The Test
When all the world is slippy
An' 'ky is glowing red,
An' everything is friarly
Underfoot and overhead,
I'd somehow sort o' blame y'
If y' didn't up an' smile,
An' thank the Lord that made y'
Cause He's let you live the while.

But that's no sort o' trial—
No, it ain't no falrsume test;
It ain't no trick a-smilin'
When the world is at its best;
I reckon that the feller
People mostly like to boast
Is he who smiles on dark days
When naybors need 'em most.

The greatest joys of life are
those of anticipation. Today is fine;
tomorrow the sun will shine with a
warmer, more mellow radiance.

Today is hot and we sniff the air
stirred by a south wind and anticipate the luxurious pleasure of the rain which will come tomorrow.

Today the buds are swelling. Nature
is experiencing the annual demonstration of its power. Tomorrow
the wild rose will blossom in the hedgerow,
and oh, how we shall enjoy its beauty.

Today the birds are bursting their little throats with melody and building a nest during the interim. Tomorrow our eye will be delighted
with the sight of cerulean-hued eggs
in the nest.

Today we love. Tomorrow we will add to our pleasure by telling
the loved one about it.

Today we are well. Tomorrow
we will arise with the dawn and greet the sun as he emerges from
the sea of night, heralding his approach
with brilliant banners flung across
the sky, and oh, how much better
we shall feel tomorrow.

Today we thought of a kindly act.
Tomorrow we shall put it into execution.

Today the pain was a little less.
Tomorrow will bring complete sur-
cease from suffering.

Today we have a thought. Tomorrow we shall have an inspiration.
Today the water is clear. Tomorrow it will be transparent, a molten mirror,
revealing not only the beauties of its own depths
but reflecting the magnificence of the sun.

Today the clouds are barques of
frosted silver sailing a turquoise sea.
Tomorrow they will be innumerable fleets whose billowing sails of pink and
purple and yellow and amethyst
bear them grandly across a bay of
azure rimmed with pearl.

Today we hope. Tomorrow will bring fruition.

Today we sow. Tomorrow we shall glean.

Today God is storing the sunshine
in the fibre of an hickory tree. Tomorrow He will liberate the prisoned
beams of the androns of our
hearth and we shall watch the dancing flames as they consume the last
vestige of their house of bondage
and marvel at His wisdom in "endowing" us with the faculty of anticipation, in which lies the real joy
of living.

Advertising has become a science whereby the man who has and
the man who wants are brought into juxtaposition resulting in their mutual advantage. Advertising is the life blood of a newspaper, the red
corpuscles that lend vigor and energy. It is the tonic of merchant-ing that moves immense stocks of goods. It turns the wheels of factories and dots the seas with merchant marine.

All of which is merely a prelude
to an amusing incident that occurred
recently. A gentleman needed a partner and placed an ad in the Herald. Of course he got numerous replies and some of them astonished
him beyond measure for there were
no less than three proposals of marriage from ladies who were willing to share his troubles and his automobile.

Of course if he is single he should
have no difficulty in making choice
of the fluttering hearts which strew
his pathway. But what in the diemans would a married man do
under the circumstances? At any rate the incident plainly proves the
oft iterated statement that it pays
to advertise.

The disillusionment of our childhood days is aptly described by Dr.
Frank Crane in the following:

"When I was a small boy I used
to play around my grandfather's house in Paris, Ill. Everything was
big. I could not see over Gilbert's fence. It was a long way down the hill to the creek, and a journey of considerable adventure to go over to Uncle George's. The wood pa-
tures back of the barn, where the Eads boys and I played Indian and robber was something like the great North American continent in extent. The front porch of grandfather's house was a vast promenade
as the boardwalk at Atlantic City;
and the upper portion a fine and
imposing rampart. My relatives,
such as cousins and aunts, were of
legendary stature, and in my imagination mingled on terms of equality
with the Caliph of Bagdad, David and Goliath, and Cinderella. The trees were miles high, and the dogs
as big as lions.

I went away. I grew up. I became twenty-one years of age and
very wise. I returned to Paris, Ill.
And, behold! the whole stage setting of my youth had been reduced to miniature. It was as though I were looking at it with the large lenses of the opera glasses to my eyes.

When I walked to Gilbert's fence
I could look right over it. Down to the creek was only a short walk,
and I could step over to Uncle George's in a minute or so. When I went out to see the woods-pasture,
the scene of my early crimes and
adventures, I had to laugh; it was so pathetically small, only half an acre. The front porch had contracted so that there was hardly
room to sit on it, and the upper
portico was the finest place imaginable. In addition to this all my relatives had dwindled down to be just ordinary mortals, not great and marvelous any more, but clay, as I was clay.

There is a great revelation in this.
It is that the world and all that therein is, is so small, impotent, and
full of glory and romance, in proportion as you are young, and that all

disillusion, despising and world-
weariness means simply that you are growing old.

A lot of what we call wisdom and
experience is no more than dodder-
ing senility, withering age.

There are some who never seem to lose their feeling of wonder at the world. These are the eternally young. Whom may God bless!

One passage in letters embodying
this idea occurs to my memory. It is Thomas Hood's verse:

I remember, I remember,
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky;
It was a selfish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.

There is a movement along the east coast to change the time and
make it an hour earlier to conform
to the standard time at Savannah
and other points on the north Atlantic seaboard. I believe it would be a good plan, for by starting to work earlier we would all close down
in the evening earlier and save much in the way of light bills. Early morning is the time to work, especially in Florida, where it is so cool
and comfortable in the morning and where there is no twilight. It would make no difference in the time of work as the clocks would all be pushed ahead one hour and after trying it a week or so we would never know the difference. It is well worth trying and I hope the movement goes through.

The brick roads will be continued
and we can all look forward to this great work being finished in the very near future. We have had our little difficulties and misunderstandings but it seems that everybody is to get together and the roads will be built in time for the growers to get
the benefit before the heavy hauling
in the fall starts. Now let the work
move forward and let every fellow
pull for a better county. The commissioners are to be commended for their stand for better brick and the brick manufacturers are also to be commended for their desire to meet
the commissioners half way and furnish good brick from this time on
and also to make good the brick
that has already been laid but has not been proved to be good enough
for the heavy travel of the Sanford
district. In a few years the entire county of Seminole will be paved
with brick and it will not do for the
manufacturers to fall down on their first order. Vitrified brick is the best paving material and time will prove
the truth of this assertion.

Modern Housekeeping.

Milady sings at her work. The portable vacuum cleaner—milord
keeps up with all the latest improvements—gratefully eats up its daily
dust. The fireless cooker prepares the meals "with a perfection and deli-
ciousness unrealized in the old days."
A has mother and the way she used to cook! But in serving these meals
of a hitherto unrealized perfection
and deliciousness milord and milady
must needs chase each other between kitchen and dining room. The guest
at dinner, if he is luckily accustomed
to picnics, carries his own plate and washes it afterward. I have myself entertained many a guest in this fashion, and he has carried his own
plate, and, being that kind of a guest
or I wouldn't have invited him, he
has cheerfully helped wash the dishes,
wearing a borrowed apron. But it would be absurd to claim that this performance, indefinitely repeated,
is an improvement upon an orderly,
efficiently served dinner party. Conversation at dinner is more desirable
than a foot-race between the courses;
nor do I believe that life under such conditions can possibly "become admiring that one day the great majority of us will choose it first of all."
—From the Atlantic.

"No Smoking."

When railways were a novelty the companies vigorously enforced their anti-smoking laws. The Great Western company once caught a tarrar,
says London Tit-Bits. The station
master at Didcot removed a passenger
from an "up" express train and handed
him over to the police on a charge of
smoking to the annoyance of a fellow-traveler. Next day the prisoner was brought before the magistrate, and
when asked what he had to say in answer to the charge he replied:

"Gentlemen, the offense took place
in the County of Wilts, whereas I am now charged in Berkshire. I am a solicitor; I was specially engaged in a case which I shall now file, and I shall sue the company for detaining
me. I respectfully hold that you in this county have no jurisdiction over
what occurred in another county."

He was released, and he did sue the company and got £80 damages.

The first smoking-carriage was introduced on the Eastern Counties railway in September, 1846.

On the Domestic Voltage.

"Wire you insulate?" the electrician's wife inquired when he made his appearance at 11 a. m. Whereupon he explained that he had become
thirsty and had to make a short circuit.

Launch Ride

One of the most enjoyable events
in social circles last week was the launch ride to Lake Baresford on the Alma May, given by Mr. Joe DeMont. The party left the city
at 2:30 p. m. and returned at 11:30,
having had a most delightful trip
for Mr. DeMont is a gracious host and these was everything good to eat and drink on board. Filled chicken to sandwiches; salads to the best kind of cake; grape juice to champagne, with all the accouters
and trimmings was the tempting
menu served aboard and to which
full justice was done by the happy
crowd.

The congenial party consisted of Misses Florence Frank, Mabel Bow-
ler, Mell Whitner, Peaches Lefler, Charlotte Hand, Belle Smith and Bessie Schumpert; Messrs. Thigpen, Roberts, Watson, Bishop, Galloway,
and the genial host, Joe DeMont.

Christian Endeavor Evening

The regular business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church was held at the home of Rev. F. P. Strong
last Thursday evening with a fine
attendance.

After other business was disposed of the annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Harry Kent; vice president, Miss Jessie Hutcheson; secretary, Miss Carrie Ensminger;
treasurer, Mr. Hess. Chairmen of committees appointed were Mrs. J.
C. Ensminger, prayer meeting; Mrs.
Davison, social; Fraser Armstrong,
Lookout; Rev. F. P. Strong, missionary; Mrs. Strong, music. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed
after the business session, the members present being the guest of Mrs.
Strong.

Children's Picnic

The Junior Civic League and their friends who contributed to the success of The Smugglerman will picnic
at Woodland park Thursday, the guests of the Junior Civic League Committee. The usual delights of Woodland will be enjoyed and a good time is anticipated by the young people. The boat will leave the city dock at 8 o'clock.

