

Reagan Invites Soviets To U.S. Nuclear Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan today invited the Soviet Union to send a team of observers to witness a U.S. nuclear test as a possible first step toward a move by the superpowers to monitor compliance with treaty obligations.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the offer, based on a 10-month-old proposal by Reagan for an exchange of experts to ensure the superpowers adhere to limits on nuclear tests, was delivered to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"This offer, which is unconditional, is a unilateral step which clearly demonstrates the U.S. intention to go the extra mile," Speakes said. "The Soviet experts are invited to bring any instrumentation devices that the Soviet Union deems necessary to measure the yield of this test.

"This U.S. initiative demonstrates our commitment to achieving verifiable limitations in nuclear testing."

The Reagan gambit, approved over the weekend and sent through diplomatic channels, comes amid speculation by U.S. officials that the Soviet Union will embark on a new round of nuclear tests before the November summit between Reagan and Gorbachev.

Speakes described the offer as "a concrete step that we would hope would lead to an exchange of observers and confidence building-type measures that would indicate that each side was carefully observing the restrictions on nuclear testing."

"We would hope it would lead to further steps in that area."

Last September, in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly, Reagan proposed the United States and the Soviet Union exchange technical experts who would be stationed at nuclear test sites to measure the yield of underground explosions.

A treaty signed in 1974 but still unratified by the Senate limits the yield of such tests to 150 kilotons — the explosive equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT. In a Feb. 1 report to Congress, Reagan accused the Soviets of "likely" violations of the pact.

Limits on nuclear testing have been an issue predominant in the arms control debate over the last 25 years. Although Reagan has refused to submit the

King, Petsos To Be Lake Mary Commissioners

By Richard Truett
Herald Staff Writer

Buzz Petsos and Ken King will become Lake Mary city commissioners automatically in October, since no one opposed their candidacy for seats 3 and 5 respectively. The deadline for candidates to qualify for the races was noon Friday. There will be an election to fill seat 1.

Petsos, 33, of 108 Pine Circle, will take over the seat being vacated by Harry Terry and King, 45, of 347 Rockwell Circle, will take over Burt Perinchieff's seat. Terry and Perinchieff both declined to run again because they said they were tired of the city's late-running meetings and wanted to spend more time with their families.

Petsos has said he is determined to do something to cut the meetings down to a reasonable duration. He said he will move to have the reports from city officials read at a work session the day before city commission meetings. Often, he said, reading the reports takes several hours of an evening meeting.

The last Lake Mary city commission meeting did not adjourn until 1:15 a.m.

Seat 1, being vacated by Colin Keogh for the same reasons, will be filled by election Sept. 3. Two contenders for the seat are Charlie Webster and A.R. "Doc" Jore.

Seats 2 and 4, held by Russ Megonegal and Paul Tremel, are up for reelection until 1986.

On Thursday, Jore qualified to run for seat 1, but that was not what he had originally planned to do.

Jore, 59, of 589 S. Country Club Road, called the Evening Herald on July 2 and said he would file for seat 5 on July 3, but former city commissioner Ken King qualified for the seat first.

Jore did not file until Thursday and when he did it was for seat 1, the one Planning and Zoning Board member Charlie Webster qualified for on July 2.

Jore served on Maitland's city council from 1968 to 1972 and has lived in Lake Mary for seven years.

Webster, 63, of 530 Webster Ave., is vice chairman of the P&Z board and has served on the board for over two years.

"I am concerned about growth and commercialization. It should not be allowed to haphazardly mushroom," Webster said today.

School Board To Adopt Budget

Tonight the Seminole County School Board is scheduled to hold a public hearing on Superintendent Robert Hughes' 1985-86 budget which calls for a tax hike. The board will adopt a budget after the hearing.

The hearing will begin at 7:30 at the school board office, 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Hughes wants a tax rate of $7.46 per $1,000 of assessed property value, up from last year's $7.07. Hughes said the higher tax would be used for building projects and to help pay to accommodate the 1,500 new students expected to enroll in the fall.

Last year 39,201 students attended Seminole County Schools, over 40,000 are expected this year.

Lake Mary Attorney Gets A Raise

Lake Mary city commissioners handed City Attorney Robert Petree a $450-a-month raise during the first of two public budget hearings.

The next budget hearing is scheduled for 1:30 Friday.

Petree, who is being paid $1,250 per month, had asked the city commission for a salary of $1,950, but settled Friday for Mayor Dick Fess's offer of $1,700 per month.

"I enjoy being city attorney," Petree said. "Except when meetings last until 1:15 a.m.," he said with a smile.

Although he may have been joking about the late night meetings, Petree was serious when he reported to the city commission the amount of time he spends on city business. Petree estimated that he averages at least 32 hours a month for commission meetings, work sessions, drafting ordinances and other city business.

"That 32 hours is a conservative estimate," Petree said.

In addition to the monthly raise, the commission hiked Petree's hourly litigation fee to $75 from $64.

