Enrollment at record high

GAINESVILLE — The fall term has begun at the University of Florida's College of Agriculture with undergraduate enrollment at a record high for the college's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Students majoring in such subjects as food and resource economics, microbiology and cell science, animal science, food science and human nutrition and agricultural operations management have swelled fall undergraduate enrollment to 1,497 students.

That represents a 15.4 percent increase over last fall's enrollment, Jimmy G. Check, interim assistant dean for academic programs, said in a release issued Wednesday by the university.

"Students are beginning to look at our college and see the kinds of jobs our graduates are moving into in the food industry, the agricultural industry and in natural resources," Check said. "There are good careers out there waiting for these students."

Almost half of the institute's students are women, while 20 percent of undergraduates are members of minorities.

Total enrollment at the institute is 2,190 students, a 9.3 percent increase over last year's record figure.

Rubber filler caused leak

CAPE CANAVERAL — A pinched piece of rubber filler — not a faulty O-ring seal — caused a leak in a solid rocket booster being readied for the launch of space shuttle Discovery in November, NASA says.

NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said Wednesday it was too soon to say whether the necessary repairs will delay Discovery's military mission.

Technicians took apart the booster and found that one inch of a 4-foot section of rubber filler was pinched and needs to be replaced, Malone said. The substance is used to fill any voids left during assembly of the rocket.

The booster's three O-rings seals were in good condition, Malone said. A failure in an earlier version of the O-ring caused the 1986 Challenger explosion that killed seven astronauts.

Pay toilets must be installed

MARLBORO TOWNSHIP, N.J. — A man who says the Virgin Mary visits him monthly has been ordered to install outdoor toilets for the faithful who flock to his yard by the thousands.

The Monmouth County Health Department has given Joseph Januszkiewicz five days to have 10 portable toilets in place.

"The neighbors complained and gave us vivid accounts of people defecating in the woods and bushes," Public Health Coordinator Lester Jargowsky said Wednesday.

Since July, thousands of people — some arriving on chartered buses — have flocked here on the first Sunday of every month, when the 54-year-old draftsman says the visitations occur. On Aug. 2, 10,000 crowded into the township.

The Health Department said Januszkiewicz's wife notified it that the couple will comply.

LAKE MARY — A plan of attack to force a re-starting of construction on Lake Mary Boulevard is being formulated. A group of 45 Boulevard area merchants met this morning to form an action group.

Plans call for committees to seek facts regarding the stoppage, and a make a deluge of telephone and fax messages telling officials of their individual problems, urging them to get the project back underway.

Construction on Lake Mary Blvd. halted in July because of financial problems with the prime contractor, John Mahoney and Company, of Boston. The company which insured the construction, has since been studying the work, in an effort to obtain a new contractor.

The roadway however, contains piles of dirt, deep ditches and hazardous driveway entrances which has been causing problems to adjacent merchants.

In most areas from Interstate 4 to Country Club Road, the boulevard is restricted to two lanes of traffic, with driveways leading into shopping centers and individual businesses unfinished and difficult to use.

It's contest time Sanford seeks artists to design city signs

By MICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — New city welcome signs are to be placed around Sanford. A contest is now underway to design them.

Entrants are not required to be residents of Sanford, nor is there any age restriction.

The concept of the new signs has been under discussion by the City Commission since early June. Two separate ideas were originally proposed. Each would have slide-in message areas at the bottom, with some form of welcome to the City of Sanford written at the top. The signs will be erected at the major entrances to the City. Original discussion projected the signs would be on both the north and south city limits along Highway 17-92, and east and western limits along S.R. 46. The exact locations and number of signs still remains to be determined.

City Commissioner Whitely Eckstein had suggested the slide-in areas be used to call attention to award winning sports activities from area school teams, or to promote local events.

Regarding the design, the City's announcement specifies that the sign should provide the ability to display a changeable message. The message is to have, "...the ability to highlight events or honor individuals or team accomplishments."

A sketch or drawing is to be provided. The size and shape of the sign is being left to the person submitting a sketch, but when actually built, it will be in keeping with the City's sign codes.

Contest entrants are also asked to submit suggested materials for the building of the signs.

Longwood approves budget

By MICK PFEIFAU

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission has given final approval to its $9.1 million fiscal year 1992/93 budget yesterday. It also adopted a millage rate of 5.12.

Both items were presented for their second reading and public hearings at last night's City Commission meeting. The millage rate received unanimous approval, but the budget passed on a split three to one vote.

with Commissioner Paul Lovstrand voting in the negative.

"I just don't feel as though the budget is right," Lovstrand said this morning. "There were a number of things brought up that I felt just should not be accepted."

"For example," he said, "they plan to cut 18 jobs from the city payroll, but they refuse to say which jobs." He added that he didn't necessarily want people named, but at least their specific positions should be identified.

"They say they will cut a deputy clerk," Lovstrand said.

Street repair costs $3,000 per resident

By MICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — Paving and drainage property assessments will be the focal point of discussion in Lake Mary Thursday night. The City Commission will consider the matters during a special called City Commission meeting.

It could cost several hundred residents over $3,000 each, possibly with a ten year period during which the amount would be paid.

On July 10, the city mailed a survey to residents of zone 5, which consists of unpaved streets behind Lake Mary Elementary School. The survey was to determine interest in paving and drainage projects in their area.

According to City Planner Matt West, the streets include south 4th and 5th streets, Washington, Ruskin, Van Buren, Monroe, and Johnson Streets.

"What the city is trying to do," West said, "is determine equivalent traffic units, ETU's, on which to base the cost for the installation of drainage lines and paving these streets."

"The average home in Lake Mary is considered to have ten vehicular trips per day," West said. "That means five departures and five returns, to such places as work, school, shopping, and other places."

The City has considered the matter for several months. Original-

King celebration group excited

SANFORD — Following a meeting yesterday afternoon at Sanford City Hall, state and local officials are looking forward to working with one another on the 1993 Martin Luther King celebration in Sanford.

Sanford has been selected as the top King celebration in the state by the statewide committee that was appointed by the governor in May to offer resource assistance to the best program to make it better.

"We're very excited about what we will be able to do with the committee in Sanford for the celebration in January," said Nina Martinez, a representative of the state committee.

Mayor Bettye Smith, who is on Sanford's celebration committee, said she came away from the meeting feeling confident that next year's Martin Luther King celebration will be "the best yet."

While no formal plans were finalized at yesterday's meeting, the state committee listened to concerns and wished from the local group and offered suggestions of resources and promised to be of whatever assistance they might be able to be.

"We do not have any access to money at this point," said Martinez, "but we have access to a lot of information and state agencies that might be able to

GOP candidate rejects debate format

TALLAHASSEE — The Republican candidate for U.S. Senate has rejected the debate format provided by the League of Women Voters, possibly scuttling the only statewide televised debate of the race.

Bill Grant, a former North Florida congressman, has refused to participate in the debate because the league planned to have four reporters question him and U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, according to Richard Pinsky, Grant's campaign manager.

"We are holding fast to our call for a head-to-head debate," Pinsky said.

He said the candidates have agreed to at least two debates where they would question each other.

Graham is willing to accept either format, according to campaign manager Jay Hakes.

The two candidates have agreed to debate general issues before a Tallahassee political club and health care issues in West Palm Beach.

State housing programs to be examined

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles appointed 18 people to an affordable housing commission and asked it to examine the state's housing programs, particularly in Hurricane Andrew's wake.

"The incredible destruction of affordable housing in South Florida by Hurricane Andrew means that this commission faces an even more critical agenda," Chiles said Wednesday.

The Governor's Affordable Housing Study Commission was first created by the Legislature in 1985, but has been inactive since 1989. An interim panel appointed by Chiles in 1991 made recommendations that resulted in passage of a tax increase on real estate transactions to fund housing needs statewide.

"The commission will carry on the work and the progress we've already begun in the affordable housing arena," Chiles said.

Tourist visits to Florida drop

TALLAHASSEE — Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer started the first meeting of a panel named to revive tourism with the news that tourist visits to Florida in June dropped 6 percent from June 1991.

"I think we've got an opportunity to bring this commission together and get serious about marketing tourism in Florida," Farmer said.

Nearly 40 million tourists visited Florida last year and the state relied on its largest industry for $1.7 billion in sales tax revenue.

June brought 3.6 million visitors, down 6 percent from a year earlier. The 21.1 million visitors in the first six months of the year were down 2.7 percent from the first half of 1991, Department of Commerce figures indicated.

