County Workers To Get 2.5% Pay Hike After All

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Whether it's because of union organizing or because the county will receive some unexpected money from property taxes, Seminole County workers will receive previously unbudgeted 2.5 percent cost-of-living raises this year.

County commissioners decided at a Monday work session to give their 523 employees the raises, which will cost about $346,000.

Commissioners had dropped the raises from this year's spending plan in July ago in an attempt to balance the budget.

But the decision to eliminate the raises proved unpopular with county workers and has been the basis for a unionizing effort by the National Association of Government Employees. About 75 employees, 15 percent of the total county work force, so far have shown an interest in the union, according to NAGE spokesman Sam Ingham in Orlando.

The county will receive about $254,000 in anticipated property taxes because of new construction in the county. That money, plus $110,000 expected to be saved during a $1.1 million renovation of the County Services Building, will be used to pay for the cost-of-living raises.

"The rationale is simple," County Administrator T. Duncan Rose said today. "Seminole County is recognized as a good place to work. It's important to the board that we do something for our best resource — the employees."

Rose said the unionizing effort was one of several things county officials were concerned with during budget proceedings. But the deciding factor in giving the raises, which will take effect in January, was the additional funds from property taxes, he said.

"We felt all along we were going to do something for the employees. It was just a matter of how much we could afford," Rose said.

The pay hikes are part of an overall county plan to improve relations between employees and managers.

Another part of the plan, the county paying for 25 percent of the health insurance costs for dependents of employees, will also be considered by commissioners.

The plan was far and away the biggest concern of employees in recent meetings held by the county's personnel department, Rose said. If approved by the board, the plan would cost the county about $55,000 annually. Employee health insurance is already paid by the county.

Also included in the employee relations plan is a program to recognize outstanding employees with certificates of merit, reward good workers with cash payments or additional vacation time for not using all of their sick leave, hold an annual employee picnic paid for with profits from vending machines on county property and making sure county employees who need it are provided with safety equipment.

Suspect Jailed In Blaze That Killed Brother

By Charles Cobb
Herald Staff Writer

A second suspect has been arrested and charged with murder and arson in connection with a June 1982 fire in Oviedo that killed the suspect's brother.

William Earl Fogle, 51, was arrested Monday in Houston and charged on a Florida warrant with second-degree murder, first-degree arson, burning to defraud an insurer and conspiracy to commit arson, officials said. He was being held in a Houston jail today under $5,000 bond.

Fogle's sister-in-law, Joyce Elaine Fogle, 44, of 1455 Lady Amy Drive, Casselberry, was arrested on identical charges Friday. She was released from Seminole County jail Saturday after posting $5,000, according to Ray Pippin, chief arson investigator with the Seminole County fire department.

Investigators say that on June 27, 1982, Robert Fogle set an Oviedo house on fire and died as a result of smoke inhalation. He was William Fogle's brother and Joyce Fogle's husband.

Investigators said Fogle was attempting to burn a vacant house he and his wife owned on Spring Street west of Oviedo to collect $30,000 insurance on the house.

But he mistakenly used gasoline instead of kerosene to start the blaze, resulting in an explosion that led to his death, investigators claim.

Prior to the fire, Fogle had nailed shut all the doors in the house except for a rear door through which he planned to escape, investigators said.

But after the explosion, Fogle, who suffered severe burns over a large portion of his body, was apparently unable to reach the door and fell through a window, investigators said.

Several eyewitnesses saw Fogle inside the house after the fire started, said Dawson Kerr, Seminole County fire department investigator.

After Fogle fell through the window, neighbors carried him across the street to the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Pollack. Fogle was dead on the scene when rescue workers arrived a few minutes later, Kerr said.

Kerr said investigators allege William Fogle advised his brother on how to set the Oviedo fire.

Kerr said William Fogle was not in the Central Florida area at the time of the fire, but under Florida law a person not present at the scene of a felony that results in a death can be held accountable for the death.

Pippin said a $30,000 claim was filed with Aetna Insurance Co. in connection with the fire, but the firm refused to pay it.

Pippin said the State Attorney's office in Sanford will attempt to have Fogle extradited from Texas so he can be tried here.

S. Seminole To Get Expressway?

The Seminole County Expressway Authority has hired a deputy director and given the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority permission to study a route for a possible expressway in the southern end of the county.

The expressway authority named Storm Richards, currently in the Seminole County Planning office, as deputy director with a $23,000 annual salary. Richards will take over the post some time in September and will assume responsibility for the group's business. Included in those responsibilities will be supervision of studies to determine potential expressway routes in the county. Richards has worked with the expressway group since it was formed last year and was the only applicant for the newly-created post.

County Public Works Director Jack Schuder will remain as director of the expressway authority. Richards' new office will be in the Public Works complex at Five Points. Richards' salary will be paid from a $109,000 state loan.

Authority members also voted

Monday to allow the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority to conduct a feasibility study on a possible expressway of about four miles from State Road 426 and the Orange County line to State Road 419 near Winter Springs.

The study would include a possible location for the segment along with cost estimates for construction and operation, according to Schuder.

The Orange County group recently presented to its Seminole counterpart a plan for a beltway east and west of Orlando. That plan calls for construction of a bypass from the East-West Expressway to Sanford in a loop which includes the University of Central Florida, State Route 419 east of Winter Springs, a bridge over Lake Jessup to a connection with Interstate 4 either at Lake Mary Boulevard or at State Road 46 in Sanford. That toll road is expected to cost about $34 million. Construction funds would probably come from a bond issue, Schuder said.

A western bypass would go from S.R. 46 around Wekiva State Park to connect with State Road 436 west of Interstate 4. That beltway would continue south to Disney. No cost estimates are available on the western bypass.

The eastern corridor, particularly the segment between the county line and S.R. 419, is considered critical by the Orange County group. Development in the eastern portion of Seminole County will provide considerable traffic for the Orange County expressway system but the same development is rapidly consuming land which could be used for expressway construction.

Seminole County Commissioners Robert Sturm and Bill Kirchhoff said they approve of the study but do not want to be committed to use the site selected by the Orange County group.

Kirchhoff said the segment from S.R. 419 south to the county line is expected to generate about 36,000 trips a day by the year 2000, that will benefit the Orange County system not Seminole County.

For a Seminole County expressway to be successful, he said, the expressway must provide direct access to people "living on the I-4 corridor and in Deltona who are going to UCF or their place of employment. A segment to (S.R.) 419 won't pay for itself.

In order to connect the southern segment with the north end of the county the expressway authority will have to build a bridge over Lake Jessup. Construction could be staggered with the southern segment coming first, Schuder said, but we'll "face a deficit for some time."

Sanford Man Drowns In Daytona Beach

A 26-year-old Sanford man drowned in the ocean at Daytona Beach Sunday night after a wave swept him away from shore.

Herbert Wilson, 2918 Bungalow Blvd., was wading in waist-deep water with his brother, Freddie Wilson, 22, of the same address, at the 200 block of North Ocean Avenue at about 7:30 p.m. when the wave struck them.

Freddie Wilson said his brother was carried out by the wave and called for help but he was unable to reach him. Neither man could swim.

Wilson said the lifeguards were off duty and he ran to a nearby store and the store clerk called police who summoned two off-duty lifeguards.

The lifeguards found Herbert Wilson's body floating face down and pulled the body from the water shortly before 8 p.m.

Freddie Wilson said he, his brother, his sister and three of her children were enjoying an outing at the beach when the accident occurred.

He said Herbert Wilson was from Arkansas and had lived in Sanford for about five months. He was a house painter. He was married and had no children.

Freddie Wilson described his brother as a "very friendly person" and a devout Christian who was active in church affairs.

The drowning marked the third time this month that a visitor to the Halifax area has died in the ocean.

School Attendance Up

A long-awaited enrollment jump finally has hit the Seminole County School District.

Attendance at the district's 42 schools on the first day of school Monday was 36,160, nearly a five percent increase over last year's first-day attendance of 34,304.

And enrollment is expected to go even higher. Karen Coleman, the school district's director of community relations, said some families are still on vacation until Labor Day while other families will soon move into the district.

By the end of the year, school officials predict enrollment will reach 37,476. The district's enrollment was about 35,500 when school closed in June.

Assistant Superintendent for Finance Roger Harris has predicted that a growth spurt would soon hit the district. He anticipated a possible 3 percent increase in enrollment, about the equivalent of a new school.

"This will present special challenges," Mrs. Coleman said. "We'll have to provide space and textbooks for all of the new students."

More than half of the new students are in high school, Mrs. Coleman said. Last year, 10,399 high school students attended the first day of school. This year, high school enrollment is 11,353, an increase of 954 students. Middle school enrollment increased by 487 from last year's 9,053 students to this year's 9,540. Elementary school attendance rose by 415, from last year's 14,852 to 15,267.

Last year's opening day enrollment was somewhat smaller than the actual enrollment because more than 1,000 students were turned away from class the first day for not having proper immunization records. They were admitted later, after getting proper records.

The large number of new high school students should complicate the district's efforts to provide science and math textbooks in compliance with the state's recently approved RAISE Bill which increases the number of science and math credits needed for graduation.

Mrs. Coleman said additional textbooks and other materials probably will have to be ordered to keep up with the growth at the district's six high schools.

Second Neglected Dog Dies

A second Doberman pinscher seized from an Oviedo kennel has died despite efforts to save the dog.

The dog, which had skin disease and infected feet, died Sunday at a Casselberry veterinarian's clinic where it was being treated.

Authorities seized the 6-month-old dog and seven other dogs and a kitten Thursday at the Snow Hill Kennels and Plant Farm on County Road 426 northeast of Oviedo.

Last week, another Doberman pinscher died of heart failure, apparently caused by heartworms, officials said.

Water Tops Lake Mary Candidates' Concerns TODAY

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Top priorities in Lake Mary for the immediate future should be: acquiring its own water supply, road improvements and public safety — police and fire departments.

This was the consensus of four of the seven candidates for three city commission seats at a "meet the candidates night" sponsored by the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce Monday at city hall.

In addition, three other would-be office holders — Colin Keogh, Arthur "Buzz" Petros and Dennis Smathers — listed zoning and long-term planning as their primary concerns.

About 100 Lake Mary residents attended the forum, moderated by the League of Women Voters and designed to inform the electorate for next Tuesday's municipal election.

Candidates for the various seats up for election include: Seat 1: Martin "Marty" Bacon and Keogh; Seat 3: Robert "Bob" Stoddard and Harry Terry; Seat 5: Burt Perinchief, Petros and Smathers.

In brief presentations:

• Bacon emphasized his previous nearly two years' experience on the city commission. He said the city's major priority should be acquiring its own water supply, saying it would be difficult, but possible to get a federal grant or float a bond issue to build a system. Bacon noted that the city of Sanford (Lake Mary's water supplier) is limiting the number of new connections it will serve

Reagan: Forces To Stay The Same In Lebanon

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan plans no changes in the current size and role of America's 1,200-man military force in Lebanon despite the death of two Marines in Beirut fighting.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters Monday that Reagan, acting on the advice of his top-level aides, decided there will be no adjustments in the status, numbers or responsibility of the Marines in the four-nation peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

At the same time, a crisis panel headed by Vice President George Bush directed a review of the War Powers Act to ensure the administration is complying with provisions requiring regular reports to Congress whenever American troops are deployed.

An administration official suggested Monday that Syria is behind the new outbreak in factional fighting that led to the death of the two Marines. He indicated the Syrian motivation may have been to keep the Lebanese army out of the Shouf area or to force American troops out of Lebanon.

Prison Riot Quelled

HOMINY, Okla. (UPI) — Officers regained control of a fire-gutted prison today and sought the last of nearly 750 inmates who battled guards and burned buildings in a riot that left one prisoner dead and 23 inmates and guards injured.

