Call early. That's what phone companies are telling customers who plan to wish friends and family a merry Christmas via long distance telephone calls.

According to a United Telephone of Florida release, the best time to make a long distance call Dec. 25 is before 9 a.m. and after 11 p.m.

United Telephone logged 3.15 million long distance calls through its toll call switching centers on Dec. 25, 1989. That included 777,501 call attempts made through the Winter Park Toll Switching Center, the release said.

United will have 160 toll operators working on Christmas day, including 68 in Winter Park. Another 150 directory assistance operators will be on duty across the state.

Cats on firing line for head-wound research stirs uproar

By NEBOCCA KOLBERG
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Controversy flared over a congressional report on cat-shooting experiments aimed at improving treatment for head wounds, with scientists calling the report flawed and animal rights activists saying it shows such tests should end.

From 1983 through November 1989, researchers at Louisiana State University in New Orleans used about 700 cats in work aimed at finding better ways of treating soldiers and other people with bullet wounds to the head.

The death rates among soldiers with head wounds from bullets or shrapnel remained essentially unchanged from World War II through Vietnam, with about 10 percent of patients dying from their wounds. About 18,000 Americans die annually from gunshot wounds to the brain.

At First Impressions child care center this week, the arrival of Santa Claus was as frightening as it was exciting for some of the younger children. The reason?

SANFORD — A number of local agencies have assistance available for families in need this Christmas.

The Salvation Army, 700 W. 24th St., Sanford, this week gave Christmas aid to 777 families in northern Seminole County. The agency purchased one three-pound ham for each of the families. Each of the households also received a bag of canned goods collected through a Channel 2 TV food drive, a bag of clothes collected through the Angel Tree program at local stores, and donated toys.

For families needing further assistance, the Salvation Army number is 322-2642.

The Sanford Christian Sharing

Center provides food and clothing for families in need. The center, located at 515 E. 25th St., Sanford, is open from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. The center will be open Monday during its regular hours.

"We expect it to be hectic Monday," Sharing Center Director Irene Brown said. "On a normal day, we feed 15 households. (Thursday) we fed 44."

The Sharing Center has a limited number of toys available, Brown said.

The Sharing Center may be reached at 323-2513 during office hours.

LAKE MARY — Entertainers for Lake Mary's "Holiday in the Park" finally have a stage on which to perform Saturday.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland said the new Lake Mary Central Park Amphitheater at city hall is ready, thanks to a "generous outpouring of gifts."

The outpouring was actually the pouring of the concrete for the large stage, completed this week.

Holland said area businesses donated concrete, the pump needed to pour it and the labor to finish it. The businesses include Rinker Materials Corporation, GCI and Custom Concrete Pumping.

"They're all great guys. Now the amphitheater can be used to its potential," Holland said.

Plans for the event, which begins at 11:30 a.m., include lots of local entertainment, Holland said. Singers include Stan Welling and Carol Foster, city employees. Welling's wife Joyce will also perform.

"Diane from the chamber talked some of her friends into singing, too. We've scraped together some real talented acts," Holland said.

Encephalitis outbreak officially ends

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida health officials lifted all St. Louis encephalitis warnings Wednesday, saying no new cases of the mosquito-borne disease had been reported in four weeks and the outbreak appears to be over.

Epidemiologists at the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said residents and visitors can return to normal outdoor activities without fear of contracting the infection.

They lifted all restrictions on nighttime activity and withdrew advisories regarding the wearing of protective clothing and the use of insect repellent to ward off potential virus transmitting mosquitoes. The agency also lifted its warnings against overnight campouts.

Dr. Diana Wells, a state epidemiologist, said there have been no new cases in the past four weeks and other data suggest the possibility of contracting the virus is "very remote."

The 1990 St. Louis encephalitis outbreak began in August and was the second worst in Florida history, with 212 confirmed and presumed cases. There were 222 cases in 1962. Other outbreaks occurred in 1959, 1961 and 1977.

The victims averaged 52 years old, with only 5 percent of the cases involving children 10 years old or younger.

Nine Floridians, or 4 percent of the victims, died from the illness. The youngest was 58.

Of Florida's 67 counties, 28 had at least one case of St. Louis encephalitis.

Indian River County was hardest hit, with a rate of 21.7 cases per 100,000 people, or 19 cases. Dade County had the lowest rate among the infected counties, with four cases, or 0.1 cases per 100,000 residents.

Orange County had 27 people contract the illness, which is more than any other county in the state. That represented 4.3 cases per 100,000 residents.

The deaths occurred in Brevard. See Mosquito, Page 5A

Educator chosen for lottery post

TALLAHASSEE — Marcia Mann, a University of South Florida administrator with no lottery experience, will replace Rebecca Paul as Florida Lottery secretary, Gov.-elect Lawton Chiles announced Thursday.

Mann promised to eliminate an "aura of opulence" that she believes permeates the Lottery Department and direct more money from lottery administration and advertising to benefit the state's schools.

"I promise all the parents and children of Florida that I will work every day to meet the demand of ensuring that all lottery funds are used as they were intended to be used, to enhance Florida's education system, not to supplant existing programs," Mann said.

Mann represents a sharp departure from Paul, who used to be director of the Illinois lottery and is one of the most highly respected lottery overseers in the nation.

Man charged with murder

AVON PARK — Police have charged a man with murder after a woman who saw her niece stabbed by an assailant suffered a fatal heart attack.

Virginia Council, 28, survived the multiple stab wounds, but her aunt, Kay Snyder, 63, died Thursday morning.

Both women were guests at a party Wednesday night for restaurant employees at a Pizza Hut in Avon Park when Leon Kerney, 35, crashed the party close to 10 p.m. and asked to speak to Council, police said. She was his ex-girlfriend and a waitress at the restaurant.

Kerney then allegedly pulled a knife on Council and stabbed her in the chest, back, arms, leg and hand, police said.

Snyder, who was a guest at the party, saw the attack and suffered a heart attack. She died at Walker Memorial Hospital.

Police Chief Joe Silva said Kerney is being held in the Highlands County Jail on charges of first-degree attempted murder for the attack on Council and third-degree felony murder for the death of Snyder.

Under Florida law, a person can be charged with felony murder if a death results while the person is committing another felony.

State universities cut budgets

TALLAHASSEE — State university presidents have approved $73 million in budget cuts, but have vowed to fight the new governor on any additional cuts in the future.

Chancellor Charles Reed said the Board of Regents will focus on defending university programs. He also said he does not think the cuts are a good idea.

The $73 million in cuts were submitted to Gov.-elect Lawton Chiles as part of the planning process for the 1991-92 budget.

Mandated cuts from outgoing Gov. Bob Martinez kicked in Thursday for the second half of the current fiscal year. Martinez ordered a 2 percent cut for the first half of the year and a 2.5 percent cut for the remainder of the year to compensate for a state budget crunch.

For the universities, the 2.5 percent cut freezes travel expenses, bars new purchases and cuts the number of summer school classes offered this year by 40 percent.

