Brock Adams Fired

Schlesinger Ousted In Shakeup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has accepted the resignation of embattled Energy Secretary James Schlesinger in the second round of his massive Cabinet reshuffle, sources said today.

Schlesinger will leave in early October, the sources said, and be replaced by Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan, an Atlanta businessman. Duncan will move into the Energy Department in mid-August to learn the ropes.

Carter also was expected to accept the resignation of Transportation Secretary Brock Adams today. Adams has defied new chief of staff Hamilton Jordan in demanding direct access to Carter, and White House aides were furious.

The ouster of Schlesinger and Adams would bring to five the victims of Carter's Cabinet exorcism.

On Thursday Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal's resignation was accepted. He will be replaced by Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller.

Assistant Secretary Griffin Bell got his long-standing request to return to private practice, with his deputy, Benjamin Civiletti, his successor.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano was fired, to be replaced by HUD Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris.

The wholesale onslaught against the Carter Cabinet has astounded Washington.

On Capitol Hill Assistant Senate Republican leader Ted Stevens of Alaska said today Carter "might be having some sort of a mental problem" and suggested the chief executive "take a rest."

Stevens said the wholesale Cabinet reshuffling made him "worried" about the president.

Schlesinger reportedly told his close aides he will remain on the job for several weeks "to make sure there is an orderly transition."

Last week, UPI reported that Schlesinger would be leaving because he had become a "political liability" to Carter.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said the Cabinet upheaval would end today, but there were no indications who Carter will slash from his own staff. Those changes are expected next week.

No modern president had kept his original — Carter once called it "superb" — Cabinet intact as long as Carter. But when he made changes, he made them massively, rapidly, and for reasons having nothing to do with policy disagreement.

Califano, describing Carter's words to him, said: "There were two problems. One related to friction with certain members of the White House staff, and the other point he mentioned was that he had to get the Cabinet and the administration ready for the 1980 election."

Bell, a fellow South Georgian and Carter's nearest thing to a Cabinet crony, has long wanted to return to his prestigious Atlanta law firm, and Powell said Carter would follow Bell's suggestion and nominate Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to succeed him.

Bell later joked about the announcement being made on the same day as other Cabinet officers were fired. "I had a very uncomfortable day," he said.

Republican Senator Says Carter Having Breakdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Senate Republican leader Ted Stevens said today President Carter "might be having some sort of a mental problem" and suggested that the chief executive "take a rest."

Stevens, one of several Republicans to visit Camp David during Carter's recent soul-searching, told reporters he had come away "worried" about the president.

Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia criticized Stevens' statements on the Senate floor.

"I take friendly umbrage at this caustic comment ... I don't think the president needs a vacation," Byrd said.

Stevens made his statements in an interview and then amplified on the Senate floor.

Continued Stevens: "I don't think anyone's saying he's crazy. But the pressures on him are so great we are wondering if he's having some sort of a breakdown. Some of us were worried after Camp David. Maybe he ought to take a rest."

He tried to reconstruct his image in one day (with Sunday's speech) and destroy it the next."

Later, when the Senate met for business, Stevens said on the floor: "I told reporters that some of us are seriously worried about the president. We feel he's approaching a period of some sort of mental problem because of the tremendous pressures he has taken upon himself. My suggestion is that he as well as Congress take a vacation."

Seminole Tax Rate Steady But Countians To Pay More

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

New construction and reappraisals of property within Seminole County will enlarge the tax base enough to prevent the average resident from experiencing any tax hike, Jeff Etchberger, director of the office of management, analysis and evaluation said today.

JEFF ETCHBERGER
...payments the same

However, residents who live in the unincorporated areas of the county will pay an extra 82 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation (from $1.90 to $2.72) as a result of an increase in the fire department budget. County administrator Roger Neiswender said the increase is caused by the county having to assume the salaries of 19 firefighters who previously were funded through CETA monies. A change in CETA five percent above this year's budget.

The $6.60 figure is based on general operation, transportation, bond obligation and hospital taxes. It does not include the special fire district. Etchberger said the county's total assessed valuation for next year is $1,853,720,353. It represents an increase in the tax base (property value that can be taxed) of about $152 million, he said. That increase offsets the need to increase individual homeowner's taxes, he said.

Two factors are given for the increased tax base, Etchberger said. There was new construction, chiefly in the commercial area of the county, which raised the tax base about $87 million, and reappraisals of homes within the county raised

Residents Help Quash Boating Idea In Lake Mary

By HUGH THOMSON
Herald Staff Writer

A packed hall of opponents helped quash Lake Mary resident Bill Stead's proposal to place environmental restrictions, particularly on boat horsepower, on Lake Mary, Thursday night.

At the regular meeting of the Lake Mary City Council, Stead, airport manager at Sanford Airport and a 10-year Lake Mary resident, proposed environmental restrictions on boat horsepower and skiing. He based his proposal on what he said was his 10-year study of the lake's environment, and on conclusions reached from a $97,000 two-year project on pollution of central Florida lakes made by Florida

Technological University scientists.

The university study blamed big horsepower for helping to destroy lakes by disturbing the ecological balance of water, plants and lake life.

Stead said Lake Mary had no springs and an outlet, but no overflow and a mucky bottom. He said dredging and dredging operations in the past had disturbed lake sediments and were a cause of pollution. But the greatest destroyer of the lake, he noted, was boat horsepower.

Said Stead, "Large horsepower boats, particularly with 100 horsepower engines, have two effects on the lake. First, all of their exhausts go into the water, and the mixing of exhausts from gasoline and oil removes oxygen. Fish food supplies are also destroyed. When the oxygen is destroyed, fish are killed. Plants also begin to grow from the shoreline and with time, a dead lake is created."

"In three years," Stead said, "there has been a 55-foot growth of sawgrass. On my lake property, I'm now back three feet from what the original shoreline was three years ago."

"If the lake is destroyed, property values will go down," Stead said.

Stead said if future generations had the use of the lake for fishing, boating and swimming it would be necessary for council to place a 10-horsepower limit on boat horsepower.

Mrs. DeLores Lash, Stead's most vocal opponent, said her lake property originally was purchased for skiing, fishing and swimming.

"We have a 105-horsepower motor on our boat and we've always used it for skiing. Our children have always skied on the lake. Besides, what about the police department's program of water-skiing that keeps the kids off the streets and out of trouble. How are you going to police the lake if any such ordinance is passed?"

Mrs. Lash, to prove another point, brought another Lake Mary resident, Tony Mann, to the meeting. Mann showed the audience a 7-pound bass he had caught in Lake Mary, mounted, and said he had recently caught a 16-pounder. Saying he had caught as many as 20 big bass at one session, Mann said there was nothing wrong with the fishing.

Mrs. Lash also stated that "the bacteria count in Lake Mary was the lowest in the county."

Bill Durrenberger, another Lake Mary resident, said the Mercury Outboard company had been conducting studies on a lake in Osceola County and said the water quality of that lake had actually "improved," only dredging "years ago" had been detrimental on Lake Mary, "outboard motors were great weed cutters," and high gas prices had slowed down lake traffic considerably.

Lake Mary resident John Norden briefly remarked that "when many boats were on the lake, it looked like a tanker oil spill."

City Manager Phil Kulesch said he had received a number of phone calls opposing any restrictions on the lake.

Bill Durrenberger opposed tabling Stead's proposal, wanted a meeting of all property owners held to determine the issue.

"How do we know you just might pass this thing at some future time?" Durrenberger asked.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said council had no such plan to pass such an item, and that he was against a public hearing notice for it.

Lake Mary Deals With Borrow Pits

Lake Mary City Council in its regular meeting Thursday night dealt with "borrow pits," Seminole Memorial Hospital, an option to purchase land for the city, and cooperation between city and county authorities.

Borrow pits and the question of jurisdiction in issuing permits for Lake Mary or Seminole County, was a main topic of discussion. The land in question had been involved in a rezoning suit, and the city of Lake Mary did not issue a permit to Tim Lake of Lake Mary. Lake asked the county City Attorney Gary Massey said he would file a pleading with the courts, so that Lake Mary would not waive its rights.

