Garner charged in child's death

SANFORD — A man charged with manslaughter and vehicular homicide in the death last year of a Lakeview Middle School student entered a written not guilty plea and waived his scheduled Wednesday arraignment on an amended information.

James Allen Garner is charged with manslaughter and vehicular homicide in the Oct. 9 accident which killed Jeremy Millhouse as he waited with friends at his school bus stop in Lake Mary. A trailer Garner was pulling allegedly came loose and struck some of the children as they waited outside the Hills of Lake Mary subdivision.

Garner is also charged with two counts of inflicting injury by culpable negligence, one for Arcadio Vergara and the second count for Michael Beckler, who were both injured in the accident. A fifth count of having a tag not assigned to his vehicle was also included.

The amended information against Garner was filed April 21 by assistant state attorney Charles Tabscott.

Student beaten at school

LAKE MARY — An argument with her ex-boyfriend sent a Greenwood Lakes Middle School eighth grader to the hospital on Monday.

According to principal Ted Barker, the two had broken up recently and the young man believed that she had been saying unkind things about him to other students. He confronted her about the matter in a remote area of the school and as they argued, the situation became violent.

"He beat her up pretty good," Barker said. According to Barker, the young woman was badly bruised and is quite sore as a result of the beating. Her father insisted that emergency services be summoned and the school obliged.

"We'd rather be overly cautious than under cautious in a situation like this," Barker said, "so we called the ambulance."

He said that she had no broken bones or other serious injuries.

The young man has been suspended from school for 10 days.

"We hate to see things like that happen," Barker said. "We can't be everywhere at once."

Stenstrom recovering

SANFORD — Julian Stenstrom, Sanford Herald columnist, has been released from the hospital and is resting comfortably at home.

Stenstrom was hospitalized two weeks ago at South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood where he battled pneumonia and other respiratory ailments.

"I'm gradually getting back in the saddle," he said this morning. "I'm working on my Way Back When photos and my Way Back When stories."

Stenstrom expects to be back to full strength in a week or two, he said.

His wife, Louise, said that he's "starting to get into a little trouble" already, so she is pleased with his recovery.

SANFORD — While most teens agree that there is a juvenile crime problem their suggestions about how to solve it vary greatly.

"Throw them in jail," said Shelia Gillins, an 11th grader at Seminole High School. "That will teach them a lesson and I think that it will scare them."

Study shows black youths treated more severely

SANFORD — A study analyzing juvenile justice in Florida will be conducted over the next nine months to determine why minorities are over-represented in the system when compared to the general population.

George Hinchliffe, of HRS who is studying minorities in the juvenile justice system, said Florida is one of five states awarded a U.S. Department of Justice grant to conduct the study. A national conference on Juvenile Justice was conducted last weekend in Tallahassee.

Hinchliffe said generally, Florida communities have 18 to 24 percent minority populations. Based on general population figures, it would be expected that 18 to 24 percent of youth held in detention centers would be minorities. However, a much higher percentage of minorities are represented in the youth held in detention centers for committing delinquent acts.

In Seminole County, statistics for 1990-91 show about 1,250 delinquency cases filed against white males, including Hispanics, compared to about 625 against black males, about 300 against white females and about 160 for black females.

"HRS needs to get out of it," said Andrew Jackson.

four years late.

Tuesday, commissioners approved a $283,000 contract with Yankee Lake's engineers, Camp Dresser and McKee, to design a system to allow highly-treated wastewater to be returned to homes and businesses for irrigation. The sewage treatment plant was built five years ago with wastewater reuse in mind, but the actual engineering design was never performed.

The CDM task will also include a market study that will attempt to predict the demand for treated wastewater as the system capacity can be increased accordingly, said Public Works Director Larry Sellers.

With the new expenses, the total cost to date for Yankee Lake, excluding operating expenses, has nearly reached $28.7 million. The Shooting lands man in prison for 10 years

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — A man who pleaded guilty to aggravated battery for shooting a man in Sanford has been sentenced to ten years in prison.

Ossie Lee Faison, 19, was given credit for 258 days time served off the ten year sentence for shooting David Trammel in June 1992 at Castle Brewer Court and for shooting into an apartment at the housing project.

Originally charged with attempted murder, Faison pleaded guilty to aggravated battery shortly after his March 30 trial began. Trammel, who is confined to a wheelchair as the result of the shooting, was in the courtroom scheduled to testify, when Faison entered his plea. He will serve a minimum of three years in prison for use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

In addition, Faison was sentenced in two other cases, the prison time to run concurrently. He was also to pay restitution and some court costs.

The two remaining cases involve battery which Faison committed

Students: Here's one way to skip final exams

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Seniors at Lyman High School who have worked hard all year and maintained a grade point average of at least 3.5 on the four point scale can opt out of their final exams this year.

The school board voted Tuesday to approve the proposal made to them by seniors Stan Goykhman and Matt Hicks during the board meeting.

The school board must approve such requests on an annual basis. This was the first request from Lyman. Only Lake Howell High School has made a similar request.

"I think this is a very good idea," said board member Nancy Warren. "We approved a similar incentive program at Lake Howell the last couple of years and I'm glad to do this at Lyman as well."

Goykhman, who has a 3.6 grade point average, and Hicks, who has a perfect 4.0 GPA and who will be a commencement speaker at his graduation, both qualify for the program, but said they will take their exams anyway.

Health and Safety Fair opens Friday in Sanford

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The fourth annual Health and Safety Fair takes place tomorrow. The event is being held at the Sanford Civic Center.

The annual educational endeavor has been drawing larger numbers of visitors each year, as interest has increased in the community and among health organizations which will be participating.

The fair is being sponsored by the city of Sanford in conjunction with Central Florida Regional Hospital and the Greater Sanford

Chamber of Commerce. There is no charge for admission and the event is open to persons throughout the area.

Various health screenings will be provided free of charge including blood pressure, cholesterol, hearing, glucose, spinal, pulmonary function and eye exams.

Safety issues to be addressed will be identification of poisonous snakes, boating and water safety, electrical, in-home, crime prevention, personal protection and fire safety.

For the children there will be finger casting, doctor and nurses hats, McGruff, the "Take a bite out of crime" dog, a talking ambulance, animal control, Sparky the fire dog, Smokey Bear, reptiles, birds and Hug-A-Ling, the Panda.

The Sanford Fire Department will provide a high altitude rescue demonstration and a driver extrication procedure. The Sanford Police Canine unit will run through its paces at 3:30 p.m.

Educational information and pamphlets ranging from pre-natal care to Alzheimer disease will be available. Food, drinks, hearing aid batteries, healthy cookbooks and other items will be offered for sale.

Drawings for door prizes are scheduled throughout the day.

Teen sentenced for shooting father

PENSACOLA — A 17-year-old who told police he shot his father for grounding him because he skipped school has been sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Clyde Whitman, who was not seriously injured by the bullet that grazed his face, stood beside his son, Cameron Whitman, as Circuit Judge Kenneth Williams imposed the sentence Tuesday.

The former junior at Tate High School just north of this Florida Panhandle city pleaded no contest in March to attempted first-degree murder for the shooting last Nov. 20.

The youth shot his father as he slept in his bedroom. He took his dad's car and called the Escambia County Sheriff's Department to report the house had been burglarized.

Later, he told an investigator he shot his father because he was angry about being grounded. Then he changed his story saying he had planned to shoot his father but changed his mind, and the gun went off by accident.

AF rocket, satellite blast off

CAPE CANAVERAL — An Air Force rocket blasted off with another in a series of global positioning satellites designed to provide precise navigation guidance worldwide to both military and civilian aircraft, ships, submarines and troops.

The 128-foot Delta 2 and its Navstar satellite lifted off at 8:07 p.m. Wednesday from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

The GPS constellation of satellites will provide exact position information with an accuracy of at least 50 feet and the exact time derived from on board atomic clocks.

The new $65 million satellite, the 20th of an advanced design, separated from its booster 25 minutes into flight. Once settled into an 11,000-mile high orbit, it will become the 23rd operational satellite in the series.

The Delta was the second of 10 to be launched under a $317 million contract between the Air Force and rocket manufacturer McDonnell Douglas. Since 1990, Delta rockets have lofted 19 Navstars from the Cape. The first in the advanced series was launched in February 1989.

Judge John Rawls dies at 72

TALLAHASSEE — John S. Rawls, a former state legislator and 1st District Court of Appeals judge, has died. He was 72.

Rawls, who died Tuesday, was a Greenwood native who graduated from the University of Florida Law School in 1948. He was elected to the state senate from Marianne in 1954.

Rawls was appointed by Florida Gov. Farris Bryant in 1961 to the 1st District Court of Appeals.

While in the state senate, Rawls was a member of an influential group of North Florida legislators called the "Pork Chop Gang."

He rose to the president pro tem of the senate before resigning to accept the appointment of the 1st DCA, where he served until 1979.

Teen Challenge open house

Programs deal with family drug and alcohol problems

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Teen Challenge is celebrating the start of full operation this weekend. A Grand Open House will be held this Friday and Saturday, and everyone is invited.

Located on five acres of land at 3706 S. Sanford Ave., the organization is operating in a 30,000 square foot building formerly used as a modular office complex by Cardinal Industries.

Many volunteers spent long hours in renovations to the facility, estimated at a cost of over $75,000.

The work of Teen Challenge is to operate programs mainly aimed at helping youth, adults and families with drug and alcohol problems.

"We consider ourselves a Christian Discipleship program," said Assistant Men's Director Bob Swicegood.

The organization presently has a staff of over a dozen people. "There are 40 men and 12 women involved in the residential program," Swicegood said. "They live here, they study here, and remain for a 12 to 14 week program."