The universities can still fight the proposed cuts submitted to Chiles, who is scheduled to discuss them at the Jan. 11 Cabinet meeting. The Legislature will then decide on Chiles' budget.

Racial inequity persists in Tampa

TAMPA — Disparities remain in opportunity and quality of life between minorities and whites, the authors of a recently released report on the city's racial climate said.

However, the ethnic survey said segregation and overt racial hostility seem to be in decline. But the opportunities remain lacking among the city's minorities, especially for blacks.

The report comes from three University of South Florida professors. It is said to be the first broad scientific survey of black, white and Hispanic residents of Tampa in more than a generation.

USF anthropologist Susan Greenbaum said the survey confirms much conventional wisdom about poverty, crime, employment, politics, education and other community issues. But, she said, the report also offers some surprises.

Sex allegations prompt cop's resignation

JACKSONVILLE — A police officer has resigned after being charged with sexually assaulting a handcuffed woman he was talking to the Duval County jail.

Mark James Purcell, 28, had been an officer for 15 months when he was arrested and charged Thursday with sexual battery. Jail officials said he was released after posting a $5,000 bond.

Purcell drove the 24-year-old woman to a Northside service station parking lot Wednesday night and allegedly had sex with her behind his police car.

According to a police report, the incident was witnessed by the woman's friend, who had also been arrested and was sitting in the cruiser's back seat.

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court upheld Thursday the reimposition of the death penalty upon a convicted killer whose first round of appeals resulted in an important legal precedent in death cases.

James Ernest Hitchcock was convicted of first-degree murder for the 1976 rape and murder of his 13-year-old niece in Orange County. He was sentenced to death in 1977, but the U.S. Supreme Court reversed that sentence, saying the judge prevented the jury from considering all possible mitigating factors.

Numerous death sentences have been overturned for so-called Hitchcock errors since then.

But that didn't stop Circuit Judge Gary Formet from reimposing the death penalty when Hitchcock's case went back to the lower court for a new sentencing hearing.

On Thursday, the state high court upheld that sentence by a vote of 4-to-3.

This time the issue was proportionality, or whether people convicted of similar crimes also were sentenced to death.

Justices Gerald Kogan and Rosemary Barkett ruled that death would be disproportionate in Hitchcock's case. They said they would have commuted his sentence to life in prison.

Justice Leander Shaw filed a separate dissent but did not explain his reasoning.

But the court majority, in an unassigned opinion, said the death sentence was fair.

"On the circumstances of this case, and in comparison with other cases, we find Hitchcock's sentence of death proportionate to his crime," the majority decision said.

According to court records, Hitchcock strangled Cynthia Ann Driggers, his brother's stepdaughter, after sexually assaulting her in her bedroom.

TALLAHASSEE — Dade County Circuit Judge Jack Turner was reprimanded Thursday by the Florida Supreme Court for conduct unbecoming a judge in promoting his son's legal and political career.

According to court records, Turner contacted lawyers practicing in Dade County and sought help for his son, who at the time was an announced candidate for a county court seat in Dade in November.

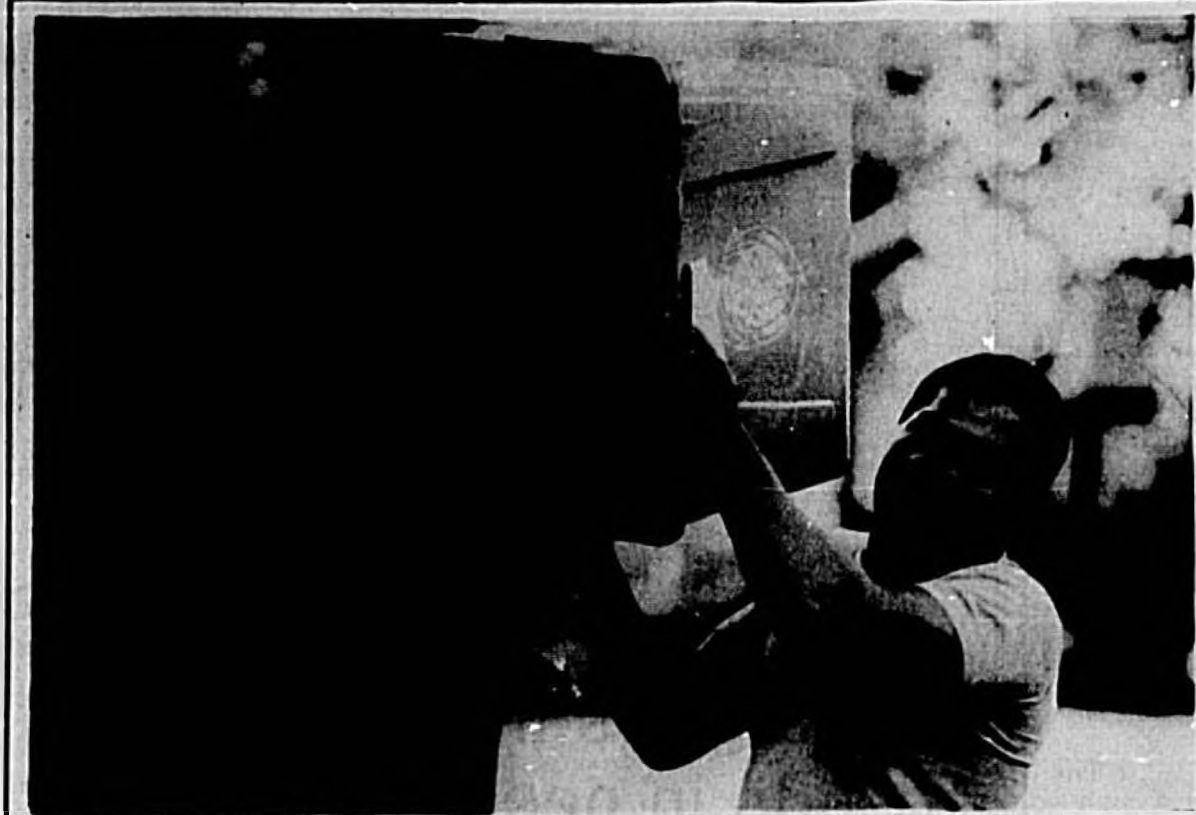

Turner also reportedly contacted Rep. John Cosgrove, D-Miami, who was serving as honorary campaign chairman for his son's political opponent, to discuss the campaign.

Additionally, the records say, Turner circulated a memorandum among his fellow judges seeking guardianship appointments for his son.

Turner did not contest the charges and has apologized for his behavior. He has announced his plans to retire from the bench effective Jan. 7.

The high court said Turner's actions "isolated several canons of the Code of Judicial Conduct: failing to uphold the integrity and independence of the judiciary, failing to avoid impropriety or the appearance of impropriety, allowing his personal relationships to influence his conduct and engaging in inappropriate political activity."

"By publication of this order, we reprimand Judge Jack Turner for conduct unbecoming a member of the judiciary of the state of Florida," the unsigned order said.

Noriega still waiting — one year after invasion

United Press International

Miami — Former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega, deposed a year ago by a U.S. invasion, has been awaiting trial in a Miami prison for nearly a year on drug and racketeering charges and it looks like he has at least another six months to wait.