The Sanford recreation department held an odd-ball day Tuesday. A dizzy race was held in which contestants had to spin around for 30 seconds before the start of a foot race. A contest was held to see who had shoes with the most holes, which boy had the longest hair, who had the most freckles, and who had the largest mouth (above). With so much noise being made from so many large mouths, judges ruled the contest a tie between all contestants.

Farmers Praise Firing

Farmers and agriculture officials in Southern tobacco producing areas have praised President Carter's decision to accept the resignation of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano, but some say the move came too late to help Carter's standing in the Tobacco Belt.

Air Safety Plan
Mired In Debate

Clearly, air traffic safety procedures at San Diego's Lindbergh Field have improved since the tragic PSA crash last September. But, just as clearly, safety procedures could be further enhanced if Congress and the Federal Aviation Administration would inject some sense of urgency into a technical debate that is barely plodding along.

The flagging momentum of these deliberations in Washington is as puzzling as it is alarming. In the wake of last year's horror, we would have assumed that those responsible for selecting and implementing the safest possible air traffic control system would tolerate no delay in seeing the job done. When error and delay are to be measured in human lives, there is little margin for options.

Last December, the FAA proposed a strict air traffic system which would subject private aircraft in the vicinity of metropolitan airports to the same controls that apply to commercial airliners.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association took immediate exception to this plan and has bombarded the FAA and congress with demands that the proposed system be rescinded. The AOPA, which represents the interests of private aviation, contends the new system would only diminish safety.

Under pressure from the AOPA, Congress stepped in to referee the dispute. Meanwhile, the FAA tempered its support for its own proposal.

That, at the moment, is where matters stand. The tighter air traffic controls now operative at Lindbergh are voluntary for private aircraft. Although 90 percent of the private planes operating within Lindbergh's jurisdiction are complying, the 10 percent that are not, presumably, continue to pose a safety hazard.

If the proposed new system has serious drawbacks, Congress and the FAA ought to investigate and either make appropriate corrections or scrap the proposal and find something better. If, however, the system is the best that can be designed at present, it should be mandated by the FAA for all metropolitan airports without delay.

Neither will happen soon enough unless Congress and the FAA kick their deliberations out of low gear.

NASA's Comeback

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was under heavy fire in recent weeks because of the uncertainty tied to the slow death of the orbiting Skylab spacecraft.

Concern over when and where the 77-ton vehicle would plunge to Earth had shaken confidence in the agency's reputation for precision. Space officials were criticized for their miscalculations on the impact of sunspots on the spacecraft's life.

Joining Riley were Govs. Robert F. List, a Nevada Republican, and Dixy Lee Ray, a Washington Democrat who was an unabashed promoter of nuclear power while chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission from 1973 to 1975. To emphasize the "critical importance" of tougher safeguards, the three governors demanded that new federal procedures be approved by Aug. 1 and implemented by Sept. 1. All the governors at this year's meeting approved a sweeping resolution calling for improvements in training of control-room operators, equipment design and placement, administration and management of nuclear plants, off-site radiation monitoring, communications and disaster insurance.

Skylab's re-entry into the atmosphere was on schedule, according to NASA's final estimates. And the final signal to the limping laboratory sent it tumbling into a descent designed to direct the disintegrating craft and tons of debris into the waters of the Indian Ocean.

The Skylab saga ended without earthly damage or casualties. Skylab's demise, assured by cuts in the space budget that barred manned shuttle visits over the last five years, gave NASA opportunity to prove its capabilities in the face of challenge.

Governors Shift On Nuke View

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (NEA)—The most recent evidence of the country's growing disenchantment with nuclear power is attested by the little-noted but profound shift in attitude displayed by the nation's governors.

When the National Governors' Association held its 70th yearly convention in Boston last summer, substantive discussion of the issue was confined to an obscure subcommittee whose members served as pro-industry cheerleaders.

The subcommittee produced a one-sided report that summarily dismissed a congressional study warning of enormous decommissioning costs for nuclear generating stations. In addition, the report repeatedly criticized "the delays experienced in siting, licensing and constructing nuclear power plants."

Finally, Edwards' panel served as host to a senior vice president of the General Electric Co., one of the country's four suppliers of atomic plants, who warned that diminished reliance upon nuclear power could lead to "a high likelihood of serious brownouts and curtailment of service in many areas."

Plenty Air Safety Problems Remain

WASHINGTON — Clearing the DC-10 for return to the skies may be one specific air safety problem, but plenty more remain. How will they be dealt with — one at a time following each new disaster, or with a well-planned, comprehensive approach that will bring safety techniques almost of air travel's speed, comfort and convenience?

The answers varied, in large part depending on the particular case that each group has to grapple with. To find out what are the greatest dangers facing the flying public, we surveyed aviation experts, employees and consumer groups.

Say it with color... It is not unusual for me to have to wait at crossings for several trains in my daily rounds. But I have made a game out of the inconvenience as the creeping cars pass.

An all-white room reflects a clinical atmosphere associated with disease, severe illness or serious surgery. I feel a friend who has a white living room. I feel the scrubbing and donning a surgical mask just to look at this room.

What went up has finally come down after what must be one of the most prolonged worldwide death watches on record.

By being so thoroughly alerted, the world in no way would have been able to escape possibly disastrous consequences had Skylab targeted densely populated areas. But with the continuing position reports and re-entry estimates, it was spared much of the uncertainty that accompanied the earlier incident.

Bundy Defense To Strike Hard At Teeth Testimony

MIAMI (UPI) — The defense will strike hard and fast today at the state's crucial teeth identification testimony as they open their case in the four-week-old first-degree murder trial of Dr. Lewis J. Levin, chief bite mark consultant for the New York City Medical Examiner, confirmed Sourvin's judgment Thursday, saying he believed Bundy made the bite marks based upon a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

Levine had also used computer-enhanced photos — a space age development that allows greater detail to be analyzed than the original negative — to analyze some heavily bruised areas of the bite mark. He did disagree over the number of bites.

Sourvin said there were two. Levine said they were "two very distinct and very good patterns from the lower teeth and three or four or four or five teeth marks consistent with upper teeth."

The computer technique — used by Levine to analyze X-rays of John Kennedy taken after his assassination — makes a graph-like picture of the teeth, showing darker areas as hollows and lighter areas as valleys.

In testimony earlier on the computer enhancement technique, Dr. Homer Campbell Jr., the chief forensic dentist for New Mexico, explained the so-called digital machine was used "to make the image more visible to the human eye."

Vacations OK Despite Gas Crisis: Levin

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Sid Levin says people "work hard and shouldn't put off their Florida vacations just because of the energy crisis."

Levin also said Thursday he thinks Florida can rebound from the 20 percent drop in tourism realized at the end of June and in early July and said with a good fall and spring 1979 could be Florida's best year ever.

"Travel is one of the great joys of life," Levin said. "A vacation is a hard-earned, very personal thing."

Levin was responding to President Carter's call to the nation to be patriotic and give up unnecessary trips to conserve energy. Carter didn't single out vacations but his message was strong enough to convince state officials to change the state's advertising campaign beginning next week in northern newspapers.

"A hard-earned vacation is not an unnecessary trip," says the new ad.

With tourism the leader of Florida's economy, Levin bristles at the suggestion people should stay closer to home and not make the 2,500-mile round trip from New York to Florida.

"If we solve the energy problem in a way that destroys the economy we lose," he said, claiming if people are thrifty and cut out trips to the store and use their home appliances wisely the energy problem will take care of itself.

"If the average American treats his energy the way he treats his bank account (and saves a little extra) he shouldn't have a right to use a portion of it at vacation time!"

But there are those who feel Florida may be going out on a limb advertising for tourists at the same time it is trying to join the energy conservation bandwagon.

"To me it's like having your cake and eating it too," said one Florida Energy Office staffer, while another acknowledged Florida needs to do both to sustain itself economically. "It's a very sensitive thing," he said.

