By BILLA MAY FRAZER
DELTONA — Among the many volunteers in Deltona are the professionals. All of them work at least two days a month; quite a few donate their time once a week. Their devotion and enthusiasm are building a library collection for the benefit of all Deltonans. The library is also serving as president of the Library Association in Mrs. Louis J. Lawing, a certified librarian who worked with children in the Pittsburgh Public Library system for many years. When Woodlands Branch was built there, "Doc" was appointed head librarian and remained there until her retirement just two or three years ago. In Deltona, her position is administrative — directing the whole library procedure. Assistant librarian is Mrs. John Williams, who is in charge at the Little Red School House near the Deltona Community Center on Lake Monroe. Here "Mary" plans the work for the volunteers, recommending books to borrowers, and supervising details. Her past experience was with the Carnegie Library of Goshen, Ind.

Development Aim Of CofC Group

By LARRY NEELY
The creation of a steering committee for Sanford of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce was realized this morning when a small group of businessmen and civic leaders met at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Sanford.

The group, which included Howard McNulty, John Krider, John Mercer, Howard Hodges, I. E. Estridge III, Mack Cleveland and Walter A. Gielow, decided that a small group would be preferable to a larger one, in that it could more easily define a single purpose.

Cleveland stated that he felt that in Sanford experience had shown smaller groups to be most effective. He cited the Port of Sanford, the Marina Isle complex and Seminole Junior College as examples of the fruits of the efforts of such groups.

McNulty, who was elected temporary chairman of the group agreed with Cleveland and said that the men present were in positions to get feedback from all interests of the community. He added that the group could take ideas gained from them into consideration when projects are planned.

Several suggestions for group projects were mentioned at the meeting and the group members decided that they would discuss possible projects and priorities at their next meeting, set for Feb. 2 at 8:30 a.m. at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

46 Firms Study Airport As Base

By BILL SCOTT
Sanford Industrial Commission director David F. Kelley at today's SIC meeting disclosed he has been working with 53 industrial prospects since coming here eight months ago.

The director added in a comprehensive 15-page report that seven of the 53 had located at the Sanford Airport within the same period.

These include: Cesco, Inc., a fast track rehabilitation firm working with the Cape Kennedy space program; Florida Instru, an aviation instrument repair facility; Carl's Greens, floral storage and makeup; Regional Crime Laboratory, detection techniques; Florida Convoy, Inc., trucking firm; Miami Brick and Stone, expansion of United Mobile Modulars of America, a Sarasota firm to relocate here.

Kelley disclosed that he was elected to the presidency of Florida Industrial Development Council at a just-ended meeting held at Cape Canaveral. Composed of 150 state members, Kelley said the industrial council would be working to establish new political contacts with the new Tallahassee administration.

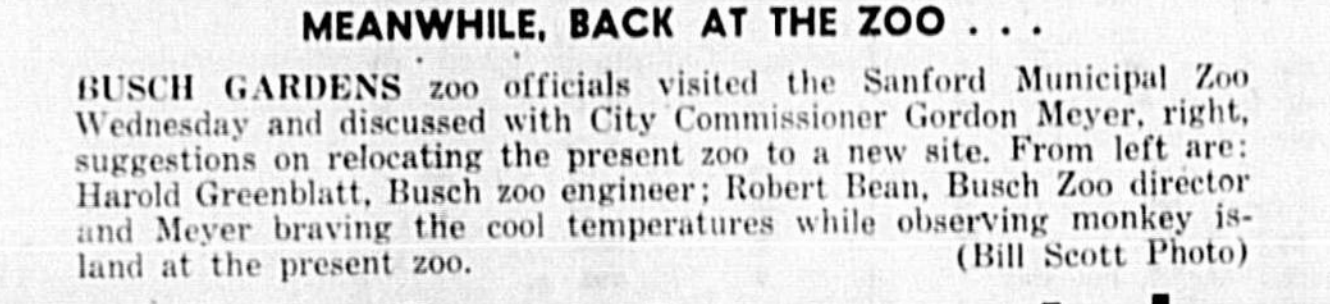

Diace Jean Boisvert, 21, was charged with prostitution and contributing to the delinquency of a minor and placed in the county jail in lieu of $300 total bond.

Her father, John Richard Boisvert, 54, was booked on three charges including keeping a house of ill fame, procuring a female for purposes of prostitution and causing a minor to become delinquent. His total bond was set at $2,000, according to sheriff's department reports.

Diace and a juvenile girl were arrested after vice squad officers entered an Oakland Hills residence at 10205 Emmons Way, near Forest City.

The 14-year-old was released to county juvenile authorities and the father, a 40-year-old, was charged with the man brought his daughter here from Maine and files indicate both are unemployed.

In another case, Sheriff John Poik disclosed Wednesday night that an escaped Lake County prisoner, who disarmed Deputy E. Fagan a week ago and left him locked in a county patrol car, had been apprehended in El Paso, Texas, on armed robbery charges.

Zoo Society Idea Lauded By Tampan

A Tampa zoo director believes that a zoological society is the best way to operate the Sanford Zoo.

Robert Bean, Busch Gardens Zoo director, visited Sanford Wednesday to tour the present city zoo and look at the 14-acre site being mentioned as a relocation area for expansion of animal facilities, if the attraction is not phased out after fiscal year ends.

The zoo expert suggested that costs for the relocation could be kept to a minimum by relocating to the zoo site a portion of the animals as monkeys become available.

He suggested that a new type balling cage which is oval in shape and economical, could be utilized in housing the male. The present large bird cage could be relocated with an entrance and exit added to enable patrons to walk inside for a closer view of the birds, Bean added.

He also mentioned removing the chickens, ducks and geese from the cages and placing them on zoo ponds and streams, thus leaving the cage for more cost-type birds.

Greenblatt suggested taking what the city has on hand and creating new designs and exhibits.

Bean complimented Mrs. William Mac Hood, zoo keeper, on the healthy look of the zoo animals, but disclosed housing them in close cramped quarters.