Teen Challenge first moved into the Sanford location in early January, moving its Men's Training Center and Men's Induction Center from Winter Haven, and its Women's Training Center from Orlando.

Other facilities are still operating in Fort Lauderdale and Orlando.

Alan Bullock, director for development for the state Teen Challenge operations had earlier indicated the Sanford facility would eventually house up to 100 persons including 10 live-in staff members."

The organization has also been working on contacting as many as 800 different types of churches which support Teen Challenge.

Teen Challenge was started in 1958 by the Rev. David Wilkerson, author of "The Cross and the Switchblade." The non-profit organization presently has 117 centers in the United States and 168 centers in 26 foreign countries.

The Grand Open House event will be held Friday from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. Saturday, the open house will begin at 10 a.m., and continue until 6 p.m., with live music, door prizes, snacks and guided tours of the facilities.

For additional information on Teen Challenge, phone 330-9600.

Police arrest dentist for shooting bride

By The Associated Press

TAMPA — After a daylong manhunt, police Wednesday arrested a prominent dentist accused of shooting his newlywed wife after she accused him of being a bigamist. Police said he may have two other wives.

Dr. Charles Anthony Myers, 49, was taken into custody on charges of attempted first-degree murder after he was spotted at a hotel in nearby Clearwater. Detectives telephoned his room and talked him into laying down his gun before coming out.

Myers had been separated from his wife of two months, Evelyn, and earlier this week she filed papers seeking annulment on the grounds he was a bigamist.

"What we understand at this time is that he has two other wives," said police Sgt. Harold Sells. "That's what we understand the confrontation was about."

Tuesday, police said, Myers drove to the elementary school where his wife worked as a librarian and tricked her into taking a ride because he was going to commit suicide," Sells said.

-Police Sgt. Harold Sells

Police said within minutes and three blocks of Tampa Bay Boulevard Elementary School, Myers shot her twice, once in the left knee and once in the shoulder. She managed to scramble out the door and fell to the pavement, where Myers shot her a third time, in the left shoulder.

Mrs. Myers told police her husband told her when she got in the car: "I'm going to kill you."

Mrs. Myers, 47, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital in critical condition. After the shooting, Sells said, Myers called his other two wives.

"He called the other two this morning and told them to get their affairs together

The two women, whom police did not identify, went to Myers' dental office and spoke with homicide detectives. There was no indication from police Wednesday when the other two women learned of each other, or if they knew of Evelyn Myers.

She had filed a lawsuit Monday alleging that Myers faked divorce papers to apply for a marriage license. The marriage license for Myers and Evelyn Louise Lamar lists a previous divorce for him on Aug. 31, 1992. It does not specify the ex-wife. Court records were unclear about any past marriages.

Myers, who had a thriving dental practice, was chairman of the local chapter of the American Cancer Society and in December was one of four people chosen for a humanitarian award.

"It was more than a shock," said Henry Carley, a past Tampa NAACP president who knew Myers through their work in the organization. "He was a role model not only because he was a successful dentist but because he embodied all the good things we hope our children to be."

Colleges who lost legacy request another hearing

By The Associated Press

DELAND — Two colleges are requesting another hearing in a court's ruling that blocked them from a philanthropist's $8 million estate.

Lawyers for Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach and Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., filed a request for rehearing Wednesday in Volusia County Circuit Court.

Judge Robert Rawlins ruled April 30 that the two colleges don't deserve a part of the estate based on Archie Greenberg's wishes. Instead, Stetson University in Deland received the money. "It's hard for us to imagine why Brandeis is having such trouble grasping the facts in this case," said Stetson spokesman Mark Whitaker.

Since 1960, when Greenberg made his fortune selling a Miami hotel, he gave large sums to schools that agreed to pay him interest for life. Greenberg, who for many years lived a meager existence in cheap Daytona Beach motels, routinely returned those interest payments soon after receiving them.

In the lawsuit filed in February, Embry-Riddle and Brandeis claimed Greenberg was deluded in 1961 when he dropped those schools from his will and left everything to Stetson.

Chiles outlines prison plan

Lawmakers head to Capitol soon for special session

By GURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles is ready to summon lawmakers to the Capitol later this month to consider his 21,000-bed prison program.

But legislative support appears scant for the governor's 25-cents-a-pack cigarette tax to finance the five-year construction program.

"I'm finding less support for that than there was two or three weeks ago," Senate President Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, said Wednesday.

The governor, who vetoed much of the 7,000-bed prison construction plan passed earlier this year by the Legislature, planned today to announce a special session for the last week of May on the issue.

If lawmakers commit to the long-term construction program, Chiles said Wednesday he would ask the Legislature to increase the threshold at which inmates are released early from 97.5 percent of capacity to 99 percent. That would free up 792 beds and would require federal court assent.

In addition, Chiles wants to quickly build additional dormitories at four existing institutions and a drug intervention center to produce another 788 beds next year.

"We don't want to let any dangerous people out," Chiles said. "Part of the plan is how quickly we can bring some of those (prison beds) on line."

In October, the pool of less dangerous inmates now being released early will dry up, forcing release of more violent offenders.

Senate Republicans who oppose higher taxes for prison construction said the plan sounds a lot like proposals they've made for nearly two years. They said it was evidence Chiles has not persuaded lawmakers or the public to support his proposal.

"The governor's failed on selling his package. People aren't responding," said Sen. Malcolm Beard, R-Seffner.

At a budget subcommittee hearing Wednesday, lawmakers raised several doubts about the plan with Corrections Secretary Harry Singletary. For example, senators wondered how the department would acquire the 19 prison sites needed to build 21,000 beds in five years.

It can take a year or more to find sites for the prisons, and a report issued by the department indicated only three are currently available.

"What this Senate is trying to find out is whether we have a real plan before we run out and find money," said Sen. Locke Burt, R-Ormond Beach.

Despite the questions, there is sentiment among some senators to find a compromise with Chiles on a long-term prison plan or face the wrath of voters incensed about early prison releases.

"We're going to all be responsible for it and we're all going to have to answer for it," said Sen. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor. "We have to have a game plan ready to go."

For Crenshaw, that game plan might be a veto override of the Legislature's original prison plan. That takes a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate.

"There are an awful lot of questions, whether the prisons are full and who's being released," he said. "Overriding the veto may be the first order of business."

Motorcycle recovered

Sanford police arrested William Clarence Cox, 19, of 1717 E. 18th Street Tuesday. Police responded to a complaint call regarding a three-wheeled motorcycle seen being driven recklessly near Park Avenue and 18th Street. When the officer arrived, he reported seeing Cox pushing the motorcycle behind an apartment. Although the officer reported Cox said the motorcycle was his, a computer check revealed it had been reported stolen in Apopka on March 27. Cox was charged with grand theft.

Robbery resolved

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested Leroy Leon Fisher, 2171 W. 18th Street, Sanford, on Tuesday. According to the arrest report, on May 8 or 9, a man forced his way into an auto parts store on W. First Street, and removed $4 from a cash drawer. Deputies said the burglary was captured on video tape, and Fisher was identified. He was arrested at his home and charged with burglary.

Lake Mary drug arrest

Dean Andrew Cross, 30, of Orlando, was arrested Tuesday by Lake Mary police, following a speeding stop. The officer reported noticing the smell of marijuana in Cross's vehicle and searched it. He reported finding apparent marijuana cigarette ashes in the ash tray, and found a baggie containing marijuana. Cross was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and possession of marijuana, under 20 grams.

Attempted murder

Sanford police are investigating a burglary and attempted murder case today. According to an incident report, a 30 year old man living in Lake Monroe Terrace, reported two men broke into his home Tuesday night while he was sleeping on his sofa. He said one man pointed a sawed off shotgun at him, threatened to kill him, then shot him before the two men fled. The man was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds in his left wrist and right chest.

Reverse drug sting

Two men were arrested in Altamonte Springs Tuesday, during a reverse sting drug sale operation by members of the City County Investigations Bureau. Sheriff's deputies reported two men approached an undercover officer on C.R. 427, and asked to purchase crack cocaine. The two men were identified as Thomas Peter Ratest, 25, 114 Sandelewood Way, Longwood, and Thomas W. Porino, 27, of Altamonte Springs. Each was charged with purchase of crack cocaine.

Retail theft

Rutha Ann Williams, 21, #49 Seminole Gardens, was arrested by Sanford police Tuesday. A security guard at a retail store on S. Orlando Drive reported Williams had placed a pair of shorts, a skirt, and three tubes of wallpaper border in her purse, and attempted to leave without paying for the merchandise. Williams was charged with retail theft.

Warrant arrests made

Carl Wendell McClaren, 37, 1631 Borrows Lane, Sanford, was turned in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday by a bail bondaman. McClaren was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Samson Christopher Levant, 26, 823 Valencia Court, Sanford, turned himself in to sheriff's deputies Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Balley Spencer Williams, 41, 1301 1/2 W. 13th Street, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on a Volusia County warrant for failing to appear for order to show cause (attempted possession of controlled substance).

Raymond Francis Toast, 19, 114 W. Woodland Drive, Sanford, was arrested by deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol with serious injuries.

Ernestine Johnson, 31, 209 Cove Villas, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Tuesday. She was wanted on an Orange County warrant for obtaining unemployment compensation by fraud.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

Burglaries were reported in two nearby apartments in Cove Villa Apartments Tuesday afternoon. In the first incident, three cartons of cigarettes were reportedly stolen. Within an hour, a VCR and a boom box were reportedly stolen from a neighboring residence.

An estimated $1,650 in items were reported stolen in a vehicular burglary early Wednesday in the 2700 block of Sanford Avenue.

A silver 1989 Pontiac LeMans was reported stolen Tuesday from the parking lot at Shenandoah Village Apartments. The car's license number was listed as L2B 61X.

