Airport improvement grants

SANFORD - The Orlando-Sanford Airport has announced the signing of the Federal Aviation Reauthorization Act of 1996 last month by President Clinton.

Aviation Director Steve Cooke said the legislation permits the FAA to issue Airport Improvement Grants through 1998 for critical aviation safety, security, capcity and noise projects at airports nationwide.

Specifically, Cooke said the Orlando-Sanford Airport gained the funding for a new Instrument Landing System (ILS) on runway 27-R. "This system will permit precision aircraft approaches from the cast, and was a key recommendation approved by the FAA in a 1993 noise study," he Installation and operation of this new system is being coordinated with the FAA's Southern Region in Atlanta.

Cooke said Congressman John Mica's office was instrumental in obtaining approval for the project which has been strongly supported by area residents and the airport authority as an important new safety and noise reduction ca-

County gets funds

SANFORD - Seminole County Clerk of Circ cuit Court Maryanne Morse has announced that $448,691.69 in profits (excess fees) were generated by her office in the past fiscal year on 67.4 million in revenues. The profits represent a six percent return on investment: Morse transferred the excess fees to the Board of County Commission last week. She noted that the transfer comes after her office paid to complete the county's liber optic bridge between the courthouse, County Services building, Five Points comples, and the Reflections Office Complex in Lake Mary. Gross profit for the year, before capital equipment acquisitions was listed at $806,926.58. The Seminole County Clerk's office is one of 47 in the state funded entirely through fees generated in day-to-day operations without general taxpayer support.

The total revenue for 1996 was the highest amount in the past eight years. Total profits however, at over $1 million, were reported in 1994 when the return on investments was at 14.4 percent, considerably higher than the six percent this year.

Ballot mix up cleared

SANFORD - Supervisor of Elections Sandra Goard said complaints about the stormwater funding referendum not appearing on the ballot in the county were unfounded.

Though at least one voter complained that his ballot did not contain the controversial item. Goard explained the referendum was on all ballots distributed to those who live in the unincorporated areas of Seminole County.

"If they live within the city limits." she noted. "the poll workers are instructed to give them a ballot Type 16 (which does not include the referendum) and if they live in the unincorporated areas the poll workers are instructed to give them a Type 9 ballot (which includes the referendum).

Some people may have been handed the wrong ballot inadvertently, she said. Voters should be aware of what items should be on their ballot and if they get the wrong one, they should return the ballot to the poll workers and get the proper one.

"We haven't had any complaints." Goard said, "but I guess it could happen."

School zones: Drawing the line

Board must fashion new plan after ruling that old one unfair to blacks

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - This afternoon the Seminole County school board will vote on changing the lines for the attendance zone from which Winter Springs High School will draw its first students. The change holds urgency for a group of Al-

Suspect nabbed in Lake Mary home invasion

By NICK PPEIPAUP Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - William Gay Thrash III, 22, of 473 Silver Dew Street, Lake Mary, was in custody at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility this morning, in connection with a home invasion robbery shortly before midnight Sunday.

The incident occurred at a restdence in the 500 block of Oaklawn Terrace in Lake Mary. A number of persons were at home at the time. According to Lake Mary police, a 16-year old girl told them she had just turned out the lights after studying, when she heard noises, and a man's voice yelling for money.

Woman killed in golf accident

MILTON - A car struck and killed a Pensacola woman who was crossing a busy highway after attending a tournament at The Moors Golf Club.

Sandy D. Walters, 35, was walking to a parking area on the other side of Avalon Boulevard when the car struck her, Florida Highway Patrol troopers said. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

The car was driven by Robert T. Smith, 17, of Milton. Troopers said charges and blood alcohol test results were pending.

Witnesses who declined to be identified said they heard someone shout "Don't go" and then they heard a loud "bam." Lee Trevino won the Senior PGA Tour tournament in a five-way playoff. Most spectators had left prior to the fatal accident but some stayed on into the evening for post-tournamententertainment.

Zoo owner to appeal revocation

STEEL CITY — Roadside 200 owner Romulus Scalf, accused of trying to feed a live dog to his cougars, said he will appeal the revocation of his state permit to display wildlife. The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission sent the Steel City Zoo a letter of revocation on Oct. 25.

"I intend to fight it and stay open," Scalf said Monday.
Scalf has 21 days after receiving it to comply or ask for an administrative hearing to appeal the decision, said Lt. Stan Kirkland, a spokesman for the commission in Panama City.
Although he has admitted feeding live puppies to his snakes. Scalf denied putting a 60-pound chow dog in a pen with three cougars. He said that is the chief allegation in the revocation order and also the basis of a criminal charge of animal charge. order and also the basis of a criminal charge of animal abuse that he also says he will fight.

Cubans finally get relief

MIAMI — After weeks of delays and negotiations with the Cuban government, most of the food collected by Miami's exile community was finally distributed to victims of Hurricans Lili.

About 25 percent of the food remains warehoused in Havana because of "propaganda messages" on the boxes, said the Rev. Inomas return to Miami.

After a week of delays blamed on the Cuban government Wenski said the food was transported over the weekend to Santa Clara and Santi Spiritus, where it was given to about 2.500 homeless hurricane victims at five shelters.

He blamed delays on a "surprised, confused and frightened" government that did not know how to deal with the aid from exiles in Miami administered by the Church, whose charities operate under the name Caritas Cuba.

He characterized government complaints about the word "exile" written on many of the boxes as "an excuse."