The June count included 1.8 million auto travelers, down 11.3 percent from a year earlier.

Discount air fares led to the one bright spot in the report, a 2.4 percent increase in air travelers. They numbered 1.3 million in June, tourism officials said.

Regulators agree on power rate hike

TALLAHASSEE — State utility regulators agreed to give Florida Power Corp. an $86.7 million rate increase over the next 14 months and asked their staff to provide more details on the new rates by next week.

The state Public Service Commission directed staff members Wednesday to come up with exact figures for a meeting Monday on how the increases will affect Florida Power's 1.3 million customers.

"We'd like to get a sense of what our votes have done," commission Chairman Thomas Beard said. "Monday we'll get a look at what that drives out in rates."

Decisions on more than 300 issues in meetings that began Monday left Florida Power with revenue increases of $26.7 million in November, $6.7 million in April 1993 and $18.1 million in November 1993.

Those are in addition to a $31.3 million interim increase the St. Petersburg-based utility was allowed to put in effect in April while the rate case was pending.

The interim increase raised the average residential customer's monthly bill about $1.54. Beard said rough calculations show the new increases would bring the overall rise to $3 — a $2 jump in November and increases of less than $1 in April 1993 and November 1993.

Old gator wanders onto taxiway

WEST PALM BEACH — A 1,300-pound alligator that allithered onto a taxiway at Palm Beach International Airport was captured and brought to a slaughterhouse.

"He may be a wallet," trapper Leo Kramer said after leashing the 12-foot, 80-year-old bull gator Wednesday. "He may be a lady's garter belt. It's hard to say."

The alligator, which once sunned itself under the airport entrance sign, has been living in the area at least 60 years.

Garbage haulers' fines slashed

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners voted to reduce $39,000 in fines against garbage haulers for unapproved handling of garbage to $4,000.

The action Tuesday was opposed and decried by commissioners Bob Sturm and Larry Furlong, who said it would send a message that garbage haulers could get away with violating the terms of their contract with the county.

"Earlier this year, the board unanimously directed staff to pursue, document and seek enforcement to the letter of these violations," said Furlong. "I find it to be unbelievable after all that, that they rolled over on it. It's says you can do what you want and the county commission will let you get away with it."

"The message we send out could be incorrect," said Sturm. "The message that should be sent out is that violations will not be tolerated."

But commissioners Pat Warren and Jennifer Kelley said they were willing to forgive the mistakes, once.

"It was a first-time offense," said Kelley. "I think it won't happen again. If it happens again, we will come down on them hard."

"My intent was not to be punitive, but to establish good grounds for good-faith negotiations," said Warren, who has been critical of service negotiations with the haulers. "The fines we did put on there were to recover any lost revenues and to establish the good understanding that that sort of thing won't be tolerated again."

The fines followed an investigation this summer into the disappearance of a large quantity of yard waste collected from county-franchised customers. After the total quantity of yard waste delivered to the county dump dropped dramatically in March, county Solid Waste garbage sleuths found much of the waste was delivered to AAA Tree Service in Longwood and Oviedo Materials Inc.

The county requires all yard waste to be taken to the county dump near Geneva.

Staff collected AAA receipts that showed Rite Way Sanitation delivered three loads to AAA in March and April and fined them $3,000 for the incidents. Staff documented 35 separate deliveries to AAA and Oviedo Materials in March made by Industrial Waste Service Inc. The company was fined $35,000 for the incidents.

In addition, staff determined that on June 2, an IWS hauler dumped a bin of recyclable materials into his garbage truck and dumped it at the county transfer station in Allamonte Springs along with other garbage destined for the county dump.

The haulers appealed the fines to commissioners who reduced the $35,000 IWS fine to $3,000 and eliminated the $1,000 IWS fine. Commissioners reduced the $3,000 Rite Way fine to $1,000.

Seniors Robert Cowell and Aimee Nichols were among the students at Seminole High School in Sanford who donated blood to the Central Florida Blood Bank yesterday. During the blood drive, 109 students and staff gave a pint during the one day event.

Crawford: Nix free trade pact

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida farmers would get battered by an economic storm worse than Hurricane Andrew if a proposed North American trade pact goes through, Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said.

The hurricane blasted Dade County's $1 billion farming industry, but Crawford told the House Agriculture Committee in Washington, D.C., that the North American Free Trade Agreement could trigger losses worth twice that and eliminate 54,000 jobs.

"Florida farmers can recover from an act of God. They're well practiced at it and know it comes with the territory," said Crawford, whose statement was released in Tallahassee.

"But they don't understand how their own government can intentionally impose this kind of double-whammy, a second storm with just as powerful an economic punch," he said.

The agreement between the U.S., Canada and Mexico would eliminate numerous trade tariffs between the three nations, some immediately and some over the next 15 years.

President Bush has put the agreement on the fast track through Congress, which has until Dec. 17 to hear public comments before the president can sign it. Democratic candidate Bill Clinton has not yet decided whether to support the measure.

Either way, Congress must still pass laws to implement the agreement, and some Democrats have indicated that not every tariff would be removed. A vote on such laws isn't expected until June.

The biggest impact for Florida is production of winter vegetables and fruits, where Mexico is the Sunshine State's main competitor. Crawford said the agreement would give Mexico an advantage because its producers can use free land, employ child labor, pay no minimum wage and use pesticides banned in the U.S.

The U.S. could lose its ability to feed its own people during winter, he added.

Minority Leader Lombard retires

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — House Republicans are scrambling to find a replacement for Minority Leader James Lombard, who dropped his re-election bid a few weeks after GOP lawmakers started an effort to dislodge him.

Lombard, 54, said Wednesday he decided not to seek a fifth two-year House term from Sarasota County to concentrate on his varied business interests. But a movement was already afoot in the House GOP to replace him for 1993-94.

"It was a difficult decision to make, but an objective analysis of my business responsibilities left me no other choice," Lombard said in prepared statement.

Lombard has asked that his name be withdrawn from the District 70 ballot and recommended that local Republicans choose Rep. Dave Thomas — energetic, aggressive leader in the coming legislative sessions.

It was a difficult decision to make, but an objective analysis of my business responsibilities left me no other choice.

-James Lombard

"I just feel everybody wants to make a change," Arnall said Wednesday. "I think I can carry things farther, faster."

Rep. George Albright of Ocala, who is helping Arnall round up support for the leadership job, said House Republicans want a more cohesive caucus, improved campaign fund-raising and better links with GOP senators, who may take control of the Senate following the Nov. 3 election.

"We're doing this for the good of the order," Albright said.

About a month ago, a third lawmaker told Lombard that Arnall and Albright were campaigning to replace him, Albright said. The two have been traveling the state to round up support.

Two other candidates for minority leader are Rep. Sandra Northam of Largo and Rep. R.Z. "Sandy" Safley.

School board firm on price of its land

By VICKI DEBONNIE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The school board of Seminole County decided last night to keep a price tag on a piece of property at the extension of Lake Mary Boulevard that is $150,000 higher than the fair market value.

"The market is depressed right now," Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for business services, said. "The price is down on everything."

Wells said he believes the real estate market is on the rebound. That, he said, will work to the district's advantage.

He noted that the school district is not in any hurry to sell the site which is just over seven acres in size, so they are willing to keep the $950,000 asking price and they will wait until the market improves.

The property is located on the north side of the extension of Lake Mary Boulevard just east of U.S. Highway 17-92.

Wells said that he believes it is in the best interest of the district to wait for a market turn-around so as to get the most for the property.

"It's simple," he said. "We'll just wait and, hopefully, get more later."

The property is too small to meet state specifications for even an elementary school so it can not be used as a school site.

An elementary school must be built on a piece of property no smaller than 15-acres, a middle school needs 30 acres

Student expelled over shooting on campus

SANFORD — Darryl Gordon, the Seminole High School student who was arrested on Sept. 4 for possession of a sawed off shot gun, was expelled by the school board from school for the remainder of this year, for summer school and for all of next year, principal Gretchen Schapker said.

Gordon, 18, is a sophomore. He can not return to any Seminole County school during that time to continue his education.

"It's not a matter of being satisfied with the results," Schapker said. "A message has been sent that we will not tolerate violence on our campuses."

During an argument between his alleged girlfriend and his alleged ex-girlfriend, Gordon brought out the gun, a sawed off double barreled 16-gauge shotgun, police said.

The girlfriend tried to knock it away and shot herself in the knee, police said.

