By BILL SCOTT
"Hot words" highlighted a two-hour session of the Sanford Housing Authority and Sanford Tenants Council Tuesday afternoon.

JOHN FITZPATRICK (right) threatened to leave a meeting of the Sanford Housing Authority and Sanford Tenants Council because of variance from the agenda Tuesday afternoon. Also pictured are G. Andrew Speer, Authority attorney; Howard Montiehl, Authority chairman, and Gordon Bradley, housing executive. (Staff Photo)

Fitzpatrick said, "It is already past 5 p.m. and we were asked to meet here to decide what to do about establishing priorities in modernizing the housing units, not to hear complaints from tenants."

John Fitzpatrick, Authority member, told tenant representatives Rutha Riggins, Alfred DeLattibaudiere, Rev. Goldie Robanks and Hannah Pinkney, that unless the meeting concerned itself with the proposed modernization of the 280 federally-funded apartments, he would be leaving in 10 minutes.

Nixon To Bare 'Mystery' Freeze Phase 2 Tonight

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveils to the nation tonight his post-freeze economic package, a complex program of wage-price restraints likely to be based on productivity.

When Nixon goes before nationwide television and radio at 7:30 p.m. EDT, he will strip away the mystery that has surrounded the program, popularly known as Phase 2, since he imposed the 90-day wage-price freeze Aug. 15.

This much is known: The White House has virtually ruled out any controls on profits, and has left the door open only slightly to ceilings on interest rates. Some sort of controls on medical costs is expected. The biggest question is how much wages and prices will be allowed to rise after the freeze expires Nov. 13. The White House has been super secret on this point, although economists are guessing wages would be allowed to go up 8 per cent.

Productivity — Worker output per man-hour, a gauge of the efficiency of the U.S. economy—is likely to be the key to the Phase 2 plan. Productivity has been rising at about 3 per cent a year.

But there is also a question of whether the wage guidelines should include a cost-of-living allowance to take into account price increases. How the program will be enforced is just as big a mystery as the wage-price restraints.

Government sources said the Cost of Living Council, set up by Nixon to administer the freeze, likely will continue as the chief policymaking agency in Phase 2.

Beyond that, the alternatives range widely. Organized labor has called for a wage-price review board including members of labor, management and the public, with a voluntary Phase 2 program.

Federal judges, on request of the Justice Department, moved to temporarily halt a lingering West Coast dock strike and a month-old shipping tieup in Chicago.

The Senate Finance Committee planned to start work today on a bill to cut business and individual taxes $15.4 billion over the next three years.

The bill, as passed by the House Wednesday, is a basic part of Nixon's Phase 1 program.

The Senate attacked another portion of Nixon's inflation-fighting program, voting to allow federal workers a scheduled Jan. 1 pay raise, but no more than allowed private-sector employees under Phase 2. Nixon seeks to delay the federal raises to July 1.

Layout Plan For Airport Is Sought

By BILL SCOTT
Sanford Airport Authority held its final meeting this morning and approved several items proposed by Sanford Airport manager J. S. Cleveland, including the contracting of a consulting engineer for a master airport layout plan, and the approval of leasing Lake Golden airport area to groups without forcing them to pay high liability insurance costs.

Cleveland said the cost of securing a consultant for the plan could be funded on an arrangement whereby the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) pays two-thirds and the airport and state paying one-sixth each of the fee.

The airport manager said there were several firms in Florida, which are capable and he would seek proposals from each of them. Cleveland said he hoped to have the planning grant request be submitted to the FAA within 90 days after the Authority meets again.

In July, 1970 Lake Golden was leased to the Knights of Columbus for an outing and a child drowned, the airport manager said. "Since then a suit has been filed against the city charging negligence," Cleveland added.

Because of this the city has obtained a $300,000 liability policy on the property and the lessee has to pay the premium before the lake property was leased.

Now, under the new arrangement approved by the authority today, the lessee must sign an agreement whereby the city and authority will be held harmless for anything that occurs. Furthermore, the Authority and city are not required to furnish a lifeguard or supervisory personnel at the lake.

Cleveland advised that FAA approval had been received allowing the sale of the airport's utilities, including electric lines, phone lines and other facilities to private groups.