A 25 caliber Beretta handgun was reportedly stolen during a residential burglary in the 100 block of Pinecrest Drive early Wednesday.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

A TV, valued at $150 was reportedly stolen between Friday and Monday, from the Career Development office at Seminole High School.

Deputies responded to a burglar alarm call at a Lake Mary restaurant on Greenwood Blvd. early Wednesday. Although entry was noted on the southwest rear door, nothing was immediately determined to have been taken.

A purse, wallet, and personal papers were reportedly stolen Tuesday in a vehicular burglary in the 3000 block of W. 20th Street in Lincoln Heights.

A vehicle burglary was reported Tuesday in the 200 block of Lake Breeze Circle in Lake Mary. Items reported missing were valued at $40, but over $150 in damage was reported to the vehicle.

A convenience store clerk on W. S.R. 46 told deputies a man carrying a shopping bag, removed 100 packs of cigarettes from the store early Wednesday, while she was distracted by other customers.

Rape defendant: 'It was love' after she insisted on condom

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — A rape defendant who broke into a woman's apartment and confronted her with a knife said her request that he wear a condom proves she wanted sex.

"We were making love after that," Joel Valdez, 28, testified Wednesday.

In September, a grand jury refused to indict Valdez, drawing protests from women's groups and the alleged victim. A second grand jury indicted him in October.

On Wednesday, the defendant testified that he was drunk and "looking for someone to party with" when he entered the apartment at 3 a.m. Sept. 18.

He said he got scared and picked up a steak knife after hearing noise upstairs, and went to investigate. Upstairs, he said, he confronted the naked woman.

"She told me to do her a favor. She told me to wear a condom so I did," he said. "She tore the package off. She put it on me. We were making love after that."

In sometimes tearful testimony Tuesday, the woman, a 26-year-old artist, said: "I knew there wasn't much I could do to prevent what was going to happen. I thought maybe I could protect myself from dying from AIDS."

If convicted, Valdez could get life in prison.

Baker cooks in annual awful writing contest

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — A baker won the 12th annual Bulwer-Lytton bad-writing contest with a deliciously awful baker's-dozen account of a romantic interlude.

William "Buddy" Ocheltree, 39, of Lilburn, Ga., wrote: "She really wasn't my type — a hard-looking, untalented reporter for the local cat-box liner; but the first second that third-rate representative of the fourth-estate cracked open a new fifth of old Scotch, my sixth sense said seventh heaven was as close as an eighth note from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, so, nervous as a 10th grader drowning in an 11th-hour cramming for a physics exam, I swept her into my longing arms, and while humming the 12th of Never, I got lucky on Friday the 13th."

Ocheltree's entry was chosen Wednesday from among more than 7,000 submitted from around the world to San Jose

State University, sponsor of the contest. The idea is to come up with the worst opening line of an imaginary work of fiction.

The competition is named for Victorian novelist Edward George Bulwer-Lytton, author of the immortal line "It was a dark and stormy night."

Ocheltree's stood out as the, uh, best. "It was hard. You can write badly easy enough, but to be intentionally bad takes some creativity," he said.

"It was a nice combination of intelligence, imagination and bad taste — just the sort of thing we like to see in our contest," said English professor Scott Rice, chief organizer and judge.

Ocheltree's prize? A "cheap word processor," Rice said.

Raising reduced rate to rent Civic Center is a good move

At many Sanford City Commission meetings, requests are made for either a reduced rate or free use for the Civic Center. Lake Mary is faced with similar requests for use of its Community Building.

Applicants who appear before commissions often go into great detail to explain how they are deserving of a lower rate than that normally charged. Others suggest they should be granted use of the facility at no charge.

In many instances, applicants are supported by members of their organization. A sufficient turnout may have a tendency to persuade commissions to agree on the request. They will approve a request, indicating they are following "the will of the people."

Requests are made by civic clubs, churches, senior citizen groups, youth groups, fraternal organizations and businesses. Commissioners are then put into an awkward position of determining which organization may be deserving of lower rates.

Most want to raise funds for some purpose. Others wish to set up tables and distribute educational materials.

In Sanford, too many reductions have been given. People wishing to use the Civic Center are beginning to believe all they have to do is make a plea, and a lower rate or no charge will be approved.

The same holds true in Lake Mary, whenever the Community Building is needed. Monday night, the Sanford City Commission doubled the hourly reduced rate. This will help in maintaining the Civic Center's maintenance and repairs which are increasing.

Sanford also plans to reexamine the eligibility required for granting reduced rates. Both moves are commendable.

When new guidelines are made, we urge they be stringent enough to avoid constant appeals for lower rates.

We urge Lake Mary to take similar steps. When a commission approves a zero rental fee, the cost is an additional burden on the taxpayers.

Bosnia intervention not in our interest

As President Clinton seeks popular support for U.S. military intervention in Bosnia, the division of opinion would be comical if the subject weren't so serious.

On one side, favoring intervention, are such unlikely bedfellows as Margaret Thatcher, liberal New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis, National Review, The New Republic, and Holocaust memorialist Elie Wiesel. On the other are former New York Times editor Abe Rosenthal, Pat Buchanan, a healthy majority of the American people, the Kissinger-Eagleburger-Scowcroft axis, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and me.

For most of my life I have been what used to be called an "interventionist." In 1940 I was rooting for the United States to get into World War II. For 45 years after it ended I was a stout believer in the need for America to fight and win the Cold War. And in 1990 I agreed with President Bush that Saddam Hussein's threat to the Middle East warranted elimination by whatever means was necessary.

But in each of these cases I sincerely believed that a vital -- I repeat, vital -- American interest was involved, justifying the loss of American lives, if necessary. Now, however, American military intervention in Bosnia is being urged by a weird coalition of people who have never subjected the Bosnian controversy to that essential test.

Some of them are tough old veterans of the Cold War, whose dream of a Pax Americana entails bloodying the nose of any foreign despot who behaves in ways we dislike. Others opposed the Cold War and the Gulf war precisely because it was so clearly in America's interest to win them; but now, repelled by CNN photographs of Serbian atrocities, they regard the Pentagon as a sort of massive SWAT team, and the lives of an unknown number of this country's professional soldiers as a small price to pay to soothe their inflamed sensibilities.

The division of opinion would be comical if the subject weren't so serious.

Need I tell you which of these various categories President Clinton and his advisers fall in? Twenty-five years ago our commander in chief wrote a letter declaring that he "loathed" the American military, and to this day he has never retracted the statement. In the White House he is surrounded by a gaggle of ex-flower children who loathe it as much as he did -- and much more recently, if one junior staffer's deliberate insult to a general is typical.

Small wonder, then, that their notion of how to use it is to send it -- without a defined mission, without serious allies, without the slightest notion of how to extract it if things go wrong -- on an open-ended expedition into the Balkans to make their hyperactive consciences feel better.

Let me say it again: American forces should be put in harm's way when, and only when, some vital interest of the United States is at stake. It is simply absurd to say that we have such an interest in the sanctity of all international borders, or in those of Bosnia in particular. Poppycock! England will be lucky if it is still hanging on to Scotland when the current worldwide nationalist fever has run its course.

Slobodan, Saddam and Vietnam

They are together, at last, on our front pages: Saddam Hussein and Slobodan Milosevic -- despots locked separately, but equally deservingly, in our cross-hairs of military retribution.

They have much in common: Saddam was labeled "Worse Than Hitler" by America's President George Bush. Slobodan got his Hitlerian label the old-fashioned way; he earned it, by sponsoring Bosnian Serb thugs as his designated ethnic cleansers of Bosnian Muslims. Both made a world of promises; both proved themselves liars unworthy of world trust.

They have one crucial difference: Serbia's Slobodan is slimy; Iraq's Saddam is oily. Never forget: It was oil -- Saddam's oil, plus his capture of Kuwait's oil and threat to Saudi Arabia's -- that emboldened European and American politicians in ways mere principles of human rights cannot equal. President Bush was able to forge an easy global consensus. Europeans were eager to make war on Iraq in defense of the noble principle of oil rights. Today, these allies have been unwilling to take military action to stop the massacre of human rights in Europe's backyard.

Today, the news about Saddam is that Washington's hawks and doves have united in urging military retaliation if Iraqi terrorists arrested for trying to assassinate George Bush in Kuwait prove to have been carrying out Saddam's revenge. Right on.

The news about Slobodan, in contrast, is a story of divided opinion. Washington's hawks and doves are split, most curiously, over whether the United States should push for multilateral military air support to curb Serb-sponsored extermination of Muslims in Bosnia -- if the cease-fire winds up shredded as easily as the paper upon which it was written and signed.

Many of the traditional (translation: Vietnam War) doves are fervently demanding U.S. and/or allied air strikes against Serbian military targets in Bosnia. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., is among the most forceful advocates of a military response.

Meanwhile, many traditional hawks lead the cautious clamor for military inaction against Serbian ethnic cleansers. Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., himself a former prisoner of war in Vietnam, makes that case in terms that are personally compelling, but (to this listener) less convincing.

Let's go to the videotape: Biden vs. McCain, on NBC's "Today Show." Biden urged NATO air strikes on Serb military targets.

BIDEN: If we do nothing, there's a Serb victory and the continuation of genocide.

McCain: ... That was the same rationale we used to start the bombing of North Vietnam. ... Militarily, if you want to affect the situation, you have to inject massive ground troops ... and I'm not ready to send young American men and women into that quagmire.

BIDEN: ... What do we do if we don't do anything?

McCain: I'm not ready to risk another Vietnam situation. ...

BIDEN: We, in the name of protecting humanity ... let a butcher like Milosevic dictate the outcome. This is not Vietnam. ... There are no superpowers. Russia is not involved. ... It's dangerous but there are things we can do.

