Brock receives endorsement

SANFORD — Newman Brock, candidate for 18th judicial circuit judge, group 10, has received the endorsement of Robert E. Miller, one of the two candidates eliminated in the Sept. 4 primary.

In making his endorsement, Miller said, "I am giving Mr. Brock my support because I believe he will best serve the concerns that I raised during the campaign. I believe he can adequately deal with the frustration and communications problems that were uncovered during the campaign."

Brock, who will face Ned Julian in the Nov. 6 general election, said he had not yet obtained the endorsement of the other unsuccessful candidate, George Kelley of Forest City, but added, "I'm hopeful that will take place in the near future."

COMING SUNDAY

More news from the schools

Beginning Sunday, the Sanford Herald will present news from the schools with a new twist on the Education page: high school correspondents' own reports and the week's lunch menus.

Shannon Latimer from Seminole High School and Allison Slater from Lake Mary High School will write about happenings from their schools from the students' point of view.

The young writers will be bringing the news from the trenches once a week with special insight and in their own words.

The menus, released by the Seminole County School Board, are the same for all the schools in the district except on the days when managers are allowed freedom of choice. The menus also will appear daily.

Kelley probe dropped

SANFORD — The Florida Commission on Ethics will not pursue a complaint filed against Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley by State Attorney Norm Wolfinger.

The State attorney had charged that Kelley failed to declare a bank account with her financial disclosure documents when she filed her candidacy in 1988.

The ethics commission, in a ruling made public Thursday, said while there appeared to be "probable cause" to hold a hearing on the complaint, pursuit of the matter "would not be in the public interest," said Helen Jones, commission administrative director, reading from the commission's decision issued Sept. 7.

A finding of probable cause is not a declaration that a violation has occurred, Jones said.

Issues: fiscal control, pay, books, vocational training, candidates say

By VICKI BOGEMAN

CASSELBERRY — Last night at the Casselberry Senior Center, the 11 candidates for the Seminole County School Board met at the invitation of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee.

Heading into the home stretch before the Oct. 2 primary, the issues are heating up but the debate remains clean.

Speaking to an audience of about 35 people, many of whom were their own families and friends, the candidates agreed on the issues of the need for more financial responsibility by the school board, the need to improve vocational education in the schools and the need for more textbooks and better pay for teachers.

A new issue, that of the appointed versus the elected school superintendent, also brought unanimous agreement among the candidates.

"There's no mud slinging here," said Barbara Kuhn, a candidate in District 4. "We are all running clean campaigns because we all stand for the same things: the children of Seminole County."

Clues sought in bank truck driver disappearance

By SUSAN LEBEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Wells Fargo armored truck driver Wendy Sagarra, 31, who disappeared from her truck in Sanford Thursday morning was still missing this morning, Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said.

Sagarra may be a hostage-victim, or she may have been part of a plot to steal money from the truck.

Police, he said, are conducting two separate but related investigations, one from each of those perspectives. The hostage-victim theory is being given top priority, he said.

"It's unknown if any money was taken specifically," Harriett said today. Some cash was found in a

His fingers dance over keyboard

By JOHN KING
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Don Pate of Sanford, is a pianist extraordinaire whose nimble fingers dance over the ivory keyboard creating melodic waves of sound throughout the cozy confines of a piano lounge.

The lounge is located in the front section of the Lake Monroe Inn at the waterfront in Sanford. The inn's lounge is quite pleasant with its windows facing Lake Monroe. Diners can enjoy a vibrant sunset over the lake as Pate caters to their listening pleasure.

Pate reaches the audience by changing his age groups. When white-haired patrons enter, he reaches into the recesses of his mind to bring forth music a youngster would love.

Pate plays requests from patrons. He plays serious church and soul from one style to another from Gene Autry's "Back to the Saddle Again" to Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." He performs a medley of show tunes and upbeat contemporary music.

As the older generation mixes with younger people entering the lounge, Pate changes the tempo and the musical mood changes over so smoothly. The change is so neatly accomplished that one hardly realizes it.

Pate has been playing the piano since he was a 5-year-old prodigy. He has never had lessons and has played professionally for 45 years. His first stage appearance at age 5 earned quite a stir when people marveled at his intestinal fortitude and talent. He became his uncle's protégé and performed with his uncle's band in North Carolina.