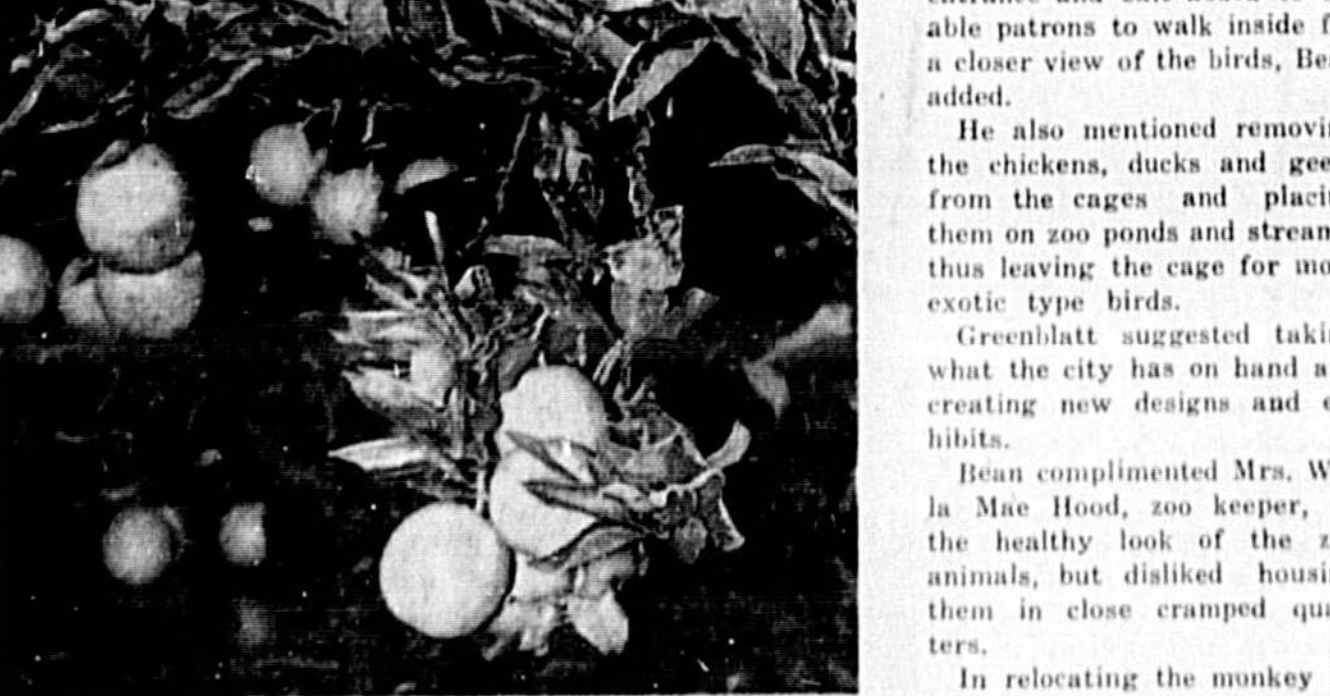

In relocating the monkey island, the director suggested keeping the same theme but suggested the need to add trees to permit climbing exercise, since monkeys are climbing type animals. "The things you can do with the zoo is limitless depending on the amount of money you wish to spend," Greenblatt said.

There were other ideas such as planting of flowers, adding ground rails, nesting, etc., to bring the public closer to the animals, within a comfortable arrangement.

Bean complimented the city on its marina and lakefront calling it attractive and suggested the new zoo site could be adapted for a combination recreation park and zoo, if enough funds were available.

"By adding plants and zoological specimens with identification attached, the complex could become educational in scope," he continued.

Greenblatt, in discussing the possible loss of zoo funds and the projected referendum, stated there was no reason the zoo had to become a taxpayer burden if relocation is done in phases as money becomes available from efforts of the zoological society, zoo exhibitions, concessions and donations.

Ritz Theatre Reopens With Family Movies

It will be like old times tomorrow as the Ritz Theatre opens its doors after being closed for several years. George Green, owner of the Skyview Drive-In Theatre in Cocoa, has reopened the old building, but will open for business for the first time tomorrow.

Unlike the Skyview Drive-In, which shows nothing but X-rated movies, the Ritz will be a family theater. Green plans to show "G" and "GP" movies only and possibly mild "R" rated shows.

Green is hoping to attract the retired citizens and Sanford Naval Academy students and will feature Saturday matinees for the children, with cartoon carnivals and features.

Green told The Herald, "We are going to put on decent films and make this a family type theater. If we're unsuccessful with G, GP and mid-R rated movies, we'll terminate our agreements and leave."

The Skyview Drive-In also started out as a family theater but was unsuccessful and was changed to show X-rated movies only. Green commented that he was well accepted. But he assured The Herald that the Ritz would not go to X movies.

The theater seats 170 on the ground level, and part of the balcony will be used.

The manager of the theater will be Tim Throop, of Cocoa Beach.

'Exciting' Gains In Construction

By LESTER BELL
Central News Service
WASHINGTON — "I know of a major field where technology has been applied than in this field," George W. Romney announced a few months after becoming secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"The situation," he insisted, "calls for cooperation from industry, from unions and from state and local officials. It calls for modern management."

And now nearly two years later, Romney says, housing construction in the volume America needs for its people will grow to a half without cheaper, better and faster ways to provide shelter. "Present construction methods are primitive and slow," he said.

Romney started off his crusade last summer in an unusually long two-hour news conference recently at HUD. Although his predictions were reported, they have not appeared extensively.

Here's how Romney believes the industry will tap that demand, provide the housing and make a profit.

"It's going to be exciting," he says, "I predict that by the end of this decade, at least two-thirds of all housing production in the United States will be factory produced."

Romney said the country is just in the first stage of the "industrial age in housing production," but before the seven years are over, "industrialized housing will dominate the market."

Before this can happen, however, "significant changes" will have to be made. He enumerates:

"First, I believe we'll see a reduction in labor costs. Average hourly earnings of construction workers have risen 20 percent in the last two years. The American people are sick and tired of paying the bill for this upward pressure on costs."

Romney said rising labor costs will be halted by a combination of direct government action, new labor legislation, a switch to factory-built housing which will not require high-cost trade union skills and the elimination, voluntarily or through legislation, of restrictive trade practices.

"Second," he added, "immense costs will also be reduced in industrial housing will be. Once the factories are in place, built in far less time than conventional housing. This will significantly shorten the time a developer needs to borrow construction money. And that having will be passed on to the home owner."

Romney said that "one way or another" housing will see a more stable mortgage market than in the past, both through direct federal support or encouragement of private lenders.

"Third," Romney said, "land will be more readily available for housing at more reasonable cost than has been true in recent years. I expect to see states and localities making significant changes in their property tax structures to help solve this problem."

Cambodians Retake Vital Pich Nil Pass

Bodies Of Suicide Squads Left By Retreating Communist Force

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

ON HIGHWAY 4, Cambodia (AP)—Cambodian troops captured the Pich Nil pass today and planted their flag over the napalm-scarred skeleton of Prince Norodom Sihanouk's mountainous citadel.

About 1,300 infantrymen spearheaded the fastest Cambodian advance in more than a week, after being stalled for ten days by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces entrenched in the Elephant Mountain on either side of Highway 4.

The winding mountain pass was considered the last enemy stronghold separating the two groups of a 15,000-man Cambodian-South Vietnamese joint operation to reopen Phnom Penh's only overland supply route from the sea.

An estimated 2,000 enemy who had withstood four days of intensive American air strikes retreated before the Cambodian advance with virtually no resistance, leaving the rotting bodies of suicide squads who remained in the bunkers to fight to the death.

Most of them had been killed by American Cobra helicopter gunships and Cambodia's ground force in the preceding 24 hours.

A Saigon spokesman said the force of more than 1,000 marines was meeting no significant resistance in the pass, which is about 115-mile road that connects the Cambodian capital and Kompong Som, the country's only deep-sea port.

"The marine force is moving too fast," the spokesman said, "because of difficult characteristics of the terrain."

The narrow, S-shaped pass is flanked by heavy jungle and the marines were sweeping half a mile on each side of the road, he said.

Cambodian forces at the northern end of the pass were reported engaged in sharp fighting for the third consecutive day.

Details were not immediately available.

But authorities in Phnom Penh reported 31 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops had been killed while Cambodian casualties were seven killed and 61 wounded.

North Vietnamese troops have controlled Highway 4 since last Nov. 21, cutting Phnom Penh off from its seaport and creating shortages of gas, fuel oil and other imports in the capital.

U.S. investigators in Saigon said the American command and control helicopters were directing U.S. helicopter gunships attacking enemy positions alongside the highway.

At the battle for Highway 4 appeared to be near a show-down, Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said today.

Prolonged Cease Fire Expected

By United Press International

Western diplomatic sources in Cairo said today the United States has urged Egypt to agree to extend the cease-fire with Israel beyond Feb. 5.

The source said the American view was based on Egyptian diplomats both in Cairo and Washington as "an expression of hope" rather than a formal proposal. They said an extension would help U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring in his mission of trying to reach some form of peace agreement by way of indirect negotiations between the Arab and Israeli.