Petree told the commission his malpractice insurance rate rose from $1,800 per year last year to $15,000 this year. But, he said, part of that hike may be due to the fact his firm is handling a bond issue. Nevertheless, the higher insurance fee was cited as one reason he needs more money. Petree also told the commission it is very likely he could be representing the city in court in the near future.

"I foresee litigation as a likelihood. You gentlemen have elected to stand firm on several

Shuttle Tries 'One More Time'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Just 17 days after riding out a tense blastoff abort, the crew of the shuttle Challenger braced for a second launch try today to begin a weeklong flight of stargazing and studies of Earth's atmosphere.

Commander Gordon Fullerton, co-pilot Roy Bridges and crewmates Story Musgrave, Karl Henize, Anthony England and civilian astronomer Loren Acton and John-David Bartoe will work in two shifts during the flight to operate a battery of experiments around the clock.

The crew was eager to get the mission underway and Fullerton joked, "We're going to try it one more time. Hopefully everything will work."

Challenger's countdown began Saturday with work running behind schedule but engineers were able to make up lost time and they began loading the shuttle's half-million gallons of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen fuel about nine hours before launch.

Liftoff was scheduled for 3:23 p.m. but depending on the weather, NASA has the option of launching as early as 2:48 p.m. or as late as 6:30 p.m. but deviations from the planned launch time would result in the loss of science data.

An Air Force weather forecaster, Lt. Scott Funk, said conditions at the Kennedy Space Center were expected to be acceptable at launch time but high winds at emergency landing sites in Spain and New Mexico could cause problems.

Landing is scheduled for Aug. 5 at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert.

Challenger's first launch attempt on July 12 ended in failure when the shuttle's four on-board computers detected a problem and safely shut down the ship's three main engines less than two seconds before liftoff.

Engineers suspect the abort was caused by a faulty hydraulic valve actuator, but an exhaustive investigation failed to identify a problem and the abort was written off as an "unexplained anomaly."

Pilot Malfunction

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Neb. (UPI) — The Air Force SR-71 spy plane carries equipment capable of spotting an object on an airport runway from 15 miles up — provided the pilot can find the right airport.

At a special ceremony Friday at Offutt Air Force Base, the sophisticated spy plane was supposed to fly a retirement salute to its second commanding officer. But the pilot made a mistake and flew over an Omaha-area commuter airport.

Couple In Dogfight Over Pet

HOUSTON (UPI) — A businessman who fought his estranged wife in court for custody of an 8-year-old Doberman pinscher named Satan says he was ready to "spend every penny I have" to keep the dog.

Eva and Martin Pinnas agreed to split ownership of their homes, cars and family business in the divorce settlement. But both wanted to keep Satan.

They shared custody of Satan — she had him nights and weekends, he had Satan while at work each day. This went on for three months until Pinnas decided the situation was not good for the dog. He hired an attorney to represent him to the tune of $10,000 plus $300 an hour.

Pinnas was awarded temporary possession of Satan Friday after nearly two hours of testimony and a videotape in which he played and swam with the dog. His custody becomes permanent once the couple's divorce is final.

"I would spend every penny that I have, could borrow or steal if I needed it to preserve our relationship," Pinnas said of Satan.

"He's the most important living creature in my life. I don't think of him as a dog, and I don't think he thinks of himself as a dog."

FBI Says Violent Crime Up 1% In '84

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI says serious crime nationwide dropped 2 percent in 1984, the third straight yearly decline, but violent crime rose by 1 percent, with rape increasing 7 percent.

The FBI's 1984 survey, "Crime in the United States," showed an estimated 11.8 million crimes were reported to nearly 16,000 law enforcement agencies covering 96 percent of the nation's population.

Not since 1978 has the crime index total dropped below 12 million offenses. The index is made up of such crimes as murder, rape, theft and burglary reported to the FBI.

The FBI's survey, released Sunday, reported overall violent crime went up 1 percent in 1984 compared to 1983. Rape jumped 7 percent and aggravated assault rose 5 percent, but murder dropped by 3 percent and robbery by 4 percent.

Property crime dropped 2 percent, the report said. Theft fell 2 percent and burglary 5 percent but arson and motor vehicle theft each increased by 2 percent.

Gary, Ind., had the highest murder rate per 100,000 population — 54.8 — for cities with a population of 100,000 or more. The FBI's report only listed the top 25 cities in murder rates.

Of the top 10, Detroit followed at 45.3; Miami, 42.4; New Orleans, 37.1; Richmond, Va., 33.9; Oakland, Calif., 32.1; Atlanta, 30.5; Flint, Mich., 30.0; Dallas, 29.8 and St. Louis, 28.9.

Texas had the highest homicide rate of any state, at 13.1 per 100,000, followed by Louisiana at 12.9 and Alaska, 11.6. New Hampshire was the lowest at 1.0, followed by North Dakota, 1.2 and Maine, 1.7.

In 1984, arrests for all offenses except traffic violations totaled an estimated 11.6 million — a national arrest rate of 4,951 per 100,000 inhabitants.

