Man in serious condition

SANFORD — A one car accident on U.S. Highway 17-92, near 29th Street in Sanford, left one man seriously injured on Friday evening.

James Thomas Coakley, 22, of 222 Red Coach Ct., Sanford, was driving excessively fast, Sanford police said, when he lost control of his 1984 Chrysler in front of the Ralph Kazarian Insurance Agency at 2920 Orlando Dr. (U.S. 17-92) about 9:30 last night.

He careened off the road and into the front of the building, totaling his vehicle and causing nearly $40,000 worth of damage to the building,

Coakley was transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center in Orlando with a collapsed lung and various cuts and abrasions. Hospital officials reported on Saturday that Coakley was still in serious, but stable condition. He was expected to remain in the hospital at least through the weekend. No charges have been filed in the accident yet.

SANFORD — Every year, the eighth grade of Lakeview Middle School has the opportunity to travel to Washington, D.C. to visit the historic sites, museums and see the govern-ment in action. This year, it's a little different.

When the 60 or so students and six chaperones arrive in the nation's capital on Sunday night, they will be able to witness some of the frenzied activity that accompanies the formal change in administrations.

"In addition to all that we usually have planned." said Carey Hobbs, who has been organizing the trip for the last five or six years, "we're going to try to squeeze in as many of the inaugural events as we can."

He said the opportunity to witness an inaugural celebration will be a once-in-alifetime opportunity for most of the students from Sanford. They will spend four hours on Wednesday at the parade and moving from one celebration activity to the next to see what they are able.

Cardinal sale stirs memories

Part 1 of 2 parts

Another good Sunday morning to you all.

Today, I want to share with you another yarn I think you'll enjoy. It's about the well known H.L. Hunt plant at the southeast corner of Sanford Avenue and Silver Lake Drive.

I'm sure most of you old, mid and young timers will recognize it as the plant Cardinal Industries occupied for some 14 years. Even though you might be quite familiar with Cardinal you'll probably be surprised at some of the history behind the 120,000 square foot factory Cardinal has recently sold.

I'm writing about the same plant in which more than 200,000 12x24 foot wood frame modules were built to be used in developing apartment projects, motels, retirement centers and some single family homes. These modules were built on an assembly line (just like automobiles) which was 190 feet longer than a football field from goal line to goal line. So warm up your coffee. I wouldn't be surprised if some of you might already know this story. But I ☐ See Stenetrom, Page SA

Cross-breeding considered for rare cat

YULEE — Biologists believe the endangered Florida panther may be a species too weak to save with captive breeding alone and are considering mating the big cats with a Western cousin.

Federal and state researchers have focused for two years on captive-breeding as a way to save one of the world's rarest mammals, but a conference of geneticists Friday offered cross-breeding as a strong option.

"To maintain the Florida panther, it will probably be bred with the Texas mountain lion," said research biologist Chris Belden of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Tom Logan, chief of the commission's wildlife research program, said, "If we agree with that, I don't want to be wasting any more time,"

Government scientists fought wildlife preservation groups to win approval for captive breeding, which requires the capture of wild cats, controlled mating and eventual release of offspring

Court order voids insurance requirement

MIAMI — The Ku Klux Rian won a court order Saturday allowing the racist group to hold a rally calling for the abolition of the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday and warning about an influx of Haitians.

The town of Davie ordered the Klan to buy a $1 million insurance policy, but U.S. District Judge Shelby Highemith ruled the requirement violated free speech rights and represented untair prior restraint.

"Somewhere somebody, maybe in a smoke-filled office in Davie, was trying to keep a message of hips and deliverance from the American people, and the scheme was quashed in federal court." said rally organizer Hank Pritchard.

Even if the amount were not in dispute, he noted the existence of the requirement itself could make insurance unobtainable.

New borrow pits may be nixed

By J. MARK BARRY Horald Stall Writer

GENEVA - Rep. Marvin Couch, R-Oviedo, has drafted a Geneva Bubble protection bill that would prohibit new borrow pits in the area and impose other building restrictions in an effort to protect this community's isolated water supply.

Couch said Friday the "Gen:va Bubble Acquifer Pro-tection Act" would not be any more restrictive than current county or state rules, but would serve to eliminate "waivers" from those laws. Residents have been angered by county com-missioners who have relaxed requirements for pit operators.

Couch and local environmentalist Mike Rich will present the highlights of the bill proposal at a community meeting Monday at the Geneva Elementary School, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The Geneva Bubble is this community's sole source of drinking water which is completely surrounded by un-drinkable salty water. Residents have fought development and borrow pits to protect it. Geneva environmental consultant Mike Rich said the bill would not eliminate the approved expansion of the county dump nor stop existing borrow pits. "It just says these types of uses are not a good idea over such a sensitive area," said Rich.