The source said Egypt has not yet consented to extend the cease-fire already prolonged for three months following the original 90 day stand-down which began Aug. 7, but was likely to do so.

The possibility for movement toward peace in the area was given a boost by a dramatic switch in Egyptian public policy. The guerrillas, who have steadfastly refused to participate in or back any attempt to negotiate an end to the Middle Eastern problems, said they now would accept negotiations by the Arab nations to regain land lost to Israel in the 1967 war.

BRAM TOWERS already is about two-thirds rented although construction of the 160-apartment high rise will not be commenced until March. The Episcopal Church-sponsored apartment building will be located on East First Street, with all units having a view of Lake Mtroua. Eoghan Kelley is the architect.

Methvin Sentenced By Dykes

By NATHAN BETHLA
Associated Press Writer

GARY METHVIN, 35, was sentenced today in Circuit Court this morning by Judge Roger Dykes of the crime of breaking and entering with intent to commit a misdemeanor on Aug. 15 at the Lake Mary office of Dr. Carl H. Bender.

He was sentenced to from six months to four years at the State Correctional Institute for Youthful Offenders at Apalachicola.

It was stated that Methvin, who had habitually used narcotics, had been attempting to break the habit while under bond during presentence investigation. Public Defender Ned Julian told the court that the youth's problems were compounded by addiction to narcotics, lack of education and a broken home.

Judge Dykes said that if accepted Methvin had not accepted the fact that what he had done was wrong and that "the burning time and agonizing pain blackened the site over the circus bell this morning as temperatures fought against freezing temperatures which prevailed for 10 to 14 hours.

The extensive firing and use of wind machines probably saved many of the groves but James George, meteorological in charge of the Florida State Frost Warning Service at Lakeland, said "it is quite evident" there was extensive damage to fruit and foliage.

The cold in central Florida was described by Florida Citrus Mutual as similar to that experienced in the big freeze of 1967-68 readings for hours.

"While it is too early to assess extent of this freeze, we certainly expect that almost all of the early and midseason remaining crop will be harvested with some damage to grapefruit, tangelos, and other specialty fruit," said Robert Rutledge, general manager of the big cooperative.

"Frost crops in the Inokalee mucklands and along the south-east Florida coast were clipped the previous night but apparently suffered no further damage today as clouds kept temperatures above freezing.

Around 2 a.m. today, the cold wind began veering around toward the east and a warning trend started all over the state. Temperatures reaching the 50s in north Florida and the 60s southward were forecast for this afternoon.

Tallahassee's frigid 13 was the lowest recording today. Jacksonville was a 19 and across the north other temperatures were in the teens.

Efforts by City of Sanford to clear the city's north-south streets in the Georgetown area were stopped Wednesday after U.S. Deputy Marshal served Mayor Lee P. Murry with a Federal Court injunction.

The court action, filed by a group of Georgetown area residents opposed to a special five-year assessment on their taxes to fund the paving costs on the basis of racial discrimination, was thought to have been withdrawn earlier and plans were laid to assess property owners to pave the section's east-west streets when the injunction was lifted.

This action coupled by the expected stop to the east-west paving project by Alfred DeLaet, Georgetown area property owner, all but stops the projects, which were requested by a majority of the people living in the affected section.

DeLaet, an attorney at a Monday night public hearing declared he would bring a suit in the federal court to stop the paving and claimed the city was discriminating against the area's black residents by requiring them to pay for the paving while residents of white areas enjoy city participation by one third of the cost.

Welfare Mother Was Quartered At Waldorf...

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Three city welfare employees have been suspended on orders from an state Mayor John V. Lindsay for placing a Brooklyn welfare mother and her four children in two rooms at the Waldorf Astoria hotel.

Lindsay called for a full investigation Wednesday upon learning that the family was in a $10-a-night suite. He said in a statement that the incident "may well have had a malicious intent."

The mother, Gladys Hainsworth, moved to a friend's apartment after one night in the hotel. Mrs. Hainsworth told newspaper she had not wanted to stay in the Waldorf. In the first place:

"I told the welfare people that I would rather go to a girl friend's and that my girl friend was willing to put us up in two rooms for $10 a week. They said it was flat No. 1," she said.

"And now that's what they've done."

Mrs. Hainsworth and her children had been staying at a Brooklyn hotel where the city paid $10 a week for one big room. They had to move when the hotel became filled with out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Hainsworth said she preferred the Brooklyn hotel. "It was very beautiful. We even had a sun porch. But the children liked the Waldorf more. They thought it was filled with movie stars."

Tax Form Troubles Experts

By BILL NEIKIRK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is having more trouble with its best-known publication—the new, revised, simplified, master-to-understand tax form 1041.

It seems large numbers of Americans filing their income tax forms early this year are overlooking a new peel-off mailing label on 1041. It isn't being received fast and the International Revenue Service is disturbed.

By the first week of 1971, IRS officials said, up to 30,000 out of 100,000 early filers either failed to use the peel-off label or had their names, addresses or Social Security numbers at the top of 1041.

The peel-off label, attached to the basic tax package mailed to millions of taxpayers by IRS, includes the name, address and Social Security number as reported on a taxpayer's 1969 return.

IRS is asking taxpayers to peel it from the front page of the package and paste it in the proper place at the top of 1041. If the label isn't used, taxpayers must fill in the section themselves.

In past years, no peeling was required. The label was in the proper place, saving taxpayers the trouble of filling out their names, addresses and Social Security numbers if the information on the label proved correct.

Wekiva River A 'Canoe Trail'

By BILL SCOTT
Florida State Cabinet has approved including the Wekiva River as a part of the state's canoe trails.

The state's scenic river program, Rowland stated that Cabinet consideration of the Wekiva River was designated as a "wild" or scenic river would be on next week's agenda, but stressed the canoe trail designation.

The trail designation will be included in state authorized brochures going to tourists and other groups interested in the scenic beauty of the state.

This will amount to advertising the county to attract tourists," Rowland explained.

If the river is included in the Wekiva program, Rowland said, the waterway would be cleaned for navigational purposes by the state at no charge to the county.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts was ousted from his post as Senate Democratic whip by Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia today minutes before the new 92nd Congress began.

The vote in Byrd's favor was 31 to 24, according to one of the senators.

The result started the new session with a note of surprise and was viewed as a sharp setback to any presidential ambitions Kennedy might have in the future.

Walk Carefully Among Taxpayers This Year!

Spens are multiplying that 1971 will be the year taxpayers revolt against higher taxes. Coupled with this will be an even more bitter demand for an end to wasteful spending.

Gov. Reubin Askew, with a rare display of honesty and courage has told the Florida taxpayer that the state finances are in such bad shape that greater tax revenues are essential. He is seeking these through a tax on corporate profits.

How many taxpayers have shuddered at the waste which is reported and makes headlines year after year as the armed forces are given a blank check by Congress for experimentation?