He faces a myriad of charges largely involving the shipment of drugs and drug money from the notorious cocaine cartel in Medellin, Colombia, Panama City's closest metropolitan cousin, to the United States.

His trial date has been postponed at least twice — most recently last week — and despite hundreds of hours in legal wrangling does not appear to be much closer than when he arrived in Miami on Jan. 4.

"Right now we're sort of in a holding pattern," said lawyer Jon May, the appellate member of Noriega's defense team. "We are months and months behind."

May blamed the delays on the government. He said prosecutors have been less than cooperative in moving the case along.

U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen would not comment on May's allegations. He has said many times his team is ready for trial. He also claims the case has moved at a steady pace since Noriega and 15 others were indicted in November 1988.

"The investigation has progressed quite a bit in the past two years," he said. "We have had two defendants plead guilty. We're preparing for trial but the defense has indicated they need more time to prepare."

Part of the problem, defense attorneys say, has to do with money. Defense attorneys say they have not been paid and have been unable to conduct crucial pretrial investigations.

They say it will take at least six months after funds become available to mount a defense.

At the request of prosecutors, several foreign governments froze Noriega's assets. Those governments have been hesitant to release the money because they are entitled to keep ill-gotten gains and Noriega's assets are in the millions.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeweler ordered the government to help the defense gain access to those funds and a group of Justice Department officials is in Europe trying to persuade France, Austria and Switzerland to release some of the money.

Hoeweler said he is satisfied the government is making a good faith effort to get the funds, but May questioned Lehtinen's motives.

"I don't know what's going on," he said. "I would hope they are making the effort."

The court believes they are but to me that the United States would suddenly send a delegation to Europe; it seems they are acting in our interests when their self interests coincide with ours."

Meanwhile, the four defense lawyers have agreed to sign on as court-appointed attorneys earning up to $75 an hour, far less than the $350 an hour such a case can command, at least until the government delegation returns from Europe.

"That will permit us in the interim to get investigators hired. The (government) provides for necessary costs and expenses for a defense and we are required to reimburse most of the expenses," May said. "We're trying very hard to keep the taxpayers from paying for the general's defense."

Defense attorneys have indicated they may be forced to quit unless the general's assets are released. They have claimed they cannot prepare the type of defense required to win such a notorious case on what the government pays.

Another stumbling block of late has been the CNN tapes. Cable News Network obtained and aired tapes from telephone conversations Noriega had had from his cell at Metropolitan Correction Center.

Lead defense attorney Frank Rubino claims a CNN reporter got the tapes from an official in Panama who received them from the Justice Department.

Man charged with molesting boys

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Investigator Dan Prast reports the arrest at the county jail Wednesday in Sanford of a man accused of sexually battering or molesting about six boys in rural Altamonte Springs.

Kenneth Lee Kramer, 38, 595 Clemons Ave., Altamonte Springs, is charged with four counts of sexual battery of a child, six counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child, and contributing to the delinquency of a child.

A group of boys have accused Kramer of having sexual contact with them while they were fishing with him, or playing pool or watching pornographic movies with him at his house, a sheriff's report said.

Arrest made at closed business

SANFORD — Two men allegedly lurking behind Brandon's Cabinets, 412 Sanford Ave., after being warned not to trespass there, have been arrested by Sanford police.

Bill Lane, 32, 5917-C Route 427, Sanford; and Keith Peterson, 34, of no address, were arrested outside the closed business at about 12:25 a.m. today. Both are charged with trespass after a warning after reportedly refusing the property owner's request that they leave.

Police attacked in bar brawl

SANFORD — A man allegedly fighting another at Bikini Beach, 2817 Orlando Drive, Sanford, reportedly attacked Sanford police who tried to bring him under control. Police officers said they were kicked and scratched and the suspect also allegedly took one officer's police radio microphone.

Kenneth Fillinger, 28, of Sanford, was charged with two counts of battery on a police officer, resisting arrest with violence, disorderly conduct and depriving a police officer of means of communication. He was arrested at about 10 p.m. Thursday.

Highway Patrol predicts 53 holiday traffic deaths

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

TALLAHASSEE — As many as 53 people will die on state highways and roads during the holiday weekend beginning at 6 p.m. today and ending at midnight Dec. 25, the Florida Highway Patrol announced. That's an average of about one death every two hours.

Estimates are based on statewide averages. Local estimates were not available.

Over half of the 43 people killed during the same Christmas period in 1989 were caused in some way by alcohol, the FHP reports. Over half the 37 accidents were alcohol-related.

The FHP began a program in September to educate motorists of the consequences of drunken driving. Called "DUI. Decide Before You Drive" is designed to reduce the number of drunken driving fatalities caused by motorists who insist on driving after drinking beyond their safe limits.

"We remind all motorists that wearing seat belts and using child restraint devices has been proven to reduce fatalities and serious injuries," said FHP Director Bobby R. Burkett in a statement.

Other 1989 Christmas holiday highway death statistics include:

- 28 percent of the fatalities were pedestrians.
- 33 percent were passengers.
- 12 percent were under 21 years old and
- 86 percent weren't wearing their safety belts;
- 78 percent of the fatal crashes occurred on straight and level roads.
- 57 percent occurred during clear weather and
- 82 percent occurred after dark.

Sanford to hire new inspector

From staff reports

SANFORD — The city will hire a new building inspector to stay current with three new construction projects and to prepare the city for Seminole Towne Center construction.

City Manager Frank Faison said construction has begun on two apartment complexes in the city and permits have been issued for a third, straining city inspection resources.

"It is truly overwhelming," Faison said.

City Engineer Bill Simmons said the inspection effort is being assisted by the city code enforcement inspector, but both inspection areas are falling behind. Even with a new building inspector, the code inspector will have to continue some building oversight, Simmons said.

Simmons said the new inspector will only provide temporary relief to the city until the new mall is begun and nearby projects follow. Commissioners approved the request unanimously.

Fee waiver language stricken

TALLAHASSEE — A provision in the state budget limiting community college fee waivers for some welfare recipients was declared unconstitutional Thursday by the Florida Supreme Court.

The court directed that the offending language should be stricken from the state budget act.

Utilities say they're ready for the cold

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald staff writer

Though the biting cold of last Christmas has been called a "freak occurrence" by some, the electric companies serving Seminole County are, nonetheless, preparing for increased power demands this winter.

"If it gets extremely cold this winter, which they are saying will not happen," said Mike Bumgardner, a spokesman for Florida Power and Light Corporation, "we're better prepared than we were last year."

Florida Power and Light serves all of Sanford, parts of Lake Mary, as well as Chuluota and Geneva.

Mark Jacobs, a spokesman for Florida Power Corporation, said his company did nothing to increase the power production capabilities after last year's increased Christmas power demands.

"We have just revised our cold weather emergency plans," Jacobs said.

He explained that increasing the number of power stations capable of producing extra power would not be cost effective in times when they were not needed.