Possession of a short barrel rifle is a felony in the state of Florida punishable by a mandatory five year prison sentence.

"His actions were a blatant disregard for school board policy, state law and student rights," Schapker said. "That is why I asked for such a tough punishment."

Sanford man charged in robbery of jewelry store

Steven Michael Tasker, 20, who told police only that he lived in Sanford, was charged with armed robbery when he was arrested by Altamonte Springs Police last Thursday.

Police said that on Sept. 1, he entered P.J. Abramson, Inc. Jewelry of Winter Park and asked twice to see an engagement ring and then pulled out a revolver and began taking jewelry. Witnesses told police the gun may have been a fake.

The jewelry taken was valued at $183,100.

Following their investigation, police had reasonable cause to charge Tasker and witnesses identified him from pictures.

Mark Anderson, Altamonte Springs Police Department's public information officer, said that he was arrested by that department when the Winter Springs Police asked for their assistance in conducting the police lineup in Altamonte Springs.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $7,000 bond.

Taxing good will

With one exception, there is little to recommend the tax bill now under consideration in the U.S. Senate. It makes only a token provision for urban enterprise zones. It would only marginally expand eligibility for Individual Retirement Accounts. And it includes no reduction whatsoever in capital gains taxes.

The measure would not even be worth mentioning were it not for a major tax simplification provision that has elicited wide support among both Democrats and Republicans. The provision is called depreciation of intangible assets. When one company buys another, it acquires more than bricks and mortar. It also purchases any of a number of intangible assets, which range from a broadcast license to a trade name to water rights to a non-unionized work force.

When the purchase price of an acquired company exceeds the fair market value of not only the bricks and mortar but also its identifiable intangible assets, the leftover amount is considered "good will."

This is where the rub comes in. The Internal Revenue Service allows depreciation of intangible assets, which means that businesses may take yearly deductions over the useful life of the asset. But it permits no depreciation of purchased good will. In 70 percent of cases where companies claim deductions for intangible assets, the IRS disallows them as non-deductible good will.

This poses a major drawback for the emerging biotechnology industry, because biotech firms usually have more intangible assets than do many other kinds of businesses.

The seemingly esoteric dispute between the IRS and business, which has been continuing for nearly 80 years, has created "litigation gridlock" in federal tax courts, according to Fred Goldberg Jr., a former IRS commissioner who now serves as assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy.

In fact, the IRS is now involved in 2,000 separate disputes over intangible assets, with the total amount at stake somewhere in the neighborhood of $10 billion. Each case costs the IRS 6,000 man-hours and $160,000 in other expenses to resolve. This adds up to 12 million man-hours and 320 million tax dollars to clear up the current caseload.

Businesses don't get off cheap either. Aside from the $10 billion that hangs in the balance of decisions by the tax courts, companies face legal expenses of $2.5 billion. Surely this sum could be put to more economically productive uses.

The tax bill would end this costly litigation overnight by allowing depreciation of all intangible assets, including those which the IRS now considers good will. This is such a worthwhile provision that it almost compensates for the measure's other shortcomings.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Will liberal media elect Clinton?

I am told that on "Nightline" recently, Jeff Greenfield pooch-pooched the contention that the media tilt their reportage to favor the more liberal candidate - in this case, Gov. Clinton. If so, Greenfield demanded, how do "people like Bill Rusher, who is forever shouting 'Liberal, liberal, liberal' at the media," explain the fact that the conservative candidate won by a landslide in each of the three most recent presidential elections?

Very simply, Jeff (and my apologies if my informant mistook somebody else for you). The question, as posed, assumes that the media are so powerful that, if they were in fact as liberal as I say they are, neither Reagan nor Bush could have been elected. It overlooks, however, the possibility that the media are every bit as liberal as I say they are, but not quite so powerful as you think they are.

A presidential election is one of those rare important things on which American voters like to make up their own minds with a minimum of kibitzing from the media. Frequently millions of them wait till the World Series is over before thinking very much about the election, and then watch the debates attentively, if there are any. Having sized up the contenders in this direct and highly personal way, they then decide whom to vote for - and it really doesn't matter much what Dan Rather or Judy Woodruff or The New York Times tells them to do.

Most people are well aware of the media's liberal slant, and many wouldn't be caught dead believing anything they are told on television. That is why so many of the media's greatest successes in the slanting business are achieved, not by saying something tentative, but simply by suppressing information unfavorable to their pet candidates and causes.

Not even a rigorous skeptic, after all, can depend on arriving at an independent conclusion if the information needed to reach it is simply suppressed by the media and never reaches his eyes or ears. A good example this year is the real estate agent who roomed with Jennifer Flowers in Texas in the mid-1980s and asserts firmly that she had to move out on three occasions when Clinton came to visit. The major media have simply banned evidence that Flowers is telling the truth.

That sort of manipulation-by-suppression is the liberal media's favorite trick, and accounts for 90 percent of the power they wield. It's a lot of power, because nobody can possibly be fully informed on all of the topics debated in the public arena. Willy-nilly, many people wind up believing what the media tell them on scores of important subjects. Take acid rain, for example: Have you ever heard of the NAPAP report?

Most people are well aware of the media's liberal slant.

But presidential elections are simply too important, and too closely watched, for the liberal media to pull off their usual massive quota of suppressions, distortions and outright lies. Not, Lord knows, that they aren't doing their damndest. Even The New Republic, which is supporting Clinton, has been so embarrassed by the media's performance that it is running a regular feature called "The Clinton Suck-up Watch," which quotes a different journalist every week in the public act of slobbering over Clinton beyond all endurance.

If, however, the American people choose Clinton over Bush this year, as they well may, I will condemn the liberal media's contribution to that disaster but stop well short of crediting them with the victory. Plenty of liberal journalists will secretly congratulate themselves - rather like the Philadelphia evangelist Father Divine, who, when the judge who had jailed him for contempt dropped dead of a heart attack, said solemnly, "I hated to do it." But they will be as wrong about that as they are about most other things.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Pols vs. deficit that ate U.S.

After all the balloons, bus trips, hot air and hoopla, the 1992 campaign has come down to a case of dueling booklets.

Paul Tsongas started it last winter when he issued "A Call to Economic Arms." Bill Clinton answered with a 15-page tract called "Putting People First," which His Policy Wonkness has since expanded to 233 pages. Ross Perot celebrated his withdrawal from the race this summer with a 118-page manifesto called "United We Stand." And now George Bush has countered with a 26-page monograph entitled "Agenda for American Renewal."

You could invest $30 and several hours to evaluate the Clinton, Bush and Perot manuals. Or you can depend on Spear's expert analysis, the summation of which is this: The only one who makes any sense is the little billionaire, and he's been saying he is not running. At least I think that's what he says.

The real problem, which Perot addresses and the others do not, is this: The United States is suffocating from an accumulated debt that now exceeds $4 trillion. We are coughing up about $300 billion in interest to the folks we are borrowing the money from - a third of them foreign investors - and we are piling on more debt at the rate of $300 billion to $400 billion a year. Some experts believe the national debt could reach $6 trillion before the next president finishes his term of office. At that point, every penny collected in income tax would go to service the debt. The United States of America would be bankrupt.

And who among those who would lead us gives a hoot? George Bush? He mouths concern but obviously has precious little. For all of his whining about a spendthrift Congress, he has yet to submit a balanced budget proposal. He has personally presided over a $1 trillion increase in the national debt, and now he asks us to trust him for another four years.

How would Bush mend the error of his ways? He would push for an across-the-board tax cut and depend on "growth" to get us out of the mess we're in. Oh, and another thing: he would let the taxpayers hack away at the deficit by giving them the option of dedicating up to 10 percent of their taxes to reducing it.

Putting it as kindly as possible, this is an idiotic proposal. Every dime the taxpayers earmark for deficit reduction would have to be made up somehow, and the most popular method in the past 12 years has been to borrow it. Lop a dollar off the debt with one hand, borrow a buck with the other. Good, George.

Bill Clinton? He thinks the deficit is a secondary problem. What is needed now, he says, is government "investment." So he is fitting around the country promoting new programs as fast as he can splutter. He wants to create "manufacturing extension centers." He wants national health insurance. He wants community development. He wants a national trust fund that would send everyone to college.

And just as you are about to scream "Where the hell is the money coming from, Bill?" he tells you where the money is coming from. He is going to tax the rich. He is going to improve efficiency. And he is going to let the economy grow out of its doldrums. That and a little fairy dust and the deficit will - poof - be gone.

