SHA pay increases must wait

SANFORD — Discussion of salary increases for Sanford Housing Authority staff will have to wait until the agency's Nov. 16 regular meeting following the board of commissioners' failure to reach a quorum last night.

Linda Williams, SHA interim executive director, has recommended the board approve a five-percent cost of living adjustment for 17 authority employees before Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. The previous board voted to freeze salaries in March after voting to switch to private management.

Commissioners Teri Buratti, J. Wain Cummings and Alberta Dettreville did not attend the SHA special meeting last night.

School growth explodes

Educators want tax increase to pay for 27,000 new pupils

By VIKKI BOGANNON
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — It's going to cost about a half-billion dollars to build public schools during the next eight years to accommodate an estimated 27,000 new students because of growth all over Seminole County. The public will be asked to approve the money to build 27 new schools in a February election, school officials disclosed Wednesday.

At least nine of the schools would be in the Sanford-Lake Mary-Longwood area.

Depending on the method of financing, the construction could cost the owner of a $100,000 home who takes the standard homestead exemption either $643 or $1,535 over the eight years, according to school district figures.

The School Board discussed solving the current and future overcrowding by asking the public to approve either a $519 million bond issue or a $346 million bond issue plus a two mill per year levy over the eight year period.

"The whole district is expanding," said board chairman Ann Neiswender. "The growth is

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Congressmen want INS investigation

United Press International
MIAMI - Two Florida congressmen called Wednesday for an investigation of the Immigration and Naturalization Service's district office in Miami, saying apparent mismanagement led to a huge backlog of work.
The two Florida congressmen, Reps. Tom Lewis and Bill McCollum, asked the General Accounting Office in Washington to investigate shortcomings of manpower and money at the INS's district office for south Florida.
The congressmen made their request in a letter sent Wednesday to GAO Comptroller Charles A. Bovvair.

UF president to be named Tuesday

GAINESVILLE - A new University of Florida president likely will be selected next Tuesday from two non-Florida candidates, the state universities Board of Regents said Wednesday.
University board members and state legislators had hoped the regents would retain James H. Hunt, North Carolina Gov. and UF regent, as the new president. But Hunt has been recommended by the board and the regents.
The two candidates, John H. Garvey, University of Virginia President, and University of Missouri St. Louis Chancellor Margarette Ross Barnett, had final interviews with the regents Wednesday.
Regent Joan Ruffler said there was "zero chance" that she would name a Florida candidate. "I would be happy with either one," Ruffler told The Sanford Herald.

Carrier repairs will cost about $800,000

PENSACOLA - Repairs to the carrier USS Lezanigan, damaged more than a week ago when a storm struck the jet liner in the Gulf of Mexico, are not expected to exceed $800,000, officials said Wednesday.
Five people, including the pilot, died and 19 others were injured when a 7-3 from the Norfolk Naval Air Station in Norfolk, Va., was damaged by the superstorm and crashed in Florida on the deck Oct. 29.
Lt. Roberta McCurkie, the Lezanigan's public affairs officer, said the repairs being made at the ship's home port in Pensacola, Fla., are expected to cost about $800,000. The accident damaged a main deflector and radar.
"It's very minor damage when you look at how much a new ship costs," she said.
Raymond Mackinnon and Dieter Worlich of the Voyage Repair Team from Maryland said a heavy electronics team from St. Ingers, Md., are handling repairs, which should be finished by Dec. 4.

Communion denies auditors' request

OCALA - An Ocala couple has been denied permission to turn their home into a bed-and-breakfast for tourists.
The Marion County Commission voted 6-1 Tuesday to deny the request from David and Dorothy Coleman, who said they have paid $300,000 into rehabilitating their home.
The idea of a modest bed-and-breakfast came from local residents, and about 50 people showed up at the meeting to voice their opposition.
The Colemans claimed they have been hosting tourists in their home for quite a while and that no one knew or cared what they went public with their plans.
 zoning laws for their neighborhood prevented them from opening anything but a retirement home.
The Colemans said afterwards they will now try to sell the home.

Agents seize $2 million in small bills

ORLANDO - State and federal agents say $2 million in small bills seized from an abandoned van in an apparent money laundering scheme is the largest cash seizure ever for central Florida.
The boxes of $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills were seized in a raid early Tuesday morning. An automatic bill counter was used to tally the cash.
"Have you ever seen $2 million when the biggest bill is a $20?" said Orlando Police Chief Danny Wilson. "It was boxes of money, all bundled and wrapped neatly."
No arrests were reported in Florida, but were expected in New York, where the case originated, officials said.
Officials were not disclosing details of the case, but said Customs officers seized the van being driven by two men from New York. Federal agents contacted the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation in Orlando, which obtained the search warrant.
Local officials said they stood to collect $1 million as their share of the forfeiture.

Broker indicted on fraud charges

TALLAHASSEE - A Gainesville mortgage broker accused of bilking investors out of $17 million in a securities and investment scheme has been indicted on 78 felony charges, officials said Wednesday.
Robert T. Ross, the principal of Florida Investors Mortgage Corp., was indicted Tuesday by a statewide grand jury on charges of racketeering, organized fraud, securities and mortgage broker fraud.
Florida Comptroller Gerald Levin filed a lawsuit against Ross in March claiming he defrauded investors by failing to record mortgages or tell them of the deteriorating financial condition of the firm.
The suit also claimed Ross misrepresented the firm's soundness to potential investors. About 300 people invested $17 million in the firm, Levin said.
Alachua Circuit Judge Nath Doughtie appointed a receiver last spring to take over the company.

