Back to school

Morgan Voke and Max Schoetmiller check out some extra-large Levi 550 jeans (cost, $36). Both are sporting No Fear caps ($18) and Max is wearing a Billong T-shirt ($16) while Morgan hangs out in a Rusty T-shirt ($16).

What the best dressed students will wear to school Wednesday

Probably the biggest decision for any student returning to school is what to wear. Making sure they are wearing the latest fashion keeps many kids awake long into the night when they should be resting up for the first day of school.

What is in fashion this year?
Chances are, if students look like Bee Gees followers or resemble someone who just stepped off the beach, they're right in tune with the latest styles. A trip to Seminole Towne Center over the summer found many local students trying on baggy jeans and finding just the right over-sized T-shirt and ball cap. Parents looked a little confused but eager to just find something, anything, they could get for See Clothes, Page 5A

Sanford cops get clarification on Goldsboro plan

Plan, the Board of Seminole County Commissioners set aside $180,500 of grant money designated to Goldsboro. Mayor Larry Dale said the project is a "joint community effort." He acknowledged Monday night that there had been misleading aspects of the arrangement and that the Sanford Police Department was not being overlooked for its efforts in the Goldsboro area. Presley put it this way: "We want to do our part and get credit for it. We think this partnership is going to be great. The members of our department and the sheriff's deputies have worked well together, and will continue to do so." "This will be a co-ordinated effort. We look forward to it." Sanford Police Chief Joe Dillard was not available for comment this morning.

K-9 cop's overtime pay OK'd

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission unanimously approved overtime pay for a canine officer Monday but not before admonishing the Sanford Police Department on its administrative practices. Cpl. Michael Ansley had submitted a request for overtime pay to the commission for $8,797.37 for one hour each day from April 2, 1996 to April 29, 1997. Sanford Mayor Larry Dale had questioned why Ansley had waited a year before turning in the invoice. The request had also been addressed at a police labor management meeting July 15.

At Dale's request, Ansley's supervisors, Deputy Chief Dennis Whitmore, Commander Ron Nance, Sergeant Darrel Brewer, and Chief Joe Dillard discussed payroll and time keeping procedures.

'I was just trying to retire this dang dog.'
Cpl. M. Ansley

Police officials said they knew about the Garcia Rule and that said Ansley was entitled to the overtime pay because he did work the hours in question. Dale repeatedly asked about accountability within the police department. He told supervisors that if they knew Ansley was not taking the time he was entitled to, then they should have told Ansley to take the extra hour each day. "I want everybody to understand that people will be held accountable so that this can't happen again," Dale said. "This is idioty." See Pay, Page 5A

Lake Mary mulls the budget, lighting

By SHARI BRODIE Herald Staff Writer

Street lighting assessments and the upcoming fiscal year budget were among the issues faced by the Lake Mary City Commission at the most recent meeting this past week. The commission met in a work session to discuss revenue projections, general fund programs and special revenue funds, in preparation for eventual approval of the FY 98 city budget. City Manager John Litton explained that while ad valorem revenues generated approximately $1.8 million in 1994, growth had been so rapid and is still continuing, to the point where revenues are now projected at almost $2.4 million by 1998. The proposed millage rate for the coming fiscal year is 3.7648, the same as it has been for the past 10 years. The city commission approved this rate and the roll-back rate of 3.5887. The date for the

Getting a line on progress

Traffic is enough to get anyone hot. Especially during the summer. Those of you inconvenienced by the construction on W. 1st Street here's the scoop: A new water line is being installed on the street which is causing a congestive nightmare. City of Sanford crews have been digging and installing for more than a week.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Nominations sought for Folk Heritage Awards

Special to the Herald

TALLAHASSEE--Secretary of State Sandra H. Mortham has announced that the Florida Department of State seeks nominations for the 1998 Florida Folk Heritage Awards. The Awards recognize individuals who have made exemplary contributions to Florida's traditional culture. "Folk culture imparts a large part of our lives," Secretary Mortham said. "The Florida Folk Heritage Awards recognize authenticity and excellence within the traditional arts and honor the State's most significant traditional artists."

Nominees should be individuals whose craft, dance, music or advocacy has embodied the best of traditional culture in their communities. Nominations for the award should describe the accomplishments and background of the nominee and include support materials such as photographs, slides, audio and video tapes and letters of support.

Folklife includes a wide range of creative forms in art, crafts, dance, language, music and ritual. These forms, transmitted by word of mouth and demonstration, are shared within community, ethnic, occupational, religious and regional groups. Previous Florida Folk Heritage Award winners include an African-American street crier, a Cuban comparsa dancer, a Greek accordionist and a Seminole storyteller.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than November 1, 1997 and mailed to Florida Folk Heritage Awards, Bureau of Historic Preservation, R. A. Gray Building, 500 South Bronough Street, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-0250. For additional information or a copy of the guidelines, contact Teresa Hollingsworth at (850)487-2333 or 1-800-847-PAST.