Consider some figures. If George Bush does all he promises, he will cut the deficit an average of $80 billion a year for the next five years. That still leaves an annual deficit of $240 billion and a debt by 1997 of $5.3 trillion.

If Bill Clinton lives up to his promise of trimming the deficit by half by the end of his first term, the accumulated debt would amount to $5 trillion. Economists who do not believe his rosy economic projections fear that his fondness for spending could drive the national debt to that calamitous figure mentioned above, $6 trillion. Annual interest: $800 billion.

I'm already planning the book I'm going to write at that point. "The Deficit That Ate America."

The United States is suffocating from an accumulated debt.

Candidates: stop ducking the truth

Nobody has said it better than Dan Quayle. The definitive character issue in the making of a president, the veep told NBC News' "Meet the Press," is: "Truthfulness. ... And if you can't tell the truth about a very important issue that you've been asked about time and time again, that does disqualify you, in my judgment, from being commander in chief."

Quayle could have added that this time we should all blame the media - for fully reporting only half of the Great Untruths of Campaign '92:

1. The media has done a grand job of exposing and analyzing the quarter-century-old deceptions of a college student who didn't want to go to Vietnam; also the untruthfulness of a Democratic presidential nominee who's been asked to explain, time and time again this year, his draft craft.

2. But the media has shirked its duty to probe as deeply and fully the newly revealed evidence pointing to the 1987 deceptions of a then-vice president who didn't want to admit all that he'd known and supported about the plan to give Iran arms for hostages - the start of the Iran contretemps that tarnished the Reagan-Bush years.

In fact, the media virtually gave President Bush a free pass ever since the new evidence surfaced in August in a memo outlining the complaint of Reagan Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger to then-Secretary of State George Shultz that Bush's Iran-contra denials lacked truthfulness.

Here's what we now know: In 1987, then-Vice President Bush repeatedly maintained, in an interview with The Washington Post's David Broder, that the only reason he hadn't advised Reagan not to sell arms to Iran was because he'd never heard anyone raise strong objections in any meeting he attended. "If I'd have sat there and heard George Shultz and Cap express it [opposition] strongly," Bush said, "maybe I would have had a stronger view. But when you don't know something, it's hard to react. ... We were not in the loop." Broder later wrote in a column that he'd asked, not once but three times, whether Bush was aware of the objections of Weinberger and Shultz; each time, Bush answered that he hadn't attended the key meeting of Dec. 7, 1985.

But we now know that Bush did attend other meetings where Weinberger and Shultz pressed their objections. And we now know that the day after that Post article appeared, Weinberger complained to Shultz about Bush's denials. According to a handwritten note Shultz dictated to an aide after an Aug. 7, 1987, phone conversation with Weinberger, the then-defense secretary said Bush's denial was "terrible," and that Bush had heard their opposition but supported the "other side" - those who favored the arms for hostages deal. "Why did he say that," Shultz quoted Weinberger as asking about Bush's interview denial.

In the one month since the memo of the Weinberger-Shultz conversation surfaced in a Washington court case, every news organization has run a dozen or more stories (news reports and rehashings) about Bill Clinton's efforts to avoid the draft. When Clinton finally stopped answering reporters' shouted questions, even his "cold shoulder" became news.

Meanwhile, Bush suffered no similar slings and arrows - no new reporting, old rehashing, persistent questioning. (Maybe the media is indeed biased - pro Bush/Quayle.)

This time we should all blame the media.

Senate test set for today on Bush's family bill veto

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Supporters of a family leave bill are dismissing President Bush's tax-credit alternative as a political ruse and moving to put his veto to an immediate test in the Senate.

"With one swipe of the veto pen, the president isolated himself," said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., citing polls showing public support for the idea of guaranteed job-protected leave in family emergencies.

Senate Democrats scheduled an override vote this morning, barely 36 hours after Bush vetoed the bill.

They need a two-thirds majority; Dodd said that he expects to have 67 or 68 votes if he can keep all his supporters in line. That would be just enough to send the issue to the House — and would mark the first time in Bush's presidency the Senate has voted to overrule his veto pen.

"We're very hopeful that we'll be able to override the president's veto here ... and in the House, if we're able to build some momentum," Dodd said. "It's a much more difficult mountain to climb in the House."

Even if they succeed, supporters and opponents in the House predicted Bush would again prevail there, advancing his perfect record to 32 vetoes without an override.

"We'll have sufficient votes," said Rep. William

R. Goodling, R-Pa., the opposition floor leader.

The bill would require businesses with more than 50 workers to provide up to 12 weeks a year of unpaid leave for workers who have a new child or must care for an ill family member. Exceptions written into the bill to gain conservative support would have exempted about half the nation's work force, including employees of small companies.

Bush's veto, while expected, gave Democrats a chance to accuse Republicans of empty rhetoric on family values. Both presidential nominee Bill Clinton and his running mate, Tennessee Sen. Al Gore, did just that.

Congressional Republicans pressed Bush's tax-credit alternative, which was proposed only after the other bill had been sent to the White House. It would provide $500 million a year in tax credits to businesses who voluntarily provide unpaid leave to workers in family emergencies.

Some Republican sponsors acknowledged there was little chance that Congress, in its waning weeks, would embrace Bush's alternative to the family leave bill. Still, they used it as a political defense.

"I'm not too optimistic about this," Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, acknowledged at a news conference where Republicans touted their alternative. "I do believe, however, in the next Congress we will have a spirited debate."

It was the second time in three years that Bush has vetoed a family and medical leave bill.

Great Debate debate continues

By JOHN KING
AP News Analysis

TIFTON — Conventional wisdom says challenger Bill Clinton needs presidential debates more than President Bush does, but this has been far from a conventional political year.

Clinton leads in the polls, so his camp is saying it wants debates but doesn't dread the prospect of not having any.

"We want debates and think the American people want and deserve them but if the Bush people continue to avoid the process, there may well not be any," Clinton campaign director Bruce Lindsey said Wednesday.

Bush is trailing and keeps saying he will debate — but not on Clinton's terms.

"Yes, I want a debate," Bush said Wednesday in Pennsylvania. "I want a debate over ideas and I will stand on my record and I won't let that Arkansas governor run away from his record, either."

Cut through all the finger-pointing and both sides say they expect debates — eventually.

But there's no resolution in sight.

It's a debate that's been raging for weeks now, full of the quadrennial charges that the other guy is afraid to debate. Three times, Clinton supporters have even gone to Bush events in chicken suits to make their point.

The bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates has canceled two debates, one last Tuesday in Michigan and one next week in Kentucky for lack of agreement by the candidates.

Bush won't accept commission recommendations for a single-moderator format that would be far less predictable than having a panel of journalists ask the questions.

The commission wants to bring both sides together to discuss the format feud, but the Bush campaign said it wants nothing to do with the commission, period, even though it sponsored the 1988 debates. The Clinton camp says it will deal only through the commission.

"Who decided the commission was the god of debates?" Bush campaign political director Mary Matalin said this week.

Therein lies the biggest immediate obstacle to resolving the debate over debates.

Clinton says Bush is afraid to discuss his economic record in a free-wheeling format. On Wednesday, Clinton upped the ante, saying he was "ready, willing and able" to debate and challenged Bush to make his recent criticisms of Clinton's Arkansas record in person.

"It's interesting that Mr. Bush does want to go negative but he didn't want to go negative head to head, face to face, in a debate format where I can answer him," Clinton said as he campaigned in Georgia.

Bush says Clinton is the one ducking, citing the Democrat's refusal to meet with his campaign to discuss debates, with no involvement from the commission.

Important Telephone Dialing Change

Starting today, you must dial 0 or 1 + the area code and then the number you're calling, whenever you make a long distance call within your area code. When you dial a long distance call within your area code, follow this example.

Dial 0 or 1 + Your Area Code + 123-1234

If you have long distance numbers programmed into any of the following services or equipment, you need to reprogram them now. Services or equipment could include: FAX machines, Speed Dialing, Call Forwarding, Automatic Dialers, Modems, PBX Systems, Alarm Systems or Programmable Telephone Sets.

Dialing the area code on all long distance calls will make more than a million new numbers available. This will provide new numbers for Florida's increasing residential and business demands.

So remember, you must include the area code when making all long distance calls and you need to reprogram your communications services and equipment today.

MCI competes with AT&T videophone

By MIKE BUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The videophone war has begun.