Better Babies Contest

Better Babies diplomas have been received by Jack Peters, Rose La-Verne Hurt and Agnes Renfro from
the Woman's Home Companion on the score made by them at the state fair in the spring. It will be remembered that Jack and Rose La-Verne won the first and second prizes as the winners of Seminole county. In addition to these two,
the baby of Mr. and Mrs. R. C.
Maxwell won third place on the score of 95.7 per cent, but owing to
some misunderstanding the diploma
has not yet been forwarded. It is the custom of the Woman's Home Companion to present a blue ribbon
and diploma to the babies making
high scores in all the Better Babies
contests.

The Welfare Department of the Woman's Club are making plans and preparations to hold a Better Babies
contest for Seminole county in the fall, the winners to be entered in the contest at the annual state fair.

Among the weddings that will take place in the early fall of cordial
interest in Sanford is that of Miss Mabel Hand to Mr. Archie Botta in September, and Miss Gene Wicker
to Mr. Norman Toole in October.
Both brides-to-be are among Sanford's most popular girls. It is to be regretted that Miss Wicker will
make her future home elsewhere,
probably in Philadelphia.

Busy Bee

The Busy Bees Department of the Junior Civic League met in the West Side Park Monday afternoon
for their regular meeting, with Mrs.
Gerror leader of the afternoon.
Regular business was transacted.
Mrs. Abernathy drilled the children
on the official family of Sanford—the official positions and the names of those who filled them being a part of the routine of the meeting. An agreeable feature of the meeting
that appealed to the little girls and
their leaders was a cordial invitation from Mrs. Robbins to meet at the Robbins Nest Monday, Aug. 2
for a good time. The invitation was enthusiastically accepted. Everyone knew that Mrs. Robbins is not only an ideal hostess but a lover of little children, which guaranteed a
happy afternoon of fun and frolic.
At the close of the business period
the Busy Bees had a busy time

romping and playing games in the park, their leaders Mrs. Gerror, Mrs.
Abernathy and Mrs. Fox being as young and giddy as the giddiest.

Missionary Sunday

A very delightful and helpful
program was rendered at the Methodist Sunday school last Sunday in observance of Mission Sunday,
which is always the second Sunday
of the month. The collection on this day is devoted to missionary purposes exclusively. The program
followed:

Recitation, A Dollar Rolling up
the Hill—John Wilson.

A Plea for More Light, by five
girls representing five heathen countries: Japan, Carolyn Spencer; Ka-
rea, Mollie Abernathy; China, Ruth Steinmeyer; Africa, Anna Mason;
Mexico, Julia Laine.

Solo, Send Us More Light, Mollie
Abernathy.

A five minutes' talk by Mrs.
Abernathy on behalf of the Heathen Woman was most helpful and inspiring. She contrasted the life of the heathen woman with that of the missionary, showing the wonderful
power of the gospel to give and
comfort in the latter case, while the heathen faces death and eternity
without the knowledge of Divina
love; no Christian sympathy to smooth the rugged path of drudgery
and superstitious in the weary, monotonous life. She knows nothing of the sweet songs of Miss no peaceful hour of prayer that comes to the Christian. Mrs. Abernathy spoke a strong plea for an increase of missionary zeal and effort, asking for larger funds from Christian men
and women.

At this time Mrs. Robbins was sent to those darkened lands with their message of love and salvation. That they might die in the knowledge
that Jesus died for them as well as
for us and teach them that death is not God's seal to open the gates
of heaven to all believers and not
the horror the heathen picture it to

be standing on the brink of the grave, surrounded by devils waiting
there to push them in. Mrs. Abernathy drew a strong picture of the heathen woman turning away from her idols, repelled but anxious to serve the true and living God and
not knowing how; begging for admission to the training schools that they might learn to read their Bible,
to be able to carry the message to others. Graphically she described these heathen mothers knocking at
the mission gates, pleading for admission for their sons and daughters,
that they too might be trained to serve.

In conclusion she outlined the splendid work accomplished by the
medical missionaries, the loyal hosts,
the loving sacrifices, but altogether
too few for the field to be covered,
stating that consecrated young men
and women are saying, all over our own Christian country, "Here am I,
send me," but there are not enough
enough because we enjoying the
privileges of Christianity are too
tempt to sit at ease in Zion, forgetting
the great command to carry the message of salvation to all the world.

Mrs. Abernathy's talk was applaud, summed up in brief telling statements and simply told that even
the little children might understand.

BULL MOOSERS OFF ON PRIMARY LAW SAYS ATTORNEY

NO CHANCE FOR ANNULMENT OF NEW LAW

BRYAN PRIMARY LAW BOUND TO STICK

WEST QUOTES FROM THE NORTH DAKOTA LAW TO PROVE CONTENTION

Tallahassee, July 24.—That there is no chance for the "Bull Moose" party of Florida to prevent the Secretary of State from certifying to the Boards of County Commissioners throughout the state the nominations of those who won out for various state, county and national offices in the Bryan primary election of June 2, in the opinion of Attorney General Thos. F. West, following the filing of a bill of complaint against the Secretary of State, H. Clay Crawford, directed to Judge W. H. Malone, in and for Leon county, by Herbert L. Anderson, of Jacksonville, asking for a restraining order against the Secretary of State prohibiting the certification of the various nominations to the boards of commissioners, the Attorney General formulated an opinion wherein he states that the basis for complaint is lacking. The Bull Moosers allege the Bryan primary law unconstitutional and by its provisions, as a result of the recent primary, the party is prevented from putting a ticket in the field during the general election.

Attorney General West opines as follows: "In my opinion there is no reason for alarm on the part of those nominated in the primary election held of June last."

"Statutes regulating the conduct of primary elections have been sustained as valid by the courts of this state, as a proper exercise of the legislative power, and the courts of a number of other states have upheld provisions similar to those of the primary election law of this state which is attacked in this litigation."

The litigation is really an attack upon the primary election plan of nominating officers, but that plan has been upheld in every state where the law has been tested and the following opinion by the Supreme Court of North Dakota on a similar law furnishes a case in point.

North Dakota Decision State of North Dakota ex rel. Andrew Miller, Attorney General, et al., vs. F. F. Fisherty, Auditor of Burleigh County. (N. D. 136 N. W. 76.) 41 E. R. A. (N. S.) 132.

"The primary election statutes have as a principal purpose the regulation of the franchises of electors within party limits. The elections so provided concern primarily the rights of parties and only incidentally those of the individual elector. The primary is not held to afford an elector as such merely a chance to exercise his right of suffrage, but instead an opportunity to participate in the proceedings and acts of a political party. This he does by exercising his right to vote, but within that party. Legislative districting has recognized the party rights as to method of nominating officers as well as promulgating its political doctrines and the application of them, as a government force. The legislative purpose is that the rights of the party are paramount to the individual party member, as to nominations made and other party matters transacted by means of the primary. If the party primary, therefore, is an election within the term 'any election' it is one with the power of the legislature to authorize and confine within party limits, but its purpose must be considered as sanctioned by, and within the provisions of, Article 5 of the Constitution. To hold the contrary is to invalidate every primary election state in toto. Deny constitutional recognition of purpose of the election, and apply the constitutional definition of electors, and hold that by virtue of being an elector he shall be deemed a qualified elector at such election, and our whole primary election system must fall, because the right to participate depends not on the elector's constitutional rights as defined alone, but on added qualifications of partisanship. We believe the purpose of such an election should determine the limits within which the elector's constitutional right of franchise is to be measured, and, so long as that purpose is not unconstitutional in itself, the elector's rights should be held, as intended by the constitution to be subordinate to the purpose of the election, because, in fact, his right of suffrage arises not wholly from his being a constitutional elector, but instead, in part, from the law permit- ever, denial of his right to particular instance for such particular purpose.

If he has no party belief whatever, denial of his right to participate in a partisan election does not deny him any right legally or morally existing to him merely as an elector. The recognition by the legislature of the existence and rights of a political party cannot divest an elector who has no political belief of any partisan rights. As the party exists for party purposes incidental to governmental benefit, the individual elector who is not a party member cannot complain of being barred therefrom by his failure to entertain a partisan belief. Political parties have existed and recognized and necessary instrumentalities of our representative government for 100 years. They are mentioned in our constitutional debates. Our constitution was framed and adopted with knowledge of and with reference to them.

Fords and More Fords

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Three years ago if you had told any one that a single automobile company would build more than two hundred thousand automobiles in a year that person would have thought that probably you were harmless but ought not to be allowed to run at large as you might suddenly become violent. But in nine months the Ford Motor Company has done better than reach the two hundred thousand mark. It has built and sold two hundred three thousand, one hundred ninety-four cars from Oct. 1, 1913, up to July 1, 1914.

In other words an average of better than twenty-two thousand, five hundred Fords have been built and sold every month for the first nine months of the company's fiscal year.

Last year's production of Fords was about one hundred eighty-five thousand cars. This mark was passed by this year's production in the middle of May.

It is almost impossible to conceive of the two hundred thousand automobiles. Only by comparison may one really grasp what this huge figure means.

If all the Fords built and sold so far this year were placed in line a half mile apart, they would reach around the world four times.

If the entire population of the cities of Detroit and Baltimore wanted to hold a joint picnic, the Fords built this year could easily take all the people to the picnic grounds in one trip. Or this year's Fords could carry three armies the size of the American army engaged in the Spanish-American War. Or they could carry at one trip nearly half of all the men that fought in the Civil War.

Or, getting at it from another angle, the total horse power of the motors in these Fords, figuring twenty horse power to a motor, is more than two-thirds the horse power of all the developed water power in the United States. It is six times greater than the power plants of the Imporator, the Lusitania, or the Mauretania, and twenty times greater than the power developed by the dam on the Mississippi at Keokuk, Illinois.

It is said that the tendency nowadays is to take the burden of the man and put it on the machine. A man must be a pretty good athlete to be capable of exerting 1-5 horse power, if you can translate horse power into man-power. But figuring on this basis the total horse power of the cars built and sold by the Ford Motor Company this year is six times greater than the combined power of all the men engaged in the Civil War.

