It's Full Steam Ahead For Coal-Fired Plant

ORLANDO (UPI) — Plans for construction later this year of a coal-fired power plant that will be heavily opposed by environmentalists.

The Sierra Club, an environmental group, has charged in one lawsuit that the plant is not needed and will be a net drain on natural habitat in the Orlando area.

William Hill is chairman of the authority of the commission to issue $700 million in bonds to pay for construction of the plant.

Sex Offenders Restricted

TAMPA (UPI) — The state Department of Corrections is tightening restrictions in its work release program in the wake of recent arrests of two prisoners on sex-related charges.

The Tampa Tribune reported today the department has recalled a handful of sex offenders from community work release centers in the state.

Study: No Link Between Vasectomy, Heart Disease

BOSTON (UPI) — Men who have had vasectomies run no greater risk of getting heart disease than men who have not been sterilized, British doctors say.

Two studies at the University of Oxford, England, of 6,300 medical records found that men who had undergone a vasectomy had no more strokes, heart attacks or hypertension than men who had not.

There was no evidence of an increased risk of cardiovascular disease associated with vasectomy, researchers said.

The studies, published in the New England Journal of Medicine Wednesday, laid to rest fears dating to 1978 when a Science magazine article reported vasectomies increased the risk of heart attacks.

Atherosclerosis is caused by a diet high in animal and saturated fats that interferes with blood flow to the heart.

One study of 1,794 Scottish men who had the operation — in which the tubes that leads from the testes are severed — found that 6 1/2 years after the operation the men had no more heart disease than men who had undergone other types of minor surgery.

"In all, there is no consistent evidence from our studies to support the suggestion that vasectomy predisposes young men to cardiovascular disease in the short term," researchers said.

A second study conducted in Oxford found 2.4 percent of 1,512 men who had hypertension or had a stroke or heart attack had a vasectomy, while 2 1/2 percent

It's Smooth Sailing For '84 Golden Age Games

With preparations for the ninth annual Golden Age Games well underway, the Games' executive committee has held its last meeting until September.

Committee Chairman Jim Jernigan told the group that the 1,000 embroidered patches produced by the Golden Age Centers group have been ordered and should be delivered in May. The patches will be sold during the senior citizens competition to be held in Sanford Nov. 7-12.

A copy of the entry form and schedule for this year's Golden Age Games is available at the committee prior to going to the printer.

Virginia Longwell, executive assistant of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors the Golden Age Games, written asked for suggestions for a slogan to be placed on the bumper sticker.

Ernie Horrell, who along with his wife, Chae, will be in charge of the golf tournament this year, requested that the American Red Cross Central Florida Chapter provide the committee members with information of CPR (Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation) and set up training sessions so that there will be someone at each Games event trained in CPR to handle an emergency.

Jernigan said the honorary chairman for the first year will be the grand marshal for the opening parade will not be named until the fall.

Malathon Leak Fixed

ST. AUGUSTINE (UPI) — A leaking 25-gallon drum of 90 percent strength malathion, discovered on an abandoned property five miles from downtown St. Augustine, no longer poses a health hazard, authorities said Wednesday.

"The immediate danger is over. The leaking has been contained," said Mike Pflaumstein, director of the state Department of Environmental Regulation office in Jacksonville, told UPI.

The highly-concentrated malathion, which is lethal in absorption through the skin, he said.

The leaking drum, which was reported to the St. Augustine fire department by an anonymous caller, was deposited by volunteer firefighters wearing protective breathing equipment and acid resistant clothing, into a large recovery container, Pflaumstein said.

An expert from the federal Environmental Protection Agency's emergency response team was reportedly on his way to the scene.

Commemoration: Cynical Ceremony

The Polish government has undertaken an especially cynical attempt to improve its deservedly tarnished image by commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in April.

The heroic resistance of Warsaw Jews to deportation and extermination during the Warsaw Ghetto War is still the classic symbol of the Jewish people's recent display by members of the Solidarity movement. The government, which has been ousted by the Polish government.