The bill would also limit ground coverage to 20 percent of a site. On-site retainage of stormwater will be required. Drawdowns of the acquifer would be to one-tenth of a foot within 300 feet of lakes, rivers and wetlands in the protection

Man savors freedom after 9 years of prison

DAVIE, Fla. - John Purvis says he wants to drive a car again, go swimming every day, and eat "juicy steaks" and "real eggs" now that he is free after serving nine years for murders he didn't commit.

"It's been a long nine years." said Purvis, 52. He described his prison time as "pure hell."

Purvis, who has suffered from schizophrenia since childhood. was convicted in 1985 of murdering a neighbor and her 18-month-old daughter. He was convicted largely on confessions his current attorney says were induced by badgering detectives and were marked by fantasies and inconsistencies.

Attorney Steve Wisotsky, a Nova University law professor, helped spur Fort Lauderdale police to reopen the case last

The case was "a textbook example" of how things can go wrong, Wisotsky said at a news conference attended by law students Friday.

Purvis, sentenced to life in prison, was freed late Thursday. "I didn't know what to believe," he recounted. "I just

Speak out on breast feeding in public view

Rep. Miguel DeGrandy, Republican, of Miami is presenting the Florida Legislature with an important bill. While reaction from House and Senate members may be interesting, it may also contain an element of personal bias, rather than a knowledge of the people's preference.

DeGrandy wants the state to allow women to breast-feed a baby at any location, public or private, regardless of whether or not any covering is used.

There are many divisions that could split the legislators into groups either in favor of DeGrandy's proposal, or in strong opposition

More men than women serve in the legislature. Most of the women may be aware of the problems associated with trying to feed a crying baby in public. Men may see nothing more than embarrassment.

The age of the legislator may also prove to have an effect. Older persons may have grown up in a household where even words such as 'sex" or "breast" were not spoken openly. They might have a difficult time in agreeing

Others of a younger age, have been raised in a freer society, where certain words and public displays are no longer considered taboo. They may find nothing wrong with the concept.

Consideration of the pros and cons of the bill may also be divided based on the marital status of a legislator. Husbands and wives The state of the s

There will be those who would support the tall it expelsions are sided that adequate covering stust be provided for breast-feeding in public. Others will want no restrictions, and support De-Grandy's tall as it stands, with no deverting required.

In order to prevent as much division as possible in discussions of this bill, we feel public opinion is important. It should be voiced now, while the bill is at a pre-legislative consideration level, rather than after Feb. 2nd when the assion begins.

Sanford a model for King festiviti

Those of us who pay homage to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as a great American fighter for justice and equality have anticipated Sanford's 1993 Martin Luther King celebration with great expectations.

Dorothea Fogie, chairman of the committee, and the committee members have worked diligently with representatives from the state of Florida's Dr. Martin Luther King Com-

Florida's Dr. Martin Luther King Commemorative Committee as the state launches a participatory role in MLK celebrations. Sanford was designated as the site for the first historical state celebration because of the paradigm Sanford has followed throughout the years. The salient focus has been upon including all citizens in the celebration with special emphasis upon youth and the provision of scholarship.

Dorothea Fogle was born in Sanford. She is the daughter of the late Rev. Early Williams and Mrs. Dorothea Williams Byrd. Fogle's stepmother, Mrs. Lillie Williams, has also been an inspiration to her. Fogle attended school in Seminole County and Polk County. She is a graduate of Jewett High School, Winter Haven, Fla. Her past secondary degree was received from Bethune Cookman College. She is employed by the Seminole County School Beard.

Fogle affirmed that the cooperative effort of the state commission and Sanford's Martin Luther King Committee has been a unique experience. Their joint quest for unity has reminded her of her participation in the "sit-ins" during the 1960s. Her civil rights activities during that period took place in Winter Haven and New York. In New York, the Rev. Adam Clayton

Powell who had also been a member of the House of Representatives, led the "sit-ins."

From its inception Sanford's Martin Luther King Celebration committee has followed in Dr. King's footsteps by depending upon citizens from all races and religious to volunteer their time, and in the true spirit of brotherhood, plan and implement the celebration activities. Citizens committed to the presentation of Dr. Martin committed to the preservation of Dr. King's dream have been one of the principal sources of scholarship funding, along with monies realized from paid activities.

Mayor Bettye Smith and the city of Sanford have made facilities available and provided staff support. Seminole County School personnel from the superintendent to the teachers and the students and their parents have given life to the oratorical, essay and art contest.

One of the paramount objectives of the MLK Steering Committee is to encourage citisen participation by providing a multiplicity of activities. This year's activities are: oratorical, poster and essay contest, youth night (scholarships and award ceremonies), tree planting; an ecumenical religious service, a unity breakfast and a banquet.

Sanford's MLK celebration is connected with the national MLK celebration and the national theme for 1993 is "Where Do We Go From Here? Non-Violence! Living It, Learning It and Teaching It." The celebration began Tuesday, Jan. 12, 1993 and concludes Monday, Jan. 18, Superintendent of Schools Paul Hagerty was the master of ceremonies for youth contestant night Tuesday. Friday night, the MLR committee sponsored the Seminole Community Glee Club under the direction of Patricia Hitchmon. Winners of the oratorical, essay and poster contest were announced. The state commission gave special recognition to each student that entered one of the contests.