"Caritas knew how to respond to the government," Wenski said. "They were very firm during this whole week that this aid was given to them for hurricane victims to be used only for the hurricane victims."

He said the government wanted to divert the aid, but Caritas was able to insure most of the food made it to victims of the storm, which hit Oct. 18.

track of their times and speed. A few voiced object tions that their times and those given by the official timers were not the same.

With the women's races first on Monday morning's agenda. there was a bit of confusion

Games director Lisa Jones held a pre-tace meeting before the actual event began. She explained the route, on Seminole Boulevard from the Senior Center to N. Sanford Avenue. then east on First Street to the New Tribes Mission area, where they circled back onto Seminole Boulevard once again In addition to three complete laps, racers were required to goan additional length, in order to complete the official five kilometer distance. Some however said they got the opinion, as they passed the timers, that their laps had concluded

While a few of them came to a stop at the Senior Center grandstand area however, they were informed they required an additional lap, and immediately jumped on their bikes to finish the event

One woman reportedly ran the entire course the second time, toprevent the clapsed time from her pit stop from taking away from her overall time. In the men's competition. John Smithaldi, age 83, of St. Petersburg, took second place in the 5K race, and first place in the JOK race

Simbaldi is certainly not un familiar with being in competition Golden Age officials say Simbaldi rode in competition during the Olympic Games held in Berlin, Germany in 1936

One of the outstanding par ticipants for the women's lake racing events however was not because of the distance she covered or the position in which she funshed. It was her fortifiede.

Last year. Tom West finished in first place in the 60 to 64 age group. This year, he didn't enter the race. West has been campaigning for election to Scat 3. with the Lake Mary City Commission. Rather than butting the streets in what could be one final day of campaigning however, he was on hand at the race to support his wife Ursula.

While she did win two medals. the big accomplishment was her having overcome a recent illness. Tom West explained that Ursula had gone through a heart transplant operation just this past December.

Spectators admitted they couldn't notice any lack of spark or competitive spirit in her however, and she managed to finish second (silver medal) in her age category in both the 5K and lOK events.

Faithful players keep checkers in games

By NICK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Checkers competition for Sanford's 22nd annual Golden Age Games was held Monday morning at the Sanford Senior Center. The event was sponsored by Sanford Seniors Chib.

When the Sanford Herald photographer arrived on the scene to take pictures of the excitement and suspense of this event, he almost wondered if he had gone to the wrong location. Only three male particlpants were on hand at the time, although there were four participants.

Nick Kosut of Fruitland won the gold medal with Gordon Wilson of Sanford taking silver (second), and Earl E. Foran of Oviedo taking the bronze medal for third place.

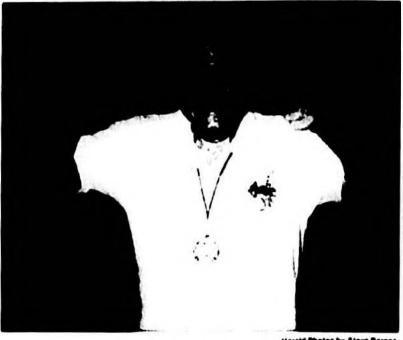

Checkers competition was one of several which made it onto the activity list for this year by the skin of its teeth. During planning for this year's events, those which had little or no participation last year, were given some serious consideration for elim-

After the initial consideration however, several persons indicated they wished to participate in the checkers competition, and it was never removed from the list of activities.

A few other events which had been held in the past were also scheduled to be cut but returned to the listing one more time this year. Some activities have so much participation that registration is generally closed a week or so in advance.

For a few however, registration may still be made prior to the actual event. In this way, Sanford Recreation Department personnel said it is difficult to determine which games might be cut and which might be added, without angering people who may have driven hundreds of miles to the Sanford games

Together again after election

- By the time today has ended, the smoke of battle will have subsided for most of the elections our people are facing. Hopefully, a vast number have either voted by this time. or plan do to so. Polls will remain open until 7

There will still be a number of elections undecided. They will require a runoff election in two weeks.

But for the majority of races, from the presidency to the local area, as well as a number of referendum items, today is the day of decision. The people who turned out at the polls today made the decisions for everyone. whether they voted or not.

They will have decided on the sugar tax. Sanford city elections, county stormwater funding, whether the county should have its own say-so on casino gambling (regardless of what the state says), and a host of other

Many people will agree that this has been one of the muddlest campaign seasons we have experienced in many years. Everyone appeared to be calling everyone else a liar, and, especially on the higher level, giving statements about their opponents which. , while they weren't lies, could easily be properly identified as a case where not everything was told in the way in which it was intended.

But, like the outcome or not, tomorrow "morning, we will be in a new era. We may or may not have a new man as president of the United States. We could or could not have new legislators, judges, or other officials.

The point is, we had better learn to live with the decisions which were made by the manjority. Continuing to complain that the right belegisions were not made at the mills is decisions were not made at the polls, is tantamount to saying the majority of the people didn't know anything about the candidates or the election. It's a slap in the face of your heighbors, friends, people you work with, fellow church members, and many others.

We suggest tomorrow be considered as a starting point. Added to that, the results of the runoff election which will determine the 'rest of the decisions faced on today's ballot. and we will have that point in time where the people must regroup and once again start working together.

80 Some decisions are still to be made however, especially the Sanford city election which is still a month away.

But for the rest of our government operation, today is the end of an era of campaigning to obtain your vote. Tomorrow should be a day when everyone puts down the weapons of political battle and joins together in hand-shakes which identify a new time for

Drug abuse and America's seniors

WASHINGTON - Older Americans have a serious drug problem.