Pretrial motion rulings handed down in Miami shooting that sparked riot

MIAMI - A judge ruled Wednesday that the lawyer for a Hispanic police officer charged with killing two black men in a shooting that set off three days of rioting may tell the jury one of the victims was carrying drugs.
Circuit Judge Joseph P. Farina also ruled that Assistant State Attorney Richard Shiffman may introduce evidence suggesting that Miami Officer William Lozano failed to follow police guidelines on using deadly force

Most wanted felons will soon be pictured on state billboards

TALLAHASSEE - Six-foot-tall pictures of Florida's most wanted felons will soon be plastered on billboards seen daily by thousands of motorists in a new statewide program, officials said Wednesday.
So will a reward offer and a toll-free telephone number the public can call to report any knowledge of the whereabouts of the felons deemed the most dangerous in the state by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

State initiates program to locate deadbeat dads

TALLAHASSEE - Deadbeat dads who owe child support are the target of a new state collection program announced Wednesday which features "wanted" posters bearing the faces and amount owed by the delinquent fathers.
The posters, which bear the headline "Wanted: Florida's 10 most wanted non-supporting parents," were unveiled by Gov. Bob Martinez and officials of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services at a news conference.
"It's amazing. You put their faces out there and somebody will come in with a tip," said Health Secretary Greg Colier, referring to the experiences of other states who have tried the idea.
"As we enter the holiday period, these children should not be forgotten," said Martinez.

Man charged with grand theft

BANFORD - John Alfred Bates, 18, of 735 Mallard Drive, Sanford, has been charged with grand theft and fleeing in stolen property.
Seminole County sheriff's deputies report arresting Bates at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday after his fingerprint on a pair of shoes ticket reportedly linked him to the case. Deputies said the shoes of jewelry pawned in Sanford was part of $1,500 worth of jewelry stolen from 775 Monroe Harbor Place, Sanford, between Sept. 23 and 30.

Houseguest accused of theft, forgery

WINTER SPRINGS - A man who allegedly stole bank withdrawal slips and cashed them at two Sun Banks in Seminole and Orange counties has been arrested in both counties for allegedly victimizing a couple who invited him and his wife to stay at their house after a move here from Ohio.
Seminole County sheriff's deputies report charging Stacy Harold Williams Jr., of no address, with seven counts of forgery and two counts each of uttering a forged and grand theft. He was arrested in Winter Springs at 4 p.m. Wednesday. His arrest here follows an Oct. 31 arrest in Orange County in connection with the same case.
Williams is accused of stealing the slips and making the withdrawals from the account of Connie Vaughn, while using Vaughn's driver's license number to aid in making the transactions, deputies said.
Withdrawals made at Sun Bank in rural Winter Springs totaled $2,400, while the withdrawals from a Sun Bank in Orange County totaled $6,800. Fingerprints found on the withdrawal slips aided in leading investigators to Williams, a sheriff's report said.

Anti-Castro militant denied asylum in U.S.

MIAMI - A federal judge last week denied a U.S. Department of Justice deportation order against Orlando resident Oscar Beuch, the anti-Castro militant who was denied asylum because of his past as an international terrorist.
But U.S. District Judge William Haverdell did give Beuch, 62, time to appeal.
The judge's 19-page order included an indefinite stay that can only be rescinded by him or the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.
"It's disappointing. You try your best over and over again," said Oscar Levin, Beuch's lawyer. "I'm not sure whether the determination on whether this order should be appealed will be made by the judge's decision regarding her father. She said she did not know whether he would want to appeal his case again."
Miguel Beuch, who is married to Cuban President Fidel Castro's daughter, said she would appeal his case again.
"If they deport him, he's dead," she said. "They know it."
Orlando Beuch, a former Miami pediatrician, returned to the United States and requested asylum Feb. 16, 1986, after spending 11 years in a Venezuelan prison for the 1979 bombing of a Cuban jetliner that killed 73 people. He also was convicted 20 years ago of attacking a bus full of protesters with a banana in the Port of Miami and plotting to bomb other ships trading with Cuba.
He has been held at the Metropolitan Correction Center since his return.
Beuch was convicted of the armed attack on the Polish ship in 1966.

Nurse's grand theft trial continues

BANFORD - The trial of a Sanford nurse's grand theft trial continues today in Seminole County Circuit Court. The woman is charged with bilking an elderly Longwood man out of several thousand dollars last year just before the man died.
Patricia Ann VanDyke, 43, was arrested in May, 1988, and is accused of transferring money from the account of George F. Reek, 85, 540 Dog Track Road, Longwood. VanDyke was employed by Reek at the time to care for him in his home.
VanDyke, 578 Henderson Parkway, Sanford, is charged with grand theft and exploitation.

Longwood charter changes clarify removal procedures

LONGWOOD - Voters Tuesday said yes to several charter amendments which could have prevented the removal of two city commissioners from office this year.
Fourteen of the 29 amendments on the ballot passed, but most of them are clarifications of what is already written in the city charter. The city charter is a guide to how appointed and elected officials should conduct city business.
Due to the changes voted into the charter Tuesday, a commissioner who is charged with conduct which is grounds for forfeiture of office will now need to be notified in writing of the charges and given seven working days in which to request a public hearing.
This charter amendment passed Tuesday by a narrow margin of 50.9 to 49.1 percent.
Officials hope the change will prevent confusion like that which surrounded former commissioner Carol Odum's ouster. Odum was removed from office by a 5-2 vote this year on charges she allegedly violated the city charter by making inquiries of employees without the consent of the city administrator. Odum was not notified of the charges before the commission meeting in which she was ousted, and was offered a public hearing only after she was removed.
Voters rejected another amendment which would have clarified how commissioners can make inquiries and investigations into city employee matters. That amendment was defeated by a 56.8 to 43.2 percent margin.
Voters gave a resounding yes to an amendment that clarifies that all meetings should be public, except as authorized by Florida's Government in the Sunshine laws. It passed by a 65.3 to 34.7 percent margin.
Former Longwood commissioner Rick Bullington was removed from office last month by Gov. Bob Martinez after being prosecuted for violating the state Sunshine Law, which requires that all meetings be held in public. He ran for election, but was defeated by Adrienne Perry.

The small-s summit

President Bush says the shipboard meeting in the Mediterranean he will have with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in December won't be a summit meeting. It will be just a chance to discuss the range of issues confronting the two superpowers free of pressure to produce substantive agreements. That makes sense, and the fact that the encounter will take place, whatever it's called, is a welcome extension of the administration's recent rhetorical shift toward greater engagement with Moscow.

The absence of a detailed agenda seems appropriate, since the main objective now must be to advance the U.S.-Soviet dialogue generally, particularly at a time when events in Eastern Europe are moving so rapidly. The president also has given assurances that it will not be a replay of the fiasco at Reykjavik in 1986, when Ronald Reagan alarmed U.S. allies with what at first appeared to be a sweeping commitment to getting rid of all strategic weapons. One can be confident, given Bush's innate caution, that his word is good on that score.

