The New Auto Train Means Jobs...But For Who?

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Before the Auto Train starts to roll again with tri-weekly trips between Lorton, Va., and Sanford on Oct. 30, Amtrak expects to fill 170 new positions in order to operate it, according to company spokesperson Sue Martin.

But on March 1, 1984, when the daily service from both points is scheduled to begin, a total of 260 employees will be needed, she added.

However, what this will mean to the employment picture in Sanford — former Auto-Train Corp. employees in particular — is not certain. "We have advertised within the company," said Ms. Martin, "and invited existing employees to apply for the positions. Once we have filled some that way, we will be opening the hiring to the outside."

The previous Auto-Train Corp. had approximately 400 employees with two-thirds of them based in Sanford.

Positions will include maintenance, mechanical, station personnel, mechanical and a good portion of them will be on-board service jobs. There will be both male and female Auto Train attendants in the various cars and lounge.

'...It will be a boon to Sanford.'

—Jack Horner

There will be a supervisor chief on board serving from end point to end point in charge of the whole operation and handling any problems that might arise, said Ms. Martin.

Bill Shaw, head of Amtrak operations, and Bernard Fitzgerald, who will be director of the Auto Train operation here, were in Sanford earlier this week to inspect the terminal facilities, according to Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Horner said the chamber is planning several functions to welcome Amtrak Auto Train officials to the city when they arrive to begin operations, including a personality breakfast, which will be open to the public.

Horner said that Fitzgerald, who was formerly assistant vice president of operations for Auto-Train Corp. and still owns a home in Wilson Place, is looking forward to moving back to Sanford. He presently lives in Chicago.

"I'm tickled to death to have them (Auto Train) here. It will be a first class operation," said Horner. "It will be a boon to Sanford and will have a real economic impact. I feel it will start the flow again of tourists, coming through and this time we will be ready for them."

"They're cooperating to make it possible to do a lot of things we were unable to do before," he said. He hopes to use a tram to take the passengers on tours and to the zoo and river cruises on the Star of Sanford cruise boat while their cars are being loaded until departure time at 4:30 p.m.

Marriott Inflight Service expects to again be catering the food as it did for the privately owned Auto-Train Corp., Tom Kessinger, general manager of the food service, confirmed today. However, they will be preparing the food in their Orlando International Airport facilities and not in Sanford as they did before. Kessinger said that Amtrak officials had been down to inspect the Marriott facilities.

Work is now underway in Sanford and Lorton Auto Train facilities in preparation for the reopening. Extensive renovations are being made to the interior of the passenger station here with a new ticket counter and wheelchair facilities for the handicapped, Ms. Martin said. Maintenance facilities are also being upgraded and a storage area for spare parts. A new railroad car washer is being built.

Amtrak expects to make a profit on its overnight Auto Train service between Florida and the Washington suburbs. Amtrak President W. Graham Claytor Jr. said Thursday the new train, which can carry up to 497 people and 264 automobiles, is projected to make a $4 million profit its first year, making it the only profitable long-distance train in the federally subsidized system.

The service is similar to a train operated between Dec. 1, 1971, and April 30, 1981, by the private Auto-Train Corp., which filed for bankruptcy in September, 1980.

The first train on Oct. 30 is all but sold out, Claytor said.

Medical Examiner Post Up In The Air

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The complex and complicated situation whereby Seminole County's medical examiner may or may not be legally functioning under a legal or illegal contractual arrangement with the Seminole County Commission will be dumped in the laps of the state's Medical Examiners Commission in October.

In the meantime, the office, according to a report to the county commission by County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III, will continue to operate as is until the state agency takes action.

And this means that if Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay or his assistant, Dr. Sarah Irgang, are injured in the line of duty, Orange County could be held responsible.

Phil Brown, assistant Orange county administrator, said his bosses aren't happy with the situation, "but it appears there's nothing much we can do about it, except remember. After all, counties should be able to work together."

State Attorney Douglas Cheshire is unhappy about losing services from Orange County and Garay, Seminole's medical examiner for the past 12 years, could end up without a job.

The exact history of the problem is cloudy because few people are still in courthouse offices who were there when the situation began in 1971.

The best explanation came from Dr. Thomas Hegert at a Seminole County Commission workshop meeting earlier this week.

Dr. Hegert is the official medical examiner for state district 9, somewhat composed of Orange, Seminole and Osceola counties. He has performed medical examiner duties since 1955 in Orange and was put on the payroll there in 1970.

The medical examiner districts are usually drawn along judicial circuit lines which should have meant that only Orange and Osceola were in one medical examiner district while Seminole and Brevard should have been in a separate 18th district. But as Dr. Hegert explained, the Brevard medical examiner didn't want to be responsible for Seminole County because 75 miles separate the office in Sanford.

In some sort of cooperative arrangement, Hegert took responsibility for Seminole as well and named Garay his associate for Seminole to give the county its preferred medical examiner.

Hegert provided general supervision to Garay who then named his own assistants and aides. Brown continues the story that a Garay employee was injured on the job and a workers' compensation board began the search for which party would be responsible for the workers compensation payments to the employee.

Brown said the search began with Garay who sent the board on to Seminole County, with which he has the contractual arrangement.

Brown said Seminole sent the search party to Dr. Hegert. Since Hegert is an Orange County employee, Orange ended up having to pay the worker's compensation. Brown said Orange County informed Seminole County more than a year ago that something had to be done to relieve Orange County of liability of this sort.

Brown says that Seminole County ignored the inquiry.

At this point, Brown said if either Garay or his assistant, Dr. Irgang are injured in the line of medical examiner duties, Orange County may be held liable.

James Tesar, administrator of Central Florida Regional Hospital picks up part of the story here. He says the old Seminole Memorial Hospital placed on its payroll the personnel who had worked for the Seminole medical examiner with the exception of Garay and Irgang after the Orange County liability problem developed.

"But Garay and Irgang are private physicians and not hospital employees," Tesar said, and thus are not included under the hospital's liability umbrella.

Insisting on some kind of settlement to the problem, Brown and Hegert met with Seminole County officials this week.

Rose told commissioners they have a choice of three courses of action: continue the current arrangement, contracting services with Garay; contract for services with Hegert and Orange county; or petition the state Medical Examiners Commission to create a new medical examiner district just for Seminole County.

Rose insisted that under the law now, Hegert is responsible for any liability and that would continue at this point.

Rose said the county's current budget shows $123,000 of county money for the medical examiner operation and in the new fiscal year, it is anticipated that the county will spend $132,000 in county money for the service.

County Management and Budget Director Eleanor Anderson corrected, however, by saying the county actually has $100,000 budgeted from county money and $44,000 in state money for the operation.

From the county funds comes a $63,000 payment to Central Florida Regional Hospital for services to the medical examiner support staff and for use of hospital facilities and liability insurance, Mrs. Anderson said.

Rose said that Dr. Hegert and Orange County are offering to do the work for $180,000 per year.

Mrs. Anderson said it would be most cost effective if the county continues using the Sanford hospital facilities and the contractual arrangement with Dr. Garay. She said added to the cost for contracting with Orange County would be the expense of transporting bodies to Hegert's office in Orange County for autopsies.

Meanwhile, Deputy County Attorney Bob McMillan said that the law doesn't provide for Seminole to have a contractual arrangement with Dr. Garay.

Dogs, Cats Seized At Oviedo Kennel In Animal Cruelty Probe

By Charles Cobb
Herald Staff Writer

An Oviedo area kennel had its license revoked Thursday after eight dogs and a kitten were seized at the kennel in an animal cruelty investigation.

Officials who served a search warrant at the Snow Hill Kennels and Plant Farm on County Road 426 found abused and neglected animals living in "deplorable, unbelievable" conditions, said Carol Cook, shelter manager of the Humane Society of Seminole County.

Officials from the Seminole County Animal Control, the Seminole County sheriff's department and the Humane Society searched the kennel, which is owned by Laurian Spankie and is located northeast of Oviedo.

Officials searched her house, kennel area, a barn and three trailers after they received a complaint from a former employee of the kennel.

Barbara Woodall, president of the Humane Society, met with officials at the state attorney's office this morning in an effort to bring animal cruelty charges against Ms. Spankie. Ms. Spankie is already barred from commercially boarding animals due to the revocation of her license, officials said.

Mrs. Cook said all the seized animals are being kept at the Humane Society except for two Doberman pinschers who are being kept by a Casselberry veterinarian.

She said the two Dobermans are in such poor condition they will have to be put to sleep. One is dying of congestive heart failure and the other has badly swollen feet and numerous bloody sores on its body, she said.

Mrs. Cook said Ms. Spankie owned the two Dobermans, and "I can't believe she had her own dogs looking like this. It's deplorable. The dogs are filthy and ungroomed."

Other animals included a malnourished kitten, and three Lhasa apso dogs and two Shih Tzus dogs and all looked "filthy and very neglected," Cook said.

She described general conditions at the kennel as "extremely poor with dirty, unclean dogs."

"We've had numerous complaints about the kennel over the years, but never found much we could do anything about until now," she said.

Mrs. Cook said officials left a number of dogs and a cat at the kennel because they appeared to be healthy. She said that apparently all the animals seized belonged to Ms. Spankie.

Mrs. Spankie could not be reached for comment.

Lawsuit Cardinal Says Copyright Infringed

TAMPA — Cardinal Industries, Inc., a Sanford-based manufacturer of modular housing, charged a St. Petersburg architectural firm, two of its employees and two University of South Florida officials with federal copyright infringement and deceptive trade practices in a suit filed in U.S. District Court.

Cardinal Industries, a Florida corporation with corporate headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, named Anderson Parrish Associates Inc., Steven D. Lange and John A. Anderson, of the firm, and Raymond C. King, director of housing for USF, and Michael H. Patterson, an employee of the university's facilities planning office, as co-defendants.

The five-count suit also charges the defendants with common law trademark infringement and violation of federal and common law unfair competition statutes.

Cardinal Industries filed suit in U.S. District Court in Tampa against two Polk County, Fla., men. The suit charges Paul C. Varner, a Winter Haven builder, and Jack L. Turner, an Auburndale architect, with infringement of Cardinal copyrights in certain architectural drawings, and with related acts of unfair competition.

The latest action stems from plans developed for construction of 300 dormitory rooms for the USF campus in Tampa. According to the suit, Cardinal representatives first met with university representatives in mid-1981 to discuss construction of the buildings and to turn over various copyrighted drawings of the company's modular housing units.

The suit charges that each of the defendants was "aware of the proprietary rights of Cardinal since plans had proper statutory copyright notice affixed..."

In 1982, Anderson Parrish prepared plans, which, according to the complaint, "substantially duplicated the...designs...forming the basis of the copyrighted works of Cardinal."

Cardinal asks the court to award damages based on the copyright infringement and for an order to prevent the defendants from using the drawings for any similar structure and the return of all documents supplied the university by Cardinal.

Austin Guirlinger, Cardinal's founder and president, said his concern about the "enormous potential damage to the company's business reputation" prompted the suit.

"If we didn't diligently press this suit, we would be throwing away the nearly 30 years of work that went into developing Cardinal's modular design," Guirlinger said. "We've worked too hard to get where we are to give away our ideas."

"This should serve as fair warning to Cardinal's competitors that we're prepared to take such steps as necessary to protect our legal rights."

Expelled Student Returning To School

A 15-year-old girl who was expelled from Lake Brantley High School for fighting will be allowed to return to school a year early.

The Seminole County school board voted to permit the pretty, petite teenager to attend classes when the fall term begins Monday.

The board requested that the school principal work out a code of conduct with the girl and school counselors that she must adhere to for a probationary period to be set by the principal.

This plan is to be presented to the board at its next meeting on Sept. 14 for the board's approval.

The brown-haired sophomore was expelled from Lake Brantley High school after she was involved in a fight in a school restroom in which she and five other female students attacked another female student in December of 1982.

The girl was expelled from school for 18 months and if her expulsion had remained in effect she would not have been allowed to reenter school until the fall of 1984.

But Larry B. Vigua, program coordinator for the Seminole County juvenile community arbitration program, recommended in a letter to the school board that the girl be allowed to reenter school this fall.

In other action, the school board approved a bid submitted by the C. A. Oakes Construction Co. of Tampa to build a new roof for the Lyman High School gymnasium for $444,444.

Benny Arnold, assistant superintendent for facilities services, said no Seminole County builders submitted bids for the project.

The board also approved a request that the vandal watcher program be extended to Teague Middle School in Forest City.

This will permit the building maintenance manager at the school to move his mobile home onto the campus and live there permanently and his utility bills will be paid for from school board funds.

In return the maintenance manager agrees to watch out for vandals on school property and to notify authorities if the need arises and to perform other security duties.

The program is already in effect at Lake Mary High School, Lake Brantley High School and Woodlands Elementary School in Longwood.

Arnold, who was an employee of the Putnam County school board before moving to Seminole County, said Putnam had a vandal watcher program at seventy-five percent of its schools and school vandalism there had been virtually eliminated. —Charles Cobb

Reagan Address Designed To Help Him With Women

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Reagan today urged women not only to exercise their power in the voting booth but to also run for public office.

In excerpts from an address Reagan was prepared to deliver to the Republican Women's Leadership forum in San Diego — a speech he labored over for hours Thursday to clear up what the White House calls "misconceptions" about the president's attitude toward women — the president said his administration is working to include more women.

In drafting the speech, Reagan had the help of his daughter, Maureen, who gave interviews to three television networks in which she appeared to admit her father has an image problem with female voters.

White House aides said Reagan's address would be his answer to Barbara Honcger, the Justice Department official who resigned after charging that Reagan's policies to promote equality for women were "a sham."

Phone Strike Unsettled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few local contract disputes held up settlement of the nationwide telephone strike today, but negotiators worked out agreements in key bargaining units in efforts to end the 20-day-old walkout.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. reached an agreement in principle Thursday with the Bell Syfor 72,000 workers in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Representatives of New York Telephone and its striking workers also worked out a tentative accord, as did New England Telephone Co., Michigan Bell and Indiana Bell. Western Bell workers in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas settled earlier.

The local unions will not sign formally until all bargaining units finish negotiations.

Government Secrecy Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a Reagan administration move to plug leaks of classified information, federal employees with access to top-secret material will be asked to get government approval for articles and speeches before publication.

The move implements a March 11 presidential order to tighten procedures for handling secret material by requiring the employees to sign a secrecy pledge.

The Reagan directive, which civil rights groups attacked as a new form of censorship, also requires federal employees to take lie detector tests in leak investigations.