Election-year attention has focused on teen-age drug abuse, but "the other drug pro-blem" in the United States, equally large and potentially just as fatal, is prescription drug abuse and misuse among the elderly.

abuse and misuse among the elderly.

One-third of all prescription drugs in this country are bought by people over 65 years old, even though they represent only 15 percent of the population. And senior citisens are particularly vulnerable to addiction and tragic side effects from misuse of those drugs.

The late Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida told us time and again how shocking it was when senior citisens would come to his health subcommittee hearings with large plastic bags filled with pills of every variety. "These were medications that had been prescribed for them, and which they were supposedly taking simultaneously," he recounted.

William Simonson, professor at Oregon State University's College of Pharmacy, recalled the case of one older woman admitted to a hospital for "drugged behavior." Indeed. She was taking 75 different prescription and nonprescription medications. Convinced that she needed all these pills to remain healthy, she was going to many different pharmacies - and lived in fear of having the drugs taken from her.

Our associate Dale Van Atta, who interviewed dozens of experts and reviewed trade literature on the subject of prescription drug abuse, learned the following about this crisis:

•As much as 10 percent of all hospital admissions in America can be at-tributed adverse drug reactions c a u s e d b y mismedication. The greatest portion of that number are the elderly, who may experience additional medication problems from the hospital drug regimen.

Twice as many people in America die from prescription drugs every year as from illegal

are particularly vulnerable to addiction and tragic side effects from misuse of those drugs narcotics like cocaine and heroin; of all drug-related deaths, experts have found 70 percent involve prescription drugs. And of these prescription drug-related deaths, at least half were individuals over 60 years old.

OThe chances that a doctor will preacribe a drug during an office viait is three in five. That's partly because of pressure from the patient. Older Americans in particular view drugs as panaceas, because they were conditioned earlier in their lives to expect such miracles with the discovery of penicillin and the polio vaccine. If a doctor fails to preacribe a drug when they see an elderly patient, that patient may go to another doctor who will. doctor who will.

Many seniors tend to take drugs prescribed by different doctors at different times, when those drugs shouldn't be mixed at all. Worse, one expert explained to us, "these children of the Depression hoard and loan." When a doctor takes them off a drug, they save them for use at a later date. And often the elderly swap drugs among family members and friends, without ever consulting a doctor.

The elderly often mistakenly assume that if one pill is good for them, then two must be better—a dangerous misconception.

Sure it's easy for Madonna

iabor on Monday, Oct. 14, an unmarried woman named Madonna Ciccone gave birth in Los Angeles to her first child: a healthy, beautiful girl with a headful of black hair. Newspapers trumpeted the event, TV reports theorised what brand of booties the infant might wear, and MTV ran continuous Madeona wideon in honce of the high. MINOTON -- AI Madonna videos in honor of the birth.

After 12 hours of labor on the same day here in Washington, an unmarried woman named Danielle Eppe gave birth to her first beby:

a healthy, beautiful boy, also with a headful of black hair. Except for Epps' family and friends, few noticed.

Why would they? Eppe is a freshman at Bowie State College and a partfreshman at Bowie State College and a parttime employee at a local TV station, not a celebrity whose comings and goings are media events. She isn't a star who can announce she's having a baby outside of marriage and receive the media's, and much of society's, blessing.

Eppe is just another scared young caught up with her. She's yet another ahe's gotten into.

"I was so spotled," says Epps, 18, of the days when sleeping late, hanging out with her boyfriend of two years and focusing on classes were easy things to do.

Now life consists of "getting up in the middle of the night, maybe three, four times--I've never been so sleepy," she says.
"Worrying about if (the baby) is getting enough to eat. ... I never had to worry about anything."

Epps sat in her robe, in her mom's

Epps sat in her robe, in her mom's comfortable suburban town house, staring at her beby. For over an hour she sat there, tracing little Robert's cheek with her finger, looking radiant, like a painting of the original Madonna.

As for the current Madonna, Epps is "happy for her-it seems like she wanted a baby for a long time."

What concerns Epps, and me, is the surrounding hoopla, which Epps says, "glamorised being a single mother." The only child of a single mom herself, Epps dosen't find unwed motherhood wrong. "I doesn't find unwed motherhood wrong. "I just don't think it's easy. Unless you're like Madonna, with unlimited resources, being a single mother is hard."

Tell me about it. Despite my college degree and decent-paying career, the years I spent raising two sons alone after my first marriage collapsed were my toughest. The increased financial burden, the endless responsibility, the buck always stopping with you-it can wear you out.

More women are learning it. 1984, the most recent year for which figures are available, about 1.29 million American were born to women out of wedlock. That's 32.6 percent of birthe, the highest percentage ever. About two-thirds of women receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children are single mothers, half of whom have never been married.

Compared with many, Eppe has it good. She expects to marry her boyfriend, 23, who is employed, joined her in the delivery and is "very caring" to their baby. Thanks to financial support from him and her mother, and to an aunt who'll baby-sit. Eppe will next month return to work and her studies, which she hopes will lead to a career at the FBI or in law.

Invariably, life surprises. You think you're just having a good time, and you end up pregnant. You know abortion is a choice and discover you're incapable of choosing it. You plan how to resume your life after a baby and find your heart gets in the way.

The most joyful thing in your life turns out to be the most difficult.