That Bush proposed the meeting to Gorbachev in July helps to explain why Moscow and Washington agreed in September not to hold a full-scale summit meeting until sometime next year. By then, it's to be hoped, progress will have been made in separate talks on strategic arms and on conventional forces to justify a genuine summit meeting to ratify agreements to substantially shrink the two countries' arsenals.

Clearly Bush's decision is in part a response to critics both at home and abroad. At his news conference Oct. 31, at which he announced the December meetings — which will be held on U.S. and Soviet naval vessels in the Mediterranean — Bush cited pressure by European allies at last June's summit meeting as a factor. Yet, however much the president was pushed, his administration now seems committed to its new course.

What that will lead to in tangible terms is another question. U.S. help in reforming the Soviet economy can have only marginal effect, though the prospects in Eastern Europe seem more promising. And it may be too much to hope the two leaders can reach an understanding that leads to joint efforts to help end regional conflicts in Central America, southern Africa, Afghanistan and Indochina. Nor can one foresee what surprise proposals that ever-resourceful Gorbachev may unveil, or how the president might respond. What's important is the two sides now seem committed to the kind of confidence-building measures that are the essential foundation for the concrete achievements that might follow, however long it takes.

Why your insurance rates will rise

WASHINGTON — No matter where you live in the United States, you can expect to see a rise in your homeowners and personal property insurance bills. You have Hurricane Hugo and the recent California earthquake to thank for the increases, as well as numerous other disasters around the world.

America's $210 billion property and casualty insurance industry is having what may turn out to be its worst year ever.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, for the first nine months of 1989 casualty payouts and potential liabilities already stood at $5.64 billion alone — almost twice 1985's full-year record of $2.88 billion.

To this now must be added the quake cost. The state of California has estimated that 720 homes and apartment buildings along the San Andreas Fault were destroyed, and another 7,000 suffered substantial damage. Thousands of businesses were hurt, hundreds closed permanently. Additionally, tens of thousands suffered more minor losses from quake breakage. The total bill will come to something close to $5 billion. That does not take into consideration the damage to roads, bridges and public structures that may eventually double this figure. Actually, the quake's cost to insurance companies could have been much worse. It is estimated that commercial insurance companies will end up paying out about $2 billion — about half of what they will pay out in claims resulting from Hurricane Hugo.

The reason? Surprisingly, relatively few people in California carry earthquake insurance. Damage from earthquakes is considered "an act of God" and is excluded from normal coverage. However, under a state regulation, any insurance company offering homeowner or occupant property insurance must offer an earthquake rider.

The coverage is so costly, however, that most policy holders do not take the coverage.

According to Ray Bacon of the California Department of Insurance, an earthquake rider can add $800 to $1,000 to the annual cost of a homeowners policy. Therefore only about 10 percent to 20 percent of state residents take the coverage. A slightly higher percentage of businesses, perhaps 25 percent, have earthquake coverage.

"Remember we have not had a real damaging quake in northern California since 1905," Bacon notes. "So, I guess that people thought it was worth the risk. Given the cost of the coverage I don't think I would have argued with that judgment."

It is not only domestic disasters that have put U.S. casualty companies in the hole. The reinsurance industry — which essentially consists of insurance companies for insurance companies — has also been hit hard.

Most U.S. insurance companies that issue casualty and property policies lay off some amount of their potential risk with reinsurers. And if the domestic insurance industry is having a bad year, most reinsurers have had a horrendous one. Not only have they been hit with claims arising out of U.S. disasters, but also by a string of others around the world. Moreover, most of these reinsurers have their investments in dollars, so their liquidity has been further damaged by the slide of the dollar on world currency markets.

Few people in California carry earthquake insurance.

How about a maximum wage

BOSTON — They are finally finishing the work on a new floor for the economy. Congress, a notoriously slow contractor, is adding a thin layer of money over the old wage structure.

This is not an upscale renovation job. The minimum-wage law, passed by the House last week and on its way through the Senate, will raise the bottom for adults from $3.35 to $4.25 an hour.

A raise of 90 cents an hour is a bit like putting linoleum over rotting boards. But no one has even touched the base since 1981. There is at least hope that it can hold up four million Americans a bit longer.

Yet while attention is being paid to the floor, it is striking how seldom anybody looks at the ceiling. We all know the minimum wage. When was the last time you heard anyone talk about a maximum wage?

The minimum wage is based on the notion that no human work — from washing floors to grilling hamburgers — is worth less than a certain amount. But what about the possibility that no human work — from CEO to superstar — is worth more than a certain amount?

In an open-air economy we choose to believe that the sky is the limit. The last President who said there ought to be a cap on income was Franklin Delano Roosevelt. In 1936, he thought that $25,000 (about $200,000 in 1989 dollars) was enough. Now we have an ex-President, Ronald Reagan, who thinks that getting $2 million from the Japanese for eight days of work is enough.

From Roosevelt up to Reagan, the progressive tax structure acted as a sort of cap until it was riddled with loopholes. It conveyed the public message about a maximally decent wage by heavily taxing the uppermost reaches of the highest earners. Now, wealthy Americans have the lowest tax rate of any industrial society.

In this decade some incomes have gone (1) through the ceiling, (2) sky high and (3) into the stratosphere — choose your metaphor. In short, further and further from the floor.

We don't need Ronald Reagan's $2 million tour or Mike Tyson's $20 million fight to illustrate just how high a maximum wage can go. The average CEO of a Fortune 500 company is now making 90 times the average salary of the workers. That's the largest difference ever reported.

Still it takes an income like junk-bondsman Michael Milken's $550 million take in 1987 before Americans begin to wonder when it's unseemly. It takes a highly public failure before everyone questions whether $2.2 million is a touch high for baseball player of Jim Rice's nonperformance.

What is enough? When do we say, "Enough"?

Some of the unwillingness to name a max may come from a belief in "trickle-down" Reaganomics, though little has trickled down. But the larger reason we tolerate, even applaud the sky-high salary masters, lies in the American culture, not the American purse.