Education commissioner raises over $100,000 in first month

Special to the Herald

TALLAHASSEE--Commissioner of Education Frank T. Brogan filed his campaign treasurer's report recently showing over $100,000 raised in just one month's time. Actual figures show $107,125 raised, with $2,172.96 in in-kind contributions, and $5,228.83 in expenditures, leaving $101,896.17 cash on-hand for his first campaign report.

"The response has been overwhelming. I am encouraged and grateful for the tremendous personal and financial support thus far. Floridians understand the importance of true educational reform, and they believe we are on the right track," said Commissioner Brogan.

The report shows contributions from all over the state of Florida, in amounts varying from $5 to $500. "I am so pleased my first fund-raiser was hosted by U.S. Senator Connie Mack, and my very first contribution was from Jeb Bush. My fellow cabinet member Secretary of State Sandra Mortham, along with State Senator Fred Dudley and State Representative Tom Warner were also among the first to help," continued Brogan.

Frank Brogan, a teacher, principal and superintendent from Martin County, was elected the first Republican Commissioner of Education in 1994, defeating the incumbent with over 53 percent of the vote. He received the most votes of any Republican seeking Cabinet office, and became Florida's youngest Commissioner of Education.

Real popularity

ABC-Television's modish, immaculately groomed Peter Jennings, perhaps the country's most-respected newsmen, is 59-years-old today.

A Gallup Poll a few years ago ranked Jennings second to the gone-but-not-forgotten Walter Cronkite in that most important of all anchor qualities, "believability."

Not bad for high school dropout whose real schooling has been on the road. ABC's rivals, in fact, hold that Jennings is "too intellectual. He's also said to be not "sufficiently American," having been born in Toronto and remaining a Canadian citizen.

His popularity with viewers is real, however.

Seems he is a big favorite of Scottish born singer Sheena Easton, who once commented she would like to have children with Peter Jennings. Easton said the kids would undoubtedly be very intelligent.

Probably be good singers, too.

First batch of sterile Medflies released

Special to the Herald

TAMPA--Florida Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford participated in the release of the first batch of what is expected to be more than 600 million sterile male Medflies that are being used to complete Medfly eradication efforts in Hillsborough County.

"This biological control effort marks the end of our aerial spray program in some of the most populous areas of Hillsborough County, including downtown Tampa," Crawford said.

Today's campaign involves the beginning of a week-long release of some 100 million sterile flies in what has become known as Zone 1 -- an area including the MacDill Peninsula, Town and Country, Downtown Tampa and Davis Island. Aerial spraying has now been completed in the zone.

Crawford said that in about a week, the second batch of about 200 million such flies will be released in Zone 2 -- an area comprised of Temple Terrace, Lutz and Carrollwood, marking the end of aerial spraying in that zone.

And in two weeks, the remainder of Hillsborough County west of I-75 (Zone 3) will receive about 300 million sterile flies. By that time -- and possibly sooner -- aerial spraying will be completed throughout western Hillsborough County.

"Our aggressive campaign has paid off," Crawford said. "We have knocked the Medfly infestation down dramatically and the sterile male Medflies will complete the job."

Sterile male Medflies are considered the most effective biological control when a state or country is hit with a Medfly outbreak. They mate with females, who have no offspring and ultimately die after their roughly 30-day life cycle.

Both scientists and officials who make their living combating pest infestations stress, however, that sterile flies are ineffective in a large infestation, such as Hillsborough County has experienced, until aerial spraying succeeds in dramatically reducing the wild Medfly population.

The sterile flies being used in Florida are being purchased from a U.S. Department of Agriculture facility in Guatemala, and are being housed in special trailers at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa. They are being released by aircraft flying out of MacDill.

The current Medfly infestation began with the discovery May 28 of a single male fly in a trap in the Seminole Heights section of Hillsborough County. Since then, more than 700 flies have been discovered. Last week, a Medfly was discovered in Orange County. Officials sprayed a small area near Zellwood to combat the pest.

The Medfly is considered perhaps the most devastating plant pest or disease that Florida can face, as some 260 fruits, vegetables and plants serve as hosts. They include citrus, tomatoes and a host of shrubs and bushes that provide food and shelter for wildlife.

Left unchecked, the Medfly could devastate Florida's $5.3 billion agricultural industry, destroy backyard gardens and damage the natural habitat of much wildlife.

The Medfly is not indigenous to Florida, and officials from both the state and federal government are investigating how the pest entered the state.

Pay

Saying there was a problem with the entire time keeping process, Commissioner Kerry Lyons accused police officials of trying to shift the blame regarding the overtime policy.

"Everyone appears to be playing a shell game," Lyons said.

Ansley told commissioners the main reason he waited so long to ask for compensation was that he was trying to call attention to the plight of police dogs. He said he had repeatedly asked about getting his dog retired because the dog had been hurt in the line of duty and was at about 60 percent capacity.