BIG LAND DEAL MADE NEAR BUSY OVIEDO TWENTY THOUSAND ACRES OF FARM LAND SOLD—CHICAGO CAPITALISTS WILL PLACE IT ON THE MARKET

OTHER INTERESTING NEWS AND VIEWS FROM OVER THE SUNSHINE STATE COMPILED FOR BUSY HERALD READERS

One hundred thousand dollars is said to be the price of a land deal that has just been consummated, involving 20,000 acres of land located around Orlando Sanford and Oviedo. It is part of the holdings of the South Florida Naval Stores Company and comprises some of the most valuable realty in this section. The deal was engineered by R. E. Hall, the well known turpentine magnate of Ocala. Chicago capitalists were the purchasers. Lee Miller of Orlando is said to be one of the Florida managers. This is probably the largest deal that has been consummated in this section for some time, and will be of much benefit to Sanford, as much of the land lies at no great distance from the city and its development is certain to carry with it many advantages. The plan of the new company will be to adopt that followed by W. H. Sebring at Sebring, Fla., by setting the land to orange groves and subdividing into plots of forty acres or less which will be disposed of on a high class colonization scheme, bringing to the state many new home-seekers. The lands begin not far from the corporate limits of Orlando but the location at which the town will be built will probably be several miles out on one of the leading highways and will be of easy access to this city, which will serve as a market and base of supplies for the newcomers.

Fernandina, July 24.—Ground was broken yesterday and the pillars are being laid for the new shrimp canning factory of Dunbar, Lopez & Ducate, the greatest shrimp canning operators in the country, and pioneers in the business at New Orleans and Biloxi. Other factories will follow next spring. The building is 80 feet wide and 150 feet long and of corrugated galvanized metal construction on the order of all modern canning factory buildings. The location is the old oyster factory site near the old Mallory steamship docks. The coming of this industry will mean much to this place for not only will it mean the employment of four or five hundred men, women and children in the factory and on the fish boats, but it will make a market for all of the Celeste figs and okra that can be grown here as this company also cans figs and okra. Heretofore there has been no factory to can figs here for the season is so short that it would not be as profitable to build a factory to be operated during the short fig season alone. But now that there is a demand for all the figs that can be grown right at home, many of the farmers in this immediate vicinity will begin the culture of figs and okra and in addition there will be another incentive for people to come here for the purpose of cultivating these products.

Pensacola, July 24.—Red gum lumber shipping is a new item of export now finding an outlet at Pensacola and a steamer will arrive here shortly to load upward of one hundred carloads to be conveyed to Alexandria, Egypt. Mr. J. Land of the Fish-Land Company, who comes from Mississippi, is in the city making arrangements for the handling of the cargo and also last night that the forthcoming consignment will be followed by others as soon as an equitable adjustment of rates could be obtained at the several ports where the product has been handled in the past. At Pensacola several small consignments have been sent to foreign countries and remarkably quick and satisfactory dispatch has been given here.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—The following Florida banks have been designated by United States Treasurer John Burke as depositories of public money of the United States: First National Bank, Tampa; Exchange National Bank, Tampa; Atlantic National Bank, Jacksonville; Barnett National Bank, Jacksonville.

Washington, July 24.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield is planning to establish commerce bureaus at Jacksonville and Tampa that will bring the commercial, industrial and manufacturing interests of Florida in touch with trade conditions and business possibilities all over the world. This will not be done immediately but it is a part of a general plan which the Secretary of Commerce has in view of establishing commerce bureaus in all of the important cities of the United States. About a year ago the parent commerce bureau was established in New York city and at the present time there are three such bureaus in existence. The fourth, according to present arrangements will be established at Denver during the next few months.

Jacksonville, July 24.—Lindsey Sellers, a 14-year old white boy is dead, and his companion, Leonard Mattair, also 14, is seriously injured as the result of an accident at the Seaboard Air Line crossing on Lincoln avenue Wednesday morning, when a wagon in which they were riding was wrecked by an inbound passenger train, said to have been traveling rapidly. The father of the Sellers boy, who lived near Enterprise and Lincoln avenues, is a former engineer for the Seaboard, it is said, and Mr. Mattair who recently moved here with his family from Waldo, Fla., is a trial engineer for the road. The Mattairs live on McDuff avenue, near Garfield.

The provision of the civil sundry bill relating to the creation of a new customs district in the state of Florida has gone back to conference. The conferees yesterday reported back to their respective branches in Congress that they were hopelessly opposed to the amendment providing for the new district as it passed the Senate, and asking for instructions. They were sent back into conference this morning.

Emilio Pons, prominent cigar manufacturer and eminent Cuban patriot, is dead at Tampa. The body will be interred with military honors at the instance of the Cuban government, for whom he fought long and well. When his uncle, the late General Carlos Manuel de Cespedes went forth into battle at the beginning of the "Ten-Year-War," his nephew, Emilio, followed his distinguished relative on the field. During the engagement in the Cuban hills in the early spring of 1925 Mr. Pons was wounded. A Spaniard's bullet found lodgment in his thigh, and he carried it to his dying day. Mr. Pons, cousin of Carlos Manuel Cespedes, a son of General Cespedes, was recently appointed Cuban minister at Washington, and has just taken his seat for the embassy.

WANTED TO BE A MAN

The Strange Case at Orlando Reviewed by Baltimore Dispatch

Baltimore, Md., July 23.—News of the death of Hannah Calder in Orlando, Fla., recalls to the minds of persons familiar with Hartford county affairs the strange case of the daughter of a wealthy farmer there who, from her earliest childhood, rebelled at being girl or woman. She lived for years in Florida as a man, associated with men and lived with a woman who was supposed to be her wife. Only on her deathbed was her sex discovered. The "wife" died two years ago.

The same woman was a sensation in Baltimore 25 years ago, when she took a pretty Hartford county girl before a clergyman in that part of the state, told the clergyman who knew her family, that she was a man in spite of the fact that she had dressed in feminine attire since she could walk and persuaded him to pronounce two persons, both of whom wore skirts, man and wife.

After that marriage she came to Baltimore. A week later the family of her "bride" took the bride away from her, and that woman is now married and the mother of a happy brood of children. She is living in Hartford county. There are persons living in Baltimore familiar with all the details of the story.

Hannah Calder was about 60 years old at the time of her death. She was the daughter of Martin Calder, a well-known and rich farmer of Federal Hill, near Rocks of Deer Creek, Hartford county. Her brother, James Calder, was sheriff of the county at one time.

From her earliest girlhood Hannah Calder manifested a distaste for feminine society, say those who knew her. She went to school with the other girls and she went about to the country dances and such things, but, in spite of the fact that she wore skirts, she wouldn't play the part of a woman.

She didn't seek the society of men, but rather avoided intimate association with anybody and preferred to be alone. When she was in her teens she began to use tobacco, both smoking and chewing it. She did not have to think of making her living, but she began when she was in her twenties to be known as the "Hartford County Barber" and would drive from farmhouse to farmhouse to shave the men and to cut their hair and that of their children.

Suddenly she manifested an interest in the girl with whom she managed the mock marriage. Hannah was about 30 years old then and the girl was about 16, just blossoming into womanhood and one of the beauties of her neighborhood. Her parents were not so well to do as were those of her woman's suitor. When Hannah Calder told her she was a man and that she wanted to marry her the young girl is said to have been flattered.

After the "marriage" the couple came to Baltimore and going to a house on North Gilmore street, where a male connection of the Calder's lived, Hannah Calder dumbfounded this man's wife by announcing that she was not a woman, but a man and that the pretty creature who accompanied her was her bride.

"You are a pretty looking bridegroom in skirts," the relative's wife said. And Hannah went out forthwith and bought herself a suit of men's clothes. She never went back to skirts after that, it is said. For a week or two after her "bride" had been taken from her Hannah Calder was on exhibition at the Masonic Temple. Then she disappeared.

Her relative had heard nothing from her from the time of their disappearance, until the news of her death came. It is supposed that she became a barber in earnest after her departure from Baltimore. The reports from Florida say that she always associated with men there and voted regularly at each election.

Coast of Church

Dade City, July 24.—Announcement has been made by Rev. T. S. Hubert, pastor of College Street Baptist church that during the summer months it would be no imprudence for men to attend service without their coats. He said, "Leave them at home and come. There is no religion or sense in being unbecomingly and where there is so much formality there is not apt to be much heart." The orchestra of this church recently has been reformed with two drums. Some one asked Mr. Hubert what he was going to do next. He said, "If my hat blows I will blow it away."

COMMUNITY HOUSE WILL BE AVAILABLE IN SANFORD NOW

LIBRARY AND WOMANS CLUB ARE SPONSORS

OLD CHURCH BUILDING WILL BE REMODELED

TO BE MADE INTO COMMUNITY BUILDING FOR ALL THE MEETINGS

Sanford will have a Community House and the Sanford Library, Woman's Club, Commercial Club and all other civic societies can share in home. This matter was definitely decided at a meeting of the Library Association held on Wednesday in the office of J. N. Whitner.

Mrs. J. W. Dickins, president of the Woman's Club, Mrs. May Dickins, chairman of the building committee, Mrs. Wight, Mrs. J. M. Whitner, Mrs. Frank, Mrs. Key of the Library Association and C. R. Walker, Dr. Walker, J. N. Whitner, F. P. Forster, D. L. Thrasher, S. O. Chass, S. O. Shinhohler and M. F. Robinson were present.

M. F. Robinson presided at the meeting and it was decided to purchase a lot and place a building thereon that could be used as a Library, Woman's Club building and also as a Community House for the social gatherings that from time to time occur in the city and for which there is no place at the present time provided.

The meeting was a very enthusiastic one and the question of a lot was decided by the purchase of the lot south of the Presbyterian manse on Oak avenue. The building was broached next and the old Presbyterian church was suggested and as this building is to be shortly removed to make room for a new church the building was purchased at a very reasonable figure.

The building is large enough to make an excellent Community House and will be moved to the new lot immediately and remodeled to suit the needs of the new owners.

Sanford has long needed a gathering place of this kind. The library has never had a home and the Woman's Club has also been made homeless and the ladies say they will now take pity on the homeless Commercial Club and let them come in out of the rain also and the new quarters will be the greatest gathering place in the city and one that all of us will be proud to possess.

There will be more good news of the building as the work progresses.

Bryan Road Bill Favored

Washington, Pa., July 24.—The report on Senator Bryan's good roads bill, a substitute for the Shackleford bill, already passed by the House, was completed today by the Senate Committee on Postoffice and Post Roads.