In many ways, it's laughable to compare a S8-year-old superstar to a part-time clerk of 18. But both Madonna and Eppe are responsible for precious new lives; both, I know, are rethinking all they thought they knew, Bables make you do I wish them the best, but their situations sadden me: Though marriage offers no guarantees, and I know courageous single mothers who are triumphing, I can't forget the statistics. They show married mom-and their children -- fare better, and not just because of economics.

There's something about promising God, your loved ones and the legal system to be there that helps to keep you there. There's something about acknowledging that kids need both fathers and mothers that shouldn't be dishonored. Children deserve the best that women, and the men who make babies with them, can give.

More often than not, that's marriage. A media-and a society-that pretends otherwise about any beautiful baby's birth is nuts.

Rules to get Mr. Right: all wrong

BOSTON-From time to time in the history of relationships, a creature reemerges out of the muck and into the ismelight proclaiming that she has the secret that will lead women into the happily-married-ever-after.

In the 1970's, she was The Total Woman. This icon, hatched by Marabel Morgan, guaranteed nuptial nirvana to women if only they stopped "nagging" men and learned to greet them at the door in nothing but a towel. "The Total Woman" was responsible for some rather alarmed UPS drivers and one very happy publisher.

Now, in the 1990's, she is The Rules Girl. a female who makes the Cosmo Cirl look comparatively liberated. Channelers Ellen Fein and Sherrie Schneider have taken "The Rules" for "capturing the heart of Mr. Right" straight from the past onto the number one spot on the best-sellers list

"The Rules" is a variable compost heap of Do's and (Mostly) Don'ts for a womanoops, girl—who wants to master the fine art of womanipulation. It's a how-to book: How to make a man desperate to marry a girl just like the girl that married dear old great-granddad.

Among the 35 "time-tested secrets" are these: Don't Talk to Him First. Don't Call Him. Don't Split the Check. End the Phone Call and the Date First. Don't Accept a Date for Saturday Later Than Wednesday. Let Him Take the Lead.

All in all, the authors say upfront and repeatedly. "The purpose of The Rules is to make Mr. Right obsessed with having you as his by making yourself seem unattainable. In plain language we're talking about playing hard to get!"

Now, my opinion on this subject is suspect. As the authors warn, "Highly educated girls have the hardest time with The Rules. They tend to think all this is beneath them." You bet.

But what this book shares with its predecessors is a stunningly low opinion of men—which in no way acema to stop women from wanting them. The Mr. Rights of "The Rules" are hopelessly driven hunter-gatherers "born to respond to a challenge." They cannot escape their destiny: "biologically, he's the aggressor,"

They are also and absolutely immune to change "because men never really change." But they are, at the same time, easily conned, "conditioned," "trained" and twisted around the finger of The Rules Cirls "Do The Rules and even the biggest playboy can be yours!"

If Susan Faludi penned such a profile of the species, she would be tarred for male-bashing. But the authors' portrait of women ien't a whole lot more flattering. Without The Rules, they'd be quivering, smothering, marriage-lusting losers.

This is an era that has witnessed the return of the girdle and the push-up bra (see Wonderbra). We shouldn't be surprised to see the recycling of the Tender

This book probably was conceived as a self-defense text for women who started out sharing dinner checks and ended up

LOS ANGELES - The first close-up views of Jupiter's frosen moon Callisto. pockmarked by untold millennia of meteoric assaults, will help determine how it could be so different from its lunar siblings.

Callisto, among four Jupiter moons Italian astronomer Galileo Galilei discovered in 1010, is the oldest, outermost and least geologically active. It is also believed to be one of the most heavily cratered objects in

So far, NASA's Galileo spacecraft has shown that lo has active, sulfur-spewing volcanoes, Europa may have a deep, frozen ocean, and Genymede has toy quakes.

Galileo came within 606 miles of Calileto's surface early Mon-day, taking measurements that should help determine its composition and history.

"Everything is going very amouthly," said project manager Bill O'Neil at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

But scientists will have to wait until late next week, when they begin playing back Galileo's tape-recorded data of the encounter, to get a look at what the spacecraft found.

With a diameter of 2.966 miles, Callieto is nearly as big as planet-sized Ganymede, the largest moon in the solar system. It also is believed to have a rocky core and a deep, icy crust like Ganymede. Galileo looked closely at two

If you detect fraud in election process today, you can call FBI

From staff reports

U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida, Charles R. Wilson, has set up a special election unit to receive citizen plaints about possible voting rights violations in today's Complaints may include vote suppression and voter intimi-dation. Wilson reminds all voters that it is illegal to intimidate or bribe voters, forge ballots, alter vote tallies, or cource the votes of the poor, elderly or illiterate. The law also protects voters' rights to mark their ballot in private and to be assisted by a person of their choice if they so choose. "Fraud at the polling sites undermines our democratic system," Wilson said, "We will promptly and aggressively prosecute violations of election laws.

Wilson has named Terry A. Zitek, chief of the district's Criminal Division to head the effort. He will be responsible for investigating and coordinating the prosecution of federal voter fraud offenses that are found to have taken place in this district.

He will supervise a team of federal prosecutors and special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation today, while the polls are open. They will be available to receive comp of election fraud.

Seminole County voters may report possible voting violations by contacting the FM effice, Ralph Hopkins, Deputy Managing Assistant U.S. Atterney, Orlando Division, (407) 648-

"Detecting voter fraud and intimidation depends in large part on the watchfulness and cooperation of all Americans," Wilson said. "Anyone who sees evidence of election fraud should contact the U.S. Attorney's office

Gains by Perot, and the late controversy over Democratic fund-raising conduct, made the 50 percent mark more elusive than it appeared in earlier campaign polls.