MCI Communications Corp. announced Wednesday that it will soon market a videophone to compete with one now on sale from AT&T.

Both provide small television pictures of the people at each end of a conversation. But users of the AT&T Videophone 2500 won't be able to call an MCI VideoPhone user or vice versa.

The phones are incompatible with each other. The MCI phone is also incompatible with audio-only models.

Each company sees its product as the one that should become the international standard.

"When we announced our product in January, we said we were willing — and still are — to license our technology," said Jim McGann of AT&T. "If people want to build to our technology, they simply get in touch with us."

He said the two phone systems use different video and voice compression systems.

MCI will begin selling its phone, made by British manufacturer GEC-Marconi, early next year to MCI customers and later will provide it for the retail market, said Jerry Taylor, MCI president of consumer markets.

It is simple to operate, says Taylor. "Just place a regular call and activate the video."

Same for AT&T's phone. Both are about the size of a regular phone, plug into standard telephone and power outlets and cost the same to make long distance calls as audio-only models.

They both transmit color pictures and allow callers and listeners to interact simultaneously. Neither, however, produces a picture as clear as broadcast or cable television because of the limitations of telephone wiring.

Andrew Moyler, business manager for GEC-Marconi, said his company has conducted experiments in England with the deaf, who, he said, found the phone effective for reading lips and communicating through sign language.

The MCI phone will sell for about $750 while AT&T is selling its for $1,499 at phone centers nationwide.

U.S. spends average on education

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States is being outspent by a dozen other nations on education, according to a survey of the 24 wealthiest democracies.

Denmark and Finland topped the list, which ranked countries by the percentage of national wealth spent on education. On this basis, the United States finished 13th; Canada was fourth; the United Kingdom 18th; Germany 18th; and Japan 20th.

The survey was released Wednesday by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, an intergovernmental agency in Paris that monitors the world's economies.

The OECD report, based on 1988 data, is the first to compare education systems among industrialized nations.

The County Services Building is located at 1101 E. First Street, Sanford. This test is open to the press and the public.

For additional information contact Sandy Goard, Supervisor of Elections, at 321-1130, extension 7707.

Second quarter growth anemic

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumer caution held economic growth in the April-June quarter to an anemic 1.5 percent annual rate, the government said today in its latest estimate of the gross domestic product.

Today's Commerce Department report on the increase in the seasonally adjusted total of all goods and services produced in the United States was a shade better than the 1.4 percent rate estimated a month ago.

Still, the change was too slight to alter economists' views about the continuing weakness of the economy, despite the fifth consecutive quarter of expansion following the actual shrinkage of output in 1990-91.

"Nothing has really changed to alter the basic landscape and that is we're in an economy that is growing too slowly for its own good," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

until service is improved. Commissioner Larry Furlong voted against the increase, saying it should be lower to match expense increases, not subsidize a reduced demand for garbage collection.

While the $307.6 million won't buy residents much chrome, it will pay to keep the engine of county government running smoothly with some upgrades.

The budget includes an appropriation to hire 12 additional firefighters to complete the buildup of county fire engine crews to three firefighters per engine. The county began the buildup two years ago. In addition, six firefighters will be hired to staff a new station near Chuluota.

The budget also includes about $57 million in spending for new road improvement projects, including the widening of Sanford Avenue between Airport and Lake Mary Boulevards.

The budget also includes the hiring of one additional librarian for the Northwest Branch Library near Lake Mary.

The budget is about 9 percent higher than last year's $283 million budget. And it is about $74 million higher than the $233.6 million spending plan unveiled by County Manager Ron Rabun this summer. The budget takes effect Oct. 1 and covers the period to Sept. 30, 1993. Most of the $74 million increase, $68.4 million, represents the inclusion of capital projects and other spending that won't be completed before the end of the current fiscal year, Sept. 30. The money for the projects, appropriated last year or before, will be added to the 1992-1993 budget tonight. The bulk of the remainder of the increase represents accounting adjustments to funds.

said, "which would save us $11,000 in salaries. But they didn't say which one. They could cut some other clerk and end up saving only $8,000 because the salary ranges are different."

He added, "When I look at just that one point, I think there must be some shenanigans going on. Also, I think it's best to inform the individual employees well in advance, to give them a better opportunity to seek other employment. It's only fair to them."

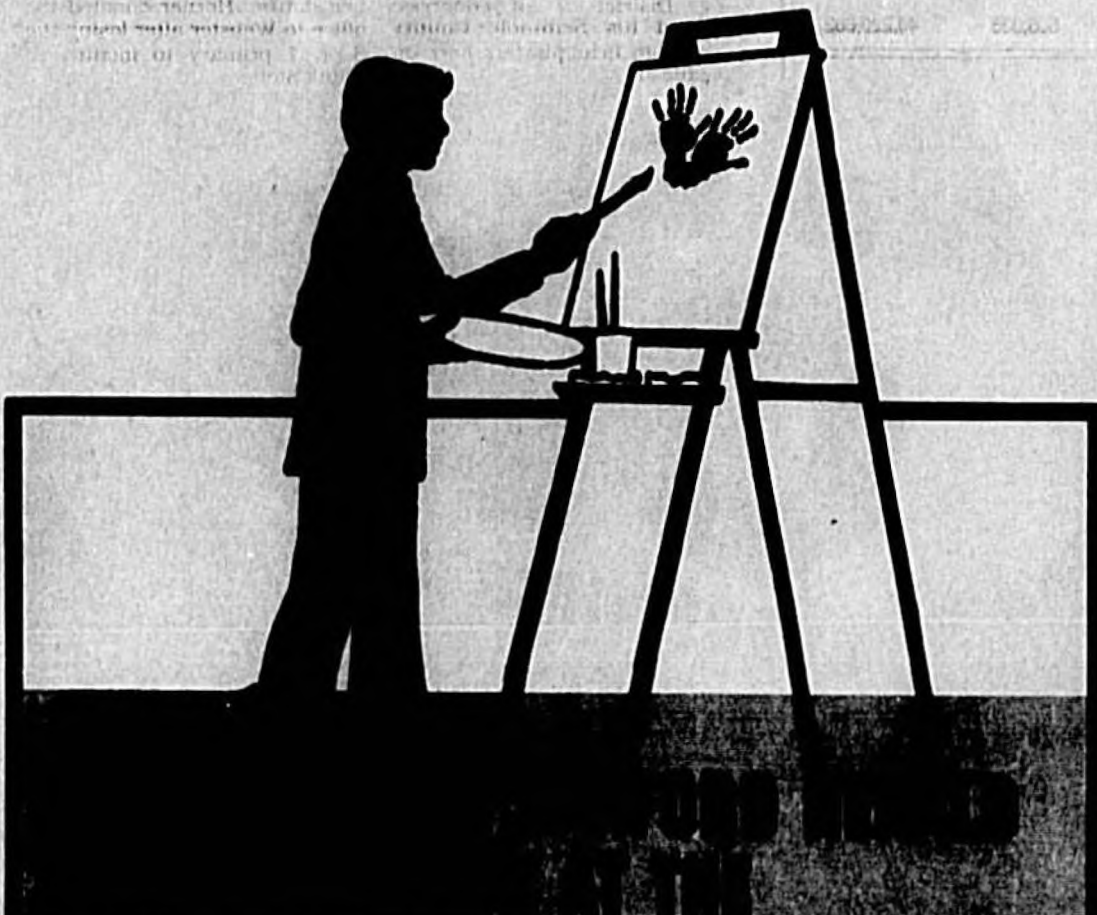

"Another problem I have," he said, "is that they gave a five percent pay raise to employees, but refused to put a salary cap of $24,000 on it as I suggested." The Commission voted to cap the salaries at $30,000. "Then there's the matter of city cars, mostly police vehicles," he said, "which are driven home at night. Twenty-one of them go off every night, and I think this is a waste of money for upkeep and maintenance on them that the citizens shouldn't be forced to pay for."

A portion of the money will be spent for the runoff election next week, about $53,000, and another $50,000 will be spent to help finance the proposed Orlando Area Sports Commission.

The 5.12 millage rate however, received no problems. It is at the same level as Longwood has had for this present year. With the increase in population and property evaluation, the rate is expected to generate $2,760,429 in revenues for the coming year, $108,683 more than this year.

With 5.12 adopted as the millage rate, taxes paid by Longwood homeowners will remain at the same level.