The highest volume of arrests, 1.8 million, was recorded for driving under the influence of liquor or drugs. Other offenses accounting for a large number of arrests were drunkenness with 1.2 million arrests and theft with 1.3 million.

Of those arrested, 51 percent were under age 25. Men accounted for 83 percent of all arrests. Women were arrested more often for larceny or theft than for any other offense.

The report also said: — There were an estimated 18,692 murders last year.

Milestone For Foreign Policy

Nothing symbolized America's post-Vietnam paralysis better than the 1976 Clark amendment. This pernicious, ignominious legislation effectively delivered the strategic situation in Angola into Soviet hands by prohibiting U.S. aid for nationalist guerrillas resisting a Cuban expeditionary force there.

Accordingly, repeal of the Clark amendment by the House recently was an especially significant milestone on the long road back to a vigorous, effective foreign policy. It was hardly coincidental, after all, that the Clark amendment was repealed by a foreign-aid bill that also appropriated overt assistance for nationalist, democratic resistance forces in Vietnamese-occupied Cambodia and Soviet-occupied Afghanistan.

This was also the same House that recently revoked its 1984-85 ban on U.S. aid for the Nicaraguan contras, voting $27 million in logistical support for the growing guerrilla army resisting the Marxist, pro-Soviet, Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

There are, of course, many reasons for Congress' gradual recovery from the paralysis, self-doubt, and defeatism that followed the Vietnam debacle. Among the most significant, surely, were events themselves in such places as Angola once America's enemies were accorded a free hand.

Those who voted for the Clark amendment back in 1974 might have imagined that they were somehow helping the people of Angola as well as avoiding the risk of "another Vietnam." But the Marxist regime imposed with the help of Soviet weapons and a Cuban army brought Angolans only misery, oppression, and continued war. So why not provide, at modest cost, the aid that would enable the people of Angola to resist more effectively the new colonialism represented by the expansion of the Soviet empire?

The rationale for providing American aid to other freedom fighters in Cambodia, Afghanistan and Nicaragua is even more compelling, as the House seems to recognize. The point is, America serves its own interests and a moral imperative as well when it assists peoples standing alone against the armed might of the Soviet Union and that country's aggressive, militaristic surrogates.

It now remains for Congress and the Reagan administration to go beyond symbolism. The $5 million appropriated for the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, the leading anti-communist resistance group in Cambodia, bespeaks tokenism. Vietnam's army of occupation in Cambodia can count on that much from the Soviet Union every day.

And will repeal of the infamous Clark amendment result in any actual aid for Jonas Savimbi's National Union for the Total Independence of Angola? We hope so, but the administration is silent on the question and so are many of the Democrats who supported, or at least acquiesced in, repeal of the Clark amendment. Feigning support for a tougher foreign policy while doing nothing to implement one is dishonest and can only be regarded as a shabby attempt to mislead constituents.

But even if some in Congress are merely posturing, it is still obvious that the congressional mood on foreign policy is shifting toward a more realistic view of the world. Properly understood, the more activist foreign policy that should result is anything but an invitation to blunder into another Vietnam, much less fight aimlessly for a decade with no coherent strategy or political will to win. What repealing the Clark amendment does signify is that the Soviets and their satraps can no longer count on a free ride when extending the empire.

Wealthy Farmers Don't Need Any 'Help'

WASHINGTON — It is the cruellest paradox of our time: While starving human beings have become almost daily images on our television screens, U.S. warehouses and silos bulge with enough surplus food to feed most of the world's hungry people.

On Africa's vast continent, where there is enough land, given proper irrigation and economic incentives, to more than feed the world's population, famines have become almost synonymous with several East African nations.

Here in the United States, the problem for consumers and taxpayers is that we produce too much food — so much, in fact, that the government buys up what can't be sold in national or world markets to prevent commodity prices from falling.

We sell or give a lot of it away through foreign-aid programs — but millions of tons of our farm productivity is simply stored away indefinitely in cavernous facilities. For example, there is now enough wheat in government storage centers (380 million bushels) to provide 70 pounds of flour for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Nowhere is this abundance more evident than in the dairy industry. According to officials in the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, government warehouses for the year ending June 1985 were crammed to the rafters with 251 million pounds of butter, 675 million pounds of cheese and 1.1 billion pounds of nonfat dry milk.

To give you an idea of how enormous this surplus is, consider these statistics:

— In a nation of more than 240 million Americans, Uncle Sam has enough nonfat dry milk in storage to provide 23.7 quarts of milk for every man, woman and child in the United States.

— We have enough butter in warehouses to provide every American with more than a pound of it.

— We have enough cheese to give almost three pounds of it to everyone in our country.

Taxpayers pay for this dairy price-support program in multiple ways.

First, they pay to purchase these and other surplus commodities. In 1949, when the dairy price-support program began, it cost $188 million a year. By 1982, the program cost $2.6 billion.

Offer a subsidy for anything and pretty soon you'll have it coming out of your ears. By 1983, government was buying up 70 percent of all nonfat dry milk, nearly one-third of all butter and more than one-fourth of all U.S. cheese to keep prices from falling below minimal levels.