Pate is originally from Wilmington, N.C. He recalls his first gig in show biz.

"We were so poor, I didn't have anything to wear on stage. We had to buy some new bits overalls so I could go on stage. That was precious, I could wear them anywhere," he chuckles and says. Pate says North Carolina is dedicated to country music and is greatly influenced by religion. All he knew back then was country and religious music. His uncle's band played all-around music which did influence him, he says.

By 1935, he had heard about Florida and had a real year to get to this state.

"I moved to Miami Beach and played country clubs. We had later country clubs in Wilmington where I also played. The state people requested all these artists here."

Pate says wherever he plays he always learns the songs of the area for the patrons. There are recognizable chord changes throughout the East. Every area has its favorite style. Pate has his favorites, too.

"I've got a rock-and-roll fan. Personally, I like any contemporary. Frank Sinatra, Barbra Streisand and Buddy T were all good listening. When I played Pate's presence at the inn is well received by patrons who can see him perform seven nights a week from 8 p.m. to midnight on Monday and Tuesday, Wednesday through Sunday he plays from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

"I like the patrons here. Most of them are regulars," he says. The Lake Monroe Inn has been in continuous operation since 1928. One of the waitresses, Norma Carter, has worked there since it first opened. She started as a messenger.

Pate has performed there "off and on for about five years," he says, as he continues to play in his stocking feet, talking, taking requests and never missing a beat. Pate is busy restoring his 80-year-old house in Sanford, where he now calls home.

Boy with hole in pocket should sew wallet shut

BEAR ABBY: We have a 9-year-old son who thinks that all money is good for a spending. We given him a weekly allowance and suggest that he save half of it, but he gets very upset when we try to keep half of his money. If he goes to a store and has 25 cents left, he will drop it into any kind of machine just to get rid of it. If we give him 15 minutes in a toy store to buy something and we tell him his time is up, he'll grab whatever is nearest just to spend whatever he has left over.

Abby, do you, or any of your readers, have any ideas on how to get a child to appreciate the value of a dollar?

FRUGATERS IN FLORIDA BEAR FRUGATA: As

if you permit your son's allowance to be the focus of a power struggle, he'll never save a dime. Spending his money is his way of asserting his independence.

Explain to him that the money he earns is his money, too, and can be spent as he chooses after it reaches a certain amount. Let him make his own choices, whether you agree with those choices or not.

Read on for a letter I received from a Seattle father a few years ago:

BEAR ABBY: As a father, I made a lot of mistakes (my son is now 14), but I know I did at least one thing right, and I'd like to share it with you.

When my son was 5 years old, I started giving him an allowance of 25 cents a week. There was one catch — he could spend 25 cents on anything he wanted, but the other 25 cents he had to put in his piggy bank. He could spend his piggy bank savings on anything he wanted, but only after it reached $10.

Every week, he spent his 25 cents on candy and gum, but he never really thought much about his savings — until he had accumulated his first $10. When he realized what he could get if he saved up his money, he began saving all of his allowance.

Every year on his birthday, his allowance was increased 50 cents, so he had 25 cents more to save. Also, the amount he was required to save increased by $10.

He now has his first after-school job, and he's saving for a set of drums and a school trip to France.

I have never talked to him directly about the virtues of saving, but he saves money like no other ten-year-old I know.

FRUGATA BEAR FRUGATA: You have a right to be proud — of yourself, as well as your son. You've given him a gift that will last a lifetime — a lesson in saving.

BEAR ABBY: It was with interest that I read the story of the wedding gown that was worn 15 times.

My baptismal dress was worn for the first time in November 1923. My sister wore it in February 1925. Since then, it was worn by each of my five children, my sister's five children, 11 of our 13 grandchildren, and 10 of my sister's 11 grandchildren. That makes a grand total of 33 times!

By that time, it was so fragile, I had to retire it. Otherwise, to date, it would have been worn 38 times.

BEAR FRUGATA: Although no mention is made of how much the baptismal dress cost in 1923, I would say your family certainly did get its money's worth.

Bitter taste could mean an infection

DEAR DR. GOTT: For months I've had a burning sensation in the back of my throat and tongue and a bitter taste in my mouth. I've been checked for mono, had a gastroscopy, chest X-rays and routine blood work. Could certain foods cause my condition? Antacids don't help, and my doctors can't pinpoint the problem.