City Commission is expected to act on approving the sale of the utilities at Monday's meeting since the city is the owner of the airport, but has instituted an independent Agency to operate and maintain it from revenues garnered by leases of former Navy barracks.

Displaying the nonchalance he had maintained throughout his trial, Peter Owens calmly received the verdict of a six-man jury of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Defense Attorney Gordon Frederick requested that the court withhold adjudication and order a presentence investigation. He further requested that the defendant be allowed to remain on bond pending motions for a new trial.

The court granted the former motion, but remanded the convicted man to custody.

The jury deliberated only two hours before announcing that it had reached a verdict. They returned once to question the charge regarding second degree murder and manslaughter.

Frederick, in his summation, contended that accidental shooting is an exception to the prin-

Road Program Adopted By County Commissioners

By LARRY NEELY
A $150,000 county road program was adopted unanimously by the Seminole County Commission Tuesday night. The program in the program include eight for paving and six on resurfacing roads in the county system.

Also included in the program is $12,000 for sidewalk construction on Pinecrest, Eastbrook and Oxford.

Councilman Winton Hurt reported to council the fire department has requested use of the newly installed utility building. The consensus was to grant this request since the village is not utilizing all of the space for its equipment.

Councilman Charles Kelley said the Planning and Zoning Board had recommended rezoning in the development of the village. However, no action was taken.

Announcement was made that Harry Brown, Winter Park, had been appointed as an auxiliary lieutenant in the village police department.

Piland expressed concern that Police Chief Walter Batchelor was not present at the beginning of council meetings, saying he believes it is important the chief be on hand for all the council business. It was pointed out Chief Batchelor is attending a police school but Piland refused to consider this reason, citing that the chief should arrange his schooling for a night other than council meetings.

Schools Are Stymied By A New State Law

A new state law pertaining to married and/or pregnant students has forced the Seminole County School Board to change its present policy making it mandatory to drop out of regular high schools and attend adult school.

Stenstrom affirmed the law is clear students have the right to attend school but the burden would be upon the petitioner to prove in court that equal education was not available at the adult school.

Ivan Bowers, administrative official, asked Stenstrom, "We have two girls under 16 and both are pregnant. What do I tell persons who ask me why they are not in school?"

The attorney replied the state law says a pregnant girl does not have to attend school and is assumed to be an adult.

Andrew Bracken, administrative aide, said the policy would be re-worked and brought back later to the board for passage.

Casselberry Airs Licenses Monday

By KATHY NIBLACK
CASSELBERRY — The controversial occupational ordinance is coming closer and closer to being adopted and becoming a law in the city. A public hearing will be held on this ordinance on Monday at 7 p.m. in city hall. At that time, the council will hear those in favor or opposed to the ordinance.

According to the proposal, a license is required for "every person exercising the privilege of carrying on or engaging in a business in the city." Exempt from fees but still required to obtain a license are non-profit organizations and disabled veterans with more than 50 per cent service connected disability.

Fees for other licenses are set up as follows: Retail merchants, manufacturers, subcontractors are charged according to the number of employees they have: For five employees or less, $25; for six-10 employees, $50; for 11-25 employees, $10, and for over 25 employees, $200.

Other businesses are listed specifically, and include: Abstract title company, $50; advertising agency, $50; agency of administrative office, $50; aircraft agency, flying lessons, $50; ambulance service, $50; bowling alley, $50; billiards, pool, $50. Also included are: golf course, regulation, 18-hole, $100; golf course, par 3 and nine-hole, $75; golf driving range, $50; golf, miniature course, $30; theater, indoor motion picture, $100; theater, outdoor motion picture, $100; animal hospital, $50; animal kennel, $50; armored car service, $50; auctioneer, resident, general merchandise, $50; auction house, shop, $250.

'Fire Prevention Week' Highlights Annexation

Sometimes there comes about a coincidence which calls attention by public decree of factors which may appear to be very distant relatives and turn out to be "kissin' cousins."

