Question: Were Important Papers Removed?

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon's Vice Presidential correspondence with such figures as John F. Kennedy and Nikita S. Khrushchev was retrieved for him months after he claims he gave his papers to the government, congressional investigators say.

Nixon's appraiser told him those letters were the most historically and commercially val-

The President and his lawyers have insisted that the gift was made before July 25, 1969, the cut-off date for tax deductions on such contributions. But materials made public by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation show that the appraiser and a government archivist went through the gift papers in late 1969 and 1970 and withdrew the files containing correspondence with the best-known figures. The files, which still belong to Nixon, are stored in a highsecurity room at the National Archives.

In a meeting with the congressional committee staff that probed Nixon's income taxes, archivist Mary Walton Livingston said she worked on the file in November and December 1969 with appraiser Ralph G. Newman of Chicago.

WASHINGTON - The attorneys who assisted President Nixon with his 1969 tax returns have sworn that they relied completely on the White House for their information about the controversial $576,000 deduction he claimed after the legal deadline had passed

His personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, and tax lawyer, Frank DeMarco, have been granted a limited release from the ttorney-client privilege to talk about their tax discussions with

They have testified that the 1969 returns were based wholly on nformation provided by White House aides, principally Edward L. Morgan, who signed the backdated deed bequeathing the Nixon papers to the governmen

The backdating was done to make it appear that the papers ad been donated before the July 25, 1969, deadline expired for claiming a tax deduction.

DeMarco admitted that he notarized the fraudulent deed at the White House on April 10, 1970, the same day he submitted the tax eturns to President Nixon for his signature.

Kalmbach and DeMarco said they explained the return arefully to the President, who checked them over page by page. The two attorneys reviewed the controversial $576,000 tax deduction with the President but never advised him specifically that the deed had been backdated, according to their testimony. From congressional sources, we have now obtained a copy of

Profanity Law Attacked

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - A St. Petersburg bartender is suing to overturn Florida's anti-profanity law, which he says violates his constitutional right to free speech. Peter Stetcher said he curses in "the usual course of business" but never with "fighting words"-remarks likely to provoke violence.

Florida's open profanity law prohibits "use of profane, vulgar, and indecent language in any public place upon the private premises of another."

Stetcher's lawyer, Martin G. Weinber of Boston, said the profanity law is too vague to inform citizens of what they may say legally.

solutely essential" if its missile submarines are to be able to patrol it proceeds to the nearest "station" - a suitable place for lurking under water - and covers the closest targets. During its patrol, it moves progressively forward to closer-in stations, covering targets deeper in the Soviet heartland, and then comes back out along the chain again, finishing as close as possible to its base, thus maintaining "target coverage" for as much of the 60day period as possible. A forward base such as Holy

Loch, close to the patrol areas, was required to keep the stations within 1,200 miles of the targets and the off-station time down to a reasonable level. But the days of the A-1 missile are gone forever. Most of the submarines now operating from Holy Loch have Poseidon, which carries 10-14 warheads (the A-1 had one) up 2,500 miles. What the U.S. Navy has done with their extra range is to aim at some targets they couldn't reach before, and also to move the patrol stations farther away from the Soviet Union in order to complicate Russian efforts to locate and track the submarines.

Both of these things are highly desirable, but not essential, at least over the next few years; and in 1978 the C-4 missile with a 6,000mile range will appear on the scene and could make Holy Loch, as well as Rota in Spain, superfluous.

If the Americans were chucked out of Holy Loch they would have to go back to ports on the east coast of the United States. This could be done without sacrificing much target coverage by making high-speed runs to and from a point near the first patrol area (but far enough away to avoid giving away its exact location; high speed submarines are relatively noisy and easy to track) and, on top of that, by lengthening the patrols from 60 to about 68 days.

A little tougher on the sailors, perhaps, but not much.

How to understand your electric bill.

There's a new item called "FUEL ADI" on our electric bills. It stands for fuel adjust ment, and has been a part of the rate structure since 1925. We started itemizing it on your bills last December to help you better understand your monthly charges.

This fuel adjustment represents the monthly changes in cost and quantities of fuel necessary to meet the demand for power. It also reflects the higher cost of burning lower polluting fuels. It gives us a chance to make appropriate increases or decreases in your electric bill without having to go through costly rate case proceedings.