DEAR READER: Certain foods, such as citrus and spices, could add to your discomfort. However, I'm concerned that your diagnosis is in doubt. The bitter taste in your mouth could reflect infection. For instance, you may have an unsuspected sinus inflammation from which infected mucus drains down the back of your throat, yielding a burning sensation. Or you may have post-nasal drip, from allergies or air pollutants, that is irritating the delicate tissues of your throat.

Finally, you should consider a dental infection. Infected teeth are not always painful; sometimes they cause few symptoms. However, they can produce pus, which tastes bitter.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Five years ago, I received radiation for endometrial cancer. Since then, I've been having problems with my bladder (radiation cystitis). I take a bladder relaxant, but I wonder if you know of anything else I can do. It's painful most of the time and very debilitating.

DEAR READER: X-ray treatments to the pelvis can sometimes result in radiation cystitis, a non-infectious bladder irritation causing painful and frequent urination. Because the treatment of this condition depends on several variables, including the severity of the irritation and its location, I cannot advise you. You should be under the care of a urologist or specialist in a teaching center who may be able to suggest alternatives to anti-spasm medication.

By James Jacoby
 Declarer play at the highest level requires drawing logical conclusions. Although he was in only a part-score contract, Sidney Lazard drew the right conclusion and made the winning play in today's deal. North's two-heart response to one no-trump was a transfer bid, asking opener to bid spades. When East came in with three clubs, Lazard still bid three spades. This suggested good spades, since he was released from the obligation of bidding when East overruled. From North's point of view, declarer would need more than just a spade fit to make nine tricks. East won the club lead, cashed a high club and played a third one. Declarer ruffed low and West overruled. West returned a trump to South's ace. South cashed the spade king and could play a diamond back to his jack. West won the king and returned the diamond eight.

covered by the nine, 10 and South's queen. Lazard could now play a diamond to the good seven-spot in dummy, but he would have no way of returning to his hand to cash the ace. But declarer knew that the reluctance of West to lead hearts marked him with the king. So he led the heart queen from his hand. West covered with the king and dummy won the ace. That made it necessary for East to keep the jack of hearts. When two more spades were played, South throwing two little hearts, East was forced to discard a diamond. Declarer now overtook dummy's diamond seven with his ace and scored the last trick with the four-spot.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Sept. 15, 1980

The degree of your success will be dependent in the year ahead upon the belief you have in yourself and your abilities. If you don't think you're hot, you're not.

VENUS (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Your objectives must be clearly defined today or else you might run the risk of stumbling over your own feet due to a lack of direction. Plan each step in advance. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. For your personal horoscope, horoscope, lucky numbers and future forecast, call Astro-Tone by dialing 1-800-454-8888 and entering this newspaper's code number 000; 95 cents per minute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Assert your independence today and don't be carried into going along with your peers if there is something in which you do not want to be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Things will come easier for you today if you are not too self-caring. In fact, others might deliberately place obstacles on your path if they think you are.

SANTITAS (Nov. 23-Dec. 31) Usually you are a reasonably positive thinker, but today there's a chance you may be done in by your own self-defeating thoughts. Don't make things tougher on yourself than they need be.

GABRIEL (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) Be extremely selective today regarding in whom you place your trust. If you have to deal with people about whom you know little make them verify what they tell you.

AGARUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) In a partnership arrangement today be sure each party clearly understands what is expected. Success could be denied if there is not harmony of purpose.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best not to attempt to do critical tasks today you find distasteful. A bad attitude will be reflected in your work and you might have to later redo all you've done.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best to avoid risky investments of a financial or commercial nature today. There's a possibility you could get drawn into something that is not what it is represented to be.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Disagreements between you and your mate should be quietly resolved today to free you from outside influences. Bringing others into the act could create new complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you're a rather easy going individual, but today you might be unduly critical of others, especially co-workers. Fault finding could evoke an undesirable response. Be careful.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) Events might not go too smoothly for you today socially, because you may have to deal with someone you dislike. Don't let things get out of hand.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) Conditions over which you'll have little or no control could prevent you from doing that which you plan to do today. Frustrations can be minimized if you flow with the tide.