"I didn't put in for it (the overtime) because I kept expecting them to retire the dog any day," Ansley said. "I never thought it would go on for a year. If they would have retired this dog at three months, six months or nine months I never would have put in for compensation."

Ansley said initially he did not want to make waves, but because the police department wasn't acting to replace the dog, he decided to ask for the compensation.

"I've got absolutely nothing to lose, so I figured why not," he said.

"You were angry, weren't you," asked Commissioner Whitey Eckstein.

"You're very close sir," Ansley said. "I was just trying to retire this dang dog."

Ansley said since he started the police canine unit 12 years ago he has had problems retiring police dogs, mostly because of the department's inaction.

"We've lost something in this police department," Eckstein said. "I'm embarrassed beside, they can usually be found in a rather short, spaghetti-strapped sun dresses. Sandals, flats, heels or tennis shoes are all worn with the dresses.

One thing has changed, though. Although jeans are a staple for any school attendee, tight is out. Jeans are being worn that ride way below the waist line and it seems that boxers, which are almost totally visible above the empty belt loops, are in as well.

If the boxers are not visible, it is probably because they are covered by an extremely long T-shirt. And not just any T-shirt will do.

Big this year are surfing and skateboarding. Any T-shirt that dare adorn the body of a cool student must represent this latest trend. Brands such as Billabong, Fifth and Ocean and Rusty (the brand and the color) will be in every hall of every school.

It's all right for girls to dress like boys now. In fact, the dress code is almost non-differential. Girls, however, also wear short, tight tops that have some type of retro design on them with their baggy jeans.

public hearing is set for Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers.

Street lighting assessments for Timacuan Unit 16 subdivision highlighted the new business that faced the commission.

Following a public hearing on the matter, the commission approved Resolution 590, setting up the street lighting assessments.

According to the preliminary assessment roll, 14 of the lots are to be charged $2.06 per month.

A joint Downtown Development Advisory Committee/City Commission meeting will be held Thursday, July 31, to rank and review the short list of the companies that responded to the city's advertised Request For Quotation for the Downtown Study. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 S. Country Club Rd.

The next regular meeting of the city commission will be Aug. 10.

Sen. Graham's efforts

Florida's U.S. Senator Bob Graham, a member of the Senate Caucus on International Narcotics Control, has introduced legislation to expand South Florida's High-Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA) to include communities such as Sanford, along the Interstate-4 corridor.

There is little doubt I-4 is being well used by persons transporting drugs. But from where do these drugs originate? How are they getting into our area?

I-4, as most everyone knows, runs from Tampa to Daytona Beach. Heading farther north, traffickers can use I-95 and travel up the entire east coast.

That makes Tampa one of the points of origin.

But from the southeast ports, such as Miami, Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach, all it takes is the BeeLine highway or the Florida Turnpike, and one is once again, on I-4.

Apparently crackdowns during the past few years on I-95 have made traffickers change their direction. Or could it be that the Orlando, Sanford and Daytona Beach areas have become much better places for illegal drug sales than along the coast such as Fort Pierce, Melbourne or Titusville?

Many people admonished the Volusia County sheriff for having his deputies conduct traffic stops on I-95 and U.S. 1, but he certainly made an incredible number of drug finds.

Probably, other sheriffs don't want to have Sheriff Vogel's problems. They perhaps would rather ignore the transportation route rather than get the wrath of the counties and voters who put them in office in the first place.

But let's change the point of interest. If we know drug traffickers are using I-4, then it should be apparent from where they are coming. We have heard about some efforts in the Miami area ports to locate incoming ships which may have narcotics, but is anything going on in Tampa?

Day after day, there are huge ships pulling into Tampa Bay. Sailors aboard these ships probably would have little difficulty bringing in a duffel bag full of drugs. Is anyone checking for this? There may be some efforts under way, but nothing has been announced regarding any findings.

We suggest Sen. Graham continue his anti-drug fight, but let's get the drug sellers where they bring them into the country. We believe it will go much further in helping reduce the problem, not only here in Central Florida, but all along the east coast.

Illegals' kids get a free pass

Barbara Boxer, California's Democratic junior senator, was in San Diego recently, taking time to chide local congressman Brian Bilbray for proposing legislation on Capitol Hill that would deny automatic U. S. citizenship to newborn babies of illegal aliens.

In a testy speech, even for her, Boxer acidly remarked, "I find the story extremely interesting...that congressman Bilbray's mom did come here so he'd be a citizen. I'm sure he's very happy."

Boxer insinuates that Bilbray is hypocritical. That he benefited from the 14th Amendment guarantee of citizenship for "all persons born or naturalized in the United States." That he wants to deny the same citizenship "right" to babies born on U. S. soil to illegal alien parents.

But Bilbray would have been a U. S. citizen whether his mom, Mavis, bore him in the United States, in her native Austria or at the American naval base on Oahu (where she resided at the time). Her husband was an American serviceman. And she was a naturalized American citizen.