Short of that, he would be the first president in 80 years to gain two terms with pluralities but not majorities.

Even while claiming late headway. Republicans are fearful that Clinton's electoral vote count could reach the winning 270 so early, it might discourage GOP turnout in the Western states, hurting them in congressional competition.

That's been at issue before. notably when President Cartér conceded his 1960 defeat fo Ronald Reagan so hurriedly that most polls were still open.

Dole's near no-sleep marathen campaigning at the end included stops meant to help GOP House and Senate candidates. His late decision to stake it all on Cal-fornia, despite Clinton's hefly polling margine for those 54 electoral votes, was influenced by the impact on contests for 🔁 House seats there.

The bus ride to Winter Springs High averages between 10 and 15 miles depending on the neighborhood from which the students travel. Often parents have no transportation of their own so that picking up students who want to participate in after-school activities or who need to be icked up during the school day, would be dif-

Consumer items called democracy

WASHINGTON - America has a $7 trillion economy, and one small blip of that - guesses range from $7 billion to $14 billion or more - goes for a consumer item called democracy.

By tonight it may seem a good chuck of that money was blown on bunting, balloons and victory bashes in hotel ballrooms. But it also mailed sample ballots in San Diego and bought hot apple cider and cookies for poll workers in Blue Barth County, Minn.

It's impossible, of course, to calculate the price of democracy in lives laid down in war or sacrifices made in peacetime. Turns out it's pretty tough to tabulate in dollars and cents, too.

"The truth is, no one knows," said Bill Kimberling, who ought to know, if anyone does. He is director of the Federal Election Commission office that helps states and counties plan elections.

Riddy's visits to White House

WASHINGTON - Indonesian busineseman James Riady made frequent visits to the White House during half a dozen trips to Washington, discussing U.S.-Asian trade relations with the president and urging sides to put Asian Americans in government posts.

And one participant in a Clinton-Riady meeting was in-ternational business consultant Mark Middleton, a visitor to the White House 41 times during the past 13 months, according to Secret Service logs.

That's the picture drawn Monday by President Clinton's chief spokesman. Mike McCurry, responding to the growing controversy over foreign-linked political donations to the Democratic Party.

Clinton aides previously had disclosed only that Riady had three largely social chais with the president at the White

Mrs. Beer was flabbergasted, and a prominent Swiss banker

Simpson's civil trial

SANTA MONICA, Calif. - For Dennis Fung, the scene was all too familiar - an O.J. Simpson lawyer bombarding him with accusations of contamination and corruption. The only thing missing was the shrill voice of Barry Scheck shouting: "Wherl is it, Mr. Fung?"

In a confrontation Monday with the only lawyer left from Simpson's criminal trial defense team, the Los Angeles Police Department criminalist again found himself the focus of a defense frame-up theory, this time in the wrongful-death trial. Robert Blasier, a soft-spoken scientific evidence expert lacking the dramatic flair of the brash Scheck, accused Fung of a series of evidence blunders: allowing a dog to wander through blood evidence on Simpson's driveway, carrying a bloody glove to the crime scene and failing to collect a piece of paper and blood "imprint" evidence from a post.

Thirteen months after Simpson was acquitted in the 1994. killings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman, the defense unveiled yet another picture that went unused by the criminal lawyers. This time it was a photo of a post near Goldman's body. smeared with blood that Blasier said bore imprints, possibly of a shoe.

"I do see some sort of pattern on the post," Fung said. "Did you even notice it at the time?" Blasier asked.

asid Fung, who said he also didn't notice the piece of paper depicted in another photo. Blasier suggested both bore shoe impressions, but Fung said it wasn't clear.

The confrontation was reminiscent of the April day in 1995 when Scheck, the scientific buildog of the criminal defense team, sprang on Fung two pictures of a back gate at Ms. Simpson's condo taken three weeks apart. The more recent photo showed a blood spot unseen in the first shot.

"Where is it, Mr. Fung?" Scheck shouted as he showed jurors the first photo.

"I can't see it in the photograph," Fung said then.
On Monday, he admitted he never saw any blood on the back gate the first time he visited the condo the morning after the killings. He also contradicted Detective Tom Lange, who testified last week that he alerted Fung to the gate blood.

'I don't remember being told about blood on the back gate that day," Fung testified.

Fung also conceded that a dog was allowed to wander Simpson's estate while Fung and his partner collected blood stains, a glove and other evidence.

Rwanda said Monday it would attend. Zaire has been sending mixed signals.

Intensive construction work

ATHENS, Greece - Not since the ancient Athenians built the graceful marble temples on Acropolis hill has Greece's capital been the site of such intensive construction work.

This time, though, Athenians are not glorifying heaven, but tunneling 65 feet underground. They are expanding their antiquated rall system with two new subway lines designed to ease traffic congestion and cut air pollution.

It has also become the single largest archaeological excavation carried out in Athens — 82,800 square yards of digs. Contractors have been forced to coexist with archaeologists whose patience sometimes appears infinite in their determination to prevent damage to important finds.

In the digging, workers and archaeologists found in the first 12 feet evidence from every major historical period dating back to 1200 B.C. About 90 million cubic feet of earth is being moved as the two underground lines are laid and 21 stations are built.

Credit card companies drop ahead of holiday shopping season

By PATRICIA LAM AP Business Writer

NEW YORK - A credit card war is brewing, just in time for the holiday shopping rush.

AT&T Corp., the nation's second-largest issuer of credit cards, is offering sharply lower interest rates to its best customers. On a smaller scale, No. 1 Citicorp gave some of its customers a rate cut in September.