"Most people go along with it for the same reason they buy a lottery ticket," says Harvard economist Robert Reich. "They can imagine becoming a millionaire. It keeps alive the idea that they can make it too."

In "The Resurgent Liberal," Reich writes about a paradox of the '80s. We are in a time when big corporations are operating with less luster. Yet Americans grant them and their CEOs ever greater wealth and privilege. The success story we seem hooked on is written in their paychecks, not their performance.

While everybody thinks they can win the lottery, as Reich says, the lottery is a notoriously bad investment. And the big test bettors are not the wealthy.

If few of us miss a ceiling, it may also be for political reasons. Any discussion about the morality of income, any talk about the gap between the rich and the rest gets immediately slapped with the dreaded L-word. And, if you can read lips, the T-word.

So for the time being, some mild applause is due those who are finishing this modest renovation, a new floor. But one of these days, when it's raining, we'll notice that there's no roof over our heads.

But what about the possibility that no human work — from CEO to superstar — is worth more than a certain amount?

Gander crash still in question

WASHINGTON — Nearly four years ago a jet crashed in Gander, Newfoundland, and 248 U.S. soldiers died. Now the Canadian and U.S. governments wish the questions about the crash would die too. But they won't.

We reported last summer on the possibility that the plane was brought down by a terrorist's bomb. That report and subsequent media accounts have needed the U.S.

government, which has a publicly embraced the dubious conclusion of the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, that ice wings caused the DC-8 to stall on takeoff from the Gander Airport, Dec. 12, 1985.

The findings of the Canadian board grew more flimsy with each passing month. Four dissenting members of that board suspect that a fire broke out in the plane, possibly from an explosion in the cargo hold.

More than 100 members of Congress recently signed a letter to President Bush asking him to reopen the probe.

Rep. Robin Tallon, D-S.C., has led the congressional inquiry. Tallon tried to get a clean copy of the 200 blacked-out pages from a 247-page FBI report on the crash, but he was told he could not see them. The families of crash victims also asked for the report but were turned down. Our sources indicate that the original report will likely be shredded before it ever sees the light of day.

The interest in the crash has been reignited in part by the efforts of a former Pentagon investigator who has relentlessly gone after what he thinks is a "cover up." His private crusade has become so public that in August the outgoing Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral William Crowe, asked a top Army attorney to find out exactly what the investigator knew.

Among other things, the investigator told the Army that a general had tried to order the crash site bulldozed even before the wreckage was cool. Ten days after interviewing the independent investigator, the Army quietly retired that general. Well-placed sources now tell our associate Jim Lynch that the Army may have been used by covert operatives who were neck-deep in the secret arms sales to Iran. Those operatives allegedly told the Army almost immediately after the crash that a GI had accidentally detonated a hand grenade on the plane. That report could have been enough to scare the Army brass into steering any investigation away from the embarrassing prospect of an explosion caused by negligence.

Our sources claim the grenade story was a hoax to persuade the Army to cooperate in a cover-up of anything that would point toward an explosion.

With the Army as an innocent dupe, the covert operatives may have thought they had a better chance of keeping the lid on their own secret arms sales to Iran. The deal was not progressing smoothly, and there was a strong suspicion that Iranian terrorists wanted to send a message by blowing up the plane load of U.S. troops returning home from Egypt.

The mastermind of the arms deal, Lt. Col. Oliver North, wrote a note to his superiors shortly before the crash saying that the Iranians were livid about receiving the wrong missiles. Two days after the crash, the Islamic Jihad, an Iranian-backed terrorist group based in Lebanon, took credit for the Gander crash. The report was dismissed by the White House as a lie.

The interest in the crash has been reignited in part by the efforts of a former Pentagon investigator.

was open for Thursday night.

John McGee, clerk at the Days Inn at the junction of State Road 46 and Interstate 4, said that motel is also "pretty well filled" with Games participants.

"Most of them reserved their rooms some time ago, but a few checked in without reservations," she said.

Knights Inn, also located at the S.R. 46 intersection with I-4, also reported many guests who are Games participants.

In conjunction with the games, non-competitive events and promotions are taking place.

For example, the Sanford Shoney's Restaurant on Highway 17-92 is awarding complimentary T-shirts to winners of gold medals in the Golden Age Games. Shoney's will also give T-shirts to senior citizens who cannot compete in the Games because of handicaps or sickness, according to Frank Liberato, sales manager.

Shoney's is a local sponsor of the games.

Post Cereals, which has provided most of the money to pay for the games, is distributing T-shirts.

Boulevard Study Committee. "You have a study committee that was just formed for Red Bug, so there was some interest there. I think it might have passed if we had plans for more roads."

Seminole County Commissioner Bob Sturm expressed a similar view, noting his county commission District 2, which includes Lake Mary, was the only one to support the tax.

The city of Sanford and the entire county District 5 voted against the gas tax, despite talk of possible beautification of State Road 46.

Costs

everywhere. We're going to have to find room for new buildings to house all the students that are coming into our school."

An educational plant survey, completed in January of this year showed that the school district would need to build 80 new elementary schools, five new middle schools and two new high schools within the next eight years. The district's capital outlay and housing committee and the facilities staff have estimated that the cost of the land purchases, construction and renovation to existing facilities will cost approximately $642,880,130.

"There may be a $10 mistake in there somewhere," Richard Wells, assistant superintendent of facilities and transportation, joked.

Under the existing tax rate, owners of a $100,000 house with homestead exemption will pay $1,794.75 in taxes over the next eight years to finance the capital improvements and debt service on the 1989 bond issue. That same homeowner would pay $2,438.25 if the $519 million bond issue passes and $3,329.25 if the $346 million bond issue plus two mills per year levy passes.

There is some concern among board members that the bond issue may not be approved by the voters.

"What happens, God forbid, if this bond issue doesn't pass?" asked board member Pat Telson. "All but one referendum around the state was defeated yesterday." In Seminole County, a one cent gasoline tax with revenues to be used for beautification projects, was defeated by the voters.

Jerry Ford, a public relations specialist with Sun Trust Corporation, the company which was hired by the district as financial advisor for the bond issue, is optimistic that the taxpayers of Seminole County will not turn down the bond issue questions as readily. They will see the problem of overcrowding as more important than beautification projects, he predicted.