There is absolutely no comparison between what Mavis Bilbray did, when she was two months pregnant with the future U. S. congressman, and what roughly 100,000 illegal aliens do year by year, when their spirit crosses the U. S. border and have their babies in San Diego maternity wards at California taxpayer expense.

Boxer insinuates that Bilbray is hypocritical.

If there is any hypocrite on the illegal immigration issue, it's Boxer. "We need to fix it at the border," she said. "We need to fix it at the workplace." But then she adds, "I wasn't for fixing it, by the way, at the hospital or in the classroom."

So what the senator is saying is that, as long as foreign nationals stay on their side of the U. S. border, they have no right to Yankee largesse. But if they manage to steal across the U. S. border -- as more than 1 million do each year -- then they get a free pass.

They are entitled to free hospitalization, free education, free welfare benefits, all courtesy of state and federal taxpayers. Moreover, if illegal aliens have babies in a U. S. maternity ward, those babies are designated American citizens.

Boxer says that her views on illegal alien births are rooted in American tradition. "Maybe I'm old-fashioned," she said, "but I think, if you're born here, you're an American."

But while that has been the rule since the 14th amendment was ratified in 1868, the United States does make exceptions. For instance, the American-born babies of foreign diplomats do not become U. S. citizens. Instead, they are citizens of the countries from which their diplomat parents came.

Some laughable workers' comp cases

The nation's oldest social insurance program is severely out of whack because liberal state courts have been approving workers' compensation claims that never should have gotten to court. That's one conclusion of our own state-by-state review of the $70 billion-plus system.

We last looked at this troubled and costly area for the American consumer and taxpayer five years ago. After a series of columns, nearly three dozen states passed reform laws to tighten up their workers' comp systems.

But many problems still exist. And one of the biggest is liberal judicial rulings in favor of questionable claims.

Perhaps the most outrageous cases have to do with what various state courts have allowed to be compensable "stress" caused by work. Most people feel stress on the job, from a church custodian to the president of the United States. "Everyone has stress," agrees worker comp expert Eric Oxford. "It's totally subjective."

A Wisconsin case illustrates what properly should be compensable under reasonable workers' comp rulings. John Beverly, a Vietnam veteran, suffers from post-traumatic stress syndrome, which produces sudden flashbacks of battlefield terror. He managed to keep his problem in check and hold down a series of jobs, until he went to work at the Miller Brewing Co. in Milwaukee.

There, some of his mean-spirited co-workers quickly figured out that they could make Beverly cower on his knees simply by popping a milk carton or breaking a bottle. Beverly spent eight months out of work and in psychiatric treatment after someone set off a firecracker in the lunchroom at the brewery.

When he finally came back to work, a bottle rocket launched in his direction put him back in treatment for seven more months. Beverly tried again, but couldn't tolerate the pranks. When he sprained his ankle on the job and took some time off, he decided he could not go back and won an $85,000 stress-related workers compensation claim.

Beverly deserved to have workers comp insurance on his side. But, too often, the stress-related claims are very questionable. Consider these three our associate Dale Van Atta discovered: -- Barbara Kaliski can't have children, but that alone wouldn't have made her eligible for workers compensation benefits -- at least not until a co-worker teased her about being "barren." Now Kaliski is on the company dole because of the insult.

Kaliski was on the job installing wiring in airplanes at Fairchild Republic Co. of Farmingdale, N.Y., when she and another woman quibbled over a work issue. The argument escalated to insults about Kaliski's infertility and ended on a psychiatrist's couch where Kaliski was pronounced dysfunctionally depressed. A workers compensation board and a state appeals court agreed she was entitled to stay home and collect a check because the insults were above and beyond the usual workplace bickering.

-- Ruth Jandrucko of Florida has collected $50,000 so far because of her "phobia" of black men. It began when she was mugged by a black man in 1986 while delivering promotional materials as part of her job in Miami. The attacker slugged her in the back, fracturing a vertebra, and that gave her grounds to claim a physical injury, which has since been compounded by what her psychiatrist calls post-traumatic stress disorder.

Try as Jandrucko might -- and she says she has tried very hard -- she says she can't help feeling frightened when she's close to black men. Jandrucko's case went all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court which, in 1991, let stand lower court rulings that she was entitled to compensation because of her phobia.

-- After the flamboyant, pistol-packing prosecutor of Camden County, N. J., got caught in a monumental lie about a shoot-out he allegedly had with drug dealers, he said job stress made him do it.

Sam Asbell initially wowed his community with the news that on New Years Day 1990, he was nearly blown away by two drug thugs in a green Toyota who shot up his county car. Asbell said he fought back with a shotgun and killed one of his assailants.

The only problem was, no bullet-riddled green Toyota ever turned up, nor did a dead drug dealer.