Sergeant suspended by Sheriff Eslinger

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Seminole County sheriff's sergeant has been suspended and may be the subject of an internal investigation.

Sgt. Ron Gilbert, 43, a 17-year veteran of the sheriff's office, who wrote a letter to Gov. Lawton Chiles in April criticizing sheriff's and state attorney's handling of CCIB brutality allegations, was suspended indefinitely Monday.

Sheriff Don Eslinger confirmed the suspension on Wednesday but refused to give the reason, saying it was an "administrative matter."

When asked why he could not respond, Eslinger cited Florida law 112, which calls for the secrecy of investigations of law enforcement officers. Eslinger said Gilbert would remain suspended with pay until the matter is concluded.

Gilbert declined comment this morning.

Eslinger denied the suspension was related to Gilbert's April 8 letter to Chiles, which was signed with Sgt. Mike Messer. The letter criticized State Attorney Norm Wolfinger's response to an investigation of allegations of brutality against the City County Investigative Bureau as "lackadaisical."

The sergeants also wrote sheriff's office officials intimidated sheriff's witnesses from answering questions by state investigators.

Eslinger said the suspension was unrelated to the brutality investigation or the letter.

"There's no link at all," said Eslinger. "Not even a parallel."

Gilbert becomes the second sheriff's office witness who testified in June before a grand jury investigating allegations of brutality in the City County Investigative Bureau who has had problems. The grand jury decided the allegations were either unfounded or unprovable.

Dply. Stan Romanowski resigned last Friday rather than face possible disciplinary action for an alleged brutality incident.

Eslinger said the matters were unrelated and denied his actions were in retribution for the officer's actions during the investigation.

"Absolutely not," he said.

Gilbert and Messer wrote Chiles, saying sheriff's officials "openly intimidated" prospective witnesses by telling them they didn't have to respond to investigator's questions. Afterwards, the witnesses were asked what responses they gave to questioning, the letter states.

Gilbert and Messer also wrote State Attorney Norm Wolfinger betrayed a promised anonymity by telling Eslinger Messer had testified against him.

Dear Cindy,

When we first discussed how to best advertise our business, Quality Lawn-Home Improvements, my partner Carl was skeptical about using the Sanford Herald. I'm happy to say that he is very pleasantly surprised! He can't believe that 80% of our phone calls are from the Herald Classified 'Let A Specialist Do It' Business Service Directory. He expected to get much more business from our ad in the other daily newspaper, but it's the other way around! Carl's now a definite believer in the Sanford Herald! And so am I! Group pushes business, school interaction

By VICKI BOGDANER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Foundation for the Advancement of our Community Through Schools (FACTS) has elected their new board of directors for the 1992-93 school year.

FACTS was incorporated in 1986 to help the school district enhance the work done in the classroom by teachers. It offers added financial assistance in the form of mini grants to pay for special projects that are new or innovative.

The group has recognized outstanding achievement among teachers with financial support of the Teacher of the Year program in addition to offering the mini-grants.

"I believe we have good teachers in Seminole County," Ernie Cavallaro, chairman of the FACTS organization said. "We need to continue to show them we have funds available for the teachers and the students."

FACTS has taken an active role in helping the district recognize and recruit the highest quality teachers available.

Along with Cavallaro, new board members are: David Kresge, president; Paul Sneed Jr., vice president; Nancy Wheeler, secretary and Bill O'Toole, treasurer.

The group has been working for six years to encourage and increase business and civic involvement in the school system. Their membership rolls have grown greatly over that time to include members from the broad spectrum of Seminole County-based businesses.

"The Board of Directors of FACTS recognizes that the quality of life in our community depends directly on the quality of our schools," Cavallaro said.

FACTS believes that the public school system must be ranked at the top of the list of organizations and agencies that are deserving of public support.

He said that the non-profit organization works in cooperation with the school board on all of its fundraising efforts.

"We are all working together to make this a better community through the schools," Cavallaro said. "We want to make sure that everyone in the community is aware of FACTS."

Event helps obtain toys for area kids

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It's "Local Yokels" night tomorrow. It's an event to obtain more toys for local area youngsters' holiday gifts.

The party will be presented at Christo's Classics restaurant, 107 W. First Street in downtown Sanford. Restaurant owner Chris Cranias said, "We have an added name to the event, we're calling it the 'Jimi Brooks Spirit for Kids Toy Drive.'"

Brooks, who died Aug. 22, had been actively involved in the project. Toys were distributed to needy children through his and his wife, Meta's, daycare and pre-school, First Impressions Early Childhood Development Center. Meta still operates the center.

Distribution will be expanded this year.

"With the toys drive we had in July," Cranias said, "we ended up with 15 large boxes of toys, but we hope to double that amount because we ran out last year, and we don't want to disappoint any of the children at the center and other places this year."

Cranias added, "The best thing about this drive is that the toys go to children right here in the Sanford area. These are children of working mothers, who might not have anything else under their tree this year."

Although other toy drives are planned, "We are going all out on this one," said Cranias. "We will even have an internationally unknown band, with Gene and Jay, providing entertainment along a number of special guests and entertainers that will provide entertainment for everyone."

Persons attending the event will be asked to donate an unwrapped gift for free admission. The party will have door prizes, food and beverages available.

There is no specific starting time for the "Local Yokels" night. "Although we generally start at 7 p.m.," Cranias said, "Just come when you can. But the important part is to remember to bring those gifts and help continue the Jimi Brooks spirit."

Tribe J.V. tops Mainland

SANFORD — Combining plenty of defense with just enough offense, the Seminole High School junior varsity football team registered a 12-8 win over Mainland Wednesday night at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

Isiah Barnes gave Seminole a 6-0 lead when he scored on a 32-yard pass play from Cliff Branch on the Tribe's first offensive series.

Mainland tied the score in the second quarter when a Buccaneer linebacker intercepted a pass and returned it 18 yards for a touchdown.

Toreon Foster broke the tie with a three-yard touchdown run with 4:30 left in the game.

Foster finished with 53 yards on four carries while Branch completed nine of 13 passes for 123 yards and rushed seven times for 96 yards.

Leading an outstanding effort by the Tribe defense were John Davis (six unassisted tackles, three assists), Terrance McMillan (eight solos and a couple of assists), nose guard Jamie Hampton, Allan Harris and DeAndre Jones (interception).

Now 2-0, the Seminole junior varsity will play again next Thursday at Lake Howell.

Blowouts at Candyland

LONGWOOD — All three games in the Longwood Recreation Department's women's slowpitch softball league at Candyland Park Wednesday night were won by at least 14 runs.

In the first game, Kerrymana ripped Grizzlies 21-3. Suzanne's Oyster Reef Pub then thumped Texaco 19-1 before Crown Office Products did the same, whipping Texaco 15-1.

Next week, Kerrymana plays Suzanne Oyster Reef at 6:30 p.m., Grizzlies faces Crown Office Products in the 7:30 p.m. game before Texaco takes on Grizzlies at 8:30 p.m.

TAMPA — Vitali Karamnov broke a 4-4 tie early in the third period to give St. Louis a 6-4 NHL exhibition victory Wednesday night over Tampa Bay in a historic game featuring a woman goaltender.

The loss was the first in four preseason games for the expansion Lightning, which made NHL history by starting goaltender Manon Rheume, the first woman to play a game in one of the four major pro sports.

The Blues scored twice in the first period against Rheume, who had seven saves.

Tampa Bay, which defeated the Blues 6-3 Tuesday night, outshot the Blues 32-23. Rob Zamuner, John Tucker, Rob Ramage and Brian Bradley had goals for the expansion Lightning.

Roberts ties hit record

LOS ANGELES — Rip Roberts tied the National League record with his 10th consecutive hit, then grounded out against Pedro Astacio on Wednesday night to end his streak in the Cincinnati Reds' game against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Roberts became the eighth player to tie a record first set by Ed Delahanty of Philadelphia on July 13-14, 1897. It was last accomplished by the Reds' Woody Williams in September 1943.

The major-league record of 12 straight hits was set by Boston's Pinky Higgins in 1938 and matched by Detroit's Walt Dropo in 1952.

Greyhounds post first win ever over Lake Mary

After four years of frustration, Tim Ruckdeschel (in white jersey) and the Lyman Greyhounds posted their first boys' volleyball win over (an Saunders) (No. 20), David Sciacani (No. 25) and the rest of the Lake Mary Rams.

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — It's time for a little comeuppance.