Saturday's agenda was full accordingly: 8 a.m., unity breakfast with Governor Lawton Chiles in attendance; a nationwide unity prayer at noon; a parade with entries from cities throughout the state; finally, a film "The Long Walk Home," the history of the Civil Rights Movement. Bunday's religious services will feature the MLK Celebration Choir directed by Mary Whitehurst.

Probably one of the most noteworthy tributes to Dr. Martin Luther King and the MLK committee is the possibility the Rabbani Trust will create a Dr. Martin Luther King memorial library and cultural center in Sanford. Benjamin Levy, a MLK committee member, is spearheading this effort.

VA chief could be an enigma

WASHINGTON — Jesse Brown will never be accused of being one of the so-called "policy wonks" of the Clinton administration. He's a man of action and bears the scars to prove it.

Chicago to the Clinton Cabinet as Secretary of Veterans Affairs is a tale of true grit. The 48-year-old former-Marine was disabled in Vietnam when a bullet shattered his right arm. Transforming misfortune into a mission, Brown joined the Disabled American Veterans in 1967 and has served as its execu-

Today, Brown is one of the biggest wild cards of the Clinton Cabinet: impressive and quali-fied but neither "safe" nor predict-able. His appoint-ment marks the first time that a VA chief has been plucked from the leadership of a service organization, such as DAV and Veterans of Insatiable."

The groups certainly showed Edward Derwinski who was boss.

The Bush administration sacked the Veterans Affairs chief several days after the VFW, which backed Bush in 1988, declined to endorse either candidate last year. Although he squeezed three consecutive $ 1-billion increases for the VA budget out of his administration. Derwinski became political dead meet when he proposed a pilot program in which two underutilized VA hospitals would have been allowed to treat poor securets.

The program, which was shot down, was designed to justify a $15 billion VA health-care system in which some hospitals are as much as 50 percent vacant. Brown is on record opposing the Derwinski plan.

The message was clear: Vet entitlements are ascrosanct. Agency insiders question whether Brown can make the transition from lobbyist to leader, from advocacy to austerity. A recent General Accounting Office report predicted that "efforts to contain the rising lederal deficit will likely mean that VA. like other government entitlements, will have to operate its programs and activities with increasingly constrained resources."

"His challenge will be to go from advocacy—in other words, "give me more, more, more"—to "how can I get the most efficient and streamlined VA." one agency official told us. "By some definitions that is austerity."

During his recent confirmation hearings. Brown struck a conciliatory tone, saying, "I understand and I think veterane understand that with that responsibility, it has to be used in the centext of what is heat for the pation as a whole."

Over the years, Brown has expressed.

Then how did he create a market for "Saxet" products? He turned to radio.

Right after Hunt put the Sanford plant into production he started producing a daily 15minute radio program and bought time on almost half the local radio stations in the country.

Next year the state celebration, modeled after the events here in Sanford, will move on to another city, but Sanford will be remembered as the inaugural site for the event.

Sanford will continue to have its own festivities each year.

The first state celebration comes a decade after the establishment of the federal holiday, but Chiles has promised it will be an annual event from this time on.

While the Unity Prayer Breakfast attracted a full house of more than 600 people of all races, the commemorative parade had fewer people along the route that wound throught the streets of Sanford.

Ominous rain clouds held off their storms, though a brisk wind kept temperatures in the mid 50s. Some people did not venture far from their houses or their cars, but they came out to salute the memory of the slain civil rights leader.

Bundled in jackets, bulky sweaters and blankets. spectators watched from their front yards, from cars parked along the route and from downtown sidewalks.

"I would like to have had the opportunity to stay, but I have other commitments that I must attend to," the governor said.

While Chiles was only able to attend the prayer breakfast be-fore leaving, he said he believed the Sanford celebration, a historic event in that it was the first state celebration to be held in Florida, was a true example of what a community working together could accomplish.

James Huger, a member of the state committee, was impressed with Sanford's effort.

"I think Sanford has done a good job," he said. "This is one of the best celebrations I have ever seen. This has been very delightful."

BETHESDA, Md. - An advisory committee of scientists, lawyers and ethicists opened the door for dying patients to seek experimental and possibly dangerous genetic therapies.

The issue comes up as a San Diego woman with a normally fatal brain tumor already is receiving injections of genetically altered human cells. The controversial therapy, de-signed to attack the tumor, was approved for her alone by Bernadine Healy, director of the National Institutes of Health.