Orlando, Fla. (UPI) — An attorney for the family of a woman who died to death says he will file a malpractice suit against her abortionist, since he has been declared negligent by a court-appointed panel.

Gloria Small, a 34-year-old mother of six from DeLeon Springs, hemorrhaged to death in March 1976. The day before she died her uterus had been punctured by Dr. Roland Tauber at his Orlando Birthing Center. She was 15 weeks pregnant at the time.

A panel ruled unanimously Wednesday that Tauber was negligent in his treatment of Mrs. Small. He should have realized, the medical examiner said, that the overweight, asthmatic woman was a poor abortion risk as an outpatient. She suffered from chronic lung disease and had a family history of high blood pressure.

Dr. Thomas Hegert, Orange County medical examiner, said Tauber should have had his patient in the hospital as soon as her condition stabilized. Instead he stopped her bleeding by pressing medical packing cloth against the wound. The next day when Tauber tried to remove the packing, Mrs. Small began bleeding again. Only then was she rushed to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where she died after an emergency hysterectomy.

Hegert noted that most doctors will not perform abortions past the first three months of pregnancy.

Tauber, now practicing gynecology and obstetrics in Detroit, consistently has maintained his innocence. His license to practice medicine in Florida was suspended 17 months ago.

An attorney for the Small family said he will file suit within three weeks for a jury trial for Tauber. A panel first was appointed by the court to study the malpractice charges against the doctor to determine if there was reason to suspect negligence.

Major Ogilvie: Alabama's Best Ever?

ATLANTA (UPI) — The more fanatical Southeastern Conference fans will tell you there are only two college sports — football and spring football — so, with preseason drills barely a month away, it's little wonder that gridiron fever is starting to rise again in the region.

Over in Alabama, where anything less than a national championship is cause for alarm, they're spreading the word that Major Ogilvie, a 180-pound junior, may be the best running back the Crimson Tide has had; better even, they say, than Johnny Musso, Wilbur Jackson or Tony Nathan.

"That's a pretty big order," says Ogilvie, the young man who scored Alabama's winning touchdown against Penn State in the Sugar Bowl. "I'll have to do my job, just keep doing what I'm supposed to do. I put any personal goal third, behind us winning the SEC and national championships."

There's a segment in the state of Alabama that insists there's a running back down the road at Auburn who is going to outshine Ogilvie this fall. The player they're touting is a 190-pound senior named Joe Cribbs who played very little the first four games last season because of a foot injury — and still wound up with 1,295 yards and a league-leading 16 touchdowns.

"I've got to have something to shoot at," said Cribbs. "I want something to make me work." Cribbs could be improved this fall and still not equal last season's figures because he'll be running in tandem with junior James Brooks who was leading the nation in rushing before he broke his foot in the fourth game of last season.

Cribbs, despite playing very little until the fifth game of the season, led the SEC in rushing last fall by gaining an average of 120.5 yards per game. The No. 2 and No. 3 runners — Georgia's Willie McClendon and LSU's Charles Alexander — who holds the league's career rushing record — have gone to the pros so the only other 1,000-yard performer returning in the SEC this fall is Vanderbilt's Frank Morcia, who underwent corrective knee surgery this spring. Morcia's statistics are a bit misleading since he got 321 of his 1,065 yards in one afternoon against the Air Force which just one week earlier had allowed Georgia Tech's Eddie Lee Ivey break loose for an NCAA-record 356 yards.

Down in the Louisiana bayou, where college football is just as much a craze as it is in Alabama, LSU fans are counting on a 205-pound junior with the unlikely name of Hokie Gagan to pick up where Alexander left off. Leon Perry, a 212-pound senior at Ole Miss, looks like a sure-fire 1,000-yard performer this fall. Last season, Perry (673 yards in 148 carries) split tailback chores with Freddie Williams (627 yards in 137 carries), but Williams has moved to flanker.

Flaming out of the Alabama wishbone which uses a host of backs, Ogilvie gained only 583 yards last fall. But his 6.5 average was second in the SEC only to Nathan's 6.9. "Ogilvie is such an exceptional blocker that he's worth just as much to our offense when one of the other backs has the ball," said an Alabama assistant coach. "He's not all that physical, but he's an intelligent blocker with good technique. You couldn't ask for a better attitude."

"The team is more important than any one individual," said Ogilvie. "Coach (Bear) Bryant puts that into us. That's the reason we win. You know that to impress him, you have to do your job and do it right. You have to work hard, but you do it because when you see something that works and is successful you want to be a part of it."

That's why Alabama fans believe Major Ogilvie will be the best running back in the SEC this fall even if some others wind up with fancier statistics.

Sisler Yankees' Pick?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last Tuesday night, when practically all the other major league baseball people were in Seattle watching the All-Star game, George Steinbrenner was in Columbus, Ohio, watching another ball game with the Yankees' new president.

The man Steinbrenner was with was George Sisler, Jr., President and General Manager of the Columbus Clippers in the International League and the game they were watching from an enclosed box in Franklin County Stadium was one between the Clippers and the Syracuse Chiefs.

When Al Rosen notified George Steinbrenner he was quitting as President of the Yankees, naturally, one of the first things the Yankee owner thought about was who was going to replace him. The Yankees don't have to replace Rosen immediately, and aren't likely to until the International League season ends in mid-September, but they will have to do so ultimately and that is when Steinbrenner will name Sisler.

Cedric Tallis is the club's executive vice president and general manager and normally he'd move up to take Rosen's place but Tallis already is penciled in to go back home to Kansas City at the end of this season and supervise the Yankees' scouting staff. Steinbrenner was looking for someone else and it was obvious he would think of Sisler, who is running the finest minor league operation in baseball right now at Columbus and has a first class baseball background.

The son of Hall of Famer George Sisler, who batted over .400 not once but twice and who some old-timers still consider the best all-around ballplayer who ever lived, 60-year-old George Sisler, Jr., has done a remarkable job in Columbus, which the Yankees took over after last season.

Columbus, which won 16 in a row recently, has drawn more fans than any other minor league club in baseball this season. The team is even outdrawing the Oakland A's with its 272,682 total, or an average of 6,100 a game, for 45 home dates, and with former Yankee shortstop Gene Michael managing the Clippers, they are in first place and running away from the rest of their competition in the league, 13 1/2 games in front.

There is nothing George Steinbrenner enjoys or appreciates more than a successful operation, regardless whether it happens to be in the majors or the minors, and at the moment there is no more successful baseball operation than George Sisler, Jr. Before coming to Columbus, Sisler worked in the St. Louis Cardinals' front office, ran the Rochester Red Wings and was President of the International League for awhile. He performed those jobs well and wherever he went he promoted his club well, has a good eye for talent and is one of the last of the Triple A operators to have made player deals when the Triple A clubs still held title to players not controlled by their major league affiliates.

Sisler is anything but a "yes man," which could lead to the same kind of complications it did with Rosen. Some years back Sisler and Hank Peters, now with the Baltimore Orioles, both were under consideration for the presidency of the National Association of Minor Leagues, Peters got the job and one of the reasons he did was because Sisler alienated some major league officials by insisting they should pay all the minor league manager and player salaries.

Two of Sisler's younger brothers, Dick and Dave, both made it to the majors as players. Dick played the outfield for the Cardinals, Phillies and Reds, and later managing the Reds, and Dave pitched for the Red Sox, Tigers, Senators and Reds.

George Sisler, Jr., was a pitcher but never much of a ballplayer, according to Bill DeWitt, who signed him to his first contract. DeWitt, now a consultant with the White Sox, was general manager of the St. Louis Browns at the time and he remembers the event.

"I signed George, Jr., to his first contract with Youngstown, Ohio, in the Middle Atlantic League," says DeWitt. "His father had played for the Browns and was one of the greatest hitters and most graceful players I ever saw, so after young George graduated college, I thought here was a fellow who might be a good pitcher and draw some people into the ballpark for us. He lasted only one year and I guess they decided he wasn't too good a ballplayer."

"He's an excellent baseball man, though, a real honest guy," DeWitt adds. "I think he would do a tremendous job with the Yankees or anyone else he's called."