Second, taxpayers must pay to warehouse this stuff. Yearly storage costs: $32.8 million.

And, finally, consumers are forced to pay more for butter, milk and cheese products than they would under a free market, because of artificially inflated dairy prices propped up by the government's purchases. Needless to say, poor and low-income people are hurt most by such policies.

The argument for this bizarre system of price supports has been that it helps the small farmer, but government figures show that a large share of the subsidies go to the wealthiest farmers.

ROBERT WALTERS

Fighting Common Sense

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It certainly appears reasonable: Candidates for public office whose campaign committees have no outstanding debts on Election Day should not solicit or accept post-election contributions.

For insecure members of the House of Representatives, however, any new restrictions added to the fund-raising rules that have served them well in earlier campaigns are viewed as nothing less than a threat to the democratic process.

One legislator recently implored his colleagues to "stand up and protest against... suppression of free speech." Another somberly warned of devious attempts to "undercut the First Amendment rights of American citizens."

The inspiration for that hyperbole is a modest proposal advanced by the Federal Election Commission to extend to general elections a procedure already in place for primary elections.

A campaign committee operated on behalf of a candidate for federal office could not accept post-election contributions whose value exceeded the committee's outstanding debt.

That suggested rule would complicate two types of transactions — both of which are so legally and morally questionable that they ought to be prohibited — upon which many sophisticated politicians and donors now rely.

The first is what is known as Capitol Hill as the "get-smart-late" contribution. A political action committee operated by a special interest group waits until after the election results are known, then offers the winner a generous donation.

The second involves donations that are made before the election but come from sources (an individual linked to organized crime, for example, or a company with a reputation as reckless polluter) likely to embarrass the candidate receiving the money.

In that case, the contribution somehow is "misplaced" by the recipient and doesn't reappear until after the election, when it's safe to list it on the financial report available for public inspection.

The proposed new regulation would not prevent candidates from accepting those contributions or any other type of post-election donations even if they had a surplus on Election Day.

It is — and would remain — legal to fund raise year-round. On the day after the 1986 election, for example, candidates can establish their 1988 campaign committees and begin the process anew.

Harder Times Ahead For U.S. Farmers

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block put it bluntly: Many farmers, whose finances are shaky or methods are inefficient, are simply going to lose their farms.

Economic forces — high interest rates, falling land values, agriculture surpluses — are slowly overwhelming many small farmers, he told us. He also predicted that conditions on the farm probably will get worse before they get better.

It's not that Block lacks sympathy for small farmers: President Reagan is also compassionate, said Block. But he has more headaches than remedies, he admitted glumly.

The biggest problem, he said, is the overvalued dollar. U.S. products, therefore, are overpriced on foreign markets. Foreign customers simply can't afford to buy U.S. agricultural products.

Another problem, explained

DON GRAFF

Where Is The Principle?

Maybe it's a public relations problem.

It could be that New Zealand simply doesn't have adequate professional help of that nature in Washington. Possibly it has no one at all, not previously having been in noticeable need of assistance with its image.

Well, it's a thought, one prompted by a revealing Washington Post report about another country entirely: Seething South Africa.

According to the Post, South African interests in this country are being furthered by, at last count, 31 agents registered with the Justice Department.

The law firm of John P. Sears, for example, is on Pretoria's payroll for a half million dollars a year. You may have heard the name before. Sears was Ronald Reagan's manager at the beginning of the 1980 presidential campaign.

Then there is the firm headed by former Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.). Its reported annual retainer is somewhat less — $300,000.

So what do South Africa's public relations arrangements have to do with New Zealand? Nothing, directly. But they provide an interesting perspective on Washington's strikingly different attitudes toward the two countries — relative restraint on worsening racial repression in South Africa and outrage at New Zealand's declining a port call by a U.S. warship that may or may not have been carrying nuclear weapons.

That incident occurred, you may recall, back in February. But it is not being diplomatically forgotten. Secretary of State George Shultz, on a recent Pacific tour (New Zealand pointedly omitted from the itinerary), continued to hammer away.

There are certain similarities between New Zealand and South Africa from the American point of view. Both are the offspring of a European civilization that is also the American heritage.

But there are also significant differences. Shultz acknowledges that, as uncooperative as New Zealand may be for the moment choose to be, it remains "a country that has the same basic values we do."

It is questionable whether the same can seriously be said of a South Africa that, driven by its racial obsession, presents an ever more brutal face to the world.

There is, however, something else to be said about South Africa in that context. There's no danger of any problems about port calls there. U.S. warships haven't been putting in in South Africa since 1969 because of the treatment encountered by black crew members.

SCIENCE WORLD

Hostage Crisis Lingers

One thing follows another, and President Reagan's surgery has all but pushed the recent hostage crisis out of public consciousness. Indeed, one of the most moving things about Mr. Reagan's circumstance has been not only his usual courage and good humor but also the spontaneous surge of public affection toward him, including that of liberal commentators.