Yes, we did say decreases.

Under the fuel adjustment formula established by the Florida Public Service Commission, FPL's residential customers enjoyed reductions in billings totalling over $25,500,000 from 1964 through the summer of 1971. (Customers in previous years experienced increases or decreases depending upon prevailing conditions and the formula being applied at the time.)

So, as you can see, the fuel adjustment works both ways.

Of course, now fuel costs are rising and the fuel adjustment reflects an increase. But not a rate increase. The fuel adjustment goes directly to pay higher fuel costs, rather than producing any profits for the company

What's more, because the fuel adjustment is based on an average fuel cost which includes part of our inventory purchased at lower prices, and our less costly nuclear and gas generation, the increase on your bill is not nearly as severe as the increase in our oil prices.

These increases have been very severe FPL has seen the per barrel cost of residual fuel oil leap by 64% during January 1974, alone. The rise is nearly 200% over January 1973. That's a jump from $3.84 per barrel to more than $11.50 per barrel.

And that's why you're seeing the fuel adjustment increase in your electric bill. But there is something you can do.

Look under that column on your bill that says "Kilowatt Hours Used." That tells how much electricity you use. It's your control over how high or low your bill is. Compare it from month to month. Try to observe the Watt Watcher rules.

And you'll find that electricity isn't the only thing you save.

Will South Florida's basketball team be a thing of the past unless it has a female forward? Those are some of the questions that may come up Monday as the Board of Regents considers a resolution denying university facilities and support to organizations which discriminate in membership as to race, color, creed, sex or national origin.

The resolution, needed to comply with the federal Civil Rights Act, will certainly open to women the membership of traditionally male societies such as Florida Blue Key at the the University of Florida.

Asked Wednesday about athletic teams, Regents corporate secretary Hendrix Chandler said, "I don't know if we are going that far."

It's like Merlin Olsen was saying the other day: "You have to make it while you can, because this won't last forever."

The 12-year Los Angeles Ram defensive tackle was referring to the professional life-span o the big league football player His remarks were uttered before the Terrific Triad of Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick decided to go with the Toronto Northmen of the upstart World Football League next year in a $3 million Dackage.

- But what Olsen was saying is precisely what the Miami trio of stars echoed to explain their dramatic exodus from the National Football League. Like a suggestion from the Mafia, it was an offer they couldn't turn down.

> The Ram veteran has been a star for more than a decade. Yet because he is not a ball carrier, a pass receiver, a passer or a quarterback he has had to fight each year for his raises.

So Olsen works in the movies, makes television commercials and is a co-partner in a Los Angeles automobile agency in the off-season.

I can now confirm President Nixon's direst suspicions regarding the hypnotic power of the press. Heretofore, most people have dismissed charges made against the media by put-upon athletes, irritated coaches and politicians under investigations as an easy way to escape inevitable blame. But now I know differently. The power of the press is real the course of history. In fact, I am now prepared to declare that everytime a collmnist rolls a clean, white sheet of paper into his typewriter, he is about to work a sphere of influence that goes beyond light reading and box scores. "BUYER WITHDRAWS TRIBE OF-FER, CITIES SPORTS EDITOR'S COLUMN": That was the headline that caught my eye. UPI reported that an irate Edward J. DeBartolo of Youngstown, O., withdrew a tentative offer to purchase the hapless Cleveland Indians because of a column written by Cleveland Press sports editor Bob August.

DeBartolo. "August called me a secondclass citizen in print. My interest in

While August made no personal allusion force that can bend reputations and dictate

"How do you think I feel?" wailed to DeBartolo in his column, he did write,

baseball is now dead."

"So far DeBartolo's main recommendation in this area (as prospective owner) is that he runs a second-rate race track, featuring second-rate horses." The fact that DeBartolo strongly identified with his horses surfaced only after the Press hit the newsstands.

For three weeks, the subject of new ownership of the Indians had been the only conversation in Cleveland. From bars to country clubs, from the east side to the west, the debate over DeBartolo's credentials replaced Watergate as the prime concern of the citizenry.