"If the winter is a warm one, we will not need the additional power generated," he said. "We were better served by making our present facilities more efficient."

Florida Power Corporation serves the southern part of the county, including Winter Springs, Longwood, Casselberry and Altamonte Springs. They also serve a very small portion of unincorporated Seminole County just south of Sanford.

Bumgardner said at the peak of this year's cold, the forecasters are predicting that 14,000 megawatts of power will be needed to serve the energy needs of the area served by Florida Power and Light.

"We have, at last accounting, 15,200 megawatts available," he noted.

Reserves of about fifteen percent, which Bumgardner estimates that Florida Power and Light will have this winter, are considered adequate to handle the demands that were placed on the system last year.

"If we have another year like we did last year," Bumgardner said, "we could handle it, but things could get a little tight."

Bob Osborn, a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Orlando, reports that forecasters are confident many people will not even turn on their heaters until well after the new year.

"They are talking about temperatures in the 60s for Christmas Day and in the 40s at night," he said. "I think people will be just enjoying the weather without any climate control."

Bumgardner pointed out that the increased reliance on space heaters by consumers was a contributing factor in last year's power shortage.

"Space heaters use a lot of electricity," he said. "Also Florida homes are built to retain cool air, not heat."

He noted that Florida has rare cold snaps so homes, especially those built more than 20 years ago, are designed to stay cool despite the summer sun. Heating the homes was not a priority.

Buy America

The recent acquisition of the Hollywood entertainment group MCA by Japanese electrical giant Matsushita has renewed apprehension on these shores of Japanese investment in the United States.

The $6.6 billion MCA sale amounts to the biggest takeover yet of an American company by a Japanese concern. What is perhaps most alarming to Americans is that Japanese investors show a decided predilection for acquisition of such high-profile American properties as Rockefeller Center, Pebble Beach Country Club and CBS Records.

These and other recent Japanese purchases have prompted calls in some quarters for tighter U.S. control of foreign investment. Indeed, in October, Congress passed laws meant to improve collection of information about foreign investment and tighten up rules on taxation.

Such laws can hardly be considered an impediment to foreign investment. But there is a distinct possibility, especially in the wake of the recent collapse of GATT negotiations, that a more protectionist Congress will pass legislation in 1991 that makes foreign acquisition of U.S. property considerably more onerous.

The question that begs to be answered is if any foreign investors other than the Japanese had acquired MCA and the other aforementioned properties whether there would be talk of restricting foreign investment. In fact, while much was made of Matsushita's buyout of MCA, comparatively little was said about acquisitions of the Hollywood properties 20th Century Fox and MGM/United Artists by Australian and Italian companies respectively.

Indeed, given the extensive coverage of Japanese purchases of American companies, Americans have come to believe that the Japanese own more property in this country than any other foreign investors. They might be surprised to learn that the British are by far the biggest investor in the U.S. economy, with $121 billion in property compared to $75 billion for the Japanese.

All told, foreign investment in the United States amounted to $329 billion in 1988. This amounts to only about 5 percent of all U.S. assets, hardly a cause for fear of the country being bought out by foreign interests. Hardly a cause for rash protectionist measures by Washington.

Meanwhile, U.S. direct investment abroad amounted to $326 billion in 1988. To put this in perspective, the United States has as much invested in other nations as those nations have invested here.

That Japanese, British and other foreign interests consider the United States fertile ground for their investments should be encouraging rather than alarming to the American public. When foreign investors start to believe they can find better returns elsewhere, that is when Americans should start to worry.

Mayor post is part-time

After a very busy week of "mayor" duties, I didn't know whether to laugh or cry, when I read Mrs. Mary Jolly's letter. How sad it is that Mrs. Jolly, who is not even a Sanford resident, didn't bother to research our form of government. Had she done so, she would have discovered that the mayor's position is a part-time job, for which I am paid a salary of $3,600 per year. In addition, had she asked around, she would have discovered that I contribute much more than that back to the community each year.

I do hope that the people who are citizens of our city are more informed than Mrs. Jolly.

Sincerely,
Mayor Bettye D. Smith,
Sanford

ISSUES THAT HIT HOME

Time has come for family leave

By ANTONETTE PARRHAYTON
American Academy of Pediatrics

After a decade of neglect, American children took their first tentative steps toward recovery in 1990. Promising polls suddenly began to show that a newly concerned public would even support higher taxes if the money went to benefit children. Congress moved space to expand Medicaid coverage for children and youth, to pass landmark child care legislation, to strengthen emergency medical services for children, to expand Head Start, and more.

But on one vitally important issue to children — the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) — progress came to an abrupt halt. Even though FMLA cruised through Congress with bipartisan support, President Bush vetoed this crucial yet bare-bones legislation. The concern was that a national family leave policy would put American businesses at a disadvantage. But the statistics paint a different picture.

The government's own General Accounting Office estimates that the cost of FMLA would have been only about $5.30 annually per employee. And for that sum, firms with 50 or more employees would grant up to 12 unpaid weeks of leave in connection with the birth or adoption of a child or to care for a sick child, spouse or parent. During the leave, the employee's health insurance coverage would continue on the same basis as when he or she was working, and his or her job would be protected.

Moreover, every other major industrialized nation already has an established leave policy. Japan grants 12 weeks of leave at 60 percent of an employee's wages. A German working woman gets 14 weeks of paid — not unpaid — maternity leave, six weeks before and eight weeks after giving birth. Her prenatal care is on paid time. Her job is protected for one year after her child's birth. By all accounts Germany's and Japan's economies are doing nicely.

Common sense tells us that most families need their paychecks, and would opt for the unpaid leave permitted by FMLA only under serious circumstances anyway.

Common sense tells us that most families need their paychecks, and would opt for the unpaid leave permitted by FMLA only under serious circumstances anyway. But, as pediatricians, we know that such circumstances do arise and when they do, parents should not have to choose between their children's health and their jobs.

It is medically documented that children need their parents at certain critical points if they are to have the best chance to grow and flourish as healthy adults. A new child in the family, whether newborn or adopted, needs to begin and strengthen the bonding process. During this period of adjustment, parents develop skills and children make adaptations which promote optimal physical and emotional growth. It also has been widely known for more than 30 years that children who are hospitalized get well faster and have fewer complications when their parents are able to be with them.

Pediatricians daily see the stress facing today's families — a majority of which consist of two working parents or a single parent serving as a sole caregiver. The members of the American Academy of Pediatrics believe that America should strive toward policies which enable children and families. The public seems to agree. A poll conducted by the Wall Street Journal and NBC News last July found that 71 percent of voters support family leave.

Bush faces moment of truth

WASHINGTON — "I haven't been tested yet," President Bush told a guest during a picnic at Kennebunkport, Maine, last summer when he was praised for his high popularity polls.

But today he faces the moment of truth of his administration.

The administration will ring in the new year with war clouds on the horizon as Iraq's Saddam Hussein faces a U.N. mandate to have his troops out of oil-rich Kuwait by Jan. 15 and Bush's warning that it must be done completely "or else."