Gov. George Nigh declared a state of emergency and summoned 100 members of the National Guard from Bartlesville and Ponca City and at least 120 Highway Patrol troopers to the Conner Correctional Center.

John Reid, the governor's news secretary, said the facility built for 400 prisoners housed 748 inmates and "the entire prison was involved" in the rioting.

Robert White, a deputy director in the Corrections Department in Oklahoma City, said the cause of the riot was undetermined.

Solidarity Calls For Nationwide Protest

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Lech Walesa and Solidarity activists defied Poland's Communist authorities and urged protests to show the spirit of their outlawed trade union lives on three years after its birth.

Police increased their guard around the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk, Solidarity's birthplace, and local authorities warned they would crack down on any attempt — by Walesa or anyone else — to "break established rules."

The Solidarity underground Monday asked workers nationwide to take part in peaceful demonstrations Wednesday, to mark the ceremony at the shipyard on Aug. 31, 1980, when the Communist regime agreed Polish workers could have unions independent of government control.

Solidarity, outlawed when Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski declared martial law Dec. 13, 1981, planned the demonstrations to have maximum effect at large industrial sites in Poland's cities.

Workers were asked to boycott all forms of public transportation between 2 and 4 p.m. Wednesday and to march to central sites for rallies.

Sanford-Seminole Art Show Set Oct. 29-30

The Sanford-Seminole Art Association's "Fall for Art" committee has announced its 11th annual show will be held Oct. 29 and 30 on the grounds of the Sanford City Hall at Park Avenue and Fulton Street.

The Fall for Art committee met this week to plan the arts and craft show which will feature more than $3,500 in prize money for exhibitors, excellent art, entertainment, food and fun for everyone.

Chairman again this year will be Jane Patterson, Altamonte Springs artist. Her co-chairman will be Jeanette Policastro.

Mrs. Patterson said that the show is being held later than usual this year to avoid conflicting dates with other area art shows and because of complaints about the heat on the pavement in previous years. Last year's show was held Oct. 9-10.

In the past the "Fall for Art" event has been held on First Street, but Mrs. Patterson said the new location was selected because it is more scenic and it will not require blocking off First Street — a main downtown thoroughfare — which drew objections from some merchants. Plans call for blocking off Park Avenue between the city hall and the courthouse and possibly Fulton between Park and Myrtle Avenue, she said.

The Sanford-Seminole Art Association is a non-profit organization.

Applications will be mailed out in the near future. New exhibitors not on the present mailing list, may request applications by writing to Sanford-Seminole Art Association, 1190 Adams St., Longwood, Fla. 32750.

Shuttle's Shot In The Dark Sends 1st Black Into Space

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The shuttle Challenger rocketed a black American and his four crewmates into orbit early today, riding a brilliant plume of orange flame that turned night into day in a spectacle seen 400 miles away.

It was like an instantaneous sunrise. The flame gushing from Challenger's twin booster rockets cast an eerie orange glow that brightened in seconds to virtual daylight intensity over the rain-soaked spaceport.

"It was daylight almost all the way up," commander Richard Truly reported from an altitude of 29 miles, 2 minutes into the unprecedented night flight.

Truly, co-pilot Daniel Brandenstein and mission specialists Gulon Bluford, Dale Gardner and Dr. William Thornton flew the winged space freighter first into a preliminary orbit and finally into a safe orbit about 184 miles high.

Bluford is the first American black in space and Thornton, at 54, is the oldest man ever to reach orbit.

A major test objective was achieved 1½ hours after launch when the Challenger's communications were relayed to Earth for the first time by NASA's new $100 million tracking satellite for 34 minutes, bypassing ground stations across the United States. The satellite, and a twin to be launched next year, are designed to provide almost constant communications with shuttles.

Challenger, making its third flight and the eighth in the shuttle program, began the six-day mission when its three hydrogen engines and two booster rockets roared into life at 2:32 a.m. — 17 minutes late because of rain and clouds in the area. It was the first shuttle launch delay since the third shuttle flight 17 months ago.

Principal goal of the mission is to launch a $50 million three-in-one satellite for the government of India Wednesday morning. The satellite is designed to relay up to 8,000 telephone calls simultaneously across India, beam television directly to 100,000 rural antennas and take weather pictures.

Also aboard Challenger are six white rats in an experimental space cage, a medicine processing machine to separate living pancreas, kidney and pituitary gland cells and 260,000 commemorative stamped envelopes to be sold by the U.S. Postal Service.

Gulon S. Bluford
...Astronaut

Black Astronaut Is 'Long Overdue'

DENVER (UPI) — America's first black astronaut trainee says the launching of the nation's first black pilot aboard the space shuttle Challenger is long overdue.

"It's just plain ridiculous," said Ed Dwight, 49, a retired Air Force captain who said he was appointed in 1962 by President Kennedy, following an extensive search for a black, to train for the United States' military space program.

"Now, more than 20 years later they get blacks and women involved when it becomes rather pedestrian ... when all the excitement is gone," he said in a recent interview.

Dwight, a VIP guest for the Challenger's launching, said he was not attempting to diminish the significance of Gulon S. Bluford's or Sally Ride's role in the nation's space program. But he said it was disturbing that the talents and skills of minorities and women were only now being taken seriously.

Bluford, 40, an Air Force lieutenant colonel, is a mission specialist on the crew of the Challenger. He is one of four blacks in the NASA astronaut corps.

"There was a time when a black could have been in the space program and had some impact, like John Glenn and Harrison Schmitt," Dwight said. "But the space program at that time disallowed black folks and it had nothing to do with qualifications. It had to do with choice."

Dwight, a highly acclaimed sculptor, said he resigned from the military space program in 1966 under immense pressure from Air Force and NASA officials who he contended were not prepared to seriously accept the prospect of a black astronaut.

"They didn't want black involvement. They felt that to send blacks into space would lessen the general public's enthusiasm for the space program."

An Air Force spokesman said Monday Dwight was a preliminary selection for the Air Force Manned Orbiting Laboratory program, but the spokesman said Dwight did not complete test pilot school — a step necessary before going to space test pilot school.

Dwight said he never aspired to become an astronaut before Kennedy's search committee approached him, but because he was qualified as a test pilot he gladly accepted the challenge, which represented a major breakthrough for blacks.

Dwight said after his resignation he was replaced in the space program by another black, Bob Lawrence, who was appointed by President Johnson. But Lawrence died in a plane crash soon afterward.

Aquino's Murderer Identified

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The government, under pressure to explain the assassination of Benigno S. Aquino Jr., today identified the man alleged to have killed the opposition leader as "a notorious killer and gun for hire."

A government statement identified the gunman as Rolando Galman y Dawang, a resident of San Miguel, Bulacan, a Manila suburb. It said laboratory paraffin tests that show the presence of nitrates, which are left behind by gunpowder, proved positive on Galman's body.

The identification was the first major step in the investigation of Aquino's assassination Aug. 21 at Manila International Airport, minutes after he was escorted off a jetliner by military security officers.

Aquino, President Ferdinand E. Marcos' chief political challenger, was returning from a self-imposed three-year exile in the United States when he was gunned down on the tarmac. The gunman was immediately riddled with bullets by security guards.

The identification came as the leader of the nation's Roman Catholics, hinting at possible civil strife, said today on the eve of a public funeral for Aquino that the killing has made Filipinos "angry and restless."

Cardinal Jaime Sin said he expected no trouble inside the church where Aquino's funeral will be held Wednesday but added: "I don't know about afterwards," when the body will be borne through Manila streets to burial.

Although there has been no violence, hundreds of thousands of Filipinos have turned out to mourn Aquino and protest against the government in the last few days as Aquino's body was taken to his home province.

The government announcement on Galman followed identification today by the Bulletin Today newspaper, Manila's largest-circulation English-language daily, which said Galman was an ex-convict wanted on several criminal charges, including murder and illegal possession of firearms.

The official radio said Gen. Prospero Olivas, the Metropolitan Manila police chief, submitted a report on the gunman to Gen. Fabian Ver, the armed forces chief of staff.

"Olivas described Galman as a notorious killer and gun for hire," the radio said, adding he "may have been used by various elements including crime syndicates or subversive elements in carrying out murder for vengeance, armed robbery, kidnapping and other crimes."

Hijackers Let Deadlines Pass

By United Press International

French officials at the Tehran airport negotiated successfully through two deadlines today with hijackers threatening to blow up an Air France jetliner and 17 hostages, but a news report said the hijackers had issued new demands.

The four Arabic-speaking hijackers told French officials to respond to their original demands for the release of Arab prisoners by 8 a.m. local time, and then extended the deadline twice with no threat to the hostages, who include three Americans.

But there was still no sign of a breakthrough with the armed air pirates, suspected by Iran to be Iraqi guerrillas opposed to the Baghdad government of President Saddam Hussein.

French radio, quoting diplomatic sources, said shots rang out Monday night from the airliner's rear door, an apparent attempt by the hijackers "to ensure security forces stayed away from the plane."

French radio said the hijackers stepped up their demands to include withdrawal of French troops from Lebanon and Chad and a halt to France's military aid to Iraq in its war with Iran.

This was in addition to a demand for the release of Arab prisoners in French jails and an explanation for France's support for Iraq, Chad and Lebanon.

The hijackers, armed with machine guns and grenades, commandeered Air France Flight 781 Saturday and forced it to land in Geneva, then Sicily and Damascus before arriving in Tehran Sunday.

NASA Changes 1984 Shuttle Schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL, (UPI) — NASA still plans 11 shuttle flights in 1984 but two of the missions have been switched because of doubts about an orbital booster rocket that will be used for the space agency's second big data relay satellite.

A similar rocket failed on the first relay satellite launched in April.

The revised schedule for 1984:

Mid-January — Challenger, carrying a crew of five and two communications satellites, flies for eight days. This mission will test spacewalking jet packs.

April 4 — Challenger carries a repair crew to a rendezvous with a crippled sun-watching satellite. A large engineering test satellite will be launched during the six-day mission.

May 7 — This will be the first flight of the shuttle Discovery. A crew of six will launch the second tracking and data relay satellite if the satellite's booster rocket troubles are corrected.

June 4 — Challenger, with a crew of four, will launch two communications satellites.

July 14 — Discovery is available for the delayed Air Force satellite launch.

Aug. 5 — Challenger is to launch three communications satellites.

Aug. 30 — Discovery is scheduled to orbit a NASA scientific satellite.

Sept. 29 — Challenger is to launch the third tracking and data relay satellite.

Oct. 24 — Discovery flies with two communications satellites.

Nov. 22 — Challenger flies on the second Spacelab mission with a crew of seven.

Dec. 20 — Discovery is scheduled to carry a secret military payload.

The Question Is: Excise Tax Or User Fee?

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — Attorneys for major airlines and the state Revenue Department concede a legal challenge to a new 5 percent tax on aviation fuel hinges on whether it is ruled an excise tax or a user tax.

In oral arguments before the Florida Supreme Court Monday, attorneys for Delta and Eastern called the new tax a user fee designed specifically to improve Florida's network of roads.

State attorneys countered that it was a broader excise tax aimed at improving the state's entire transportation system and that, as such, the Legislature had wide discretion in determining who should pay.

$100,000 Bond Found

HOLLYWOOD, (UPI) — A 70-year-old retiree who left a $100,000 bearer bond — his life savings — on a copy machine more than a month ago had it back today, minus a $25,000 reward, in what he calls an "unbelievable" happy ending.

Bob Weinberg said when he realized he had lost the bond "I was so sick about it, because me and my wife needed the income for our remaining years. And then we had willed the rest to our three children."

Weinberg discovered he had lost the bond Aug. 17. When his plight was reported in the newspapers Monday, he received a call from Robert Platt of Hallandale, Fla., who said the man who had the bond had been trying to return it by advertising in the same papers.