Fire departments must assume protection responsibilities become ill-defined. Here in Sanford we are especially proud of the fire department, under the leadership of Fire Chief G. Manning Harriett, for its continual accent on fire prevention.

larger municipally operated and funded fire departments in Seminole is doing. There are others, of course. Some are of a purely volunteer nature. This sort of haphazard design to cope with the disaster of fire has been able to do so in the past few years. It is highly questionable if it can do so in the next decade when the explosion of population and new industries, new businesses and new enterprises will change the character of Seminole County.

"Cannikin" Test

The Defense Department has concluded that a test of the nuclear warhead for our Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system is vital to the national defense. The Atomic Energy Commission has concluded that a chamber 6,000 feet underground on a remote island in the Aleutians is a safe place to test it.

TRAK TALK

with George Crossley

The United States Grand Prix was won by Francois Cevert. The 27-year-old Frenchman is the teammate of Jackie Stewart who is this year's world champion in Formula-1. Both drivers race Tyrrell Fords.

Cevert was first, Switzerland's Jo Siffert was second, Swedens Ronnie Peterson was third, New Zealand's Howden Ganley was fourth and Stewart was fifth.

Francis Cevert averaged 115.002 miles per hour over the length of the 199 mile race. The U.S. Grand Prix has become the richest of all the Formula-1 races held around the world.

Well, that closes out the season for Formula-1 racers. Formula-1 racing is always close, always bitterly contested, and with the exception to Can-Am racing, the best racing I've ever witnessed. I can only hope that I will have an opportunity to see another Formula-1 race in the fairly near future.

Mario Andretti will be testing a turbo-charged Ferrari for Indianapolis and championship car competition on the U.S. Auto Club circuit next year. It certainly is an outstanding idea and will add more luster to the fabulous U.S. Auto Club series.

Some thoughts on Lakeland International Raceway. As was reported earlier in the week, there have been some problems at the racing facility. When the management of the track learns how to do several things, one, come up with a schedule they will live by; and two, try to treat the fans and readers out there. They're going to have to do a lot of things that they don't want to do.

Art Arons told me this past weekend that since my first ride with him he's taken a half a dozen people on rides in his jet car. Among them was his 16-year-old son, Tim, who told me he got a real charge out of it. Interestingly enough and not surprisingly, two riders who went with Arons were professional dragster drivers. It appears I was the only member of the press anywhere in the country who agreed to ride with Art. Everybody else was either a racer, spectator, or relative. Come on, fellas, where's your spirit.

I'm hopeful that Art will get that another attempt next year. Of course, as I reported earlier this week, it will be with another driver as Art is retiring from driving after this year. However, Art will continue to build cars even though he won't be driving these fantastic machines he's been building now for more than 17 years.

Art told me that the car which, in his opinion, is his favorite, was the first car in the late 1950's in which Art traveled over 150 miles an hour. This car, powered by an Allison piston engine, a 3500 hp, was a single-seater, hard to handle, and all over the track. But Art maintains it is still his favorite and that the biggest event of his life was not breaking the world land speed record at Bonneville, but traveling at over 150 miles an hour through the quarter-mile in his car.

Another interesting point, that I'll never forget, is that machine that Art's been driving, when driven at sea level this engine in actual horsepower translates one to one, or 17,500 hp. Can you imagine, friends, what it would be like driving a 17,500 horsepower car? It's a pity that we won't see Art racing next year, but I'll certainly be happy to see Bob Moats or any of the other drivers at a local drag strip trying down the quarter mile.

There is a distinct possibility that a new drag racing facility will be built in the Central Florida area and that this facility will be under professional association supervision. After my experience with IHRA I hope that it will be either the American Hot Rod Association or National Hot Rod Association. In any case, there is a prime need for another drag racing facility in Central Florida and I think it will fit right into the program. Look forward to hearing more on this in the near future from me. You might say I have an inside track with the people who are going to be running the facility.