Moreover, martial law and other repressive measures under the government's control to crush Solidarity prove the current Polish officials have far more in common with the Nazis than with the Warsaw Ghetto fighters who were fighting off German soldiers for three weeks.

The Polish government's plans to memorialize the ghetto revolt are particularly curious in view of the government's history of anti-semitism. A number of Polish Communist Party officials still in office participated in the 1968 anti-semitic campaign that forced thousands of Polish Jews to flee. And, when martial law was imposed in 1981, official government statements attacking Solidarity combined pragmatic and anti-semitic rhetoric.

Fortunately, it appears Warsaw's hypocritical effort to boost its international standing will not mean many individuals' lives. The 5,000 Jews invited from abroad to attend the anniversary commemoration have declined. Marek Edelman, the only survivor of the uprising who still lives in Poland, also refused an invitation.

The 61-year-old Edelman, whose fervor for Poland has not wavered since 1945, has been accurately criticized by the Polish government for attempting to manipulate the memory of the uprising.

Indeed, the spirit of Solidarity that still burns in Poland does far more to honor the memory of the Warsaw Ghetto revolt than any cynical ceremony staged by a repressive government for its own benefit.

Oil Opportunity

The Arab oil embargo of 1973-74 made the case for establishing a national strategic reserve of oil for emergency. The Strategic Petroleum Reserve is simple enough in concept, but few federal programs have been so plagued with maladministration and disputes over policy.

After Congress authorized the SPR in 1975, the start of stockpiling was delayed for three years by administrative scandals and engineering problems in the preparation of underground salt domes in Texas and Louisiana to serve as reservoirs for the oil. No sooner did oil begin to flow into the reserve than the Iranian revolution created a supply shortage and purchases were suspended until late in 1980.

The Reagan administration has kept oil flowing into the reserve and it now holds about 300 million barrels. That's a 70-day supply, which is comforting but well below the goal of 750 million barrels.

Now, the administration is backing off. It has reduced purchases this year from 300,000 barrels a day to 220,000 barrels a day and proposes to cut them to 145,000 barrels a day in 1984. The reason is to save money in federal budgets with budget deficits.

The administration should try to find an equivalent savings elsewhere in the budget and maintain a high rate of oil purchases for the SPR. If anything, the government should take advantage of the current slump in prices to step up stockpiling. Sooner or later the current market slump will disappear and prices will be on the rise again.

The opportunity may never be better for putting oil into a salt dome than at the moment. The Strategic Petroleum Reserve makes a poor candidate for spending cuts at this time.

WASHINGTON — The Mafia does not like being chucked with federal agents. A jealous feud between two federal agencies over harassment of the Mafia jeopardizes the government's battle against labor racketeering. Here's the story.

The Justice Department is being especially tough on the Mafia. The Department's special agent in charge of the law-enforcement powers FBI says it has "a high priority" in cracking down on Mafia activities. FBI agents carry firearms, make arrests and execute warrants.

The Department officials don't want to give the impression that they're harassing the Mafia. They're not. They're arguing, essentially, that things have been working out fine. Mafia racketeering activities are being kept in situations where they need good and arrest authority, they say, all they need is a salt dome.

Stock, abandoned or left — the three categories under which police list property which has come into their possession. And the items which people lose, abandon or fail to claim, are as myriad as the owners themselves.

Scrivener County Sheriff's Department, which has been around a long time, and acted as temporary guardian for all kinds of property without owners, has come up with some pretty strange lost items which it is auctioning Saturday at 10 a.m. at the sheriff's office parking lot, Sanford Plaza.

No one quite knows how they arrived at the auction. Some of the items include: a top, two size 12 maternity tops, eight size 14, one size 16 maternity top and one size 18. And there are two empty 38-caliber shells.

And if you are interested, the maternity tops are $100. The shells are $200. Jewelry boxes — of course, empty of their treasured possessions — make a book with the title "The Third Turn" by they are in disarray awaiting the auctioneer's hammer.

Exposing Corporate Lobbying

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A little-noticed initiative undertaken by a New York-based religious organization could have far-reaching implications for the future of corporate lobbying here in Washington.