Weinberg then got in touch with Vincent Panaro, also of Hallandale, who said he had the bond. Weinberg had promised a $25,000 reward and he came through.

More Rodeo Horses Dead

JACKSONVILLE, (UPI) — Four more rodeo horses died from a mysterious disease, bringing the death toll to 48. Only 10 of the horses remain alive.

Dr. Sam Rowley, director of the Duval County Health Division, said Monday "there is nothing else we can do" until the results of chemical analyses of the dead horses and the water they drank are back.

The horses began dying last Thursday. Four more literally dropped dead Monday.

"They go to sweating profusely, get glassy-eyed, with no reaction to noise. Then, they just fall to the ground. When they fall, they're dead," said Lyle Wiggins, one of the owners of the herd.

No Special Session:

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham will not call a special session of the Legislature to repeal the state's controversial new business tax, despite the urging of Secretary of State George Firestone.

Graham press aide Steve Hull said Graham would, however, like to discuss the issue with Firestone.

Firestone went public with his opposition to the new tax Monday when he released to the media a two-page letter he wrote to Graham blasting the new taxing concept.

Nightclub Dancer Threatened By 2 Men

A 21-year-old dancer at a Casselberry nightclub said two men threatened her with a gun Monday night after trying to force her into their van. She was not harmed.

Lucinda Harpold, of 10334 Wymore Grove, Altamonte Springs, gave Seminole County sheriff's deputies this account of the incident:

After performing at the Club Juana, located on U.S. Highway 17-92, she left the club and as she walked into the parking lot two men in a brown Ford van asked her to get in the van and "have a few drinks."

She refused and the men grabbed her arm and tried to force her into the van. She wrestled away from them and drove off in her car.

The man followed in the van and at the intersection of Maitland Boulevard and Oranole Road one of the men pointed a handgun at Ms. Harpold and threatened to kill her, she said.

The van followed her car to 1005 Gregory Ave. at a high rate of speed and ran into a fence at that location and drove off east on Oranole Road.

SURF BOARDS GONE

Two yellow surfboards, valued at a total of $225, were stolen from the roof of a Pontiac Grand LeMans while it was parked in the parking lot of the Sanford Pantry Pride supermarket in Zayre's Plaza Saturday between 3 a.m. and 4:15 a.m.

Michael L. Malloy, 21, of DeLand, said he was working as a stock clerk in the supermarket when the theft occurred.

He said the thief cut a strap to remove the surf boards. One board was nine feet long, the other seven feet.

ASSAULT

A 25-year-old Sanford man said three men attacked him in front of the Sanford Moose Lodge early today.

John Singleton Chapman, 201½ E. 27th St., said he was driving by the lodge, located at 2660 S. Palmetto Ave., at about 12:18 a.m. when a man who was sitting in a parked gold Cadillac opened his car door, blocking Chapman's lane of travel.

Chapman said he slowed down and two men who were standing on the street nearby reached into his car and grabbed his arm. The man in the Cadillac got out of his car and tried to choke him, Chapman said.

Chapman said he managed to break free of the men and drive off. He was not hurt.

TRUCK STOLEN

A 1976 yellow Ford pickup truck with a trailer attached to it was stolen from the yard of a Sanford woman's residence between 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The trailer also contained two lawn mowers, an edger, a weed eater and assorted tools. The total loss was put at $2,400.

Linda Thomas, 102 Wilkins Circle, said she left the keys in the ignition of her truck.

SALVATION ARMY HEIST

A Seminole County deputy arrested a man after he watched the man steal some items from a Salvation Army collection trailer in Longwood at 8:40 a.m. Saturday.

The deputy said he saw the man drive up to the Salvation Army office, get out of his car, remove several items from the trailer and place them in the back seat of his car.

The items taken included a chrome hanging light fixture, two bags of nick nacks, two heat lamps, a baseball helmet, a pipe rack, cups, glasses and a vase. The items were valued at $50.

John Paul Tress Jr., 40, of 1511 Sparrow St., Longwood, was arrested and placed in Seminole County jail on a charge of petty theft. He was released after paying $100 bond.

MAILBOX FLATTENED

A mailbox and a newspaper box were knocked down by a vehicle at a Sanford area residence between 10 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

John T. Bolly, 58, 804 Upsala Drive, west of Sanford, said his loss was $60.

HANDGUN TAKEN

A Browning 9 mm high standard handgun and holster, valued at $450, was removed from a Sanford man's home between 9 p.m. and midnight Saturday.

Keith A. Hampton, 21, of 1814½ Park Ave., said the thief removed a jalousie glass and cut a screen to open the rear door of his residence.

RAPE ATTEMPT

A 22-year-old Jacksonville woman told deputies that a man attempted to rape her in a van near Sanford early Sunday.

The woman said she jumped out of the van and ran. The van was parked off State Road 46 near Interstate-4 west of Sanford.

The woman gave Seminole County sheriff's deputies this account of the incident:

She said she visited Disney World with friends Saturday and lost contact with her friends. At about 11:30 p.m. she met a man who said his name was "Larry." The man said he lived in Jacksonville too, and he would give her a ride home.

She got in the man's tan colored van with him and fell asleep. When she awoke at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, the van was parked and the man was attempting to sexually assault her, she said. Her clothes had been removed and the man was also unclothed, she said.

She fought with the man, grabbed her clothes, jumped out of the van and ran. She said she left her wallet and shoes in the van.

WINDSHIELD SMASHED

Someone used an unknown instrument to shatter the windshield of a Sanford woman's car at about 3:45 p.m. Friday.

Margaret Rhoden McGowan, 55, of 3514 Pine Ave., said her car was parked near her residence. Damage was put at $100.

WALLET SNATCHED

A Sanford woman said she left her wallet in a shopping cart at Zayre's department store for a few minutes and when she looked for it at about 10:20 a.m. Saturday, it was gone.

Patricia Zaccroup, 28, 306 Elm Ave., said the wallet contained $94 in cash.

Pass Out The Ballots In Chile

Denied access to the ballot box, Chileans have been expressing themselves through less direct (and perforce less orderly) means. Their clear message: Return to the free elections and free institutions that were the norm until 1973, and the overthrow of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Since then, military ruler Augusto Pinochet has adopted stern measures to squelch the violent and well-organized dissent of the Chilean far left, and, on rare occasions, the far right. He undoubtedly went too far. His administration has jailed, tortured, and exiled thousands of citizens without due process, many of whom posed no threat at all to Pinochet's regime or Chilean security.

Still, given the damage done by Allende's attempts to turn democracy upside down, some of that harshness was necessary. You can't help but notice how deftly Chile's noisiest detractors have managed to overlook far greater violations of human rights going on in Cuba and Nicaragua.

Pinochet, like some other authoritarian rulers, may be a victim of his own economic success. The business boom of the 1970s created a tide of rising expectations that have been hard to fulfill under conditions of a global recession and continued squelching of internal dissent.

By 1980, Chileans were so enthusiastic about this sparkling performance that they voted Pinochet president until the end of the decade in a tightly controlled but psychologically significant national plebiscite. Then came the worldwide credit crunch, dropping the price of gold, oil, and copper — Chile's main export product — through the floor. Down fell Chile, Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, and a whole row of Third World economic dominoes.

Squeeze or no squeeze, pressures for a return to normalcy were bound to surface sooner or later. Now, they are surfacing with a vengeance. In June, labor leaders led an aborted nationwide strike, broken up by more mass arrests and a promise from Pinochet to squash the dissent "whatever the cost."

The crackdown brought only a few weeks of quiet, however, a silence peppered with protests throughout July and shattered by the recent tragic deaths of protesters. More ambitious marches are scheduled for September — with, as yet, no sign of accommodation from the government.

Fairly or unfairly, time may be running out on Pinochet. Chile's long democratic tradition suggests that the country is well equipped to handle democracy after a 10-year rebuilding program. And recent events suggest that there is no other way to satisfy the people. The sooner Pinochet passes out the ballots, the better.

Help Argentina?

The United States suffered some loss of support in Latin America for backing Britain against Argentina in the Falklands War.

Now, in an effort to make amends, the Reagan administration has approved the sale of heavy water for Argentina's nuclear reactors. The Nuclear Regulatory Agency, which has advised against sale of heavy water to Argentina in the past, was not consulted by the administration.

Argentina does not allow on-site inspections of its nuclear plants. It has not signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. It may be trying to develop the atomic bomb.

The United States should not help Argentina become the first Latin American nation to have a nuclear weapon. The military regime there is warlike and does not respect international law. It has been defeated in war, but not unseated from power. Argentine pilots, who might be given first crack at a homemade A-bomb, showed themselves highly skillful in attacking British targets. A nuclear-armed Argentina would present a threat not only to the Falklands, but more importantly to its rival neighbors, Brazil and Chile.

If the Reagan administration wants to show Argentina our friendship, it should encourage trade and democracy, not encourage Argentina's dream of A-bomb power. The last thing the people of the Americas need is a nuclear threat from the gaucho generals.

BERRY'S WORLD

WILLIAM RUSHER Legal Service Abusers

NEW YORK (NEA) — Defenders of the Legal Services Corp. like to depict it as a high-minded federal agency that provides free legal services to the poor. Its critics charge that, on the contrary, it is a device for making the taxpayers pay the salaries of about 7,000 hot-eyed leftist lawyers, many of whom then spend their time waging war on the "system" through zany class action lawsuits and other dubious legal maneuvers.

If you think the critics are exaggerating, consider the evidence adduced by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, in a recent series of hearings before the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, which he chairs.

Take, for example, a remarkable document called "The Law and Direct Citizen Action," published by the Legal Services Corp. in November 1981 for the benefit of any citizen who feels like taking "direct action." Noting that it is sometimes necessary to obtain a permit before staging a demonstration, the book's authors then thoughtfully add:

"The group may feel that surprise or catching the target off guard is a major part of its strategy, so it does not want to apply for the necessary permits. This is a decision that the group should be able to make, as long as it is aware of its decision."

In other words, if you really want to zap the police don't tip them off by applying for a permit.

And the American Bar Association, which has foolishly supported the LSC, presumably on the theory that it's good for business, will be interested in this passage on getting legal advice before a hearing:

"There is nothing wrong, however, with a group milking a lawyer for all she/he knows and can offer up until the hearing, and then firing the lawyer so they (can) present the story on their own."

Mind you, the above pieces of advice were published with funds appropriated out of your taxes, by the Congress of the United States.

"Training" is, in fact, one of the LSC's favorite ruses. In 1981, when the Reagan administration was trying unsuccessfully to get Congress to abolish the LSC altogether, Legal Services of Eastern Missouri sought funds for a leftist whizzbang called "The Coalition for Sensible and Human Solutions." Despite a flat congressional prohibition against lobbying, LSC subsequently funded "training programs" by this coalition designed to: "Educate and inform community activists about current federal, state and local budget cutting activities; and share and develop strategies for fighting back."

Sen. Hatch has asked Attorney General William French Smith to ascertain whether, among other things, "Corporation staff and staff of the grantees intentionally circumvented and violated congressional prohibitions against lobbying and political activity."

JACK ANDERSON

Too Busy Arguing To Seek Energy

WASHINGTON — I have tried to shine a light into the dark corners of the U.S. Synfuels Corp., which is supposed to help American industry develop substitutes for oil. Congress gave the quasi-public agency $15 billion of the taxpayers' money to do the job.

But after doling out millions, paying themselves lavish salaries, ensconcing themselves in luxurious offices and winging around the world on an endless round of "fact-finding" junkets, Synfuels executives have yet to produce so much as an erg of synthetically based energy. The taxpayers now seem to be stuck with an enormously expensive white elephant.

This sorry situation is acknowledged even inside the corporation, to judge by internal documents uncovered by my associates Corky Johnson and John Dillon.