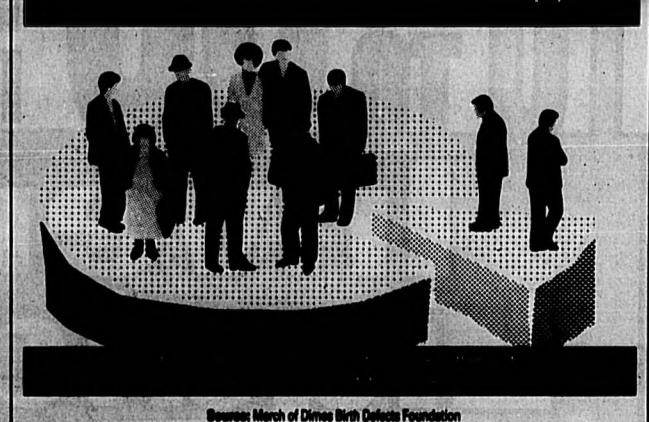

Healy bypassed her agency's normal channels on ground of

"Today I stand by that de-cision," Healy told NIH's Re-combinant DNA Advisory Committee, a panel of scientists, ethicists and lawyers who normally advise the government about genetic research limited to microbes.

The panel was presented with the San Diego case early last month, but put the issue aside and did not advise Healy on what she ought to do. She acted after doctors argued that the woman's condition was so bad she didn't have time to wait.

After its deliberations the committee, which calls itself "The RAC," agreed, on a vote of 9 to 3, that the NIH could permit use of genetic therapies in emergency cases in which there was not enough time for the panel to convene and make its own decision. The agency still would have to return to the committee and justify its action.

Food additive may reverse symptoms of sickle cell

Dy DAMEL G. NAMEY AP Science Writer

BOSTON - Injections of a flavor enhancer widely used in food may prove to be the first safe and simple treatment for sickle cell anemia, doctors re-

More testing will be necessary to prove that it actually reverses the symptoms of the inherited disease, which afflicts 50,000 to 100,000 black Americans. But researchers say they already have evidence it can entirely correct thalassemia, another deadly blood disease caused by a similar genetic

The highly experimental treatment is butyrate, a natural substance used as a food additive. When eaten, it has no effect. But injected into the bloodstream, it turns on a gene that ordinarily shuts down before birth.

The gene makes the fetal form of hemoglobin. When called into service later in life, it replaces adult hemoglobin, which is de-fective in both sickle cell anemia and in thaleseemis.

Drs. Douglas V. Faller and Susan P. Perrine developed the treatment and reported on its first human use in the New England Journal of Medicine. In their initial testing, doctors gave the drug for two to three weeks to three young people with sickle cell anemia and three with "The results are very exciting and dramatic." Faller said. "In every case, the patients treated for even this short period of time achieved levels of fetal hemoglobin that would be predicted to completely alleviate their discusse."

Even though only six people were tested, the results are highly encouraging because the drug produced such a dramatic increase in the patients' levels of healthy bemoglobin, Faller said.

An anti-cancer drug called hydroxyurea also can boost duction of fetal hemoglobin. fowever, the medicine is toxic, and doctors are reluctant to give it to children. Butyrate, if it is found to work, could become the preferred treatment, since it appears to have few side effects.

Dr. Kwaku Chene-Fremoong of Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, president of the National Association for Bickle Cell Disease, called the study very encouraging. Lyman girls cram for SAC tests

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD - Winning two games in less than 24 hours might be cause for celebration for other squads, but Coach Steve Carmichael and his Lyman High School girls' basketball team knew that was only an appetizer.

While Carmichael was pleased with the wins over Evans (33-29 Friday night) and Spruce Creek (48-31 Saturday afternoon), he was afready looking ahead to this week's games with Seminole Athletic Conference foes Seminole (Wednesday) and Lake Mary (Friday).

Both games will be a part of girls-boys varsity doubleheaders at Lyman, the girls' games starting at 6:15 p.m. with the boys scheduled to

"We try to play as strong a preseason schedule as we can to get ready for our conference schedule," said Carmichael. "Those were two big wins. Evans is leading the Metro Conference and two of their four losses have been to us. Both games were tight and went right down to the wire. And Spruce Creek is a district game.

"But our main competition is going to come from right here in our district and county.

Lyman (15-4) showcased its defensive ability and depth against Evans and Spruce Creek.

Tribe takes a pair

By RYAN ANDERSON Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Forty minutes. that's how long it took for the Seminole High School girls' soccer team to win two games Friday night.

The Fighting Seminoles' first victory came in the form of rain soaked 4-0 shutout of St. Cloud in one half of play. The second victory came when Evans High School forfeited a game scheduled to be played Saturday morning.

Seminole also won the first junior varsity girls soccer game in the history of the school Friday night as Heather Youmans scored the game's only goal in a 1-0 win over St. Cloud.

In Friday night's varsity win, the Tribe overcame two foes; St. Cloud and a steady downpour which caused the field to look more suitable for water polo than girls soccer. By the time the game was halted, there was standing water ankle deep in some parts.

"There's not much you can say about a game like this," Seminole coach Suzy Reno sald. "I think we did very well in only one half. Imagine what would have happened If we played the whole game.

Conditions favor a Courier repeat at Australian

By STEVE WILSTEIN AP Tennis Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia - It's Jim Courier weather at the Australian Open - 140 degrees, sun rays blasting through ozone holes, rubberized hard courts bouncing back heat and sizzling

And it's another blown opportunity for Andre Agassi at the year's first Grand Slam event.