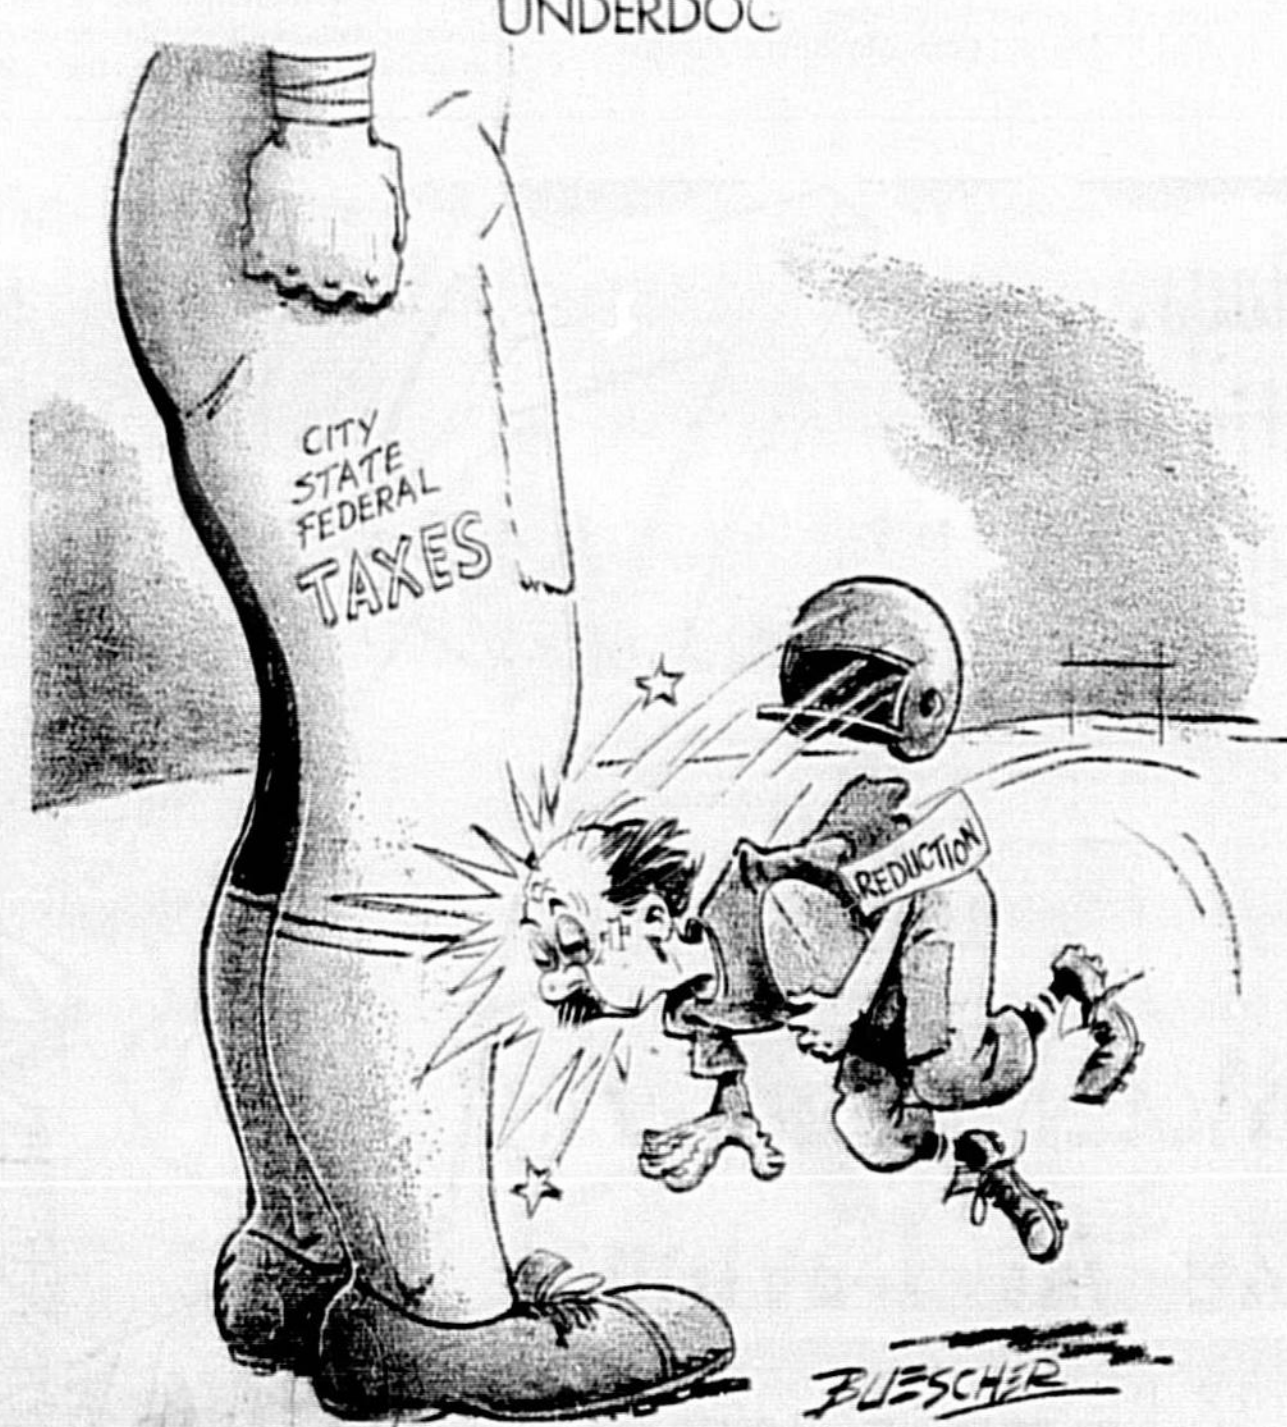

In the cycle of human affairs there come periods when what has been a matter of debate and mild concern, blazes into a flame when contributing causes strike a spark.

Alaskan Oil

A major confrontation between environmentalists and the oil industry can be anticipated next month when public hearings are held on the application to build an 80-mile pipeline to carry oil from the north coast of Alaska to an ice-free port on the southern coast.

It would certainly be desirable to leave the pristine Alaskan wilderness untouched. Yet when we survey our future energy needs, and when we see today how a political dispute in the Middle East can lead to fuel shortages here in the United States of America, it makes no sense to turn our backs on deposits of oil so close to home.

Man surely can learn to invade the wilderness with a search for the necessities of his civilization. The Alaskan pipeline project may provide the first major test of his ability to do so.

Periscopes Will Eyeball Highway Safety Automobiles Of 1975 On Display

By NICK TATRO MIAMI (AP)—Motorists may find themselves behind the wheel of a safety car by 1975 that features a periscope poking from the roof to eyeball the road and reach-out bumpers that can sense impact in advance.

All three work under separate multimillion dollar contracts from the U.S. Department of Transportation, a NHTSA spokesman said.

With special bumpers, a periscope and a balloon to cushion impact in the front seat, Speno says the car can cushion occupants from a 59 mile per hour crash.

Citrus Growers Hassle Before Senate Group

By DAVID LANGFORD ORLANDO (UPI)—Temperatures were blazing like smudge pots as Florida citrus men came to lay their grievances before the lawmakers Wednesday.

John Root of Winter Garden led the huge lake provides warmth and irrigation for about 20,000 acres of groves around its shores.

Edward A. Taylor, executive director of the Florida Department of Citrus, told the commission on behalf of citrus growers C.R. Griffin. The suit charged the assessment levied by the commission was unconstitutional.

Congress Ignored States Too Long

By DILLON GRAHAM
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bill Young of Florida says Congress has been ignoring the states for too long, and he plans to do something about it. "I believe Congress should pay some heed to what the states are telling us," the young Republican said. "If Florida has a problem with the federal government, it stands to reason that many other states may have the same," he continued. "Communication is essential. I plan to be a spokesman in Congress for state governments."

Young, who spent 10 years in the Florida state Senate before running for Congress, says he thinks Congress often ignores the resolutions and memorial tributes sent by the states. The 40-year-old native of St. Petersburg has never lost a political race since he first was elected to the state Senate in 1966—then the lone Republican member of the state Senate last spring.