Under the Bryan bill, the Federal Government would issue fifty-year three per cent bonds to the amount of $500,000,000, in lots of $100,000,000 each for five years. Before states could participate in the funds they would be required to issue an equal amount of four per cent bonds, which when deposited in the Treasury Department, would be exchanged for cash. The one per cent difference would make up a sinking fund to aid the states in retiring the bonds.

Creation of a Federal highway commission to supervise the expenditures of highway funds is a feature of the bill. The commission would be composed of the senate of the United States and House committee on roads, the director of the office of public roads, and a United States Army engineer.

PAOLA POINTS

A petition is being circulated for signature, addressed to the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, asking for a road from Twin Lakes station to the Sanford and Sylvan Lake brick road. No one can remember that one cent of public money has ever been spent for this section and a decent road is badly needed. While this dry season makes it easy to do, is the time to put this road through, which is neither a long nor expensive one, and which a "long suffering people" truly believe they deserve. We hope the commissioners will see it in this light too and speedily grant us the first favor we have ever asked them.

Picnics seem to be the order of the day the past week. The B. W. Smith family and a number of friends celebrated Miss Ruth's birthday with a picnic at Palm Springs on Saturday. George, Ruth and Bessie Smith, Clark, Oscar and Flora Pearson, Helen Iserman, Bessie East, Eben Hoequist and Pauline Thompson, also Mr. Sanders and Mr. Graham from Sanford, all going by train. Mr. Wickam took Mrs. Iserman, two sons and daughter, Ruth in his auto, and Jack and Lillian Booth drove "Pet." A grand good time is reported, with plenty of fun and food.

Thursday afternoon two autos and four teams gave transportation to a jolly crowd from the famous West Side to Twin Lakes plantation. The young people romped, raced, boated and climbed trees, while their elders "swapped yarns" and prepared that most important feature of all picnics, the lunch. Tables were spread under the big camphor trees and loaded with all sorts of good things. Fried chicken in stacks, various salads, baked beans, plain salmon and salmon croquets, chip-ped beef sandwiches, stuffed eggs, stuffed peppers, bread and butter, peach pie, apple pie, lemon pie, mince pie and cheese. Half a dozen different kinds of delicious cakes, cold tea, hot coffee and watermelons are all we can remember now. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Rabun and son Carl, Mr. and Mrs. McBride, Mr. Stenstrom and daughters, Mrs. Reynolds, Ada Graves, grand daughters Dell and Bernice Reynolds, and sons Orin, Newt and Guy, Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and sons, Lloyd and Landis, the Misses Kemp, Maggie Pearl Smith and Jack and Lillian Booth.

On Sunday the Boley, Cranberry and Price families, with well filled lunch baskets spent the day at the same place, and in much the same way, only a little more quietly as befitting the day. This party numbered ten.

W. B. Buchanan is installing a gasoline engine, putting up a big tank, which will soon be in fine shape, "with all the modern improvements."

Mrs. Ferrell has been quite ill, with Dr. Neal in attendance, but we are glad to hear is rapidly improving and hope she may soon be quite well again.

Mr. Bridge is surveying some land at Palm Springs this week.

Mr. Foley's son who has been quite ill at the hospital in Orlando has sufficiently recovered to be with his father here.

Take Advertising

If the promoters of the scheme for "advertising Florida by automobile" really believed in the effectiveness of the form of publicity that they are trying to sell, would they not employ it in securing contracts for their service? Instead of doing this, apparently they are depending upon space donated them by the newspapers, followed up by personal solicitation, to interest the various business enterprises of the state in the proposition.

The plan of operation as explained in news (7) articles generally mailed to Florida newspapers by the bureau which proposes to "advertise Florida by automobile" is to send a machine on a tour of the north, having the driver call on the leading newspapers of the cities that are visited as well as upon Governors and other prominent officials. A booklet is to be distributed by the driver of the automobile among the people with whom he comes in contact on the trip.

Advertising is no longer an uncertain quantity in the business world. The big advertisers of the country have found out for themselves, through enormous experimental expenditures of money, just what forms of publicity produce results. A proposition to devote any portion of his advertising appropriation to such an automobile tour as is proposed for the purpose of further putting Florida on the map would not be entertained for a moment by any one of the great national advertisers of the country.

These advertisers have learned from experience that the sales of their goods cannot be made by what may be called "advertising on the fly." They have ascertained definitely that it is in the calm of moments devoted to reading and reflection that the average person may be reached and influenced by advertising. Like these big advertisers, Florida has something to sell and she must sell it through the same scientific methods that they employ. The housewife whom it is desirable to have buy Florida fruits and vegetables, the farmer who should be interested in our fertile lands, the banker or manufacturer who should know of the marvelous investment opportunities of the state—none of these will be found on the street corners watching for the automobile advertising Florida as it passes through their towns.

Florida newspapers are unusually liberal and generous. They are so broad minded and patriotic that they boast freely anything and everything which seems to offer a means of advancing the interests of the state. Sooner or later they will have to begin to exercise greater care with reference to the enterprises to which they devote free space. Many of these not only fail to deserve the support that is given them by the press, but definitely take from the newspapers of the state that which legitimately is theirs. The papers of the north generally have closed their columns to all schemes which seek to secure space for nothing, and the time is not far distant when the Florida press will need to seriously consider a similar policy.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

The Abolishing Habit
 (By John C. Trice)

Because a few slave owners in the south were cruel to those under bondage, abolitionists of the north made common warfare upon all slaveholders and reduced this section to a state of pauperism, then stood looking on indifferently while the vampires and vultures of their own section preyed upon the broken and disappointed southerners. Since then our increasing regard for the immortal principles of humanity has taught us to look upon slavery as a monstrous thing, but from the same source we learn two wrongs do not make a right—hence we still regard the civil war as the crowning folly of all the ages—the colossal infamy of American government. Whether thundered from the pulpit of religio-enthusiasm or proclaimed from the balustrades of the transcending glory of national government, he who accuses God of directing such a war, on the one side or the other is as ignorant of the attributes of the architects of the supernal splendors of earth and heaven as were those who went shrieking through the forests and fed upon raw flesh of wild animals during the dark ages. It is so inconsistent with Infinite Love and Unblinded Charity, the superlative characteristics of great goodness, that it becomes sacrilegious to associate the two together.

Yet the fire which directed the pen of the Harriet Beecher Stowes to grip the hearts of the nation and dull the sensibilities of men into the most stupendous wrong of christian civilization is not dead. It smoulders often and the country for a brief period seems to be well rid of its baneful influence. But just as we begin to breathe a silent prayer of thankfulness some misguided enthusiast fans the sentiment into flame once more, and as its radiance falls athwart the canopy of the universe the restless citizenship mistakes it for the star of hope and look upon it with the same reverence as the Sun-worshippers did the orb of day. The Anti-Saloon League proposes to usher in the millenium by state and national prohibition. Another crowd would hasten it with an anti-cigarette law. The Presbyterian council recently in session decided only those who chew tobacco in all forms can travel with its members to the new Jerusalem. The very latest is a suggestion from a West Florida paper that a place of amusement should be abolished because a murder was committed there. These are only a few of the thousand or more agencies being daily pushed for the hastening of the dawn of the millenium. Yet we disappointedly scan the eastern horizon for the first rays of its effulgent light, and only find a darkening gloom. There must be something radically wrong with the modern reform system.

Slavery cannot be justified on any grounds. A custom which hushes the laughter of the young folks and continually keeps them under the espionage of a frowning old she-cat or a growling old he-bear is the last addition of an earthly purgatory sentence. Some people cannot dance, therefore they oppose dancing in all its forms: Others have no ear for music, and they straightway see a demon lurking in every place of amusement where music makes the listeners forget the fleeting hours. Dyspeptics who have to forego chewing and smoking envy the pleasure others get out of it, and on a pretext of piety would forbid it. Still others who found it impossible to convert to personal use the entire output of the brewers and distillers before destroying the membrane of their stomachs, for one cause or another would like to enforce prohibition.

Of course they are working for the benefit of humanity. But the trouble is, they are ~~not~~ violent in their good works that the occasion justifies. They insist on "making people think as they do" by whatever means suggest themselves as easiest and quickest of results. They have misinterpreted the command to teach and preach into a justification of force, forgetting that gentleness leadeth far, while force usually makes a big noise and ends in a yow. They imagine themselves personal agents of a merciful God, and in His name commit barbarities that would shame the King of perdition—forgetting that intelligent people know if God desired to resort to force He could make us all good by the exercise of His will.

If he should forcefully stop everything which at some time leads to a crime, or even to murder where would it end? The first fight I ever saw in my life was at a church, because of some plain talk from the pulpit by my father. An erring brother objected to having his errors pointed out, even though no names were called, and decided to settle his grievance in truly barbarian style. Perhaps he thought the Lord was directing him. But when he went up against that preacher he soon found he had read his directions wrong and had no time to get a new edition. He and his friends wanted to tear down the church for the alleged reason a heretic had preached in it, but perhaps the real reason was that he had been licked. There was just as much reason in that man's attitude as there is in wanting to destroy some place of amusement at which murder is at some time committed. Returning to the question asked at the beginning of this paragraph, where would the destruction end? Murder is committed at times in church. Shall we for that reason destroy the churches? Frequently the home circle is the scene of a murder. Shall we for that reason destroy the homes? Flying machines, automobiles, railway trains, steamboats, and every other agency of the human family at times become the direct instrumentality of most horrible death. Shall we abolish them all? If not, then why should any one be destroyed for that reason?

Real regulation is the shrine at which all can confidently worship. (Advt.)

OUR BOYS

The Herald has mentioned before that the boys of Sanford are not getting a square deal from the men of this city. We are not trying to keep them at home because we are not making a so-called home attractive for them.

It would be no difficult matter for the ladies and the men of Sanford to combine their efforts in a building for the library, Woman's Club and Y. M. C. A.

The above was written for Tuesday's Herald and we are glad to announce today that the public spirited ladies and gentlemen of Sanford have taken up this matter and purchased a building and site for the Woman's Club and Library, building and the Y. M. C. A. will follow.