The American Jewish Congress is seeking to require 23 of the nation's largest companies to disclose the nature of their lobbying during a period of foreign policy dispute which involved both Congress and the White House.

At issue is President Reagan's controversial 1981 proposal to sell Saudi Arabia $8.5 billion in arms and other foreign policy dispute which involved both Congress and the White House.

At issue is President Reagan's controversial 1981 proposal to sell Saudi Arabia $8.5 billion in arms and other foreign policy dispute which involved both Congress and the White House.

After an unusually bitter and protracted public debate, the Senate voted 52-47 to endorse the AWACS sale, thus rejecting the position embraced by all of the country's leading Jewish organizations including AJC.

Later last year, AJC developed an innovative strategy to reveal widespread but unconfirmed reports that the White House had enlisted a substantial number of major corporate lobbyists to lobby Congress on behalf of the AWACS sale.

AJC then recruited individuals who were sympathetic to AJC's position on the AWACS issue and who held sizable amounts of stock in 23 of the companies. They submitted to those firms shareholder resolutions calling for disclosure of lobbying expenditures and activities.

AJC gave the corporations the choice of agreeing to a stockholder resolution or resolutions at the companies' annual meetings, usually held in the spring, or providing the information in a confidential report distributed to stockholders. Resolutions to accept either course were overwhelmingly AJC-wanted, would lead to a civil suit in federal court which would seek to force AJC to sue.

Nine of the firms sought to have the Securities and Exchange Commission rule that the resolutions were invalid grounds that they were improper, but the SEC refused to draw into the conflict and decided it had no role on the issue.

According to Will Madaw, AJC's general counsel, the companies have agreed to submit the resolution to the SEC's order. 10 have agreed to provide the information voluntarily and two others have not yet decided what they will do.

What is desperately needed is a major overhaul of the almost totally ineffective federal law supposedly requiring disclosure of lobbying activities. Congress has been notoriously resistant to such legislation.

The common or garden car radio or cassette — and are plenty of those in the auction — are interesting when one hears of a bait bucket being put up for auction. Where is the bait? Perhaps a disappointed fabricator then it away in the hands of an honest client.

What about a set of drum sticks? No drums with them — but perhaps you could put up a tune on an upright bass bucket.

Seven empty picture frames holding only phantom memories also go under the hammer as does a tapestry of the Lord's Supper. Where are the owners now and do they miss their once treasured property?

There is no fewer than eight motorcycle helmets going on sale. There must be an awful lot of light-headed motorcycle riders wanting what has happened to their helmets.

And if anyone should feel a need in the Florida suburbs here, an ice cream and snow brick combination — obviously thrown away by a Northern visitor who tried the snow and ice for surmise — is there is one listed under No. 140. It is not expected to command a high price.

Compromise is Survival

By Arnold Bevilak
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cliché about politics is that it is "the art of the possible." The trick for politicians who practice that art is to make it appear as if they have accomplished the impossible.

Ronald Reagan demonstrated on both the oil bill and the Social Security reform legislation that he understands the art of the possible. He also showed that he can make a deal he has cut with his opponents but the public is closer to 7 percent.

The oil bill and the Social Security legislation carried the president and last year were unobtainable.

But when Congress passed both bills, Reagan's critics were surprised. Above partnership and demagoguery and declared that his promise to protect the needs had been fulfilled. Against all odds, it seemed, the president had come through with his word.

The plan truth is that both bills had elements distasteful to Reagan and his Democratic opponents, but neither side would pass the kind of legislation it preferred.

Compromise was rising. Social Security was headed toward deficit, and the 1982 stimulus gave an unusual amount of money to either side. It looked like a continued showdown would only make things worse for the public in 1983 and the politicians in 1984, so the politicians compromised.

But the public has to be on the budget. With the focus on defense spending, the president wants to increase it about 10 percent. The Democrats in control of the House passed a budget with an increase of 4 percent.

The Senate budget committee is said to be thinking about the reduction of 12 percent for defense.