McCain's softline has hardline support, including ex-Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and ex-Secretary of State L. A. W. R. E. Eagleburger. But just when you think you've got it -- that doves are hawks, hawks are doves -- along come former Secretary of State George Shultz and Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, arguing passionately that we must fight Serbian genocide. These Republican elders blazed the trail for President Clinton's welcome decision to push for allied air support and lift the arms embargo. That would give Bosnian Muslims a chance to fight their own battles, and keep the United States out of a quagmire.

We await our president's declaration of our national, strategic and abiding international interests. We know that it is in everybody's interest to stop ethnic wars from spreading throughout the Balkans and former Soviet republics.

And we remember the vow of human interest we took a half-century ago and repeated just the other day, while dedicating the Holocaust Museum. It was: Never Again! Dare we now change it to: Hardly ever?

Slobodan got his Hitlerian label the old-fashioned way; he earned it.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Second-guessing is out of line

Attorney General Janet Reno told a congressional committee recently that she was not going to engage in "recriminations" regarding the tragic ending to the standoff in Waco.

Well, I have a few recriminations that have been gnawing at me, and some criminalizations, too. And unlike the sensible Ms. Reno, I have no qualms about engaging in them. I begin with her most contentious critic, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Conyers' assault on Reno took place before a House Judiciary Committee hearing into the Waco disaster, in which Branch Davidian cult leader David Koresh and it was then believed, some 85 of his followers were incinerated in a fire they set after the feds began tear-gassing them. The government had mounted a "military operation" that was "a profound disgrace to law enforcement," said Conyers, and he wanted Reno to know "there's at least one member of Congress who is not going to rationalize the innocent deaths of two dozen children."

That statement astounded me. Here the man was, talking to the person whose decision had resulted in the deaths of four score human beings and whose face clearly showed the agony of that burden, and he was implying that she felt no pain. If she had stretched him into a string and tied him into a half hitch, I would've understood -- all the more so because Reno had openly accepted the blame, thereby demonstrating she has more backbone than the bulk of the pols who sit in judgment of her.

Then there's the gripe about the "military" nature of the government's siege of the Branch Davidian compound. The left wing loves this one. "The root cause of the lethal outcome (of the assault) was its central concept as a military operation," editorialized The Nation magazine.

Let us concede that the conduct of the operation is fertile ground for critical analysis. Who botched the initial raid on Feb. 28? Why not ring the compound with concertina and wait out Koresh and his fanatic flock? Why was the final attack executed incrementally instead of with fierce dispatch, as military commandos might have done?

All that is worthy of debate. But to decry the "military" character of the operation? What would the critics suggest? Inviting them to a picnic? Striking up a boot-scootin' boogie and hope they can't resist? Telling them Koresh cannot possibly be Jesus Christ because the real Jesus called a press conference in Waco and denounced him? What you would do, Mr. Conyers?

Then there's the right-wing argument that the Waco siege was further evidence of an emerging police state. Why not simply leave the Branch Davidians alone with their automatic weapons and grenades?

Well, there's the matter of the monstrous arsenal being illegal. And certainly the authorities have a right to be curious about who the Branch Davidians planned to blow away with all that weaponry. And finally, there is the matter of the four law enforcement officers the cultists murdered on day one. Sufficient reason, I think, to justify their apprehension.

Then there is the claim by some that the attention accorded the Waco calamity amounts to a libel of religion. The New Republic, for example, noted its diamay over "the insidious disparagement of religious life -- even cultic religious life -- by the media and politicians in the last few days."

That is flat-out nonsense. David Koresh was a lunatic who preyed on the addled, the lost and the lonely.

I have a few recriminations that have been gnawing at me, and some criminalizations, too.

Jackson, a Seminole County school bus driver. "You can't touch a kid. Not even the parents can touch a kid."

Jackson said that parents and other authority figures have simply lost control over the young people because they are no longer allowed to use corporal punishment as a means of keeping them in line.

He believes that young people were better behaved when they were afraid of the consequences of their actions if they did something wrong.

"Now," Jackson said, "they do whatever they want because they got everything on their side."

As long as the young people are in control, he said, they will do progressively worse things. They'll start off with minor crimes and get away with it and eventually they'll think that they can, literally, get away with murder.

Eveltha Byrd agreed. "The whole thing started going down hill when we couldn't whoop our kids any more," she said. "Control has to be put back into the parent's hands, or nothing is going to get any better."

Byrd believes that young people have lost respect for adults because "they know they can do what they want and no one will put them in line."

Crime is a natural result of that lack of respect, she said. "They don't care what they do."

Justice

The new study will compare data from the department of education, HRS, Florida Department of Law Enforcement and files from prosecuting attorneys and public defenders and the courts on juveniles. The economic and social factors which may play a part in the over-representation of minorities in the juvenile system will also be studied.

The preliminary report on juvenile justice indicates black youths who commit crimes in Florida were treated more severely than their white counterparts, a U.S. Justice Department study said.

Young black defendants were nearly three times more likely to be tried as adults in 1992 than white youths who committed crimes. And blacks were treated harsher at each step of the judicial process in both juvenile and adult court, said the study released Wednesday in Tallahassee.

"It's the same thing in the adult system," said Rep. Elvin Martinez, a Tampa Democrat who heads the House Criminal Justice Committee. "Regardless of who it is, if you are black, you are more likely to go to prison."

The study — the largest-scale examination conducted of how Florida treats its young criminals — was released to a panel of top state officials headed by Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay, Supreme do," she said. "They know nothing is going to happen to them."

Kathi Bennett thinks that young people have come to expect to have everything "handed to them on a silver platter."

Young people turn to crime, she said, because they don't understand they should have to work to earn the things they want.

"It comes to them so easy," she said. "We give them too much and they expect it. We've got to make them work for what they want."

Bobby Lundquist, an assistant principal at Seminole High School, said that there has to be agreement among all aspects of society or nothing will change.

"The one thing that has to happen is that society has to come together on this one," he said. "We need to take the approach which shows young people that there is more to life than crime."

Lundquist suggested that young people need to see that there are better opportunities through education.

"We need to work on the positive, not the negative," he said.

Bill Moore, principal of Sanford Middle School, believes that parents need more help with their children.

"We're getting away from the extended family," he said. "If we could have that, there would be more controls on young people to keep them away from crime."

Court Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett and Attorney General Bob Butterworth.

The committee is seeking remedies for the state's juvenile justice system, which has been criticized for doing little to help or punish children who commit crimes.

Florida, which tried more than 6,500 juveniles as adults last year, leads the nation in treating young offenders as adults, said researchers working for the Justice Department and the state Legislature's Commission on Juvenile Justice.

"The deeper you go into the system, the more over-represented minorities become," said Woodrow W. Harper, director of the Juvenile Justice Commission.

Researchers studied the records of 60,000 young offenders aged 10 to 17 who were arrested last year. White youths account for about 60 percent of the 1.3 million Floridians that age, black youngsters about 20 percent.

Black youths make up more than half of the juveniles arrested for violent felonies and two-thirds of those tried as adults. The arrest rate for black juveniles doubled in the last decade, and increased by half for white youngsters.

Researchers also noted that other studies show one in five black youths who were arrested were tried as adults on a first criminal charge.

Information from the Associated Press is contained in this report.

Tenth grader Carrie Crews thinks a pro-active approach would be more effective in curbing crime among young people. But, she said, the problem is not entirely the fault of the younger generation.

"I think it's very important for the parents to get involved in their children's lives," she said.

Erin McKibbin, another tenth grader, believes that most young people who get into trouble are simply bored.

"They are not interested in getting involved in activities," she said. "They are bored with themselves."

Sheirce Wesley, a ninth grader, suggested that adults should work on getting drugs and violence "off the streets where they are tempting the kids out there."

She said there should be classes to teach young people self discipline and alternatives to violence.

At Sanford Middle School, seventh graders Rebekah Urton and Kari Waddle said they thought adults just don't know how to treat young people to earn their respect and, thus, to get them to act more appropriately.

"Teachers should be nicer to us," Urton said. "We have one teacher who is really mean and everyone makes fun of him and tries to find ways to be mean to him."

On the other hand, Jermaine Mackey, also in the seventh grade, believes adults need to take a harder line with young people.

"They need to treat (young people) stricter," he said.

Seventh grader Tony Guerra wants to take a harder line with young people who run afoul of the law.

"Put 'em all in jail," he said. "They'll learn some self discipline there."

"To add a few points to the GPA," Goykhman explained.

Warren expressed concern that the senior class had waited until nearly the end of their final semester to ask for the board approval.

"Time just got away from us," Hicks said.

Goykhman added that the students had originally hoped to exempt students who had a grade point average of 3.0 or better from the tests, but many teachers and the administration opposed the plan. The students offered a counterproposal of a minimum 3.5 GPA and the administration and teachers agreed.

"We just had to do a little negotiating to be sure we had everyone's approval," he said.

Teachers were polled by the senior class and their response was 88 to 6 in favor of the exemption.

Assistant principal Wolfgang Halbig said the administration was glad to be able to reward the high-achieving students for their efforts.

"It's nice to do something for the students at that end of the spectrum," he said. "We have programs to assist those students who are performing below par and we have dropout prevention programs, but we don't have anything for these students who work so hard."

According to Goykhman there are approximately 70 to 100 students in the class of 450 who would be qualified to not have to take their final exams.

He and Halbig agreed, however, that the majority of students would probably take the tests despite the option.

"Grade point average is very important when it comes to college admissions," Halbig said.

Faison was sentenced to 364 days in jail with credit for 184 days served after pleading no contest to a battery charge stating he punched Seminole County correctional officer Jerry Ray, Nov. 4.