Altamonte Majors Advance, 2-0

Johnson Arm, Underwood Bat Whip Maitland

One down, three to go. That's the formula for Altamonte Springs' major league team making it to the Little League state tournament in Miami.

Altamonte's all-stars won their district tourney opener Thursday night, 9-0, on a one-hitter by Tony Johnson and some timely hitting by Scott Underwood.

Coach Russ Whittington's team comes back tonight at 7:30 against Oviedo in a game at Zack Taylor Field in Pine Hills starting at 7:30. A win tonight sends Altamonte into a Monday test, which could advance it to a Wednesday finale against the Volusia area survivor. "We got good pitching and a couple of big hits at the right time," said Whittington. "Johnson had a no-hitter until the fifth inning. The boy for Maitland pitched a real fine game, too. They had a fine team."

But Altamonte Springs was a little better on this night. Two runs better, to be exact. Underwood, who cracked out two triples and a double to serve as a one-man wrecking crew, opened the game with a triple and scored run No. 1 on a passed ball. Again in the third inning he tripled, this time scoring on Kevin Hill's sacrifice fly to deep left field.

Johnson, meanwhile, baffled Maitland until Scott Beavin lined a base hit off first sacker Mark Chasey's glove in the fifth inning. Johnson wound up with nine strikeouts and two walks. Lower Randy Snowgrass had a four-hitter with six walks and two walks.

'More American Graffiti'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "American Graffiti," a landmark 1973 film made for a paltry $850,000 and which earned more than $50 million, has produced a sequel, "More American Graffiti," to be released this fall.

The original introduced a new cinematic style under the direction of wunderkind George Lucas who went on to produce and direct "Star Wars."

"American Graffiti" made stars of Richard Dreyfuss, Cindy Williams, Paul Le Mat, Charles Martin Smith, Mackenzie Phillips and Candy Clark who was nominated for an Oscar for her role as Debbie, the high school dream girl.

All but Dreyfuss, who won the 1977 Oscar for "The Goodbye Girl," return for the sequel which is a kaleidoscopic look at America in the mid-1960s as seen in four different New Years Eves.

The Graffiti gang has moved from their teens to their 20s in an atmosphere of anti-Vietnam demonstrations, rock 'n' roll, the drug scene and flower children.

High school sweethearts Howard and Williams are parents of twins and unhappily married. Smith is a helicopter pilot in Vietnam. Le Mat is a drag racer. Clark and Phillips are hippies living in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

"The sequel cost $5 million," said Candy Clark, "which means we all got a big pay raise. George Lucas gave us each a small percentage of the profits, just as he did with the first picture."

"The cast agreed to do 'More American Graffiti' a year before the script was written. We were relying on George's taste and talent.

CINDY WILLIAMS

The script turned out to be fantastically funny.

"Richard Dreyfuss said no. His price was too high. But George found an actor who looks amazingly like him.

"The new picture is really four films in one. Only at the beginning do we appear together. It was a genuine cast reunion and we toasted the new project with champagne.

"I felt comfortable returning to play Debbie because the role was custom written for me. She's five years older, still upbeat and energetic but she looks entirely different.

"I had a few anxieties about playing Debbie a second time because I felt I had to live up to that Oscar nomination. I tried to remain fresh and sweet and maintain Debbie's naive quality.

"But it's been seven years since I played the role and a lot has happened to me personally in the intervening years."

Candy followed "Graffiti" with a starring role opposite rock star David Bowie in "The Man Who Fell To Earth." She was reunited with Le Mat in "Citizens Band."

She starred with Robert Mitchum and James Stewart in "The Big Sleep" and then with Marjoe Gortner in "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder."

Candy and Gortner fell in love and married during production of the film and were divorced eight months later. Candy now lives alone in a 14-room Hollywood home, "which I'm going to grow into," furnishing it with antiques.

"In the new picture Debbie lives in Haight-Ashbury with a rock guitar player," Candy said. "She's one of the flower children. Her best friend is Carol, the teenybopper played by Mackenzie Phillips, who has changed her name to Rainbow."

"When I first read the script, I wondered where in the world we'd find the freaky hippies of the mid-1960s. I thought they'd all joined the establishment or disappeared from the face of the earth.

"But we went to Haight-Ashbury and there they were, still wearing hair down to their waists, making belts and sandals and selling drugs.

"We used them as extras in the picture. It was like going back more than 10 years in time. But they don't call them flower children and hippies anymore. I guess they're just bums today.

"We've introduced a lot of new characters in the picture which I think encapsulates the 60s like 'Graffiti' did the 50s. Each of the four segments of the movie is done in a different film style, according to the way pictures were made at the time. It's fascinating.

"We are seen in an opening sequence as we were in 'Graffiti' to refresh audiences with the characters as they were last seen. I even wear that crazy blonde wig.

"But the principal characters in the sequel have all grown up and changed. Debbie, that's me, works as a topless dancer. You never see me dancing topless.

"The new film ends the same way the first one did, with individual pictures of the cast telling what becomes of us in the future. Eventually Debbie becomes a country-western singer.

"Indications are there will be a second sequel coming up some day. I hope so.

Maitland Flea Market open weekends

A. B. Cox casts proud eye over his wares

There Are Bargains To Be Had

Do you have some odds and ends left over from your garage sale? Has your hobby outgrown your home? Need a tool and want it at a bargain price?

The answer to your problems may be found at a flea market.

Flea markets, popular in many countries around the world, probably got their name from the fleas found in the used clothing that was for sale. But, clothing is only one small part of the wares offered now.

There are several permanent markets in Seminole County where for a few dollars a booth can be rented to display your junk, your collection and those odds and ends someone may be willing to buy.

The Village Super Flea Market on French Avenue in Sanford is open Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday and has 200 booths and 36 permanent vendors on its 3 1/2 acres of land.

The Maitland Flea Market in Fern Park, which is open on weekends, is a little larger with 380 spaces available for food, antiques, comic books and beer can collections.

A.R. Cox has been selling a little bit of everything for nine years in Maitland. "I used to move in and out every weekend for six years," he said. "But my boy left for college and I had it all to do myself. I had to have a permanent place to leave it all."

Surrounded by old guns, footballs, pipes and wrenches, Cox said he felt like Sanford and Son with his junk yard. Casting a proud eye around the items that would fill dozens of attics, he explained: "I said to my son Chris, 'Some day this will all be yours!' He took off and I haven't seen him since."

Chuck Scales of Oviedo was browsing through Cox's offerings. "I like to look through junk," he said. "I got a trowel. I'm going to put a new roof on my house and I can use it to spread tar. Why pay $1.50 in a store when I can get it for 50 cents here?"

An Apopka woman liked to make small animals for a hobby and she started selling a few and giving others away. Pretty soon her house was full of them. And for the last years "Crafts by Eloise" has been seen two days a week in Sanford and one day in Maitland.

Besides making a few dollars, Eloise (no last name given) enjoys talking with the people who stop and look over her wares. "I just love it. It's in my blood and you meet a lot of nice people," she said.

"Crafts By Eloise" began as hobby

Jack Lord: He's Loved By Hawaiians

By DICK KLEINER
HONOLULU, Hawaii (NEA) — Jack Lord could probably run for king of Hawaii and get crowned. Everybody knows him and, more importantly, feels as though he is a personal friend.

"Hey, Jack Lord," called a man in a group of beer-drinkers, hanging around the waterfront. "Remember you went to see my sister in the hospital?"

"Well, I remember going to many hospitals to visit patients," Lord said.

"Sure you do. Hey, Jack Lord, come here. I got a heavy picture I want to show you."

Lord went over and the man pulled a snapshot out of his wallet. Later, he told me he had expected some naked lady, but, instead, was treated to a photo of a man with a dead squid draped over his head.

The Hawaiians love him. They should. His program on CBS, "Hawaii Five-O," is now going into its 12th season. In that time, he estimates, the company has poured some $100 million into Hawaii's economy. That is merely the direct amount and, indirectly, probably twice as much again.