"The needs of a school system are very important to people," he said. "They are generally concerned what it will do to their tax bills more than they are concerned with the total amount of the issue."

He added, however that a half-billion dollar bond issue was "enough to gag anyone" and that it would pass only if there was the support of the superintendent and the board.

The board agreed that they are united in this cause.

The board will meet at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 15 to approve the eight year construction plan.

Dancers swing and sway across the floor

Lakeland dancer doesn't let blindness cramp his style

By VERA BUCHHEIM
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Daniel H. "Danny" Thomas has been dancing since he was in college. Although it has always been nothing more than a hobby, he said he has enjoyed being in the Golden Age Games competition the last two years.

"I have a lot of fun out here," he said. "I love to dance."

Last year Thomas and his partner won a bronze medal in the routine. This year he has a new partner, Alice Thomas, who he met on Monday.

"It's so fun," said Thomas. "I don't get out too often, but I enjoy dancing and Danny is very good."

Thomas, 75, a retired federal civil engineer who lives at the Senior Meadows retirement home in Lakeland, has been blind for thirty years.

According to Thomas, his lack of sight has not affected his abilities on the dance floor.

"It's more of a nuisance than a handicap," he said. "Besides you don't have to be able to see to dance. They turn off the lights for dance most of the time anyway."

Thomas said he lost his sight to a degenerative eye disease and has been able to adjust. He said he is not at all bothered by blindness, but just keeps doing things he has always done.

"The fun part, the waltz, I do all of those," he said. "I guess I'm from the old school. I don't do any of those new dances."

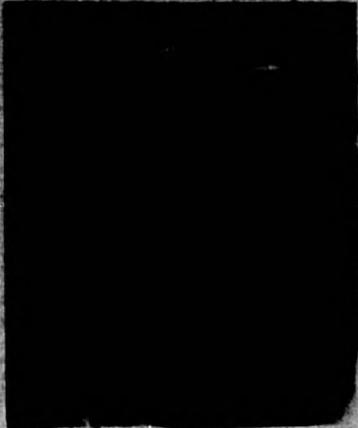

Thomas said he began dancing in the 1920s. He learned all the dances of the day and some of the more traditional ones, but he hasn't bothered with anything new, adding that he is not much of an innovator on the dance floor.

"I'm just fair to middling," he said. "Mostly middling."

Besides enjoying dancing, he has recently taken up the piano.

"My teacher said I'm pretty good," he said. "I don't know. I just keep plodding along as best I can."

A very independent man, Thomas said he does not like to have to rely on others to help him. He has memorized his bingo card and plays along with the others at Senior Meadows. He said he types letters to his legislative representatives and to the local newspapers when he feels strongly about an issue.

He has never learned to read braille, but said he hopes to try to learn next year.

Thomas, who lives "eight or nine" months a year in Dury, N.H. and the remainder of time at Senior Meadows, said she watched Thomas from the sidelines last year. When she arrived in Lakeland for the winter on Monday, he told her he needed a partner for the Golden Age Games.

The 75-year-old retired homemaker said she has been dancing since her high school days, but she has not danced much since her husband died a few years ago.

"I don't get out much back in New Hampshire because I'm alone and I don't have a car," she said. "I just dance a little down here."

She said she and Thomas have not practiced together and that they planned to just "wing it" in the contest.

"I'll try whatever comes along," she said. "I just like to have fun if I can."

Dressed for the part, this couple decides to compete

By VERA BUCHHEIM
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Lucille Cyrus and Ralph Perry look like they have a lot of experience in dance competitions. They really dress the part.

He, in his crisp black tuxedo and starched white shirt and she in a flowing blue cocktail dress with flashy jewelry and a blue flower in her hair.

"I've never been in a dance contest before," Cyrus said. "I've danced for a long time, but I was always just a fun thing. I never thought I'd be in a contest."

Perry has some experience, but said that he isn't a professional.

"I've entered here at the Golden Age Games for the last four years with another partner, but I haven't won many medals," he said.

Cyrus, who will admit only that she is "over 50", is a native Kentuckian who has lived in Leesburg for 32 years. Age, she said, is unimportant.

A Kentucky colonel who said she is proud of that honorary title, Cyrus added that she's retired from a variety of careers.

"You do what is good for you at the time," she said. "I did a little of everything, but mostly I worked with my husband in his business until he passed away 10 years ago." These days she said she just tries to enjoy herself.

Perry, 71, an ex-Marine and retired gourmet chef from Hyannis, Mass. is always laughing. "My partner there is 151," he joked. "Doesn't she look great?"

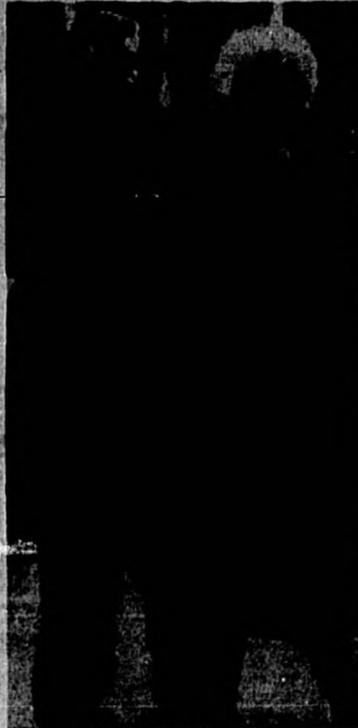

He gives his address as the Daytona Beach Inn, but in a more serious moment admits that he lives in Orlando, "because anybody who is anybody lives in Orlando."

He said that dancing makes him happy and makes him feel good.

"Hey, when you get to be as old as me," he said. "Feeling good is important."

Perry noted that the contestants at the Golden Age Games all feel good about themselves, adding that they take care of themselves and that makes them look good and perform well in their events.

Perry and Cyrus entered all but two of the events in the Golden Age competition. "We'd have entered the Alfie Cat and the

Ralph Perry and Lucille Cyrus

Jitterbug," Cyrus explained, "but we're still new at this together."

The two met four months ago at a dance and hit it off.

"I don't know," she said. "We just danced well together."