But the hostage crisis is not over. Indeed, we are still in the midst of it because Mr. Reagan has taught the entire world that you can kidnap and murder Americans and that nothing will be done about it.

The interesting suggestion is being made that Mr. Reagan gave the American public exactly what it wanted. He has presided over a resurgence of patriotism and promoted a rhetoric of "standing tall." After Vietnam and the cringing Carter and the Iranian hostage crisis, people wanted Reagan's feel-good politics. On the other hand, they did not want real teeth in it. They did not want bombs in the Bekka Valley, the sort of retaliation Dwight Eisenhower would not have hesitated to administer. Thus Reagan's genius was to give the public an approach of all bark and no bite, which was exactly what it wanted. Reagan's public statement that next time he would deal with such a crisis like Rambo was almost too perfect. If the real world is too rough, you can always go and see Sylvester Stallone.

This is a politics of illusion, and agile as Mr. Reagan is, reality is likely to catch up with him. As enemies of the United States absorb the manifest lesson that Mr. Reagan is tough only in his rhetoric, they will find ways to embarrass him severely. When the next plan is grabbed or blown up, Sylvester Stallone will not be there to help.

It is unpleasant to say it at this time, when the president is convalescing, but his handling of the hostage matter was disgraceful. Not only were Americans seized and subjected to unimaginable mental anguish, but a U.S. seaman, traveling in civilian clothes, was beaten to the point where all of his ribs were broken and his face was unrecognizable. Then he was shot in the back of the head.

The goal of this mutilation and murder was humiliation — humiliation of the United States.

The Japanese tried the same thing in 1937 when they machine gunned, bombed and sank the Panay, a U.S. gunboat, on the Yangtze River. If the United States had responded to this humiliation in a savage way, the Japanese might not have tried Pearl Harbor.

My information is that at the relevant Cabinet meeting, Secretary of Education William Bennett was the only one present who leaned toward some sort of military action against the Shiites responsible for this outrage.

During the whole affair, the president not only behaved weakly but seemed unable to think clearly. During his term in office, American embassies have been bombed and American educators and businessmen kidnapped and murdered. In October 1983, 241 Marines were blown up in Beirut and absolutely nothing happened. Even the U.S. officers responsible for the absurd lack of elementary security at the barracks were not cashiered. When the Soviets gunned down Major Nicholson, nothing happened. Nothing ever seems to happen.

At his June 18 press conference, when he attempted to address himself to the hostage situation, Mr. Reagan's thought processes seemed woolly. The hijacking, he told us, was a crime committed by "unidentified people." You "just can't start shooting without having someone in your sights."

a sentence, America's farmers have a tough row to hoe.

COLA WAR UPDATE: The millions who guzzle carbonated drinks will eventually settle whether the scuttling of old Coke and its return to the market as Classic Coke was a setback for Coca-Cola. But it looks as if Pepsi-Cola will win the space race. True, both colas are supposed to be launched into orbit today (July 29) aboard the space shuttle. But through the auspices of the Young Astronauts, Pepsi will have two cans in space; Coke only one. More importantly, Pepsi has made a long-term commitment to space by supporting the Young Astronaut Program. Pepsi will offer every Young Astronaut under the age of 10 a $1,000 scholarship when he or she enters college.

Jones, Shownda Win Junior Olympic Titles

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer
Alvin Jones and Shownda Martin won't soon forget the summer of 1985.
After stops in Chicago and New York City, the Sanford residents and Seminole High students capped off a triumphant summer tour with excellent performances in the U.S. Junior Olympic Track and Field Championships this past weekend in Seattle.
●Friday, at Huskey Stadium on the University of Washington campus, Jones leaped to a personal best 49-11 $\frac{3}{4}$ to take first place in the triple jump in the 17-18 age group.

●Sunday, at Huskey Stadium, Martin took first place in the 800 meters in the 15-16 age group with a time of 2:14.53, one one-hundredth of a second better than the second place finisher.
The Sanford contingent, which also included Louis Brown (100 meters) and Dorchelle Webster (800 meters) will return home Tuesday at 5:59 p.m. at Orlando International Airport.
Jones, who will be a senior at Seminole this school year, won the triple jump on his third jump in the preliminaries to beat out 16 other competitors from around the nation.
Jones opened up with a 47-6 $\frac{3}{4}$

then let loose with a good one on his second jump but fouled.
"It was a real decent jump," Seminole High coach Ken Brauman said. Alvin said he felt tremendous on it and said after that he knew he could hit 50 feet.
Jones, who won the triple jump at the 1984 4A State Meet, didn't quite hit 50 feet, he missed it by only a quarter of an inch. The 49-11 $\frac{3}{4}$ is a personal best for Jones by six inches.
"His technique was really good this weekend," Brauman said. "He finally started coming off the board the way he was supposed to. He just put it all together in the third jump. He came off his step phase real well."