A GOOD IDEA

That the government can print all the school books needed for each state in the Union is an idea which is now gaining a strong foothold among educators.

Such a method would eliminate the possible graft which has been known to exist where some special study book was sought to be introduced by a publisher.

We are more and more drifting into the spirit of paternalism, and while it is of the sort of legislation that the socialists admire and the good old parties deprecate, the plan is sure to make inroads upon the styles of the older times.

By all means the schoolbook question could be taken up by the government with advantage to all the people and should such legislation be effected there will be much satisfaction.

estimated that the government could produce the books at a price which would at least cut the selling price directly in halves.—Palm Beach Post.

Holly of the Sanford Herald promises a meeting of the Lake Region Editorial Association in Orlando during October. If Ferris of the Orlando Sentinel and Howard of the Orange County Citizen ever get well enough.

All right, Mr. President: It is moved by Howard and seconded by Ferris that Walton, Reese and Nuckolls of the Reporter-Star and Sparkman of the Sentinel be a committee to wait on the two sick chaps and straighten them out.—Orlando Citizen.

New Increases in Rates

On the theory that the railroads themselves are responsible for their present predicament, and that conditions may be corrected through elimination of the self-acquired evils, which include extravagance and waste in the purchase of supplies, lack of efficiency, and general financial mismanagement, in many cases, the Interstate Commerce Commission, probably within the next few days, will rule against the railroads in their plea for a "horizontal" 5 per cent increase of rates.

Concessions to be Small

The commission's decision will be that the situation does not justify a flat 5 per cent increase on any commodity or on any class rate. In fact, no increases of any consequence whatever will be granted on commodities, though a concession to the railroads amounting in the aggregate to about $16,000,000 annually will be granted on class rates.

Arraignment of the Railroads

The report is to be a voluminous document. It will be a terrific arraignment of the railroads, and, among other things, will direct attention to the public to a condition the commission believes to be a fact—that the new rates to be prescribed by the commission will not afford a just reason for any wholesale or retail dealer to increase the price of a single commodity so far as the consumer is concerned.

The commission will insist upon economies which will save the eastern lines, it is estimated, $25,000,000 a year. It will go deep into the question of waste and extravagance, and this, coupled with financial mismanagement of many of the railroads, will be cited as a reason that efficiency and economy must take the place of the expected added revenue from rates.

It was expected that the decision of the commission would be made public Saturday, but a pressure was brought for certain eleven-hour modifications, said to be less unfavorable to the railroads, and it was agreed that these would be disposed of if possible, this week.

During the day Secretary of the Interior Lane, himself a former member of the commission, went to the offices of the commission, presumably bearing a message from the President that further delay in the handing down of the decision meant further uneasiness throughout the country.

Specifically in the report which is to be submitted within the week, all increases whatever to the railroads on commodities have been denied. This includes coal, coke, ore, limestone, gravel, plaster, cement, stone, lumber, other forest products, tiles, brick, clay, paper and pulp, ice, flour, grain and petroleum.

No increase at all, it is said, will be granted on lake and rail rates, this applying to shipments partly on the coast lakes and partly by rail. It consists mainly of ore, coal and grain, though there are many other commodities that move by that route.

There may be a slight increase in the sugar rate.

It will be in the advance in class rates that the railroads must derive their main comfort. Upon six of these class rates increases of varying importance have been allowed, but none of these will amount to the proposed 5 per cent. Class rates apply on goods shipped in boxes, bundles, bales, crates and other small packages. Most of it consists of manufactured products, and all of it is expensive to handle and subject to damage in transit.

The report will call upon the railroads to increase their efficiency. It will urge the elimination of allowances to industrial lines, as well as the doing away with free switching, trap-car service, free litigation, and terminal service in Chicago, free litigation and floatage in New York city; loading and unloading of carload lots, free collections and deliveries, free wharfage and dockage, free reconsignments and free transportation of private cars.

The elimination of these practices, in the opinion of the commission will effect a saving of some $25,000,000 yearly. It is pointed out, for instance, that the railroads grant in rebates to the United States Steel Corporation alone about $10,000,000 a year in free service in what is described as industrial line practices.

Attention will be directed in the report that the financial condition of the New Haven, Boston and Maine, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal, Chicago, Hamilton and Dayton, Chicago and Alton, and Pere Marquette are partly due to increase in cost of operation, but mainly to alleged financial mismanagement.—Florida Growers News.

The Preacher and Choir

There is a church not far away, Where regime music's sung each day. The organ's hummed hundred times, Invites the choir To "stan" around.

When suddenly a howl was made, The minister pushed, "HER CHOIR." Ah me! how they fancy 'er, The infidel and "Tango Dancer."

When suddenly a howl was made, The minister pushed, "HER CHOIR." Ah me! how they fancy 'er, The infidel and "Tango Dancer."

His brethren came to his rescue and to him We'll stand by you; And then the righteous war begins To rid the Church of all its sins.

The "Tango Dancer" yelled "I'm hit." And Oh! I don't know where "to sit." Into the Elder I will write To see if he will hold me tight.

Unto the Elder she did go, Relating her sad "tale of woe."

The Elder came with saintly air, And, well, bless me, I do declare, The Preacher won the race and then We hope to have him back again.

Gunman Gets Five Years Orlando, July 23.—H. F. Hopson, the principal in the auto bus hold-up of June 27 who was found guilty at last week's session of criminal court, was sentenced to five years in the convicts camps upon the reopening of court Tuesday morning. In his charge to the prisoner, Judge Warlow spoke of his regret that Hopson alone should pay the penalty for a crime that was concocted and suggested by Shirley, who was released by the same jury that found Hopson guilty. It is believed that the leniency showed Shirley by the jury was due to the fact that an advanced stage of tuberculosis combined with his confinement in jail for three weeks had so weakened him that his recovery is doubtful. Hopson's attorneys will appeal to the supreme court in an effort to free him on the grounds of previous jeopardy. They made such a motion during the trial last week but their request was refused by Judge Warlow for the supposed reason of his wishing to avoid a mistrial.

A Gift to Mr. Hyman

The Florida B. Y. P. U. Encampment just held at Lake City, on the grounds of Columbia College presented Rev. George Hyman, pastor of the Baptist church of Sanford, with a beautiful gold beaded walking cane, suitably engraved. Mr. Hyman has been the business manager of the Encampment since its organization. He refused to serve further as manager on account of the duties devolved upon him as leader of the Institutional Church being constructed by this congregation in Sanford. He was, however, elected vice president of the Encampment and made chairman of the athletic and social department.

Agitated on Ice Price Orlando, July 24.—There is considerable agitation in Orlando at present among the housewives who are wondering if the price in ice has advanced. Previously the book for which they paid $1 contained 25 coupons and each coupon was good for 10 pounds of ice, while the new books issued contain 20 coupons of the value of 5 cents each. No allusion of the number of pounds of ice is printed on the books or the coupons. The ice company says the consumer will not get 12 1/4 pounds of ice for each 5 cent ticket, while, on the other hand, the housewives say their supply of ice has not been increased and fail to see the humor in receiving five tickets less for a dollar. An understanding is to be demanded by the people, who fail to understand this state of affairs.

Major Butler is Fishing Major George Butler, late editor of the Inverness Chronicle, who gave that paper wide reputation because of his excellent local work, "dropped in" on the Telegram force today and got a cordial welcome. The Major is a veteran who has worn the harness for many years with very little rest, and he says that he is now a citizen of the world, without local habitation and he proposes to go-a-fishing and stay on the job until he gets tired. If some weekly paper in Florida wants a mighty fine local editor who can also help out in the case, the services of Major Butler can probably be secured by communicating with him. He has friends in print shops all over Florida and we shall be glad to see him settled at a steady job again after he catches all the fish he wants. The Major has a golden heart and has been helping other people all his life, and some reciprocation would probably come in handy for him now.—Lakeland Telegram.

PEACE IN SIGHT

Mexican Troubles May Be Settled By The Chiefs. Washington, July 24.—Dispatches today from the headquarters of rival Mexican factions, indicated that fighting there had almost ended. The principal obstacle still in the way is Villa's attitude toward Carranza. The United States Consular agent, Carothers, has said, however, that the rebel leaders are working in more or less harmony. Carothers is with Villa and is trying to impress him with the importance of cooperation, and John R. Silliman, with Carranza is doing the same. Dispatches from Mexico City this morning said that District Governor Turbide had announced the signing of an armistice between the federals and the revolutionists, which gives all guarantees of safety to everybody. It is said that Carranza has been in communication with the capital and it is believed that he is opposed to granting amnesty to political offenders. United States treasury officials along the Mexican line today were instructed to be especially watchful to prevent the shipment of war materials into Mexico. The administration is determined to prevent a counter-revolution.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off. I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it. After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely. I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether." Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy. Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.

WHY WOMEN ARE TEMPTED.

Their friendship is a lurking snare. Their humor but an idle breath. Their smiles the smiles that traitors wear. Their love is hate—their life is death.

It is always the fairest flower that has the least hardy stem. It is always the loveliest woman whom temptation assails and whose hands are turned by flattery. Some women are born more fascinating than others. They hear fulsome praise regarding themselves from the time they enter their teens. Such a girl is told by her father that she exerts a great influence over each one with whom she is brought into contact. They imbue in her the thought that she is a love magnet which needs draw all hearts to her.

She generally marries early. If she is contented to settle down to domestic life, well and good. The coming of little ones may take up her attention, engage her love and devotion. It is the married beauty with no home ties save a husband upon whose hands time hangs heavily. The wife who has no children to sew for usually employs much of her leisure time in making dainty clothes to adorn her own person. She doesn't make them to hang in a closet. She casts about for places to go where she can wear them; see and be seen. The friends—such a woman chooses mar or make her life. They either turn her thoughts in a sensible groove or influence her to mirth and frivolity. In these jolly crowds men are wont to sling conventionalities to the winds. It's Cora, Flora, Daisy and Mame with them instead of according these women the dignity of their married names—Mrs. So-and-So!

Such familiarity has been known to lead, in a hilarious moment, to endearing phrases on the lips of men. She who listens to such flattering speeches is liable to have her head turned by the flattery, and the temptation to listen and believe gains control of her better judgment. The woman who realizes she is on dangerous ground should fly from temptation, not edge the closer to it. It is seldom a man makes love to a woman if he does not find her willing to listen.

