers suspected of the bombing on Sept. 20 of the Barcelona offices of Paps, a liberal satirical magazine. One employee of the magazine was killed and 15 were wounded. Police said those arrested were alleged to be members of the right-wing "Triple A," Apostolate Anticomunist Alliance.

Just like the old days. The Yankees give the other guys hope eternal, then zap 'em with a last-inning rally. Also the World Series will be like the old days, the Yankees against the Bums, even if they are no longer from Brooklyn. Sunday night's win over the Royals was something like chess, developing into a matter of moves as the game progressed.

LA:

Tommy Lasorda, the lion-hearted Dodgers manager, said the script for Los Angeles' pennant drive 'had to be written by God.' Even with a designated diety in his lineup, Lasorda is still worried. He says he isn't leaning too heavily on the Big Dodger in the Sky. He figures since he already had one request answered favorably, he isn't pushing for another.

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Perfectly befitting their style and reputation, Billy Martin and his New York Yankees barged into a second night World Series Sunday night with dash, drama, theatrics and controversy. Three outs away from a defeat that many Yankee watchers felt would cost Martin his job, the quizzical platooners staged a gritty three-run rally to defeat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 in the fifth and final American League playoff game.

The Yankees, who beat the Royals with a ninth-inning home run in last year's fifth game and went on to lose four straight to Cincinnati in the World Series, will meet a new foe, the Los Angeles Dodgers, beginning Tuesday night in New York.

"This shows the character of our club," said slugger Reggie Jackson, the $9 million free agent who was benched Sunday night in the latest swirl of controversy in the Yankees' soap opera season.

Cavett's New Show: Ho Hum Questions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are those in the smart set who claim current TV talk shows provide no mental stimulation. They often sigh for the glory days when Dick Cavett had an ABC talk show.

It is their theory he got the age because he is too urbane, subtle, witty and intelligent for commercial TV. Their theory is sorely tested by brother Cavett tonight.

Tonight, he begins his new, half-hour, $1.8 million night talk show series on public television, by chatting with Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, who act for a living.

Cavett, flanked by his guests in a three-chair studio setting, complete with audience, starts things rolling by declaring to viewers he's delighted to be back with a regular interview show.

And, he says, "I'm especially pleased to be doing it in what I think is an appropriate and congenial setting of public television. I look forward to bringing you a season of the best people available, the most interesting, the most noteworthy."

Then he asks Sophia and Marcello, who estimate they've acted together in eight or nine films, in which movie they first teamed up and when.

Sophia says it was about 20 years ago, in "Too Bad She's Bad."

After some banter about Marcello's skinny legs, Cavett beams down with: "Do you believe in such a thing as... chemistry?"

Sophia helps translate the meaning of performing chemistry to Marcello, whose English is passable.

Amid more banter, she informs Cavett, "I speak English quite well."

"You certainly do for your age," he comes right back and says.

"We are the same age, more or less, same generation," she tells her 40-year-old host. He says, "You're a miracle of preservation." She says, "You, too, you, too, I must say."

In time, Cavett pursues a harder line of inquiry.

"Sophia," he says, "I don't mean this as just a fulsome compliment... but why are you more beautiful off-screen than on?"

Later, he asks her: "What was the crossover moment in your life, when you took the turn that led you to be a movie star rather than a housewife or whatever you might have been?"

Later, to her costar, Cavett inquires:

"And what was it for you, Marcello, that spelled your destiny, what was the moment when you went down the road to movies as opposed to architecture, which I think was your great love?"

Marcello says it was when he got laid off as an accountant.

Fu: It's Time To Be Ready

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The chill creeping into the air brings the approach of the flu season, and it's time to start thinking about protection and treatment.

The widely predicted swine flu epidemic of 1975-76 never materialized. But new strains of influenza A virus, the kind that causes pandemics or world-wide outbreaks, usually appear every 10 years and the last major problem was in 1968, with the Hong Kong flu.

Experts mention in Maryland recently said a wide variety of flu viruses was circulating in the world this year. They said they expected a relatively mild flu season in the United States, but declined to make firm predictions in the aftermath of the swine flu incident.

Influenza is an acute respiratory illness, whose symptoms include fever, headache, cough, sore throat, runny nose and muscular aches, especially in the lower back and eyes.

More information on influenza, which causes it and what to do about it, is available from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in a nine-page pamphlet, "Flu," it costs 35 cents.

To get a copy, write: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Flu outbreaks often occur suddenly. The disease spreads through sneezing, peaking in about three weeks and subsiding after another three to four weeks. From 20 to 50 percent of the susceptible population may be affected, with the highest incidence among children aged 3 to 14.

Most patients recover from the flu within a week, although they may feel tired or agued for some time. In the aged or chronically ill, the disease is more serious and, together with pneumonia, influenza is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States.

Vaccines have been developed to help guard against influenza. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says studies have shown that vaccines can be 70 to 90 percent effective when matched to the current virus. The problem is that the viruses change their genetic makeup slightly every year, so a annual revaccination is recommended.