The finals Friday were held about an hour and a half after the prelims and Brauman said it started getting chilly. After jumps of 47-3 $\frac{3}{4}$ and 48- $\frac{1}{2}$ in the final, Jones passed on his final attempt but had already sewn up first place since the other jumpers weren't improving either.
Second went to William Randolph of Washington, N.C., who leaped 49-4 $\frac{3}{4}$ and in third was Hollis Conway of Shreveport, La., at 49-3 $\frac{3}{4}$.

"He (Jones) was really on cloud nine," Brauman said of Jones. "He's the national champion. That's the first time ever for an athlete out of Sanford."
Martin, Webster and Brown ran their preliminary heats on Friday and Martin was the only one to qualify for Sunday's finals.
Martin turned in the best qualifying time by far in the 800 with a 2:13.23. The next fastest was 2:16.57 by Candice Pritchett of Atlanta who would push Martin to the limit in the finals.
Webster, who will be a sophomore at Seminole this year, turned in a fine time of 2:20.4 which would have qualified her for the finals but she was disqualified for interference with another runner.

"Dorchelle and another runner got tangled up on the first turn and they disqualified Dorchelle for interference," Brauman said. "She ran real well and would have been placed in the finals. We protested the decision but it stood. They said the other girl had position on Dorchelle when they collided."
Brown, who will be a senior in 1985-86, ran into some impressive competition in the 100 meters. Brown turned in a time

Apopka Holds Off Boone, 4-2

By Sam Cook

LONGWOOD — Apopka finally won the District 10 American Legion championship Sunday afternoon. It took one day longer than expected. That's because Boone overstayed its talent with several scrappy performances.
After Apopka knocked Lake Mary from the winners' bracket Friday night, Apopka manager Sonny Wise said he figured the Rams would resurface for Saturday's return meeting at Lyman High School.
Boone's relentless Braves had other ideas, though.

●In Saturday's semifinal encounter, Boone center fielder Paul Gay reached over the fence to rob T.J. Sutton of a grand slam homer and preserve a 9-8 victory over Lake Mary.
●In Saturday's second game, Boone jumped on Apopka's Tim Oxley and took an 8-5 lead before the game was suspended by rain. Sunday, Boone came back and held off a late Apopka rush for an 8-6 win.
●In Sunday's championship game, Apopka received a route-going effort from Trey Brassuer, who pitched out of several late-inning jams, to post a 4-2 victory over the Braves and earn a berth in the Aug. 8 State American Legion Tournament at Tallahassee.

"They're tough," Wise said about manager Terry Abbott's Braves. "Boone plays us nose-to-nose, just like Lake Mary. We were lucky to get out of here today with a win."
Boone, which had to play five games in three days, fell behind, 3-0, in the third inning. Brian King doubled to right to open the inning. Tim Eubanks popped up for one out but John Jackson singled to scored King and went to second on the throw. Brassuer fled out to left before Mike Hinde, who homered Friday and Saturday, singled to right center for the second run. Oxley doubled to deep right center for a 3-0 lead.
Boone got a run back in the fourth when Gay, who will be a senior this fall, crunched an off-speed curveball over the left center field fence. "I knew right then I had to challenge them more," said Brassuer, who will be a sophomore at Valencia Community College. "I was getting tired but I knew I had to go power for power with them."

Boone picked up an unearned run in the fifth on an error, a walk and an RBI groundout one out later by Roy Luna to pull within 3-2. But Apopka offset that run with one of its own in the bottom of the sixth, also unearned.
After Hinde flew out, right fielder Dennis Maschnot dropped Oxley's fly ball. Keith Usarey grounded out to third but Tony Johnson singled to left center to chase home Oxley for a 4-2 lead.
Boone threatened in the eighth and ninth innings but each time Brassuer reached back to put out the rallies.
In the eighth, a slick defensive play by King at third base cut short a potential rally. Paul Kendrick reached second on an error by shortstop Johnson. Luna followed with a groundball at King who faked a throw to first and whipped the ball to Jackson at second to pick off Kendrick. Paul Chambers forced Luna at second before Brassuer slipped a fastball past the dangerous Gay for the third out.
"In high school when a player gets two strikes on him, they look for a trick pitch," said Brassuer. "He hit my curve out the first time, so this time I just snuck the fastball by him."
In the ninth, losing pitcher Todd Swem reached on an error by second baseman Jackson. Brassuer induced James Ramirez to pop out and he struck out Derron Johnson. Paul Mears drew a walk to put the tying run aboard but Brassuer fanned Maschnot for the last out.
"Brassuer knows how to pitch," said Wise. "He's start our first game in Tallahassee."
Brassuer said he should be ready by then. "Hopefully my arm will go back up in the socket by then," he laughed.
Lake Mary, meanwhile, fell behind early Saturday against Boone. The Braves broke loose with four runs in the second against loser Sean "Flake" Flaherty before adding single runs in the third and fifth along with two more in the sixth.
In the seventh, manager Allen Tuttle called on ace Mike Schmitt. He pitched scoreless ball