If his first attempt at familiarity is rebuffed in a ladylike but decided manner, he will look elsewhere for a conquest. Eagerness to be thought society ladies is responsible often for the first step. The social climber gives little dinners. Wine and merriment are not lacking. If husband is busy, she thinks it no harm to accept other men's escort to theater or ball. She soon finds herself in a different circle of friends from that which welcomed her poor, plodding husband. The gulf between them widens. It is well for the married woman to remember that she should listen to praise and endearment only from the lips of her husband.

SHOULD A HUSBAND—OR WIFE—RUN THE HOME.

Of love, of joy, of peace and plenty, home is the resort. Where, supporting and supported, polished friends and dear relations mingle into bliss.

There are easy dispositioned women who are quite eager to take things as they come. Other women believe they have certain rights, and will not yield them if they consider their privileges even to a husband. It would be well for the latter class of women, to study the law, ere they enter the rank and file of matrimony.

If she believes the world is her domain, in which to reign supreme, she may get a sudden jolt to find that her husband has a perfect right to say how many apples she should put in a pie, or that he must be consulted every time she asks her mother to drop in to luncheon. A learned judge of the supreme court has decided that even if the home is jointly owned by the husband and wife the husband has a right to regulate the household and to decide who shall stop beneath its roof. This will make many an independent girl take a long breath ere she weds. She may insist upon a prenuptial agreement that he will not press his right to regulate the household.

Should he demur, she will insist, perhaps, that she has an equal right to run his business. Summing up the situation, it would seem that there was but one proper way of disposing of the matter—the home is the woman's throne. Her sphere is in making it the ideal resting place for her husband. She should be supreme in all domestic affairs. While his wishes should be respected as to the guests, or friends she invites to call upon her, he should not lay down the law that she should exclude the loved one that it is a pleasure for her to entertain. As to the man being the head of the house, paying the bills gives him that prestige. It is a courtesy which he should accept good naturedly. But in reality the wife is the head of the house. It is due to her management that affairs run on so smoothly. His interest she looks after carefully; studies his comfort. If the average husband was obliged to step into his wife's shoes and run the home for a fortnight, his temper, his nerves and his patience would be stretched to the breaking point. He'd know all about keeping a fine, regulated home if he had to do a big washing on Monday, iron half a hundred starched pieces on Tuesday, do the bi-weekly baking for a hungry family on Wednesday, clean a score of windows on Thursday and dust parlor and living rooms, sweep halls and stairways on Friday, bake, clean dining room, and kitchen, refrigerators, to say nothing of getting three meals a day, washing dishes, mending, cleaning silver, and a thousand and one things, comprising the duty of the genius who presides over the household. It's a wonder the majority of wives can be such good pals with husbands—meeting them with smiles, parting from them with kisses, when they have so much on their minds. No doubt it was a bachelor who decided that the husband should regulate the household. If he were a married man he would know better.

PLACING GIRLS IN FALSE LIGHT.

And are these follies going? And is my proud heart growing? Too cold or wise for brilliant eyes Again to set it glowing? Poor wisdom's chance, against a glance, is now as weak as ever.

One can make allowances for the very young man who starts the wrong way in love-making, who invites a young miss to see a show of which he knows nothing or takes her to a dance where she might meet frolicsome young people whose acquaintance her folks would consider undesirable.

The well-seasoned man of the world can offer no excuses for placing a girl in a false light by taking her to places of amusement where her innocent young face should not be seen. It is usually the girl who has neither father or brothers to look after her whom the free lance keeps out until after midnight. Widow's daughters are usually his prey, yet orphans suit him better. He is usually a man about town, who is kept up by his kinfolks. This relationship gives him prestige.

Girls whom he invites out are flattered by the attentions of this man of influential family. It never occurs to them to question the propriety of making appointments to step out of an evening with him having no idea as to where they are going. If they wind up at a dance in some restaurant and her escort insists upon ordering wine profusely, soon getting under the influence of it, she finds herself at last in a most embarrassing situation.

She must trust herself on the street, at length, with a man who is not capable of caring for her, or spurn his companionship further and make her way home at midnight alone.

A young woman is always judged by the company she keeps. She may be ever so gentle of heart and pure of mind, but that will not warrant her reputation from being smirched if she is seen at questionable amusement places in the company of a man who bears a bad name.

If girls are not careful of themselves such men will not be careful of them. Men whose only thought is the search of pleasure are not marrying men. With them it is this girl today and that one tomorrow. The youngest girls should be warned by what they read and are told by those who have their interest at heart.

The road of pleasure often has an abrupt and dangerous ending. Young girls do not realize this truth. The free lance knows it. It is at him the world's anger of resentment should be aimed for deliberately placing young women in a false light.

St. Bernard Snowed In.

As late as April 15, says a Geneva letter, a solid wall of snow, nearly fifteen feet high, surrounded the Hospice of the Grand St. Bernard, in which the monks and a few visitors were kept prisoner.

During March the number of avalanches and heavy snowfalls exceeded anything experienced in the past forty years. Telegraph and telephone wires are lying in the snowdrifts, and all communication with the valleys on both the Swiss and Italian sides was interrupted.

On April 10 an avalanche entered the hospice itself through some of the upper windows, but fortunately nobody was seriously injured. The St. Bernard dogs were obliged to do extra sentry duty and patrolled each side of the pass day and night for lost travelers. It is estimated that it will be several weeks before the few visitors who are in the hospice will be able to descend to the valleys, even if they use skis. There is sufficient food and drink to stand a "snow siege" of several months.

Progression in Ship Names.

Now is the season of the year when 10,000 pleasure boats go overalls in the waters around New York. On the ways in a Harlem river boat yard is a sailboat a young man owned which two seasons ago he called the Friendship. Then, when he was taking his wife's boat sailing last season he called it the Courtesy. He appeared at the yard the other day and ordered the boat repainted and the name changed to the Partnership. The boat yard man is offering to wager a wedding is in prospect in Harlem yacht club circles.

For Bridal Couple

Miss Lillian Gibson and Rev. Dr. Brownlee, whose marriage will take place early in August are the recipients of many delightful attentions from their friends and admirers in Sanford. Miss Gibson's sweet disposition and charm of manner endears her to her friends who delight to do her honor.

Among the various affairs being given for this popular young couple was the charming supper party at which Mrs. Henry McLaulin was the agreeable hostess Tuesday evening last.

Covers were laid for eight at the daintily spread table, the color motif being pink and white. Old fashioned pink and white china, flanked by gleaming silver and cut glass made an exquisite setting for the delicious menu served. Resting upon a handsome embroidered centerpiece was a large heart outlined in green, and filled with pink hydrangeas; suspended above it was a ring, typical of the wedding to be, while surrounding it were lovely little cupid, with fluttering gauzy wings.

The heart idea was carried out in the cakes, and the bread too was in heart shape slices. The table was indeed lovely and the menu tempting and appetizing. Those at the table were Miss Gibson, Misses Bessie Long and Alice Whitner, Mr. and Mrs. McLaulin, Henry and Victor McLaulin.

Spend-the-Day Party

Misses Lettie and Annie Lee Caldwell entertained Wednesday with a spend-the-day party for their guest, Miss Juliette Gibbons of Jacksonville. The girls enjoyed a delightful salmagundi time together, as well as the delicious dinner served at one o'clock. In addition to the guest of honor there were the Misses Lillian Herring, Muriel Harrold, Annie Whitner, Ruth Roberts, Gena Maulden, Douglas Abernathy and Margaret Davis.

Sewing Party

Mrs. W. M. McKinnon was hostess at an informal sewing party for Miss Gibson Wednesday morning. A number of maids and young matrons gathered at the pretty bungalow to put the finishing touches to the bridal outfit. The new fad of sewing parties for the bride-to-be is very popular and has found an enthusiastic welcome in Sanford.

A congenial party picnicking at Miller's Lake was Mrs. M. R. Massey and children, Mr. and Mrs. Will King, Miss Hilda Massey, Lucille Anderson and Mr. Elbert Osborn.

Wednesday Auction Bridge

Mrs. B. A. Howard entertained the Wednesday Auction Bridge Club this week. There were two tables, Mrs. Speer winning the club prize. After the game delicious cake and ice cream were served by the hostess. Those present were Mesdames Deane Turner, R. E. Tolar, Speer, Claude Howard, Roy Symes, W. P. Carter and Bennett.

Every Week Bridge

Mrs. A. B. Connelly was hostess to the Every Week Bridge Club Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Cruse Barnes, Mrs. Frank Miller and Mrs. C. O. McLaughlin present.

Supper Party

Among the pleasant, informal affairs of the week was the charming little supper party Thursday evening, given by Mrs. C. O. McLaughlin, whose guests were Mrs. Cruse Barnes, Mrs. W. D. Holden and Hon. Forrest Lake. After tea an interesting game of bridge was enjoyed by Mrs. McLaughlin and her guests.

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Star Wednesday evening, Miss Ruth Hendricks of Orlando was initiated into membership and the mysteries of the order. At the close of the business session a pleasant social hour was enjoyed. Cake and pineapple sherbet were served by the refreshment committee.

Straw Ride

A very happy event in the younger set was a straw ride Tuesday night with Miss Nellie Evans as chaperone. The young people left the city in a two horse wagon for Fort Meade, where a dandy lunch and several big watermelons played a conspicuous part in the pleasures of the evening. Those enjoying the frolic were Misses Susie Brown, Katherine and Esther Wilson, Ruth Roberts, Mary Gatchel, Margaret Stevenson, Daisy Betts, Annie May Pope and Ruth Kanner. The boys were Fred Wight, Morris Spencer, Rush Murphy, Ernest Gormly and Hal Washburn.

Picnic at Woodland Park

Complimentary to her young guest Miss Margaret Stevenson, Mrs. W. M. Haynes chaperoned a jolly party of young people, picnicking at Woodland Park Thursday. Those in the party going out in automobiles were Mr. and Mrs. Haynes, Mrs. Stevenson, Misses Margaret Stevenson, Mary Gatchel, Douglas Abernathy, Annie May Pope, Ernest Gormly, Bill Pope, Howard Gibbs, Messrs. Phillips and Whitner.