In a third case, Faison was sentenced to 364 days in jail with credit for 144 days time served for battery on a law enforcement officer. He was charged with kicking Sanford Police Cpl. David Semones April 29, 1992. Faison was also sentenced to five years in department of corrections custody for a second count of resisting an officer with violence with 144 days credit for time served. total includes $7.5 million for the county's infamous 2 a.m. 1985 decision to buy the property, $15.7 million to design and build the facility, and about $5 million to design and build the wetlands disposal system.

The latest spending on Yankee Lake angered the chief opponent of the facility, former county commission candidate Art Davis. Davis challenged the construction of the plant in 1988, saying it didn't contain equipment and pipelines for the reuse system.

"We paid premium money for the land and we paid premium money to build it and now it's just sitting there," said Davis. "It seems like any time the county gets caught with its pants down, they throw more money at a problem and do another study."

Yankee Lake "came on line" last summer after nearly two years of permitting and construction delays. It was operated for about five months before county officials ordered it shut down. They had found the facility's crud-eating bacteria died because there wasn't enough sewage flow to keep them alive.

The plant was designed to treat 2.6 million gallons per day, but only 250,000 gpd to 600,000 gpd was available for treatment from surrounding neighborhoods.

With insufficient bacterial action, the effluent didn't meet state and federal standards to be pumped to the wetlands disposal system. County officials decided to shut the plant down and build a backup disposal system, which will basically be a big hole in the ground.

But as it turns out, effluent which doesn't meet wetlands disposal standards is great for reuse. It becomes irrigation water containing fertilizing nutrients. Folks in Sanford using the city's reuse system report lush green lawns and foliage without fertilization. Environmentalists like sewage reuse because it reduces the demand on drinking water for irrigation.

Sellers said the pit, called a "rapid infiltration basin" or "RIB," would also serve as storage for reuse water on rainy days. Sellers said county crews will dig the RIB, reducing expenses.

Sellers says about one million gpd should be available by next year from Heathrow, Lake Forest and some diversion from the county's Greenwood Lakes treatment facility. He said a portion of the treated wastewater will be pumped to the wetlands and a portion to reuse customers.

IN MEMORIAM TO OUR MOTHER THELMA GREEN

July 5, 1935 - May 13, 1992

Ma where are you now when I need to hold and hug you. Where are you when I need to tell you how much I love you.

We all know you've gone to a better place. The memories are here but it's not the same for those of us who still remain.

The clock ticks on and time goes by, but you are still missed with every little sigh.

Words will not explain how the hurt doesn't heal, only tears and sorrow still linger here, for it's only been one short year.

They say it will get easier as time goes by, but that doesn't help when I cry. All I really wanted to say was you are still missed each and every single passing day.

Prepare your pets for long, hot summer

WASHINGTON — While getting ready to enjoy fun and sun this summer, The Humane Society of the United States reminds you to make sure your pet is prepared for hot weather too.

Rachel Lamb, program coordinator for companion animals, says summer weather can be very dangerous for dogs and cats if they are not given the proper care.

Traveling with your pets is one summer activity that requires extra precautions, Lamb says.

"Many pets, especially dogs, love to take a short trip in the car," Lamb explains, "but in hot weather, leaving your pet in a parked car, even for a few minutes, can be deadly."

Each year, countless animals suffer brain damage or die from heatstroke, because their owners don't realize that a few minutes in a hot car can kill a dog or cat. Even a short trip to the grocery store can be dangerous to your pet. On a warm day, the inside of a parked car can reach 160 degrees in a matter of minutes.

Another mistake some pet owners make is allowing dogs to ride in the back of a pick-up truck.

"On a sunny day, dogs can burn the pads of their feet on a hot truck bed," says Lamb, "but worse yet, they can be tossed around in the truck or thrown out entirely if the truck stops suddenly."

Even with a restraint, a dog who rides in the back of a truck can still be thrown out, and he may get tangled up in the harness and be strangled or dragged. If you are going to take your dog for a ride, the best place for him is in the cab of the truck, Lamb said.

If you are planning to take your dog or cat with you on a vacation, Lamb offers these tips to help make the trip easier on you and your pet:

● The best place for your pet when you're on vacation is at home with a pet sitter. Dogs and cats are more comfortable in familiar surroundings. With a responsible pet sitter, they are in less danger of getting lost or injured than they are if they travel.

● If you must travel with your pet, try to avoid traveling by airplane. High temperatures and stifling humidity can suffocate an animal that is forced to remain in the plane's cargo hold. Do not ship pug-nosed dogs such as Boston Terriers, Chows or Pekinese. These dogs have short nasal passages that do not give hot air a chance to cool before it reaches their lungs.

● When you arrive at your destination, be sensitive to your pet's increased summer needs. Have a fresh supply of water available at all times, and be aware that your pet may eat less in hot weather. Make sure that his eating patterns are a sign of the temperature and not an illness.

● If your recreation spot has a balcony or ledge, your pet should be closely supervised. Pets should only be allowed near windows that are securely screened.

● Do not adopt stray animals while you are on vacation. Every year, animals who believe they have found a permanent home are abandoned at summer's end. Stray animals should be taken to the local shelter where they can be taken care of and possibly reunited with their owners.

● Finally, when you return home from your trip, make sure to vaccum your rugs and furniture before you let your pet in the house. During your trip, fleas and ticks have had a chance to multiply and your pet could become infested as soon as he walks in the door.

Fair

City Benefits Technician June Strine reports eight daycare centers are planning to bus their children to the fair, and Sanford Middle School will be bringing students as part of "career day" for those who might be interested in going into the health field.

Vendors will be on hand from Sanford, Longwood, Casselberry, Winter Park, Orlando, Altamonte Springs, Winter Springs, Daytona Beach and DeBary.

Chris Uary, of the Parks and Recreation Department, has arranged for eight special seminars to be held at the Senior Center. In the east wing of the Civic Center. Two seminars, open to the general public at no charge, will be held during the same time periods.

At 10 a.m., seminars will deal with Travel Health & Safety, and Crime Prevention. At 11 a.m., seminars are on Technology & Hearing Aids and Safe Driving Habits.

At 1 p.m., the seminars will be on Eye Disease & Injury and Women Against Crime. At 2 p.m., Skin Care and Nutrition will be the subjects of the two seminars.

Health screenings will be offered free of charge during the entire day.

The Health and Safety Fair will be held from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. tomorrow, at the Sanford Civic Center, 401 E. Seminole Blvd.

Teen suspect shot

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — A homeowner who had been burglarized numerous times recently shot a 13-year-old boy, then shackled him with chains after the teen-ager allegedly broke into his house.

The middle school student, known as "R.J.," was listed in fair and stable condition today at Broward General Medical Center in Fort Lauderdale with gunshot wounds to the stomach and right arm.

Police said Milo Christian Winters, 47, grabbed a .38-caliber pistol and shot the boy after one of three suspects opened the door to his bedroom Wednesday morning.

Then he wrapped the wounded boy's legs in chains, padlocked the chains and waited for deputies to arrive as neighbors gathered outside, the Broward Sheriff's Office said.

"I heard two shots and then I saw the man with the child. The little boy was crying. He was in pain," said Adriana Calvo, a neighbor of Winters. "No matter what the child did, there's no excuse for chaining him."

Tony Caraballo said he took the wounded boy into Calvo's house.

Retail sales rebound in April

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Retail sales rebounded 1.2 percent in April after a sharp, weather-related decline in March, the government said today.

The increase, to a seasonally adjusted $189.7 billion, was the best in six months, the Commerce Department said. It followed back-to-back drops of 0.8 percent in March and 0.1 percent in February.

Economists had attributed much of the March decrease to the blizzard that socked the East Coast and were expecting the April rise. However, they caution that even with the bounceback, sales are scarcely better than the $189.2 billion level reached in December.

"In essence we still ... (are) looking at a level of April sales that's no higher than the midwinter readings, and that's pretty slow stuff," said economist David C. Munro of High Frequency Economics in New York.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department said consumer prices in April jumped 0.4 percent, double the increase expected in advance by economists and the worst since January.

That partly reflected the effect of West Coast rains on vegetable crops. But even excluding the volatile food and energy categories, prices rose 0.4 percent.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits fell to 339,000 during the week ended May 1, down by 3,000 from the week before. It was the third straight decline and the lowest level in four weeks.

Munro and other analysts said sales and economic growth in general got ahead of themselves late last year and a slowdown during the first half of this year is in part a payback from the earlier spurt, they say.

"Half of the lull was weather, but it also was that consumers overspent in the second half of 1992. They have cut back somewhat, especially with tax refunds falling short from last year's levels," said economist Stephen S. Roach of Morgan Stanley & Co.

In April, sales were pulled higher by a 3 percent jump in auto sales, the best since Octo-

During the 1980s, the young got poorer and the old got richer, at least in terms of percent change in the median incomes of American households. They were compared based on the age of the head of the household.

ber. That followed a 0.4 percent rise in March.

Excluding autos, sales still were up a strong 0.7 percent, the best since December, partially making up for March's 1.1 percent drop.

Sales at department and other general merchandise stores rose 2.2 percent, the largest in three months, following an identical decline in March.

Sales were up 0.8 percent at building supply and hardware stores, 0.3 percent at food stores, 1.1 percent at gas stations, 2.7 percent at clothing accessory shops and 0.5 percent at restaurants and bars.

Sales fell 0.3 percent at drug stores and 0.8 percent at furniture and appliance stores.

Republicans hit Clinton deficit reduction fund as a gimmick

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Republicans derided President Clinton's plan to funnel money from new taxes and spending cuts into a new deficit-reduction trust fund as a "gimmick."

"The president's proposed 'tax-increase trust fund' is just a gimmick to make his unpopular tax increases look good," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said after Clinton described his plan in a New York speech Wednesday.