Playing For The USA Americans' Pride, Power Drop Canada

By Rob Laria
Special to the Herald
The lack of rest and the numerous miles traveled showed in their eyes. Manager Duane Banks' announcement of a 5:45 a.m. wake-up call for the next day came as no surprise. For Team USA, it hasn't been easy.
Yet, although visibly worn, the players couldn't hide their exuberance. The jerseys said USA — they were playing the national pastime and representing their country.
Saturday night a tour, which began in June in California and included stops in Japan and Korea, landed at Sanford Stadium. Using a power show to produce four runs in the opening inning, Team USA defeated Team Canada, 5-2, for 100 fans at Sanford Memorial Stadium.
The team, made up primarily of freshmen and sophomore collegiate stars, raised its record to 13-8. It was the sixth straight win. The exhibition contests are in preparation for the Intercontinental Cup Games, which is set for Aug. 8-18 at Edmonton.
Sophomore right-hander Kevin Brown, from Georgia Tech, pitched a strong 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ innings, yielding four hits to gain the victory. Team Canada's top pitcher, 19-year-old Mike Gardiner took the loss, giving up five runs on five hits in 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ inning of work.
Brown, who improved his tour record to 3-1 and lowered his already gaudy 1.30 E.R.A., said he was just happy to have the chance.
"It's an incredible honor," he said. "I couldn't believe I was picked. It was a dream come true."
The team of 20 players was selected on the basis of opinions from college coaches and major league coaches. Each of the players was graded as prime big-league prospect. Three of the original players, in fact, were taken in the June draft, one in the first round. Two signed and had to be replaced.

Baseball

Hard-hitting catcher Scott Hemond is the only Floridian on the roster. Like Brown, he was thrilled with his selection. "It's an honor, that's really all I can say about it. Catching these pitchers is making me better. This has been such a help, and you get to see the world," said the 19-year-old Dunedin resident who stars for the University of South Florida.
Hemond led USA in RBIs with 64 and was second in home runs with 14.
Hemond said the team has come on strong of late, after starting practice without knowing one another's names. Banks, who is head coach at the University of Iowa, says the pitching has been the big key, especially in the last four games, where only four runs have been allowed.
"The pitching has been absolutely outstanding; they are a very talented group," he said.
Saturday night, the hitters took some of the load off Brown early with the big first inning. With one out, Paul Meyers, a University of Nebraska center fielder, reached first on an error and moved to second when Tom Howard walked behind him. Both were then brought home on a long home run to left field by Matt Williams.

Williams, a shortstop who has committed only 13 errors in two seasons, also has hit 33 home runs during that time for the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.
Following his blast was a solo homer George Canale, who has 40 home runs in two years at Virginia Tech.
With the 4-0 lead, Brown stayed in control. Two runners reached base in the second without damage and three runners reached in the fourth, but a pick off play for the second out thwarted the rally.
In the fifth inning, USA used a single and stolen base by Meyers — the team's second leading hitter through 20 games with a .338 average — plus a single by third baseman Jeff King to make it, 5-0.
King sports a .376 batting average after two seasons at the University of Arkansas.
In the bottom of the ninth, Brown tired and was replaced by Mike Goff with runners on first and third. Pinch-hitter Martin Robitaille greeted Goff's first pitch by doubling off the right center field fence to score Alan Mauthe, who opened the inning with an infield hit.
A wild pitch then scored Larry Downs, whose sharp line-drive single to right chased Brown. Goff, who fanned 60 batters in 81 innings for Fresno State University last year as a freshman, then induced a pop up and struck out Joe Heeney to end the game.
"We played tired tonight; we struggled," said Banks. "When we got ahead, I think we let down. It's the first time we've done that, but they were tired and it showed."
The tour, though, continued with that early morning wake up and an afternoon game in Miami.
Playing for the USA.

Scott Hemond sprawls head first into third with a triple as Canada's Craig Wilson waits for the throw.

Hall Of Fame Adds 4 More Specialists

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — The four newest members of Baseball's Hall of Fame can be characterized as specialists.
The image of Lou Brock is that of a base stealer; of Hoyt Wilhelm, a reliever; of Enos Slaughter, a fire-breathing hustler; and the late Arky Vaughan, a hitting shortstop.
However, Brock and Slaughter take exception to those labels.
"I always thought of myself as a well-rounded player," Brock said Sunday after the Hall of Fame induction ceremonies, which took place on the porch of the National Baseball Library alongside the Hall of Fame and Museum. "Specialists came about six years later."
Brock holds the career stolen base record of 938 and the mark for most consecutive 50 or better steal seasons with 12, but he prides himself on being more than just a base-stealer.

He is one of only 15 players to accumulate 3,000 or more career hits and his .391 World Series average is the highest among players who have appeared in 20 or more games. In 18 years with the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals, Brock had a lifetime .293 average and hit more than 300 eight times.
Slaughter, who spent most of 21 big-league seasons with the Cardinals and the New York Yankees, is known as the Pete Rose of the 1940s. Nicknamed "Country" because he was raised in Roxboro, N.C., Slaughter ran the bases with reckless abandon.
He is best remembered for scoring the winning run from first base in the seventh game of the 1946 World Series between the Cardinals and Boston Red Sox.