Don't Look Now, But Stores Are "Peeking"

By TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK (NEA) — One day this summer a New Jersey schoolteacher named Judy McBrair was shopping for a swimsuit in a large suburban department store. She found the suit she liked, notified the clerk, and took it into a fitting room to try for size. Halfway through the procedure, she heard something. She stopped dressing. Looked around the tiny room. And from a hole in the wall, she saw a face watching her. Shocked and outraged, Miss McBrair demanded to know what was going on. She was told, matter of factly, that store employees routinely observe the fitting rooms, that some rooms are observed by full-time guards and that she needn't fret, however, because the store only employed female peepers in female fitting rooms. Miss McBrair didn't appreciate the explanation. And neither have many other department store customers (in New York and other cities) who've suffered similar experiences. Peeping security is unknown to the general public. And it comes as a wet slap to those who learn of it. One male shop-

Island's 200-Year Secret Soon May Bare Treasures

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — For 200 years, Oak Island has kept its secret. But now, a group of businessmen believe they are coming to the end of a long search and, when it's over, they hope the 128-acre island will have secrets no longer.

For the past seven years, David Tobias and 21 colleagues who form Triton Alliance Ltd. have been searching the island for what may be a communal bank full of jewels or money hidden by pirates. "It might be King Tut's tomb of North America or it might be nothing," says Tobias.

The businessmen have already spent $500,000 on the hunt and Tobias says they can afford it. Among them are company presidents and bank owners. Tobias himself owns Data Pressing Products and Packaging Co. of Montreal.

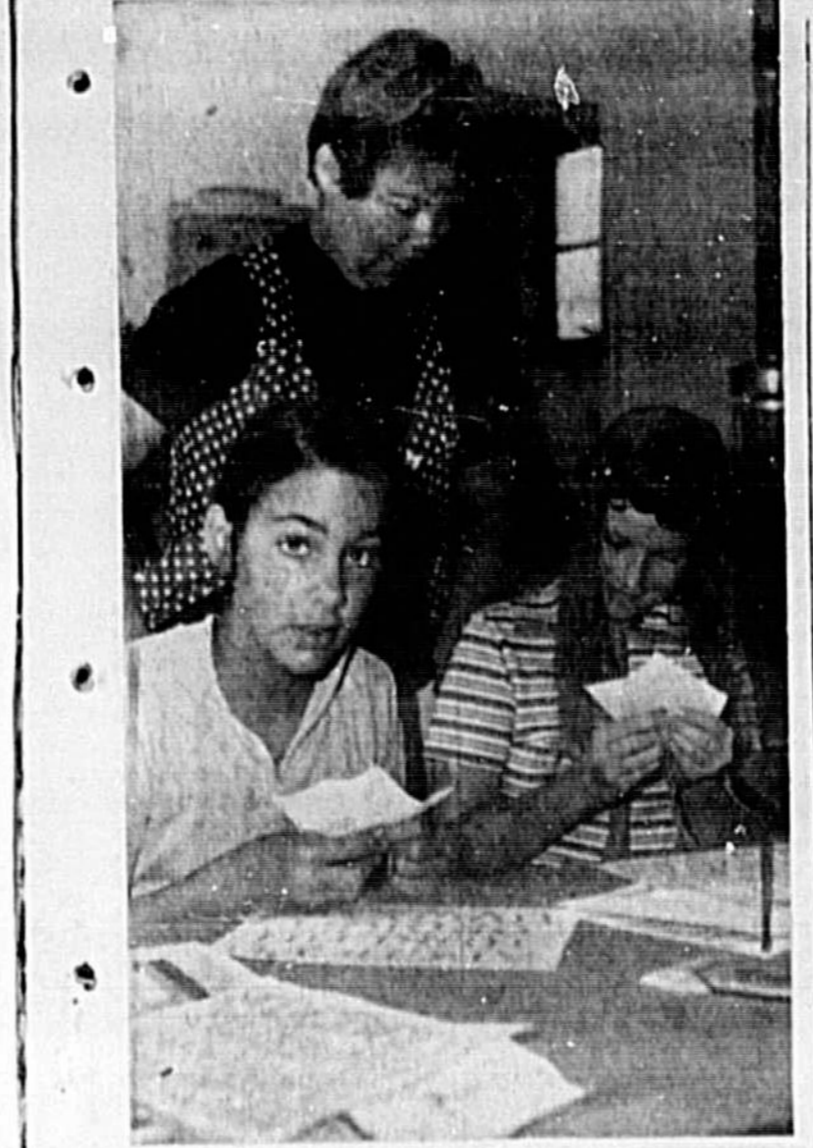

The story began in the 1700s when England, France and Spain outlawed piracy and tried to pardon all pirates who handed over their treasures to their respective rulers—or face execution.