If the difference were split, the result would be a 5.5 percent. But it will be no surprise if the final figure is closer to 7 percent.

That does not mean that the president will have had the better of his foes. The Democrats budget plan to reduce the $200 billion-plus tax. The president also is said to be thinking about the reduction of 12 percent for defense.

But there still might be room for compromise. The tax cut is due July 1, and a considerable kick could be made in the deficit by delaying it until, say, 1984.

The president might be able to save the 1983 tax cut by agreeing to postpone the elimination of "deficit creep" from scheduled for 1985, if deficits still are running high.

Wynn's Showdown Snaps Seminole Losing Streak

Tribe Left-Hander Fans In 4-1 Win Over Silver Hawks

William Wynn put on an impressive display of power Wednesday night at Sanford Memorial Stadium. The junior southpaw hurled a two-hitter and cracked a grand slam home run to help the Seminole High's Fighting Seminoles squeak a five-game losing streak with a 4-1 victory over Lake Howell's Silver Hawks.

Wynn's performance was completely opposite of the last time the team met. In their last meeting, Lake Howell's Silver Hawks won 10-16. This time, though, it was a pitchers' duel between Wynn and Lake Howell's big right-hander Jim Daniels.

"Wynn did the job," said Seminole coach Bobby Langford. "That's the first time all year we've gotten a pitcher's duel between Wynn and Lake Howell's big right-hander Jim Daniels."

Wynn started off in first fashion as he attacked Jim Daniels. Daniels allowed seven hits, struck out two and walked one.

Lake Howell struck first, scoring its only run in the second inning. With one out, John Canfield drew a walk. Canfield then hit a sacrifice fly. Wynn worked up a move to first strike out on the night and the Silver Hawks were out.

Wynn and Daniel continued to battle through the opposing lineup. Wynn struck out 10 of Lake Howell's last 17 batters in the game. Daniels retired seven straight and had a walkover game into the bottom of the fifth when Wynn struck out on an error.

Russel hit a grounder in third that Van Golenom couldn't handle. Golenom deflected the ball to second base. Russel tried to move to first, allowing Russel to scamper to second base. Kevin Smith then grounded to second to move Russel to third with one out in the fourth. Greg Carter tied a single to drive in Russel and deadlock the game at 1-1.

by reserve centerfielder Tom Brantley. Wynn was standing on second base when he hit lead Russel tucked on an insurance run as he struck an RBI single to give the Tribe a 4-1 lead.

"That play was the turning point," said Langford. "Wynn hit the ball pretty well, but I think (RBI) Lang might have caught the ball."

Lang, the Hawks' talented junior centerfielder, had been ejected by Wynn in order to see how an opponent would react to getting a three-strike call in the sixth inning.

Bucs Top Lyman; Gross 3-Hits Creek
The Greyhounds' setback dealt a severe blow to its conference chances as they now trail 9-3

Applha by one game. Lyman must face Mark "Perfect Game" Cochran Friday night at home. Cochran is 8-2 for the year.

Lake Brantley, meanwhile, retired 14 batters in five innings. He was out of his second pitcher, Junior Kevin Gross.

Gross allowed just three hits and struck out six as the Patriots came up to top the Hawks in the fourth inning to win the first of six games with two runs in the fourth inning.

Junior Jimmy Robbins reached on an error by the shortstop to start the inning. Marty Coffey singled, but Robbins was out on a double play.

Greg Carter, who was out on a sacrifice fly to chase home the winning run.

Coffey had two hits to pace the winners who improved to 13-7 and 14-10.

Golden Bear hopeful after 8-Year Famine

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — It has been eight years since Jack Nicklaus last won the Masters, but the 39-year-old champion says he doesn't feel he can win again till he says he stops trying.

"I'm hopeful about how I might play this week," the 43-year-old "Golden Bear" said before teeing off today's opening round of the 47th Masters tournament at Augusta National and my game is reasonably good shape."

"I'm sure this year is a long haul," Nicklaus continued. "But my short game is getting good. My putting has been good and I started hitting the ball better in the TPC two weeks ago."