NATIONAL REPORT: Hundred-degree temperatures in the Plains and Southeast closed schools and blacked out a Missouri town. Thousands of drought-stricken Midwestern farmers called for emergency help as the Summer of '83 pushed toward an all-time heat record. Tropical storm Barry fizzled into showers over Florida, robbing Southeasterners of cool relief. Temperatures Thursday hovered near 100 in the Southeast, which baked with four straight days of 100 or higher, but conditions were to remain dry and hot, with readings in the 90s. The mercury hit 101 at Jasper, Ala., 96 at Albany, Ga., and 97 at Crestview and Tallahassee. Readings soared past 100 in the Plains, hitting 105 at Beloit, and 104 at Garden City, Kan. Columbia, Mo., tied a record at 102. The temperature climbed to 102 at Fayette, Mo., just before the town of 4,000 was blacked out. The heat and amount of power produced combined to burn out wires leading from the plant to the switching mechanism. Between the heat and the high demand for electrical power, the wires burned out. Iowa could record its hottest summer ever.

...Medical Examiner Job Up In Air

And Rose, saying he was quoting McMillan, said the situation with Garay is "extra legal, and not anticipated in the law."

County director of health and human services, Dr. Jorge Deju, said after talking with staff of the Medical Examiners Commission he doesn't believe the agency will approve a separate district for Seminole.

Hegert, who talked with the head of the commission, said he sees no problem in the county being designated a separate district.

To further complicate the issue, Dr. Hegert said today that if a new medical examiner district is designed for Seminole County, the governor will appoint the medical examiner for the district, according to law.

And in the interim between the district creation and the gubernatorial appointment of a medical examiner, State Attorney Douglas Cheshire will have the responsibility of appointing an acting medical examiner, Hegert said.

Before the governor makes an appointment, Hegert said the medical examiners commission would seek suggestions from law enforcement and the state attorney's office and then recommend possible appointees to Gov. Bob Graham. Graham would appoint someone from among the recommendations.

Cheshire, however, said if he were to make an interim appointment it would only be with the concurrence of Sheriff John Polk and Seminole-Brevard Public Defender Jim Russo.

But Cheshire is not pleased with the idea of a separate medical examiner district for Seminole.

"We've been pleased to see the services received from Orange County that met law enforcement's needs. It was a better job than Seminole can do as a separate district," Cheshire said. He predicted that a separate district will create a lot of additional bureaucracy.

"Seminole will not be able to piggyback with Orange to provide better services and we will not have the facilities and manpower we are presently enjoying in the medical examiners office," the state attorney said.

He added that the circuit cannot exist without a medical examiner any more than it could exist without a judge.

Cheshire said there is a possibility that Dr. Garay may be named medical examiner of an Independent Seminole County district.

But, Cheshire said, someone has to be found who is medically certifiable and competent and pathologists are not as readily available as other doctors.

"The issue may be discussed with the medical board in Tampa at its October meeting," Cheshire said.

"Since this is a state appointment, it has to come under some guidelines. Our options may be severely limited. We have to go back to square one and reinvent the wheel," Cheshire said.

He also put the Seminole Commission on notice that there is "no way limited funds can be interpreted to mean limited services from a medical examiner. That will not equate," he said. "When Seminole becomes a separate district, there will be no doubt who will be liable."

Israel Agrees On Pullout Delay

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — U.S. officials hope Israel's agreement to briefly delay its partial troop pullback in Lebanon will help prevent further fighting between Lebanese militias that could weaken the government of President Amin Gemayel.

Officials traveling with President Reagan said no firm timetable has been proposed to Israel, but the United States feels more time is needed to end fighting between Lebanese Christian and Druze militias in the Shouf mountains east of Beirut, the area to be vacated by Israeli forces.

"We want some time to get the whole picture into better focus," one senior administration official said Thursday.

Another question the United States must resolve before Israel withdraws is whether the multinational peace-keeping force now deployed in Beirut will expand to provide security in the absence of Israeli forces, U.S. officials said. The multinational force is made up of Italian, French, American and British troops.

In Israel, a spokesman for Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Israel wants its soldiers deployed along a more southerly line in Lebanon by Sept. 7 but would not object to a short delay.

A senior Israeli official said the timing would depend on the success of efforts by U.S. Mideast envoy Robert McFarlane to help get Lebanese army troops deployed in the Shouf area.

Israel Defense Minister Moshe Arens already has agreed to McFarlane's request that Israel keep its troops in the Shouf a few days longer than planned to smooth the Lebanese soldiers' entry into the area.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said it is premature for the United States to decide whether to expand the peace-keeping force as Israeli troops pull back, but acknowledged that McFarlane is discussing the matter with Italian officials in Rome.

Computer's War Shows Soviet Nuke Superiority

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A computerized war game, said to be the most sophisticated of its kind outside the Pentagon, predicts the Soviet Union would win a nuclear war with the United States and result in "mind-boggling" global carnage.

"A few hours spent with this program will demonstrate the stark realities — probable number of dead and wounded, missile losses to enemy strikes, economic disruption," said Dr. Paul Savage, a political science professor at St. Anselm College and one of the authors of the analysis.

"In a sense, it's a chilling thing to watch," Savage said Thursday in a telephone interview. "It's terrible to even use the word 'game' in this context."

Savage, in developing the war program, said the research led to one conclusion: Soviet military superiority. "What we have found quite conclusively is that the Soviet Union has superior nuclear capabilities," he said. "They win on counterforce ... or the window of vulnerability. The Soviet Union does win and does have superior nuclear power."

Savage estimated it would take at least 80 years for the economies of the two nations to recover to any extent.

"By recovery, we mean some basic remnant of economic exchange, a subsistence economy really," he said.

Savage, a retired Army officer with combat duty in World War II and Korea, wrote "Crisis in Command," an Indi-ment of the Army's role in Vietnam. He worked three years with a researcher at a private Cambridge, Mass., think tank, in developing the program.

Outside of the Defense Department, they said there is nothing to compare with the microcomputer program they have developed.

The thermonuclear scenario on microchip is based on their estimates of the actual size, capacities and targeting of the strategic nuclear arsenals of the U.S. and Soviet Union. The program also contains precise demographics on U.S. and Soviet cities.

They based their information on technical manuals, military journals and science magazines — "grisly bookkeeping," Savage said. The program has a high rate of probability, they claim. "What it is is a means to estimate how a thermonuclear war would be conducted," Savage said. "It gives estimates of the dead and dying that I believe is 95 percent accurate."

"There are, for example, almost 700 U.S. and Soviet cities with a population of 350 million targeted by combined nuclear arsenals of 17,965 warheads," he said. "Yes, the carnage from it is mind-boggling."

He admitted the research compiled for the computerized "strategic nuclear war" will be used by both sides in the nuclear argument. He said his interest was not to promote either side, simply to compile and present the facts.

Two Girls Injured In Fern Park Boating Incident

Two persons were injured when a boat struck them after they fell off a hydraslide on a Fern Park lake Wednesday afternoon.

A 16-year-old Fern Park youth was driving a boat which was towing three persons on the hydraslide on Lake of the Woods when they fell off at about 3 p.m., a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The driver of the 16-foot fiberglass Cobia turned his vessel around and approached the three to pick them up and the boat hull accidentally struck two of them, the report said.

Both were treated for cuts to the forehead. Denise Efstathion, 15, of 2303 Fieldingwood, Maitland, was treated at Winter Park Memorial Hospital and released.

Susan Coffin, 15, Castlewood Drive, Casselberry, was treated at Orlando Naval Hospital and released. The third passenger on the hydraslide, Richard Williams, 16, of 248 Summerwood Trail, Maitland, was not hurt.

The driver of the boat was identified as Jack Allen Troy, of 213 Quail Circle, Casselberry.

Sgt. Joe Patton said the accident was apparently caused by the inexperience of the boat driver and no charges have been filed.

TV'S TOLEN

A burglar took property worth over $500 from a Sanford area woman's home between 8:30 a.m. and 4:49 p.m. Thursday.

The haul included a 19-inch color TV, five video tapes, a microwave oven and a home computer.

The thief forced open a rear porch door at the home of Sue Ellen Baird, 32, of Rt. 1, Box 169, Orange Ave.

CAR STOLEN

Someone stole a 24-year-old woman's $13,000 Camaro automobile while she was in a Fern Park beauty parlor between 3:30 p.m. and 5:25 p.m. Wednesday.

Linda Kay Schwartz, of 2633 Dobbin St., Orlando, said she left the keys either inside the car or in the door lock while she was inside the Flaire Beauty Salon, 126 Oxford Road.

The white 1982 Chevrolet Camaro was parked in a parking lot near the beauty parlor.

JEWELRY, PISTOL HEIST

Thieves entered a bathroom window of a Sanford woman's home and removed jewelry, a pistol and camera equipment, worth a total of $650, between 7:30 a.m. and 12:06 p.m. Tuesday.

Betty J. Buchan, 34, of 2401 South Grandview Ave., was the victim.

$9.9 Million Winner Is...

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — State Lottery officials waited today for the winner or winners of a $9.9 million jackpot to come forward and claim the prize, potentially the biggest legal lottery win in the nation's history.

The winning numbers in the "Pick 6" Lotto Game, 13-17-21-27-30-34, were selected Thursday night by the New Jersey State Lottery Commission.

Lottery officials will not know who won the $9.9 million until the winner, or winners, come forward and claim the prize.

Millions of state residents, and some from New York and Pennsylvania, bought tickets during the past two days in hopes of instant fame and fortune at only a dollar a throw.

More than 10,475,000 tickets were bought for this week's drawing, with more than 3.5 million tickets purchased Thursday, a one-day record, state officials said.

Even up to the last minute, 7:55 p.m., people streamed to lottery vendors' windows to choose the six numbers they believed would win the prize.

To win the entire prize, a bettor would have to correctly pick all six numbers.

If one person wins the jackpot, it would be a national record for an individual award. The most money won by one individual in a legal lottery was $8.8 million, awarded July 22 in Pennsylvania.

The pool of $9.9 million was swollen with three weeks worth of prize money because bettors were unable to guess the winning combination.

Ticket agents across the state were swamped Thursday, and lottery computers that record the bets were sluggish because of the volume of tickets processed.

There was no break in the stream of people seeking tickets, despite waits of hours and slim chances of winning — one in 1.9 million.

"They seem determined to stay in line," said Salvatore Pizzo, manager of Liquorama in Camden, as he looked at the 40 people lined up outside his store waiting to buy tickets.

"It's unbelievable. This is the biggest I've ever seen it. Everyone is willing to take the chance for $10 million," said Danny Orenberg, owner of Danny's Bar and Grill in Edison.

A line of people waiting to buy tickets greeted Orenberg when he opened his doors at 6:45 a.m.

WALLET REMOVED
A Longwood woman's wallet, valued at $40, was stolen from her husband's shoe repair shop in the Springs Plaza on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs between 1:10 p.m. and 1:35 p.m. Wednesday.
Mrs. Ted Melettiolis, said the wallet was removed from her purse in a drawer behind the counter in the shop. The wallet also contained a number of credit cards and other papers.

MAILBOX VANISHES
A homemade wooden mailbox, valued at $25, was taken from the front of an Altamonte Springs woman's home between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 5 a.m. Thursday.

Debbie F. Campbell, 26, of 10421 Northwestern St., said the box was designed in the shape of a white house with a red roof.

Survivors include a son, Mr. John G. Matthews, 66, of 2860 Red Bug Road, Casselberry, died Wednesday at Winter Park Memorial Hospital. Born Nov. 29, 1916, in Brooklyn, N.Y., he moved to Casselberry from New York City in 1960. He was a retired certified public accountant and was a Protestant. He was a member of Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants and was a past master of Island City Masonic Lodge, Long Island, N.Y.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Rebels In Nicaragua, El Salvador Suffer Losses

United Press International
Nicaraguan officials say their forces killed 21 U.S.-backed rebels who attacked a northern city, bringing guerrilla deaths to 75 in the past week. El Salvador's army said at least 20 rebels died in a clash at an eastern volcano.

The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry said in a communique Thursday that the Popular Sandinista Army, reservists and militia have taken the offensive against U.S.-backed rebels fighting in the north to overthrow the Marxist-led government.

The communique said 75 rebels have been killed in battles during the past week, while the army reported 10 troops were killed.

In the latest attack, Nicaraguan forces killed 21 U.S.-backed rebels who charged toward Ciudad Sandino Wednesday morning, firing mortar shells and automatic rifles, the ministry said.

The defense ministry said 775 troops, reservists, and militia fought for three hours before repelling the attack on the city, about 120 miles north of Managua.

Walesa, Deputy Argue

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski traded bitter charges in a confrontation at the Lenin Shipyard, blaming each other for Poland's past three years of strikes and strife.

Walesa was cheered repeatedly and Rakowski booed by shipyard workers during a raucous four-hour debate Thursday.

The meeting boosted the spirits of union supporters and set the stage for a planned demonstration next week on the anniversary of the Gdansk strike settlement of 1980. A government official warned any public gathering on that day would be dispersed by police, however.

Walesa pleaded for the outlawed Solidarity union and the Communist government to reconcile their differences and "find solutions together."

Rakowski, who was heckled repeatedly during the session, said Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's regime would never agree to meet with Solidarity or any of its former leaders because of their "anti-Communist hysteria."

Bank Robber Escapes From Brevard County Jail

TITUSVILLE, (UPI) — Authorities are searching for a convicted bank robber who overpowered a correctional officer and escaped from the Brevard County Jail.

Thomas Smith, a native of Trinidad, overpowered officer Raymond Burnett as the two were driving to a Titusville health center late Thursday. Burnett is assigned to the medical department of the jail, and was transporting Smith for medical treatment, said Brevard Sheriff's spokeswoman Maude LePlante.

Smith grabbed the officer's gun, then took him as a hostage in the officer's marked car, said Ms. LePlante. Smith drove the car to Orange County, where he released Burnett unharmed near Orlando.

The officer's gun was recovered, but the marked car — and Smith — were still missing early today.

Smith, who has gone by the aliases of Leon Spalding and Steven Ruben Barnett, was convicted of the armed robbery of a Barnett Bank on Merritt Island in February.

High Court OKs Award

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court has affirmed a $100,000 jury award to a woman blinded in one eye when a man threw a glass at her in a Boynton Beach nightclub's parking lot.

In a 4-1 ruling, the high court concluded that the owners of the Gemini Club should have had a guard posted in the parking lot because of prior incidents. The victim, Pearl Allen, was struck in the left eye by a bar glass thrown by Leroy Allen, who is no relation, on Oct. 1, 1977.

According to court papers, the man grew enraged when his advances were rejected by Miss Allen and her female companion.

Miss Allen won a lawsuit against the club and its insurance company asserting negligence but the 4th District Court of Appeal overturned the verdict on the grounds that the tavernkeepers had had no indication Leroy Allen would become violent.

Explosions Rip Air France Offices

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two explosions an hour apart tore through the Air France offices and the French peacekeeping force headquarters in Beirut today, killing one French soldier. Eight soldiers and two airline employees were wounded in the blasts.

A group calling itself the "Orly Armenian Revolutionary Organization" claimed responsibility for the Beirut explosions and the bombing of the French consulate in West Berlin that killed one person and wounded 23.