The "or else" is out there with no sign yet that Iraq will retreat and withdraw from its neighbor, which it invaded and annexed last Aug. 2.

The president has kept up a steady drumbeat of warnings to Saddam and to alert the world that military action is an option if the Iraqi leader stands firm on his threat not to yield.

War and peace will be the biggest challenge for Bush, as it has for nearly every president this century.

Because of the power of the presidency, notwithstanding the congressional constitutional authority to declare war, which is rarely used, Bush has the ultimate decision in his hands.

At the moment the standoff seems to be a contest of wills. Bush has made strong unequivocal statements that bar compromise, or concessions to Iraq and very little flexibility if negotiations are arranged.

Saddam, who has ruled with an iron fist and through terror for three decades, has shrugged off the message and appears to enjoy his role in standing up to a superpower. But he has alienated most of the world, including Arab neighbors, who were stunned when he invaded Kuwait after promising he would not.

Those Arab leaders, including Jordan's King Hussein, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Saudi King Fahd, assured Bush that the Iraqi forces on the Kuwaiti border were simply a show of strength.

Bush may be saying to himself, as another president did, "I see the storm coming and I am not afraid."

Bush's philosophy that aggression must be stopped was honed in World War II. He has lived through two subsequent wars, in Korea and Vietnam, as a true believer when the ultimate enemy was communism.

The price of the presidency is high and calls for confidence when momentous decisions are made. It is not easy.

Many presidents have avoided committing themselves or the political capital, by blaming others or passing the buck.

President Lyndon Johnson made decisions, and then made his Cabinet members sign on the dotted line.

President Ronald Reagan relied so heavily on his aides to make the tough decisions, which gave him the privilege of deniability, that he even permitted to let stand for a long time, the personal claim of his national security affairs adviser John Poindexter at the Iran-Contra hearings that "the buck stops here."

"It's easy to do the right thing if you know what the right thing is," Johnson used to say.

Reagan talked big. It was always high noon, but he knew enough to retreat when the situation became too hot for American troops in Lebanon. It was the better part of valor. And he was never faulted for backing out.

Bush has no personal dilemma on the righteousness of his cause. His big problem at the moment is to convince the American people and the world that the showdown with Saddam is worth risking a war that could take thousands of lives.

But nothing is clean cut. There is a lot of conflicting official advice he must sort out. His top military advisers, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are preparing for the worst.

Secretary of State James Baker still appears to be looking for a diplomatic solution. Congressional leaders are waffling on whether to bite the bullet and give Bush the free hand he wants in the form of a resolution, or to stop him by invoking the Constitution.

Some of them are old enough to remember how Johnson waved the Gulf of Tonkin resolution in their faces, which he claimed gave him carte blanche to conduct the Vietnam War.

So while the Christmas season personifies "Peace on Earth," the president is struggling with the question of war.

NRA scrambles as membership drops

WASHINGTON — The membership numbers of the National Rifle Association are dropping like ducks in a shooting gallery, prompting the gun lobby to offer some incentives to lure new recruits.

But one of the incentives, a gun insurance policy, has some longtime members steaming. The NRA pitch through the mail boasts that just by being a paying member of the NRA, a person automatically is entitled to up to $1,000 in coverage against loss or damage to his or her guns.

What the pitch fails to say is that the NRA insurance doesn't pay first if the gun is covered by any other insurance including a homeowner's or renter's policy.

The insurance offer has put some devout NRA members in a bind. They don't want to speak out against the NRA, which doesn't need any more critics. But they also don't like the idea of being deceived by their beloved organization.

One angry member who felt he had been misled by the insurance program spoke to our associate Jim Lynch on condition of anonymity, because, as he put it, "To this U.S. citizen, the NRA is the Bible." Then he said he and other NRA members he has talked to are not happy with what they found in the fine print.

Such is the delicate way that the faithful chide the NRA. But Bob Hunter, the president of the National Insurance Consumers Organization, was not so delicate. He said that any insurance pitch should disclose any "major condition under which they wouldn't pay out on claims." Hunter said the NRA's failure to note up front that the insurance was secondary is "egregious."

The NRA's membership promotions this year used the usual alarm tactics, such as telling prospective members that the "gun-hating politicians, the anti-gun press and growing opposition groups have launched an all-out effort to take away your guns." That patented battle cry is accompanied by the notice that the NRA gun insurance coverage has been increased from $600 to $1,000 as an incentive for those who renew their membership. "Surely this great insurance offer and your firearms freedom are worth a lot more than $25 a year (the membership fee)," the mailer says. Evidently not, because NRA membership is dropping.

Extreme political stances, including advocating the repeal of the machine gun ban, have taken their toll, and the NRA is turning off some American gun owners. We obtained the working papers from the NRA's September 1990 membership meeting. From January to July, the NRA bombarded the nation's mailboxes with 51.3 million pieces of mail — 19.5 million of them promoting membership and 9 million promoting the insurance policy. Despite the postal blitz, the NRA lost 125,000 old members during the same stretch. The number of new members signing up has dipped by 18 percent this year, or about 300,000. The total NRA membership is 2.6 million. While the NRA offended some of the faithful with its hard-sell insurance pitch, no one has accused the NRA of breaking the law. The Consumer Protection Act of Washington, D.C., where the NRA is based, says a sales pitch is an "unlawful trade practice" if it misleads a customer by failing to state a "material fact."

The disclaimer at the bottom of the NRA's mailer says that the insurance is subject to conditions spelled out in the master policy on file at NRA headquarters.

We asked the NRA how its sales pitch stood up in light of the Consumer Protection Act. An NRA spokesman refused to comment.

The insurance offer has put some devout NRA members in a bind.

The administration will ring in the new year with war clouds on the horizon.

Cats

Dr. Michael Carey, head of the LSU research and a former surgeon in Vietnam, said Thursday he is conducting the cat work because so little laboratory work has been done on brain wounds.

"If the biology of brain wounds is not known, how can treatments be designed, how can doctors save more lives?" Carey told a news conference hosted by LSU and the American Medical Association.

In the experiments, anesthetized cats were wounded in the brain with pellets about one-quarter the size of a BB gun pellet.

The wounded cats were kept alive from two hours to 60 days to allow researchers to study the mechanics of brain injury and to test drugs that may reduce such damage. So far, researchers have found that one drug, called GM-1 ganglioside, appears to reduce some of the brain damage in wounded cats.

Federal funding for the $2 million research project was frozen in November 1989 following claims by animal rights groups that the work was not adding to scientific knowledge on the treatment of brain wounds.

The Defense Appropriations Act of 1991 forbids the Army from releasing any money for the research until the investigation by the General Accounting Office was completed.

However, the GAO's report, released Dec. 14, made no recommendation whether the cat research should be allowed to continue. Instead, the investigative branch of Congress said it should be up to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to decide if there are still enough merits to the project to allow it to proceed.

A medical panel convened by the GAO concluded that the goals of the LSU research are valid.

"The panel strongly believes that progress in improving outcome of brain injury can be made through studies such as this one. The (cat) model was deemed to be unique and suitable for the investigations undertaken," the report said.