Studies: Families Pay The Bulk Of College Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although low-income families get thousands of dollars in federal help to send their children to college, they still pick up about half the education tab, a private study says.

"There is no free ride through college for low-income families," said the American Council on Education, which represents colleges and universities. In its report, "How Low-Income Families Pay for College."

The report, released Sunday, said, "These families are putting their personal resources on the line in exchange for the knowledge and hope that a college education promises."

A four-year college education now costs up to about $20,000 at public schools and can top $30,000 at private institutions.

In a companion study, "How Middle-Income Families Pay for College," the council said middle-class families receiving federal student assistance foot at least two-thirds of the college bill.

"Middle-income families are generally relying on their own resources to pay for college," the council said.

"While many middle-income students receive federal, state or college-sponsored financial assistance, most of the aid dollars they receive are in the form of loans and work-study."

Low-income families were defined as those with annual incomes of less than $15,000. Middle-income families were those with incomes of between $15,000 and $35,000.

The council's study was based on a survey of 15,000 student aid recipients at public and private institutions.

The administration last year proposed a 25 percent cut in federal student assistance.

Over the objections of students, educators and most of Congress, the administration initially sought a $4,000 limit on aid to any student and a prohibition on assistance to a youngster whose family income tops $32,500.

Following a crash of criticism, the White House revised those figures but the House and Senate came up with their own measures, which now await final action.

The House package would raise student assistance with inflation. The Senate plan would freeze it at current levels.

The American Council on Education, which charged the Reagan plan would have prevented many youngsters from going to college, said in its reports:

"Families' real college costs — the amount remaining after grants are deducted — average about $2,500 a year at public colleges and exceed $4,000 a year at private schools.

—Most low-income students who receive federal Pell Grants received less than the maximum award of $1,800 last school year —More than half of all middle-income aid recipients received Guaranteed Student Loans — three-fourths of those at private schools and about half of those at public colleges.

—Students at private schools borrow an average of more than $2,300. Public college students borrow an average of $2,100.

Iron In Pill Form As Good As 'Natural' Form

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says I am anemic and suggested I take iron pills. But I've heard there are two kinds of iron, and the kind in pills is harder to assimilate than heme iron, which is found in meat. I don't eat too much meat any more, but the pills are unappealing. Can I get the necessary iron in low-fat milk?

DEAR READER — The iron in red meat is already in a form that can be used by the body. However, the difference between heme iron and pill iron is probably insignificant for the average person. More important, you can get enormously more iron from pills than you can from diet, and much more from meat than from vegetables or dairy products.

If you are anemic because of iron deficiency, I advise you to take the pills, they're easier and work much faster than any "natural" source. You may meet your daily iron requirement by eating a balanced diet, but your anemia proves that your iron stores are low at present. Therefore, iron pills are a much more appropriate supplement than are meats, grains or cow's milk.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had an injury this winter that laid me up for two weeks. Then what looked like a cold sore spread horribly around my face. My doctor said it looked like a staph infection, but it wasn't. I then developed a sore throat that another doctor said was caused by a virus; then I developed what one of them called geographic tongue. Could these have all been related? What is geographic tongue?

DEAR READER — I'm not sure that all your recent problems are related, at least, I hope they're not. Winters are a good time for viruses. We tend to be indoors more, and closer to each other, and this enables virus infections to spread more rapidly. I have no scientific proof of this, but, as I'm sure you will agree, we tend to be more disease-prone in winter and viruses are usually spread by direct contact. Your injury may have affected your resistance in some way; in the future, you might consider limiting your visitors.

Your geographic tongue could have resulted from your repeated infections. No one knows precisely how geographic tongue develops. As you are aware, this common but distressing condition is characterized by a tongue that looks blotchy, like a continental map. It can occur in normal individuals and it may follow inflammation, particularly after the use of antibiotics. It produces no consequences other than universal concern among its victims, who tend to be welded to their mirrors to check out the reflections of their outstretched tongues. I hope you have better luck in the summer.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Normally the purpose of taking a finesse is to win a trick. In the play of today's hand, a finesse was taken simply to create an extra entry to dummy. Let's see why the entry was needed.

West cashed three diamond tricks against four spades. Then, on the off-chance that East might hold an ace, he led a club. Declarer won the ace and played the ace and king of spades. When West showed out on the second spade, declarer had his work cut out for him. He had to reduce his trump length to that of East by ruffing twice and then be in dummy at trick 12 to force East to ruff in front of declarer's Q-10. Thus the heart finesse was imperative not for the trick, but for the entry. South played a heart to the jack and ruffed a club, played a heart to the king and ruffed another club. Now back to the heart ace (holding his breath that East would not ruff), and everything came up roses. Dummy had the lead at the right time and 10 tricks were made.

Have you seen how the contract could have been defeated? West must lead a heart after taking three diamond tricks. That takes an entry from dummy before declarer discovers the bad trump split. How should West know that South has the club ace? South would hardly jump to three spades without that card.