A French military spokesman said the explosion that ripped through the Moussayibeh barracks in West Beirut at 3:35 p.m. (9:35) was caused by a fire of unknown origin that accidentally ignited a crate of ammunition as it was being loaded onto a truck.

The spokesman said a French legionaire was killed and eight others wounded in the barracks explosion, which officials described as an accident. Earlier police reports said two soldiers were killed and nine wounded in the blast.

In what police described as a coincidence, a bomb concealed in a package exploded an hour later outside the east Beirut offices of Air France, injuring two employees inside, police said.

In a telephone call to United Press International's London bureau, the Armenian group claimed it used grenades in attacks on the French headquarters, the airline office, and the French consulate in West Berlin.

There was no indication grenades were used in any of the attacks.

"We will continue our struggle until the liberation of innocent Armenians from French jails," the caller said in heavily accented English.

The "Orly" group surfaced in late 1981 after police at Orly airport detained suspected Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia leader who said he belonged to the organization.

France contributes 2,000 troops to the four-nation peacekeeping force, which also includes U.S., British, and Italian troops.

The explosions came as shells, fired from Druze Moslem positions in the Shouf mountains east of the city crashed into Christian suburbs.

No casualties were reported in today's shelling, but Druze leader Walid Jumblat warned that full scale fighting for control of his mountain stronghold was ahead and the Israeli army dispatched tanks and support vehicles to the Shouf mountains.

Beirut radio said "a large number" of tanks and support vehicles were unloaded from two Israeli warships anchored in the Mediterranean.

Blacks Made Progress In 70s; Unemployment Soars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blacks posted gains in home ownership, education and voter registration in the 1970s, but black unemployment soared 140 percent and poverty continued, the Census Bureau reports.

The number of blacks in the civilian work force increased by 2.7 million or 31 percent between 1972 and 1982, and the number of employed blacks grew by 1.4 million, or 19 percent. But the number of black people who were unemployed rose from 900,000 in 1972 to 2.1 million in 1982.

The report, America's Black Population: 1970 to 1982, used data from the Census Bureau, the Labor Department and other government agencies to assess the social and economic position of black Americans.

It noted some gain in income for blacks; the median income for black married-couple families increased 6.9 percent between 1971 and 1981. Such families, however, made up only 55 percent of all black families in 1982, compared to 64 percent in 1972.

For all black families, median income — adjusted for inflation — has declined by 8.3 percent since 1971, with a 5.2 percent drop occurring between 1980 and 1981.

The decline was blamed on the increase in the number of single-parent black families headed by women. In 1982, such families totalled 2.6 million — up 32 percent from 1972. They made up 41 percent of all black families and 70 percent of all poor black families.

The poverty rate for blacks remained steady at 34 percent, though there were 1 million more poor blacks in 1980 than in 1970 — 9 million compared to 8 million.

The unemployment rate for blacks continued at more than double the rate for whites. In 1972, when the unemployment rate for whites was 5 percent, the unemployment rate for blacks was 10.3 percent. In 1982, the unemployment rates for both blacks and whites were the highest of any time in post-World War II history. The rate for whites was 8.6 percent; for blacks it was 18.9 percent.

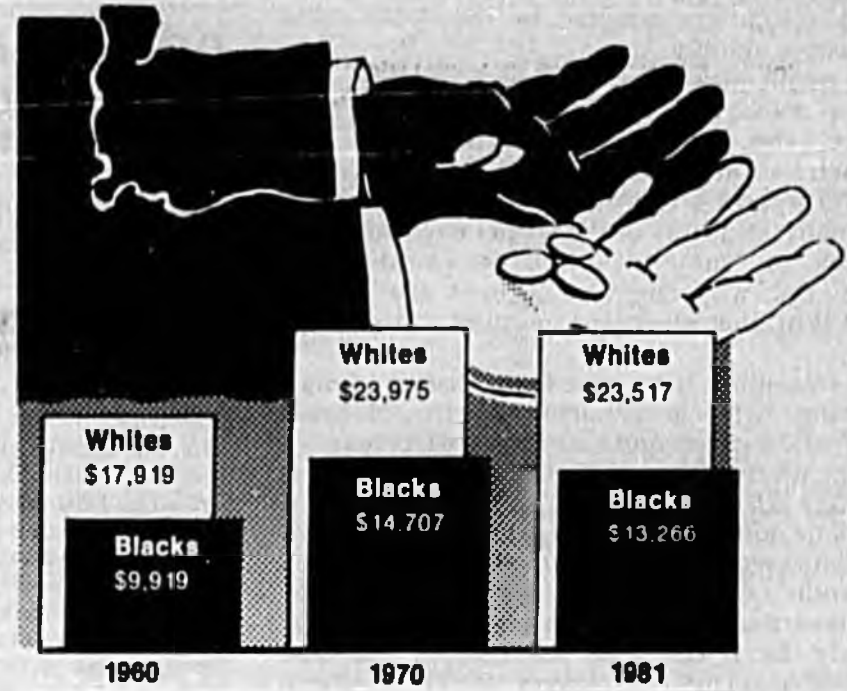

In 1970, the South continued to be home for most black Americans.

"The traditional, large black migration from the South to points north and west appeared to end in the 1970 decade," the Census Bureau said.

"Between 1975 and 1980, about 415,000 blacks moved to the South, whereas, only about 220,000 left, thereby reversing the longstanding black exodus from the South."

In 1980, 53 percent of the nation's blacks lived in the South — the same proportion as in 1970. About 60 percent of the nation's black population lived in central cities — an increase of 13 percent.

A jobs survey showed the highest concentrations of black workers in such positions as domestic servant, sanitation worker or postal clerk. Among the professions, social work showed the highest concentration of blacks — 19.2 percent.

The median income of black families was 56 percent of that of white families in 1981. That percentage was virtually unchanged from 1960.

The fewest blacks were found in farming — 2 percent. Blacks also were poorly represented among the professions. Only 2.6 percent of the nation's engineers are blacks. Among lawyers, 2.7 percent are black, though 6 percent of all judges are black. Only 3.1 percent of the nation's physicians are black.

A major discrepancy can be found in nursing. Only 7.5 percent of the nation's registered nurses are black. But blacks account for more than 18 percent of the nation's licensed practical nurses — and more than 27 percent of the nursing aides, orderlies and hospital attendants.

The largest increases in black employment came in the military. In 1971, blacks comprised 12 percent of the nation's armed forces. In 1980, blacks made up 20 percent of the nation's military forces. Women accounted for 12 percent of black military personnel in 1980.

Opponents Blast Aquino Inquiry

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Opposition leaders today condemned the government panel named to investigate the assassination of Benigno Aquino as "beholden" to the regime and the slain man's widow demanded an independent inquiry.

The opposition leaders announced they would refuse to cooperate with the new appointed commission — a setback for President Ferdinand E. Marcos even before the panel, which was sworn in Thursday, held its first meeting.

The commission, five present and former jurists appointed by Marcos, called a preliminary session today to set ground rules for hearings on the murder of the popular opposition figure. The inquiry is to open formally Monday.

The chairman, Chief Justice Enrique M. Fernando, said the inquiry would be public and, acknowledging the panel's impartiality is in doubt, said Aquino's family and other Marcos opponents were invited to participate.

"The Aquino family, however, has expressed reservations about this commission and that is understandable," Fernando told reporters.

Aquino, 50, was gunned down seconds after he emerged from a China Air Lines jetliner at the end of a three-year, self-imposed exile in the United States.

His alleged assassin was immediately riddled with bullets by security forces and the investigation has stalled because authorities have been unable to identify the slain gunman.

Investigators returned to the airport Thursday for a re-enactment of the slaying, establishing the positions of the 14-man military team at planeside.

Officials said all members of the airport security team had been restricted to quarters.

Mental Health Test Biased: UF Researchers

GAINESVILLE, (UPI) — A test given elderly people to determine if they should be committed to an institution may be culturally biased against elderly blacks, a University of Florida study says.

"This test should only be used for white, middle-class elderly," Carolyn Nickens, a UF anthropology doctoral student and one of the researchers, said.

The test is widely used by social service and welfare agencies across the country.

"This test basically is used in determining if a person needs to be institutionalized — a really important decision in these people's lives — as well as other kinds of care," said Dr. Leslie Sue Lieberman, a UF anthropology professor who headed the research team.

The 94-question test, known as the Functional Assessment Inventory, has never been experimentally checked out since it was adopted 10 years ago, Ms. Lieberman said.

The UF researchers gave the test to 54 rural, black and white elderly residents of Alachua County, and compared the results with those of other tests given the same group in 1981.

What the researchers found was that the test, "at least for some groups, like rural black elderly, tells you very little. It's very misleading. It has problems with anybody having a low educational level and a culture a little different than yours or mine," Ms. Lieberman said.

Ms. Nickens said the rural, poor black elderly score badly on the test, but added, "I find they're operating very well in their settings."

For example, the questionnaire asks if the person taking the test knows his or her telephone number and street address. In rural areas, many people do not have a telephone or street address, yet this is not provided for in the test.

Warning Issued For Anesthetic Used In Delivery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors and hospitals nationwide are being warned against giving women in labor a high concentration of an anesthetic suspected of causing 20 pregnant women to suffer cardiac arrest.

The Food and Drug Administration, in issuing the warning, said 16 of the women died from the heart stoppage after getting an improperly administered injection of the local anesthetic, bupivacaine, during delivery.

An FDA spokesman said most of the infants survived, but he had no specific figures. All but two of the cases of cardiac arrest occurred during the past two years. Bupivacaine has been used since 1972.

Dr. George Albright, an anesthesiologist at Stanford University who has studied the drug and helped alert the FDA of possible problems, said he "questions its use in general surgery."

Albright said he plans to attend at

Oct. 4-5 meeting by an FDA advisory committee on the anesthetic.

The FDA said it still considers the anesthetic appropriate for general surgery, as well as, in lower concentrations, for obstetric procedures.

The FDA said three manufacturers of the drug, following consultations with the agency, sent joint letters Monday to doctors and hospitals warning them against heavy concentrated use of the painkiller in obstetric procedures.

The FDA said the cardiac arrests appear to have occurred when the anesthetic was unintentionally injected into the vein rather than just under the skin — "always a risk in such injections."

In obstetrics procedures, doctors seek to introduce the anesthetic into the lower back outside the membrane that covers the spinal cord to desensitize the nerves.

If the injection hits a vein, which may be enlarged by the increased pressure caused by pregnancy, a high concentration may reach the heart, causing cardiac arrest, the FDA said.

The anesthetic has often been used in Caesarian section, abdominal surgery for delivery.

In addition to warning against heavy concentrations in obstetrics procedures, the manufacturers also recommended that the drug be injected slowly following a test dose.

A test dose would show if the injection was misplaced while incremental injections would provide more opportunity to monitor the patient and intervene in case of adverse reaction, the FDA explained.

The FDA said the three manufacturers reported to them 12 "well-documented cases of cardiac arrest, 10 of them fatal, in which the highest (0.75) of three available concentrations was used."

WCC May Be Off Base Here

The World Council of Churches sees things through a glass, darkly. A dark tinge of anti-Americanism colored most of the political and military resolutions adopted by the WCC at its Vancouver assembly.

One might ask why a church organization concerns itself with Central American guerrilla warfare, the invasion of Afghanistan, the U.S.-Soviet strategic balance and the deployment of NATO weapons in Europe, but this is an age when many ministers of the gospel feel compelled to speak on subjects ordinarily classified as secular. But why the bias against the United States? Why the reluctance to criticize the Soviet Union?

That question was posed to Bishop James Armstrong, who is president of the National Council of Churches and was thus a participant in the Vancouver deliberations. He said the WCC is not unlike the U.N. General Assembly in that it tends to be dominated by delegates from the Third World with prejudices against the United States.

A parallel can indeed be seen between U.N. resolutions and those emanating from the WCC assembly, as if the false promises of Marxism which often cloud the vision of Third World political leaders were also influencing the clergy in their countries. The analogy pointed out by Bishop Armstrong may also serve as a warning to the WCC, and the National Council of Churches as well.

Both of these organizations have been coming under criticism for supporting left-of-center political causes and for funneling money to organizations that could easily use it for revolutionary political activity and weapons instead of the humanitarian purposes for which donors in American churches presumably intended it to be used.

Resolutions are introduced regularly in the U.S. Congress calling for a cutoff of U.S. support of the United Nations because of the insults which our country endures in that body. The United States did withdraw its support from the International Labor Organization at one time because that U.N.-sponsored agency refused to see the difference between labor unions in a free society and those under the thumb of governments in communist countries.

The World Council of Churches brings together more than 300 Protestant, Orthodox, Anglican and independent churches that share a Christian faith. It can magnify the voice of Christianity where it needs to be heard, and can provide a valuable service in coordinating missionary and relief activities financed by member churches. To the extent that it allows political rather than religious convictions to color its outlook, it will risk a defection of members and support that will cripple its effectiveness.

Hispanic Voter Bloc

Hispanic voters are the latest in a long line of ethnic groups who use their identity to attract politicians.

In the 1980 presidential election, only 30 percent of eligible Hispanics voted in the United States. That compares unfavorably to the 60 percent of eligible whites and 50 percent of eligible blacks who voted.

Why don't Hispanics vote in greater numbers? Many Hispanics with legal residence in this country have not been naturalized as citizens. Others are here illegally.

But this is changing. Hispanics are registering in greater numbers. More Hispanics are reaching voting age each year. Their birth rate is higher than the American average. They may, in the next century, constitute a greater percent of the voting population than blacks.

In a parallel trend, Hispanic politicians, for the first time, are being elected to major political offices. Hispanics have been elected as mayors of San Antonio and Denver. A Hispanic is governor of New Mexico. Like other successful politicians of a distinct ethnic group, they appeal to a broad spectrum of voters, not just their own people. Watch for more Hispanics in government.

President Reagan wants to tap the growing Hispanic vote and is meeting in with Hispanics in Florida, Texas and California.

Hispanics are a group that politicians must reckon with. They're coming up the American way, by joining in the rough-and-tumble world of election politics.

BERRY'S WORLD

"GOSH, you're so BEAUTIFUL - you ought to be an ANCHORWOMAN!"

As a first year event in the 1982 Golden Ages Games in Sanford, race walking proved to be popular among the senior athletes even if some of them hadn't quite mastered the unusual walking technique.

Entry blanks for the event are all ready coming in to the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce office and among them was one from Master's Race Walker Otto Wenk, 68, of Little Rock, Ark. He has set several national age group records in the sport and has been featured in Bob Plunkett's Arkansas Times column. The Arkansas Athlete. Wenk has also signed up for ping pong.

He just may be the man to beat in this year's 2-mile race walk scheduled to take place at 2 p.m., Nov. 8, at the Seminole High School stadium. Deadline for entering the event is Nov. 7.