Courier's No. 1 ranking is up for grabs. No. 2 Stefan Edberg or No. 3 Pete Sampras could take It away, and No. 4 Boris Becker could come close. if any of them capture the title Courier won a

"This is the start of the year," said Courier, a former resident of Sanford who now lives in Dade

City. "We wipe the slate clean. We start from scratch and we go."

But in this heat, on these courts so suited to Courier's topspin style, the guy who might have had the best shot at beating him decided not to Agassi, whose own heavy topspin shots, oulckness and endurance would be perfect for the Australian, had been scheduled to play here for the first time after skipping it for years because it interfered with his winter vacations. A week ago, he was "focusing on tennis" in the United States, his manager, Bill Shelton said. There was no mention of illness, no hint of a tickle in his throat. A few days later, Agassi suddenly withdrew from the tournament, claiming a long-suffering infection had developed into bronchitis.

Agassi's alleged ailment, real or contrived. deprived the Australian of one of its main attractions - especially with the absence of semi-retired John McEnroe.

More than that, it showed that Agassi, despite winning Wimbledon last year after skipping that championship for years, still is not ready to make a serious bid for the top ranking. Players who are serious about reaching No. 1 go to all the Grand Slams if they can walk and get out of bed.

No. 2 Stefan Edberg is here, fighting off a cold, but doing all he can to reclaim the No. 1 spot and the Australian title he won twice.

No. 3 Pete Sampras is here, playing through the pain of shin splints, trying to get rid of his ☐ See Courier, Page 3B

Toll-free phone lines provide boaters with important information

If you have a boating question, want to report a safety defect, or take a boating course close to home, the BOAT/U.S. Foundation for Boating Safety wants you to know that assistance is just a toll-free phone call away.

Boaters should know about the U.S. Coast Guard Boating Safety Hotline (1-800-368-5647) and the Foundation's own courseline (1-800-336-BOAT).

The Coast Guard Boating Safety Hotline provides information on a wide range of topics, including Coast Guard boarding procedures, charts, hurricane regulations and licenses, safety equipment and manufacturer recalls. Boaters also may call the hotline to report a safety defect in a boat or equipment.

Calls to the Coast Guard Hotline are answered weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The BOAT/U.S. Foundation courseline helps boaters find free boating courses taught by volun-teers from local units of the U.S. Power Squadron, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Ameri-can Red Cross, as well as state

This same courseline lists more than 18,000 locations coast to coast offering courses that cover boat handling, navi-gation, engine trouble-shooting, equipment regulations, the nautical rules of the road, trailering and weather.

Calls to the courseline are answered on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

COMBAT SOAT THEFT BOAT/U.S. recommends the following steps to combat boat theft and vandalism:

 Don't make your boat an easy target of thieves. Use theft-warning decals, locks and alarms. • Remove valuable items such as electronics if you plan to be away from yo period of time. If you leave your boat on a trailer, use a wheel lock. If it will be stationary for an extended period of time, remove one or more of the wheels. BHUPE'S SCOOP

FISHING FORECAST Fishing will be great this weekend if the weather cooperates. Base fishing is almost perfect, and the lunkers are on the move as they prepare for spawning activities with the upcoming full moon in Febru-

Shinery fished near keavy pover or slow-trolled down sherelines will account for many trophy fish during the next couple of months. The river south from Puszle Lake to Lake Winder is a prime area to catch some real heavyweights.

Sebastian Inlet has had some good action with big winter flounder, blueflah, and a few trout. Large live shrimp and finger muliet are the top baits, but jigs and swimming-minnow lures will also account for many fish. The outgoing tide is best, as bait is funneled out the inlet to the awaiting gamefish.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral has little to report in the way of offshore action due to high seas. Bottom fishing will be good on wreeks and reefs as grouper and snapper have moved into shallower water for the winter. King mackerel will be on Pelican Flats, along with scattered cobia and maybe a wahoo or two.

Inside the Port, it's mainly sheepshead, flounder, and bluefish. Guide Troy Perez is catching and releasing some nuse reds on the flats of the Pence Inlet has been rough, but some anglers are braving the choppy waters for big sheepshead and scores of bluefish. The largest sheepshead are bitting live shrimp near the tip of the morth jetties. Swarms of bluefish are roaming around both jetties and back in the inlet. The south end of Mosquite Lagues is filled with trout and redfish.

cholesterol than skinless chicken or turkey breast. It is a healthy food. Restaurants are now springing up that serve ostrich meat as the main item on their menu.

Other ostrich products include feathers, fashion grade feathers and non-fashion grade feathers. The market for non-fashion grade feathers is huge. Ostrich feathers are unique in that they are not inter-connected with each other like regular feathers and are very fluffy. So when the feathers are waved around in a feather duster they set up static electricity and they attract dust. They make excellent feather dusters. The hide of the ostrich is much softer than cowhide and much more durable than all other hides. It is also considered attractive with its natural quilted pattern. Boots, shoes, handbags. belts, wallets and jackets are made with the hide. Right now a pair of boots go for about $1,000 to $1,500. A briefcase made from the hide sells for about $2,500.