Asbell later pleaded guilty to the scam and paid for the cost of the investigation into his false report and the damage to his car, which he shot up himself in an effort to demonstrate to the incoming governor how successful he had been at harassing drug dealers. But then there was a little matter of employment. He lost his job as county prosecutor and, to Asbell, the situation shaped up into a perfect workers compensation claim. He was out of work and job-stress was to blame. Some experts believe he could have made and won the case in the legal climate of New Jersey courts. But public outrage caused a further embarrassed Asbell to withdraw his claim. If not, he might be collecting today courtesy of New Jersey taxpayers.

Not bad for a man whose greatest asset is brass.

Will Ollie's 15 minutes ever expire?

This month's 10th anniversary of the Iran-contra hearings brings with it two thoughts about Oliver North.

First is, if you traced his lineage a few generations, you would likely find a common ancestor with Richard Nixon.

Second is, if we could sneak a peek in Ollie's shower, we would likely find a can of Brasso in the soapdish.

Really, have you ever seen a national figure with more brass body parts than Oliver North? The man admitted to a jury that he had sold weapons to the Iranian mullahs. He conceded that he had diverted the revenues to the Nicaraguan contras. He confessed that he had lied to Congress about it. He acknowledged that he had tried to obstruct the investigation.

The jury agonized, argued, cried and prayed for 12 days, then dismissed nine counts and convicted him of three.

And how did Ollie react? He was thankful for the forbearance of the American people, right? Well, not exactly. The verdict was a "partial vindication," he said.

Then two Reagan-appointed appeals judges threw out his conviction on a technicality, and a word of appreciation for the mercifulness of the American system seemed in order. But Ollie had other thoughts. He was "totally exonerated," he said.

In defiance of Andy Warhol's 15-minutes-of-fame rule, North has remained on our screens for a full decade. Surely he has experienced a moment or two of remorse over the years.

Well, no, not really. What people need to understand, he has been telling reporters who seek him out for their 10th anniversary stories, is that he was right all along. His terrible ordeal was in fact a mighty struggle against "an imperial Congress."

More than that: The defeat of the Nicaraguan Sandinistas was the first major setback for the evil Soviet empire, so what he really did was save America. Heck, make that the world. He saved the world. Anyway, Ronald Reagan knew all along what Ollie was doing. "I would not have done a single thing that I did if I'd thought for a second that Ronald Reagan didn't personally approve," he told USA Today.

Do you remember what Ronald Reagan had to say about Oliver North's claim of presidential complicity? "I do have to admit that I am getting pretty steamed about the statements coming from Oliver North," Reagan fumed in 1994. "I never instructed him or anyone in my administration to mislead Congress. ...And I certainly did not know about the Iran-contra diversion."

This brings me back to my first thought: Oliver North is the Richard Nixon of the '90s. You whip out your gold cross and you beat the vampire back. You stomp him, you think you're rid of him, then you turn around and there he is again.

Ronald Reagan's denunciation should have been the death knell for Oliver North, but it hardly fazed him. Oh, OK, he said, "If the president says he didn't know, he didn't know."

President Reagan is but the most notable in a long line of luminaries who have questioned Oliver North's veracity.

Nancy Reagan: "He lied to my husband and lied about my husband, kept things from him that he should not have kept from him, and that's what I think about Ollie North."

Gen. Norm Schwarzkopf: "I have some real concerns with ethics and integrity as far as Colonel North is concerned."

 Gen. John Singlaub: North "fantasizes so many things."
 Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr.: "Oliver North hasn't just broken the law or led to the American people, though he has done both. He has disgraced his uniform and debased our democracy."
 Former secretary of the Navy James

Webb: "Many people who have known Oliver North will have marveled at the exaggerations and misrepresentations he has brought to the public arena."
 The blows glanced off North's chin like pebbles off a windshield. He hit the lecture circuit, wrote a best-selling memoir, signed up to host a talk show, became a millionaire.
 Not bad for a man whose greatest asset is brass.

rationale being that the primary loyalty of an American citizen must necessarily be to the United States rather than a foreign nation.
 A similar exception ought to be made for the offspring of illegal aliens. Their parents have arrived in this country through illegal -- felonious -- means. Neither illegal alien parents, nor their babies, have done anything to merit American citizenship.
 Moreover, constitutional scholars say that neither Congress nor the state legislatures intended for the 14th Amendment to apply to the children of illegal aliens. That's because, when the amendment was originally proposed 130-some years ago, the United States had a de facto "open border" policy. There was no legal immigration to speak of.
 The Reconstruction Era amendment was specifically written for the benefit of former slaves, most of whom were third- and fourth-generation residents of this country, who were brought to this country against their will, who found themselves disenfranchised in their new homeland.
 The emancipated slaves earned their American citizenship by virtue of their longevity in this country and their uncompensated labor. The 14th Amendment was passed to right a past wrong -- the denial of citizenship to native-born blacks -- not to reward a future wrong -- stealing across the U. S. border to have a baby.