Race walking is an Olympic sport and its practitioners move along at a pace faster than many trained runners. They give a rather bizarre impression as they swing their arms, gyrate their hips, and concentrate on keeping one foot on the ground at all times.

Here are some helpful hints from Plunkett in case you want to get in training for the race walk or 6-mile "leisure" walk, or just walk for the exercise:

• Always walk with spine straight, head erect, feet parallel and aimed forward.

• As with any exercise program, consider obtaining a check-up by your physician before beginning to exert yourself, particularly if you have been leading a sedentary life.

• Get a good pair of walking shoes (running shoes will do fine) and don't waste your money on cheap imitations. A good pair of shoes is about the only investment you'll need for this sport, so go ahead and treat yourself.

• Consider spending 20 minutes stretching leg and foot muscles before beginning any walk.

• Walk at a brisk pace. You're not out for a stroll, but to walk, and that means pushing your heart rate up above its resting cadence. Inhale deeply during the first step, then let your breath out slowly for the next four or five steps.

• Build up your walk gradually to a minimum of 30 minutes daily, but don't push yourself at first. Remember it took a long time to get out of shape and you aren't going to get back in shape in a few quick workouts. Besides, you should look upon walking as an enjoyable pastime — as well as a good exercise.

Brisk walking burns as much as 300 calories per hour, but unlike jogging, is virtually free of risks to your health and physique such as bone and muscle damage. According to Dr. George Sheehan, New Jersey cardiologist and runners' guru, only 10-15 percent of the population is naturally built for running. "But we were all born to walk."

DON GRAFF On The Kaohsiung Express

Taiwan (NEA) — Typhoon Wayne missed me.

He was approaching from the general direction of the Philippines, when I arrived in Taiwan, and was supposed to hit the morning I had planned to take a train to Kaohsiung, Taiwan's second city at the south end of the island.

Taipei got a foretaste of Wayne. It was hot and sunny, gusty winds whipping through the littered streets raising mini-sandstorms. But Wayne lost his drive. The fast-diminishing storm grazed the southern tip of Taiwan, then drifted off in the general direction of the Chinese mainland.

The unpleasantness added nothing to the charm of Taipei. If there's one word for the capital of Free China, it may well be "lucky." Particularly when it is subject to an arriving traveler's comparison with Tokyo.

Of any city I am at all familiar with, Taipei most recalls Bangkok, but with the chaos under some degree of control.

Traffic chokes the main streets from before dawn until well after midnight. Motor bikes and scooters are heavily and noisily represented, a significant economic indicator, seasoned Western observers say.

Bicycles, the prevalent means of personal transportation in a Third World nation just beginning the long climb up, are rare here. The motor is part of the Taiwanese way of life.

And if now it propels only a two-wheeler, the hope that there may be a car in the future — along with other capitalistic trophies of success such as an apartment (every home, no matter how hovel-like, seems already to have a color television) — is at least realistic.

There is good reason for much of Taipei's dishevelment. It is an impacted city. With a population now approaching 3 million, it has grown explosively during the last two decades. Signs of growth are everywhere — excavations, building cranes and typical "Chinatown" street fronts giving way to high-rise office blocks.

Peking may say what it wants, but some people here clearly think the present state of affairs has a future.

In the mass — and that certainly describes it during the rush hours that seem to run from 8 a.m. until midnight or so — Taipei's people are cheerfully unbuttoned, particularly compared with Tokyo's. They enter where the instructions are to exit and go out where they're supposed to be going in.

While they clearly respect the traffic, that doesn't necessarily carry over to the traffic signals. In Tokyo, there may be nothing in sight but no one will cross against the light.

Still, Taipei clearly works. There's no better evidence than the main railway station, a scene to which the word bedlam does not quite do justice. But the word for what goes on out on the platforms is precision.

Trains pull in at subway-like intervals and depart on schedule. The 9:42 a.m. local to Kaohsiung pulled out at 9:42. This 10 a.m. electrified express, at 10 a.m. And I have no reason to doubt that the next-scheduled 10:05 to Keelung left at 10:05.

Priests Should Learn From Vietnam

WASHINGTON — Some Roman Catholic priests in Central America seem to have schoolboy crushes on left-wing revolutionaries. In Nicaragua, their reward was an embarrassing, organized boogie of Pope John Paul II by the Marxist leaders they had supported.

Their brothers in established communist countries could tell these naive clergymen what it's like to live under the heel of an anti-religious regime. It might cool their revolutionary ardor a bit.

In Vietnam, persecution of Catholics has taken a cruelly ironic turn. According to refugees who have escaped to Thailand, the regime is using the church's resistance to communist authority in Poland — inspired and encouraged by the pope — as an excuse for its attacks on Catholicism.

A confidential cable from the American Embassy in Bangkok reports that Vietnamese refugees have been describing "an intensified government campaign to weaken the Roman

Media Focus On Reagan

NEW YORK (NEA) — Has Ronald Reagan gotten a fair press? That question can probably never be fully disentangled from Washington Post political reporter Lou Cannon's immortal response: "I think he's had a fairer press than he deserves." But preliminary reports on a study currently being conducted by the Media Analysis Project at George Washington University suggest that what Cannon accidentally implied is substantially closer to the truth than what he was trying to say.

The Media Analysis Project is studying coverage of all "policy news" by nine of the nation's major news sources (the three network evening news programs and the three national newsmagazines, plus The New York Times, The Washington Post and The Wall Street Journal) during the first hundred days of 1983. The focus is on "soft news" — editorials, columns, commentaries and feature reports.

Only one of the four parts of the project involves Mr. Reagan, and the preliminary report published in the June-July issue of Public Opinion (the magazine of the American Enterprise Institute) concerns only quantitative findings from the network evening news programs for the first two months of 1983. But even this brief advance peek at the study and its conclusions is fascinating.

According to the report's authors (Michael Robinson, Maura Clancey and Lisa Grand), all of whom are also involved in the project, "Ronald Reagan has received disproportionately critical and negative press from the national media.... No matter how we counted, the results came out the same: bad press for Reagan and for his administration."

As the authors point out, this finding is all the more interesting because it directly contradicts recent charges by both the Columbia Journalism Review and PBS's Inside Story, among others, that Reagan has adroitly rendered the media impotent.

But let the statistics speak for themselves. The researchers identified just under a hundred "stories" (network commentaries or features more than 2 1/2 minute long) on policy issues. Of these, 46 mentioned Reagan. And of the 46, two-thirds "were easily classified as explicitly favorable or unfavorable."

And just what do you suppose were the proportions, pro and con? "Twenty-seven pieces were directly negative toward Reagan." Exactly two were favorable.

What was the actual word count? "Stories in which Reagan was treated favorably totaled 400 words.... Stories in which Reagan was treated unfavorably totaled 8,800 words — a ratio of 22 to one negative." (Stories scored as "neutral" totaled 5,800 words.)

The authors warn that this may overstate the case a bit, since many of the longest feature pieces contained only one or two clear negative inferences about Reagan. On the other hand, the only two "favorable" stories involving Reagan (and they were only moderately favorable at that) were both commentaries by NBC's John Chancellor. Aside from those two, there wasn't a single "policy news" story on any of the network evening news programs during the first two months of 1983 that the project analysts could identify as "favorable" to Reagan.

And incidentally, this analysis of the coverage of Mr. Reagan does not include the (overwhelmingly negative) coverage of such members of his administration as CIA Director William Casey, or EPA's Anne Gorsuch Burford and Rita Lavelle, unless Reagan was specifically mentioned in the story.

So, if you think you're noticing a lot of negative reporting about President Reagan on the evening news, you're absolutely right. As a classic example, the authors cite ABC's feature report on Reagan's first two years. Over a picture of the president, a brilliantly colored graph traced the growth of unemployment, while on the sound track Reagan's voice could be heard proclaiming the end of the recession. "Sardonic Sam" Donaldson then summed it up: "... there is a consensus in Washington that unless he changes his game plan, economically, (his) grade for the next two years will almost certainly be an F."

Take a look at the economy these days, and give Sam an F.

SCIENCE WORLD Ship On Sea Floor Explored

By Fred McNeese

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — More than 120 years after it sank, scientists have returned to the USS Monitor, hoping to save at least part of the Civil War ironclad from the ravages of time and some of the most treacherous waters of the American coast.

Researchers who were last at the site in 1979 returned for five days this week to videotape the wreck, compile more engineering data and recover the four-prong anchor the Monitor crew dropped in a vain attempt to save the vessel on the last night of 1862.

Tentative plans call for an attempt in 1985 to recover the round gun turret, which led observers to describe the Monitor as a "cheesebox on a raft."

The Monitor and the Confederate vessel Virginia, which had been called the Merrimac, ushered in a new era of naval warfare when they battled to a draw at Hampton Roads, Va., in the world's first battle of ironclad ships on March 9, 1862.

The Monitor was designed to fight in shallow coastal rivers and sounds and went down about 15 miles off the North Carolina coast as it was being towed to Beaufort, N.C., to participate in the Union blockade of Confederate ports.

This week's expedition was sponsored by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and East Carolina University using a research vessel and a 22-foot submarine operated by the Harbor Branch Foundation of Fort Pierce, Fla.

Dr. Nancy Foster, director of the National Marine Sanctuary Program for NOAA, described the Monitor as a "national treasure" that continues to draw widespread public interest.

"The thing that has made it so interesting to the public is because of the historical significance," she said. "I mean school kids from the first grade on have heard of the story of the Monitor and the Merrimac."

"It is also important from an engineering standpoint. It changed the whole complexion of the Navy and it played a significant role in the Civil War although it was only in existence about nine months."

The site was declared a national sanctuary in 1975, the first of six sites to win the designations that protects them from scavengers. Unauthorized activity within the one-mile diameter Monitor site can bring fines of up to $50,000.

The Monitor now rests, upside down, in more than 200 feet of water. Scientists feel the turret is creating stress on the hull and something must be done if the Monitor is not to break up.

But Dr. Foster said researchers are hesitant to move without a clear understanding of the engineering stresses on the ship.

"We are trying to be very careful, taking the whole thing a step at a time," she said. "It is one of a kind. If you goof up, you have lost it."

Scientists will now spend months evaluating the data obtained during the latest expedition, which was estimated to cost between $90,000 to $95,000.

racks. In those still open, the authorities limit the hours of mass.

— In Ho Chi Minh City, churches allowed to remain open are "strictly for the benefit of foreign visitors, whom the authorities wish to impress with their tolerant attitude toward religion."

— All Bible study has been outlawed except during public ceremonies or shortly before or after mass. Though some religious materials have been allowed to be published, including a Vietnamese translation of the Bible, most church publications have to be printed and distributed secretly.

— Even a Catholic orchestra, organized to play on religious occasions, was ordered to disband when it became too popular. The musicians were quickly drafted into military service.

Footnote: The plight of the tiny Protestant community in southern Vietnam is even worse. Churches have been seized and clergymen arrested on charges of ties to the CIA or the Montagnard rebels.

Diane Wood, P.M. Van Dusen Exchange Vows

Diane Alexis Wood and Philip Michael Van Dusen were married Aug. 5, at 8 p.m., at the Gardenville Baptist Church, Gibsonton. The Rev. Larry Vassuer performed the candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Wood, 9203 Rivercove Drive, Riverview. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Van Dusen, 115 Grove Lane, Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal candlelight satin gown fashioned with a fitted bodice enhanced with Venise lace and pearls. The same lace and pearl design was repeated on the wide cuffs of the full, sheer sleeves. The A-line skirt gracefully cascaded into a short chapel train. A band of Venise lace and pearls secured her tiered fingertip veil of imported illusion. She carried a keepsake bouquet of silk candlelight roses with gardenias, miniature carnations and rosebuds in shades of apricot, peach and coral interspersed with stephanotis and baby's breath.

Emily Levy of Tampa, attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore an apricot-colored gown styled with a ruffled neckline, fitted bodice and tiered ruffled skirt accented with a wide sash. She carried a silk bouquet of candlelight, apricot, peach and coral gardenias and rosebuds showered with candlelight and apricot ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Joyce Harder, Tampa; Carolyn Keenan, Riverview and Anne Brooks, Lakeland, sister of the bridegroom. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

John Garcia, Tampa, served the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were John Cammack, Tampa; Jim Brooks, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Lakeland, and Jeff Morgan, Pine Island. The reception was held at 100 Club Hall, Gibsonton.

Mrs. Philip Michael Van Dusen

Following a wedding trip to Key West, the newlyweds are making their home in Tampa where the bridegroom is comptroller for Trojan Plastics and the bride is working on a second degree at the University of South Florida.

Gardening

Shady Spot Can Be Cool Retreat For Relaxation

Shade trees are an important part of our landscape but that welcome shade can sometimes create an unexpected problem. Plant growing problem in shade seem to be outranked only by insect and disease problems.

That shady spot doesn't however, have to be the least attractive spot in your garden. It can be a cool retreat with lush foliage and brilliant jewels of color flashing an invitation to relax.

A shady spot in the garden is often a real problem area for home owners, because they do not select the proper plant material for shady locations. Plants which ordinarily thrive and grow well in sunny areas often times grow very poorly if at all, when placed in shady locations. However, many beautiful plants are adapted to partial or deep shade and can turn a problem area into an asset.

One plant ideal for planting in shady, moist areas is Fatsia japonica. While this evergreen plant does not ordinarily flower, its lush, large, tropical foliage can be a real accent plant in a shady location.

Ardisia rispa or the Christmas berry is an evergreen shrub that has small white flowers in the spring with brightly colored red berries through the winter. This plant ordinarily grows to a height of three to four feet and is excellent as a container plant for shaded areas or may be planted in the soil. The dwarf variety, Ardisia japonica, is a low growing plant that is suitable for groundcovers in shaded areas. It ordinarily does not flower or berry.

The holly fern is an excellent plant for moist, shaded areas. It is evergreen and withstands extremes in temperatures. It may be used where a ground cover is needed or in combination with other plants in shaded areas to give a tropical effect. It should be planted in front of the larger growing plants that are used in the area.

Aucuba japonica leaf colors range from solid green to a variegated green and gold. This plant will ordinarily grow to a height of three to four feet and is an excellent evergreen to use in shaded areas where a spot of color is needed.

For a larger plant, the oakleaf hydrangea is difficult to surpass.

This shrub will grow to a height of ten or more feet. It loses its leaves in winter and the red stems with peeling bark are an accent in the landscape. It ordinarily flowers in April or May, with large panicles of white flowers that remain showy for one or two months. The flowers when old, turn brown and are excellent to use in indoor arrangements.

Flowering annuals are difficult to grow in shaded areas. One of the best for summer color is the Impatiens. They come in a wide range of flower colors, from orange, orchid and pink to rose, salmon, scarlet and white.

The Impatiens grow only in partial to full shade where there is a moist, organic soil present. Impatiens seeds are small and normally slow to germinate. One may prefer to buy assorted plants from your local garden center. The seed are available from many seed houses in this country.