The president unveiled the proposal at a time when his five-year plan to raise taxes and cut spending by nearly $500 billion is just beginning to move through Congress. Clinton says the savings are needed to attack the government's huge federal deficit, but Republicans say Democrats simply want to use the budget cuts to boost spending for favored programs.

Clinton said his plan would require Congress to "put every penny of new taxes and the budget cuts proposed in my budget into the trust fund so the American people know that it has to go to deficit reduction."

Clinton borrowed the proposal from Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., and other Democrats. The White House hopes it will help win support from voters and conservative Democratic lawmakers who might otherwise flinch at his huge deficit-reduction plan.

"The time has come to prove that when we say we're going to do something with the people's money, we actually do it," the president said.

The proposal will do nothing by itself to reduce the government's record annual performances at running up red ink, a point Clinton conceded in his speech.

"You must undergo the pain of the spending cuts and the tax increases because that's the only way to really bring the deficit down," he told his audience at the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art.

The measure would earmark money raised from new taxes and spending cuts for a trust fund devoted solely to shrinking the budget deficit.

But trust fund money doesn't sit untouched in a safe. It is invested in Treasury securities.

And as long as there is a budget deficit, the cash-hungry government must use all the money it collects, and more, to pay for its operations — everything from telephone bills to aircraft carriers.

Because of that, Republicans didn't hesitate to criticize the proposal.

"You can put it in a bushel basket," Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee, said of budget savings. "You can put it in a box, and the truth of the matter is ... nobody should be fooled" that deficit reduction will actually take place. "This idea takes the blue ribbon as the most genuinely phony proposal I have ever seen on the American budget," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "I think this is a transparent attempt to mislead the American people."

Democrats leaped to Clinton's defense, though none claimed that the trust fund would solve the nation's deficit woes.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the main purpose of the fund would be "persuading people that taxes that will be levied are exclusively for the purpose of deficit reduction."

And Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., said the budget Congress approved last month already contained caps making it hard for lawmakers to drive up the deficit.

"President Clinton is attempting to assure the American people that all of his proposed tax increases will go toward reducing the deficit. That is a laudable goal," said Sasser.

Why should Americans care about getting involved in Bosnia?

By RUTH BINAI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — To many Americans, Yugoslavia is a far-off land beset by complex ethnic and religious rivalries. So it could be difficult for President Clinton to explain why they should care about stopping warfare in a place where no U.S. interests seem to be at risk.

Except for two or three isolated references, Clinton has not clearly defined to the American public where U.S. interests lie in the Balkan tinderbox. From what he and some members of Congress have said, these emerge as the principal U.S. interests:

— The fighting in Bosnia could spread to other former Yugoslav republics, involve neighboring European countries and draw the United States into a broader conflict.

— A broader war would destabilize Europe, disrupt trade with the United States and endanger U.S. jobs and investments.

— The United States must maintain its superpower role by displaying the moral leadership for which it has become respected and taking the lead to stop "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia.

— Letting aggression like Serbia's go unpunished could encourage other countries to act the same.

The latter was one of the arguments used to explain why U.S. troops should fight to expel Iraq from Kuwait. But there, the overriding interest was much more easily defined: About one-third of the oil consumed in this country is produced in the Persian Gulf.

When the Bush administration sent troops to help feed hungry Somalis, it could safely say that risks to Americans were minimal — and the pictures of Somali children with their match-stick bodies did the rest.

In the complex situation in the Balkans, few could argue that U.S. military involvement carries no risks — although the pictures of burnt villages and sobbing children in Bosnia are as compelling as images from Somalia.

The United States had a clear strategic interest in Yugoslavia as long as it was the maverick among Moscow's satellites, defying Soviet foreign policies and generally being a thorn in Moscow's side.

Advocates of a military role in the dismembered Yugoslavia argue that the United States still has vital interests there.

"To state it briefly, twice in this century we tried to stay out of conflict in Europe, with which we have a special relationship, only to be drawn in later at a much higher price," said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., referring to the delayed U.S. entry into the first and second World Wars.

The fact that Bosnia was the flashpoint that sparked World War I is a salient lesson to advocates of U.S. intervention.

In fact, the Clinton administration is considering sending U.S. troops to Macedonia and Kosovo to deter possible Serbian aggression and contain the threat inside Bosnia.

"It is in the United States' national interest to keep this conflict from spilling over into a lot of other countries, which could drag the United States into something ... that we don't want," Clinton said Wednesday.

According to this domino theory, if the Serbs exercise their historic claim to Macedonia, then Bulgaria, Turkey and Greece might do so too. That would pit two pivotal U.S. NATO allies, Greece and Turkey, against each other and could pull apart the 16-nation alliance.

Such a war within NATO, said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., could hit the United States in the pocketbook.

"The people who really are not prepared to do this on the basis of restoring American leadership and world order really have to consider that the recession in Europe will deepen significantly, and so our prospects of exporting to Europe will decline significantly, and that is going to hurt," Lugar said.

The United States also could end up paying dearly for the damage that the fighting in Bosnia and the international blockade of Serbia has done to the fragile economies of neighboring countries like Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria, said Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif. Just emerging from decades of centralized economies, these countries' future stability and democratic reforms depend on their economic well-being.

Lantos also argues that unless the United States and its allies act together to stop the Bosnian war, the credibility of NATO will be "totally destroyed." The alliance has been searching for new missions since the demise of the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies.

Another interest, cited by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., involves the Muslim world. If the United States fails to help Bosnian Muslims, resentment among Muslims worldwide will fuel already rampant anti-American feeling.

Teacher gives birth in classroom

By The Associated Press

MESA, Ariz. — Teacher Judith Burke interrupted her fifth-grade class's math test by giving birth to her first child on the floor.

"We got real scared," said one of her pupils, 10-year-old Jamie Morgan.

Ryan Patrick Burke arrived Tuesday morning about five minutes after paramedics reached the classroom.

"Now that it's over with, it's neat," the 34-year-old mother said. "But if I had to do it over again, I'd do it in a hospital."

The children were cleared from the classroom a few minutes before the actual delivery.

Burke said labor pains began overnight Monday, but she discounted them because the child wasn't due for a month. On Tuesday morning, she told her principal she needed a substitute and called her doctor and her husband.

But it was too late. Burke had her pupils use the intercom to tell the school office and nurse to call 911.

Jamie said his teacher was

"white as the sheets."

"All the students were breathing hard and said, 'Whoa,'" he said.

Paramedic Glenn Watson said there was no doubt the baby would have to be delivered in the classroom. "She was in labor when we got there and she was having a contraction right as I walked into the room," he said.

The baby's umbilical cord got wrapped around his neck before it was cut. Watson said the baby was blue and not breathing, but paramedics worked on him on a school desk and got him to cry.

Student charged: Was it racist slur or garden-variety insult?

By TED DUNCOMBE
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Eden Jacobowitz just wanted some boisterous black students outside his dorm to pipe down so he could finish his English paper.

But when he shouted, "Shut up, you water buffalo!" out his sixth-floor window, he set off a cacophony he's likely to remember the rest of his life.

The white 18-year-old from Lawrence, N.Y., was charged with racial harassment under the University of Pennsylvania code of conduct, despite his insistence that insulting though it may be, calling someone a water buffalo isn't remotely racist.

The dispute at the Ivy League school has been attacked as a case of political correctness run amok and has stoked the debate over free speech on college campuses.

It could also prove an embarrassment to outgoing President Sheldon Hackney, President Clinton's choice to head the National Endowment for the Humanities. Hackney in the past has defended the rights of Louis Farrakhan and photographer Robert Mapplethorpe to express themselves.

The explanation for what happened that night back in January must pretty much come from Jacobowitz himself. University officials aren't talking, citing the need for confidentiality. The black students have not been identified.

Jacobowitz said he was studying when "all of the sudden I heard stomping, I heard cheering and singing, I heard 'Woo-woo!' It completely disturbed my concentration."

Some reports said the women were taking part in a sorority initiation. A number of students shouted at them, including Jacobowitz. The women complained, based on the university code barring verbal abuse meant to demean someone on the basis of race.

When campus police started their investigation, Jacobowitz came forward. He was shown a list of insults the women said they heard, including "nigger," "black water buffalo" and "big butt." He insisted he used only the phrase "water buffalo" and denied it was meant as a racial slur.

One other student was accused after the incident, but charges against him were dismissed, Jacobowitz said.

"When I said 'water buffalo,' I meant to say something ridiculous, nothing that would actually offend the women outside on the basis of race," he said.

Later, he said, he realized the term may have come to mind because of the Hebrew word "behemah," which translates as "beast" but is often used among Jews to refer to someone who doesn't know how to behave around others. Born in Israel and educated at a Jewish school, Jacobowitz is bilingual.

The word "behemah" is "definitely an insult," said Josh Getz, a Hebrew instructor at Penn State University who is not involved in the case. But he added, "The word has nothing to do with racism."

Jacobowitz said judicial inquiry officer Robin Read, a university administrator, told him "water buffalo" could be taken as a racial slur because it "is a dark, primitive animal that lives in Africa." In fact, the animal is native to Asia.

In March, Read proposed a settlement that called for Jacobowitz to apologize for racial harassment and required him to conduct a racial sensitivity seminar. He would also have been placed on dormitory probation, and a temporary stamp would have been put on his transcript branding him a racial harasser.

"Of course I rejected the settlement," he said. Jacobowitz met with Hackney two days after the incident, but the university president declined to intervene. "If errors are made, ample avenues of appeal are available," Hackney said in a statement.