Young succeeds William C. Cramer, who gave up his seat to run for the U.S. Senate. Cramer lost to Democrat Lawton Chiles in the general election. Young has been strong on conservation and introduced legislation last year requiring those responsible for oil spills in Florida waterways to pay for the cleanup operation.

Who'll Be King Of Hearts?

Beta Sigma Phi Plans Gala Charity Ball

Hearts and sweethearts bow each February when Beta Sigma Phi crowns a queen at the annual colorful Valentine's Ball.

So what's a queen without a king of hearts?

This year the ball chairman, DEENIE BARTLETT, JAN CAHILL, AND CAROL DUDLEY concluded that the society must have a king . . . thus an idea was born.

Candid Chatter

By Doris Williams

Also this year, proceeds from the big affair will go to charity. Everybody paint the date, Feb. 20, in brilliant crimson . . . go to the ball and get a bird's eyeview of the king of hearts . . . the competition is keen and the winner depends on popular vote.

In keeping with the annual tradition, BETTY AND BOB McKEE will entertain at a cocktail party for candidates and the select panel of judges, who are DR. LUIS PEREZ, DR. MARIA PEREZ, DORIS ASHWELL, Women's Editor; WKIS Radio, Orlando; HERBERT STENSTROM, Sanford Realtor; and BILL WARDEN, public relations, Florida Technological University.

This is off the record but just to see that the voting and money is in fact falls in the department of SHERIFF JOHN POLK, HOWARD McNULTY and POLICE CHIEF BREN BUTLER.

WAYNE TROUT of WTRR will serve as the central emcee.

The main thing right now is to select the candidate of your choice . . . and support him!

Queen candidates from all chapters of Beta Sigma Phi are JACKIE MARKOS, Phi Delta Zeta; ELIZABETH JETT, Gamma Lambda; MARTHA LYLE, Theta Epsilon; CAROL SCHMIDT, Zeta Xi; BETTY RATHEL, Xi Beta Eta; GLENDA EMERSON, Xi Epsilon Sigma; and CLAUDIA BLYTHE, City Council.

Over 20 glamorous models will show fashions which can be purchased and all profits will go to another deserving enterprise . . . The Little Red Schoolhouse, recently merged with Seminole County Association for Retarded Children.

Another big surprise of the evening will be a top-notch celebrity reigning over the ceremonies at Sanford Civic Center, and the BILL HALL BAND of Orlando will provide the music for dancing . . . it's really going to be a swinging affair . . . a MUST!

Women On The Go...

Club Circuit

HOMEMAKERS CLUB SCHEDULES BAZAAR
Geneva Homemakers Club met on Wednesday, Jan. 13 at the Geneva Community Center with 13 members present.

The flue and other ills have taken their toll of "be members this month and attendance was at an all time low."

The members decided to have a bazaar in the near future. It will be a combination of cooked foods and gift and wearing type articles.

An assembly type workshop meeting is being planned to convene at the home of Mrs. R. E. Mitchell to work toward this goal. All interested members are invited to come and work together. Any interested persons may contact Mrs. Mitchell.

A very enlightening program "Family Life in The World of Change" was presented by Mrs. W. B. Heath. A point of interest and well accepted by those in attendance was that families should strive to become more closely knit and to enter into more activities as a group rather than to be so much alone.

She further brought out that we should try to be prepared to make the adjustment from a growing family to a happy retirement. An especial commendation of attention was the quotation which Mrs. Heath incorporated into her talk, "Life by the inch is a cinch; by the yard—it's hard."

The meeting was adjourned for a very delicious covered dish luncheon which was served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. B. Heath, Mrs. R. E. Mitchell and Mrs. Burt Baxter.

The next meeting will deal with the proper foods for the proper feelings and weight. There will also be a fashion show at which time members will model article of clothing which they created.

ATTENTION ALTAMONTE WOMEN

This would be a great way for the women of Altamonte Springs to become better acquainted and plan activities and programs of mutual interest.

If you have the desire for a Woman's Club in Altamonte Springs, please send in the requested information today. You will be notified of the amount of interest shown immediately after the deadline of Jan. 31.

F. T. U. WIVES WELCOME NEWCOMERS
On Thursday, Jan. 28, the Florida Technological University Women's Club gathered at the House of Reef in Maitland for a noon luncheon.

Following the luncheon the club's program chairman, Mrs. Betty McCarter, will introduce Mr. Joe B. McCawley, licensed instructor and consultant in Ethical Hypnosis and Self-Hypnosis, who will speak to the group about that most interesting and mystifying subject—Hypnosis.

Also in the month of January a new semester has begun at F.T.U. and Women's Club president, Mrs. Sandy Engert, held a coffee in her home on Tuesday, Jan. 19 to welcome 12 newly arrived faculty wives.

The university president's wife, the vice president's wives and the deans' wives were present to aid Mrs. Engert in her welcoming of these women to the university community.

SOCIAL DEPARTMENT LUNCHEONS, PLAYS CARDS
The Social Department of Sanford Woman's Club held its monthly meeting Wednesday, Jan. 13 at the club house.

SJC Falls To JU Frosh

Raiders Prove Not To Be 'Giant' Killers

By JIM RICKENBACHER
Herald Sports Staff

Seminole Junior College took a trip into the "Land of the Giants" Wednesday night and found things not so sweet in the big time, as they fell to the Jacksonville Dolphins Frosh and Dave Brent, 89-82, in a game played at the Jacksonville Coliseum.

Seemingly awestricken by the 7-foot giant, the Raiders carried the battle to the home courts, and barring the last four minutes played JU to the hit.

The Raiders looked weary from the last week's play throughout the entire contest. But in all actuality, Brent was the man who broke the Raiders' hearts.

— Jacksonville's highly partisan crowd was with the big man all the way and applauded his every move. Brent wasn't the sole factor in the Dolphins' triumph.

George DeLand, a three-guard out of Illinois, fed the massive high-point figures and contributed 15 points to the cause. The Dolphins' two wing men, Glenn Dockery and John Machiverris netted 15 and 19 points respectively.

The game itself was a nip-and-tuck affair until the final stretch. It was with 4:47 remaining that the Dolphins bolted out and left the Raiders standing by.

Brent started the JU surge with a tip-in, continued to clean the boards and pass down-court to his teammates for the easy point.

SJC tried to march back, but once behind the Raiders were forced to foul in order to get possession. In fact, personal fouls were what decided the contest. The Dolphins visited the charity mark 41 times compared to 21 for the visitors. JU capitalized on 33 of their attempts with the Raiders tallying on only 16.

Although the Raiders wound up on the short end of the scoreboard for the second time this season, there were bright spots in the losing effort. One such man was the menacing Dave Lambert, who spent most of the evening either driving in for the basket or rigging the boards from the outside.

The playmaking speedster from Ohio finished the game with 26 points and seven assists. It was Lambert who kept the eight straight attempts from the floor.

Despite cold weather and cold shooting, SJC was next pulling off a mild upset before Brent and company began to change. JU will face Sterling and his Raiders a week from this Saturday in Raider country. That alone should make Dave Brent and his Dolphins good bait for the SJC nets.

Encyclopedia Of Hockey Disputes Plante Claim

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacques Plante, the veteran goaltender of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is generally credited with introducing the face mask to hockey goateending. But a new book, "The Complete Encyclopedia of Hockey," published by Prentice-Hall, disputes the claim and offers pictorial proof that Plante was 30 years late with the innovation.