The Caladium can also add a dash of color in shaded areas. Leaf colors in caladiums are varied from green to white, red to white, pink and green and various shades. These make excellent plants for summer color in moist, shaded locations.

All Extension programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

New Post Office Study The Talk Of The Town

Geneva may be getting a new or expanded postal facility. According to Arnold Gottlieb, president of the Geneva Citizens Association, an official communique from the United States Postal Service to the Citizens Association states: "The United States Postal Service is conducting a study to determine the requirements for a new Classified Post Office to replace the present facility."

The proposed facility "will be approximately 1,400 square feet on a site of approximately 14,000 square feet."

The official letter from the postal service also states: "The preferred site area chosen is based on convenience for the customer, availability of property, good ingress and egress for all vehicles serving that area."

The preferred site area boundaries are: within 1/2 mile of present location."

The letter signed by Eileen Bowen, Postmaster of the Geneva facility, requested a letter indicating the Citizens Association's concurrence with the preferred site area.

Mr. Gottlieb's reply indicated that the citizens of Geneva "feel that an expanded or new facility" would be acceptable and would "help us achieve our goal of delivery by carrier."

He further stated in his response that the citizens group was concerned about adequate parking should the present site be expanded. And, he requested that in addition to providing enough parking, a drive-thru mail box be located at the proposed new post office similar to the one in Oviedo.

Speaking of the Geneva Citizens Association, the first meeting after a nice Summer's recess will be Monday, Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall. County Commissioner Bill Kirchoff has been invited as the guest speaker for the organization's first meeting of the new season.

The association usually meets on the first Monday of each month, but due to Labor Day, the September meeting was moved forward one week.

On the agenda for discussion at the September meeting will be growth management and appropriating Geneva's share of gas tax for roads.

Pastor Clifton D. Nixon of the Geneva Nazarene Church reports a good response to the first week of the church's revival meetings. "We are having a 19th century protracted revival that began Aug. 21 and will run through Sept. 4 or longer if the Lord dictates," says Mr. Nixon.

Wheelchair evangelist Gertrude Ward and her husband, Lloyd Ward, a song evangelist and chalk artist, will be preaching the remaining meetings. During the week the services start at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday they begin at 10:30 a.m. and 6:00 p.m.

Everything is looking fit as a whistle at the Geneva Elementary School for Monday morning's opening. The school bell will ring at 8:30 a.m. for the starting of classes for the 1983-84 school year.

10 Rules Hold Answer For Being A 'Loved' Neighbor

DEAR ABBY: I liked your 10 rules on how to be a good wife so much that I clipped that column. Then along came your 10 rules on how to be a good husband, and believe it or not, my husband saved it!

My mother told me that some time ago you ran 10 rules on how to be a good neighbor. Please publish them again.

Dear Abby

STEADY READER, SPOKANE, WASH.

DEAR STEADY: Here they are: TEN NAYS FOR GOOD NEIGHBORS

1) Thou shalt love thy neighbor, but not his wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owneth.

2) Thou shalt keep thy dog, thy stereo and thy lawnmower quiet while thy neighbor sleepeth.

3) Thou shalt borrow from thy neighbor rarely, and when thou doest, returneth undamaged and without delay that which thou hast borrowed.

4) Thou shalt not alloweth thy pets nor thy children to run amok, despoiling thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.

5) Thou shalt keepeth thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway uncluttered even as ye shall also keep thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.

6) Thou shalt watcheth always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guard thy neighbor's home and his property even as thy own.

7) Thou shalt not use thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.

8) Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need, even as he does for thee.

9) Thou shalt not parketh thy camper, thy RV nor thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createth a safety hazard to all.

10) Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that lasteth until wee hours unless thou shalt inviteth thy neighbor too.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unreasonable for me to insist that people take their shoes off before I let them in my house? We never wear our shoes in the house. I even wash the dog's feet before I let him in.

My husband and I always remove our shoes before entering the homes of other people. Please answer soon. I need to know.

KEEPING CLEAN IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR KEEPING CLEAN: Although the practice is accepted as custom in other countries (Japan, for one), some people in our country might resent it.

Moreover, if you insist that all who enter your home must remove their shoes, you may soon be able to count your friends on the toes of one foot.

DEAR ABBY: My husband just celebrated his 80th birthday. Many friends made contributions to their favorite charities in my husband's honor, which was a lovely gesture. But a few friends contributed to organizations that they knew were especially dear to our hearts.

A gift to any cause in the name of a friend is a generous thing, but when a gift is given not to one's own cause, but to the cause of the person being honored, that, I think, is extraordinarily loving and giving! Pass this on to your readers, Abby.

Trinity Opens Doors To Record Enrollment

Trinity Preparatory School will begin its 15th year with the largest student body ever.

A coeducational day school for grades 7-12, Trinity will open its doors for its first day of classes to 45 students on Tuesday, Aug. 30, at 8 a.m.

For the 1983-84 school year, Trinity has added a new course offering to its science program. Open to all Trinity students and a requirement for all form I (seventh grade) students is a computer literacy course, taught by Dr. Charles Lawrence.

Trinity will once again offer advanced placement classes in English, calculus and biology. The advanced placement program is designed to allow students the opportunity to participate in a course of study that enables them to do college level work in high school.

Another unique program, the NAIMUN course, is designed for advanced history students. This course prepares students to participate in the North American Invitational Model United Nations in Washington, D.C.

Besides offering an excellent academic program, Trinity also has 10 interscholastic sports for students at various times throughout the year.

To complement the sports program and the many extracurricular events occurring at Trinity, the new Thomas C. Dickinson, Jr. Memorial Activity Center will accommodate many of the school's athletic events this year.

Registration and orientation for new students will begin at 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 29. Registration for any returning students who have not previously registered will be at 1 p.m. that same day.

Trinity is located at 4001 W. State Rd. 426 in Goldenrod.

Social Programs Cut 7 Percent In Three Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and Congress slashed federal spending for social and welfare programs 7 percent in the past three years, with the largest cuts hitting households with annual incomes less than $10,000, the Congressional Budget Office says.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., who asked the CBO to study the budget cuts enacted during the Reagan administration, said the findings show Reagan "has denied millions of American families the basics of the American dream."

"The president projects the image of a man concerned about the welfare of the average American family," O'Neill said in a written statement. "His record shatters that image."

At O'Neill's request, the CBO limited its examination to five major areas of the budget — retirement and disability programs, other income-security programs, health care, education and social services, and employment programs.

These programs compose 96 percent of all "human resources" spending, one-half of the total federal budget and just over two-thirds of total non-military spending, the CBO said.

The budget office concluded: —Federal spending for these programs has been reduced by about 7 percent compared to what it would have been under the laws existing at the beginning of 1981.

—Reductions in benefit payments for individuals will be greatest for households with income below $10,000. In 1984, for example, such households will lose an average of $430 in benefits relative to what they would have received under prior law, as compared to the average loss over all income categories of about $250.

—Reductions are largest, in percentage terms, for the employment programs, which have been reduced by almost 60 percent. The largest dollar savings over the 1982-85 period will result from reductions in retirement and disability programs, other income-security programs and employment programs.

"Overall, about 40 percent of the federal savings from changes in benefit programs are projected to result from reductions affecting households with 1982 incomes of less than $10,000 ... and another 30 percent will come from reductions affecting households with incomes between $10,000 and $20,000," the CBO said.

The budget office cautioned, however, its estimates are for changes in federal spending only and do not include the effects of the recent tax cuts, which would raise after-tax incomes for some households.

Moreover, the CBO said, if the Reagan economic policies "significantly raise the rate of economic growth and reduce unemployment ... then they would provide higher incomes that would to some extent offset the reductions in benefits."

The CBO said projected 1982-1985 spending for employment programs has been cut by almost 60 percent: education and social services, 18 percent; other income security programs, 10 percent; health care, 5 percent; retirement and disability programs, 3 percent.

Much of the reduced spending for employment programs results from the elimination in 1981 of the Public Service Employment program, which provided funds to state and local governments to pay most of the costs of jobs for low-income persons.

AIDS

More Immune System Breakdowns Discovered

BOSTON (UPI) — The deadly disease AIDS short-circuits the immune system more extensively than previously believed, causing antibody-producing cells to go haywire, government researchers report.

A team of physicians from the National Institutes of Health reported in the New England Journal of Medicine that sufferers of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome experience breakdowns in two of the three linked branches of the immune system — not just one as previously thought.

"It says that the breakdown in the immune system is more extensive and it increases our understanding a bit about the disease," said Dr. Henry Masur, an NIH infectious disease specialist. "It's another part of the puzzle but it doesn't mean we're very much closer to finding a cure."

The doctors cautioned that the new findings do not mean a cure is at hand and they will have no effect on managing patients of the disease, which at mid-month had struck 2,094 people nationwide, killing 805.

Doctors say most AIDS patients — mostly homosexual men, hemophiliacs and intravenous drug users — die within two years with their bodies left open to a host of infections. Its cause has not been isolated but doctors believe it may be a virus spread through intimate sexual contact, blood products or contaminated needles.

The scientists said they studied 12 homosexual AIDS patients against control groups of healthy homosexual and heterosexual men and discovered abnormalities among the victims in what they called "B-lymphocyte functions" — one of the three branches of the immune system.

The B-cells normally produce antibodies against specific diseases when needed but in the AIDS patients they were found to produce large quantities of non-specific antibodies spontaneously, Masur said.

The B-cells, which were not previously thought to be affected by AIDS, were also found not to produce effective antibodies against diseases the body has not encountered before, Masur said.

"By spewing out these antibodies in large quantities they may be weakened in fighting new (disease) challenges," he said.

Previously, AIDS victims were known to suffer shortages or non-functioning "helper T-cells" — cells that "turn on" disease-fighting mechanisms in the body, including B-cells.

"What this might indicate," Masur said, "is that the cause of AIDS might affect the immature cells before they grow into T- or B-cells. But we really don't know." He said the third branch of the immune system — which battles some common bacteria and disposes of microorganic invaders — appears unaffected by AIDS.

Cancer, AIDS Treatment Tested By Researchers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A rare substance that activated the body's disease-fighting system in test-tube experiments will be tried on animals as a treatment for cancer and Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, scientists say.

Human Interleukin-2, made available for research through genetic engineering, helped fight bacteria and other invaders by stimulating the growth of white blood cells, such as "natural killer cells," researchers said.

AIDS victims, whose damaged immune systems turn them into prime targets for deadly infections and cancers, are deficient in disease-fighting cells.

Initial laboratory studies by the Food and Drug Administration and the National Institutes of Health indicate IL-2 therapy may have the potential to restore normal immune functions in patients suffering from the mysterious ailment that has killed 805 of its 2,094 victims.

Officials at Cetus Corp. in Emeryville, producer of IL-2, said they were starting their own animal studies as well as distributing highly purified quantities of the compound to researchers around the world.

Some 24 American scientists were investigating IL-2 "for a variety of potential therapeutic applications," said Dr. Jeffrey Price, vice president of research and development at Cetus.

Cetus director of molecular biology Tom White said he expected phase one clinical tests on humans to begin next year, if the FDA gives its approval. The first studies would include patients suffering from spreading solid tumors such as breast, colon and lung cancers.

"So far essentially everything done with IL-2 has been in the test tube. We are just waiting now for a shipment of larger amounts of IL-2 and will begin in-vivo (within a living organism) tests immediately," said Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., and a key researcher of IL-2.

"If the animal results are promising, we will begin testing on humans, but that's many months away."

He said in the laboratory, IL-2 enhanced immune responses in cultures, "causing lymphoid cells to become toxic to cancer cells."

"Whether it will have the same effect in humans, we just don't know yet," Rosenberg said.

White said IL-2 stimulated the growth of white blood cells capable of killing cancer cells and cells infected with certain types of viruses, such as those found in AIDS.

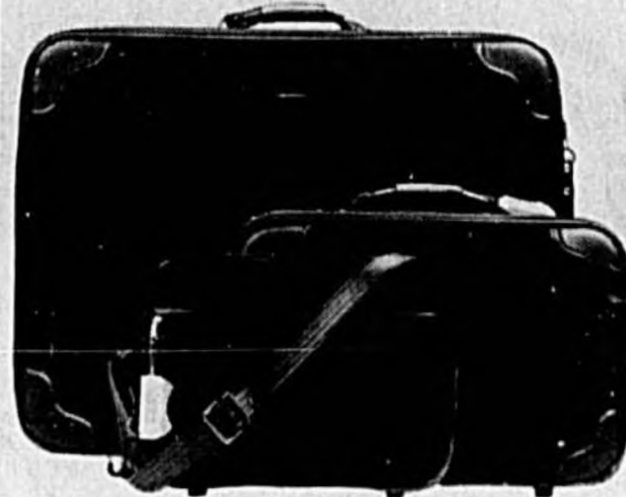

Before genetic engineering, he said, samples of IL-2 were obtained from human cells grown in tissue cultures, and "it was very difficult to isolate this material from tissue cells and cultures."

Used Car Prices Up, But Sales Down: Hertz Study

DETROIT (UPI) — Used car prices went up 13.2 percent in 1982 to an average of $4,773 per vehicle and the cost of owning and operating a used car went up more than 10 percent last year, the Hertz Corp. says.

A Hertz study found the number of used cars in 1982 was the lowest since 1976.

The annual survey by the nation's largest rental-leasing agency found it cost 10.4 percent more in 1982 to own and operate a used car or 25.44 cents per mile compared with 23.04 cents per mile in 1981.

By contrast, Hertz' survey of new car prices for 1982 found it cost 44.67 cents per mile to own and operate a new vehicle compared with 43.42 cents per mile in 1981.

Hertz said just over 16.6 million used cars changed hands in 1982, down 6 percent from the 17.7 million used cars sold in 1981. The 1982 figure is 10.8 percent below the record 18.6 million used cars sold in 1980.

The 1982 sales total was the lowest since 1976, when 15.8 million used cars were sold, according to Hertz.

The average price of a used car last year was $4,773, up 13.2 percent from $4,218 in 1981.

Two out of three Americans buy used cars rather than new ones primarily because new car prices are too high, Hertz said. The average price of a new car in 1982 was $8,866, compared with $7,967 in 1981.

"Used cars last year were still cheaper to buy and cheaper to run than new cars," said a Hertz spokesman. "Used cars sales sagged because second-hand drivers were keeping their wheels longer and driving them less, too, just as new car buyers."

Hertz said this year's 12 percent increase to date in new car sales should mean an increase in used car sales since more people are trading in their old cars.

Used cars cost less to drive per mile basically because of lower depreciation, license and interest costs.

Of the 25.44 cents per mile, 4.86 cents goes for depreciation, 5.43 cents for license fees and 2.03 cents for interest for subtotal on fixed costs of 12.32 cents per mile.

Used car owners pay 4.49 cents per mile for maintenance and 8.64 cents per mile gasoline for a subtotal on variable costs of 13.13 cents per mile.