For example, a recent communications report, stamped "Confidential," points out that Synfuels is at a virtual standstill. There isn't even a comprehensive plan yet to develop synthetic fuels. Both board members and staffers were criticized in the report, which says,

You could call it "the house that cookies built," for the Girl Scouts' $400,000-plus multi-purpose building at Mah-Kah-Wee Program Center scheduled for dedication at 3 p.m. on Sept. 11 was built for the most part with revenues from the sale of Girl Scout cookies in the Citrus Council.

The council was able to raise funds to match a $20,000 challenge grant from the Edyth Bush Foundation, a major contributor to the building fund, according to Mary Jo Bankoff, executive director for Citrus Council. Part of the money came from the sale of other Girl Scout property.

The 7,200-sq.-ft. multi-purpose building was completed just in time for the opening of summer residential camp two months ago, Ms. Bankoff said.

Its principal use during the residential camp is for a dining hall, but it is also available for training sessions for Girl Scouts and leaders, as well as outside organizations, when not otherwise scheduled.

Ms. Bankoff said this was a record summer at Mah-Kah-Wee with 443 girls attending the camp. This was a 20 percent increase in attendance, but because of the new building "finally everybody could be seated at one time in the dining hall," she added.

The more than 200-acre program center has three platform tent units plus a unit for campers with handicaps and three semi-primitive units where the girls pitch their own tents. The former dining hall will be converted to an infirmary and administrative space, said Ms. Bankoff.

Because a child's speech and language development depends on the ability to hear, early detection and treatment of hearing problems are critical. With that in mind, starting Sept. 1 every infant born at Winter Park Memorial Hospital will receive a hearing test before they leave the hospital under a new Infant Hearing Assessment Program.

The program is funded by the local chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America in cooperation with the Infant Hearing Assessment Foundation that developed the computerized testing equipment.

The testing, which will be conducted by more than 30 volunteers, is normally done while the infant is asleep. The brain's neural activity in response to sounds is processed by a computer much like an EEG, and the data is analyzed by an audiologist. Test results are then forwarded to the family's pediatrician to follow-up if necessary. The sooner a hearing impaired infant is identified and treatment is started, the more likely that infant will be able to develop effective speech and language skills.

Winter Park Memorial will be the first hospital nationwide where hearing testing is available to every newborn, not just high-risk infants.

ROBERT WALTERS Back From Calamity

CHICOPEE, Mass. (NEA) — The calamitous events of the past 15 years here are the municipal equivalent of being fired from your job, divorced by your spouse and losing your home — all in rapid succession.

In the late 1960s, the Defense Department disclosed that Westover Air Force Base, a sprawling 7,900-acre facility long used by the Strategic Air Command's B-52 intercontinental bombers, would be almost totally decommissioned.

As a result, the community lost 4,750 primary jobs at the military base and an additional 3,670 secondary jobs.

The nationwide recession of the mid-1970s accelerated economic stagnation in the aging western Massachusetts mill town, producing the loss of an additional 2,000 jobs.

In 1980, Uniroyal, Inc. announced that it was abandoning the tire manufacturing plant which was the city's largest employer. Another 1,600 jobs were lost just as the most recent nationwide recession was beginning.

Many of Chicopee's residents abandoned the city. Between 1970 and 1980, the population here declined precipitously, from 66,676 to 55,048 — a plunge of more than 17 percent.

But in a display of resourcefulness which typifies New England's perseverance and resiliency, city officials in early 1982 resuscitated the long-dormant Chicopee Development Corp. and transformed it into the catalyst to attract additional investment, new business and more jobs to Chicopee.

The dramatic initial success of that effort is unique, even by New England standards, but throughout the region there is compelling evidence of an economic revival inspired by the extraordinary dedication and determination of its people.

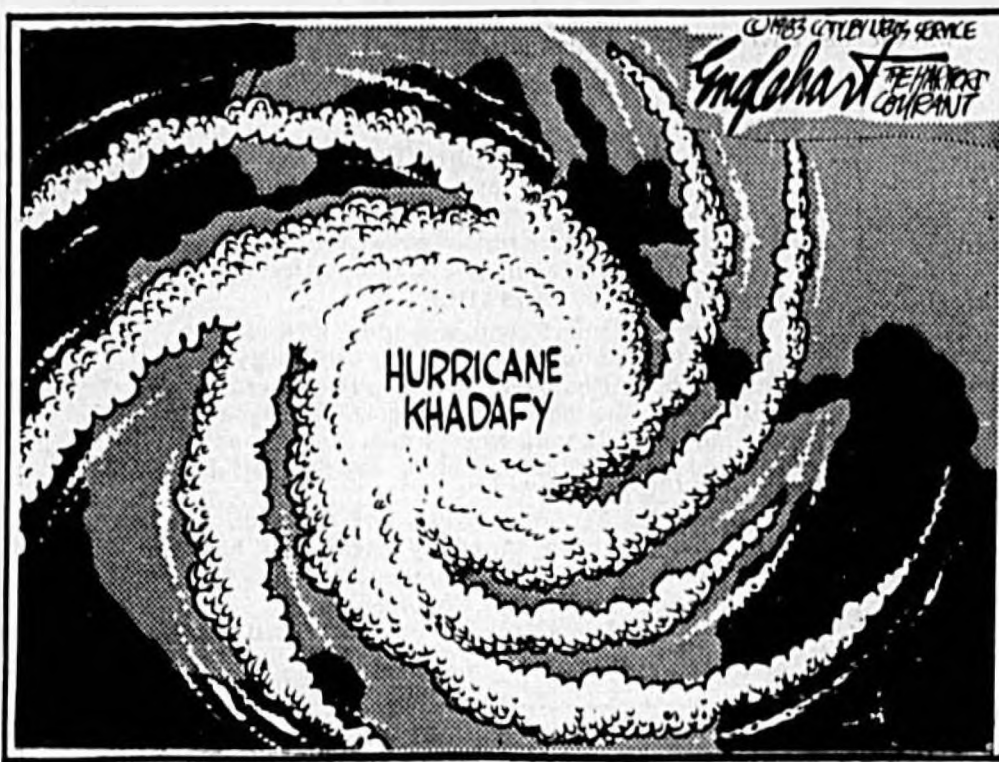

"We focus primarily on what's here and nurture it," explains CDC President Carl Eger Jr. "Growth comes from within. That's the story of New England."

That philosophy is vividly illustrated by the region-wide trend toward conversion and rehabilitation of century-old mill buildings into modern office buildings, manufacturing facilities and distribution centers.

In Maynard, Mass., the Digital Equipment Corp., one of the country's leading producers of mainframe computers, is headquartered in a 1.5 million square foot converted mill where woolen blankets once were made for the Union Army.

The former Uniroyal plant here has been refurbished and is now the Chicopee Industrial Park which serves as an "incubator" for approximately 30 young companies producing specialty plastics, electronic circuit boards, surgical masks and a host of other products.

At the same time, the region has turned to two of its most bountiful natural resources — wood and water — to provide energy.

JEFFREY HART

John Anderson II

Too little attention is being paid to the plans of John Anderson for the coming presidential election, and to the potential of the third party he has been organizing.

Three years ago, Anderson ran as an independent, but earlier this summer he announced plans for a third national party.

That could mean a very different story in 1984.

Anderson as an independent one-shot candidate in 1980 struck many otherwise sympathetic voters as a bad way of wasting a vote; but a new party with prospects of surviving past the election could have a much broader appeal.

Anderson himself has said that the example of the new British-Social Democratic Alliance has been encouraging to him, as, indeed, it should be. The Alliance scored very well in its first national test earlier this year.

Anderson can also feel encouraged by recent polls as well, which show 40-50 percent of the voters favoring the creation of a new third party.

The mixture of positions for the new party have become fairly clear, and they do have a potential constituency: It will favor fiscal responsibility, permissive positions on sex-related and other social issues, and take a broadly defined "peace" position.

Anderson is saying that he favors a pay-as-you-go budget, and he strongly attacks the two major parties for fiscal irresponsibility. He will favor a nuclear freeze and much smaller defense budgets. He will take the liberal position on the environment, E.R.A., abortion, homosexual rights. He will attack the two major parties as the captives of competing special interests, the Republicans of big business and the defense contractors, the Democrats of big labor.

This mixture will possess undoubted appeal to upscale liberal Democrats and liberal Republicans — sometimes known as the quiche and white wine set. For them, indeed, the very "independence" claimed by the new party will be a prime stylistic asset. To be "independent" in politics has, at least in recent history, been a much more appealing position among such foreign-car groups than being "regular."

Anderson will also take the trendy positions as regards, Indian rights, women's rights, black rights, Hispanic rights, and on down the list.

If you look at the map of Anderson's 1980 support, you find it concentrated heavily in the upscale sections of the country. Anderson scored well in the Northeast, especially in Massachusetts, Connecticut, and southern New Hampshire and southern Vermont. This is, to put it synecdochically, quiche and resort country. He did well in southern Wisconsin and central Colorado (environmental and resort country), and on the West Coast, especially in the Pacific Northwest. In all of these areas he took more than 13 percent of the vote.

In all likelihood, running as the nominee of a new party, he would expand upon his 1980 showing.

Though polling thus far has to be considered extremely preliminary, it shows that Anderson, 1984 model, would continue to hurt the Democratic presidential candidate far more than the Republican — presumably Reagan.

In the states of the Old Confederacy and in the Sunbelt states of the Southwest, Anderson has no appeal. But he could cost the Democrats the major state of California, and he could hurt them badly in the greenbelt states of New England. Across the Midwest in 1980, Anderson took about 5 percent, heavily from the Democrats. If as the candidate of a new party he substantially expanded that appeal, he could tip the entire region into the Republican column.

One footnote. Anderson's projected issues mixture for 1984 looks to have a strong appeal to upscale liberal women voters. Anderson could therefore be the answer to the Republicans' worry about the so-called gender gap.

All in all, as Anderson's new party gets rolling — with all of the appeal it will have for the media because of its novelty and because of its positions on the issues — it can only be very bad news for the Democrats.

the corporation's troubles. Unlike President Carter, who appointed board members from various sectors interested in energy matters, Reagan named a raft of political cronies — but apparently neglected to tell them to get along.

The inevitable result has been a mighty clash of egos and the disintegration of the Synfuels board into a quarrelsome, faction-ridden body, its members more interested in enhancing their own influence than in doing the job they are being paid so handsomely to do.

One side of a long-standing feud includes Board Chairman Edward Noble, Schroeder and board member Milton Masson Jr. Noble and Schroeder are longtime business associates, and have close ties to the conservative Heritage Foundation — which opposes government funding for synthetic fuels.

On the other side are board members Robert Monks, Howard Wilkins and John Carter. Monks is a political ally of Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, who obligingly held hearings at which Noble and Schroeder were questioned at length about their Heritage Foundation connection. Prior to the hearings, the Monks faction sent a letter to Noble threatening to air the corporation's dirty laundry if Noble did not fire Schroeder and make other changes.

All of this bickering would be of limited public interest if it involved a private corporation. But the taxpayers are the stockholders in Synfuels, and the unseemly infighting is keeping the corporation from achieving its mission.

The Synfuels inspector general reported that there have been "numerous situations where one part of the Corporation did not know what the other was doing." And in the board's dealings with private industry — the heart of its job — the inspector general said the outsiders "felt the board of directors was taking action on matters which it was insufficiently briefed."

No wonder. The board has been too with its Borgia-like intrigue.

Footnote: A Synfuels spokesman said the communications report accurately reflects the opinions of the board members but was not intended as a study of the competence of the staff.

Seventeen Murdered And Not A Solid Clue

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — Seventeen murdered in less than two months. Not a single solid witness to anything. Not a clue that leads anywhere definite.

This is the nightmare frightening the police of Joliet. It is the specter which prompts women to venture outdoors at night or even in daytime in parties of twos and threes — or else stay inside.