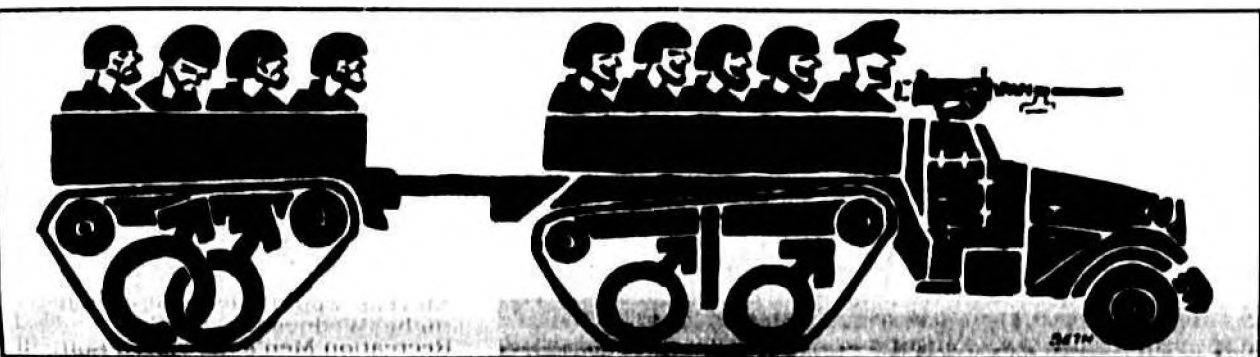

Jacobowitz also said he asked from the start to talk to the women, hoping a direct meeting would clear up matters. He said Read told him they had declined.

"They were really offended that night by other people's words, so I'm not complaining about them," Jacobowitz said. "I'm complaining about a judicial process that is supposed to eliminate wrongful accusations."

A hearing on the case scheduled for April 28 was postponed, apparently because the women's faculty adviser withdrew from the case, according to history Professor Alan Charles Kors, Jacobowitz's faculty adviser.

A closed-door meeting has now been scheduled for Friday, when Kors said he will ask that the case be thrown out.

"I'm sure they're decent young women," Kors said. "Eden's a decent young man and that this could not have gotten talked out at a world-class, major university is very sad."

Gays in the military and abortion aid vex Congress

By WALTER R. MEARS
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — So far, all Congress has done on the question of homosexuals in the military is talk about it — and that's been enough to start the shouting. It is a dispute certain to escalate, with President Clinton's deadline for an order rescinding the ban on gays two months away.

So, too, is the congressional struggle over his effort to end restrictions on the use of federal funds for abortions.

Difficult, divisive and often intensely personal, the social issues are the kind most resistant to compromise, the congressional way out with no hard feelings. These are the questions that guarantee hard feelings.

Clinton is confronting two at the same time as he seeks to deliver on his campaign promises to end the 48-year ban on military service by homosexuals, and to rescind the law against federal spending on abortions for needy women receiving government medical assistance.

The abortion dispute is complicating Clinton's budget program, and could put an extra burden on his coming health care proposal, which presumably will offer coverage for abortions. "I don't want to do anything that would upset the present pattern of health care coverage, that's for sure," he said.

The first votes on abortion spending will come up later this spring as the House begins acting on the appropriations bills that will implement the budget. There's some doubt among top Democrats that they will have the votes to rescind the spending restriction in the House.

Abortion is an issue Congress has been debating for two decades, with no settlement in view. While there are shades of opinion among both advocates and opponents of abortion rights, when it comes to a vote the argument is among absolutists.

While the debate over gays in the military is new to the legislative agenda, the lines are as sharply drawn, and compromise as elusive.

To advocates of repeal, the terms that have been advanced as a possible settlement — letting homosexuals serve so long as they didn't declare their sexual preference — is no compromise. Gay activists protested when Clinton agreed to essentially that formula temporarily, for the six months he gave the Pentagon to prepare an executive order.

The talk of making that the permanent arrangement has been among opponents of eliminating the ban, not between the two sides. Still, Congress has the power to keep the ban in place, so advocates of the policy that Sen. Sam Nunn has described as "don't ask, don't tell" could vote it into effect.

Clinton settled for that holding action, pending congressional hearings and the Pentagon study, rather than risk being overruled on an immediate order to rescind the ban.

It is a high-tension issue; even witness lists and procedures have stirred angry disputes in both the Senate and House Armed Services committees. Those same, divided panels will have to deal with legislation on the issue. Nunn, D-Ga., the Senate chairman, opposes outright repeal of the ban. Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., the House chairman, wants it lifted as the mark of "a mature, intelligent, egalitarian society."

That broader social point adds to the political strain. The change Clinton seeks is not, after all, a politically popular cause. The president has said so himself. He also said it is right.

"We are not arguing any kind of conduct, but about whether people can acknowledge ... being a homosexual," he said Monday in Cleveland. "It is not asking the American people to approve a lifestyle, to embrace it, to elevate it, anything else."

At House hearings on May 4, Republican Rep. Floyd D. Spence of South Carolina argued that gay activists are using the issue to promote their agenda. "Whether or not individual homosexuals want nothing more than to serve with honor, homosexual activism will demand more," Spence said, "turning the military into a legal, social and cultural battleground for years to come."

Clinton said the interim policy in which recruits no longer are questioned about homosexuality solves most of the problem. Perhaps it does, but the next step will be more difficult, and he is committed to take it so that declared homosexuals can serve in the military.

Last-lap pass gives Cook Late Model win

By PAUL MARABELLA
Special to the Herald

SAMBULA - Ormond Beach pilot Jack Cook used a last-lap pass to win the Sonny King Orange Buick Late Model feature event Saturday, May 8, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Cook had tangled with race leader David Rogers on lap 11 and was sent to the rear of the 14-car field for the restart. With five laps to go, Cook had moved up to fourth place. 10 car lengths behind Wayne Anderson, who had taken over the lead.

With two laps to go, Cook was in second place, two car lengths behind Anderson. On the last lap, Cook closed in on Anderson's rear bumper. Then, coming out of turn four, Cook went low and passed Anderson to score his fourth win of the season.

"I got together with David (Rogers) and I spun him out, so we both had to restart from the rear of the field," said Cook, a three-time Speedway Late Model champion.

"I was concerned that I didn't have enough time to catch the leader. But then I realized what a good car the crew had put under me. It was just flawless and it got me to victory lane."

The victory broke a stretch that saw Cook finish second six times over the last few months.

"This is the way it's going to be from now on," said Cook as he climbed out of his car in victory lane. "We're winners. No more seconds. It seems like in the last couple of months, we've had 97 seconds."

Tyler, Ponder register feature wins at Volusia

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE - Larry Tyler took the lead away from 18-year-old David Steele with two laps to go Saturday, May 8, to win the Tampa Bay Area Racing Association's Winged Outlaw Sprint feature at Volusia County Speedway.

In the nightcap of the seven-division night at the half-mile asphalt oval, Tony Ponder got back into the winner's circle as he claimed fifth victory in six races of the Volusia Performance Late Model Stocks point standings series. It was also his third win in four Winged Outlaw Sprint Series events.

Ponder had won four and two in a row, respectively, streaks that were stopped on May 1, when Ponder finished behind both Cam Gibson and Mike Hunter in a 30-lap feature.

Other winners on May 8 were Mike Loecher in the Florida Modifieds; Chris Lawrence in the Street Stocks; Rusty Ebersole in the Sportsman; Robert Milam in the Hobby Stocks; and Rick Fairbanks in the Mini Stocks.

Steele led from the start in the 20-lap feature, which is the third installment of a nine-vial series at Volusia for TBARA racers competing in the Mega Power Super Series for Sprint Cars.

But Tyler turned to the bottom of the track on the 18th lap to take Steele into turn three and seize the lead for a dash to the start/finish line and the checkered flag a little over a lap later.

"If you knew what we went through to get here," said Tyler. "I was just happy to finish, let alone win."

Tyler was trailed by Steele, Red Stauffer, Stan Butler, and Gene Lasker.

Ponder returned to the track with his No. 01 car, the first time back on the track for his new Late Model Stock since wrecking after winning the Spring Fling 100 on March 20.

Starting in the sixth spot, Ponder was quick to filter through the field to the top, moving into second on lap two and taking the lead spot on lap six. From there, it was Ponder in the lead and the rest battling for the second through fifth positions.

"I've got to give all the credit to Rick (Newton)," Ponder said. "I guess we've got a pretty good clicking crew. We've got a couple of things we want to work out. It's not quite up to what it was before the crash."

Ponder was followed across the start/finish line by Gibson, Hunter, Jim Grotha, and Tony Newsum.

Loecher credits his experience of running on the Coastliners end season

Vaughn honored at barbecue

By Norman Schroeder
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Coastliners held their annual barbecue at the Sanford Shrine Club on Saturday, May 8.

At the event, B.B. Vaughn, superintendent of the Atlantic Coastline Railroad between Tampa and Jacksonville, was honored.

Vaughn started with the railroad on Jan. 1, 1929, at Ocala. He worked his way up as telegrapher, train dispatcher, chief dispatcher, trainmaster and then, superintendent.

As superintendent, he was in Manhester, Ga., for three years, Atlanta, three years, and Tampa, 16 years before his retirement.

He retired June 30, 1977 with 48 years and six months of railroad.

Highlight of the day was Rudy Sloan, past president, presenting Mayor Bettye Smith was a special guest and also attending was J.L. Hobby, former sheriff of Seminole County who now makes his home in Georgia.

Guests were served barbecue chicken, ribs, baked beans, blackeyed peas and a variety of desserts.

The Coastliners do not meet in June, July and August. The next meeting is Sept. 1, at 10 a.m.