Local volunteer elected to serve on national board

MADD was founded in 1980 in California. It basically has four goals. Bridges explained the goals, "One is that we work with the victims of drunk driving crashes. We help them through the criminal justice system. We offer them support grups and help them get into counseling. We try to help them to get reimbursed by the state for their medical bills and that type of thing. We also work with the criminal justice system.

"Fortunately or unfortunatly. however you want to look at it. many people are just arrested for drunk driving and they don't kill or injure anyone which is fortuthese cases.' "We go and we sit in a courtoom and we are just there to make sure the prosecutors and the judges are doing their jobs and they are not passing down lenient sentences for first time offenders. It is very important that the first time is their last time and so we do court monitoring.

"Basically we just go in there. We don't come in and say we are MADD. We are not allowed to wear any type of name badges or anything like that that will identify who we are. But most of the judges based on experience. if there is a strange person sitting in the courtoom and the courtroom is pretty much cleared out, you know they will tell their bailiff. They will say. 'Who's that person over there?' and so the bailiff will come over and I will say I am Beth Bridges and I am from MADD and then the bailiff goes back and tells the judge. Williams explained how the birds got started again in the United States. "About eight or 10 years ago we started boycotting South Africa and African aggregate South Africa has conproducts. South Africa has con-trolled the market for 100 years. Recentially, all the birds that were slaughtered were coming from there and the ranchers in Texas and Oklahoma decided to capitalize on this boycott plus diversify and they started it out there, it is big in Texas, Oklahoma and California. They raise these birds in Minnesota.

even up to Saskatchewan. Canada. They raise them all over, in fact, about every state," he said. Williams added there is a lot of research going on concerning the raising of these birds. "Our research now is about where poultry research was 30 years ago. Raising the birds has become a big problem and there is so much to go before breeding becomes successful."

Williams continued, "The kicker right now is raising chicks. You have got three things to consider. You've got fertility on an egg. You got to lay an egg that has got to be a fertile ess. Then you got hatchability. Just because an egg is fertile doesn't mean you are going to hatch it. Things happen to it. Deformities, accidents and especially disease even in the eggs takes its toli. Then you have survivability."

raise it to three to six months of age. It is very difficult. The birds are very susceptible to disease. This has been a terrible year essentially across the country for chicks. Even the big growers that have been doing it for a good number of years are losing a lot of chicks. Mainly, they are losing the younger ones to diar-rhea type of things, gastroenteritis or to respiratory diseases.
If they get wet and cold they die and sometimes they just die anyway. Once they get over alx months of age they are pretty Continuing. Williams said. "They are also a very stupid bird. It does really stupid things. A lot of birds die of impaction.

They literally eat grass, dirt and whatever until they fill their intestines up and than they die.
So they are very difficult to raise.
That is why the price' stays so high on them. high on them. The prices are nigh on them. The prices are outrageous on these birds."

Williams explained the prices of ostriches. "A fertilized egg may go for $1,000 and up. They traditionally sell birds as three-month-old pairs, a male and a female, usually unrelated. Three-month-old birds are now spins for approximately $8,000 going for approximately $8,000 a pair. Each month of growth you might as well add another $1,000 to the price of the pair."

Williams said, "Six-month-old pairs of birds are now going for $13,000 to $15,000. One-yearold birds are going for $15,000 to $17,000 and two-year-old birds approximately $30,000 a pair. A breeder pair of birds anywhere from the high $30s to $100,000. The birds live for about 60 years. They breed for about 40 years. They start breeding at about two years to three years. They lay anywhere from 15 to 100 eggs per year. A 100-egglayer is really good. I know a fellow in Oklahoma, who had a pair that hatched 106 cage. In today's market, that is worth about $500,000."

Williams added. "Right new it williams added. "Right now it is a breeder's market. The pople who are buying are setting into the industry or people who are in the industry are building up their herds. Eventually there will be a slaughter market. The birds will be raised just like cows. They will be raised to approximately 14 months of age and the birds will be turned over for their meat and hide.

valuable," Williams continued. "A 14- month-old bird that you are going to slaughter and get $2,000 worth of product out of. right now is going for $10,000. Well, you can't do it. So what we are doing is we are trying to match numbers so we are going to even out there. So right now you raise a few birds at an astronomical price and later on hopefully you have gotten into the industry. You have paid for your breeders and you are turning out a thousand chicks a year at $500 to $1,000 per chick. You are still making a lot of Williams strongly feels that this industry is still three to 10 years away from that changeover in the market. Essentially the market is still open for many new investors who stand a good chance to make quite a bit of money.

SHS principal reviews school opportunities for Daughters

Schapker, principal of Seminole High School, spoke to the Daughters of the American Revolution at their educational program meeting in the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, Schapker told of an experience her first teaching year when she finally confronted a burly high school boy concerning his daily tardiness. Looking her in the eye he explained that the bell always rang before he got there.