Boyer argues that Bilbray's bill, the Citizenship Reform Act, would unfairly punish the children of illegal aliens. But it hardly seems unfair to say that if a child is born to a mother who is neither an American citizen nor legal resident of this country, that her newborn should be a citizen of her nation of origin.

In fact, that's how most nations of the world determine their citizenship. If an American citizen has a baby in Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy or Japan, that baby is an American. Would Boyer suggest that such foreign-born babies are being unfairly punished?

It remains to be seen if Rep. Bilbray's bill even makes it out of committee, much less to the House floor. But whether it does or not, he deserves credit, not attack, for raising the serious constitutional question of whether the 14th Amendment needs to be reinterpreted.

Volunteers of the Week

Habitat building 'gets into your blood'

By SUSAN WOODMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although Jane Miller spends a lot of time in her position at Siemens Stromberg Carlson as a master scheduler, she still has plenty of time for volunteering in various activities. Her efforts with such organization as Special Olympics, Crop Walk of Sanford, March of Dimes, volunteering on archeological digs and Habitat have earned her a special place in the hearts of many.

She is also active with Markham Woods Presbyterian Church as an elder on session, in the choir and on various committees. She is a race walker and a member of the Central Florida Race Walkers.

Taking up most of her volunteer time is her work with Habitat for Humanity of Seminole County. She has worked in the Thrift Store some but her main focus has been with the building of homes project.

She is presently involved with the all-women's project in Sanford. For five years now she has assisted in co-ed building.

"In the beginning I got involved because I wanted to put my Christian faith into action," she said. "My church was instrumental in the beginnings of Habitat in the Thrift Store and in the building. Without the Thrift Store we might not be able to build the houses. One is really dependent on the other. With Habitat I'm constantly learning new things, new skills, and it builds confidence. The whole concept appeals to me, getting affordable housing for people, people helping people and all."

Jane Miller has been helping to build Habitat homes for about than five years.

According to Miller she has worked on the homes from the bottom up. I've done the digging of footers for the foundation, exterior framing, putting plywood and felt on, interior framing, drywall, painting, molding, mini-blinds, landscaping, sod and some roofing.

She named framing as her favorite.

For those interested Miller added, "We've got the tools, hammers and tool belts. You don't have to have your own tools just the desire to help and learn and we'll teach you the rest."

She further shared, "You meet the neatest people and develop some friendships with some neat people. It just gets into your blood. You want to get the project complete and the people in the house. It becomes not just a building anymore but a home and a home. I love watching the faces of the people getting the houses. They get so excited about getting into the houses and we get excited too."

Cowpeas easy to grow, very nutritious

The cowpeas, also known as field peas, blackeye peas, crowder peas, or southern peas are commonly grown in the southern region of the United States. The plant is a legume native to central Africa, and probably was introduced to Florida in the 1700s from the West Indies. Nutritionally, they are similar to lima beans. Southern peas are adapted to a wide range of climatic, soil and cultural conditions, and are tolerant to drought and heat. They can be consumed as fresh shelled peas, and as dry peas, either way they are very nutritious, and are easy to grow.

Planting: Planting dates for southern peas in Central Florida go from March to the end of August. Seeds should be planted in rows 30 to 36 inches apart and between 2 to 3 inches within the row, depending on the growth habit of the variety planted. A row measuring 100 feet long will require 1 1/2 ounces of seeds. Seeds should be planted 1 to 2 inches deep. Fungicide-treated seeds should be used if possible to reduce damage from soil fungi. Successive plantings of southernpeas about 2 weeks apart, will produce a continuous supply of peas for home use.

GARDENING

Harvesting: Southern peas can be harvested from 60 to 90 days after planting. Harvest the pods when the peas are completely filled, but before they begin to dry. Yields expected from a row 10 feet long is around 8 pounds. A general rule indicates that peas can be harvested 16 days after bloom under warm weather conditions. Peas should be harvested when the deep green color of the pod changes, depending on the variety, to light yellow, silver, red, or purple. The seeds should be almost maximum in size but with some green color still in the cotyledons.

Varieties: Recommended blackeye varieties for Florida are 'California Blackeye No. 5' and 'Worthmore'. Purplehull types are 'Pinkeye Purplehull', and 'Knuckle Purplehull'. Among the cream types, 'Florcream', 'Zipper Cream', 'Texas Cream 40' and 'Mississippi Silver' are recommended.

Fertilization: A complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 with minor elements can be used to fertilize cowpeas. Use a pound of nitrogen per 1000 square feet of bed at the time of planting or about 2 to 4 pounds of fertilizer per 100 square feet (4 oz per 10 feet of row). Sidedress with more fertilizer if heavy rains occur shortly after planting. Place the fertilizer about 2 to 3 inches deep, but far enough away from the plants to keep them from being "burned" by the fertilizer. Sidedress with a complete fertilizer after the pods are formed. Do not use high levels of nitrogen fertilizers because nitrogen fixing bacteria live in legume roots; check the roots for nodules that can be easily removed.