The king of the hill in boys' volleyball since they started playing the sport at Seminole County high schools five years ago, the Lake Mary Rams completed the worst week in their history Wednesday night.

It began last Thursday, when defending Volleyfest champion Kissimmee-Ocoola topped Lake Mary 19-17, 8-15, 15-8. On Monday, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks swept Lake Mary, 15-3, 15-6. It was West Orange's turn on Tuesday, beating the Rams 15-9, 15-13.

Then came the Lyman Greyhounds.

On Wednesday night, Lyman registered its first ever win over the Rams in boys' volleyball, sweeping to a 15-10, 15-9 victory that extended Lake Mary's losing streak to four matches. During that stretch, the Rams (1-5) have won just one game in nine.

"We've come close before, but we're never beaten them before," said Lyman coach Norm Ready. "We played pretty well. We had our moments. We had some ups and downs."

Ready was understandably concerned going into Wednesday's night match. Not only were his Greyhounds trying to throw off a four-year losing streak to Lake Mary, they were without center blocker Matt Wolgemuth, who is sidelined with a muscle pull in his back.

But the rest of the Greyhounds pulled together and shouldered the load.

"Our passing was better tonight from the back row," Ready said. "Brian Dangel and Danny McAvoy came up with some real big digs for us on defense. Lake Mary was hitting the ball well at the net, but we were able to come up with the digs and the saves.

"We did a decent job of blocking at the net in the second game. We also ran our offense well in the second game. We had some people step up to help out (Tim) Ruckdeschel (Lyman's primary hitter) and that made a real difference."

James Rouston, who filled Wolgemuth's spot in the Greyhound rotation opposite Ruckdeschel, came through with nine kills. Lyman also had to find someone to handle Wolgemuth's chores as the No. 1 server. That responsibility fell to Rafael Franquet, who made only one service error all night.

"That was a big plus, Rafael being able to come through right there," Ready said. "And Joel Dewberry did a fantastic job setting. He ended up with 11 assists."

Considering how well the Greyhounds responded to the challenge Wednesday night, Ready is looking forward to adding Wolgemuth to that mix and seeing what his team is capable of.

"We're looking forward to Wolgemuth returning," Ready said. "He'll be able to start back practicing on Monday, but we play Monday. The doctor wants him to have one day's practice before he plays again."

"He strained muscle in the Seminole match. He made a block and stretched something in his back, so he's had to sit out a little while."

In the junior varsity contest, Lake Mary swept Lyman 15-9, 15-13. According to Ready, the Greyhound junior varsity squandered a 12-3 lead in the second game.

Both teams are off until next Monday, when they will resume their Seminole Athletic Conference schedules. Lake Mary will host Seminole while Lyman will be at home versus Lake Brantley.

Despite triple play, Bamboo Cafe rallies

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Now there's something you don't see every day.

Trailing Crazy Wings-Lambert Erectors 9-4 when they came to bat in the bottom of the fifth inning of their Sanford Recreation men's slowpitch softball league game at Chase Park Wednesday night, Bamboo Cafe strung together five straight hits to score three runs and put runners at first and second base.

Bill Warnock then hit into an inverted triple play, the Crazy Wings third baseman holding the ball and stepping on third for the force out before throwing to first to retire Warnock. The first baseman then threw to the shortstop, who relayed the ball to the second baseman to tag the runner.

Warnock later redeemed himself, delivering a two-run single in the bottom of the seventh inning to score Arnie Vanzyl (the runner forced at third base) and Dravin Towery (who was tagged out rounding second on the triple play) and give Bamboo Cafe a 10-9 come-from-behind win over Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors.

In the second game, the Touchdown Pub topped Beer: 30 8-5. Heilig Meyers Furniture then picked up a forfeit win over DeLand Nissan.

Bamboo Cafe and Heilig Meyers share first place at 3-0. The Touchdown Pub (2-1) is third ahead of Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors (1-2) and Beer: 30 and DeLand Nissan (both 0-3).

Next week, Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors plays Beer: 30 at 6:30 p.m., DeLand Nissan faces the Bamboo Cafe in the 7:30 p.m. game before Heilig Meyers takes on the Touchdown Pub in the 8:30 p.m. nightcap.

Frisco group to see Giants' financial records

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The group that wants to keep the Giants from leaving San Francisco guaranteed Wednesday it wouldn't sue Major League Baseball, a step that enables it to receive the team's financial records.

Spencer Stolpen, the chief aide to group head George Shinn, said the indemnification papers were sent Wednesday to the National League. Giants owner Bob Lurie has said NL president Bill White would direct him to release the team's financial records to Shinn's group after the indemnification was received.

White could not be reached for comment, but NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney said "the indemnifications are in and we will proceed with our business."

Lurie, unhappy with cold and windy Candlestick Park and rebuffed four times by the region's voters in attempts to build a publicly financed stadium, announced Aug. 7 he had signed an agreement in principle to sell the Giants to a Florida group headed by Vincent J. Naimoli.

Under that plan, the Giants would move to the Florida Suncoast Dome in St. Petersburg for the 1993 season. Any sale would have to be approved by 10 of 14 National League owners and eight of 14 American League owners.

Stolpen said he didn't know how long it would take to present a bid once the group receives the financial records.

"It depends on what we see and how long it takes to go through it," Stolpen said. "We can't arbitrarily decide until we see what they are."

Lurie's contract with the Florida group prohibits him from considering any other offers while the deal awaits approval. White, however, said Sept. 9 that he would accept the local group's offer and present it to owners for consideration.

Football agent Leigh Steinberg, who helped form the group head by Shinn, owner of the NBA's Charlotte Hornets, said the process toward a counteroffer remained on track. The city of San Francisco last week decided to defend the investors against lawsuits and pay any damages.

"Then we're in the process of trying to structure the most effective offer for keeping the Giants in San Francisco," Steinberg said. "Hopefully, that takes place in the next week to 10 days."

Baseball owners have said privately that they do not think a vote will take place until after the World Series.

U.S. Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., accused baseball officials of trying to block the Giants' move and said he would do everything he could to revoke the baseball's antitrust exemption, granted in a 1922 U.S. Supreme Court decision. Mack is a member of a Senate subcommittee that intends to hold hearings next week on baseball's exemption.

In a statement released Tuesday, Mack said he thought baseball officials made "a 180-degree turn" by letting San Francisco make a counteroffer after Lurie was told he was free to explore other offers.

The Central Florida Quilters Guild will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday at the Sanford Agriculture Center, not the Chamber of Commerce as usual.

September will be the 10th birthday party with cake and punch being served. Judith Montano will be the guest lecturer with crazy quilt garments, art pieces and slides being shown. Guests and non-card-carrying members will be charged $2. Card-carrying guild members will be admitted free.

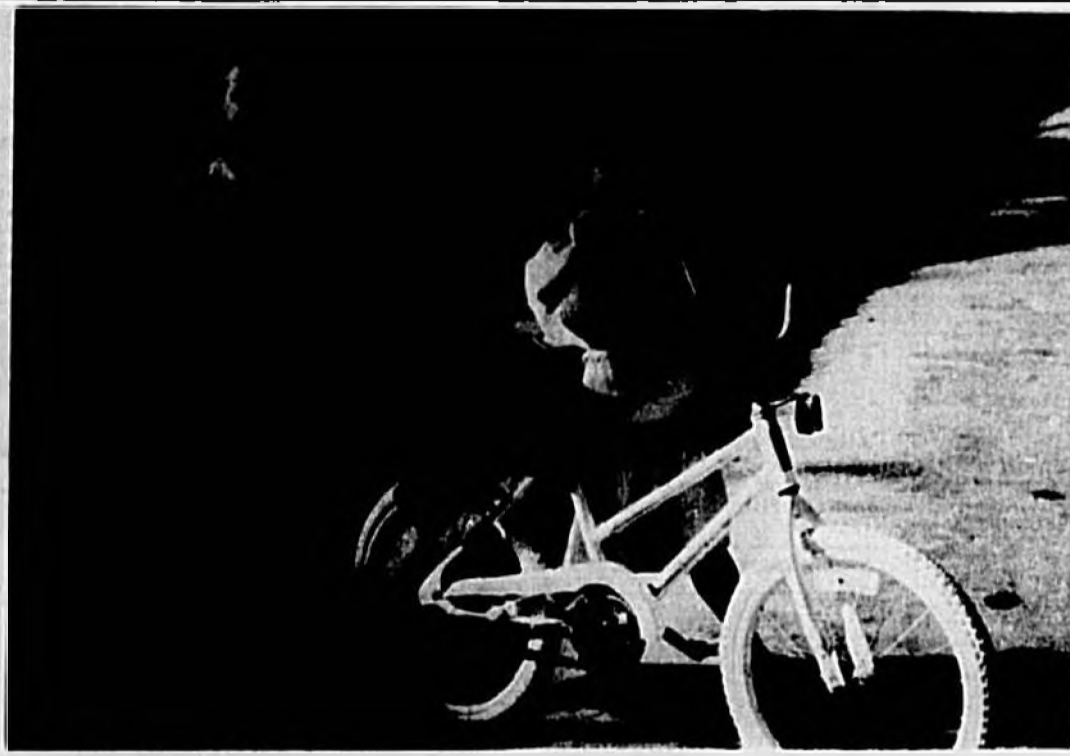

Guild membership encompasses the entire Central Florida area including Seminole, Osceola, Orange, Lake, Volusia and Brevard counties.