So it is, she said, with the educational system, everyone blames everyone else all down the line.

Seminole High School is doing a thorough assessment of its situation and will present an improvement plan this April, according to Schapker. Committees are sifting through all kinds of statistics to make fundamental computerized profiles.

She said the mechanical age is moving in the direction of high technology, so schools must adjust to be relevant to the times or lose students.

Schapker then enumerated some of the varied programs offered at Seminole.

Computers and computer labe are being widely used for teaching business, drafting, automotive work and for other subjects and methods of the 21st

The school has a full service grant for situations involving student mothers who need child care or health care and also it received a technology prep grant of $350,000 which makes learning a "hand-on- experience in math and physics. There is also an in-service learning program for teachers who teach in the new era way.

An apprenticeship program teaches students practical work with sheet metal, electricity, etc. There is also a technical training course which leads into two years at a college.

A child care assisting program gives experience working with 4-year-old children (they have 20

Seminole High School is the first magnet school in Seminole County. It should draw many students who need practical job related course offerings. Added resources will be available from colleges and universities nearby.

Schapker said that seven of every 10 jobs in the future will be health related. Starting in August, a three-tier curriculum will be offered in this field: 1) For those wanting to be doctors, pharmacists, veterinarians. 2) A certificate course leading toward physical therapists and

3) A course for nurses aides, pharmaceutical aides, and community helpers that take blood pressure, etc.

Because of cutbacks in money, Schapker spoke of needed adult volunteers for library assistance, mentor program, Dividend helpers, and other work.

With all this, there is still a solid academic course at the school along with sports and music. They teach several languages including four years of Latin. Sign language is classified as a foreign language, she said.

The "significant other" program is when a student is assigned an adult with whom to meet for a scheduled half hour each week. They may discuss manners, current problems or whatever. The significant other becomes a friend, an ear, a helpmate, a "significant other" for four years.

Virginia Mikler, regent, led the business meeting. Elisabeth Boyd delivered the national defense message saying, "This is the time for patriots. We must be watchful that the concept of globalism, of a New World Order does not impair the sovereignty of the United States."

'You know' does, you know, drive some people crazy

DEAR ABBY: Something that has been bothering me for years, and is getting progressively worse, is the use of "you know" in everyday conversation.

It doesn't really mean anything: it's not a serious question requiring an answer. It's what journalists call "a filler" — a couple of words to fill in what would otherwise be an embarrassing allence while you're try-ing to think of something else to eay. I've enclosed a poem titled "You Know," which I think says

> PAUL L. HENDERSON, SPRING VALLEY LAKE,

DEAR MR. HENDERSON: And, you know, I think it's worth sharing: "Of all the words that we know

"The ones overused which get in the way conversing with friends "are the words 'you know'

used again and again. "It bothers me so to have them

"over and over since they are really abused,

"and lend no thought and are hard to follow.

"in a conversation that becomes so bollow. "It's difficult to know just what they mean. "They are used so much - like coming out of a machine, "They have no meaning because I really don't know "just what they mean when they may — YOU KNOW."

MADD also works in the area of legislation. Victims and legislation are the two most important goals. One of the most important areas MADO is working on this year is the presumed intoxicated limit. The current limit is .10 but all kinds of statistical data from the National Highway Safety Department down shrough the AMA says that at .06 a driver is impaired to where he/she shouldn't be driving an automobile. The goal for MADD this year is to get this limit down to .08 because the committees have found it too hard to take big jumps at one time. Eventually MADD hopes the limit will be down to .05. They are also working, on vehicle forfeiture. In other words, on a third conviction for DUI, it would be up to the judge whether or not to take away the driver's vehicle. Bridges explained, "Basically the only way you can keep someone from driving is to take their automobile away from them. So we are working on that angle." The bill was passed several years ago but it got muddled up with some pork barrel legislation and because the governor had no line-item veto it went down with the rest of the bill, she explained. Bridges continued, "The other area MADD is involved in is public awareness. It's just going out and talking to students, adults, anybody and everybody that will listen to getting the word out that you shouldn't drink and drive. Our goal is just to keep the public educated and I feel we have been very successful in that area because we have had a decline in the drunk driving fatalities and injuries. We have to just keep it out there in the limelight until there are no more people who are killed or injured due to drunk driving."

A first offender is fined $150 and 150 hours of community service. They have to attend a counter attack school which is through the Central Florida Safety Council and could be sentenced to no more than 10 days in jail.