British bicyclists have to borrow bikes

Postal employee loans his vehicle

By LARNA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Margaret and Jack Critchley crossed the ocean to compete in the Golden Age Games cycling competitions this week.

The Devonshire, England cyclists arrived here last week, but their bikes never did. On a trip to the Sanford post office for stamps, however, they met a stranger who would lend them bikes, with which they nabbed two silver medals.

Margaret Critchley took two silver medals in the half and quarter-mile sprints this week. The Fuji 10-speed she rode across the finish line was on loan from Wes Albright, a postal worker who struck up a conversation about the games with the couple while selling them stamps early this week.

"Otherwise, we wouldn't have been able to compete," Margaret Critchley said.

"Total strangers we were. I said to my husband later, 'He's probably having second thoughts because he realizes he doesn't know us from Adam.' But sure enough, the next day he brought them to work in his van," she said.

Both Critchleys pedaled in the half- and quarter-mile sprints and the five-mile time trials Tuesday. The two are participating in the six-mile leisure walk tomorrow morning.

The Critchleys have competed in senior games at St. Petersburg for two years, but did not learn about the Golden Age Games until competing at the national senior games in St. Louis in June. The couple met athletes from Sanford at the national competition.

Will they return to Sanford next year? "Definitely," Jack Critchley said.

While in St. Louis, the couple met Harris Frank, president of the National Senior Olympics. Jack Critchley said he later set up a meeting between Frank and a major English recreation company. The group is now working to initiate the first athletic competition for seniors in England.

"We want to bring all our American friends over," Margaret Critchley said.

A date should be set for the seniors games in England by next year, Jack Critchley said.

Deng quits military post

Leader will remain in command despite giving up last office

United Press International

BEIJING — Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping has resigned his post as chairman of the powerful Central Military Commission, giving up his last official position in the Communist Party, the official Xinhua news agency said Thursday.

Analysts said Deng, 85, would continue to exercise decision-making power to protect his decade-long economic reform program, but said his retirement means younger leaders will be given greater opportunity to exercise leadership.

Deng officially stepped down from the Communist Party's most eminent post at the closing session of a Central Committee plenum, which has been convening in Beijing for the last four days.

Deng is only the second long-term leader, after Mao Tse-tung, since communist China was founded in 1949. The chairman of the military commission, as commander-in-chief of the army, is China's No. 1 position.

The senior leader's health was the subject of much conjecture when he dropped out of sight for three months after the bloody military crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in June. However, he has recently resumed his duties as a senior statesman, frequently receiving foreign dignitaries.

He is scheduled to meet Friday with former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who was instrumental in forging normalized relations between the United States and China.

Typhoon death toll reaches 219

United Press International

HYDERABAD, India — Typhoon Gay, weaker but still lethal after cutting a swath of destruction through Southeast Asia, rumbled across India's southern coast Thursday with high winds and heavy rains that left at least nine people dead and 20,000 homeless.

The deaths pushed to at least 219 the number killed since the storm blasted across southern Thailand and parts of Burma late last week before heading across the Bay of Bengal toward India.

The typhoon lost considerable power before slamming into the Andhra Pradesh districts of Nellore and Prakasam just after midnight.

State-run All-India Radio said preliminary reports placed at nine the number of typhoon-related deaths in Andhra Pradesh and said about 20,000 people were left homeless.

It said a large area of Nellore District was inundated by floods.

Officials in Hyderabad, 775 miles south of New Delhi, said warning of the typhoon — also known as a cyclone — permitted relief workers to evacuate more than 50,000 people from Nellore, Prakasam and several other districts before it made landfall.

He said the evacuees were transported to emergency relief camps in the interior.

Union to accept prostitutes

United Press International

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — Prostitutes likely will be accepted as members of Holland's Service Sector Union when organized prostitution is legalized next year, a labor leader said.

"The union should represent the social concerns of prostitutes," union president Lodewijk de Waal told United Press International Wednesday. "Since prostitutes will make up part of a genuine employer-employee relationship, they will be able to claim full legal rights to become members of our union."

"I have proposed to the board that we accept prostitutes as members and expect them to agree," he added.

The union's board will make its decision at a Nov. 21 meeting. The Service Sector Union is part of the Amsterdam-based Confederation of Dutch Trade Unions.

De Waal said the union would defend prostitutes' rights to employment benefits. These include complete medical and accident coverage, vacation pay and a retirement pension equaling 70 percent of the previously earned wage.

"We will try to make their working conditions as normal as possible," de Waal said.

An estimated 20,000 prostitutes are believed to be operating in the Netherlands, and the move by the union comes as Holland continues the process of legalizing prostitution.

The United Nations said this year that the Netherlands would become the first member state to legalize prostitution nationwide. The all-important lower house of Parliament has already passed a bill under which prostitution and ownership of a brothel will be made legal in early 1990.

Health officials say the new arrangement, which is expected to be approved after formal discussion in the upper chamber of Parliament, will give local government more control over health conditions at brothels.

"Legalized prostitution will actually allow us to be much stricter," said R. Heileman, a health official in The Hague.

The Hague has introduced a brothel licensing system to go into effect next year, which will allow officials to conduct periodic checks for sexually transmitted diseases.

IN BRIEF

Walton named NL's top rookie

CHICAGO — Jerome Walton, the first center fielder who helped carry the Chicago Cubs to a starting division title, Wednesday was named National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

He captured 22 of 34 first-place votes for 116 points to beat Cubs right fielder Dwight Smith by 48 points. The last time teammates finished 1-3 in NL Rookie of the Year voting was in 1967 when pitcher Jack Sanford of Philadelphia finished ahead of first baseman Ed Bouchee.

Walton, who jumped from Double A to the big leagues, enjoyed a 30-game hitting streak this year, the longest in baseball, longest in modern-day Cub history and second-best ever by a rookie.

Others receiving support in the voting were: Gregg Jefferies of the Mets (18 points), Derek Lilliquist of Atlanta (6), Andy Benes of San Diego (3), Charlie Hayes of Philadelphia (3) and Greg Harris of San Diego (2).

Rose admits to addiction

BURBANK, Calif. — Suspended manager Pete Rose Wednesday admitted for the first time that he has a gambling addiction and has been seeking medical help.