Bottles Airtight

Corks may be made to seal catsup airtight. If they are slightly larger than tops of bottles they should be boiled in clear water for 20 minutes; this decreases their size, says the St. Louis Star. Insert in mouths of bottles while hot; they will expand in cooling, and in this way will make perfectly airtight stoppers.

MILLIONS ARE LOST

Statistics Show How Forgers Fleece Their Victims.

Law Only Protects Bank Customer in His Signature, Not So Often Tampered With—Very Easy to Raise a Check.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The latest statistics from the best authentic sources show the total losses through altered checks and drafts in 1912 amounted to $15,000,000, and is constantly on the increase, says the Texas Bankers' Journal. At first reading these figures seem almost incredible; but statistics are hard things to get around, and we are brought face to face with a very serious condition.

To a carefully trained eye a forged signature is easily detected in most cases, though the forger sometimes utilizes facilities for copying signatures that are next to the artistic. However, the most popular way among crooks seems to be that of securing, through various ways, a check of small amount with the genuine signature of a depositor, and raising the amount to a fancy figure. The banker, after close scrutiny of the signature, pays the check, and within due time—often two or three weeks—the man who originally signed a small check finds that a large one has been paid, and the hard part of it is that it is over his own signature.

It is much easier to raise a check than most people imagine. It doesn't require great skill to raise a check from $4 to $40, or from $5 to $50. This is true of almost any of the even multiples of five. Even when the face of the check cannot be changed by adding prefixes or suffixes, the clever crook simply erases the writing with an acid and fills in an amount to his own liking. This is even done on "safety paper," which is supposed by many to be proof against such tricks of the crook. A case recently came to light in Texas where a check, written on "safety paper," had been raised from $2.10 to $50.10. A few slight changes with pen and ink, with one little acid change, accomplished the trick.

The cleverness of the check raising crook is manifest by the fact that he never tampers with the signature, and that being genuine raised checks are often paid by bankers. It is very necessary that all people doing a banking business exercise all possible care in writing their checks, as in nearly every case in which a check-raiser figures it is the individual giving the check, and not the bank, which sustains the loss.

The banking laws are such that the man who draws a check is protected only in the signature, and not the body of the check. For instance, if a check signed by William Morris for $5 has been raised to $500, and the signature has not been altered, Mr. Morris is the person who loses the $495, and not the bank. However, if the signature has been changed and the bank paid the money on the check then the bank is liable.

FAMOUS TRIO MEET AGAIN

Earl Grey, John Hays Hammond and Major Burnham Greet Each Other in San Francisco.

San Francisco.—There was a brief reunion here one day recently of three men who have become famous throughout the world. They were the British statesman, Earl Grey, John Hays Hammond, noted mining engineer, and Maj. Fred R. Burnham, famous scout and soldier of fortune.

The three parted company last in Rhodesia in 1896. Then Earl Grey was the administrator of Rhodesia, Hammond was consulting engineer for

John Hays Hammond.

Ocell Rhodes and the Goldfield Consolidated Mines of South America. Major Burnham was a scout for Lord Roberts and he had just killed the noted Matabele outlaw, M'Limbo, frustrating a projected massacre of the British settlers.

Major Burnham, hearing that Earl Grey was in San Francisco, came to the city from Three Forks to meet him. He brought a little gold nugget that he has carried as a talisman through all his adventures in different parts of the world, and the treasured letter Lord Roberts wrote to him when he was invalided home. The report by Burnham to Earl Grey, the administrator of the killing of M'Limbo is a noteworthy page in British history.

The three talked affectionately of the stirring South African times for half an hour.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR INTERURBAN ROAD SMYRNA - SANFORD

MOVEMENT HAS STARTED AT LAKE HELEN

NORTHERN CAPITALISTS READY WITH FINANCES

LAKE HELEN AND NEW SMYRNA READY TO TAKE UP MATTER WITH OTHER CITIES

That the efforts started some time ago by the residents of Lake Helen for an interurban electric railroad between New Smyrna and the St. Johns river, to pass through Lake Helen, bid fair to be successful and that the line will eventually extend on through to the west coast at Tampa, is the word brought to this city Wednesday by S. E. Carmichael of Lake Helen, who was delegated by the Civic League of Lake Helen to visit New Smyrna and the other cities and towns along the line of the proposed road and ascertain the sentiment of the people.

The movement for this interurban road was started several months ago by the offer of a wealthy winter resident of Lake Helen to give $20,000 towards such a project and other offers from residents and winter visitors in Lake Helen soon brought the offered amount up to about $40,000. Following this a movement was started to get the proper financial backing for such a project, and an offer has now been made to the Civic League of Lake Helen by a big engineering and construction concern in the north to take up the matter and finance the building of the road.

Mr. Carmichael's visit to New Smyrna Wednesday was for the purpose of putting the proposition before the board of trade with a view to learning what the people here will do about the matter. From this city he went yesterday to Sanford and Orlando to investigate the sentiment in those cities on the matter of extending the road through from the St. Johns river to the west coast. Other cities and towns along the route of the proposed road will be visited by Mr. Carmichael, who will make his report to the Lake Helen Civic League and then to the company which proposes to finance the undertaking.

Two or three different routes to the west coast have been sketched out for the proposed road, each of which has its eastern terminus at New Smyrna, to give connection with the ocean through the inlet, the inland waterway and the Florida East Coast railroad. It is believed the people of New Smyrna will respond willingly and liberally to the proposition. New Smyrna News.

Fair and Warm

Washington, July 28.—Warm and generally fair weather over the whole country was forecast tonight by the weather bureau for the first half of the coming week.

The next disturbance of importance to cross the country, said the bureau, will appear in the far west Monday or Tuesday and move eastward, crossing the great central valley Wednesday or Thursday and the eastern states near the end of the week. This disturbance will be attended by local showers, thunder storms and cooler weather. There are no indications at this time of a disturbance in the West Indies.

Married in Michigan

The many friends of Mrs. Mary E. Sykes will be surprised to learn that she is married. The happy event occurred in Lake City, Michigan, last week and has just been made public.

The bridegroom is ex-Congressman E. M. Wallace of Hot Springs, Arkansas and a well known and prominent Arkansan. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will spend the summer in the north and in the winter will divide their time between Hot Springs and Sanford. It is rumored in official circles that the ex-congressman is elected for a consular position in a foreign country and in the event that he accepts the appointment, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will live abroad.

The best wishes of the Sanford Herald are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace.

MILLAGE REDUCTION

Governor Trammell Urges Commissioners to Reduce Tax Levy

Tallahassee, July 28.—Governor Park Trammell today wrote to the county commissioners and the members of county school board of every county in Florida, calling attention to the fact that tax assessment values have been increased in a number of the counties, and urging that, in order that the burden of taxation made be made and kept as light as possible, corresponding reductions be made in the millage levied by the county boards.

The letter written by Governor Trammell to the members of the county boards is as follows: "State of Florida, Executive Chamber, Tallahassee, July 26, 1914.

"My Dear Sir: In view of the fact that more or less increase has been made in the total assessment values in a large number of the counties of the state for this year's assessment, I write to urge that as far as can possibly be done your board reduce the tax millage in your county in proportion to the rise in tax valuations. While I believe in progress and development I am equally as strong in my opinion that every reasonable precaution and effort should be exerted to make and keep the burden of taxation as light as possible.

"In every county where there has been any substantial raise in assessment valuations I think the board of county commissioners and the county school board should make a corresponding substantial reduction in the millage tax levy.

Yours very truly, PARK M. TRAMMELL, Governor."

Woodland Park Notes

The Bussing Bumble Bees of the Junior Civic League and their friends came Thursday for an all-day picnic. The "Alma May" brought most of them and others came on wheels and autos. To say merely they had a good time would be putting it rather mildly. Although they enjoyed the other amusements the pool was the main feature. When these bees got their wings wet they buzzed louder than ever, the least little bees making the most noise. The bigger Warrior Bees fought a fierce battle with water ammunition. The contest also was in use very much. Mr. and Mrs. Haynes and party of twelve enjoyed down and spent a pleasant day. Sunday, about one hundred people visited the park. Capt. Hoodman and Tillis each brought a load. Those who came in autos were Dr. and Frank Miller with their families and Mr. Starling, Mr. and Mrs. DeCotter, Joe DeMott and Island K. Murrell and Paul Biggers. The usual number of boys on wheels and a good number of Monroe people came and a good many went in swimming.

Prohibitionist Defeated

Dallas, July 28.—Prohibition was defeated in Saturday's state Democratic primary, according to additional returns to day. James H. Ferguson, the anti-governor (of the organization, for Governor, increased his lead to 2,000 over Thomas H. Ball, the prohibition candidate. The returns indicate a fine majority for Ferguson of about 30,000.

The resolution to have a state constitutional Prohibition amendment election was running behind tonight, with prospects that final success would show its defeat of about 10,000.

Edith Hobby of the Beaumont Enterprise was leading for Lieutenant-Governor.

Mrs. D. L. Thrasher and daughter May leave today for Bevard, North Carolina where they will spend the summer.

BUILDING OPERATION SURPASS ALL RECORDS FOR OLD SUMMER TIME

SANFORD IS A CITY OF BEAUTIFUL HOMES—MANY BEING BUILT AND CONTRACTS LET

SANFORD HAS THE RECORD WITH THREE NEW CHURCHES BEING ERECTED AT THE SAME TIME

There is no dull summer time in Sanford. Building operations were never quite as active at this season of the year and go where you will in the city the carpenters and bricklayers are found busy on new homes, churches or business blocks.

Sanford has the unique distinction of having three churches under construction at one time. At least the Baptist church has three stories up, the Methodists have broken ground and the Presbyterians are joining the old structure preparatory to starting the building. Contractor Shiphosier has the contracts for the Baptist and Methodist churches. Architect Streetor, St. Jacksonville was here Saturday and yesterday with the complete plans for the Presbyterian and they will be submitted for bids this week and some of our contractors will start work immediately. These three churches will be of pressed brick and will aggregate $20,000 each or more for the buildings alone. This bespeaks a wonderful prosperity for the city of Sanford and a growth of the churches and Sunday schools aside from the rapid growth of the city numerically.