Although Nicklaus hasn't won in Augusta since 1975 — he's been fourth three times — he has been there more than three years since he raised his record total of major championships to 19 by winning the U.S. Open for the fourth time and the British Open for the third. He also won the Colonial Invitational last May.

"I'm sure this year is a long haul," Nicklaus replied. "When I stop playing, then I'll stop trying to win it. I don't want to win it. I've been working very hard on my game, pointing toward the majors, and I'm not playing well. I don't want to win it. White Nicklaus refused to name any one else, others picked two-time champion Tom Watson, who won both the U.S. and British last year, defending champion Craig Stadler and Tom Weir, who has never won but who has been champion or runner-up in the past seven Masters on professional courses.

A field of 124, including 15 foreigners and seven U.S. amateurs, was whittled down to 60 for the first round play at 9 a.m. EST. Stadler had a 115-tee time with Watson at 12:30, Nicklaus at 1:05 and Kite at 1:40.

The weather forecast, calling for a 40 percent chance of thunder on Tuesday, clouded today's opening round could suffer the same fate as last year's, which would up Friday morning because rain

Nicklaus Finds Permanent Place Among Immortals

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — One golf writer at the Masters returned to the press tent from the interview room and cryptically informed a colleague of his that he had just come back from listening to God deliver His usual agony lesson.

Wrote Nicklaus, the 47-year-old man who will be this annually celebrated, 73-year-old blue ribbon event five times, has established himself a permanent place among the true immortals of the game.

With at least 100 victories, eight major titles, 19 major titles, nobody can question his greatness, only when they make him the foreign golfer of all time. I'd have to say they do through for a long time. I felt that distinction belonged to either Bobby Jones or Ben Hogan.

any way as he became the first to do it five times in 1975. To me, though, he simply does seem that hungry anymore. I'm not sure he's ever been that hungry.

Providing everything is going right for him, he's still capable of winning anything as he proved by beating everyone else in the Colonial last May in Fort Worth. Don't ever write off that intense competitive nature of his. A lot of it still is left. But facts are facts and one can't possibly ignore the fact he's 43 years old. Arnold Palmer is 10 years older. You know how many tournaments he has won since he turned 43? Count 'em. One.

Nicklaus admits some of those old feelings he used to experience still surface occasionally. That happens when you get older. This is his 25th Masters and he has no proof recollecting his first one.

"When I first played here, I remember driving down Magnolia Lane," he says, referring to the path leading to the front door of the main clubhouse. "Bobby Jones was my idol and I had butterflies in my stomach. I will get that same feeling when I drive in here. I changed for me."

Jones, who's gone now, was 57 years old the first year Nicklaus participated in the Masters and someone asked him how he could relate to anyone that much older. His answer was that many pictures of Jones were on the wall of the Seaside Country Club in Columbus, Ohio, where Jones won the U.S. Open in 1926, and he couldn't possibly miss meeting them every time he played there.

Speaking of that, Nicklaus left to remembering. You do that more, too, when you get older. He told a story about the time he played in his first U.S. Amateur championship. Nicklaus was only 15 and the first day of the event he did not see other competitors were the only ones to reach the 18th green in two. Jack did it with a driver and a three-wood.

What do you expect? He's 10 years older. Aren't we?

Lake Howell Dedicates Smith Field With Victory

Lake Howell High School dedicated a football field to Eunice L. Smith Wednesday night and dedicated a victory to her memory.

Mrs. Smith, one of Lake Howell's handsomest beauties, died last week after a long illness. She had been a devoted wife and mother and a devoted volunteer in the community.

She was born in 1915 and lived in Lake Howell for most of her life. She was a member of the United Methodist Church and the Lake Howell Community Center.

China Seves Cultural Ties With U.S. Over Tennis Star's Defection

PERKING (UPI) — China severed all pending cultural exchanges with the United States today in retaliation for Washington's decision to grant political asylum to defectors from the amateur star Hu Na.

The decision announced by the official Xinhua news agency plunged Sino-U.S. relations to a new low.