"After I was suspended from baseball on August 24, I decided to see a psychiatrist because of the many accusations made in recent months that I have a gambling problem," Rose said in a statement released before he appeared on "Donahue."

"Since then, I have come to learn and accept the fact that I do have a problem related to gambling — what my doctor, James Randolph Hillard of the University of Cincinnati Medical School, calls a gambling disorder — and I am getting treatment."

Rose emphasized he has never wagered on baseball.

"I swear that I didn't bet on baseball," he said.

Magic, 4 others fined by NBA

NEW YORK — Magic Johnson and four other NBA players Wednesday were fined a total of $6,500 for fighting in Tuesday night games by league vice president Rod Thorn.

Johnson and his Los Angeles Lakers teammate Byron Scott were fined for fighting with Kevin Johnson of the Phoenix Suns in the Lakers' 111-107 victory. The Johnsons were both ejected after Magic Johnson slapped Kevin Johnson in the face. Magic Johnson was fined $3,000 and Kevin Johnson $1,000. Scott was fined $500 for pushing Kevin Johnson in the chest.

Scott Hastings of the Detroit Pistons was fined $1,500 for starting a fight with Chicago's Stacey King, who was fined $500 for throwing a punch at Hastings in retaliation.

In action around the NBA on Wednesday, Philadelphia beat Miami 115-91; Washington dropped Boston 112-103; Orlando defeated Cleveland 117-110 in overtime; Chicago stopped Minnesota 96-84; Indiana routed Detroit 95-74; Portland trimmed San Antonio 108-104; Utah upended Charlotte 102-86; Denver dunked Sacramento 102-84; and Dallas stuffed the Los Angeles Clippers 123-99.

Flames burn Kings again

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Calgary trailed 4-1 early in the second period Wednesday night, but the Flames were not too worried. After all, they were playing the Los Angeles Kings.

The defending NHL champions registered their 10th straight victory over Los Angeles when rookie Paul Reinhem deflected in the winning goal with 11:08 remaining for a 5-4 triumph.

Theron Fleury's pass on a 3-on-1 breakaway ricocheted off defenseman Steve Duchene's stick and Reinhem — the middleman on the play — tipped the puck over the shoulder of goaltender Kelly Hrudey for the game-winner.

Stanley Cup champion Calgary has won three straight games and leads the NHL with 24 points.

Hawks 2nd in new state poll

Running back Marquette Smith getting the ball (center) is a sight that has haunted coaches of Lake Howell opponents the last three years. This season, Smith has rushed for 1,487 yards to help the Silver Hawks to a No. 2 ranking in the state Class 5A polls and an 18th place ranking in USA Today's national poll.

By YVON BOESMAN
Herald Sports Editor

In their own quiet and deadly effective fashion, the Lake Howell High School football team has worked its way to the point of completing a perfect season.

Nine opponents have come and nine have fallen. Some went a little harder than others — Winter Park and Lake Waccamaw chose immediately to send — but all have fallen before the seemingly unstoppable force that the Silver Hawks have become.

A win over DeLand on Friday night would complete a perfect 10-0 season.

And others have taken notice. This week, Lake Howell is No. 2 in the Florida Sports Writers' Association Class 5A poll. USA Today recently ranked the Silver Hawks as the 18th best team in the nation.

By comparison, Lake City-Columbia ranked No. 1 in the state and probably Lake Howell's first opponent in the state playoffs, isn't among USA Today's the national rankings.

"How about that?" said Lake Howell coach Mike Blacaglia. "People all over the country are reading about us."

"The kids were ecstatic about it. And they realize that it's a result of their hard work. That's what so great. It makes the kids realize that it's a year-round program with all

Controversy continues over Brantley uniforms

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Lake Brantley High School's boys and girls cross country teams are anxiously awaiting their fate today as Florida High School Activities Association executive secretary Fred Rozelle reviews a written complaint along with a video tape of the 4A-District race.

The Patriots are accused of running in that race wearing mismatched uniforms, which is a violation of a rule in the FHSAA Contest Regulations, Tournaments and Meets handbook covering cross country. The video tape that Rozelle is to see clearly shows the indiscretions in the Lake Brantley uniforms.

Lake Brantley's boys won the 4A-District 5 championship and the Patriot girls finished second.

While the rule in the FHSAA handbook states that individual violators of this rule are to be disqualified, it is not known at this point whether the Patriots will be disqualified, the school fined, or either.

As in any conflict, there are two sides to the story.

Patriot coach Charlie Harris thought the incident was unfortunate and wants it known that it was not done intentionally.

"I want to apologize to everyone in the district," said Harris. "We were rushed at the school and some of the runners grabbed their practice uniforms. It wasn't something we planned. We want it known that we weren't trying to cheat."

"If anything happens, let it happen to me. Don't penalize the kids."

Blacaglia also felt that the Lake Brantley administration, not the runners, should be penalized.

"At this point in time, no one has been disqualified," Rozelle said. "I'm thinking about the kids. It doesn't seem fair to throw out a team for this. I know the rule, but I think this time we can make an exception."

Lyman coach Fred Finke feels that this was a serious infraction and that it should be treated as such. Finke was not the first to realize there was a violation on Saturday morning.

"After discussions with other coaches, I think there was a very serious violation," said Finke, whose boys' team finishes second behind Lake Brantley. "I don't want the district trophy. I just want to explain my interpretation of what happened."

"The integrity of the sport is at risk," Finke said. "Winning is secondary."

Spanish River next

Oviedo's first year in Class 4A has already been a memorable one. On Tuesday, Becky Jakubcin (above) and her Lion teammates won the Region V title by beating Dr. Phillips. Now 26-2, Oviedo travels to Boca Raton to play the Spanish River Sharks on Friday for the Section III championship.

Magic rally twice, beat Cavs in OT for first road win

United Press International

RICHFIELD, Ohio — The beat-up Cleveland Cavaliers needed a victory in their home opener.

What they got instead was a lesson in perseverance from the expansion Orlando Magic.

The Magic rallied from a 25-point second-quarter deficit, and again after blowing an eight-point fourth-quarter lead, to defeat Cleveland 117-110 in overtime Wednesday night. The win gave the Magic a 2-1 record, with their other victory coming Monday night against New York.