Furthermore, the panel said it believes that the anesthesia was adequate to protect the cats from pain when the pellets were shot into their brains.

Carey and his LSU colleagues had no objections to that section of the report. However, they expressed dismay that they were not allowed to testify before the medical panel or show them their laboratory.

The researchers were most upset with the GAO's findings that were based on consultation with veterinary anesthetologists.

Santa

his wife Meta, owns and operates First Impressions. "I kept thinking they would stop crying when they recognized my voice. But the beard threw them."

Brooks, known to the children as "Brother Jimi," was Santa in true form, bearing gifts for all the children. Through Toys for Tots, Greenwood Lakes Middle School students donated more than 100 toys for distribution at the child care center, at 1221 W. Seventh St., Sanford.

"Everybody was happy," Brooks said.

For many of the children at the center Wednesday night, Brooks brought nothing short of true magic. First Impressions caters to low-income families who cannot afford other quality care for their children while they work.

First Impressions is funded by Community Coordinated Child Care (4C), the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, and tuition from private students. The fuchsia and turquoise two-story building at West Seventh Street and Olive Avenue was formerly a dormitory and day care center for migrant farm workers.

Brooks, who has worked with children for 16 years, said First Impressions gives many children what they cannot get at home. For example, he said, a field trip to the beach was the first time his students had seen the ocean.

"They had never seen it," he said. "They thought someone had poured salt in the water."

Another trip — a third of a mile trek from the center — showed Brooks how many of the children had never seen Lake Monroe, although most live only blocks away in Sanford.

The center also feeds children who, otherwise, live hungry lives.

"You see hunger up close when they come in here on Monday mornings and eat bowl after bowl of cereal," Brooks said.

Brooks says he offers them one other thing their homes can't always provide.

"A lot of these kids here live in a very hostile environment. They need a sanctuary," Brooks said.

"They need to be introduced to police officers on a friendly basis, rather than when he comes to the door to lock up your uncle," he said. "We give them that."

For that reason, he said, the home-style sanctuary Brooks and his wife have tried to create does not include toy guns or other war toys. And when children use their imaginations to make guns out of building blocks, he said, they are told guns aren't wanted.

Jimi and Meta Brooks share a philosophy about care for children whose parents work.

"We wanted to get away from 'daycare.' The day can take care of itself," Brooks said. "We're more interested in early childhood development."

Jimi and Meta Brooks opened First Impressions two years ago after moving to the area from Boston. The Sanford center is their fifth child care facility.

Lake Mary

Also performing will be dancers from the School of Dance Arts in Lake Mary.

"We hope to have an impromptu reading of 'The Night Before Christmas' and we'll get Santa up on stage. If it gets crazy enough out there, I might play my harmonica," Holland promised.

Lake Mary Seniors, led by Pauline Stevens, decorated the amphitheater for the Christmas season.

Parks and Recreation Board members will man the concession stands.

Santa's stop for lunch and to hear Christmas wishes at the park will only be during the lunch hour, Lake Mary Police Sgt. Linda Belfiore said. By then, Santa's sleigh, filled with toys and candy for all kids along his Lake Mary route Saturday, will have covered the area south of Lake Mary Boulevard, except for Third Street. In the afternoon, Santa and his police and fire-department escorts will meet and give gifts to the children north of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Herald staff writer Susan Loden also contributed to this report.

from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Volunteers are welcome.

At 3 p.m. tomorrow, more than 200 food baskets and toys will be distributed to families who have applied for aid, said Blanche Belle Weaver, of the shelter.

At 3 p.m. Dec. 24, the Rescue Outreach Mission will distribute about 20 bicycles donated by the Seminole County Professional Firefighters Association. The bikes will be given to families on a first-come-first-served basis, Weaver said.

In addition to offering three meals daily, the Rescue Outreach Mission also provides free housing for those who do not have shelter. On a nightly basis, the Rescue Outreach Mission can provide sleeping accommodations for up to 60 people, Weaver said. During emergencies, she said, the mission can provide shelter for up to 200 people.

To contact the shelter, call 321-8224.

A free Christmas dinner will be served Tuesday from noon to 4 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center, located at Seminole Boulevard and Sanford Avenue. The dinner is open on a walk-in basis for needy, elderly or anyone who has no other place to go for Christmas, Sanford Community Development Officer

Charles Rowe said. The turkey dinner is sponsored by the City of Sanford Community Development Office and Central Florida Services for the Disadvantaged, Inc.

Volunteers are needed for decorating, serving and entertainment.

Last year, the agencies fed 400 people at the civic center, and prepared another 400 meals delivered by Meals on Wheels of Central Florida.

Anyone seeking assistance during the holiday may call an information hotline for Seminole County. By calling 629-1289, families will be referred to agencies for help.

be terminated for no cause by commissioners.

Rabun will also receive use of a county vehicle for county work and transportation to and from home. All other benefits, such as vacation time and sick leave benefits are the same as any county employee accept medical insurance benefits will begin on his first day instead of the normal delay, McMillan said.

Rabun said he plans to notify his city commission Jan. 3 of his decision. He said Clearwater requires a 60-day notice, which unless waived by the commission, means he would not be able to start here before March 4.

McMillan said he's glad to be giving up the additional responsibilities of county management. "I am very enthusiastic about returning to my chosen profession," McMillan said. "I understand there's a couple of openings in public management around but I have no interest in them."

With the announcement of the resignation of Sanford City Manager Frank Faison this week, both Longwood and Sanford will have acting managers next month. McMillan, the county's attorney, has been acting county manager since Oct. 27, 1989, when former manager Ken Hooper left after falling from favor of the majority of the commission.

Rabun said he took a "large box" of materials with him when he left Sanford Wednesday to study. He said he has made arrangements to have additional materials, including department head resumes, staff rosters, fiscal materials and local newspapers sent to him so he can "hit the ground running" when he arrives for work in Seminole County.

Rabun said he may also attend several staff meetings and perhaps a commission meeting or two to acquaint himself with the county.

Dade, Hillsborough, Lake, Lee, Manatee, Orange, Sarasota and St. Lucie counties.

Encephalitis in general causes inflammation of the brain. St. Louis encephalitis is caused by a virus transmitted to humans by biting mosquitoes. The mosquitoes pick up the virus by biting infected birds, then pass it on to humans through the insect's saliva.

Because it is a viral infection, only the symptoms, including a severe headache, high fever and stiff neck, can be treated. The disease sometimes can lead to coma and death, mostly among very young children and the elderly.

House report calls drug policy a failure

By DAVID ZUCCHINO
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

U.S. anti-narcotics strategy in South America is a "misguided and dangerous" failure that has not stopped the flow of cocaine but has provided a "smokescreen" for leftist guerrillas, according to a congressional report.

The report, which the House Committee on Government Operations is scheduled to release Friday, also says federal efforts in the Andean region have placed U.S. personnel at risk while having little impact on lucrative coca production. The anti-drug strategy is "a failing military and law enforcement response to a social and economic problem," said committee Chairman John Conyers Jr., D-Mich.

