CATTLE CONFERENCE

The Tampa Convention and What It Means to Florida

On Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 5th and 6th, there will be held in the Hotel Tampa, a Cattle Conference. At this important meeting there will be present men from many sections of the United States and several foreign countries, who are interested in the growing of live stock.

As a commissioner of agriculture of Florida I have given special attention for two years to farming and stock raising. This campaign started with one hundred letters addressed to the various stock cattle associations and individuals and companies and to stock journals, in which was set forth the advantage of Florida as an agricultural and stock raising state. I made a statement that Florida could easily be made to support ten thousand head of cattle on her ranges, and that cattle should be finished off at home. That it would be better to send the cattle from the state to be finished for the market. I also stated that live stock of all kinds could be raised as cheap in Florida as in any country in the world, and I am sure the cattle are overgrown.

Again the people of Florida, in importance both of this convention as well as the statement of the work of the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Agriculture, 1,550 delegates are expected to attend. The migration of thousands of people to Florida, of the above, is due to the fact that we have a climate good enough to support the growth of our southern fruit. The existence demands that we breed our cattle for the market.

There are 1,000,000 cattle in Florida, and we are now producing 1,000,000 cattle annually. Of the above,

we have 1,000,000 cattle

represented at the

CORN BREAD WAS A FAILURE

But Husband Tried to Be Discreet In His Remarks, to the Discomfiture of the Guest.

They were a newly married couple. The wife though a fair cook, did not know how to make things his mother had prepared. And this vexed the husband, although he was disposed to be indulgent for the sake of harmony. But there was one point upon which he sorrowed not a little. His wife could not make edible corn bread, and corn bread was the food upon which he was reared.

One day a girlhood friend of the wife visited her and, after assisting in the preparation of luncheon, accepted an invitation to stay and eat it with the newlyweds. The husband arrived and the guest and he took their places at the table while the wife went to the kitchen to bring some forgotten dish.

Before his plate was the husband's corn bread, but it was a miserable failure, sickly yellow, flat and heavy. He became confidential.

"There is one of the trials of a husband whose wife can't cook," he said apologetically to the guest. "Just have a look at that corn bread. But you mustn't let the wife know what I said, for it would hurt her feelings."

When the wife entered the room a few moments later she noticed that a deep blush suffused the guest's face.

"Why what is the matter, dear?" she asked.

"It is nothing," the guest replied hurriedly.

An hour later, after the husband had gone to the office the chorus of two laughing women voices merrily resounded through the household of the newlyweds.

But the wife has not yet told the husband that her guest made the corn bread on that day she stayed for luncheon. In fact, asked the privilege because she considered herself an adept at making corn bread.

She Knew Amos
The man who takes trolley rides through the country sees a writer in the Boston Advertiser sees and hears much that is amiable. A few days ago, while I was riding through the outskirts of Amesbury, an old lady, but a decidedly spry one, hailed the car. She was accompanied down to the road from the house by a young woman, possibly her daughter.

The older woman put her foot on the lower running board grasped the upright and was about to climb into the car, when she turned to the young woman and said:

"Don't forget that gingerbread in the oven, Amos. You know just how to make gingerbread."

"All aboard!" shouted the conductor. But the old lady paid no attention to him.

"Amos, Amos," she continued, when you pick the eggs, kindly look out for that Rhode Island Red that wants to set. She'll peck ye if ye ain't care ful!"

"All aboard!" again shouted the conductor, but as the old lady proceeded to climb on to the car she paused long enough to say to him:

"Ye can't scare me, Amos. I've known as ever since I was knee-high."

Amos grinned, pulled the bell and we were on our way. Youth's Companion

Buy Junk, Get Famous Bell.
One of the most historic bells of the South American churches was discovered and brought to San Francisco by two Oakland junk dealers, William Rosenthal and Lewis Rothenberg, who have just arrived from South America on the steamer Guzco. They have been on a buying trip in Peru and Chile for two years.

The bell is 325 years old and hung in the cathedral of San Augustino at Lima for more than two centuries. In the revolution of 1889 the cathedral was wrecked and the bell disappeared.

The two Oaklanders bought the debris of the cathedral and in excavating among the ruins found the bell. It was thought in Lima that it had been stolen twenty years before.

Peruvians wished to buy the bell, but the new owners thought it would be worth more in this country and refused to sell. The relic weighs 500 pounds and is of bronze, with inscriptions in gold. — San Francisco Chronicle.

Teddy's Good Shot.
One of Colonel Roosevelt's first hunting instructors was old Bill Sewall, a Maine guide, whom, when president, the colonel rewarded for years of friendship and advice by an office.

When he was a boy the colonel went into camp with Sewall. Deer season came along and they went out to give the youthful Roosevelt his first chance for a shot. After a time, the colonel says, they saw a stag.

"Shoot!" shouted Sewall and the future president let go with his rifle. "The stag ran a little way and dropped."

"You've got him! You've got him!" shouted Sewall as he ran forward to investigate. How did it happen?

With a rapid, young Roosevelt, drawing himself up proudly, I learned for his best.

"You done well," said he. "You done well. You hit him in the eye!"

Power of Politeness.
"Honesty is the best policy," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Of course, it is," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But the public doesn't always realize it. Most people would rather be cheated a little in an affable way than do business with a person whose conscience keeps him in a state of irritation."