The state's attorney of Will County, a blue collar and dirt farming Chicago suburb, promises someone will be behind bars in short time.

"I'm confident," Edward F. Petka said. "We'll have the guys. But we are dealing with a person or people extremely vicious."

But the man in direct charge of the manhunt is deeply troubled.

"We've had our share of murder lately and then some," Chief Deputy Sheriff Ted Kelly said. "It is a rather strange situation where you could have multiple murders and the perpetrator could leave with so little evidence. It gets harder and harder every day."

What Kelly and officers in southern Cook County need are answers to how and why:

—The charred bodies of two sisters were found in a burned-out Joliet home June 25. They had been beaten — one stabbed and the other shot.

—A housewife and a businessman were found shot to death in a car along a remote roadside July 2.

—Five people, including two Will County deputies, were slaughtered in a county road ambush July 16.

—A man was shot to death in a parked car on a country road the next day.

—Four women were butchered and one also shot in a peaceful ceramics store on the east side of Joliet Aug. 20.

—A man and a woman were found slain 30 miles way in the suburb of Park Forest the next day.

—An elderly woman was beaten and stabbed to death with two knives and two other objects, one blunt the other rounded.

It generally happened on a Saturday or Sunday. There is no hard evidence that all or any of the slayings are linked. Investigators feel certain that some of them — particularly those in Park Forest — are not. That one appears drug-related.

But the detectives confess to a gut feeling that some of them are connected. The slayings that arouse the most sense of alarm are those of the four women.

That sunny Saturday, Anna Ryan, 75, her daughter-in-law, Pam Ryan, 29, and her best friend, Barbara Dunbar, 38, went to Marilyn Baer's Greenware by Merry Ceramics store on Cass street. They were interested in learning how to make vases and such.

Sometime time between 11 and noon, someone caught all four in the store, slashed their throats, and shot Mrs. Baer, 45, in the throat as well.

There seemed no reason for it. What little money was in the rather isolated, tree-shrouded store was left there. Three purses were taken and were found, empty, Tuesday in Hickory Creek on the edge of town a mile away.

"It's a spooky feeling," said Gerry Zobel, who runs a tavern a half mile down the road from the pottery store.

"I can't understand why someone would go to a place like that at that time of day and expect to get any money. It makes you think he went there just to ... Someone who's... " and Zobel pointed his fingers to his head.

Chief Kelly agreed it was spooky and ominous. He also saw a possible linkage in the slayings. He cited the killings a weekend ago and those of the five July 16.

"There are similarities but that doesn't make facts," he said. "In both cases the purses, wallets or whatever were thrown into a stream."

Kelly got a possible piece to his puzzle at mid-week when beer drinkers at a bar near the ceramics store recalled a distraught young man who came in the day of the murders with what appeared to be dried blood on his wrists.

He put out a composite portrait of the mysterious bibber, but refused to designate him as a suspect.

There also was a woman who said she saw a brown car with two men in it — along with a mysterious motorcyclist — outside the store that day.

"I don't feel any closer to solving the cases today than I did yesterday or the day before," Kelly said.

People in Joliet aren't rushing out to buy guns or hiding indoors at night. For one thing, it's hard to seek safety from such as the noontime slaughter in the ceramics store. For another, Joliet is used to murder.

The city of 75,040 sits in pleasant and prosperous farmland some 40 miles southwest of Chicago's Loop. It's a tough factory and prison town. A lot of the people work in the Caterpillar tractor plant. Quite a few work in the vast Stateville Penitentiary which sits behind white, guard-posted walls just outside of town.

"There's anxiety, but people are desensitized," Petka said. "But there's no posse comitatus growing in Joliet."

Beer, Wine, Liquor To Cost More

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — The tax on beer, wine and liquor goes up Thursday and as far as the state is concerned a special inventory tax on alcoholic beverages will be imposed as well.

The Department of Business Regulation said Monday that despite two pending lawsuits, the state's 32,000 liquor license holders will have to take inventories of their stocks Wednesday night and pay a special one-time tax on them.

The alcoholic beverage tax was approved by the Legislature in July to produce $76 million annually for education.

The one-time inventory tax, expected to generate $1.4 million, was intended to discourage retailers from stockpiling their supplies before the other tax increase went into effect.

Only the inventory tax is being challenged in court, meaning that no matter what the outcome of the pending litigation, taxes on alcoholic beverages will climb.

The uncontested hike will add a penny to the taxes on a 16-ounce can of beer, 35 cents to a fifth of liquor and 48 cents to a gallon of wine.

The inventory tax has been challenged by lawsuits filed in Tampa and Tallahassee.

Singer Awarded $15,000 Damages; Hurt At Club Juana

A nightclub singer who was injured in a fall at a Casselberry nightclub has been awarded $15,000 in compensatory damages by a jury.

The 48-year-old woman said she injured her shoulder and suffered permanent injury to her hand when she fell down a staircase at the Club Juana on Aug. 11, 1981.

A Seminole County Circuit Court jury awarded the sum to Irene Tracy Steele, who now lives in the Ft. Lauderdale area.

The action was a result of a suit Mrs. Steele had filed against the nightclub, located on U.S. Highway 17-92, and its owner, Mary C. Pinter.

Mrs. Steele, who performed at the nightclub as a singer, pianist and comedienne, said she fell as she was walking down an inside staircase leading to her dressing room. She charged in her suit that there was no handrail on the staircase, the lighting was inadequate and the carpeting on the stairs was in disrepair.

She said her shoe caught in the carpeting, causing her to lose her balance and fall.

Mrs. Pinter's defense lawyer said Mrs. Steele should have known of the condition of the staircase before the accident happened.

The jury decided that Mrs. Steele had incurred hospitalization, medical and nursing care costs of $100,000 due to her injuries. But the jury found that Mrs. Steele was responsible for 85 percent of the negligence involved and the nightclub was responsible for only 15 percent, and therefore the nightclub was ordered to pay only $15,000 of the amount.

Most Phone Workers Back On The Job

United Press International

Nearly 700 directory salespeople in Western states remained on strike today, but most telephone workers were back on their jobs providing operator assistance and catching up on orders for repairs and installation.

Negotiations in Denver and Los Angeles sought to end those strikes continuing against Mountain Bell and Pacific Telephone.

In Los Angeles, John Vivrett of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said about 450 Yellow Pages sales and support personnel were "still holding out" in his city.

He said bargaining was to resume today in the strike that is "really starting to hurt."

Bargaining also was being conducted in Denver.

"We're a long way apart right now," Vivrett said. "The company is proposing take-back offers in our wages."

Elsewhere, almost all other workers were on the job after a 22-day walkout.

to 10 percent, thus limiting the city's growth.

●Keogh said the only way to cure the city's "growing pains" is through detailed planning and careful spending of the city's funds. He said the city is facing the major problems of acquiring a water supply, roads and traffic and the possibility of over development. "We don't want unplanned and unchecked growth like that seen in cities to the south of us," he said.

●Stoddard, calling himself a concerned citizen, said the city needs a viable street program to deal with potential and actual growth in Lake Mary. "It will take a team of people to work out solutions," he said.

●Terry, noting his previous six years service on the city commission and his work with the fledgling water system, said that years ago the city planned on having its own well and "now is the time to have it." He warned that the city must limit its debt service and watch closely the expenditures in the general fund to be in the best position to float a bond issue for water system improvements.

●Perinchief, a 16-year resident of the city who has served on the city commission for seven of the 10 years Lake Mary has been incorporated, said Lake Mary is unique in the urban sprawl of Central Florida. Perinchief said city officials must be concerned about retaining the city's quality of life to leave it as a legacy for future generations.

●Petsoas said zoning is one of his major concerns because over commercialization can eat up the residential areas. He committed himself to adhere to the city's long-range land use plan.

●Smathers, a 34-year old school teacher and a native of Orlando, said he has watched politicians make a mess of Orlando and doesn't want to see the same thing happen in Lake Mary. "We can't overplan," he said, adding plans once made are useless "if we don't use them."

"We must provide services essential to the citizens and we can do this without hurting people in the process," Smathers said.

Following their prepared remarks, candidates fielded questions submitted by the audience in writing. The first concerned the volunteer fire department's request in the 1983-84 fiscal year budget for a 1,250-gallon-per-minute pumper truck, expected to cost about $100,000.

Smathers and Stoddard, both volunteer firemen, said the department needs the new equipment to adequately provide fire protection in the community.

Petsoas said he has checked with other fire departments in Seminole County and the new fire truck would do the job if there is competent supervision.

Perinchief said the need for a new fire truck can probably be justified, but the question is whether the city can afford it.

Terry said further indebtedness should be put off until the water system is underway. The suggestion from the fire department has been that the truck be financed over a period of several years.

Keogh said it has not been shown whether the city can afford the equipment in the new budget year.

Bacon said the fire department certainly knows what it needs. He said he supports a well-equipped police and fire department, adding by purchasing the truck now, the city would probably save money.

Asked to name the top three priorities in the city, Perinchief said water, road improvements, fire and police protection; Petsoas echoed the same, plus zoning; Smathers stated those priorities plus traffic planning; Bacon said the same three but added that water is the highest priority; Keogh said in addition to the three, planning and zoning should be given special attention; Stoddard added road and traffic planning.

Terry said the water system first, and rather than roads second, he said a drainage system, noting it is foolish to build roads without draining. For the third priority, he said it is a toss-up between public safety and roads.

Austin's Death Shocks County Coaches

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Trinity Prep's George Austin, one of the top cross country and track coaches in the state, died Monday morning of a heart attack. He was 56.

Austin was one of the most respected coaches in Florida and during his 12-year career at Trinity Prep, he guided the Saints to seven state championships in cross country or track and field.

Funeral arrangements, which are being handled by Baldwin-Fairchild Aloma Chapel, are pending.

"It's a shock," said Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson, a long-time friend and coaching rival of Austin. "We just had dinner with him (Austin) last Wednesday and he looked fine. You just never know."

Austin, who taught physical education at Lawton Elementary in Oviedo, was the second cross country and track coach to die of a heart attack in the past year. Last year, Rockledge's Bob Jackson also passed away.

"George will definitely be missed," continued Gibson. "It'll be the same way with Bob Jackson, you'll look around from him at the big meets, but he won't be there. George was synonymous with Trinity Prep."

Gibson said Austin's biggest attribute was his ability to peak his athletes at the proper time. "George was the master at peaking his athletes," said Gibson. "He knew exactly what to do to make the kids do their best. He might lose the district one week, but he'd win the state the next."

The news also stunned Seminole cross country coach Ted Tombros, who had a dual meet scheduled with Trinity Prep next week. "It's very, very tragic," said Tombros. "I just talked to George on Friday. He said he was feeling fine and looking forward to starting the season. It was a real shocker."