Other credit card companies are expected to follow their lead. The motivation? To entice customers to pull out their company's card when they charge Christmas gifts. About 20 percent of a year's charges is made between Thanksgiving and Christmas, said Robert McKinley of Ram Research Corp. "It's a move for wallet share." said Mitchell Montagna, a spokesman for AT&T Universal Card Services Corp.

The rates are dropping even though interest rates in general have not moved significantly lower.

The prime rate, which banks charge their best customers and which is used as a benchmark for other loans, has not changed since February 1, when it was lowered by one-quarter per-centage point to 8.25 percent.

Consumer advocates, including Stephen Brobeck, executive director of the Consumers Federation of America. said the rate move proved that credit card issuers have room to lower their rates without hurting profitability.

"Credit card rates are extremely high, given the cost of credit to banks." Brobeck said Monday.

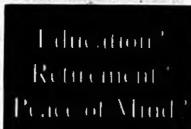

The average bank-issued credit card charges 18 percent interest; the average credit union card charges 13 percent.

In a letter to customers last week, AT&T Universal said it would lower the interest rate on its credit cards to 13.85 percent. That represents a drop of 4.3 percentage points for AT&T's most expensive card, from 18.15 percent rate right now. The new rate, effective Dec. 1, will remain 5.6 percentage points over the prime lending rate.

AT&T is offering an even lower teaser rate to customers who transfer balances from other credit cards onto their AT&T account.

Montagna would not say how many of AT&T's 23 million cardholders received the letter but said it was a "significant Citicorp's rate decrease in September only applies to about 4 million of its 38 million customers and in some cases depends on the balance amount. The rate for its Gold Card customers dropped from 15.65 percent to 13.65 percent.

Clubs argue over labor deal

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK - The 1998 expansion teams might be voting on baseball's proposed labor might be voting on baseball's proposed labor deal, which appears to be headed to defeat going into Wednesday's meeting.

Jerry Colongelo, managing general partner of the Arisona Diamondbackh, said he expected to vote on the five-year agreement when owners gather at Rosemont. III.

"I have very strong opinions about this whole situation," Colongelo said Monday. "I would as soon have an opportunity to voice them.

soon have an opportunity to voice them.

"The most important thing in my opinion is:
What's in the best stakes of the game? — not individual teams or in agendas. In a sport that needs to get its act together, first and foremost let's bring some stability back to the game. Let's get on in rekindling the interest baseball once

Other officials said owners would decide at the seeting whether to give votes to the Damondcke and Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

"It has to be discussed; It has to be voted on." NL vice president Katy Feeney said.

Allowing votes to the expansion teams adds more potential opponents to stop the deal. A three-quarters majority is needed to ratify the proposed agreement, which was completed Oct. 34. That means eight teams can stop a deal, no etter if 30 or 30 are voting.

The Chicago White Sox and Cube, Florida,

Kansas City and Montreal are known to oppose the agreement, which would bring labor peace to baseball after a fight that's lasted nearly four years. Boston, Cleveland, Houston and Scattle also were seen as possible no votes.

In rejecting the deal, owners might tell negotiator Randy Levine to go back to the union and extract additional concessions, a lawyer familiar with the situation said. Levine, however, was contemplating resigning no matter how the vote went, the lawyer said. Several officials said a rejection of the deal might cause next week's summit meeting on umpires to be canceled. Levine has told people he will resign almost immediately if owners turn down the deal, and union head Donald Fehr has told people he probably wouldn't attend if the labor agreement is rejected. Owners agreed to the summit meeting while in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia in an effort to stop the threatened postsesson strike by umpires.

The umpires were angry that Baltimore's Roberto

Alomar was given only a five-day auspension for spitting at umpire John Hirschbeck, a penalty to be served next season. "There is an agreement with the United States District Court that this meeting will go forward, yumpires union head Richie Phillips said. "I ire tend to be there with a representative group of umpires." Fehr, reached at his hotel in London, did not

NEW YORK - While other ports embrace contracts with Nike, baseball owners rejected a deal with the sporting goods company. Owners last Thursday shot down a proposed 10-year con-tract with Nike, the first big deal put together by Oreg Murphy, their new marketing head.

"We're disappointed that baseball still can't seem to get its house in order, 'Nike spokesman Jim Small said Monday. "When it does, we would be interested in talking to them again."

Under the proposed contract. Nike would have put its logo on 15-18 team uniforms, guaranteed advertising purchases on network television broadcasts and bought space on stadium billboards, several high-ranking team officials said on the condition they not be identified.

Team officials were angered that while Nike was making a large commitment — up to $200 million according to some estimates — a very small per-centage of the money would have filtered down to individual

Several teams invoked the name of Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, who has defled the NFL by cutting his own marketing in addition, several officials complained that clubs on the board of Major League Baseball Properties — the sport's licensing wing — had more information on the deal than other (cams.

Officials on some clubs in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco were concerned that the other team in their town would be backed by Nike money and their franchise would not

"People felt it was an uneven playing field," one club official

Murphy argued unsuccessfully that the NBA has prospered because of "strategic relationships" with marketing pariners. Several clubs did not want to agree to a clause in the contract that would have prevented them from seiling billboard space in their ballparks to Nike's competitors, the so-called "ambush provision." Nike presed for a decision last week because it wanted enough lead time to manufacture the licensed merchandise and get it to retail stores by spring training.

Murphy did not respond to telephone messages left at his home and office.