Plante, 41, took to the mask 11 years ago and became the modern trailblazer for face protectors. Now almost all professional and all goalies wear masks as casually as they strap on pads and chest protectors.

"Plante wasn't the first goalie to get the idea. Back in the 1920-30 season, Clint Benedict of the Montreal Maroons one night had the tough luck to stop a shot with his nose. The blow broke Benedict's nose and the gritty goalie showed up for Montreal's next game wearing a crude leather contraption to protect his busted nose.

LEW ALINDOR, left, of the Milwaukee Bucks, seems more concerned about the blow than he is about the possibility of Wilt Chamberlain of the Los Angeles Lakers blocking his shot. Lew had his priorities right—he wound up with a lay-up.

Pro Bowl Is Reminiscent Of Old AFL-NFL Rivalry

By MIKE RATHIE
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There are strong indications, including the words of Jim Otto and the vote for team captains on the American Conference All-Star squad, that Sunday's Pro Bowl will have one element the NFL lacks—the deep emotion of the old AFL-NFL rivalry.

"The majority of the players on the American Conference team are from the old AFL," Otto, 11-year veteran and quarterback, said. "I'm glad to go back to the AFL's beginning. 'So from that standpoint, it's almost like AFL versus NFL."

Haywood Case In Limbo But Not On Cage Court

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sprague Haywood's battle in the federal courts continues at a standstill... but he's certainly not standing still on a basketball court. While the legal hassle continued over his jump from the American Basketball Association to the National Basketball Association, Haywood returned to 23 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead Seattle over Atlanta 112-106 in the NBA Wednesday night. Haywood was playing only hours after the U.S. Court of Appeals at St. Francisco and the court took his case out of the jurisdiction. Haywood, 26, former University of Detroit star, quit a $1.9 million contract with Denver of the ABA earlier this year, sparking the legal arguments. Atlanta became the 11th straight opponent to present a hostile game because of the opposition of Haywood, who is not recognized by the NBA as an official player. Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, Milwaukee whipped Dallas 120-116. Buffalo led Portland 136-106 in its last game when it beat 103-95 Boston. San Diego 142-112 and Cincinnati defeated Phoenix 126-114. In the ABA, it was New York 113, Philadelphia 106, Carolina 104, Virginia 104 and Memphis 103, Denver 103.

Traditional frittercakes combine generous amounts of oiled and dried fruits and nuts with just enough Irish butter to hold the mixture together. The recipe has evolved a low-fat version called Prized Non-Fat Cakes. The tiny cakes are baked slowly to allow the characteristic apple, fruit and nut flavors to blend. As most frittercakes improve with age, so will Prized Non-Fat Cakes. Try the secret of their success. Wrap and refrigerate the second cakes at least a week before serving.

Draft Dodgers Find They Can't Go Home

By BILL HILL
Copy News Service
VANCOUVER, B. C. — It might have been on the way for some time. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have just completed a roundup of suspected draft dodgers. Some of them are Americans.

People come and go in the Yukon.

Still you wait.

Finally, a young man slides into the booth across the table. He plays at you, speechless.

He's a big man. His hair is long. He is wearing a dark, heavy jacket. He is looking at you with a different turn at that crucial point in life.

If you called him an American, you'd probably be right. With a shave, a haircut, a bath and some clean clothes, he might look like an architect or an engineer.

His name is Larry. You know it without asking. He's a 20-year-old with an uncertain future; dismal, at best.

He is a draft dodger who fled to Canada to avoid his military obligation. He's among the hundreds who have crossed the Canadian border in the last few years because he didn't believe in the Vietnam war.

But time has caught up with him. He has come face-to-face with the awful consequences of his actions—he can't go home again.

If you called him an American, you'd probably be wrong. He's not. He believed in running away from the draft. But if the calendar were turned back, he probably would have made a different turn at that crucial point in life.

In the last few months he has come to realize that Americans have died to guarantee him the right to do some of the things he has done.

Uncle Sam Looks To April 15

Everybody talks about the weather, as Mark Twain is reputed to have said many years ago, but they also talk about it. And environment. And inflation. And poverty.

And speaking of poverty: Do you know who's the poorest guy in this country of ours? Uncle Sam, that's who.

He doesn't have a red cent of his own. If he appears to have a bundle, it's because he operates on what his nieces and nephews give him—also and alcohol, and smoking the lies of next April, what he takes from them.

Uncle Sam is an unusual fellow. He never really was born, the way we think of it. He was created, if that's the word, by his own nieces and nephews. That sounds confusing, genealogically or biologically, or even impossible, think nothing of it. That's the way it is.

Uncle Sam's birth came with the adoption of the Constitution, and in that document he was given some authority. For instance, right there in Section 8 of the Constitution, Uncle Sam is given the power:

"To lay and collect taxes ... of an taxing money. Uncle Sam, having no money of his own, naturally had to call on his nieces and nephews to dig into their piggy banks to pay for the fighting, which they did uncomplainingly, since they were involved and didn't have much choice.

The household finances were kept pretty much in order, despite these occasional disturbances, because Uncle Sam as long as others in the household kept a watchful eye on him.

There came a time, however, when Uncle Sam noticed that some of the kids seemed to have more spending money than the others and were eating up ice cream cones and riding on roller coasters while some of the kids were standing by, drooling enviously, and the parents of some of them were worn through in the seat.

Taj Mahal Draws Crowds At Night

By LISA WOHLE
MOHA, India (AP) — Each month the city of Agra in northern India has a solemn crowd for a show that has been running more than 200 years.

Agra's attraction is the Taj Mahal by moonlight. In recent months the spectacle has drawn up to 60,000 visitors in one night. Admission is only one rupee—13 cents—except on Fridays, the Muslim sabbath, when there is no charge.

The fairytale edifice is really a tomb—completed in 1631 by Mogul Emperor Shah Jahan for his beloved queen, Mumtaz Mahal.

Although the Taj lures thousands of tourists daily, the night crowds were and were with the moon, whose rays are said to best illuminate the beauty of the 17th century white marble monument.

The full moonlight, wrote India's Nobel prize-winning poet, the late Rabindranath Tagore, places the "Taj" beyond the realm of language where the hungry eyes come back again and again.

Since avid sightseers in the past have threatened to rot being made at a 12-year-old dig site, uncovered a German team in 1961.

Over the last 12 years, diggers have found 50 to 60 long houses, 150 cinder block for extracting iron, about 25 mine houses which served as workers' huts, and 32 wooden wells.

Mullet Great Staple

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 18 — Florida mullet, once promoted under the savory name of Lisa, is still one of the great staple food fishes of coastal Florida. It may yet gain wider fame, according to Florida Commissioner of Agriculture Duane Conner, whose Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is charged by Florida Law Chapter 500 with food testing.

Following a series of chemical analyses by the Department's Division of Chemistry, mullet have shown typically to carry less than 10 per cent of the poisonous residue of most other varieties of fish.

Conner said dangerous limits of mercury or reddish pesticide are almost never found in either fresh water or salt water fish from Florida.

Conner said that mercury wasn't found solely in tuna or swordfish. "Mercury is readily found in many other species," he said, "but within the tolerable one-half part per million."

The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has been testing seafoods for more than two years, and especially for harmful mercury during the past six months.

Florida's famous coastal mullet continues to show smaller amounts than other kinds of fish tested from salt water or fresh water.

The mullet is non-carnivorous. It is a vegetarian. In the sucker-family of fishes, and a series of laboratory tests performed by the Department's Pasteur Institute laboratories showed mullet with extremely low levels of mercury, or chlorinated hydrocarbon residue.