Austin's Lady Saints captured the State 1A Track and Field championships this past year. In 1976, they were runnersup in the 2A before running off a string of four state titles until they finished second in 1982. Austin's girls won state championships in cross country in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

In addition to the seven state titles,

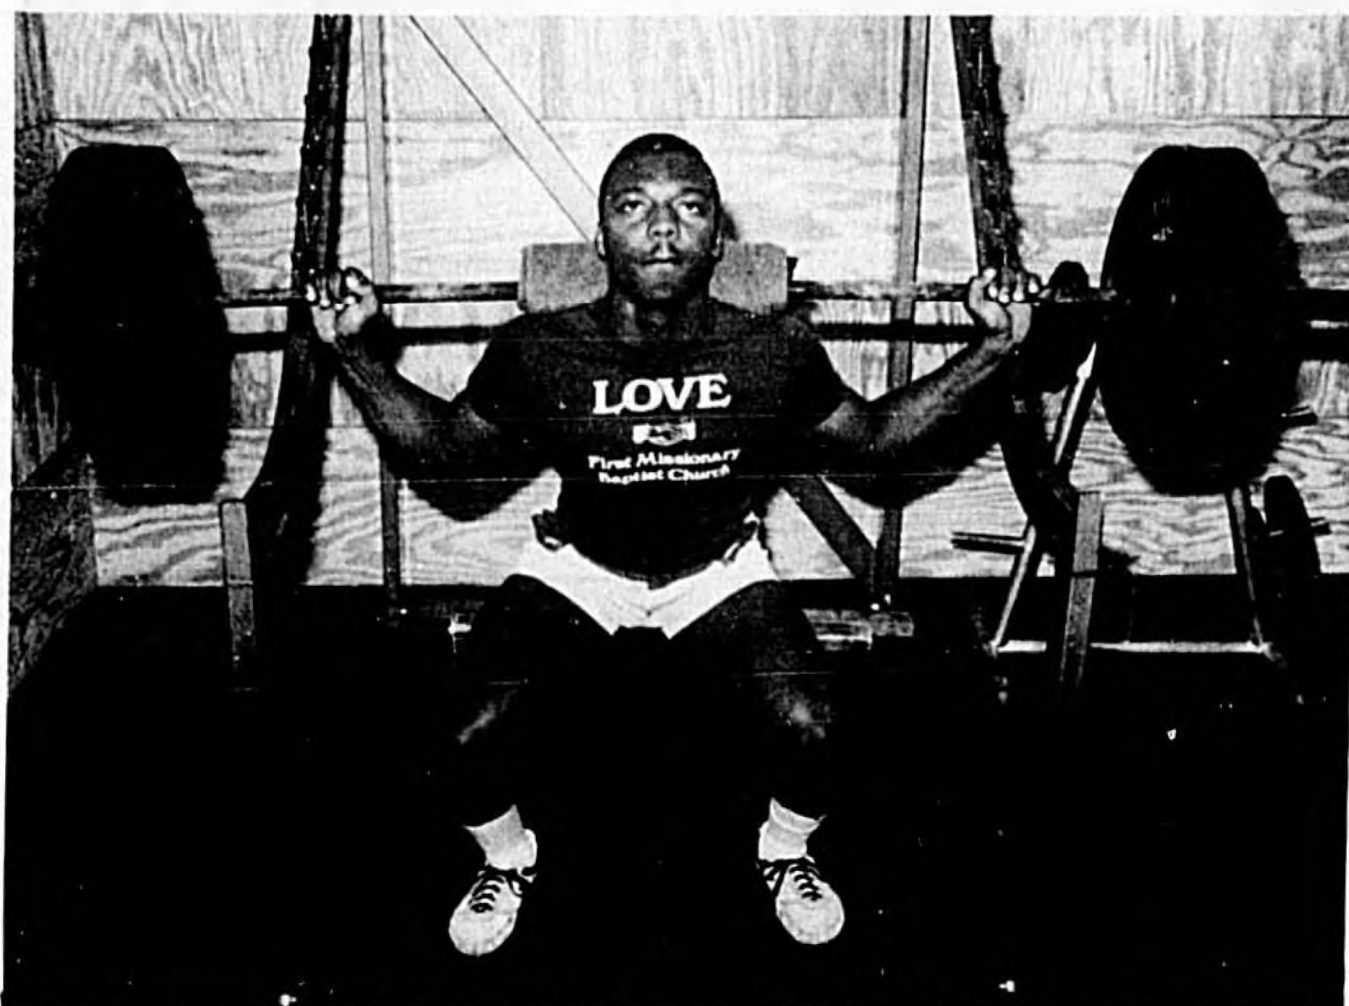

Austin had 11 district championships.

Austin is survived by his wife, Terri Matthews Austin, sons, Michael of North Carolina and Wilfred of Winter Springs; stepsons Brent and Tommy Matthews of Winter Springs; daughters, Margot and Elizabeth of Winter Springs; brothers Charles, Robert, Claude and Walter; sister, Mrs. Jean McCorkle; and former wife, Billie Jo Austin.

The family requests that contributions be made to the George E. Austin Memorial Scholarship at Trinity Prep.

Cornhuskers Crush Penn State, 44-6

College Football

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — The name of the game was the Kickoff Classic, and kick is just what Nebraska did to Penn State all over Giants Stadium.

The much-anticipated matchup Monday night between the pre-season No. 1 team and the defending national champion turned into a rout, with the Cornhuskers rolling up 500 yards of total offense to hand the Nittany Lions a 44-6 pasting in the opening game of the 1983 college football season.

The defeat for fourth-ranked Penn State matched the most one-sided whipping of Joe Paterno's illustrious 18-year tenure.

"They're a great football team and they played with tremor. We were outcoached and they beat us in every way. It was their night."

Quarterback Turner Gill, who accounted for 211 yards of total offense in just three quarters of play, set the tone for the game in a 14-0 first quarter as he sneaked one yard for a touchdown and threw a 19-yard scoring pass to tight end Monte Engebretson.

It was 21-0 at halftime, 30-0 after three quarters and 44-0 before the Nittany Lions managed to avoid their first regular season shutout since 1966 by scoring a touchdown with 20 seconds remaining.

The result certainly was a surprise to the 71,123 in attendance and a national television audience, but perhaps no one was more shocked than Nebraska coach Tom Osborne.

"I was surprised at the outcome," he said. "I thought it would be a close game. We were playing a tough game against a tough opponent and we were afraid it could go the other way. If we fumbled the ball or made mistakes, we could have gotten blown out. It was rather amazing the way it went."

Gill, who saw a brilliant performance wasted in Penn State's thrilling 27-24 victory last year at University Park, Pa., that proved to be the Cornhuskers' only loss of a 12-1 season, wasn't that amazed.

"We didn't expect that we were going to blow them out this bad," he said. "Maybe two or three touchdowns, but not this bad."

Much of the Nebraska's success Monday night could be traced to two areas that were pre-season question marks.

The Cornhuskers' defense held the Nittany Lions to just 145 yards of total offense over the first three quarters and hounded shuttling quarterbacks Doug Strang and Dan Loneragan into a miserable 13-for-39 night.

The unit added a bonus in the third quarter when junior linebacker Mike Knox returned a Strang interception 27 yards for a touchdown.

"I was pleased with the defense because I was a little less certain about how they would be," Osborne said. "It was a tremendous factor in the game."

The interception Mike had broke their backs. I was afraid we'd come out (in the second half) a little complacent. With the pride and tradition Penn State has, we were afraid they might come out and score a quick touchdown and we'd be fighting for our lives."

The Huskers' offensive line, which returned only one starter, opened up the holes for Mike Rozier and company to run for 322 yards and provide Gill and backup Nate Mason with enough time to throw.

Mason found tight end Todd Frain for a 20-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and ran 21 yards for a fourth-quarter score. Paul Miles closed out the Nebraska scoring with a 1-yard TD run and Dave Schneider added a 34-yard field goal.

Loneragan hit Sid Lewis with a 35-yard touchdown pass to lessen the severity of the loss a bit. But the 38-point deficit matched the 49-11 pounding to UCLA in 1966 that had stood as the worst loss by a Paterno-coached team.

Paterno, however, isn't going to panic. "We'll sit around and discuss what we have to do to be a better football team," he said. "We did a lousy job of play-calling tonight. They seemed to be one step ahead of us all night."

Paterno Goes Easy On Fragile Egos

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Joe Paterno has been especially careful not to bruise his inexperienced quarterbacks' fragile egos.

No matter what the Penn State coach says, however, he can't hide the poor passing that plagued the Nittany Lions' in their 44-6 loss to Nebraska in Monday night's season-opening Kickoff Classic.

Juniors Doug Strang and Dan Loneragan were a combined 13-for-39 against Nebraska, with most of their 227 yards passing coming with the game out of reach in the fourth quarter. The Nittany Lions suffered through 11 straight incompletions in the first half, while Nebraska built a 21-0 lead.

"I think it's not only a question of the quarterbacks," Paterno said. "I don't think our offensive line was ready to handle Nebraska. I think we just got manhandled up front. If we got other things going, it would've helped."

Strang started but Loneragan relieved early. The two split time until Strang's 3rd-and-2 pass to Tony Mumford was intercepted by Mike Knox and returned 27 yards for a touchdown early in the third quarter, giving Nebraska a 27-0 lead.

Loneragan finished up, hitting Sid Lewis on a 35-yard TD pass with 20 seconds left in the game to avert the shutout. He was 11-for-29 for 205 yards, compared to Strang's 2-for-10 for 22 yards.

"Danny seemed a little more sure of himself, so I stayed with him a little longer," Paterno said.

Both Penn State quarterbacks were wild high, often overthrowing open receivers.

"The low point was when I threw the interception," Strang said. "It was like it was in slow motion. I was hoping it was a dream."

There had been concern about the Penn State quarterback situation ever since Todd Blackledge announced he would pass up his last year of eligibility and turn pro after the Nittany Lions' national championship 1982 season. Paterno, looking to avoid a two-quarterback situation he had in 1980 with Blackledge and Jeff Hostetler, wanted to establish a starter but the two remained even up until the first game.

Final Cut Brings Dolphin Lee To Tears

MIAMI (UPI) — Veteran tight end-offensive tackle Ron Lee left his fifth Miami Dolphin training camp with tears in his eyes, the victim of Coach Don Shula's final cut.

The Dolphins also cut six other players Monday, traded punter Tom Orosz to San Francisco and put two veterans on injured reserve to get down to the 49-player limit for Sunday's opener at Buffalo.

Lee had been a tight end for four years, usually starting and playing mostly on running downs. He had been convinced by Shula and his coaches to try tackle and bulked up to 254 pounds for training camp this year.

But he was beaten out by veteran offensive tackle Cleveland Green, who went most of the way against the New York Giants Friday night.

"That was a tough one because Ronnie has been a starting tight end for us in run-pass situations," Shula said of the cut. "But we decided to move him to tackle and look at him there. I really believe that's his position and talking to him this morning, I believe he thinks so too."

"If Ronnie can get with an NFL team that can take time with him, he will be a player. If he doesn't play in this league, he certainly can in the U.S. Football League."

Lee declined to talk to reporters as he left camp. Veteran safety Lyle Blackwood accompanied Lee to his car with his arm around the big tackle's shoulders.

Other players cut were wide receiver Vince Heflin, offensive guard Joe Lukens, defensive end Ken McCune, defensive back Thomas Tutson, linebacker Steve Potter and defensive end Steve Clark.

Orosz was traded to the San Francisco 49ers for a future draft pick, a team spokesman said Monday.

Placed on injured reserve for the season were defensive back Don McNeal, with a ruptured Achilles tendon, and linebacker Larry Evans, a recent acquisition from Denver who has a severe knee sprain. It had been reported that linebacker Ron Hester was to be placed on injured reserve with McNeal, but Shula apparently changed his mind.

Orosz was expended for what was believed to be a late round draft choice because of the emergence of sixth round pick Reggie Roby of Iowa State, who has matched his college punting average of 49 yards with the Dolphins during the preseason.

"What can you say when a guy's averaging 50 yards a punt?" Orosz said with a shrug.

The biggest surprise on the final roster this year is rookie free agent Robert Sowell, a cornerback from Howard University whose experience consists of one year of college football and one of sandlot play.

In other cuts Monday, the Tampa Bay Bucs trimmed their roster by 11 players by cutting 10 and putting one player on the injured reserve list. Last year's starting punter, Larry Swider, and wide receiver Gordon Jones were the two most notable players to go.

Porter Holds Off Rogers For 50-Lap Win

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Back on the big New Smyrna Speedway half-mile after taking a week off to run a long distance event on a tight quarter mile oval, LeRoy Porter held off David Rogers to win the 50-lap End of the Month Championship on Saturday night.

Former World Sries' thunder car champion Bruce Lawrence outpowered a large field to win the 30-lapper for that division. Finishing close second was Joe Coupas who drove Joe Auer's Roscoe Smith kit car, sponsored by Terry Taylor Ford.