"It is more than ineffective. It is misguided and dangerous. It will do nothing to solve our drug epidemic at home, and it is having a devastating impact abroad," Conyers said of the strategy, which the Bush administration has described as "a major component" of its national drug control program.

The 102-page report recommends economic rather than law enforcement solutions, including encouraging alternative crops to replace the coca grown by thousands of Andean peasants. It also suggests new controls to ensure that anti-drug aid is not used to take sides in local conflicts.

Conyers said 80 percent of U.S. drug money to Colombia goes to the army, even though police primarily fight the drug war. He said the Colombian government has admitted that Operation Tri-Color, a significant counterinsurgency offensive in April, used U.S. anti-drug money for logistical support. Drug Enforcement Administration agents and other non-military Americans serving the anti-drug effort are endangered by a strategy that incorporates them into paramilitary activities, Conyers said.

"The increase of U.S. military assistance to the region under the Andean plan will strengthen the hand of military institutions with long records of corruption and abuse," the report says.

Such military aid is a central feature of President Bush's Andean strategy.

Samford ties record, beats UCF

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Samford tied an NCAA record by making 34 free throws without a miss Thursday night and won its first game of the season, 89-80 over the University of Central Florida.

The Bulldogs (1-7) had a nine-game losing streak since last season and were shooting only 61 percent from the foul line this year. But they tied the NCAA record for best free throw percentage in a game set by California-Irvine against Pacific in 1981.

UCF (5-2) led 44-38 at the half but Samford dominated the final 20 minutes, leading by as much as 14 points. The Knights made only 40 percent of their free throws (6 of 15) and were out-rebounded 48-30.

Anthony Haynes led UCF with 28 points. Ken Leeks added 18 and Sinua Phillips chipped in 12.

Evansville beats Bethune

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Parrish Casebler scored a game-high 33 points and 14 rebounds as Evansville defeated Bethune-Cookman 84-72 Thursday night.

Lake Mary, Bishop Moore in semifinals

By TONY BOONER
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — After an opening round of blowouts and shutouts, action heated up Thursday in the Lake Mary High School bracket of the Burger King Girls' Soccer Classic.

After Dr. Phillips eliminated Melbourne-Eau Gallie 3-0 in a consolation bracket game, the Lake Mary Rams and Bishop Moore Hornets advanced to this evening's 8 p.m. semifinal game with a pair of thrilling victories.

Bishop Moore moved ahead with a 2-0 blanking of Tallahassee-Lincoln while Lake Mary held off defending Class 3A state champs Fort Lauderdale-St. Thomas Aquinas 2-1.

"Once you get to this level, all the games are strong matches," said Lake Mary Coach Bill Elisele.

At Lyman High School, defending Burger King Classic and Class 4A state champion Lake Brantley and Lyman moved into tonight's 6 p.m. semifinal, Lyman taking down Lake Howell and Lake Brantley topping Winter Park by identical 2-0 scores. Boone eliminated Tampa-Berkley Prep 2-0. (See related story).

Five games are scheduled for today. In the consolation bracket, Boone will play at Deltona at 4 p.m. while Dr. Phillips hosts Melbourne at 6 p.m. At Lake Mary's Don T. Reynolds Stadium, St. Thomas and Lincoln will play at 2 p.m. and Winter Park faces Lake Howell at 4 p.m. before the two semifinal games.

For Lake Mary, Thursday's game was a huge departure from Wednesday's opening round match, when the Rams strolled by Eau Gallie 11-0.

Cory Tanzer, who sat out Wednesday's game, put Lake Mary up 1-0 just two minutes before halftime. Adriane Hemmerly gave the Rams some breathing room, scoring 20 minutes into the second half on an assist from Joy Gorman.

But while the Rams were still celebrating Hemmerly's goal, Angelica Gomez cut the lead in half, scoring less than 30 seconds after Hemmerly.

Lake Brantley, Lyman to square off

By PHIL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — Lake Brantley and Lyman, the only two schools to win the championship in the first seven Burger King Girls' Soccer Classics, will meet tonight at 6 p.m. in one semifinal of the eighth edition of the tournament.

At 8 p.m., Lake Mary will play Bishop Moore in the other semifinal. The championship game is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday. (See related story).

Lyman advanced to the semifinals thanks to Danielle Garrett, who scored two unassisted goals to lead the Lyman Greyhounds to a 2-0 victory over the Lake Howell Silver Hawks. Carrie Larson and Sarah Roberts each scored a goal to lead the Lake Brantley Patriots to a 2-0 victory over the Winter Park Wildcats.

In a consolation bracket game, Boone stopped Tampa-Berkley Prep 2-0.

Today's schedule has Boone playing at Deltona at 4 p.m., Winter Park taking on Lake Howell at 4 p.m. and Lake Brantley tackling Lyman at 6 p.m. Except for the Boone-Deltona game, all the matches will be played at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

The Silver Hawks, now 8-5-2, had a chance to jump out on top early when Joanna Abbott took a strong shot from inside the penalty box, but Greyhound goalkeeper Becky Carr made the save.

"Carr played a great game for us tonight," said Lyman Coach Jim Thompson. "She's been great for us for four years."

Kerry Wiggins (No. 34) contributed 15 points as Seminole won its first game.

Silver Hawks, Patriots make Classic date

By DEAN SMITH
Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Before Thursday's action in the Central Florida Classic tipped off, the consensus was that there would be some outstanding basketball played. And the consensus was right.

Capping off the day of excitement was the creation of the first all-Seminole County final in several years as Lake Howell and Lake Brantley will meet for the championship tonight at SCC's Health and Physical Education Center at 8 p.m.

Lake Howell was 13-for-13 from the free throw line in the fourth quarter to come from behind and knock off defending champion West Orange 62-52. Lake Brantley held on for a 58-57 triumph over Winter Park as the Wildcats missed a last second shot.

In the other games, Seminole and Lake Mary both used big second halves to turn close games into routs, the Tribe winning 71-54 over Oviedo and the Rams clobbering Lyman 69-41.

Seminole and Lake Mary will play for fifth place at 5 p.m. before West Orange and Winter Park will square off for third place at 6:30 p.m. An all-tournament team will also be announced after the championship game.

 In Thursday's first semifinal, Thomas Demps keyed a fourth-quarter charge that saw the Silver Hawks outscore West Orange 21-9 and secure their first-ever spot in a tournament final.
 For the game, Lake Howell hit 23 of 29 charity tosses, including a 9-for-9 performance by Demps. Josh Kohn led Lake Howell, 6-3 after winning its fifth straight, with 22 points. Demps added 21, including nine in the fateful last period.
 For West Orange, which fell to 5-2, Jackie Bell and Jason Shaw led the way with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Quentin Smith, who had scored 43 points in the first two games, was held to 12 points, only two of which came in the second half as Joe Smith did a great defensive job for Lake Howell.
 Lake Brantley broke away from a 18-18 tie after one period to lead 38-30 at halftime as Travis Certo scored 21 points. But just as they did in their last two victories, Winter Park came out smoking after the intermission and took a 42-41 lead with 3:20 left in the third quarter.
 The stanza ended with the score tied 47-47 and the game would remain close until the end. The Patriots had three chances to clinch the win in the last minute but Certo, Anthony Washington and Craig Brock all missed the front end of 1-and-1 free-throw opportunities. But Lake Brantley's defense was good enough to limit the Wildcats to only one basket in the same time frame.