"And the boost we have brought to Hawaiian tourism," Lord says, "is incalculable. The Tourist Bureau told me their surveys show that one-quarter of the new tourists say that they have come because of what they have seen on our show."

Hawaii realizes the debt they owe Lord. They have feted him at dinners, given him honors and, he says, wooed him to become a politician. "Both parties have come to me," the actor says, "and asked me to run for the House or the Senate. I said no both times."

"When our former governor, Jack Byrnes, was alive, he said he sensed something in me. He tried to convince me to consider it. He was a Democrat and this is primarily a Democratic state."

"And then the Republicans said the same thing. They told me that the Republicans needed me. I told them both that I just wasn't a political cat. I couldn't knuckle under to anybody. I'm no good at the end of a string."

He says the decision is irrevocable, and that he will not become "a political cat," no matter how serious the persuasion. But, then again, he never thought he'd be around for this 12th season of the show, either. His wife, Marie, has been after him to quit for several years, and he wants to make her happy, but he also says he felt an obligation to CBS.

Hawaii's personal friend — Jack Lord

"I have a binding contract through this year," he says, "and I believe that when a man gives his word, he really has to live up to the agreement. But I doubt I'll go beyond this year — I honestly think that I have to stop, for many reasons."

"My sweet, marvelous wife waits for me to come home every night. So I have to come home sooner. And I want to do other things."

When he made the decision to carry on through this season, he says he realized he had to give the show a pretty thorough shake-up.

He felt that the public was tired of seeing the same people come through the same door, week after week. He couldn't very well change the door, so he changed the people.

"I've been after CBS," he says, "to bring a lady into the show for four years now. They always felt I should leave well enough alone. But I felt strongly about it, and I let them know exactly how I felt."

"If they hadn't let me have a lady on the show, I would have had to have a long think about whether or not I would have come back myself." But they acceded to his request, and Sharon Farrell was hired. Then they added William Smith as a tough East Coast cop who comes to Hawaii and stays and joins the Five-O squad.

Lord believes that adding those two gives the show much more dimension and "makes this coming year, I believe, one of the best years of 'Five-O' yet."

He says he had Sharon Farrell and Bill Smith signed, and was planning to add them to the squad. But then James MacArthur decided to quit, a decision Lord feels was poorly timed.

"Jimmy waited until the last minute," he says. "It cost us a lot of money, because we had to rewrite many scripts. So it isn't true that Sharon and Bill are replacements — they were meant to be additions."

Is It Too Hot For Exercise? Then Try These In Your Pool

Hush those excuses about it being too hot for exercise. Just move your workout from land to water.

Here are five water exercises—called "hydro-calisthenics"—to tone your entire body. The exercises come from George Haines, Olympic swim coach and consultant to Phillips Petroleum, national sponsor of the AAU senior swimming program.

1. Bobs: Limber up by bobbing in the water. (Chest deep water is best for most of these exercises.)

2. Kicks: Grasp the side of the pool. Extend your legs behind you. Lift them up and down slowly. Intersperse with rapid, vigorous kicks for 30-second intervals.

3. Water Jacks: Stand up in the water at the side of the pool. Extend your left arm to the ledge for support. Place your right arm at your side.

Lift your right leg up from the side of your body in a scissor-like motion as you swing your right arm in a circle from your side up and over your head. Return to starting position. Repeat 20 times. Then turn around to exercise your other side.

4. Leg Swings: Grasp the edge of the pool. Thrust your right leg forward as if kicking a ball. Then swing it down and back behind your body. Return to starting position. Perform the pendulum-like motion 20 times. Repeat with the left leg.

5. Arm Swings: Stand in neck-deep water with your arms at your sides and your palms flat against your legs. Like a bird flapping its wings, raise your arms to shoulder height and return them to your sides. Repeat 20 times. Move the arm from the shoulder; don't bend it at the elbow.

Jazz giant George Shearing

Less Is More For Blind Jazz Artist

NEW YORK (NEA)—Thirty years after he formed his famous quintet, jazz pianist George Shearing has embraced the artistic dictum that less is more.

Five have become two. The combo fondly remembered for great performances and recordings of "September in the Rain," "East of the Sun," "I Remember April" and his own "Lullaby of Birdland" is now the George Shearing Duo.

His new bassist (since January) is Brian Torff, a musically mature young artist whom Shearing describes as "25 going on 50."

What has been gained through the reduction in the number of players is freedom. "I don't think my interpretations had changed an awful lot since the early 1950s and until the quintet was disbanded, because for the most part we were locked into the readily identifiable sound—the block chord in the piano, vibes and guitar. "Occasionally we got away from it to play some jazz lines. But the degree of spontaneity among five people most of the time is of necessity less than between two," he points out.

"So there weren't nearly as many musical surprises. There wasn't nearly the 'now' creativity about how we feel about a certain piece tonight, which may be totally different from the way we'll feel about it tomorrow. "I find it easier to be unpredictable in the piano and bass milieu than I ever did in the quintet. I can address myself to being more responsible as a pianist and less responsible as a leader, particularly one who rests on his laurels."

Torff, adds Shearing, is very conscious not only of the traditional bass line but of the "cello line" as well. He has a strong Bach feeling, inventing countermelodies in the low register that could have been written by the master contrapuntalist himself.

Along with providing the foundation for the pianist's inventive chords, the string bass player creates cello-like interweavings that fit glove snug with the themes that Shearing is exploring on the keyboard. Torff is a pianist as well, so he watches Shearing's hands, listens and instinctively knows what to do.

Happy as he is working with only one other musician, Shearing occasionally makes an exception and plays with two—but not any two. In Germany last year he was introduced to a Danish bassist, Niels Henning Orsted-Pedersen, and a guitarist, Louis Stewart.

Within 15 minutes, he recalls, they were working together as if they'd been a combo for years. They taped three albums in Hamburg and he'll be recording with them again on his next European tour.

There have been some changes as well in the pianist's private life. In 1973 he and Trixie, his wife of 33 years, dissolved their marriage, and since 1975 he's been married to Ellie, a classical musician and mezzo-soprano.

After living 16 years on the West Coast, he gave up his Victorian home near San Francisco's Presidio and settled into an upper East Side apartment in Manhattan.

While club dates continue to be a mainstay of his performing schedule, Shearing also appears frequently with symphony orchestras. On the first half of a program he'll play a Mozart or Bach work with the orchestra, and after intermission, he and bassist Torff will modulate the mood to jazz.

This summer's schedule includes a concert and oneday jazz workshop at the century-old Chautauqua, south of Buffalo, N.Y.

Tapes, records, printed music and a masterful cross-indexed filing system occupy one room of George and Ellie's gracious apartment, with three pianos, including a magnificent Bogendorfer, conveniently at hand.

He seems not at all inconvenienced by the fact that he never has been able to see and can treat the matter with humor.

An interviewer once asked him if he'd been blind his whole life. He thought a moment, then replied: "Not yet."

TV 'Mag' Airs On WFTV

In the first cooperative venture of this form, four major Florida television stations will share in the production of a weekly electronic magazine program this fall. The half-hour presentation, "Florida!", will air Tuesday evenings at 7:30 on WFTV, Channel 9, Orlando, beginning Sept. 4.

Other participating stations are WTVT, Tampa; WJXT, Jacksonville; and WPLG, Miami. Each outlet will produce features of statewide interest from its own geographical area. Stories will be exchanged among the stations for final assemble into program form. Each area will have a local host assigned to "Florida!".

In Central Florida, Dennis Bounds will handle hosting duties. Bounds appears in the "anchor" position on weekend editions of WFTV's Eyewitness News.

Bixby: Model To Actor

Bill Bixby, who plays David Banner on "The Incredible Hulk," is a sixth-generation Californian and a fifth-generation San Franciscan.

After college, he went on active duty with the Army Reserve, then moved to Hollywood. A job as a lifeguard was a springboard to a two-year modelling career in Detroit.

Back in Hollywood, Bixby was spotted by an agent in a showcase production. TV and film roles followed immediately.

His movies include "Lonely Are the Brave," "Irma la Douce" and "Under the Yum Yum Tree." His former series have seen "My Favorite Martian," "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" and "The Magician."