Many pirates handed in about 20 per cent of their wealth and buried the rest, hoping to come back for it a few years later. Groups of pirates dug huge shafts from which each wanted out his own tunnel to his treasure. The main shaft was filled with water and the only person who knew the whereabouts of each treasure determined is that few stores will admit the practice. A spokesman for Sears says: "We don't do it and we wouldn't like to be mentioned in any story about it." A man from Montgomery Wards says: "We do it but we don't check it out and later says: 'No, we never have.'"

Auditions Held For Performers

FERN PARK — An audition was held at the Kip Watson Dance Studio for students interested in belonging to the "Performing Arts Company of Florida." The audition was conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Kip Watson in tap and jazz and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Riggin in ballet and voice. The students were also auditioned in pantomime. The judges were Rick Martiano, entertainer and composer presently appearing at Monte's; Joanne Stebbins, dance teacher and president of Danch Masters of Florida; Joni Measler, dance teacher, owner of her own school in Gainesville; and Jack Dunsathan, businessman and photographer, president of Rabbit Productions. The company will be appearing in the Dec. 4 production "Celebration '71" at the Orlando Municipal Auditorium produced by Rabbit Productions and the annual Kip Watson Christmas Party for parents and students held Dec. 20 at the Winter Park High School Auditorium. The goals of the company are to offer an outlet for the performer and help them find their own dance medium, at the same time provide a performing arts group for the community.

Newsman Visits 50 Communes

By JOY STILEY
NEW YORK (AP) — "Communes are pointing the way to the kind of society we are going to be forced to adopt," declares Robert Houriet, who spent a year visiting 50 communal experiments over the country to learn why more and more Americans are choosing this life style. The former newspaper man began his 10,000-mile odyssey after leaving his newspaper job in protest. He supported the right of one of his reporters to wear his hair against the publisher's wishes. Skeptical and cynical at the start, Houriet found his own commitment to the movement "sort of snuck up" on him. The title of the book he has written about his experience, "Getting Back Together," refers to going back in time as well as getting back to the land, he explains. "Communes resemble 1871 more than 1971 and there is a lot to be said for the way people lived in 1871," says the 33-year-old author whose house in Vermont has no electricity. "We shouldn't forget all technology, but we should first go back and then go forward and take the right route this time. I have a feeling that civilization got off the major road and got on a detour that's going of a cliff." The lanky, bearded Houriet found the common denominator of all the places he visited was a belief that the land and nature was the basis for a good society—a conviction he shares. "When we destroy our natural environment we not only befoul our nest, but we also un-

Parochial System Folds School Closing Raises Dollar Problems

By KEN HUDSON
Copley News Service
PUEBLO, Colo. — Public schools opened in this steel-making town of 100,000 this month with 2,713 more pupils than a year ago. Closure of the entire Roman Catholic parochial school system after a century of education accounted for the additional students being shoehorned into the public school system. Pueblo's Catholic schools shut their doors because of the same reason as other cities, such as Detroit and Philadelphia, are closing numbers of church schools — but enough most of the students waiting to attend. The closing of the entire parochial school system here in Pueblo raised a controversy in itself — together with some questions from Catholics as to whether it was even necessary. Public school teachers and students felt the impact immediately, with as many as 47 and 48 children in some classes, far more than expected. Pueblo's property owners won't feel the effect on their pocketbooks for a year and a half. Then they are going to face a tax increase, public school officials say. The tax outlook a year and half hence is going to be a fearsome one, said Dr. Lee Williamson, superintendent of the city public schools. And that 18-month delay in letting the citizens feel the full effects of church school closings is part of a national public school relations attempt to convince the people that the nation's five million parochial school children can be absorbed easily and inexpensively, according to the Rev. Joseph J. Behr, who has been superintendent of Roman Catholic schools here for the last 10 years. He predicts that Pueblo is the first of a series of Catholic school systems throughout the country that will be closed immediately — within a year. "Oh, some of the big dioceses can last a little longer than others, but it's just a matter of time," said Father Behr.