Insect Control: Plants can tolerate some damage to the leaves without reducing yields, but insects that feed on the pods can produce serious damages to the plants. Apply a soap insecticide as soon as you observe aphids on the plants, their populations grow very fast in very few days under good weather conditions. Spray a recommended insecticide as the pods develop to avoid damage from the cowpea curculio and other seed eating insects. Always read the label when using insecticides.

Same virus causes warts, cancer

DEAR ABBY: I was interested to read the letter about genital warts from "Keeping My Pants On in Florida." As a gynecologist, I agree that prevention of sexually transmitted disease is the best solution to this enormous medical problem.

The same sexually transmitted virus that causes genital warts (HPV) is the most common cause of cervical cancer. The more sexual partners you have had, or the more partners your partner has had, the greater your risk of coming into contact with this virus.

Another important risk is the age at which a person becomes sexually active, since during adolescence the cells of the cervix are more susceptible to this infection. Therefore, intercourse at an early age increases the risk of getting cervical precancer and cancer.

HPV is often detectable during a regular gynecologic examination. A routine Pap smear is a fairly effective way to find this virus on the cervix, long before it has caused cervical cancer.

Treatment for both genital warts and abnormal Pap smears can be easily performed in the doctor's office with minimal discomfort. Hysterectomy is rarely necessary. And the development of cervical cancer and death is avoidable if women will simply have yearly examinations and Pap smears.

WILLIAM H. PARKER, M.D., SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

ADVICE

medical professional who wrote to comment about the letter from "Keeping My Pants On in Florida." Read on for another response:

DEAR ABBY: The man in Florida who acquired genital warts from his girlfriend after having sex with her for the first time was under the false assumption that had he used a condom he would not have contracted this virus.

Condoms are ineffective in preventing the transmission of genital warts or herpes. They are genital warts or herpes. They are transmitted by intimate skin-to-skin contact in areas that the condom does not cover. These viruses also shed beyond the "protected" area. Transmission of genital warts can also occur through secondary contact, such as fondling, foreplay and petting.

Abby, please make this clear to your readers: The 12 percent failure rate of condoms in the prevention of pregnancy alone argues against their use for preventing an incurable or fatal disease. People must understand the ineffectiveness of condoms. The only safe sex is a mature, mutually monogamous relationship with an uninfected partner. If people choose otherwise, they should be aware of the risks involved.

SALLY BEACH, R.N., LAKE WORTH, FLA.

DEAR SALLY BEACH: Thank you on behalf of my readers for the warning. Although it may be tempting to proceed in the heat of passion, it's wiser to wait until after a period of cool reflection before consummating a sexual relationship.

Viola

greeted us after we won. It was unbelievable." Viola's career may be over but he still has a shot at least at a national championship in baseball. His Babe Ruth tea, made up of 13-year-olds, is headed for North Carolina next week for regionals to make the national tournament in Clifton Park, N.Y.

Viola is the team's pitching coach but he said the kids look at him as just another coach, not as the national celebrity of 10 years ago.

He said the kids know about his former career but don't try to tap in on his experience. Now, the heroes are Ken Griffey, Jr. and Chipper Jones. For a bunch of 13-year-olds, Viola belongs to another era, one that Viola said he misses.

He said baseball was much more fun and the players were different before the gray train came in around 1990. He also agreed that his Twins teammates in the late 80s may have been the last team in baseball that truly had a good time playing the game.

Speaking of having a good time, now the CGA awaits. Viola said he hopes to play in several events each year but doesn't hold any illusions about a professional career. The Senior PGA Tour isn't going to be there for him.

"I want to play golf to have fun," Viola said. "If I practiced and spent enough time with the game, I might be able to make it but, right now, I'm just enjoying myself."

With that, Viola was off to join his sons who were waiting patiently at the Sabal Point driving range. There weren't 50,000 people waiting to watch him and that seemed just fine.

Can you give blood if you're anemic?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 62-year-old woman who has donated blood to the Red Cross once or twice a year for decades. The last time, I was rejected because of anemia. I went to my doctor, who told me I was perfectly healthy and gave me iron pills which built up my blood again. Should I stop donating blood?

DEAR READER: In order to manufacture new blood cells, the bone marrow requires iron. The iron that is not used for this purpose is normally stored in the body. If the amount consumed in the diet — is inadequate, the production of blood cells falls, and a person becomes anemic. Iron deficiency can result from two major factors: blood loss or inadequate consumption of iron.

You seem to be in a borderline state. Before receiving therapy, you were iron-deficient. After taking iron supplements, your blood returned to normal. The question is: Can you again donate blood and count on your iron stores to replenish your blood cells?

Probably not — yet. Your iron stores are likely to be low for several months, until you have built them up with the pills. Therefore, I would avoid blood donation for about a year, continue iron supplements during that time, and then have your doctor order a blood count and an iron level before you donate again.

Of course, you could be losing iron from some other source, such as intestinal bleeding. This, too, needs to be checked with simple tests for blood in your stool.