As an actor he is most proud of "Eddie's Father" and the PBS production of Bruce Jay Friedman's play, "Steambath."

Lou Gossett Gets Important Chance

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lou Gossett Jr., who won an Emmy for his performance as Fiddler in "Roots," believes he is making black acting history with the lead role in a new hour-long television series.

Gossett will star in "The Lazarus Syndrome" next season for ABC, playing the chief of surgery in a large metropolitan hospital.

The show is a first in which a black actor will be featured in a non-action adventure (i.e. cops and robbers) dramatic series.

The show also breaks new ground in that no racial references are made in dialogue or story line — at least in the first three scripts filmed so far — to the fact that Dr. MacArthur St. Clair is a black man.

"The doctor I play is not a macho figure. At least, not in the stereotypical sense of black heroes in past TV series," said Gossett.

"I accepted the role because it doesn't have a black onus. The stories are about a surgeon and involve the hospital drama, not the man's color."

"I see the series as making history. It is the inclusion of black men and women into the mainstream of American society on a non-racial basis. It's an important step forward."

Originally, the Blinn-Thorpe production was patterned for a white doctor named Vitale. When Gossett was considered for the role, the producers considered tailoring the doctor to fit the actor.

Gossett objected, saying, "Just change his name and leave the scripts alone."

Gossett is a tall, lean, athletic man of considerable charm and dignity. His shaved head gives him a strong, almost menacing appearance. A former Brooklyn high school basketball flash, he moves gracefully.

His own personal roots are in the Caribbean. He speaks thoughtfully and slowly without a trace of Brooklyn accent.

Gossett comes to his role of Dr. St. Clair better equipped to play a doctor than most actors. He was a pre-med student at New York University before turning to acting with a role in "Take A Giant Step" on Broadway.

He moved on to "The Desk Set" with Shirley Booth and such other Broadway hits as "A Raisin In The Sun," "Golden Boy" and "My Sweet Charlie."

His movies include "The Landlord," "The Skin Game" and "The Choir-boys" in addition to more than 50 TV shows.

"I was offered the part of a black congressman in a TV pilot," Gossett said. "The real Washington Black Caucus objected to the show. It was a comedy and I personally didn't want to play the black congressman for laughs."

"That sort of comedy is fine for black performers because it provides jobs. But personally I think the genre should be balanced out by other series like 'The Lazarus Syndrome.'"

"Not long ago I was asked to star in a spin-off of 'The Rockford File' with Isaac Hayes. We made the pilot but it wasn't right for me. At that time I was holding off, hoping to continue along feature films."

"I was given an opportunity to star in the pilot of 'For Heaven's Sake,' a TV series based on Warren Beatty's hit movie, 'Heaven Can Wait.' I was to be a basketball player instead of a football player. I turned it down for the show we're doing now."

No one is more aware than Gossett that if "The Lazarus Syndrome" is to succeed in the ratings it must draw a large viewing audience among whites. It cannot survive with predominantly black viewers.

Gossett is optimistic following screenings of the pilot which was shown to ABC affiliate stations along the network.

"It was highly regarded, especially in the South," he said. "They've made great strides down there. The races are making a go of it. "Another key to the success of the show is the relationship of St. Clair to his partner, the hospital administrator played by Ronald Hunter, a white actor. It is a very real relationship. They don't make racial jokes."

"St. Clair is no miracle worker. He's a well-rounded man with shortcomings. He makes mistakes. And he's not only involved in the hospital. He has a wife and a child and we see those elements of his life, too."

"The show is a breath of fresh air. It breaks a lot of cliches both for doctors and blacks."

"Dr. St. Clair and I have some qualities in common. I have more humor than he does but we share a sense of humanity. We're both athletic and jog three miles several times a week."

"My pre-med studies help, although we have a technical adviser on the set."

Gossett has formed his own production company, Satic Productions, named for his 5-year-old son. This winter the organization will produce "Don't Look Back," a biography of the legendary baseball pitcher Satchel Paige.

"I was a pitcher in semi-pro ball," Gossett said, "and Satchel will be working with us on the film. It's one of the most exciting projects I've tackled yet."

2 Osmond Brothers Deaf

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: My brother and I have a bet going on whether two of the Osmonds are deaf. I say they are and he says that none of them is. I'll never hear the end of it if we don't find out. THANKS A LOT, Lethbridge, Alta., Can.
You are right on the button. Viri Osmond and Tom Osmond, the two eldest of the Osmond children, are deaf. DEAR DICK: Will you please tell me the name of the song that Elvis Presley used to open his show at Las Vegas? We would like to play it at our Junior B hockey games. MRS. LIZ CONNERS, Victoria, B.C., Can.
Why you would want a Presley song for a hockey opener is beyond me, but the name of the song he did was "C.C. Rider."
DEAR DICK: Will you tell me if Ed Ames, the actor, is one of The Ames Brothers who used to make records, etc. E.J. STONE, Orange City, Fla.
Yes, he is.
DEAR DICK: My best friend and I have different thoughts on whether Leif Garrett is English or not. Is he or is he not? Barb and Kathy, Kalamazoo, Mich.

He is not.
DEAR DICK: Is Ken Howard — "The White Shadow" — any relation to Ron Howard — "Happy Days"? Nicci Fedorek, Spanwood, B.C. Can.
DEAR DICK: Why does ABC continually horse around with "The White Shadow," which I think is one of the best on TV? Jim Murray, Leesburg, Ind.
DEAR DICK: "The White Shadow" hasn't been on lately, even though it is listed in the schedule. Why hasn't it been on? Will it come back in the future? S.R., Portage, Mich.
"The White Shadow" is a hit, and it has been renewed for next season. If it hasn't been on locally, there must have been some local pre-emptions. Ken and Ron, the two Howards, are unrelated. Totally.
DEAR DICK: You recently had a column with a letter from a woman in Texas wanting to know what album Dolly Parton recorded "Slipping Away" on. You were right — she didn't record it. But your correspondent might like to know that the song was recorded by Jeanie Shepard. C. Prater, Warsaw, Ind.
Thanks. And the lady in Texas thanks you, too.
DEAR DICK: I would appreciate it if you could let me know through your column if the actor, Randolph Scott, is still living and, if so, what he is doing now. Mrs. W. Taylor, Houma, La.
Yes, Scott is living. He is 76 and seems to be in great shape — I've often seen him at the post office. He is reputedly very wealthy and is pleasantly retired.
DEAR DICK: I am an older woman, who used to live near a man called Earl Hammer. He was younger than I and his father was a minister. This was in Lehigh, Iowa. I have enjoyed "The Waltons" for years and would like to know if the man who created that show is "our" Earl Hammer or any relation. M.L.T., Tucson, Ariz.
No, for two reasons. "My" Earl is Earl Hammer, not Hammer. And he grew up in Virginia, not Iowa.
DEAR DICK: Is Johnny Whittaker the one that played the boy, Jody on "Family Affair"? Also what is the name of the little guy on "Fantasy Island" with Ricardo Montalban? And how old is he? Leo, Fort Campbell, Ky.
Yes, Whittaker was Jody. Herve Villechatez is the name of the small man on "Fantasy Island" and he is 36 — that's years, not inches.

CBS Takes First In Nielsen Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS took eight of the first 11 places to dominate the weekly Nielsen ratings of television viewing, a week marked by the usual July preponderance of summer reruns.
CBS had the top two places with M*A*S*H and WKRP in Cincinnati.
The first 20 spots in the ratings were held by re-run shows and the other three by the three networks' "news magazines" — CBS' 60 Minutes in 8th place, ABC's 20-20 in a tie for 14th place, and NBC's Prime Time Sunday in a tie for 19th place.

Children's Books Educate, Entertain

By BETSY HORNE
American Library Assn.

Books can do more than fill a child's summer day; they can fill his heart as well. Very young children especially will enjoy having a grown-up read a picture book aloud so they can return to it later and enjoy the pictures with some understanding of the words.