Scoring his first win ever on the New Smyrna high banks was Ben Booth who survived a crash-filled street stock finale in the B and K Plastering "Big Red Monster" Chevy.

Bob Clark won the four-cylinder feature, but a protest was lodged against his RC Engineering/ Raceco/ One Trick Pony Pinto. After a lengthy inspection, the flyin' Pinto was declared legal, making Clark's win official.

But things did not go that well for street stock division's high point man Rick Clouser, whose fourth place finish was taken away from him because his big block Olds was not equipped with a fuel cell as prescribed by the rules.

Spectator races top eliminator and five-lap feature winner was Mike Fritts.

Bob Welch allowed four hits in his pitching stint Monday night and the Los Angeles Dodgers swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets as L.A. moved into first place in the NL West.

Dodgers Sweep Twinbill, Take Over 1st In NL West

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most team meetings are a lot of noisy complaining that things are going poorly. But not the Los Angeles Dodgers' meeting Aug. 10 in Cincinnati.

"We had hit rock bottom. It was a meeting in which a veteran would say something then one of the younger guys," said Dodger rookie right-fielder Mike Marshall.

"The meeting was just about to end and someone pointed at me and asked what I thought.

"We haven't heard from the dean, Bill Russell, yet," I said. "Let's hear what he has to say." Russell looked me right in the eye and said 'an awful lot was expected of you and Greg (Brock). If you two young guys get with it we can do this but we need your help.'"

Brock's 19th home run of the season, a two-run shot, highlighted a four-run fourth inning that lifted the Dodgers to a 7-3 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of Monday's two-night double-header.

In the first game, Bob Welch, 12-11, allowed four hits over 7 2-3 innings and Ken Landreaux had two RBI singles, helping the Dodgers post a 6-1 victory.

The sweep, which gave the Dodgers four straight victories and 12 of their last 13, helped vault Los Angeles into first place in the NL West, one game ahead of the Atlanta Braves, who lost 7-5 to Chicago. The last time the Dodgers were in first place was July 3.

In the second game, Burt Hooton, 9-7, went five innings before being relieved by Steve Howe, who went the rest of the way for his 16th save. Walt Terrell, 5-6, started for New York and lasted six innings, giving up eight hits and six earned runs.

Howe was forced to work four innings after Tom Niedenfuer worked 1 1-3 innings in the first game for his eighth save. Tom Seaver, 7-13, took the loss in the nightcap.

Cubs 7, Braves 5

At Atlanta, manager Joe Torre can take some solace in the fact that, as bad as his team is going right now, things were a lot worse last year — and the Braves still wound up winning the National League West.

"We've bounced back from a lot tougher situations than this," Torre said Monday night, after Mel Hall hit two homers — including a grand slam — to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 7-5 victory over Atlanta, dropping the slumping Braves out of first place for the first time since July 4.

"We have as good a chance, a better chance than

Rice Belts Three Homers In Nightcap

TORONTO, (UPI) — You'd never think it, but Red Sox slugger Jim Rice is a pretty sentimental guy.

When Rice hit three home runs in the second game of a double-header in Toronto Monday night, it marked the sixth anniversary of the last time he accomplished the feat.

All three of Rice's home runs were two-run blasts, with the third coming in the ninth inning to rally the Red Sox to an 8-7 victory over the Blue Jays and a split of their two-night double-header.

"I just feel comfortable at the plate," said Rice, who drove in six runs in the game. "I don't know what it is. It's like golf. You just go up and set up the same way, with a positive attitude. Baseball, any sport, is hard to explain."

"The only thing I remember about six years ago tonight is it was against Oakland and we lost the game."

The three homers gave Rice 33 on the season, enabling him to take over the major-league lead. He also has 100 runs batted in, second in the AL behind Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper.

"I don't go up there looking for home runs," said Rice, who has hit 270 homers in his 9-year career. "I'm just a contact hitter. I'm not a disciplined hitter, like a lot of other guys. I'm just a free swinger."

Rice's third home run came off a 1-1 delivery from loser Randy Moffitt, 6-2, with Boston trailing 7-6 in the ninth. His second in the sixth closed his team to within

Martina Looks To Break Open Jinx; No. 1 Seed McEnroe Faces Waltke

NEW YORK (UPI) — A half million dollars notwithstanding, it's the next two weeks that will make or break Martina Navratilova.

The 26-year-old left-hander has been virtually unbeatable in the last two years, dropping a total of four matches. So far this year she has a match record of 59-1.

She has won more prize money than any other woman athlete, well over $5 million. Her earnings for 1983 already total $541,967, and is in line for a $500,000 bonus if she wins the Open.

But never — and how well she knows it — has Navratilova won the U.S. Open, and if she fails again this year she personally will be disappointed in her year despite all the money and the other titles.

The 103rd National championship was scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. EDT today at the National Tennis Center, carrying a record purse of $2,001,000. The men's and women's singles winner will earn $120,000 each.

French Open champion Yannick Noah was scheduled to start proceedings against Scott Davis on the stadium court, with No. 1 seed John McEnroe facing Trey Waltke later in the day. Defending champion Jimmy Connors, the No. 3 seed, faces Ramesh Krishnan of India in the featured night match.

Chris Evert Lloyd, winner of the Open crown six times, including last year, would seem to be the only woman with a realistic chance of stopping Navratilova.

It may not be the equivalent of punting on a fourth and inches but, just the same, some of the NFL clubs' final cuts Monday will certainly be second-guessed.

With the teams painstakingly trimming their rosters to the mandatory final 49-player limit Monday, a number of veteran players fell by the wayside.

The Denver Broncos cut veteran tight end Riley Odoms, the second-leading receiver in club history, and the New England Patriots dropped running back Vagas Ferguson, their No. 1 draft choice three years ago. The New York Giants waived Joe Danelo, their kicker for the last seven years and Philadelphia placed but she has lost all four meetings against her this year.

Evert, who went to Amelia Island, Fla., to work out last week, also touted Andrea Jaeger, the third seed, and Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the eighth seed, as the players most likely to upset Navratilova.

Tracy Austin, the only other woman besides Evert to win the Open crown in the last eight years, is seeded fourth, but a back injury has kept her sidelined since a tournament at Eastbourne, England, in June.

The men's run towards the final on Sunday, Sept. 11, is more wide open. McEnroe, a three-time champion, is seeded No. 1 following his victory at Wimbledon, Ivan Lendl is No. 2 and Connors, in quest of his fifth Open crown, is No. 3.

In addition, there can be stern challenges from Noah, the fourth seed, and No. 5 Mats Wilander, who upset both Lendl and McEnroe to win the Association of Tennis Professionals Championship little more than a week ago.

Wilander, though, won't be given any time to get accustomed to the hard surface at Flushing Meadow. He opens against Guy Forget, a promising young Frenchman, and in the second round would play either Tim Mayotte, twice a Wimbledon semifinalist, or veteran Brian Gottfried.

anybody in our division to win the thing," added Torre, who remembers when the Braves lost 19-of-21 games late last season and fell from first place, albeit temporarily.

The Braves got to starter Ferguson Jenkins for three runs in the first inning on an RBI groundout by Chris Chambliss, a run-scoring single by Claudell Washington and an RBI double by Glenn Hubbard.

The Braves went ahead 4-0 in the third on an RBI single by Hubbard. Atlanta went ahead 5-4 in the sixth on an RBI single by pinch hitter Mike Jorgensen.

Padres 6-6, Phillies 5-8

At Philadelphia, Ozzie Virgil cracked a three-run double and Mike Schmidt added two homers to give the Phillies a split. Steve Comer, making his first NL start, was the winner. Sid Monge, 5-2, took the loss. In the first game, Sixto Lezcano tripled in the go-ahead run in the eighth and Luis Salazar hit a two-run homer for the Padres. Luis DeLeon, 4-5, beat Steve Carlton, 12-14.

Pirates 2, Reds 1

At Cincinnati, Rick Rhoden and Kent Tekulve combined on an eight-hitter and Marvell Wynne hit a solo homer to pace the Pirates. Rhoden improved to 10-11 and Tekulve notched his 16th save. Mario Soto fell to 14-11.

Cardinals 6, Astros 1

At Houston, Willie McGee drove in four runs with a double and a single and John Stuper scattered 10 hits to lead the Cards. Stuper, 9-8, struck out three and walked one. Mike Madden, 6-3, was the loser.

Expos 5, Giants 0

At Montreal, Manny Trillo drove in two runs with a single and his first home run in a Montreal uniform and Warren Cromartie also had two RBI to lead the Expos. Bryn Smith, 4-7, allowed six hits in his third complete game. He walked none and struck out seven. Mike Krukow fell to 9-8.

relief and Ron Davis got the last three outs for his 26th save. Aurelio Lopez, 8-7, was the loser.

White Sox 2, Rangers 1

At Chicago, Richard Dotson pitched a three-hitter and was backed by RBI singles from Carlton Fisk and Julie Cruz, helping the White Sox. Dotson, 15-7, hurled his fifth complete game. Mike Smithson dropped to 7-13.

Orioles 9, Royals 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Cal Ripken followed Dan Ford's first-inning triple with his 20th home run to back the seven-hit pitching of Scott McGregor and ignite the Orioles' victory over the Royals. John Shelby added a grand slam in a five-run ninth. McGregor went to 16-5. Gaylord Perry, 6-13, was the loser.

Indians 6, Angels 4

At Anaheim, Calif., Jim Essian's two-run homer, highlighted a three-run sixth inning that carried the Indians to their fifth triumph in their last seven games. California, meanwhile, lost for the 10th time 14 games. Rookie Neal Heaton, 10-4, won his fifth straight decision. Bud Anderson pitched the final three innings for his fifth save. Mike Witt, 7-10, took the loss.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1

At Seattle, Left-hander Bryan Clark outdueled veteran Don Sutton and Steve Henderson belted a home run to

Begin Decides: He'll Quit

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin today said he will resign as prime minister, but will give his coalition a few days to choose a successor before formally quitting. "The prime minister's decision to resign is final. But we asked him to wait a few days to go to the president, to give the parties of the coalition the chance to form a new government," said Shlomo Lorincz, a leader of Agudath Israel, a coalition partner.

Begin has made no public statement, but Lorincz said the prime minister told a meeting of political allies he feels "he is not able to continue. It is a personal matter. He feels he cannot go on any longer."

Energy Minister Yitzhak Mordechai said "there is no contrition, no second thoughts. It is simply a matter of allowing the coalition to reorganize."

In order to make his resignation official, Begin must tender it to President Chaim Herzog.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, aides declined immediate comment on Begin's resignation, except to say it was an internal matter.

In a related development, the Israeli government agreed to Reagan's request to delay the re-deployment of its forces around Beirut Lebanon, hit by three days of escalating factional warfare.

Begin held talks with U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane before meeting with coalition leaders to officially inform them of his decision to resign.

Begin, 70, kept Israel in suspense Monday, agreeing to delay his final decision at the request of coalition leaders.

"I gave a commitment to make up my mind by tomorrow morning and I will do it," Begin was quoted as saying Monday by Ehud Ulmert, a member of the prime minister's Likud Party.

Israeli news media reports said Begin, in his second term as prime minister, would quit and name Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir as his successor.

The television said three key coalition partners, Tami, the National Religious Party and the right-wing Tehiya Party decided Begin's resignation would have no effect on their participation in the government.

Since his wife, Aliza, died last November, Begin has become withdrawn and has visibly aged and lost weight. Close aides said worries

Karen Warner

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dorlon of Lancelot Way, Casselberry, are excited to announce the new arrival of their son, Joshua Samuel Dorlon, born Aug. 22.