'Beat The Calendar' Army Is Pushing Enlistments

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — With less than 22 months to go, the U. S. Army is making some progress in its drive for increased enlistments, but whether it can "beat the calendar" and reach the President's goal of an all-volunteer force by June 30, 1973, rests largely with the American people and their leaders.

This is the appraisal of Col. Robert M. Montague Jr., a special assistant to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, chief of staff, at the volunteer Army effort.

"Whether we reach our objective will depend a lot on the war in Vietnam, support from Congress and what we do in the Army," he said. "But, most of all, it will depend on public attitudes toward the military and the support the program gets from the people."

Montague, who finished No. 1 in his class at West Point in 1947 and has been selected for promotion to brigadier general, made a plea for a "fair shake" from the communications media.

He had sharp criticism for some newspapers and television commentators over their treatment of the military.

The reader and viewer could get the idea that the Army is full of drug addicts, dissenters and racial animosities, he said. "While Montague blamed television particularly for an anti-military bias, he said the medium is the most cost-effective way to advertise for recruits."

"When we were running our last March through June 15, we got an average of 1,000 telephone calls a day in response to it. (The number was listed on the commercial).

"All last week, though public service spots (at no cost to the Army) we had a total of 100 calls. That's less than one 1/100th of the impact of the paid advertising campaign. And the week before that, we had only 60 calls."

Meat Storage

How long can you store fresh meats and poultry in your refrigerator? U.S.-D.A. Consumer and Marketing Service recommends that you not exceed the following amounts of storage time:

Steaks and all types of roasts: 3 to 5 days.
Ground and stew meat, sausage, and poultry products: 1 to 2 days.

Unhappily, he continued, "Things seem to be going in the opposite direction."

He made it plain he did not believe that higher pay alone would bring about an all-volunteer Army.

"If we have to depend entirely on money, then it would really be a mercenary Army," he asserted. "That's not the kind of Army I want to be a part of and not the kind of Army the country needs."

The Army is undergoing the most rapid demobilization since the end of World War II. It has been cut from 1.5 million men in 1969 to just under 1.1 million as of July 31 and will drop to 942,000 or lower by next June 30. This is a reduction of almost 40 per cent.

But the exercise has not ended. With continual increases in pay—to make up for years of neglect—it takes as much money today to support 550,000 men as it did to pay one million in 1964.

"The Army is figuring on a total force of somewhere around 800,000 men," Montague said. "This will require 200,000 enlistments a year, for an all-volunteer outfit. You see, we want a dynamic young Army, a stopping point on most soldiers' careers.

Propane Being Used As Sub For Gasoline

By JEFF CUSHING
Copley News Service

You're driving down the highway and you notice your fuel gauge bumping the empty mark. You pull into a gas station and around to the side of the building and up beside a huge above-ground tank.

"Fill 'er up," you tell the attendant. He opens your trunk, plugs in a hose to a strange-looking coupling device attached to a cylindrical tank sitting on the trunk shelf. In two minutes the tank is full and you're ready to roll.

You have just filled up on Liquefied Petroleum Gas (LPG). For bread, too. For 95¢ a gallon compared to 36.9¢ for regular gas at the front pump. But there are other things as well. Because of its clean burn in properties, spark plugs will last you 30,000 miles. Because there is no oil dilution, you'll only change your oil every 9,000 miles or so.

And as you travel down the road, your tail pipe is exhausting gases that will not only meet 1974 federal emission standards, but with slight engine modifications and the addition of a catalytic muffler, standards for 1980 as well.

Gasoline-powered internal combustion engines have a long enough time meeting current emission standards, and that is with the incorporation of complicated power-robbing anti-pollution devices. LPG-fueled engines have no such devices except for a PVC valve that vents internal gases back into the carburetor.

The use of propane to fuel the internal combustion engine is nothing new. For years it has been used to run standing generators and pumps and in-warehouse forklifts and tractor vehicles. It has even been adapted to large trucks and construction equipment.

The main drawing card in the propane was low engine maintenance and low engine life. There is no carboning to worry about, thus spark plugs are not needed because of its dilution as there is with gasoline.

Now there is new emphasis on propane because of its low pollution levels. And it is favored over other gases because of its low power loss characteristics.