In summary, you need to turbocharge your system by providing it with additional iron, make sure that you don't have hidden intestinal bleeding, and follow your physician's recommendation with respect to when you can once again become a blood donor.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Blood: Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: P.O. Box 2817, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10154. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is "C-reactive protein," and how is it significant?

DEAR READER: C-reactive protein (CRP), which is measured in a blood test, is a sensitive indicator of inflammation in the body. Because heart attacks may be caused by blood clots that form on inflamed arterial linings, researchers have been intrigued by the possibility that an elevated CRP level may be an early warning of a future coronary event.

In an ongoing investigation of healthy men in the Harvard Medical School Physician's Health Study, scientists discovered that an elevated blood level of CRP correlated well with an increased risk of subsequent heart attack and stroke. Those men with the highest CRP showed three times the rate of heart attack and double the rate of stroke compared to the men with the lowest CRP. In men with high CRP levels who were taking aspirin, the risk was identical to that of the low-risk group.

The implications of this study are intriguing. First, a measure of arterial inflammation probably reflects the potential for heart attack and stroke, irrespective of other factors such as smoking and cholesterol-level. Second, the risk appears to be directly related to the level of C-reactive protein in the blood. Third, the use of an anti-inflammatory drug, such as aspirin, will significantly reduce that risk.

Whether the CRP is, indeed, a predictor of future cardiovascular events remains to be seen. Other studies are needed to confirm these observations. Nonetheless, a CRP blood test should, perhaps, be included in the routine blood testing of men over the age of 50.

Another milestone passes by

By Phillip Alder

Hard as it is for me to believe, this is my 2,000th column. As the milestone flashes by, who first wrote "a miss is as good as a mile?"

When you are declarer, usually your principal aim should be to make the contract. You should be willing to risk an extra undertrick or two for the best chance to get home. (True, there are times when you might modify this strategy, especially in a pairs event.)

As an example, how would you plan the play in four no-trump on this deal? West leads the spade jack.

I think the correct point range for a two-no-trump opening is 21-22. Here, South upgraded his 20 because of all those aces and kings, which are undervalued at four and three points each, respectively. North then invited a slam with his quantitative jump to four no-trump. Understandably, he liked his good five-card suit.

When the dummy came down, South didn't foresee any problems. Immediately, he played a club to dummy's jack. When that won the trick (East ducking smoothly), declarer returned to hand with a heart and repeated the club finesse. However, East pounced with the king and returned the heart queen. Declarer crossed to dummy with a diamond and cashed the club ace, but West's spade discard left South with only nine tricks: one too few.

Needing only three club tricks, not four, South should have played low from both hands on the first round of the suit. He wins East's return and continues with a club to the jack (or ace). No overtricks, but no undertricks either.

The missing mile was written by Sir Walter Scott in his "Journal" of December 3, 1825.

HOROSCOPE

Your Birthday
Wednesday, July 30, 1997

An interesting and unusual partnership might capture your imagination in the year ahead. It will be formed with two other people, and deal with things you've never explored previously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Objectives can be effectively achieved today if you operate in a manner that doesn't call attention to yourself. Go about your business as unobtrusively as possible. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends appreciate you today, because they know your concern for them is genuine. Your sincere ways of dealing with their problems won't be forgotten.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It won't be easy for you to avoid being the center of attention today, because you'll handle yourself in ways others will want to emulate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might get a report card on how well you've learned lessons from painful past experiences. Mistakes you've made won't be repeated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In business matters today, your instincts might be sharper than usual. Do not ignore hunches, they could be a valuable source of information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your diplomacy and tact are among your strongest assets today. In involvements with friends, testy situations won't have chances to develop.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Situations that require your immediate attention should be given top priority today. You will not have any peace of mind if you keep postponing work!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You don't have to be amidst a large crowd to enjoy yourself today. A quiet rendezvous with someone special promises much more excitement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually you strive to be outgoing and upbeat. Today, however, you might be surprisingly moody and look at small frustrations from angles that magnify them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will learn more by listening today than you will by talking. What you hear, you'll retain and later figure out ways to fulfill your own needs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Focus your efforts today on arrangements that could enhance your financial security. There are several interesting possibilities that have good potential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, you should be able to put your work on the proper track. You will also know how to delegate authority and encourage others to participate.

SOMETHING WRONG WITH PROFESSOR EON, "DADDY"??

UM...SOMETIMES WHEN PEOPLE AGE, THEY BECOME WELL...ECCENTRIC...

...AN SINCE THE PROFESSOR STARTED OUT ECCENTRIC... W/OM...

...SIGH... TO PUT IT MILDLY, IT SEEMS A "VOICE" HAS SENT HIM ON A JOURNEY...

...WELL...WELL DEAL WITH THAT WHEN WE GET HOME! MEANWHILE... I KNOW THERE'S BEEN A BIT OF TENSION BETWEEN YOU AND ZALYA, BUT...