New car owners' costs for depreciation is 5.19 cents per mile, 9.8 cents for license fees and 9.18 cents for interest for a fixed cost subtotal of 34.17 cents.

Maintenance on new cars costs 3.21 cents per mile and gasoline 8.47 cents per mile for a subtotal on variable costs of 11.68 cents.

Hertz said the 6 percent drop in used car sales compares with an 8.2 percent decline in new car sales. Total 1982 new and used car sales were 24.4 million, down 6.8 percent from 26.1 million in 1981.

Last year's total sales were the lowest since 1975, the middle of the last automotive recession, when 23.5 million new and used cars were sold, Hertz said.

Developing Countries Face Economic Crisis And Political Unrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A major economic crisis threatening developing nations could lead to an escalation of political and social unrest, two reports conclude.

A report prepared for the Trilateral Commission said that, after nearly 30 years of economic growth, some developing nations are "experiencing a decline in already poverty-level incomes."

"Today the developing countries are facing an economic crisis of major proportions," the report said. "If the present crisis is allowed to continue, increased political and social unrest is a likely consequence of these conditions."

A separate report by the Inter-American Development Bank also found that, while the U.S. economic recovery forges ahead, Latin America is in the third year of severe recession, with 30 percent of its work force unemployed or underemployed.

That report, too, warns that the economic conditions could lead to "an escalation of social and political tension."

The Trilateral Commission report was particularly critical of U.S. aid policies, saying the United States has failed to provide its fair share of economic aid to the world's poorest countries.

It also said curtailed U.S. contributions to the World Bank's International Development Association have cut deeply into the aid programs for developing nations.

For the poorest nations of the world, the commission's report urged that each rich country that has not done so to raise its contributions of aid on easy credit terms to at least 0.35 percent of its gross national product.

Though the United States, in absolute dollars, is by far the largest donor to such aid programs, such aid amounted to 0.27 percent of the U.S. GNP in 1982, according to World Bank figures. That makes U.S. contributions, in terms of percent of the GNP, the third lowest among the 17 industrialized nations of the world, behind only Italy and Switzerland.

"A marked disparity now exists between the economic and political interests of the United States in the developing countries and the low priority that its policymakers in both the public and private sectors assign to relations with these countries," it said.

The report was written for the commission by Robert McNamara, former U.S. defense secretary and former president of the World Bank; Takeshi Watanabe, founding president of the Asian Development Bank; and Jacques Lesourne, economics professor at the National Conservatory of Arts and Letters in France.

The Trilateral Commission is group of about 300 private citizens in the North America, Western Europe and Japan. It was established in 1973 to foster closer cooperation between the three regions. David Rockefeller is its North American chairman.

U.S. Ladies Dominate

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — America's women athletes, called by a doctor "ladies and not mechanical robots," showed their might at the Pan American Games Thursday amid a continuing drug probe that nulled another male athlete, a Chilean cyclist.

The United States' ladies swept to a gold medal in women's basketball, won two gold medals in track and captured a tennis doubles title to completely outdo their male counterparts.

Pan Am Games

Only three days ago during a mass exodus of 12 members of the U.S. men's track and field team in the aftermath of the drug probe, Dr. Eyle Dennis, the U.S. Chief of Mission, pointed out how significant it was that no members of the women's team had been on the list.

"I think we've finally gotten through to them that they are ladies and not mechanical robots," said Dennis.

So far, no woman from any country competing at the Games has failed to pass a drug test. The latest athlete to be caught was Chile's leading cyclist, Fernando Vera, who was found to have anabolic steroids in his system, according to the medical commission of the Pan American Sports Organization.

There was also a report that a male Cuban volleyball player had tested positive for anabolic steroids, but PASO had not officially confirmed it.

Vera, who participated in the 4,000-meter individual pursuit race Tuesday won by Rory O'Brien of Palo Alto, Calif., tested positive after he was selected at random to undergo an examination. Vera won the silver medal in the Pan Am Games in the 4,000-meter pursuit in 1979 at Puerto Rico but did not place among the top three cyclists in Tuesday's race.

He received a reprimand from PASO and may be subjected to sanctions by his country's Olympic committee.

Vera is the 12th athlete and first non-weightlifter to be caught using anabolic steroids, an illegal muscle-building drug, since the expose began Monday. He is also the second from his country to be detected. Chilean weightlifter Jacques Olliger was one of those previously named and was forced to return three silver medals.

In the athletic competition, the day truly belonged to the U.S. women.

Led by Lisa Ingram's 23 points, the U.S. treated host team Venezuela rudely and coasted to a 113-33 victory that clinched the women's basketball gold medal with a game still left on the schedule. The U.S. girls raised their record to 4-0 and even if they should lose their final game to Puerto Rico they would still win the gold since they have already beaten their two closest rivals, Cuba and Brazil.

U.S. women also sparkled in the track competition with high jumper Colleen Sommer and distance runner Joan Benoit easily taking the first two gold medals.

holder, captured the first gold of the day with a high jump of 6 feet, 3 1/4 inches. Although she then failed three times at a Pan Am record height of 6-4 3/4, she did not have to clear that height since Silvia Costa of Cuba could not make it over 6-3 1/4.

Neither Sommer nor Costa approached her best height of 6-6, and Sommer said that was partly because of the conditions at Olympic Stadium.

Benoit, of Freeport, Maine, who set the American record in the marathon in Boston this year, had no trouble winning the gold medal in the women's 3,000-meters with a time of 9:14.19 seconds. Teammate Brenda Webb of Knoxville, Tenn., was second in 9:28.89 and Monika Regonesal of Chile took the bronze in 9:41.87.

In tennis, Gretchen Rush of Pittsburgh, who Wednesday won the women's singles title, teamed with Louise Allen of Winston-Salem, N.C., to defeat Gigi Fernandez and Maritza Julia of Puerto Rico, 6-4, 6-2, for the gold medal in doubles.

Seminole Jamboree Promising County Prep Season

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Saturday's Summertime Seminole Cross Country Jamboree at Seminole Community College will be a preview of the high school season to come, and Seminole County promises to have some of the top teams and individuals in the state in 1983.

The jamboree, hosted by Seminole Track Officials, gets under way at 5:30 p.m. with the 10 and under one-mile run for boys and girls followed by the open three-mile run for men and women ages 19 and up. The feature competition will be the girls and boys team races where some of the top prep runners from throughout the state will compete. The two-mile girls race begins at 6:30 followed by the three-mile boys race at 7 p.m.

Registration for the jamboree is from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m. on the day of the race.

Heading the list for the boys race is Lake Howell's Ken Cheeseman. The Silver Hawks' standout senior is ranked first in the state in the Preseason 1983 Boys 4A Cross Country rankings. Cheeseman was last year's state runner-up in cross country and was the state champion in the mile at 4:08.5.

Returning for his senior year at Lyman High is Doug McBroom, who finished 13th at the state cross country meet last year. McBroom was fifth in the state in the preseason rankings.

Another Seminole County athlete, Lake Mary's Derek Tangeman, comes back for his senior year ready to make the jump from 3A to 4A competition. Tangeman's best three-mile is 15:24 and he was in the top ten at districts (7th) and regionals (3rd) last year. Tangeman was ranked 12th in the preseason poll, giving Seminole County three of the top 12 runners in the state.

In the preseason team rankings, powerful Largo High is number one as it lost no one off last year's state runner-up. Largo is followed by John I. Leonard and then comes Lyman in third. The Greyhounds have a great top two in McBroom and Brian Hunter who was 24th at state last year. Lyman also has great depth behind McBroom and Hunter.

of Danville, Calif., turned back Fernando Pascal Perez of Mexico, 7-6, 7-8, to win the gold medal in men's singles.

The basketball game with Venezuela was a complete farce from the outset. The U.S. completely intimidated its opponent and built a lead of 21 only eight minutes into the game. From then on it was strictly a workout for the reserves and a lesson in frustration for the Venezuelans.

"This wasn't a good coaching job. It was a good sitting job," said U.S. coach Fran Garmon said. "Venezuela is a young team and they were intimidated by our height."

"I knew before the game that we could beat them. But you never can be sure. I was really concerned about the traffic coming here and I was thinking how awful it would be to lose the gold medal because we couldn't get here on time."

Cindy Noble of Tennessee clipped in with 17 points. Lynette Woodard of Kansas added 16 and Cheryl Miller and Pam McGee, both of Southern California, and Janice Lawrence of Louisiana Tech each had 13 points for the U.S., which won the women's gold medal for the fifth time in Pan Am competition. Later in the day U.S. track and boxing teams hoped to regroup from poor showings Wednesday.

Four members of the boxing team were in semifinal action Thursday night and were expected to fare better than the four who fought in the semifinals Wednesday night. Of that group, only junior flyweight Pedro Gonzales of Los Angeles managed to advance to the final.

On Thursday night's card, Pernel Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., met Angel Beltrés of the Dominican Republic, junior welterweight Jerry Page of Columbus, Ohio, took on Giovanni Lopez of the Dominican Republic, welterweight Louis Howard of St. Louis faced Luis Garcia of Venezuela and junior middleweight Dennis Milton of New York took on Hector Ortiz of Puerto Rico.

In other action, the baseball team, priming for its gold medal game with Cuba Friday, took on Nicaragua; the men's basketball team met Argentina; the men's softball team faced Canada and both volleyball

Kathryn Hayward is one of the reasons the Lake Brantley Lady Patriots are ranked fourth in the 1983 4A preseason rankings. Kathryn and sister Joanne are one of the best one-two punches in the state.

No other Seminole County team was able to crack the top ten, but Lake Mary is a possibility if one of the other teams falters. The Rams finished fifth at regionals last year as a 3A team.

While the boys have three of the top 12 in the state, Seminole County girls have only one of the top 16. However, Seminole County placed two girls team in the top 10 in the preseason rankings.

Lake Brantley's Kathryn Hayward is ranked 16th in the state while the Lady Patriots are ranked fourth, where they finished in the state last season. Kathryn, a senior, and sister Joanne, a junior, are a potent one-two punch for the Lady Patriots who have five of its top seven returning for 1983.

Lake Mary's Lady Rams jumped from 3A to 4A and already made into the state rankings with a preseason ranking of ninth. The Rams have all seven of its top runners coming back including juniors Kim Averill, Liz Stone, Shannon Weger, Andrea Beardalee and Fran Gordon and seniors Maureen Friel and Michelle Marnitz. Freshman Sue Kingsbury could step in to play a key role for the Rams in '83.

Price Nabs Early Lead

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — South African Nick Price birdied five of the first seven holes on the back side enroute to a 4-under-par 66 Thursday and grabbed the first round lead in the $500,000 World Series of Golf.

Price, who made the turn on the 7,180-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course in 1-over-par 36, birdied the 10th, 11th, 13th, 14th and 16th holes as he reeled off six straight threes, which was only broken by the birdie four on the 625-yard "monster" 16th.

Price's birdie barrage overtook early leader Bobby Clampett, who had come in with a 3-under-par 67 and finished in a tie for second place with Jack Nicklaus.

Another shot off the pace with 2-under-par 68s were Hale Irwin, Mike Nicolette, Fred Couples and Japan's Tommy Nakajima, while Larry Mize, Bob Gilder and Ray Floyd were another shot back with 69s.

Price began his first competitive round on the famous Firestone layout shakily, saving par from a bunker on the first hole.

He parred the 497-yard, par-5 second, but bogeyed the next two holes to quickly go two shots over par. A birdie on the sixth settled him down some and he made the turn in 1-over-36.

"I got off to a bad start," said Price, "and was just trying to keep it together. I turned one over par and was quite happy."

It was the birdie on the 11th, however, which Price said "turned everything around," when he missed the green, but chipped in from 25 feet.

"I got a birdie when I very easily could have taken a bogey," he said.

Clampett, who admits 1983 has been "a real challenging year for me," came out of the starting blocks at full speed, with birdies on the first two holes. He bogeyed the sixth, but birdied the seventh and eighth to turn at 3-under 32. He had one bogey and one birdie on the back side.

Clampett, one of the game's more colorful and unpredictable players, stands only 60th on this year's money list and qualified for the World Series by winning the 1982 Southern Open. He had missed the cut in the last five events he entered and eight of the last 12, back to and including the Masters.

Nicklaus, who has pocketed $537,896 in prize money on Firestone events alone, made the turn in 33 and had a pair of birdies around a lone bogey on the back side. The Golden Bear went 3-under with an 11-foot birdie putt on the 14th, but was unable to seize a share of the lead, missing 15 and 17-foot putts on the 16th and 18th holes.

"I really played very well," said Nicklaus. "I probably didn't get any more out of it than I should have. If I had been hot with the putter, I could have shot a very low round."

Chuck Scott, former Lake Howell High standout, is going into his junior year at Vanderbilt University in Nashville. In 1982, the 6-3, 200-pound flanker caught 21 passes for 273 yards (13 yards per catch) and three touchdowns.

San Diego Gears Up For '83

By Murray Olderman

As always, the Chargers will be in the hunt. But something's got to be done about that defense, which gave up points almost as fast as Air Coryell racked them up. As many as five rookies could break into defensive unit. Ah, but that magnificent flying machine.

OFFENSE

Passing — Dan Fouts is absolutely at the peak of his passing prowess, and being paid accordingly with new multi-million dollar contract. He could reach 30,000 passing yards in 11th season. He still has that magnificent receiving brigade of Kellen Winslow, Wes Chadler and Charlie Joiner. Dwight Scales offers insurance.

Running — The one-back system — which Don Coryell pioneered — will continue, with Chuck Muncie the main man. When he needs relief, James Brooks keeps the defense skittery and can catch. John Cappelletti steps in for blocking.

Blocking — Normally, you'd wonder about five linemen who have combined experience of 62 years. That's pushing your luck. But hefty guys like Russ Washington, Ed White, both 36, reported lightest in years. Don Macek at center, Doug Wilderson and Billy Shields complete offensive line.

DEFENSE

Line — Coming fully to 3-4 concept. Gary "Big Hands" Johnson is fixture at one end. Unless he can trim some of his 345 pounds, Louis Kelcher faces trouble as nose tackle. Other end has host of veterans vying.

Wilander Ready To Go For U.S. Open

Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mats Wilander, the young Swedish ace anxious to prove he can play as well on hard courts as on clay, drew the toughest assignment among the top seeds Thursday when the draw was held for next week's U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Wilander, touted as the Swedish successor to retired countryman Bjorn Borg after winning the French Open last year, made his first impression on hard courts a week ago by beating Ivan Lendl and John McEnroe en route to the ATP Championship at Kings Island, Ohio.

"I now know myself that I can play on other surfaces," Wilander said after dropping only one set the entire week.

Wilander, who turned 19 last Monday, will be put to an early test when the 103rd national championship begins Tuesday at Flushing Meadow. Wilander, seeded fifth, will have to open against Guy Forget, a promising young Frenchman, and his second round matchup would be against the winner of Tim Mayotte vs. Brian Gottfried.