Smoking battle fires up again

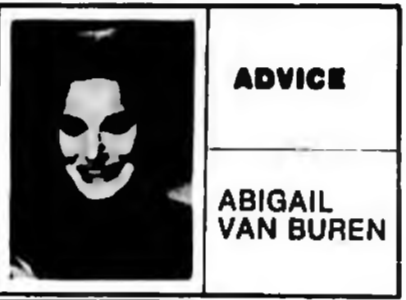

DEAR ABBY: That letter from 60-year-old "Al" in Sacramento, who boasted that he is in excellent health despite his regular diet of ham and eggs fried in butter, and plenty of alcohol and cigarettes, could gravely mislead some of the unthinking. Assuming that Al is as healthy as he thinks he is, no one should believe that nicotine, alcohol and fried foods are harmless.

I am a 65-year-old male who has never smoked. I do not drink, and I avoid foods that are high in cholesterol. I've been running five miles a day for 35 years, and have no particular health problems. I am retiring this year, but I could die tomorrow from a stroke or heart attack. Who can say for sure what all the contributing factors in a person's life will add up to?

I hope "Al" continues to enjoy excellent health for years to come, although, considering his lifestyle and diet, I wouldn't bet on it. Ask "Al" to write to you again in five years when he's my age — if he's still alive.

BEN B. IN PORTLAND, ORE.
DEAR BEN: I'll put this in my follow-up file for 1998, and let you know how "Al" is doing — if he's still alive.

DEAR ABBY: I am a smoker. It's not something I'm proud of, and yes, I am aware of the damage I may be doing to my health. I also live with the guilt of possibly hurting others with my secondhand smoke.

ADVICE

I am an intelligent person, but I'm also a tobacco addict. My addiction was once socially acceptable, but that's no longer the case. However, I don't cheat on my taxes, shoplift, practice unsafe sex, drive under the influence, or knock over little old ladies for a seat on the subway. I've never been in jail, or killed anyone either.

Abby, most smokers are caught in a bind — we know smoking is not good for us, but it's a very difficult habit to overcome. All we ask is a little understanding, not an across-the-board condemnation for being weak-willed and self-destructive.

CHRIS IN RIVERDALE, N.Y.
DEAR CHRIS: Thanks, I needed that. We non-smokers should keep reminding ourselves that nicotine addiction in some ways is more difficult to overcome than a cocaine habit.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the man who says he's glad he smokes. He sounds just like my dad. He always insisted that he didn't inhale, so it didn't matter.

He is now 84, and has had chronic emphysema for the past 10 years. I don't know how many times we've had to rush him to the hospital because of his lung problems. He now sits in his chair with the oxygen machine running 16 hours a day.

It's no wonder people are proposing taxing cigarettes at $2 a pack. Medicare has to pick up the tab for millions of people like my beloved dad.

I'm signing my name, but please don't use it: I don't want to embarrass my father.

HIS DAUGHTER, GLENDALE, ORE.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE WHO ARE GOING ON A VACATION TRIP (YOU KNOW WHO YOU ARE): Take half as many clothes, and twice as much money.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me, before I contribute to family bickering! Am I alone in thinking that a child's major special occasions should be acknowledged on — or perhaps a day or two before — that special day?

I am on my second set of in-laws who cannot find the local post office. It is always the same: "We will give Sarah her gift when we see you next."

I have never lived close to my in-laws, nor do I see them often. None of them could plead poverty. Even a card would have meant a lot to my daughter on her graduation day. It would have meant they at last thought of her. This "when we see you" business has gone on all my daughter's life, but when her high school graduation passed unnoticed, it was the last straw.

For years I have sent cards and gifts — usually separately, so there was more to open — to children I seldom see, but of whose every celebration we are notified. I keep my own announcements to the absolute minimum. I never send any kind of announcement or invitation unless I am reasonably certain that the party to whom I am sending it would accept, or truly want to know about the occasion.

Abby, two questions: Don't they think each child should be made to feel appreciated? And who do they think buys their children's gifts?

SARAH'S MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: People who do not acknowledge the special occasions of family members are either thoughtless, disorganized, lazy, cheap — or all of the above.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

'Crime Prevention' reviewed for over 100 AARP members

By SARABECCA ROSIER
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary AARP Chapter meeting on April 20 at the CIA building played to a capacity crowd, estimated at over 100 members and guests according to President DeLores Lash. This was the first meeting at the CIA building of the fastest growing AARP chapter in Florida. "The AARP Chapter meetings simply outgrew the Old Lake Mary City Hall building that has a fire occupancy rating for only 75 people," said Larry Lucas.

"The theme for the meeting was 'Crime Prevention,' a subject endorsed by the Sanford Herald," Lucas said.

As part of the policy of the Lake Mary AARP, a complimentary luncheon was available for all members and guests. The luncheon was sponsored by Southern Bank with Southern Bank President Charles Brinkley and Vice President William Blackburn speaking on the many services of Southern Bank. The ladies of AARP provided desserts.

Lake Mary AARP Vice President Larry Lucas was honored with the AARP National Outstanding Service to the Community award for his many volunteer hours working on Proposition 10, more commonly known as "Save Our Homes."

The main meeting program on "Crime Prevention — Personal and Home Safety" was presented by State Attorney Norman Wolfinger, Sheriff Don Eslinger and Lake Mary Chief Richard Beary.

New appointments by the Lake Mary AARP recently are the following new committee chairs: Dr. Norma Smith, co-chair of membership; Hugh Reynolds, chair of legislation and Dee Buckland, chair of telephone committee.

The Lake Mary Chapter of AARP meets every third Tuesday at noon at the Community Improvement building (CIA), 280 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary. Future meetings scheduled are for May 18 and June 15. No meetings are scheduled for the months of July and August. For further information, please call DeLores Lash at 323-1142 or Dr. Norma Smith at 333-9578.

Coping with motor neuron disease

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm interested in information on motor neuron disease. My neurologist is very vague with his answers to my questions, and I'm at my wife's end. At present my speech is barely understandable and I can only walk with the help of a walker, yet he indicates nothing can be done for me. Is this true?

procedure, the medication wouldn't work so I converted to Aralen. Could this new medication have any effect on my eyes and if so, how often should they be checked?

DEAR READER: For unknown reasons, the anti-malaria drugs Plasquell and Aralen often help patients with lupus by reducing inflammation, pain and kidney failure. There is a trade-off, however, especially with Aralen, which can cause irreversible retinal damage. This leads to blurred vision, difficulty focusing and partial blindness.

DEAR READER: Motor neuron diseases include a number of nerve afflictions, such as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease), primary lateral sclerosis, progressive muscular atrophy, and inherited spinal muscular atrophies, to mention a few.

The diseases are marked by selective degeneration of specific nerves in the spinal cord and lower brain. The cause is unknown.

Motor neuron diseases cause progressive weakness, increasing dependency and eventually death, usually from pulmonary complications. Nonetheless, the outlook varies; for example, an occasional patient with ALS may survive for 30 years, whereas other patients will succumb within a year.

There is no treatment for the motor neuron diseases, yet much can be done to maintain independence, such as physical therapy, special appliances and drugs to aid depression and pain.

I suspect that your neurologist has been purposely vague with you because, like most of us, he doesn't relish giving bad news.

Remember, however, that assistance with everyday activities may make you feel better, even though the overall prognosis is unfavorable. You should investigate resources in your community, such as visiting nurses, home health aides, speech therapists and physical therapists.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have lupus and took Plasquell for many years. After a triple bypass

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Aider

Ron Klinger's book "Playing to Win at Bridge" contains 72 declarer-play and defense problems in three sections: elementary, intermediate and advanced. The new edition, published by Houghton Mifflin, is available for $10.45 from The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124. Previous editions were published in England by Gollancz, and in Australia.

How difficult is advanced? Well, today's deal is the last in the book; move into the East seat and judge for yourself.

Your partner leads his fourth-highest heart. After winning with the king, declarer continues with the ace and another diamond. West wins with the queen; you discard the club two. Now West switches to the spade jack; queen, king, four. How should you continue?

You have two options: to lead a low spade, playing partner for the spade ace, playing partner for four spades, with or without the 10. Which is correct?

Count the high-card points. From trick one, declarer is marked with the A-K-Q of hearts. He is known to have the A-J of diamonds. That's only 14 points, so South must have the A-K-J of clubs to get up to 22.

How many diamonds does South hold? The way he played the suit marks him with five. With A-J-x-x, he would have entered the dummy and led a diamond toward his jack. This means South has only two spades, so you must continue with the spade ace. Then remember to congratulate your partner on his excellent play of the spade jack. If he had led a low spade, the contract would have made.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bada Osoi
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 14, 1993

Your probabilities for success look good for the year ahead, provided you do not let others establish your agenda for you. Set your own goals and let everyone else set theirs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If order to be successful today, you might have to pay a price, so be sure the objectives you establish for yourself are worthy of the fare. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you find yourself in need of advice today, there's a chance that the counselors you'll seek will be the ones who are least capable of offering it. Be very selective.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Rely upon your basic morality today instead of your materialistic motivations. The former will keep you out of trouble, the latter might steer you toward it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In a partnership arrangement today, both parties must be on the same wavelength. If not, one might undo what the other accomplishes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you want something done today, don't look for surrogates to do it for you. In fact, even when you do it yourself, you might not perform up to your usual standards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Regardless of your good intentions, the financial or business advice you offer a friend today might be more harmful than helpful. It's best to say nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sometimes unsolicited attempts to assist people we love are judged as interference. Today you might have to deal with this phenomenon first hand. Be tactful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you make a mistake and try to blame it on someone else today, it could create a serious incident. Keep this in mind before pointing the finger at an innocent bystander.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you are rather practical in business and financial matters, but today you might be prone to taking chances you ordinarily wouldn't attempt. Look before you leap.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not try to be a self-appointed leader today in an endeavor you share with others. The only vote of confidence you might get is yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rely upon your logic today rather than your powers of intuition. The world you perceive through your emotions and feelings could be a trifle distorted.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to be businesslike in any financial arrangements you have with friends today. This is a tentative area where something could go wrong and create hard feelings.