If someone seriously injures a person while driving intoxicated, it is classed as a third degree felony and is punishable up to five years in prison. If there is a death as a result of drinking and driving, it is a second degree felony and is punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

Bridges is currently employed by the Florida state attorney as a victim advocate in the sex crimes unit. She works with children who have been sexually and physically abused and women who have been sexually abused. Her basic job encompasses keeping vitims informed what is guing on, being there with them during a trial or any court proceedings and keeping up with all the paperwork and questions that have to be completed by the victims. She is there to support the victims through the criminal justice

Bridges is active in many volunteer programs in Seminole County. MADD keeps her very busy but she is very much involved in the Seminole County Victims Rights Coalition whichis currently trying to build a domestic violence shelter in Seminole County. She is also a member of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford and the Woman's Club of Sanford. She sits on a task force for the Attorney General's office in Tallahassee which deals with victim services. Bridges is also the treasurer for the Florida Council of Sexual Assault Services which is a statewide organi-

Bridge Championships. While there, I was shown today's deal by Tony Priday, one of Britain's best players ever. It epitemises the importance of counting, How would you try to win 10 tricks in spades against the club-king North's three-spade rebid, fol-lowing his initial two-over-one response, is game-forcing and shows three-card support.

Most players would win the first trick with dummy's club ace and immediately play a dismond to the king However, West wins with the ace and switches to a trump. When the hearts break badly, the contract dies.

A little unlucky, it's true, but the key to success is counting to

IU. You have three side-suit tricks: the A-K of hearts and the club ace. Bo if you can generate seven trump tricks, you are home. Is that feasible? Of course

There are three top trumps in the dummy, so you need to take four ruffs in hand. Start tout de suite by ruffing a club at trick two. Play a heart to dummy's king and ruff a club high. Repeat the process, playing a heart to dummy's ace and ruffing a club high. Then exit with your third heart.

East wins and returns a trump. After overtaking your 10 with dummy's jack, ruff the heart jack in hand. You have taken the necessary four ruffs, and the two high trumps remaining in the dummy give you 10 tricks in all.

Any time you see very strong trumps in the dummy, consider a dummy reversal.

Interact moving on with more projects

LAKE MARY - With half the school year already over. the Interact Club has been working on a variety of serv-ice projects that are geared toward aiding members of the Central Florida community.

According to Interact officer Libra Lagrone, there is no set agenda of projects.

When problems surface in the community, they are presented to club members who then decide if they wish to participate in the projects.

During November, Interact members treated abused children at the Seminole Children's Village in Winter Park to dinner at McDonalds and to the Lake Mary football game against Lyman High.

Later that same month, 16 members of the Interact Club took Thankagiving Dinner to the homeless people at the Orlando Rescue Mission. More recently, there have been other projects.

Upcoming on Saturday,
Jan. 30, the Lake Mary High club members will spend the afternoon at the Walt Disney World Village where they will clean the cottages for Give Kids the World.

Give Kids the World is an organisation that tries to grant the last wishes of terminally ill children.

A current project that is under consideration by the club members is the building of a fence around the reten-tion pond in front of Lake Mary Elementary School.

Because turtles and other animals live in and around the pond, young children tend to play around it.

Interact wants to construct some kind of barrier "to prevent someone from drowning," Lagrone explained.

Academy to boost Seminoles' image

SANFORD - Recently, a grant was approved for an Academy of Health Careers at Seminole High School. This is an important and exciting program for the school. There are literally hundreds of occupations connected with health care.

Any ninth graders and some tenth graders in Semi-nole County who are interested in a health career may apply for entry in August.

In addition, the academy offers hands-on training. There are plans for a resource bus that will go out into the community to provide basic services such as blood pre-ssure tests and health infor-mation. When students are in their last year at te Academy they will have clinical experiences and job opportunities.

The Academy is made up of a three-tier curriculum The first tier is for students who plan to attend a four year university or college in pursuit of a baccalaureate degree. Just a few of the occupations that one can pursue with this level of education are physician, pharmacist, dentist, nurse or hospital administrator.

The second tier is for students who wish to go on to a one or two year program at a community college or other post-secondary program. Some of the careers that can be pursued with this level of education are dental hygenist. respiratory therapist, radiologist and EMT.

The final tier prepares a student for work right out of high school. This includes careers such as a CNA, receptionist and various other positions.

All students of the Academy will have seven class periods a day. The first tier students will have a seventh subject while the second and third tiers will have a seventh period enrichment lab.

School board meetings set

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board has only one more scheduled meeting this

With the New Year's holiday. the first meeting of the month was cancelled as it was sched-uled to take place less than a week after the district staff returned to work after the long holiday weekend.

The next meeting agenda promises to be a full one.

They will meet on Thursday night, Jan. 26 at 7 p.m. in the district board room. 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

The agenda is expected to include items of some controversy, including the consideration of the recommendations of the high school review committee which has said that they believe Seminole, Lake Mary and Lyman high schools should awitch to the year round calen-dar as soon as possible in order to save the district money by postponing the construction of a seventh high school.

The board is also expected to take up the matter of drafting a resolution that would be sent to the governor regarding condom distribution in the schools.

The school board has said they oppose the recommendation of the governor's red ribbon panel on AIDS that has recommended that condoms be distributed in schools and instruction on their use be made available to stu-

Next month, there are meetings on Feb. 9 at 3:30 p.m. and on Feb. 23 at 7 p.m.