The Chinese government will stop implementing all the remaining areas of cultural exchange with the United States by 1983, said the agency, quoting a statement by China's Ministry of Culture.

The Chinese decision, relayed to senior U.S. Embassy officials, is effective immediately, the agency said.

Affected were at least eight exchanges ranging from art exhibitions to sporting events to scheduled visits by American journalists, Xinhua said.

Commenting on the Chinese move to sever all pending cultural exchanges, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said in a news release.

"We consider it to be an over-reaction from the Chinese side and a most regrettable one."

The embassy spokesman refused to elaborate, saying subsequent statements would have to come from Washington.

Mrs. Hu, 19, who defected last July during a tennis tournament in Santa Clara, Calif., was granted political asylum by the United States Monday.

Reagan Asks For Patience But Offers No New Details

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan chose somewhat hostile surprise to ask Americans for more patience as his economic policies begin to take effect, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said in a news release.

"We are several thousand angry, jarring demonstrators rallied outside a steady rain Wednesday. Reagan stood before a packed Pittsburgh crowd to greet his displaced workers, insisting his program has worked and promising better times ahead."

Reagan said the protesters, many escorted by the steelworkers union, and made only passing reference to them in a speech intended to underscore his respect for Americans thrown out of work by an economy in transition.

"I am anxious to get on with my job," he said. "The economy is getting better, but they don't see their prospects improving."

Who else were no sharp words for his critics across the street, Reagan used the speech to intensify the pressure on critics in Congress who want to restrict his budget priorities.

One of his harshest denunciations yet of the Democratic spending plan passed by the House, Reagan warned Congress against scrapping the 10 percent tax cut increase in 1985.

"I've seen great budget proposals with a number of changes," he said. "I'm not about to let them be plunged into that same mess again."

The message of hope Reagan carried to Pittsburgh was that he was not a "Firm." In emphasizing the employment benefits of high-technology industries, it sounded the demand for Reagan strategy in his Jan. 20 State of the Union address and "happened" in subsequent trips to Chicago and Boston.

"I've never seen a budget proposal with a number of changes," he said. "I'm not about to let them be plunged into that same mess again."

"I've never seen a budget proposal with a number of changes," he said. "I'm not about to let them be plunged into that same mess again."

China's retaliation was announced Tuesday in a political point of view, but with unusual speed. Jugged an extremely bitter protest with the United States over the deflection and warned that U.S. relations with the communist giant would suffer.

Diplomatic sources said U.S. charge d'affaires Charles Freeman and an American consular officer were summoned to the Culture Ministry to receive the decision from Ding Guo, director of the ministry's Bureau of Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries.

This move by the government in P.R.C. is extremely unfriendly to the United States, and is completely unjustly impecable and morally condemnable," Ding said.

China has waited eight months while the United States considered her request, a period marked by uneasy relations between Washington and Peking over continued American military assistance to Taiwan and most recently a dispute over textile exports.

China had contended Mrs. Hu was under pressure to remain in the United States, but that charge was denied Tuesday by the State Department.

"This was a matter handled in accordance with our own laws and procedures dealing with a person who is from our own country, spokesman John Hughes said.

Parents Won't Welcome Daughter's Boyfriend

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 30-year-old divorcee living with my boyfriend. We've bought a house, but my parents are ready for marriage yet. My parents liked "Alan" very much until we started living together. Now he is no longer welcome in my home.

My parents invite me to family gatherings and holiday celebrations. I'm told to leave Alan home. Why, we aren't living together anymore (we live in the same city).

While my sisters bring their boyfriends to meet their relatives, who claim to "love" me, I'm not allowed to bring the man I love and share my life with. It makes no sense at all. Everyone in the family just knows that Alan and I live together!

My parents have never expressed their dislike with open arms, which hurts all the more to see Alan treated like an outcast.

Last Christmas I chose not to see my family at all rather than go without Alan. I hurt my parents, who claim to "love" me, but I'm sure this was my fault.

My parents should I stay away from the man I love? Or go along with a heavy heart?