M.B. Goffstein's latest, "Natural History" (ages 4-7), is a fine example of a simple, beautifully crafted book, which, read aloud, will stay in the mind and even generate discussion. It is not a story but a poetically stripped-down statement of how our earth works: "Tiny grains of sand keep the powerful waters from floodings lands." Or doesn't work: "Homeless dogs and cats are scared and lonely." And finally, how each of us can help it along: "So let us be like tiny grains of sand, and protect all life from fear and suffering! Then, when the stars shine, we can sleep in peace, with the moon as our quiet night-light."

What keeps the words from being over-generalized or sentimental are the subtle, child-sized pictures, understated in line and color, that will speak directly to the child's experience of sharing resources with all things on earth — ducks and singing birds and snakes and little minks. Every living creature is our brother and our sister, dearer than the jewels at the the friendship of the two children itself epitomizes Callen's compassion in dealing with nature, both human and animal. Callen has a simple, humorous way of pinning down the difference between wild and tame without pounding on the point.

Another easy-to-read but older-interest book that illustrates the theme, "Every living creature is our brother and our sister" is Uriel Ofek's "Smoke Over Golan" (9-12), translated from the Hebrew by Israel Taslitt. Although the plot revolves around the Yom Kippur War, the story favors human detail over nationalist polemic. A young Israeli boy's friendship with an Arab village boy is spontaneous and believable; Ofek's characters and setting are vividly described. The book falls into two parts: the establishment of a border farm (including a one-pupil school) by young Eitan and his parents; and a Syrian attack, which finds Eitan alone with his dog and later a wounded Israeli soldier and an Arab prisoner, shown as more human than "enemy."

At one point a soldier remarks of the shelled barnyard, "... those animals really got a raw deal. We make use of them, O.K. But why should they suffer just because we human beings decide to make war on each other and do other crazy things?"

The Irish children portrayed in "The Potato Eaters" by Karen Branson (9-12) raise the same question. The novel is set during Ireland's 1846 famine, when English landlords burned down the cottages of starving families who could not pay their rent. Kids who read this survival story may find themselves caught up in problems not often encountered in our affluent society.

Details of hunger, typhoid, families forced apart, death and cruel injustice (both English and Irish) are striking here: from the failure of the O'Connors' last crop because of potato blight, through the loss of their youngest child and decline of the mother, till their final desperate walk away from home for a questionable passage to America. This is an effective, moving source of more than facts about immigrants who became American history as well as Irish.

Today, such immigrants might be called refugees. And although 1979 has been called the International Year of the Child, refugee children stuffed into various cracks of the world are still dying. Our concern and sense of social responsibility can perhaps be translated to our own children by starting at home — reading aloud, for instance, about the experiences of others and talking over the idea that "Every living creature is our brother and our sister, dearer than the jewels at the center of the earth."

'The Body Human' Rerun

"The Body Human: The Vital Connection," the Peabody Award-winning dramatic special, gets an encore performance this Monday, July 23, on CBS.

The special explores the brain and nervous system through awe-inspiring photographic techniques. It also focuses on the personal dramas of three real people faced by different breakdowns in the intricate structure of the brain with the rest of the body.

"The Vital Connection" was the third episode in the Emmy-winning "Body Human" series. It has been cited as "a marvelous and exciting excursion into the workings of the human brain, with particular focus on medical miracles used to correct brain-related illnesses." The informational special also won a Writer's Guild Award for outstanding achievement for scriptwriter Robert E. Fuhsz, M.D.

Based on a visual concept that enables the viewer to see himself from a totally unique perspective through the utilization of sophisticated electronic photography, it embarks on a journey inside the human brain, where 20 billion nerve cells interconnect at 10 trillion junctures, which store more than 200 billion memory bits. Those truly are figures to make your head spin.

In exploring the universes of sleep, memory, meditation and speech, photographs never before seen depict human nerve cells, which send microelectrodes that translate brain impulses into intelligible messages.

Using high-speed photography, of a magician's sleight-of-hand variety, the brain's continual ability to coordinate muscles and fine movements is demonstrated. And the evolution of speech and correlative brain activity is traced through specially treated photographs. Such taken-for-granted activities as shaving, swallowing and punching an elevator button are shown as examples of the workings of the brain centers responsible for their control. "The Vital Connection," like "The Miracle Months," "The Red River" and "The Sexes," the other critically-acclaimed specials in the series, demonstrates not only the details of revolutionary medical techniques, but also dramatic life and death crises of actual people.

In the first instance, Carol Culver, a young woman in her twenties, seeks relief from an uncontrollable "intentional" arm tremor resulting from an automobile accident. Dr. Irving Cooper, professor of neurosurgery at New York University Medical School, performs an intricate operation on her brain while she is entirely awake and coherent.

Barbra Lynn Roth, 10, is slowly going blind due to pressure on the brain pathways that control her sight. Dr. Russell Patterson, neurosurgeon at New York Hospital, removes a dangerous tumor at the juncture of her optic nerves. Miracles do happen every day in medicine.

Nightwing, Bloodline Are Both Losers

NEW RELEASE

NIGHTWING (PG) — Nick Mancuso, David Warner, Kathryn Harold. Thriller. Whoever thought of this had bats in his belfry. It's a silly amalgamation of a horror story (with vampire bats as the scary ingredient) and some nonsense about American Indians and their tribal customs. The horror stuff is handled with nice restraint, but the other aspect weighs it down, and it is badly written, edited and acted. GRADE: C-plus.

BLOODLINE (R) — Audrey Hepburn, Ben Gazzara, James Mason, Omar Sharif. Romantic mystery. This is further proof that big best sellers are tough to turn into movies. Sidney Sheldon's book becomes a fuzzy mess here, despite lavish production and a fine cast. It is compressed and emerges with more holes than a yard of screening. And a sub-plot (involving sex and nudity) has absolutely no connection with the rest of it. GRADE: C

LOST AND FOUND (PG) — George Segal, Glenda Jackson. Romantic Comedy. Writer-director-producer Mel Frank tries to recapture the magic of "A Touch of Class," and reunited Segal and Jackson in another light-hearted exercise. Magic is tough to recapture, however, and this gets off to a good start but bogs down about halfway through in a tedious examination of the tenure system on college campuses. GRADE: B

ALIEN (R) — Tom Skerritt, Sigourney Weaver, John Hurt. Science fiction-horror. This is part-"Star Wars," part-"Jaws," as it tries to scare you to death futuristically. A plodding old space ship inadvertently takes aboard a monster, which does terrible things to the people it catches. The crew tries to kill it and definitely vice versa. If you like the type, this is GRADE: A, but avoid it if you scare easy.

Piecemeal Plan Viewed Unfavorably

Sanford Facelift Backers: Let's Do It Now

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
 Herald Staff Writer

Should the rehabilitation of downtown Sanford be done in one year or four years? Backers of a plan to give a facelift to a three block area on First and Magnolia streets say that spreading the project over a period of years instead of doing it all at once would run counter to the entire concept.

But some city commissioners say there may not be enough money available to complete the project in one step and feel construction should be done over three or four years.

A possible compromise entailing a short-term loan from a local bank has been mentioned by commissioner Julian Stenstrom. With a loan, the project would be built in one step and financed over four years.

"We really feel it would spoil the effect if the project were done a little at a time," said Glenn McCall, chairman of the Greater Sanford Development Corporation, (GSDC).

John Mercer, a development corporation director, maintains that the concept behind the project is to create an image of revitalization. By projecting that image, he said, potential new asked to provide labor and equipment estimated to be worth $120,000 making it a $210,000 project.

The development corporation was formed four years ago. In 1977, its directors approached the city seeking funds to get rehabilitation underway. At that time, the city agreed to contribute provided the corporation could demonstrate there was serious commitment on the part of the property owners and merchants.

Mercer told commissioners Monday that commitment had been met since 25 buildings had been rehabilitated or were in the process of rehabilitation.

A look at the work done so far indicates that of the 18 buildings within the specific area targeted for the project rehabilitation work has been completed or is underway on 12 of them.