The Cavs, playing without three starters and two key backups, are 0-3. Orlando center Dave Corzine injured his left knee in the first quarter and may have ligament damage.

"Tonight, maybe the best thing for us was to get down," said Orlando guard Sam Vincent, who tied the game at 99-99 with 38 seconds left in regulation and scored six points in overtime. "It gave us the fire. It gave us the spark."

Orlando's Reggie Theus led all scorers with 28 points, and Vincent, 11-13 from the free throw line, had 23 points and a game-high 11 assists. Terry Catledge had 23 points and a game-high 12 rebounds for Orlando, which beat Cleveland 55-36 on the boards.

"In the second quarter we went cold and did not shoot well at all, and then down the stretch, the youth and inexperience manifested itself," said Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens. "Guys

Cabinet Aire's Noy Rivers (No. 2) had three singles and scored three runs to help his team to a 15-0 win over Mobilite. Kes Lashley is the Mobilite third baseman.

Three teams tied for top spot in Class D League

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — The Wrecking Crew, Cabinet Aire and The Harrod Group all remained tied for first with victories but Ken Kern's Transmissions fell out of that group with a loss in Sanford Police Class D Skwipch Softball League action at Chase Park Wednesday night.

Aire came up with an easy 15-0 conquest of Mobilite, the Crew posted a hard fought 14-8 victory over the improving Sanford Police Benevolence team, and Harrod knocked Ken Kern's out of a first place tie with a come-from-behind 14-8 triumph.

The three leaders are at 5-2, Kern's is now 4-3 while SPBA and Mobilite are both 1-5.

Aire had little trouble in disposing of Mobilite, scoring five runs in each of their first three at bats. Aire pounded 20 hits while pitcher Dave Blackwell was holding Mobilite to only six singles.

Doing the damage for Aire were Noy Rivers (three singles, three runs scored), Greg Register (triple, two singles, run scored), Mike Gaudreau (double, two singles, two runs scored) and Jeff Kruger (two doubles, three runs scored).

Other contributors included Jim Rhodes and Blackwell (two singles and two runs scored each), Dave Rape and Scott Carter (two singles each), Brad Kruger (single, run scored) and Richard Shannon (run scored).

Getting the hits for Mobilite were Lowery (two singles) and Lashley, Conn, Brooks and Albright (one single each).

Handicapped may not look handicapped

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old and was diagnosed last year as having "myotonic dystrophy"—a form of muscular dystrophy. My doctor ordered a handicapped placard for my car to enable me to park in spaces for handicapped people.

Abby, I have had nothing but trouble since I've been using this placard. Everywhere I go—department store shopping, bank, grocery store, restaurant, etc.—people tell me to move my van out of the "reserved for handicapped" parking space because I do not look handicapped.

I have trouble walking distances, and on occasion must rely on my wheelchair. My legs get weak and give out on me. I am not crippled, nor am I confined to a wheelchair—I just cannot trust my legs to walk long distances when I'm tired. Last week, a man came over to my van as I was getting out, and angrily ordered me to move it out of the handicapped parking or he would! A woman demanded that I move my van or she would hit me! Another person asked to see my "permit" to verify if it was really my name and picture on it.

ADVISE

Why do people think handicapped people have to be deformed or paralyzed? Please publish this in support of me and others like me.

I AM HANDICAPPED

DEAR L.L.M.: I have dealt with this problem in my column before, but it deserves another mention.

There are many people with debilitating disorders (heart trouble, for example) who appear to be strong and healthy, but can't walk half a block without stopping to rest.

Of course there will always be a few chislers who would steal a preferred parking space from a physically handicapped person; in a sense, they too are "handicapped"—they suffer from a character deficiency.

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from my sister-in-law's home and am quite upset.

She has an adorable little 2-year-old daughter who is a little spoiled and often throws temper tantrums in order to get her own way.

My sister-in-law told me that she asked the pediatrician what to do when her child had one of those temper tantrums, and he told her to splash cold water in her face to bring her out of it!

Abby, what do you think of such advice from a pediatrician? Don't you think my sister-in-law should get another opinion?

OUTRAGED IN BREVÉ

DEAR OUTRAGED: I think your sister-in-law should get another pediatrician.

Biblical family

IN THE SERVICE

Army Private Nelson R.W. Spivey has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Spivey is the son of Betty A. Warner of Great Falls, Mont.

His wife, Cynthia, is the daughter of Edward Fuxino of Deltona, and Sharon Calabrese of Tucson, Ariz.

Spec. Sidney L. Griggs, son of William D. and Debbie Griggs of Sanford, has completed a U.S. Army primary leadership course.

Students received training in supervisory skills, leadership principles and small unit training techniques essential to a first-line supervisor in a technical or administrative environment.

Griggs is an attack helicopter repairer with the 6th Cavalry in West Germany.

He is a 1986 graduate of Seminole High School, Sanford.

Cadet Paul J. Lander, son of James E. and Jill Lander of Oviedo, has completed a U.S. Air Force ROTC field training encampment at McConnell Air Force Base, Kan.

Field training, attended by cadets normally between their second and third years of college, gives an opportunity to evaluate each student's potential as an officer.

The summer curriculum consists of orientation on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training also is emphasized.

The field training is four weeks, but cadets in the two-year ROTC program receive an additional two weeks of instruction in the development of air power and the contemporary Air Force.

Lander graduated in 1987 from Oviedo High School, and received an associate degree in 1989 from Valencia Community College, Orlando.

Army Chief Warrant Officer Paul D. Richtmyer, son of Glenn W. Richtmyer of Longwood, has arrived for duty at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Richtmyer is a safety officer with the 14th Aviation Brigade.

The warrant officer is a 1972 graduate of Lyman High School, Longwood.

Joan Lee Haynes of Sanford recently enlisted in the Army's Delayed Entry Program. According to Staff Sgt. Geoffrey Harris of the Matland Army Recruiting Station, Haynes has been guaranteed training as a linguist.

Pvt. 1st Class Daniel J. Lindenfeld, son of George L. and Peggy A. Lindenfeld of Longwood, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.