The new tourist hotel seems in a fair way to be started soon, as the deal for this property will be closed in a few weeks. On the Sanford House property will also be built the new postoffice building to cost $55,500 and also another brick block joining the new Garner-Woodruff building.

The Elks claim positively that they will start their fine new home in the fall and that it will be finished before the tourists leave next spring. This building will cost about $20,000. The Eagles are also looking for a site for an elegant new home. The Odd Fellows are also seriously considering the buying of a business lot for building. The new Coca-Cola building on that street is almost finished and Manager Runge expects to move in about the first of August. This building is of brick and is complete in every particular for the bottling trade.

Contractor Pope is building three new houses on the West Side for T. J. Check for rental purposes and a two story house and a bungalow on Magnolia avenue for D. R. Ellison. Mr. Pope is also remodeling the Check houses on Fifth street, putting on new tin roofs and otherwise making them better and more comfortable.

Contractor Kirby is erecting a nice dwelling on First street for Alonzo McMullen.

The Hood bungalow on Magnolia avenue is almost ready for occupancy. The Bray and McKinnon bungalows in the same neighborhood are now occupied by the owners and this section of the city is now one of the most popular residence portions of Sanford.

The new sidewalks to Sanford Heights have stimulated the building in that part of the city and three new bungalows are being planned for Park avenue.

Contractor Venable has a force of busy men moving the old Presbyterian church to the lot south where it will undergo many changes and assume the shape of a library and women's club building. He also expects to commence work at once on the new residence of Dr. Oliver Miller on Park avenue, just south of the home of Mrs. Allen Jones. This residence will be modern in every respect and add much to the fine residence section.

D. L. Thrasher has let the contract for a nice two story dwelling east of his residence on Third street. Contractor Shiphosier has his bricklayers busy on the foundations of this house today.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON BY THE SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE HERALD

Washington, July 28.—The river and harbor appropriation bill, carrying a little over fifty-three million dollars for waterway improvements is in serious danger, Senator Burton, of Ohio, and a small group of western senators having combined to defeat the measure, if possible, which, according to army engineers is freer of "pork" or "graft" than any similar bill introduced in Congress since the adoption of the annual budget for river and harbor improvements.

Should it turn out that the bill fails to get through the Senate a large number of extremely worthy projects will necessarily suffer because there will be no money available to contract work on these improvements—in fact, work has already been suspended on a number of projects and every day of delay in passing the bill will increase the number of suspensions.

The Democratic caucus has now sidetracked the river and harbor bill until the anti-trust legislation, which President Wilson is urging with all the force at his command, shall have been disposed of. When this has been done it will be hard to hold a quorum of the Senate for any purpose. Unless the friends of waterways throughout the country shall urge their senators to stay long enough to pass the river and harbor bill it is likely to fail.

Army and navy officers may not always be satisfied with their orders and duties, but for the most part they go ahead and do their work with very little grumbling. The following extract from a letter written by an army officer at Vera Cruz describes the attitude of most of the officers on duty in that city:

"Duty in Vera Cruz is not nearly as pleasant as our late fourteen months' camp in Galveston, despite the fact that my regiment is not under canvas. Everything is so indefinite and rumors are so numerous and varied that one can't help but feel disappointed and irritable at times. However, the most encouraging feature is the scarcity of men. My company has thirty-six men and three officers, aggregate, and most of the other companies are about the same. It is too bad that we cannot have good-sized companies during the occupation, even though it is peaceful."

Commenting on the contents of this letter, a member of the General Staff, who has given a great deal of attention to the improvement of army conditions, remarked, "The statement indicates a deplorable condition in respect to efficiency and organization. The minimum peace strength of a company is three officers and sixty-five men, and the war strength is three officers and 150 men. The regular brigade now at Vera Cruz went there under war conditions and should have been raised to war strength. There is something radically wrong with a system which will allow a company to be reduced in numerical strength until it is inefficient for purposes of peace training, and in this condition sent on an expedition which contemplates its use in war."

The "Avenue of the Presidents" in the Capital of the Nation, has passed to the limbo of things that were, and in its place "Sixteenth Street" once more appears on the horizon both of that very beautiful thoroughfare. The change in nomenclature was brought about this week through the signing of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The plain and democratic national legislators became considerably "het up" over the aristocratic term, "Avenue of the Presidents," and the more they talked about it the less they like it. To some of them it had the sound of the name of a Parisian or a Berlin street, like the Champ de Mar, the Place de la Concorde, or Unter der Linden. None of these would have the slightest chance with a Congress full of Congressmen who have to go back in the next few months and ask the home folks for a vote of confidence. It never would do, and so the "highalutin" name has been shot full of holes, and we have gone back to the simpler form of designation, Sixteenth Street, North West."

The July 1 forecast of this year's wheat crop of the United States is 88,000,000 bushels, the largest ever produced, exceeding last year's crop by about 107,400,000 bushels. The 1913 crop was that of 1901, when 75,000,000 bushels was the estimate. The average production of the past five years was 88,000,000 bushels.

POSTOFFICE ROBBERY

Vigilant Sanford Police Find Valuable Package Fetched from Office

That some one is making a business of extracting valuable packages from the Sanford postoffice and that they are on their job and know just what they are doing is evident to the police and the postal authorities. Late Saturday night as Officer Hand and Howard were patrolling their beats they noticed several figures skulking near the Clyde warehouse on Palmetto avenue and going down to investigate found a package lying near the steps of the abandoned building and upon further search found a small box and wrapper. The packages were leather covered and looked like Kodak cases but upon further investigation were found to be matrices for the Monotype machine at The Herald office. The loss had not yet been discovered by either the Herald office or the postoffice as the package was not overdue. The theft must have been direct from the office as the package had not been left on the table and no notice had been sent to The Herald office. The matrices are very valuable to the people who use them but of no value to the man who fetched them from the postoffice, consequently he hid them under the first convenient place which happened to be the steps of the warehouse.

The package was insured against loss, being worth from $50 to $100, and in the event that the package had not turned up the postal authorities would have been up against the proposition of paying or producing.

PREPARE TO IRRIGATE

Most students of soil and the best methods of procedure to secure the best results from citrus fruit culture and trucking are becoming more thoroughly imbued with the fact that irrigation is one of the best adjuncts to success in any section. True, that some places will experience seasons when irrigation is unnecessary, but circumstances may arrive when artificial moisture of the ground will become one of the necessities and the one who wisely provides for all contingencies is in a position to get the best return in all seasons. He has no reason to fear a dry season if prepared to meet it by being provided with an irrigation plant. From Key West comes the report on what is considered good authority that the Florida East Coast Railroad is preparing estimates for a pipe line system which will supply all of the lower Florida keys to Key West with fresh water for both domestic and irrigation purposes.

The plan as given out contemplates two deep wells below Homestead on the mainland, from which the water will be pumped through a huge pipe line to the keys. A Residents of the keys are enthusiastic over the proposition, as it means wealth for them. Lack of moisture reduced the key lime crop one-half this year. With irrigation any crop which can be raised on the mainland with fertilizer can be raised on the keys without fertilizer. The inauguration of this pipe line would likewise be of inestimable benefit to Key West.

PANAMA CANAL OPENS NEXT MONTH WORLDS' EVENT

WILL BE AN OCCASION FOR GREAT REJOICING

NO CEREMONIES WILL MARK OPENING

OTHER NEWS OF THE WORLD AT LARGE GIVEN IN BROKEN DOSES

Washington, July 28.—War Department officials are perfecting plans for the opening of the Panama Canal, to commence on August 15. The vessel which would be given the honor of leading a fleet of merchantmen through the great waterway had not been determined upon, but it was probable that the Cristobal, a War Department steamer, would be selected. No ceremony will attend the actual opening of the big ditch to commerce. That will wait until the official opening in March, 1915, when an international fleet of warships will pass through. Secretary Garrison, in announcing the date of the canal's opening, stated that at this time ships needing not more than thirty feet of water would be accommodated in the passage between the two oceans. A greater depth will be available later. Some of the navy's dreadnaughts might now grope through the canal, but Secretary Daniels said he would not venture the passage of a battleship until deeper draught was reached. While the Cristobal probably will be selected as the first commercial vessel to pass through, yet the distinction of being the first steam vessel to go through the great waterway belongs to the Alex. T. Valley, a crane construction boat. Her passage occurred in the ordinary course of canal work, January 7. Lt. Vally, Captain Carter commanding, had been working on the Atlantic entrance. She crept along the canal, passing through the Colabra cut soon after Gamboa dike was blown up, and below the great earth slides had thoroughly developed and partially closed the canal.

The good brick roads of Sanford's special road district will not only be a good thing for the citizens of the district and all the patrons of the road but the rural mail carrier will now derive some of the benefits of the good roads and instead of jolting plover the ruts of the woods roads and the deep sand of the mud roads can carry the mail in an automobile and Uncle Sam will help him to get the automobile by increasing his wages. Under the new plan and with the county of Seminole covered by good roads one or two mail carriers could cover the county in an automobile, not only giving the patrons a better service but giving the mail carriers better routes and automobiles for delivering.

Following is the dispatch from Washington regarding the new plan that promises for work in Florida better than any other part of the union on account of the equable climate that will permit of mail delivery every day in the year.

Washington, July 27.—The automobile is likely to become a big factor soon in the delivery of mail to rural patrons in Florida and other states where the roads are such as to admit of convenient travel by motor. Under the plan which has been authorized by the Postmaster General it is proposed to increase the length of standard route and also to increase the pay of the carriers, provided he equips himself with an automobile. The tentative arrangements is to increase the length of the standard route from 24 to 50 miles and the maximum compensation from $1,200 to $1,800 a year. In conformity with this new movement the House Committee on postoffices and Postroads has reported into the House a bill granting an allowance of $1,800 a year for rural carriers who use automobiles.

While the department is enthusiastic over the plan some of the members of Congress doubt its efficacy. They point out that at certain seasons of the year, especially with snow drifted high, almost any road in the northern states is likely to become impassable for automobiles and they ask:

"How would a carrier on a fifty-mile route manage to deliver the mail?"