IN BRIEF

2 receive national 4H awards

Lis lesseson, Chuluota, and Regina Wolff, Altamonte Springs, have been awarded the "National I Dare You Leadership Award" in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living and potential for leadership. The honor was presented by Shelia Wilkens, Seminole County 4-H coordinator, at this year's 4-H awards ceremonies.

The I Dare You Leadership Award is presented each year by the American Youth Foundation (AYF) in cooperation with principals, headmasters and 4-H county agents across the nation. The award was first offered in 1941 by the late William H. Danforth, founder of the Raleton Purina Company in St. Louis, who first challenged young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through service. The award takes its name from the book, I Dare You!, written by Danforth, in which he commends the balanced life of mental physical, social and spiritual development as the backbone of leadership.

In addition to a certificate of recognition, each recipient received a copy of the Danforth's inspirational book, I Dare You! and a scholarship opportunity to attend AYF's International Leadership Conference at Miniwanca in Michigan, Merrowvista in New Hampshire, or Coder Lake in California. Over 4,000 high schools and 4-H programs participate in the Danforth's Landership Americans pack year.

Over 4,000 high schools and 4-H programs participate in the I Dare You Leadership Award program each year. 4-H is the youth development program of the Cooperative Extension Service. For more information, contact the Seminole County 4-H office at $25-2800, Eat. 8860.

He's a big booster of youth

SANFORD-One is unsure where Jeff Clark finds the time for his various volunteer efforts between his heavy work schedule, but he donates many hours toward the betterment of the youth of Seminole High School and his community.

Clark is the vice-president of sales with Anthony Manufacturing a manufacturer of glass display doors. He and his father own two other companies, The Cellular Phone and WT&T, a long-distance company. They are beginning a new company called Eagle Communications inc. which will also deal with cellular phones.

Among his endeavors, Clark is active with the Wilson Elementary School PTA and frequently provides a popcorn machine and popcorn for fund-raising events. He and his daughter are members of the Indian Princess group associated with the YMCA.

Yet, his real love in volunteering radiates toward the Booster Club of Seminole High School. He is presently the president of the group and was also a mem-ber last year.

Since his son is on the swim team and golf team he feels an even greater pull to improve the athletic department through his work in the club. His endless hours of "booster duties" keeps the family hopping to one activity or another.

Part of his work with fundraising brought him in the spotlight with Shaquille O'Neal. Shaquille had heard of the trouble we were having in raising funds for the Booster Club."

Clark said. "He made a call and got 69 Boys, a popular rap group, to come and perform at the grm. Through Shaquille's efforts we raised more money for the club. Class Act Entertainment was also involved."

He continued, "I was also involved in another fund-raiser

We raised 95,000 from that. All the funds are earmarked for the betterment of the athletic department. We have upgraded the weight room and bought the football teams new sieds.

Clark added, "We try to work hard to give the kids a fighting chance. This year we're more ambitious than in the past. We have a goal to raise $27,000 and hope to spread it through all the sports. We're trying to keep the motivated parenta involved."

Helping the kids, to what Clark cited as his number one goal. "I stay interested in volunteering with the Booster Club because it gives me the setiefaction of knowing I'm helping those kide and giving them a chance they might never have. With some of the kide, this (sports) is all they have except for their education. This might spark a burning flame to go on and achieve even more. Our principal at Seminole. Gretchen, is very supportive of us because she realizes how important this le."

Clark has been a resident of Sanford for seven years. He and his wife, Gaye, have been married for 16 years.

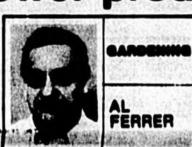

They have two children, Jimmy and Maggie. The family has been members of Grace United Methodist Church for two years.

Passionflower produces unique bloom

passionflower is given to any of the vines of the genus Passiflora which produce a very unique flower. The word passion does not refer to any aphrodisiac effect from chemicals produced by the plants, quite the opposite, the plants produce a which is even to hyperactive children to slow down their reactions. The name Passiflora comes from the interpretation Asia and Australia. ### Mom becomes too amicable following daughter's divorce

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother and my ex-husband. When "Steve" and I divorced two years ago, there were a lot of hard fielings. My mother is aware of this because I was living with her at the time.

Abby, my mother constantly takes Steve's side over mine. She repeatedly "reminds" me how lucky I am that Steve pays child support and has regular visits with our daughter. I agree that I am luckier than most divorced mothers. But when I discuss any problem I might be having with Steve, Mom takes his side and says, "He pulls his own weight."

What I would like Steve to do is to take more responsibility for our daughter. She stays with him two days a week, but you can bet that on one of those days he will have something else to do — like work, a date or a beligame. Then he sake Mom to beby-sit our daughter and Mom readily agrees. When I sak her to beby-sit for me, she immediately wants to know why. When Steve drops our daughter off at Mem's house, family members tell me that he usually spends up to an hour visiting with her. I think this is strange behavior.

What is this "thing" between my ex-husband and my mom? She didn't think he was so great when we were married. Why the sudden change? Is this my ex's way of staying involved in my life? When I sak Mom about this she gets defineive, or ignores me, or hears up on me.

CONFUSED DAUGHTER.

DEAR CONFUSED: Your sether is walking a tightrone street and sordial with our "ex," being loyal to you ad being a good grandmother.