Al-anon gathers

If you know, or live with an alcoholic, there is help. Al-anon is an anonymous, non-profit organization, open to anyone who is a relative or friend of an alcoholic.

Serenity Won Al-anon meets each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, (Thursday non-smoking) evening at 8 p.m. Meetings are held in the back room of the Sahara Club, 2857 South Sanford Ave., Sanford.

For additional meeting times and locations in the Central Florida area, or for more information, call 332-4122.

Kind benefactor

Carolyn Gratiel, Sanford, got a special birthday surprise recently. In earlier publicity, Carolyn had been featured on her bicycle, which had no tires. A person who wishes to remain nameless presented Carolyn with a new bike for her birthday. Her twin brother, Clark, is very happy for her.

Kissing among friends arouses husband's ire

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for more than 20 years and have been very close. The past five years we have been good friends with another married couple. They are "huggers and kissers" - I am not. The past year my wife has been doing a lot of "hugging and kissing" (on the cheek) with this couple.

Recently, my wife reached to grab his arm to kiss him goodbye, and he turned to give her a full kiss on the mouth. She hung onto his arm, standing on her toes to receive.

I do not think a man should be kissing another man's wife this way. My wife says it was "just a kiss." I say he's out of line. She defended him. She has been doing some flirting with him as well.

Her conduct is a dramatic change from our first 20 years of marriage. Do you think this kissing is proper under these circumstances?

Please print your answer. She reads you faithfully.

EDDIE IN SUMMER, WASH.

DEAR EDDIE: If the displays of affection between this man and your wife have made you uncomfortable, then both of them, out of respect for your feelings, should put an end to the kissing. Although the flirting may be "innocent," if it threatens the spouse, then it threatens the relationship and the marriage, and it's wrong. And you should tell your wife and friend how you feel about it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a response for "Burned Up in San Diego," who complained because her daughter-in-law fills the bathtub with water, takes a bath, gives her 2-year-old daughter a bath in the same water, then tells her 11-year-old son to bathe in it. Doesn't she have more important things to worry about?

ADVICE

People in Third World countries bathe with cattle and other livestock in muddy rivers that are also used as sewers. And "Burned Up" is complaining because her two grandchildren are forced to take a bath in recycled bathwater! Whew!

SOMEONE WHO HAS WORSE THINGS TO WORRY ABOUT IN SARASOO, Wis.

DEAR ABBY: Do you have a Catholic etiquette authority who can solve my dilemma?

My daughter has converted to Catholicism and is soon to be married in the Catholic Church. She wants me - her mother - to walk her down the aisle. Her father is deceased.

I have chosen a short frock, which I had planned to wear with hat and gloves, but everyone I mention this to tells me that a hat and gloves will look out of date and silly. What do you think?

KIND OF FRISBY MOM

DEAR MOM: I agree with your friends. And if you haven't already bought a dress for this occasion, please consider a long one. Also, tell your daughter that Abby wishes her and her beloved a lifetime of happiness.

DEAR ABBY: Every year, around Labor Day, my mother and mother-in-law start dropping hints about planning

Thanksgiving and Christmas. With siblings and step-families all over the United States and Europe, gift-buying and the logistics of visiting become stressful.

Today, my husband and I decided early to stay home, create our own traditions, and make donations to the Red Cross and Salvation Army to help replenish funds depleted by Hurricane Andrew.

Perhaps other families who experience similar problems around the holidays would benefit by telling relatives now that they're staying home and giving real gifts. Sign me...

LIZ BARRIS IN EDNA

DEAR LIZ: Thanks for a timely idea. Readers, listen to Liz!

DEAR ABBY: I was going out with this guy a few months ago. I just saw him again recently, and he said he couldn't get over how good I looked.

He gave me his new telephone number. I called him a couple of times and we talked, and he seemed interested in seeing me.

I just now called him again and his phone has been disconnected!

I don't know how to get in touch with him. I know his address, but he also knows mine. I like him a lot and think of him constantly. What should I do?

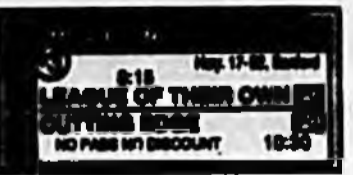

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: You should do nothing, and consider yourself lucky. If he calls you - or shows up at your house with a reasonable explanation - listen; but don't pin your hopes on a guy who had his phone disconnected and didn't bother to let you know.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for the mother who wanted to conserve water by reusing the bath water. But if it's such a great idea, I think Mother should volunteer to take the last bath.

FAITHFUL TUCSON READER

(Perhaps? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 68445, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

McKibbin, president-elect; Tony Durrum, president; Jim Schnell, lieutenant governor and Eddie Bankark, outgoing president.

Medicine will help control fibrillation

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been diagnosed with atrial fibrillation. Would you discuss this heart problem and indicate how it is treated?
DEAR READER: The healthy heart beats rhythmically because of tiny electrical impulses that begin in the sinoatrial node (the natural pacemaker), spread through the muscles of the low-pressure chambers (atria), then sweep in a wave through the muscles of the high-pressure chambers (ventricles). The entire chain of events is wonderfully coordinated and leads to muscle contractions (first the atria, then the ventricles) that pump blood into the circulation. This cycle is repeated billions of times during a person's life.

Any electrical system can develop problems, and the heart's conduction is no exception. One of these malfunctions is called atrial fibrillation. In this affliction, multiple electrical impulses are generated within the muscles of the atria. These minute charges compete with the normal pacemaker and eventually over-ride it, causing an irregular, often rapid pulse rate.

Atrial fibrillation is not, by itself, a particularly hazardous condition; however, the efficiency of the heartbeat is compromised. Therefore, people with this irregularity may have more trouble exercising. Also, this problem is confined almost exclusively to older adults because it usually reflects either arteriosclerotic heart disease or valve damage, as may occur from rheumatic fever.

The purpose of therapy is either to slow the pulse or to change the fibrillation back to the normal rhythm. Older, sedentary individuals with long-standing fibrillation usually fare better with simple pulse-rate control, using digitalis and other drugs. Other patients can be given treatment with medicine or electric shocks to return the heart to normal rhythm. This is called cardioversion. In the presence of atrial fibrillation, blood clots can form in the atrial chambers.

Inflation affects us all. As Henry Youngman pointed out: "Americans are getting stronger. Twenty years ago, it took two people to carry 10 dollars' worth of groceries. Today, a 5-year-old can do it."

Deflation has hit high-card points. To open the bidding, few people wait for 13 points these days. For most, 12 is ample, and 11 satisfies some, particularly the English.

On today's deal, I agree with North's one-club bid. He has two aces, which are undervalued at four points each, a strong suit to show and good intermediates. Also, without the opening bid, North-South might not have reached the excellent slam.

After West led the heart king, South saw that he was facing potential losers in both red suits.

By Phillip Alder

Rather than rely on a lot of luck in diamonds, declarer preferred to put dummy's club spots to good use.

After winning with the heart ace, declarer drew two rounds of trumps. Next he led the club nine to dummy's ace and continued with the club jack. When East played low, South discarded his heart loser. West won with the queen and tried to cash the heart queen, but declarer ruffed. Now South led a diamond to dummy's ace and continued with the club 10. East played low again but declarer threw the diamond eight. When West followed with a low club, South claimed. He ruffed out the club king, crossed to dummy with a trump and discarded the diamond 10 on the club eight.

The combined loser-on-loser play and ruffing finesse had ridden to the rescue again.