Mayotte, a powerful 23-year-old from Springfield, Mass., has reached the Wimbledon semifinals twice while Gottfried has been a top ranking player for a half dozen years.

McEnroe, seeking to duplicate Jimmy Connors' feat of last year by adding the Open crown to Wimbledon, has been seeded No. 1 for the third successive year, and his opening opponent will be 28-year-old Trey Waltke of Los Angeles. Lendl, seeded No. 2, will be paired against Florin Segarceanu of Romania while the third-seeded Connors goes against pesky Ramash Krishnan of India.

McEnroe's second round opponent figures to be Stan Smith, the 1971 Open champion, who opens against a qualifier.

Neither Martina Navratilova nor Chris Evert Lloyd, the top two women's seeds, figures to have much of a problem at least until the semifinals. Navratilova, loser only once in 60 matches this year, Emilse Rapont Longo of Argentina as her opening opponent, while Evert will face a qualifier.

In the last eight years, only Evert and Tracy Austin (twice) have won the women's title, and Austin hasn't played since Eastbourne, England, in June because of a back problem.

"I really don't know what to expect," said Austin, who was seeded fourth and has a fairly tough opening match against South African Yvonne Vermaak. "I'm healthy again and I've been practicing for a week."

Of the top 16 men's players in the world, the only absentee is Frenchman Henri Leconte, who broke a foot last week. The only top women's players absent from the singles are Billie Jean King, who is expected to play in doubles, and Bettina Bunge, injured during the Federation Cup.

Puppy Stakes Final Set For Saturday

By S.W. Happy Ison

There is no doubt about it, the Puppy Stakes Final should be just Super. Fittingly it will be held at Super Seminole on Saturday, August 27.

It is hard to believe that the eight finalists in the puppy final have won a total of 84 races in just 178 starts with 28 seconds and 16 shows or 128 times in the trifecta.

It is an all male final. Rooster's Spur has captured the fancy of Central Florida racing fans and his total of 81 points is 21 better than the lowest point getter, Rare Racer. The Spur won six of his seven starts with his only defeat being handed to him by Tight Schedule. Tight Schedule is one of three greyhounds who made the Final from the Robert Mendheim Kennel. Tight Schedule has the smallest amount of points of the three Mendheim greyhounds, 62 points. My Unicorn, littermate to Tight Schedule, has 75 points. His record of 12 wins in 26 starts should tell everyone that he is no slouch.

Dog Racing

The last of the Mendheim standard bearers is More Tax Graham who has gathered in 66 points and is a good threat to go all the way. He is 26-12-4-1 which says it all. His only fault, if he has a fault, is that if he doesn't clear that first turn clean he might give up the quest. In one of his races he was hit and finished last so his 66 points is classy when you realize that the others in the Final had an extra shot to gain points. You get a big zero for finishing eighth.

It seems that Rowdy Texan has to have good competition in order to race well. At present he is the wins leader at Super Seminole with 13 to his credit. Rowdy seems to dog it with greyhounds of lesser ability, but when the chips are down he just shines.

Rare Racer is the only entry from the Thorny Lea Kennel. Don Martino, called Mandrake the Magician by a lot of racing fans, wasn't able to work his charm on Sports Boot. First Tern or Flatter, but don't sell rare Racer short as he has had only 14 starts with a record of 9-2-1 which is 12 out of 14 in the trifecta. Not bad, is it? In his last race he was chopped hard in the first turn and failed to finish in the money, but his record shows he can run.

Dash A Poco has the most starts and the least amount of wins, but with eight victories, six places and three shows he is capable and could upset the apple cart if he can get running room.

So far we have talked about seven greyhounds. Who is number eight? If he had a Hollywood press agent, I could just picture him entering the track with trumpets blaring, the leadout throwing rose petals to his clamouring fans. It's none other than Sargent Bilko, who has 65 points. He has started 23 times and has an 11-4-4 record. Many racing fans feel he can get the job done.

Candiotti Shuts Out Angels; Pirates Snap Five-Game Skid

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — California's Bobby Grich had more sour grapes than a bustling winery.

Grich was stewing Thursday after the Angels were limited to eight hits by rookie Tom Candiotti in a 7-0 loss at Milwaukee.

Although Candiotti has now allowed just one run in his first two major-league starts, Grich doesn't think he has much of a future.

"I was not impressed with his pitching," said Grich, who doubled in three at-bats.

"He shut us out but we were just not swinging well. His pitching is not something to be impressed with."

Milwaukee catcher Ned Yost, whose three-run homer capped a five-run fifth, doesn't understand Grich's reaction.

"Candiotti had great stuff," said Yost. "He was throwing his curve and slider for strikes all day and he had a great cutting fast ball. He really knows how to spot the ball."

California starter Tommy John, 9-11, yielded 13 hits and seven runs in five innings.

"I think I have a bit of an advantage because most of the hitters have never seen me," said Candiotti, who was recalled from the Brewers' Triple A Vancouver team Aug. 6.

"Today I had a great defense behind me and I just relied on Yost to call the pitches. This is such a tremendous feeling."

Candiotti, 2-0, struck out four and walked two as he posted the Brewers' second consecutive shutout over the Angels.

Cecil Cooper had an RBI single in the first and Milwaukee went ahead 2-0 in the second when Yost and Rick Manning stroked one-out singles.

Jim Gantner hit into a fielder's choice and Paul Molitor singled.

The Brewers broke the game open in the fifth. Charlie Moore led off with a single and scored on Robin Yount's double.

The 1,500th hit of his career, Yount moved to third on Cooper's groundout and scored on a single by Ted Simmons.

Mark Brouhard then singled and Yost followed with his sixth home run.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York beat Seattle 7-4.

Minnesota defeated Boston 5-2. Oakland blanked Cleveland 6-0.

Detroit crushed Chicago 10-1. Baltimore rallied past Toronto 2-1 in 10 innings.

Kansas City swept Texas 3-1 and 5-4.

In the National League, Pittsburgh beat Houston 5-3 and St. Louis edged Atlanta 2-1.

Yankees 7, Mariners 4. At New York, Steve Kemp, Roy Smalley and Omar Moreno keyed a three-run third inning that helped Shane Rawley to his 13th win.

Rawley pitched his 11th complete game in 26 starts despite allowing the Mariners three runs in a wild first inning in which the Yankees made two errors and Rawley issued two walks.

Twins 5, Red Sox 2. At Minneapolis, Frank Viola tossed a three-hitter and the Twins capitalized on shoddy Boston infield play for the deciding run.

Mickey Hatcher opened the seventh with a single off Dennis Eckerle 10. One out later, Ron Washington singled to right and Hatcher tried for third.

The throw from Reid Nichols beat Hatcher but third baseman Wade Boggs missed the tag.

Darrell Brown followed with a grounder to shortstop Glenn an, who threw Brown out at first while Hatcher scored to give Minnesota a 3-2 lead.

A's 6, Indians 0. Mike Heath and Jeff Burroughs hit two-run doubles to highlight a five-run fifth inning at Cleveland.

Davey Lopes drove in two runs with a solo homer and a single to back the four-hit pitching of Oakland's Steve McCatty.

Tigers 10, White Sox 1. At Detroit, John Wockenfuss hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Ben Bergeru yielded just four hits over seven innings to pace the Tigers.

Chet Lemon and Lou Whitaker also homered for Detroit. Ben Bergeru led because of a cramped finger on his pitching hand.

The only run off him was Rudy Law's fifth-inning homer.

Orioles 2, Blue Jays 1. At Baltimore, Dan Ford doubled home two runs with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning to rally the Orioles.

After Barry Bonnell hit a solo home run with two out in the top of the 10th to give the Blue Jays a 1-0 lead, pinch hitter Joe Nolan and Al Bumbry both scored to give Minnesota a 3-2 lead.

Cardinals 2, Braves 1. At St. Louis, George Hendrick hit the first pitch from reliever Steve Bedrosian into the left-field bleachers in the bottom of the ninth to lift the Cardinals.

Hendrick lined his 14th homer of the year and second in three games to drop Bedrosian to 8-7 and give the victory to Neil Allen, 9-12, who relieved in the top of the inning.

In the only other NL game, St. Louis edged Atlanta 2-1.

In the American League, it was Oakland 6, Cleveland 0; Minnesota 5, Boston 2; New York 7, Seattle 4; Milwaukee 7, California 0; Detroit 10, Chicago 1; and Baltimore 2, Toronto 1.

single, Ford followed with his double to right-center to make a winner of Tippy Martinez.

8-3, Ford's hit came off Roy Lee Jackson, 6-2, who entered in the 10th in relief of starter Dave Stieb.

Royals 3-5, Rangers 1-4. At Kansas City, Frank White doubled home the tying run and scored the winner on a single by Pat Sheridan.

In the ninth inning, giving the Royals a sweep. He, the opener, White collected three hits and George Brett hit a home run.

Dan Quisenberry tied his club record with his 35th save.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In the tightly packed National League East, the smallest factors could make the difference — and not many things are smaller than Jose DeLeon's ERA.

"He just could be the difference in this division," Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner said Thursday night after the rookie helped the Pittsburgh Pirates snap a four-game losing streak with a 5-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

The victory gave DeLeon, 22, a 5-2 record in eight major-league starts. But his value to the Pirates is best demonstrated by the fact that their only victories in their last eight games were the two DeLeon pitched.

"Pitching is going to decide this division, and he has brought that dimension to our staff," Tanner said. "Of course our other pitchers have done the job too."

Tony Pena hit a solo homer and an RBI single and Jim Morrison drove in two runs with a single and a double.

DeLeon struck out 11 over 8 2-3 innings. His ERA stands at 2.08. Bob Knepper, 5-13, took the loss.

DeLeon was lifted after walking Bill Doran with two out and none on in the ninth. Alan Ashby homered with one out in the ninth for the Astros. Rod Scully retired pinch hitter Tim Tolman for the final out to notch his seventh save.

"It was the kind of game you wish you could come out after six innings," DeLeon said. "but I really wanted to finish because of the way our bullpen has been struggling."

DeLeon has now struck out 10 or more batters three times and taken a no-hitter into the seventh inning three times in his rookie major-league season.

"He showed a lot of composure," said Astros third baseman and former Pirate Phil Garner. "He was able to change his game plan when he had to. When his breaking ball didn't work, he could get the fastball over, and when his fastball didn't work, he got the breaking ball over."

In the first inning, Lee Lacy walked, stole second and scored on a double by Morrison. Pena led off the second inning with his ninth home run. DeLeon walked two outs later and scored on singles by Lacy and Morrison.

The Astros pulled within 3-1 in the sixth on Dickie Thon's sacrifice fly, but Pittsburgh scored in the bottom of the inning when Dave Parker doubled and Pena singled.

Ray Knight singled in Bill Doran for the Astros in the eighth. In the bottom of the inning, Bill Madlock drew a leadoff walk, took third on reliever Dave Smith's errant pickoff throw and scored on a sacrifice fly by Jason Thompson.

In the only other NL game, St. Louis edged Atlanta 2-1.

In the American League, it was Oakland 6, Cleveland 0; Minnesota 5, Boston 2; New York 7, Seattle 4; Milwaukee 7, California 0; Detroit 10, Chicago 1; and Baltimore 2, Toronto 1.

Little League WS Saturday

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — A team from Marietta, Ga., will face one from Barahona, Dominican Republic, Saturday in the championship game of the Little League World Series.

Marietta beat Stamford, Conn., 9-8 Thursday in semifinal action to secure their spot in the 2 p.m. EDT final and Barahona dropped Osaka, Japan, 3-0 in a no-hit game later the same day.

Barahona made it to the final on the pitching of right-hander Jose Almonte, who gave the team a near perfect game Thursday against Osaka. He faced only 19 batters, one over the minimum for a six inning game, and struck out two and walked three.

In the earlier game, Adam Olmstead's bases loaded single with two out in the bottom of the sixth drove in the winning run for Marietta.

Dave Gernett, who pitched five and two-thirds innings of relief in notching the victory, scored the winning run.

Gernett was 4-for-4 at bat, while striking out 10 from the mound.

Aspirin And Rest Don't Help Lower Back Pain

WASHINGTON (UPI) - There is no evidence to show bed rest and aspirin do any good for the lower back pain which strikes four out of five U.S. adults - but they certainly wouldn't do any harm, a Texas researcher reported today.

Dr. Richard A. Deyo, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Texas Health Sciences Center in San Antonio, said even though back pain has been studied for ages there is little agreement about the best way to treat it.

His survey of research on lower back pain indicates certain exercises and drugs appear to be more effective, but there are only a few studies supporting that view.

"The main thrust of the whole thing is we really do need more and better research in this area," Deyo said in a telephone interview.

Does that mean back pain sufferers should avoid the bed rest-and-aspirin routine? Not necessarily, Deyo said. "My hunch is that it's good," he said, but it is hard to tell "because most (back pain) patients get better no matter what you do."

Lower back pain is believed to occur in an estimated 80 percent of adults at one time or another. Deyo wrote in the Journal of the American Medical Association, and is the most frequent chronic condition to cause absence from school or work or an inability to perform housework.

One major insurance company said it paid more than $200 million in a year for back insurance claims and that American workers lose 93 million workdays annually because of back pain.

In 80 percent of the victims, doctors simply do not know the cause of the pain. Among the remaining 20 percent, a small number are afflicted with herniated discs, in which fluid leaks from the discs that separate vertebrae in the spine. Others have chronic nerve or spinal conditions. Only a few require surgery.

Deyo surveyed research on lower back pain and found that even though the affliction is one of the most widespread, there have been only 33 studies on methods of treatment.

Many of the studies were flawed and some had not been updated since the 1930s, he said.

There is solid evidence bed rest alleviates pressure on the spine and pain for herniated disc victims, Deyo wrote.

For the rest, until better evidence comes along, the best treatments appear to be isometric flexion exercises and three drugs.

The exercises include sit-ups with knees flexed, pelvic tilt exercises, or lying down and raising legs in a bicycle maneuver, he said. They can be performed during an attack to alleviate pain or afterward to prevent recurrence, depending on what feels best to the patient.

The drugs are naproxen and diflunisal, anti-inflammatory agents, and carisoprodol, a muscle relaxant. However, Deyo wrote, no one has shown those drugs are better than aspirin.

There is little evidence corsets, electronic stimulation of nerves to block pain or traction are beneficial, Deyo wrote.

French Used Nazi War Criminals In '45 For Intelligence Gathering

PARIS (UPI) - The Nazi hunters who unmasked Lyon Gestapo chief Klaus Barbie accused French intelligence services of taking Nazi war criminals into their ranks after the war in exchange for information on the activities of communists.

Serge and Beate Klarsfeld said Thursday the French secret services employed Ernst Misselwitz, who as head of the Paris-based Resistance Bureau monitored the activities of French underground workers, beginning in 1945.