The corporation is seeking to gain cooperation of the property owners in restoring the exteriors of their buildings to their original appearance. The city would then repave the streets and brick the sidewalks to give the area a Victorian flavor. When that is completed, the corporation hopes to turn Magnolia Avenue into a landscaped mall for a half block south of First Street. In subsequent phases, corporation members say they hope to see a clock tower and a fountain constructed.

"I agree it wouldn't have the impact if we did it over four years, but the way I see it we don't have any choice. I don't think it would in any way be a backing down on our commitment. We're certainly all behind the renovation," commissioner Eddie Keith said.

Stenstrom is convinced, however, that both the development corporation and the rest of the commission can be satisfied. He said he has checked the legality of the city taking a short-term loan to finance the project and it would be proper.

A spokesman for the Flingship Bank said his institution would be willing to loan the city as much as $210,000. He said his bank would make the loan and would be willing to cooperate with other lending institutions in the loan if they were interested.

"I fully agree with John Mercer and Glenn McCall. If we're going to do the project, we've got to do it all at once," said Stenstrom.

He said it would be cheaper in the long run and would reduce the disruption to the downtown if done at once instead of starting and stopping construction four times. He also said that the sooner the project is done, the sooner new business can be expected to be generated.

However, Stenstrom said if the city seeks a loan, he would like to see additional commitments from the development corporation. He said he would propose that the corporation agree to begin soliciting funds from civic groups in order to pay for the addition to the project of the clock tower and the fountain.

Regardless of which direction the city takes, commissioners must make a decision within the coming weeks. The 1979-80 budget has to be prepared in time for public hearings later this summer.

The proprietors of Touchton's Rexall Drug Co., at 121 E. First St., Sanford, were among the downtown businessmen who demonstrated their commitment to the business district renovation project by overhauling the outside appearance of their building. Now it's the commission's turn to determine how much the city will invest in the image-building program.

industries would see "an aura of confidence in the city." The positive image-building program would attract the affluent aspects of the region's growth and thereby improve the area economy, he said.

"The entire plan has to do with image. As far as I'm concerned, it has to be done at one time. A project of this type to be successful can't be done a little at a time; there's no question that the impact would be lost," he said.

The problem the city faces is one of finding money when it already is close to $200,000 away from a balanced budget for next year, according to the city manager's estimates of projected revenues and expenses.

"I would be opposed to providing the money for the project to be done in one step if it meant a tax increase. I want to see the downtown revitalized as much as anyone, but I think we've got to keep the taxpayers' interests in line first," said commissioner David Farr.

Farr amended a motion made by Stenstrom Monday to endorse the redevelopment project. His amendment stipulated that the development corporation return to the commission with figures indicating the cost of the project if spread over four years. Weicker Urges Carter Give Up Second Term Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., today called President Carter a national liability and said he should take himself out of the 1980 presidential race.

In a Senate speech, Weicker said Carter was "a weak president" and would have been removed under a parliamentary form of government and retired from office if he were a corporation president.

"Neither option is available to us," he said. For that reason, Weicker said, Carter should "take himself out of consideration for the Democratic nomination."

The Connecticut Republican said Lyndon Johnson found it necessary to do this even though he was "a strong president." It was all the more important for Carter to do so, he said, because he is "a weak president."

In addition to criticizing Carter for firing Cabinet officers, Weicker denounced the president's elevation of Hamilton Jordan to chief of the White House staff.

"It won't do," he said. "It won't do at all."

Carter, his swift purge of five of 12 Cabinet members over, now turns his attention to his White House staff, where he is expected to make some changes next week.

On Friday the president ended the week of surprise moves, and perhaps some personal anguish, with the dismissals of Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, who quit before he could be fired.

"I do not expect any further resignations from the Cabinet, other than those that have already been made," Carter told a press briefing. "There are a few vacancies which I will fill without delay."

Bundy Will Defend Self

MIAMI (UPI) — Law school dropout Theodore Bundy overruled objections from his own defense attorneys today and decided to have Margaret Good make closing arguments at his first degree murder trial — a move that prompted two of his defense team to seek withdrawal and one to question his competency.

"Everything up to now, God forbid, has been in the hands of my attorneys. I have sought to exercise only one decision," Bundy said. "There's no question in my mind we can obtain acquittal with the proper closing argument."

Defense attorney Ed Harvey said only Robert Haggard "has prepared for closing arguments throughout the trial." Harvey tried to withdraw from the case.

Circuit Judge Edward Cowart ordered Harvey to remain on as co-counsel, but he allowed Haggard to withdraw, since Haggard only joined the defense team when the trial was moved from Tallahassee to Miami because of pre-trial publicity.

Cowart said he had already ruled on Bundy's competency to stand trial and saw no reason to change his mind when Harvey raised that issue.

Cowart gave Bundy permission Friday to take charge of his own defense, although the judge insisted Bundy has had "the most excellent defense counsel I've ever seen" during the four-week trial.

Bundy has been listed as a co-counsel all along and on the first day of testimony, two weeks ago, he questioned one witness.

He is charged with creeping into the Chi Omega sorority house at Florida State University in Tallahassee on Jan. 15, 1978, and killing coeds Margaret Bowman and Lisa Levy.

Friday, in the midst of the defense's attack on the state's claim that only Bundy could have made the bite marks on Miss Levy's body, Bundy grew openly hostile with his court-appointed defense team.

Early in the session, he rose to tell Circuit Judge Edward Cowart that he felt "closed out of all meaningful participation in my defense."

Cowart said he had already

"I am well pleased with all the changes that have been made," he said. "Every single change has been a positive change. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that I and my administration will now be better able to serve this country and to resolve those problems and to meet those challenges I described to the American people in my television address Sunday evening."

Most of the Cabinet officials who were not fired, however, turned in report cards evaluating their deputies to chief of staff Hamilton Jordan, foreshadowing the firing of many at the "sub-Cabinet" level.

There were shock waves throughout the week-long housecleaning, starting with Carter's request for resignations en masse from his Cabinet and White House senior staff. It came in the aftermath of the "Domestic Summit" during which he decided the nation was looking for stronger leadership on his part.

Assistant Senate Republican leader Ted Stevens went so far as to suggest Carter may be having "some sort of breakdown" or "mental problem" — an assertion dismissed by the White House as "not worthy of comment."

News secretary Jody Powell questioned Stevens' "good sense and good manners" in making such statements.

In the finale of the Cabinet purge, Carter fired Adams less than 24 hours after the transport chief publicly defied the authority of Jordan, the new White House chief of staff, and questioned Carter's own commitment to energy-saving transportation policies.

Carter also accepted the resignation of Schlesinger, who has taken the brunt of public fury over gasoline shortages, and nominated Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan, a Houston millionaire, to succeed him.

Longwood Officer Gets Pfeil Award

Two central Florida law enforcement officers have been honored as the first recipients of the George Pfeil Memorial Award sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Central Florida.

Receiving the award at a breakfast held at the First Federal Savings and Loan in Altamonte Springs were Officer George Burfield of the Longwood Police Department and Lt. Charles Nutting of the Winter Park Police Department.

The idea of the award was conceived by Kiwanian Jerry Schmelker to honor the late George Pfeil, a 55-year-old Seminole County reserve deputy, gunned down by an armed robber when he happened on a robbery at the Longwood Pharmacy in Longwood Village shopping center on Dec. 29, 1977.

Nutting was investigating a routine suspicious person call when he asked the suspect for his identification. The suspect pulled a pistol and shot Nutting three times before Nutting could return fire. Shot three times, the suspect recovered and was tried and sentenced to 33 years in jail, with other charges pending.

Burfield, a Sanford resident, was selected because of his bravery in going into a burning building to rescue an elderly man.

On March 11, while on duty, he braved smoke and flames to bring out octogenarian George W. Jones who was alone in the house and in a confused state.

Pfeil's widow, present for the breakfast, was presented a silver bowl and tray in memory of her husband and a check for $1,400. Their son, John and daughter, Alice, and Pfeil's two sisters also attended the presentation.

The annual award is given to an outstanding law enforcement officer from both Orange and Seminole counties, chosen on the basis of criteria set up by the Chief of Police Association.