Conner said sources of separate food commodities — involving comparatively few seafood samples — were put through a continuing system of "spectrometry" sampling and testing.

Two basic methods used by the Department are the flame ionization technique, which is used to detect in foods possible organic phosphates such as parabens or malathion. The other is known as "electron capture" — also employing use of gas chromatography — and useful in detecting any of 150 possible chlorinated residual pesticides in food.

SAVORY RICE-STUFFED FLANK STEAK

1 1/2-pound flank steak
1 egg-cooked rice
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon tarragon leaves
1/2 cup bread crumbs
1/2 cup (about 1/2 pound) butter or margarine
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed tomato soup
1/2 cup water
1 cup brandy or other dry red wine
2 medium cloves garlic, minced

Pound steak with meat hammer or edge of heavy sauceur until thin. Combine rice, onion, and 1/2 teaspoon tarragon. Spread mixture over mullet, leaving 1-inch of edges. Starting at narrow end, roll up; tuck in the side. Add a green salad that can be made ahead, refrigerated, and tossed at the last minute. For most elegant, use only elegant frozen strawberries. This can be prepared days ahead and stored in the freezer until serving time. Then garnish with whipped topping and fresh strawberries.

Monument To Stomach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It sits midway between the hippie bands of the Sunset Strip and Wilshire Boulevard's culturally chic museums—the Farmers Market, monument to the stomach. Food is the magnet that draws hungry tourists here daily to sample an array of international lunches ranging from hot and bagels to enchiladas. You can get chop suey at one stand and a plate of spaghetti at the next. Imaginative tourists have been known to combine the two. Produce stands display such California exotics as avocados, dates, papayas and, of course, heaps of brightly hued oranges. Food is its hallmark, but the Farmers Market sells everything from soups and stews to parakeets and ponies. Garden shops, pet shops, clothing stores and crockery stands are jammed into the complex of one-story buildings clustered around an always-crowded parking lot. A white, early-American style steeple rises above the square to mark the spot for passing motorists. Today's Farmers Market is sophisticated compared to the primitive clapboard stalls where real farmers hawked their wares on opening day in 1934. There were 18 stalls then, specializing in eggs and produce, and the market clung to the city's edge. The urban sprawl sprang up around it, and the market spread to its current 160 stalls which include such modern additions as a post office, car wash, beauty salons and a brokerage company with stock prices flashing on a big board. Local residents brave the tourist crush to buy fine meats and cheeses. And alert tourists often spot celebrities strolling in its spacious barrens to enjoy a beer and good conversation. In truth, the rooms at the City Hotel are not its forte. He has never returned to Europe, has married a Sierra Leonean and was recently made a citizen of the country—a rare distinction for a European. A short, soft-spoken man, Freddy allows, without amplification, that he is able to identify bits and pieces of many characters in "The Heart of the Matter." "Oh yes, they were all real people," he said, and then added, nostalgically, "You know, I was just re-reading the book last week."

City Hotel In Freetown Site Of Graham Greene New Novel

By JAMES M. MARKHAM Associated Press Writer FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (AP) — Remember the Bedford Hotel in Graham Greene's novel about a conscientious Catholic police officer who gradually destroys himself in a backwater West African colony during World War II? Admirers of the novel, "The Heart of the Matter," will recall the hilarious scene in which Winston, an undercover agent, and his comrade Harris turn cockroach hunting into a competitive sport, wacking their shoes against the hotel's thin walls. The pseudonym Bedford Hotel, in real life the City Hotel, is still alive and well in Freetown, where Greene worked for British intelligence during 1942-1943. Despite the dubious advertising provided by Greene's novel, the City Hotel has over the years achieved an independent local fame of its own and is the gathering spot for both the famous and the not-so-famous, the rich and the not-very-rich in this lovely little town. Square, squat, a little down-at-the-heels, the City Hotel has no sign over its high, front porch, but visitors to Freetown have no difficulty in finding it. "I get a little bored with heists asked all the time. In this hotel in 'The Heart of the Matter,'" explained Fred Ferrari, the institution's Swiss-born proprietor. "Freddy, as he is known to everyone, is a man who has been in the country since 1942. He has never returned to Europe, has married a Sierra Leonean and was recently made a citizen of the country—a rare distinction for a European. A short, soft-spoken man, Freddy allows, without amplification, that he is able to identify bits and pieces of many characters in "The Heart of the Matter." "Oh yes, they were all real people," he said, and then added, nostalgically, "You know, I was just re-reading the book last week."

Labelled Stupid

ST. CATHARINES, Canada (AP) — Two of the recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women were labelled respectively "stupid" and "crazy" recently by the woman chiefly responsible for the establishment of the commission. Laura Sabia of St. Catharines called "stupid" the recommendation that mothers be paid $500 a year for each of their children under 16. And she described as "crazy" the suggestion that a married man's tax deduction for his dependent wife be reduced from the present $1,500 to $600.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The first electronic highway system was created by Dr. Vladimir Zworykin at the RCA Laboratories in Princeton, N.J. The World Almanac recalls, in 1960, demonstrations were made using an automobile controlled by wire cables buried under the pavement. The cables conveyed impulses to electronic circuits in the vehicle which automatically reduced speed and prevented collisions.

Dispute Stalling Board's Operations

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Dispute over whether the appointees of Gov. Reubin Askew or former Gov. Claude Kirk shall run the board that controls it has stalled creation of an agency to protect consumers from electronic repair frauds. Officially the Bureau of Electronic Repair Dealer Registration was created on Jan. 1, but its acting director said Monday the bureau was little more than a paper agency. "I've stopped doing anything. I can't keep my staff working on it," said Stanley Hays, director of the Division of General Regulation. A $35,000 appropriation to start the agency and hire a bureau chief and four employees was on last week's Cabinet agenda but was postponed at Askew's request. "The governor would like to delay appointment of the bureau chief until the controlling Board of Business Regulation filled by five of his appointees. Askew contends board members lost their jobs when Kirk's office ended. Board members, however, maintain they were appointed for four-year terms that remain in effect. Press Secretary Don Price said Askew is considering several possible ways to oust the old board and put in his own people, but has not yet reached a decision. "You could just go ahead and put your members in there, assume you had the power, and let the old members take it to court," Price said. Sources close to Askew indicated that William Kimbrel, a Pensacola electronic equipment dealer, is in line for chief of the new bureau. The electronic repair bureau came out of Sen. Fred Karl's 1970 Consumer Protection Committee. The law provides for registration of repair men and policing power to protect consumers against fraud. "We're aware of the situation and we're watching it very carefully," Karl said.

The World Of Music: Haggard Makes It Big

Dr. Fountain's Remedy Chases Away The Blues

By BOB BUDLER Copyist News Service Back in 1957, when Merle Haggard was born, Bakersfield, Calif., was still a dismal little community struggling against the Depression that had brought his father, a country fiddler from Chocoma, Okla., out west. Today, Bakersfield is a thriving town and Merle Haggard is one of its most famous residents. He's a man who knows about failure and in 1970 he tasted real success by becoming the top recording artist in the country and western field. Merle was only nine when his father died, and he grew up fast, running away because he didn't want to be a burden to his widowed mother, driving a pitching hay, working the oil fields, sitting around the country music saloons. By the time he was 17, he'd already spent two years in reform school. Come age 20, and Merle was sentenced to 1-to-16 years in San Quentin, and the way he tells it now, it's kind of a wonder the way he got there. Prison, though, was serious business, and Merle figures he learned a lot in the nearly three years he spent behind bars. February, 1960, he was released, and he headed back to Bakersfield and went to work for his brother, digging ditches, driving a truck — and playing lead guitar at a country music club for about $20 a weekend. Well, one thing led to another and eventually he was signed by Capitol Records. That was 1965, when he married Bonnie Owens, also a country western artist.