August, reached by telephone i Cieveland, clarified his position. "Quite honestly, I didn't want him to have the team," he said. "I would have done anything in my limited power to keep him from buying the Indians. The situation is bad now, but this guy didn't offer a solution. I'm not at all convinced that I stopped him though, because I know he didn't even have a meeting with the current ownership!"

the outside, is all you're going to have," explains this huge, good-natured man.

Hence the almost frantic search for more money by the Olsens, the Csonkas and all the others. It's not hard to understand. When bankers, lawyers, doctors and other professionais make changes for more revenue everybody congratulates them.

Well, pro sports has become as big a business as any other American enterprise except, perhaps, the oil industry, so the men who draw the customers simply want more of the take.

The Csonka-Warfield-Kiick

deal merely dramatizes this situation.

Owners like Gene ; Klein of the San Diego Chargers, while he doesn't have to worry about losing many of his players to the WFL, nevertheless foresee a wave of new salary demands from topflight NFL performers in the wake of what happened in Miami.

The Dolphins, of course, have been noted for keeping the wages of their players at a low profil. So have George Halas Chicago Bears over the years. Defensive linebacker Dick Butkus has taken to playing the mghtclub circuit in Las Vegas to pick up the extra money he didn't get from the Bears.

The experts are predicting now that the Bear front office will have some dickering to do before it signs some of its players in the next few weeks. A few, of course, are bound by contracts. Others will be dealing from the strength of the Miami-to-Toronto movement.

The same situation will be true to some extent on every NFL club. This is the real impact of the Dolphin uprising rather than the prospect of a war between the NFL and the WFL. There was a war 10 years ago, you will recall, when the sibling American Football League made so many waves it finally forced the National Football League to adopt it. The result was the present-day NFL, the biggest pro sports enterprise of them all.

The owners realize they must brace for a barrage of new pay demands this year. Even before the Miami incident there was talk of a players' strike to straighten out some pay and fringe benefit arguments between the owners and the players' representatives.

So if there is to be a war it is likely to be between the management and the players, not the NFL and the WFL. Matter of fact, there is no assurance yet that the new league will even be ready to open by its intended date -

Tornado-dazed communities from the deep South to the Great Lakes struggled to provide for the needs of the injured and the homeless and began to bury their dead today. In Seminole County, The Ladies Auxiliary VFW Post 8207 of Longwood launched a mercy drive for the victims in Kentucky.

Mrs. Evelyn Hart, chapter president, said clothing and canned goods are being collected all week at the Com Bank in Winter Park. Cash items should be taken to the bank or to 397 E. Main Ave., Longwood.

The death toll from the tornadoes stood at more than 300 with about 4,500 injured. Thousands more were homeless, and insured property damage was estimated at about a half-billion dollars in the 14 states and portions of Canada hit by the twis-

> Secretary of Housing and Urban Development James T Lynn headed an air tour of tornado-stricken areas of Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio on Friday and planned to tour Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee

All six states have been declared federal disaster areas, and Lynn promised to do all he could to cut the red tape so those affected by the tornadoes Tuesday through Thursday could receive prompt help. "Each family's loss is a major tragedy and that's the way I want the federal government to respond," he said.

Lynn said preliminary figures show that 1,894 homes in Kentucky are uninhabitable, and about another 1,000 each for Indiana and Ohio. He said no figure is available on the amount of federal money that will be needed, but "it's going to cost many, many, many, many millions of tollars," He said President Nixon told him that "whatever it takes we will spend." A state-by-state breakdown of

Police Work To Identify Swamp Lady

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla (AP) - A young woman whose body is covered by insect bites and is slashed by razor-toothed sawgrass lies in a hospital bed here unable or unwilling to talk about eight days she apparently spent wandering around lost in the Everglades.

From her often incoherent answers, Broward County sheriff's deputies have tentatively identified her as "June Turna." But they have learned little more than that since she was found Wednesday night lying in a roadside ditch at the edge of the great swamp.

"She really was beat and cut up," Detective Lt. Joe Pierce said Friday, "Her whole body is covered with mosquito bites, she's all cut up by that sawgrass and her feet are a mess. Apparently, she spent a lot of the time out there without shoes."