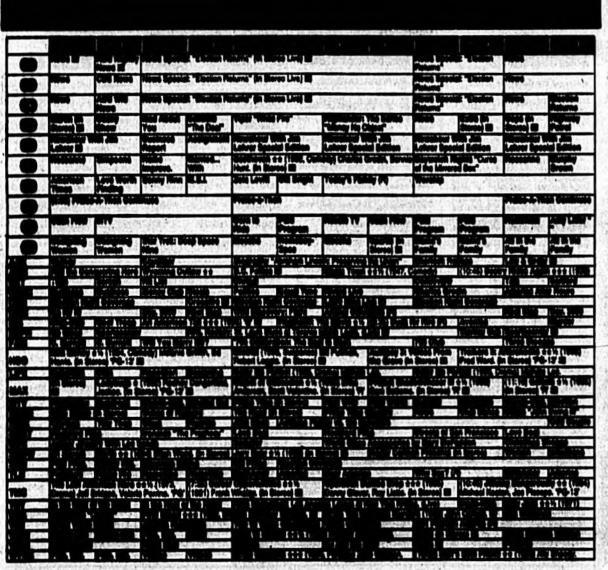

She may go a little overboard defending Steve, but she may also be playing the "devil's advante," pointing out his good hatures so that you will eventu ally have a civil relationship.

Although Steve is no longer your husband, that doesn't mean he can't be a friend of your mether's. Because you share enstedy of your child, Steve will always be in your life to some degree. Try to accept it and go on with your life.

YOUR CHUCKLE FOR THE DAY: "As my good friend Al Capp told me a few years ago, the best thing to do with a con-firmed hotel reservation alip when you have no room is to spread it out on the sidewalk in front of the hotel and go to sleep

"You will either embarrass the hotel into giving you a room, or you'll be hauled off to the local jug, where at least you'll have a roof over your head." -- ART BUCHWALD

A few words about a recent column

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your recent col-umn about selling cigareties to Third World countries in order to decimate those populations was racist toward Asian-Americans. I found it offensive and degrading. You should write a

DEAR READER: I must admit that I was altogether stunned at the reaction expressed by some readers to the column in question.

Anybody who is a regular reader of my column knows that I occasionally take perverse delight in writing something so outrageous that it becomes satire. Judging from my mail, most readers recognize my position (on selling cigarettes to Asia) for what it was: a spoof, a completely implausible possibility. This was meant to be humorous because of the sheer absur-dity of the suggestion. Sell cigarettes to Asians to reverse the trade deficit? Unlikely, Supply tobacco products to the Chinese so they won't attack us? Patently nonsensical.

Yet some readers took these suggestions seriously, when my real pur-pose was whimsically to address the save of tobacco-use in the Third World: WE know cigarettes are dan-gerous; being intelligent, the ASIANS know this, too.

If I am to be criticised, it is not for racism but for a minjudgment in pre-senting judicrous conclusions that I believed would amuse my readers. Apparently, such diversions have no place in a medical column such as mine. For this reason, I offer a sincere apology to those readers who were ed and I will be more careful in the future to make my attempts at humor more obvious, as I do in my annual Medical Terms For The

In summary, I deeply regret any misunderstanding that may have resulted from my column.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During my last check-up, my doctor said I have fluid on my lungs. He put me on Dyszide for control. Is this proper for my condition?

DEAR READER: Pulmonary congestion caused by excess fluid can appropriately be treated with kidney stimulants, such as Dyazide, that draw the fluid from the lungs and allow it to be excreted. However, the question "why?" remains.

If you have congestive heart failure, a common cause of this symptom. your doctor needs to identify the reason, using a stress test and a cardiac ultrasound. If hypertension is to blame, you will require specific thera-py, such as ACE inhibitors, for this condition. If you have a primary lung disorder - such as pneumonia on Xray - additional therapy is, again,

Fluid on the lungs is a symptom not a disease. Ask your physician to explain the reason for this affliction. Although the treatment for pulmonary congestion is straightforward, the diagnosis of an underlying condition can be challenging.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You recently discussed taking sleeping pills. Does your comment apply to over-thecounter sleeping tablets or only to prescription pills?

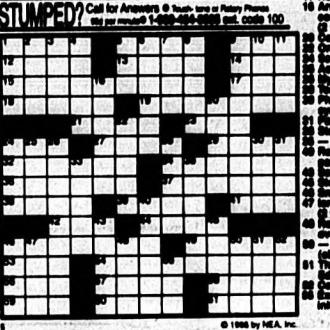

DEAR READER: Only the prescrip-DEAR READER: Only the prescrip-tion variety. Most over-the-counter-sleeping pills contain harmless, sedat-ing anti-histamines (such as diphen-hydramine), which are safe for long-term use and — although not as effec-tive as prescription drugs — have fewer side effects.

The problem with prescription drigs that aid sleep is that they may be habit-forming. Some even interfere with cognitive thinking. Those patients who require more than an occasional sleep aid should check with their doctors to discover the cause of their insomnia. For example, stress and caffeine-containing beverages often cause sleeplessness that can be corrected with minor modifications.

How do you view fireworks? In Australia, they are illegal. In the Notherlands, all wildlife is driven crasy with fear on New Year's Eve as everyone sets fireworks off at midnight. And in Britain, many people set them off tenight to commemorate the fallers of Guy Pawhee and his gang to blo the Houses of Parliament. At the bridge table, fireworks u

When East made a taheout double and West bid four spades, Edwards realized his partner had to be very short in spades. So he raised to five hearts!

And when East contested with five spades, Edwards apparently "sacri-ficed" in six hearts!

Pinally, when East doubled, Edwards redoubled, perhaps with the thought of persueding East to retreat to six spades. However, everyone