Flying Police Prevent Crimes

FLYING COPS — Policeman Cecil Harris approaches helicopter as Richard Lucia lands in routine operation by Los Angeles Police Department's ASTRO patrol. Patrol is credited with preventing crimes as well as nabbing suspects.

Police Prevent Crimes

LOS ANGELES — Statistics on crime are depressingly predictable. They show that crimes of all types are on the increase. But the Los Angeles Police Department's ASTRO Patrol shows that statistical picture sky high. ASTRO stands for Air Support To Regular Operations. It teams up helicopters piloted by Los Angeles policemen with patrol cars on the ground. The results in preventing crimes and in catching suspects are remarkable, as a study by JPL shows. The result surprised everybody. "We didn't know we were that good," says Sgt. A. L. Lamoreaux, assistant watch commander assigned to nearby Glendale Helipol where the flying patrol cars take off and land at regular intervals all day. The first helicopter patrol was launched in January, 1969. The JPL study relates the number of crimes reported to the number of arrests during the first quarter. For instance with 43 burglaries reported, there were 22 arrests. That's better than 50 percent as compared with 18 percent arrest figure reported by ground units citywide. At the end of the first year of the ASTRO program, the two areas with regular patrols were reporting a reduction in auto theft, burglary, theft from motor vehicles and robbery. The helicopters are equipped the same way as patrol cars. And for night patrol they have search lights that can illuminate a large area as bright as day. They are not designed to replace the ground units, Lamoreaux explains, but to support them. Police say a helicopter can be a valuable aid to a patrol unit pursuing a suspect on the ground. The helicopter can keep the patrol unit informed of the suspect's location. Without the helicopter's help, the chances of a suspect eluding the police are much greater. There are 19 policemen assigned to the ASTRO Patrol. Each policeman who gets the assignment has a minimum of five years on the job. Lamoreaux says the majority of them have a commercial pilot's license. Even so, they go through 200 hours of training at the training facility in suburban Van Nuys. They must also pass a check ride with a Federal Aviation Administration inspector. Officers chosen to patrol from the air know the area at ground level as well. "The pilot has to know the area quite well," Lamoreaux says. They know it so well they can identify 100 blocks from 100 feet above the ground. In fact, the gorilla baby developed a severe "24-hour flu bug" about two weeks ago. Dr. Simmons had made a routine "bed check" of Tie and the gorilla were quite well. Lamoreaux says. They know it so well they can identify 100 blocks from 100 feet above the ground.

'Mo' Turned Upside Down Is 'Ow'

Young Liberals Lose In House Vote

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When the votes had been counted and Hale Boggs of Louisiana had been elected House Democratic leader, Rep. Morris K. "Mo" Udall, his chief opponent, turned the bottom on his lapel upside down.
It had said "Mo." Now it said "OW."
Udall laughed, but his defeat had to hurt. Hopes of younger, more liberal members for a dramatic change in the image of the House leadership were shattered by Boggs' victory.
Before Tuesday's vote it appeared possible they might get their first foothold on the leadership ladder, but in the end it was the same old coalition of Southerners, big-city regulars and senior members who triumphed.
Boggs, 64, who has served 26 years in the House and was just a rung below the majority leadership as Democratic whip, not only won over four opponents, but won big.

Udall, 47, had more than 12 years in the House and was just a rung below the majority leadership as Democratic whip, not only won over four opponents, but won big.

'Revenue Sharing' Scheme Pressure Grows On Solons

(Editor's note: Few pieces of legislation are likely to generate more debate in the new Congress than "revenue sharing." Here is a report on the program: what it is and how it would work.)
By KROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure is growing inside and outside Congress for revenue sharing, an idea that looks simple but isn't.
Under revenue sharing the federal government, blessed with income tax revenue that automatically goes up faster than the overall economy, would turn over some of the money to hard-pressed state and local governments, with no strings attached.
President Nixon, committed to his "new federalism" policy of strengthening state governments, will press harder than ever for revenue sharing this year. Governors and mayors are clamoring for it, a recent poll shows 71 per cent of Americans like the idea, and a growing number of congressmen and senators appear to be lining up behind it.
Opponents of revenue sharing include fiscal conservatives who see it as another spending plan, organized labor and the National Education Association which say it has hidden pitfalls, and many members of Congress simply reluctant to let power pass out of their hands or to raise taxes for the benefit of another level of government.
Debate over the issue will heat up when President Nixon delivers his State of the Union address to Congress Friday. He has promised a new, expanded revenue sharing plan.

The arguments cross-party lines and ideological boundaries. Republicans, Democrats, liberals, moderates and conservatives can be found on both sides of the issue.
THE DEBATE
FOR—Punished by rising costs and lagging tax takes, many states and cities predict cutbacks in basic services or increases in taxes without increased federal aid, an Associated Press survey showed last month. Federal aid, in the form of no-strings federal revenue sharing, is the answer.
AGAINST—States and cities have only themselves to blame, since they can always raise their own taxes. Anyway, the federal government already gives them about $25 billion yearly in direct, conditional grants-in-aid and about another $7 billion in indirect loans and subsidies.

MANY MOTORISTS were no doubt surprised to find a stick with a red flag on the end of it "sprouting" out of the middle of the road as they drove down Sanford's Seminole Boulevard yesterday. Here, Herald Sports Writer Larry Neely examines the miniature sink hole which was actually quite deep, swallowing a foot (inset) easily. (Gary Taylor Photos)

DeBary Players Reschedule Play

By ELLA MAY FRAZER
DEBARY — Originally scheduled performances for today and tomorrow have been rescheduled by the DeBary Players for Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25-26.
This community theater group is now hard at work on the Kaufman and Hart play, "You Can't Take It With You." A hilarious comedy set in the 1900s, it contains a large cast which includes some familiar names and a few newcomers, plus teenagers — who have become a "pet project" with this group.
DeBary Players is providing a constructive, fun-filled outlet for all the energy youth of the town need to let out. Teenagers did a grand job in the last production "The Rainmaker," which was produced by many of the best young DeBary ever.
During the Christmas holidays a group of these youngsters did special performances of their own of a one-act play called "Dear Departed," which was under direction of both Matt and Mickey Thurman.
In the upcoming production, Pat McDonald plays "Tom" with Karen Atkins playing opposite him as "Alice." Matt Thurman plays "Rheba." Young Eric Hall, Timmy Robbins, and Ralph Troff will have supporting roles. All these young people have done grand jobs before for the Players.
Adults of the cast include Ruth Moore as "Penelope," newcomer Nani Sheets as "Edna," George Napoli as "Paul," Ray Segerlund as "DePinna," Dale Miller in the part of "Orlando," Tony Bryan as "Donald," Paul Thust as "Ellen," Dave Bartels as "Barik," Elinor Robbins as "Gay," Dave Troff as "Mr. Kirby," Ruth Braun as "Mrs. Kirby," and Florence Thust as the Russian "Olga."
A special request is being issued for a two-cushioned sofa of that period to be loaned for use in the play. Anyone wishing to contribute this item may phone Mrs. Thust 698-4783. It will be picked up in time for rehearsal.
The DeBary Players, composed of local talent and people interested in all phases of theater, include not only actors but backstage technicians and general help, publicity, and hospitality. Anyone in the DeBary area wishing to be part of this fun is cordially invited to join the group. For further information, telephone the president of DeBary Players, Mrs. Thust.