The U.S. Justice Department last week apologized to the French government after admitting that American intelligence services had hired Barbie after the war and later helped him escape to South America.

The Klarsfelds said in an article published by the Paris daily Le Monde that Misselwitz had been directly responsible for the torture in February 1944 of well-known French resistance fighter Pierre Brossolette.

Brossolette was beaten for several hours before he committed suicide by jumping through a window. The couple also cited war-time accounts indicating that Misselwitz was the officer to whom Barbie claimed he delivered national resistance leader Jean Moulin, who died in Nazi custody in June 1943.

Quoting unpublished documents issued by the French intelligence service DST, the Klarsfelds said Misselwitz offered his services to the French in September 1945 and was regarded highly by officers who questioned him. "Misselwitz must be treated with care," the couple quoted a 1947 report as saying. "His activity in Germany could be very helpful for our services."

The Klarsfelds said Misselwitz was arrested by the French on the suspicions of a German official, but was interrogated repeatedly by an officer who "tested" him by leaving him with a suspected communist on whom the former Gestapo officer drew up a report. He was eventually released by the French in January 1946, the couple said.

"Thus by the beginning of 1946, Misselwitz had become an agent of France's special services in Germany," the Klarsfelds said. They said Misselwitz, along with another Nazi officer, was charged in 1951 with torturing Brossolette but did not appear for the trial and was sentenced to a 5-year jail term in absentia.

"Perhaps Ernst Misselwitz is still living in Germany," the Klarsfelds said. "We do not know when his career with the French special services ended." Interviewed on French television Thursday, Serge Klarsfeld said he hoped his disclosures would prompt the government to hold an inquiry into the use of Misselwitz as an agent.

"We revealed the links Barbie had with American intelligence and that gave rise to an inquiry," he said. "Now I think a commission of inquiry could establish the Misselwitz role in the (French) special services."

There was no comment on the allegations by either the justice or interior ministries.

Bowler Nabbed As Wedding Bandit

WESTPORT, Mass. (UPI) - A professional bowler was arrested for allegedly posing as a receptionist guest and snatching thousands of dollars in wedding gifts from celebrating newlyweds.

Police said Raymond Desrochers, 32, of Somerset allegedly stole about $15,000 in checks and savings bonds and an unknown amount of cash from wedding receptions in Northboro, West Bridgewater, Whitman and Tiverton, R.I.

Desrochers was arrested at a Westport bowling alley Thursday and was to be arraigned today in Westboro District Court.

"This is the guy I've been looking for," said

Tiverton Police Detective Robert Toolin, who has been on the case for several months since the wedding bandit hit a Tiverton reception, bilking the bride and groom of $1,385.

"I talked to him and he claims he's a member of the PBA (Professional Bowlers Association)," Toolin said. "He claims he's been working every weekend with the Eastern Regionals."

He was charged with larceny by Northboro police. Two Northboro couples - the most recent victims in the string of thefts - reported $4,000 stolen at their wedding receptions earlier this month.

Slob, 24, Needs Positive Attitude

DEAR DR. LAMB - As the saying goes, "If you want to find out what's wrong with a man, ask his wife." My husband has a health problem. He smokes too much and sleeps too much. He smokes about two packs of cigarettes a day. We both get up at the same time to go to work and he is home a few hours before I am. By 8 p.m. he is sound asleep. He is overweight and gets depressed about his weight. Diets are out because he can't follow them. His eating habits are terrible.

At one time he was in excellent physical condition. He would work out, lift weights and play sports. That was only three years ago. He is only 24 and I fear he is becoming an old man before his time.

I have been dieting as an incentive for him but it hasn't helped. Is there anything that can be done?

DEAR READER - There is a lot that can be done - the problem is getting him to do it. That is true of many people. It is not knowing what you should or should not do but the motivation to do something about it.

You might point out to him that statistics from the American Cancer Society show that smokers who smoke 40 or more cigarettes a day are five and a half times as likely to have heart disease or drop dead as non-smokers.

Being overweight is frequently associated with an increase in cholesterol and blood pressure, the other two major risk factors associated with heart attacks and strokes.

Your husband needs to take a positive attitude toward his health. Plan an exercise program you can do with him. Go over The Health Letter 13-2, How to Measure Your Risk of Heart Disease, with him which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you comment on exercising on a stationary bike? I do not walk outside after dark and it is not safe to be out on the streets here after dark. I ride my stationary bike three times a day every day. I ride five miles in the morning, 10 miles at noon and 10 miles at night all at a speed of 20 miles per hour. I'm on a diet because I am very overweight. I wondered if this would do the same thing walking would do for you.

DEAR READER - Many exercise bikes can be set at different resistances which affects how much work you actually do. I can't give you a rule that will apply to all indoor bikes, but you may be able to convert from a standard outdoor bike to your bike on the basis of data that comes with your own bike.

Remember that it takes twice as many calories to walk as to ride a bike the same mile, and it takes three times as much energy to jog the same mile. You can assign a relative value of 1, 2 and 3 for biking, walking and jogging respectively.

If your exercise bike is set to give you the same resistance you would have with outdoor biking and you biked 20 miles a day, it would be similar to walking 10 miles a day. And it is easier on your joints.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand diagram showing North, South, East, and West cards and a vulnerable dealer.

Terence Reese and Martin Hoffman show this hand in "International Popular Bridge." West opens a heart against the spade slam. South ruffs, leads a trump to dummy's king and one back toward his hand.

East plays his spade jack. South puts on his ace. West shows out, and it looks as if South has no play for that spade slam.

Nevertheless, South finds a way to make it. He simply leads a club to dummy's king, finesses his club 10 and cashes the ace. Now he cashes dummy's top diamonds and starts to run clubs. East can get only one trump trick, and South has his top score.

You may wonder how South could decide to take that finesse against East's guarded queen of clubs. No, Reese and Hoffman had not seen the cards. The reason the finesse was taken is that unless East holds three clubs, there is no way to shut out East's nine of spades. South must take that finesse to have any possible play for that bad spade contract.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby
Maybe some rubber bridge players would get to six spades but we doubt it. Six clubs is a cinch and rubber bridge players like cinch slams. Match point duplicate is a differing proposition since duplicate players try for top scores.

Meet Hero

One day he may bring you your morning coffee, do the laundry, watch the kids or walk the dog. He is, obviously, a robot. And as the little mechanical men become more sophisticated, their use is expected to become almost commonplace. You may one day have Hero as your valet or maid. Uh...Hero, would you turn the page please so we can read the rest of the story on page 2.

SCC Students Learn To Build, Program Robots

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

How would you like your very own robot around the house?

A mechanical mass of tubes, transistors, wires, valves, and computer chips to do all manner of domestic drudgery.

Ever since the first computer was invented, man has dreamed of the marriage of computer and machine which would bring mechanical men to life.

But until recently, robots were just fanciful creatures in science fiction films and the dreams of insightful engineers. But with the advent of microcomputers, which can perform hundreds of functions a second, robots have taken the quantum leap from the mind's eye into reality.

Think of all the things a robot could do for you. It could be programmed to make your morning coffee, fetch the newspaper, babysit the kids, even to serve as an electronic watchdog.

Sound far-fetched? Not really, as students at Seminole Community College are learning.

Students in two programs at SCC will be involved in building and programming two robots this fall. The school has purchased two Heathkits at $1,500 each for robotics training. (A fully assembled model is available from the manufacturer for $2,495.)

The program is a marriage of the school's vocational program with the associate of science program in electronics. Students in the vocational division's engineering technology classes will be assembling the robots and students in the electronics program will be learning how to program the robots to do a variety of tasks.

HERO 1, a demonstration model of the robot which will be built by the students, has already become a hit on campus. The robot has wheels, an arm with a grip 'hand,' electronic sensors which can detect light, sound and motion and a voice module, obviously programmed by a human with a sense of humor.

When HERO obeys the command to find the brightest source of light in a room, his arm points to the light and then says, "Can you turn down the light? It hurts my eyes."

The robot is also grateful for being unpacked from the box it was shipped in. "I'm sure glad to get out of that box," it says.

The robot can be adapted to many household uses. It can be programmed to bring your coffee cup (it may not be full unless you program HERO properly), use its sensors to detect prowlers in your house, get the mail or many other household chores.

Despite the sense of humor it possesses, the robot is not a toy, even though it should make learning more fun.

"But the students won't be just playing with it."

says Everett Mitchell, chairman of SCC's engineering and industrial division. "They'll be learning what makes it operate, the guts of it."

By learning to assemble and program the robot, students should better prepare themselves for jobs in the rapidly expanding robotics industry. For the vocational students, they'll be equipped to build the machines. For the electronics students, they'll know how to use them.

Robots are being developed to replace humans in boring, routine assembly-line jobs. Some estimates say as many as 250,000 robots may be in use by the end of this decade with companies like Westinghouse leading the way in development of the machines.

"As industry upgrades, we want to do our best to equip our students," Mitchell says.

In Central Florida, high technology has become a buzz word, signifying the advanced use of microprocessors in all aspects of engineering. From Westinghouse, Martin-Marietta, NCR, International Laser and other high-tech firms in the area to the developments along the Space Coast, qualified workers are needed, Mitchell says.

And if robots are to be common in the workplace by 1990, how much longer can it be until we have mechanical companions to perform all manner of drudgery around the house?

Slouched Back, Hats Pulled Down, Country Stars Talk Easy On TNN

By Julianne Hastings
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Nashville Network touts its talk show Bobby Bare and Friends as focusing on

"perhaps the most unrecognized link in the music industry — the songwriters."

So who are some of the poor "unrecognized" souls Bare will be interviewing this fall on the advertiser-supported cable TV service?

Willie Nelson, Charlie Daniels, Shel Silverstein — pretty anonymous bunch, huh?

Come on TNN!

When it comes to country, if you're talking to a songwriter, there's a pretty good chance you're going to be talking to a singer.

Even Silverstein, "Playboy" cartoonist, writer of children's books and composer of such songs as the The Unicorn and A Boy Named Sue, has made a spoof album of X-rated songs.

But that's what makes watching the shows, which TNN airs three times a day during its 18 hours of programming, such good fun.

Bare, who gained fame as a country singer with his recording Detroit City on the Columbia Records label, is a low-key host who dons a trucker's hat, hunkers down in a canvas chair and chats Nashville with his guests.

Rachel Ward's 'Night School'

NEW YORK - Rachel Ward, who zoomed to stardom with "The Thorn Birds," is getting zonked with a stinker she made a few B-movies ago. It's titled "Night School." In it sweet Rachel plays a deranged killer... In the '70s, manager Ron Samuels put whatever it is he has into making Jaclyn Smith, Lindsay Wagner and his wife, Lynda Carter stars. Now, in the '80s, he has turned his efforts toward Janine Turner. Janine, who was on "General Hospital," has what Samuels calls "timeless beauty." I'll tell that to Ava Gardner when I see her.

Rock Hudson won't - repeat, won't - do an autobio... Those Fondas really practice the work ethic. Peter Fonda agreed to a cheapo film in Germany for a motorbike... Saudi Arabia's King Fahd treated himself to a $50 million yacht. It has five decks, carries 60 guests and was refurbished in Southampton... Tony Martin's looking to drag his one-man show, "Music of a Matinee Idol," to New York.

'Amazing' Unicorn Is One-Of-A-Kind

DEAR DICK: You blew it. In a recent column you told a reader there were no such things as real live unicorns and never have been. But I saw one on "Those Amazing Animals." His owners carefully bred him. — K.H., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Lots of letters like that came in. All I can say is: You unicorn folks are unique. Continuing that prize beast to seek. But a thing with one horn has never been born. Unless (as in this case) it's a freak.

DEAR DICK: There is an actress, Madlyn Rhue, who plays Daphne on "Days of our Lives." Does she have a permanent injury? Was she in an accident? She limps now, but didn't used to limp at all. — M.M., Amarillo, Texas.

It's not permanent. Madlyn tells me she was visiting friends, stepped in a weak spot in the floor, fell and broke her leg. It was a bad break and is taking a long time to heal.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Please tell me what happened to Lilibet Stern, who played Patti on "The Young and the Restless." I see Andrea Evan Massey plays Patti now. — D.V., Plainwell, Mich.

Lilibet left the show, because she had been getting offers to do other things, such as movies, TV movies, etc. The show would never give her the time off to accept those offers, so she decided to move on. Her agent says she has a few big things coming.

DEAR DICK: When was the original "Honeymooners" made? I say it was in the '50s and Jackie Gleason's variety show followed in the '60s with a revival of "The Honeymooners," in which Sheila MacRae replaced Audrey Meadows. My father says the variety show came first. Who's right? — W.H., Otsego, Mich.

You're almost right. "The Honeymooners" began in 1951 as a segment on the old "Cavalcade of Stars" show, with Gleason, Art Carney and Pert Kelton as Alice. Then, on Jackie's own show, Audrey took over. In '55, it became a show by itself with Audrey and, later, Sheila.

DEAR DICK: Can you please tell me whatever happened to "My Mother the Car" and the other old shows? Will they ever be on TV again? — S.K., Saginaw, Mich.

Mercifully, that show and many others are dead and buried. An occasional rerun perhaps, but, if we're lucky, we won't have to see them again. Ever.

Cindy's Country Kitchen; Home Style Cooking

Crisp red and white curtains and a bright, homey atmosphere invite hungry diners to Cindy's Country Kitchen, where good home style food is freshly prepared every day.

Formerly the Omelet Revolution, this restaurant is now owned by longtime resident, Harold Tersigni, and Cindy Sweat, who has 13 years in the food business in Florida.

Tersigni explains that the restaurant offers "Sanford style home cooking" from the biscuits and sausage gravy served each morning this month for 99 cents to freshly prepared black-eyed peas, green beans and cornbread for other meals.

Cindy's breakfasts will feature honey and biscuits, creamed chipped beef and there is a daily special of two eggs, home fries, toast and coffee for 99 cents.

A choice of different luncheons are offered every day with specials ranging from $1.95 to $2.95. Each is a complete meal served with beverage. Light lunches, such as chef salads from $1.75 to $1.95, and diet plates of tuna salad or hamburger patty with sliced tomatoes, peaches and cottage cheese are $2.25.

Breakfast is served from 5:30 in the morning when the doors open until 9:30 closing. Luncheon specials are offered from 11:30 until 4 when the dinner hour begins.

Eleven choices are given on the menu for dinner, but additional specials are offered every day. They may be barbecued chicken or ribs, meatloaf or spaghetti with sauce and homemade noodles.

Dinner prices start at $2.95 and include potato, vegetable, salad and dessert.

Although Cindy is head chef at her Country Kitchen, five others assist in the prep work and keep the pots boiling. Tersigni, a businessman who has traveled a great deal and has tasted many different kinds of food, says that he knows what he wants.

"No imitations," he asserts. "Everything is fresh and real...country style cooking is what we emphasize."