"We thought he would never come," said Ruthanne Dorlon, the happy mother, "as it was, he was 11 days overdue." When Joshua was born, he weighed 11 pounds, 7 ounces, was 23 1/4 inches long, with a full crop of curly black hair. "I'd been praying for the curly black hair, my other three children were almost bald at birth," said Ruthanne.

While waiting for the birth of her fourth child, Ruthanne kept herself busy baking cupcakes and practicing her "Lamaze" breathing exercises. Coaching Ruthanne throughout her labor was her husband, Bob, and good friend, DeDe Oaks. It was DeDe's first time to witness natural child birth, and she said it was an experience that she will never forget.

Ruthanne was back home within hours of giving birth, but with the helping hands of many members of her church fellowship group, she has been able to get some rest. "They've come over every morning, took my three other children out for the day, they have come and cooked our dinner, prepared my lunch and so much more. I am very fortunate and thankful," said Ruthanne.

The Dorlons' three other children, Jimmy, 7, Johnny, 4, and Suzie, 21 months, are as happy as their parents about their new brother.

Robert Dorlon, owner and operator of Dorlon & Co., remodeling, has been telling everyone he meets about how he had given birth to an 11-pound son. Needless to say, he is excited. Ruthanne, besides being a busy mommy, finds time to teach swimming to handicapped youths, and is a qualified water safety instructor.

Congratulations Bob and Ruthanne. Welcome to the world, Joshua.

Mr. and Mrs. Mikel W. Smith

Miss Graham, M.W. Smith Repeat Vows

Deborah A. Graham and Mikel W. Smith were married Aug. 6, at 7 p.m., at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. Dr. Donn Langfitt, pastor of the Matland Presbyterian Church, performed the candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Robert F. and Mary Ann Graham of Blackshear, Ga. The bridegroom is the son of Carl C. and Betty Ruth Smith, Tryon, N.C.

Organist was Joan Wilke, cousin of the bride, who accompanied soloist Patricia Meredith.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal candlelight gown designed by Picone. Pearled Alencon lace framed the high neckline with an insert of beaded English net. The fitted lace bodice featured sheer fitted sleeves of Alencon lace on English net ending in covered buttons on the irregular edge of the wrist. The full, flowing skirt of unadorned chiffon cascaded into a graceful chapel train.

The waltz-length veil of English net featured a scalloped edge enhanced with a double row of seed pearls and embellished with lace motifs, held by a lace Juliet cap adorned with seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of ivory roses interspersed with lily-of-the-valley and flowing lace ribbons. The bride carried an antique lace handkerchief belonging to her great-great grandmother and she wore her great grandmother's platinum-diamond brooch at the neckline of her gown.

Laurie E. Graham attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a designer gown of teal blue lalique taffeta with a V-neck crossover bodice, large full sleeves to the elbow and a full gathered skirt sashed with an off-centered bow at the waist. She wore her hair in a tucked French braid intertwined with teal blue ribbon. Her bouquet was pink and rose colored mums interspersed with small pink roses and white jasmine.

Christie Lee Graham was her sister's bridesmaid. Her emerald green gown was identical to the honor attendant's and she carried a rose-colored bouquet. Laurie E. Graham created both gowns and also the bride's bouquet.

Danny R. Robertson served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Bo Graham, brother of the bride, and George Harms Jr.

A reception followed at the Sanora Clubhouse, Sanford. Jane Davis White and Jill Davis, friends of the bride, served the buffet. The guest book was attended by Jean Ann O'Call, Blackshear.

Following a wedding trip to St. Augustine, the newlyweds are making their home at Winter Springs. The bride is employed by the State of Florida. The bridegroom is self employed as an electrical contractor, Mike Smith Electric, Winter Springs.

Fake Stone May Not Ring Wedding Bells

DEAR ABBY: Sally Ann (not her real name) and I have gone together for four years. We're announcing our engagement soon and plan to marry in about three months.

I planned to buy her a modest little diamond, but she has other ideas. She wants a "big rock" that costs $2,000.

Until recently I was willing to buy her the "rock," although I am far from rich. Then I saw a synthetic diamond that looked so much like the real thing, most jewelers couldn't tell the difference. I can get a ring that looks like the one Sally Ann wants for about $300.

That's the problem. She wants the real thing. With all the other expenses we'll have, I think a $2,000 ring is a waste. That's where it stands. I really love her, but I can't see spending that kind of money on a ring.

Entirely by coincidence I came across this quote by Ralph Waldo Emerson: "Rings and jewels are not gifts but apologies for gifts. The only true gift is a portion of yourself."

What do you say?

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: If you were Van Gogh, you could give her an ear. But seriously, you can't blame a woman for wanting the real thing. However, don't go in hock for a rock. Spend whatever you can — but let it be genuine.

DEAR ABBY: You are wrong when you say that North America and South America are two separate continents.

You must be kidding, Abby. According to universal geography, there are six continents: America, which includes North, Central and South America; Antarctica; Africa; Asia; Europe; and Oceania.

Citizens of the United States are the only people in the world who proclaim the United States and Canada to be the North American continent. It sounds like a joke to the rest of the world.

R. GONZALES

DEAR MR. GONZALES: According to my Rand McNally World Atlas, there are seven continents: Africa, Antarctica, Asia, Australia Europe, North America and South America. Geography (like history) differs — depending on where it's taught.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter just gave birth to her second child. Her first child was left in the care of a baby sitter while our daughter was in the hospital.

Our daughter told her husband that he should tell the sitter — a young woman of 20 — to go home nights to sleep. (She lives across the street.)

We were very much upset to learn that the young lady did not go home nights; instead, she stayed in the same house with our son-in-law.

We are not making any accusations, but we are very much upset about this. What should we, her parents, do?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Nothing. And the less said about it, the better.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONSIDERING BREAST AUGMENTATION: Most women wrote that they had not been warned that their implants would "hard-en." Some said they return to their doctors periodically to have their breasts "popped" or "cracked" to keep them soft. Two said they had theirs removed, but the majority kept theirs, saying they preferred "grapefruits to raisins."

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Free Hearing Tests At Orange Hearing Center

If you have trouble hearing sounds and conversation around you, you don't have to put up with this embarrassment and inconvenience because help is available. Electronic hearing tests are available free of charge from Orange Hearing Aid Centers using the latest electronic equipment to determine the extent of your hearing loss.

Bernard Fisher at Orange Hearing Center testing console.

The specialists in custom-made hearing aids of the Orange Hearing Aid Centers will be glad to help you. In Seminole County, Orange Hearing Aid Centers have well-equipped testing facilities at 120 S. U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, and at Medco Discount Drugs, 2701-D S. Orlando Drive, Sanford.

Tests are given Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Casselberry center and on Monday only from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Sanford.

Bernard Fisher, Orange Hearing Aid Centers vice president and licensed hearing aid dispenser, and hearing aid consultants Harry Powers and Frank Whitten, are all certified by the National Hearing Aid Society will be at these offices to perform the hearing tests. Orange Hearing Aid Centers offer a special 30-day trial period, satisfaction guaranteed, with every hearing aid obtained from their office. Everything they sell comes with an unconditional one-year guarantee.

Their well-qualified specialists repair and service their hearing aids as well as test adjust them on the premises.

Irwin Pensack, president of the Orange Hearing Aid Centers, has a master's degree in audiology.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them can find out about the latest methods of hearing corrections.

Space-age technology has come to the hearing aid industry and a hearing aid has been developed that only costs pennies per year to operate. This is a far cry from the $25 to $70 a year operation costs of the average hearing aid. The newer rechargeable aid also automatically controls speech interfering noises and can be "custom-adjusted" for correct hearing on the spot.

Orange Hearing Aid has a full line of hearing aids. Call 323-5702 or 834-8776 to arrange for an appointment or drop in at your convenience.

Boarding, Grooming, Training Provided At Ability Kennels

Ability Kennels owner Lori Crenshaw (left) with Rottweilers Eric, Echo and Elki, and trainer Shirley Reilly with Irish Setter Clancey.

CLEAN, CLEAN...These words appear in each advertisement for ABILITY KENNELS and not by accident.

ABILITY KENNELS takes pride in its extensive flea and parasite control program on a daily basis. Not only are the individual runs cleaned, they are also disinfected. This practice ensures that each new boarder arrives as a guest to a CLEAN area always. Also as advertised, OUR kennel is open for your inspection by appointment.

Large, spacious individual runs ensure that each guest will not be subjected to cramped conditions during their stay at ABILITY KENNELS.

While a guest, each boarder is fed a balanced diet along with any individual medication which may be required during their stay.

Complete grooming facilities are also available for all types of dogs at reasonable rates.

As a matter of routine, each dog is returned to its owner after being bathed and flea dipped AT NO ADDITIONAL CHARGE.

Training classes for both BASIC and ADVANCED OBEDIENCE are held at ABILITY KENNELS each weekend under the direct supervision of SHIRLEY REILLY, trainer. Additional classes in TRACKING are scheduled to commence this fall. Ms. Reilly also trains for the well known SEMINOLE DOG FANCIERS and is involved in private training sessions for those who cannot attend the weekly classes.

ABILITY KENNELS is also involved in breeding, and showing of fine Rottweilers.

ABILITY KENNELS is located just one mile south of Lemon Bluff Road in Osten and is just a short drive from both the SANFORD and DE- LTONA areas. The route to the kennel is marked with well placed signs along State Route 415 and also Lemon Bluff Road.

ABILITY KENNELS has recently expanded its facilities and can accommodate even more boarders than before. Advanced reservations are accepted and lodging can be secured for the upcoming holidays by calling 323-2220.

Cartons May Cause Some Vitamin Loss

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about using milk in cardboard containers to avoid losing its vitamins. I have always bought milk in cardboard containers because it is provided that way in the stores. But your comments made me wonder about orange juice. I buy it in glass or clear plastic containers. Will I lose some of the vitamins I should get that way? Will sunlight or house light cause the vitamins in orange juice to deteriorate like it does in milk? Should I buy orange juice in cardboard containers? What about frozen orange juice?

DEAR READER — No, you have a different problem with vitamin C. In fact, pasteurized orange juice stored in cartons may not be a very good source of vitamin C. Canned or fresh-frozen concentrated orange juice is a much better source of vitamin C.

You lose a lot of vitamin C in food preparation. Simply slicing strawberries causes a major loss of vitamin C. So will chopping fresh fruit for a fruit cocktail and letting it stand for a short time.

To get the maximum vitamin C from fruit, eat it fresh and as soon as it is prepared. In the case of an orange, peel it and eat it at once. The same would apply to other citrus fruits.

You lose a lot of vitamin C from foods that are initially canned or frozen and then stored. After six months frozen fruits or berries may lose 70 percent of their vitamin C.

The effects of food preparation and storage on nutrients are discussed in more detail in The Health Letter 20-8, How Food Processing Affects Nutritive Values, which I am sending you.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby
In a bridge player's version of "Faust," the Doctor is an unfortunate player who has sold his soul to the devil in return for success at the card table. Maybe hands like this one will give enough pleasure to make up for eternal damnation.

In any event, Dr. Faustus arrives at seven hearts to find that there is an apparent sure trump loser. He wins the spade lead with dummy's ace and is about to lay down his ace and king of trumps in the hope that the queen-jack will drop doubleton when the Devil whispers, "Trumps are 3-2, but the honors are split. However, you still have a way to make the contract."

Dr. Faustus doesn't see any hope, but he is used to being without hope. He ruffs a spade at trick two and the devil whispers, "So far, so good."

He leads a club to dummy's ace, back to his king, club ruff in dummy, spade ruff, three rounds of diamonds ending in dummy's last spade and finally the lead of his fourth club.

At this point West holds his original three trumps, East has two trumps and a high club, and dummy has K-10 of trumps and the thirteenth diamond.

If West trumps low, South overtakes with the 10 and makes the last tricks with the king and ace of trumps. If West ruffs with the jack, dummy's king wins and South finishes against East's queen to make his grand slam.