Once you've got the flu, there is no way to do except go to bed, drink plenty of liquids and take aspirin to relieve some of the symptoms.

Triglycerides Are Simply Fats

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been unable to find the proper value for triglycerides anywhere. What is the normal amount? DEAR READER — It depends upon the method and the state of the patient when studied. In general if the patient is in the fasting state — not having eaten for at least 12 hours — the level should be below 150 milligrams in 100 milliliters of blood.

Remember that triglycerides are simply fats. The amount of fat in the blood varies greatly with what you have eaten recently. Fat is slowly absorbed and slowly cleared from the blood stream compared to sugar. It is much more affected by a recent meal than your cholesterol level. One reason you are having trouble finding normal values is because of its variability.

The triglyceride level will also fall if you exercise vigorously. The amount of exercise in the preceding 48 hours may affect your triglyceride level. The triglyceride level alone has not been found to be as useful as the cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks.

DEAR READER — Your letter is a good example of why people should never try to change a child's habits by frightening them with dire consequences; other than a good paddling if warranted. That young nurse unwittingly planted the seed for you to use in responding to your anxiety reactions. No, no, no, fingering your navel will not cause cancer. Cancer is simply cell growth that has gone berserk allowing uncontrolled abnormal growth. For example, liver cancer is a rapid disorganized growth of liver cells. Many factors can stimulate the wild growth.

Why don't you ask your doctor to have you see a psychiatrist for some professional counseling. If you can get at the root of your real anxiety then its manifestations, excessive fear of cancer, may be controlled.

For Tuesday, October 11, 1977

YOUR BIRTHDAY Oct. 11, 1977 Today, however, the labor-saving device you champion may cause more work. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major changes should not be made impulsively today. Sleep on them. You could later be unhappy with your decision. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wary of making lavish promises today for the sake of expediency. The momentary favors you make could become long-term enemies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a better postponer today than you are a producer. Convert the energy you'd use making excuses into a drive to get things done. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a strong possibility your priorities are out of kilter today. You're interested in many things, but get little done. CANCER (June 21-July 22) In family matters today try not to be so opinionated that there's no room for thoughts of others. They could be even more fruitful than yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very cautious today in drawing the line between rational thinking and irrational optimism. Too much of the latter will lead you awry. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a strong possibility today that your overwhelming desire for an object may lead you to pay more for it than it's worth. Try to control yourself. Some Speak No English Spanish Students Need Aid

By MARYLYN SHEDDAN Herald Writer

¿Hablas Espanol? Do you speak Spanish? If you do, Seminole County's school volunteers, the Dividends, need you now, says Deke Schaffner, program coordinator.

"We are recruiting volunteers to help in any areas with the children," Mrs. Schaffner says. "But right now our most critical need is somebody who speaks Spanish. We have Spanish speaking students all over the county, but not

City May Get 70-Year-Old RR Station

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer

A railroad museum complete with an old steam locomotive may be the latest addition to Longwood's historical district, the city council learned Monday night.

One of the prime movers in previous restoration in the historical district, Mrs. Grace Bradford, explained the proposed project and said it would not cost the city any money. She said the Central Florida Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society has a steam engine and would like to have a museum in Longwood located in an old railroad station.

As National Newspaper Week Commemorated

The Herald—Still Seminole's Only Daily Newspaper

To mark National Newspaper Week, The Evening Herald this week will present daily features explaining the workings and operations of each department of the newspaper — its functions, goals and responsibilities. Today: the history of The Herald.

On Aug. 22, 1908 — a month before Sanford's 31st birthday, the Sanford Evening Herald (then called The Sanford Herald) was born. Seminole County's only daily newspaper, which began operation as a weekly, has published continuously for 69 years.

The Herald's first-day editorial is still appropriate. The Herald, stated the editorial, was established to enlighten and inform a live newspaper in Sanford that could worthily represent the liberal and enterprising citizens of this commonwealth.

Mosquito: Is Parasite The Cure?

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce task force committee on the blind mosquitoes which have invaded the city's lakefront, is looking toward a united effort of 18 Florida counties and cities seeking local, federal and state money for a solution.

The favored solution is not the chemical method, but rather an introduction of some type of parasite, using a "balance of nature" concept, said B. Brad Hollingsworth, co-chairman of the task force, today. Hollingsworth said the chamber has adopted a resolution which is being sent to the other Florida counties and cities suffering with the problem, urging the effort.

Hollingsworth said the task force is also contacting state senators and representatives to advise them of the problem. "Our main concern is not to use chemicals," Hollingsworth said, adding that spraying with chemicals would cost $120,000 twice annually and yet research has proven that the chemicals do not provide a permanent solution.

The chamber through the resolution calls on the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences of the University of Florida to undertake at the earliest possible date such action as possible in planning and conducting the research appropriate in an effort to determine the feasibility of the eradication of the midges.

The resolution also asks support from the members of the Florida Cabinet, United States senators, congressional delegation, legislative delegation and appropriate agencies of the federal and state government, the board of county commissioners, and the city of Sanford in gaining funding of any and all necessary research for the eradication program.