 Certo finished the contest with 29 points as the Patriots improved to 6-3. Jason Vallery and Washington helped out with nine and eight points, respectively.

Library to close

The Central Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System will present the film "Bernice Bobs Her Hair," on Tuesday, January 8, as part of its adult film series on "Films Based on Works of Literature." The one-hour program will be presented at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the Central Branch Library meeting room.

"Bernice Bobs Her Hair" is based on a short story by F. Scott Fitzgerald. A member of the pre-flapper generation, Bernice is tricked into bobbing her hair and loses her new-found beauty and popularity. Her revenge gives the story an ironic twist.

The Central Branch is located at 215 No. Oxford Road in Casselberry. All library programs are free and open to the public. For more information, please call 339-4000.

Attend free parenting classes

The Parent Resource Center and the Citizens' Commission for Children are sponsoring a series of free parenting classes beginning in January at elementary schools in outlying areas of Orange County. These ten-week classes meet one evening per week from 7-9 p.m. and are designed to improve parenting skills and family relationships. Childcare and transportation are available at no cost to you. Participants must be Orange County residents. For registration and further information, call the Parent Resource Center, at 425-3663.

Seniors to meet

The Federation of Senior Citizens of Seminole County is hosting a very special open meeting on Friday, January 11, 1991 at 10 a.m. at the George D. Perkins Civic Center, 830 Magnolia Drive, Altamonte Springs. All senior citizens of Seminole County are invited.

Our guest speaker will be Susan Allbee, Director of Better Living for Seniors in Seminole County. Her topic, one of great importance to us all, will be the Meals on Wheels program.

The Federation is planning to sponsor the Rapid Response program in connection with Meals on Wheels. All this will be explained at this meeting and your input is important.

Visit 'The Russia House' this holiday

By Dave Kehr
Chicago Tribune

With its superb cast and masterful use of Soviet locations, "The Russia House" rediscovers the kind of high Hollywood professionalism that has recently seemed all but lost. The complex story, with its multiple points of view and interlocking flashbacks, unfolds with perfect clarity, while the characters — few of whom wear their true motives on their sleeves — emerge with a remarkably high degree of definition and an unusual amount of compassion.

Adapted by playwright Tom Stoppard from a novel by John le Carre, this is vastly more subtle material than has been allowed to surface in a Hollywood feature in quite some time, and it has been staged with an unshakable assurance and profound sensitivity by director Fred Schepisi.

Barley Blair (Sean Connery) is a boozey, jazz-blowing British book publisher whose one moment of radiant idealism — a rhetorical outburst in favor of freedom and democracy during a drunken lunch with Russian writers — has inspired a top-ranking Soviet scientist to betray his country.

The scientist, whose code name is Dante (Klaus Maria Brandauer), is in a position to know that the Soviet nuclear force is in no better shape than the Soviet economy, and has written a book to prove it. He wants Barley to publish it, in the hope that the military-intelligence complex will simply crumble into dust once the game is given away, and the era of true glasnost can begin.

It is a simple transaction between individuals — Dante's friend Katya (Michelle Pfeiffer) will deliver the manuscript at a Moscow book fair — but nothing stays simple for long in the arena of East-West relations. Soon, a reluctant Barley has been recruited by a scrupulous British intelligence officer (James Fox), behind whom stands a biastery, foul-mouthed representative of the CIA (Roy Scheider). There is no longer a question of the material being published; it must be verified, and then firmly suppressed, in order for the world these men have created to continue to exist.

The gray men of the intelligence apparatus have not counted on the powerful attraction that develops between the fuzzy, disillusioned Barley and the beautiful Russian woman who comes to him bearing all of her country's hopes for the future. It is melodrama's familiar story of regeneration through love, yet it is related here with a discretion and fineness of detail that makes it not only believable but devastating.

Schepisi's work as a director has varied between the intensely personal ("The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith," "A Cry in the Dark"), and the purely professional ("Roxanne," "Plenty"). It is more difficult to make a strict division here, in what is plainly a producer's project (with its impeccably assembled credits) in which can be found deep pockets of personal value.

As in "Chant" and "Cry," the director's two epic attempts to define the national character of his native Australia, Schepisi is here playing interpersonal drama against a vast canvas of social upheaval, looking for those points where psychology and history intersect. Barley's shambling decency, combined with Katya's brittle idealism, will either create a new world or be crushed by the old one.

In any case, a better director could not be found to exploit the opportunities of the first-ever unfettered location shoot in the Soviet Union. Schepisi's natural ease with the widescreen ratio — always his format of choice — allows him to incorporate a large range of commanding, largely unseen land- and cityscapes with an inconspicuous grace and expressiveness.

A master of the use of space for dramatic effect, Schepisi finds particularly fertile ground in the ceremonial squares of Moscow and Leningrad, which have never seemed so eerily empty and oppressively impersonal. It is no insult to say that "The Russia House" is a terrific travelogue — one informed by the patient curiosity (and subtle melancholy) of the professional traveler rather than the tourist's jittery hunger for experience.

As Barley, Sean Connery has nearly shaken off the post-Oscar mannerisms that have marred his most recent character work; he is back in the heroic mode where he belongs, and if anything the part as written seems too small for an actor of his stature. And as Katya, Michelle Pfeiffer continues to astonish; there is very little left of the Orange County Barbie doll in her creation here, in which an impeccably assumed accent is only the first level in a character of many intriguing barriers and many seductive secrets.

Minor league lie has major league consequences

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a woman who had celebrated her golden wedding anniversary on the wrong date because of an early pregnancy. She said she lied about the actual date of her marriage to save face. Her pastor told her to forget it — it was not a "major" lie. Abby, I was very disappointed to see you agree with the pastor.

Under the same circumstances, my husband's mother lied about my husband's date of birth. That made him four months younger than he really was, which made his school records, military service records, insurance policies and Social Security records in error — all because his mother wanted to save face. My husband discovered the mess when he needed a passport and sent for his birth certificate. He went through a lot of red tape to correct his records without telling his mother in order to spare her feelings. She went to her grave thinking she had fooled everyone.

Abby, please don't go along with anyone (even a pastor) who condones lying. There is no such thing as a "major" or "minor" lie. A lie is a lie.

FOR TRUTH IN RICHMOND, IND.

DEAR FOR TRUTH: You are right: A lie is a lie. But some lies have major consequences while others have minor consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I recently broke up with my boyfriend of two years. Last night, he phoned to ask me to return the two beautiful wall pictures he and his parents had given me for Christmas last year, and the bracelet he gave me the Christmas before.

Although I thought it was extremely tacky of him to ask me to return these gifts, my first impulse was to be big about it, let him have them, and get this thing over and done with as painlessly and quickly as possible.

Then, the more I thought about it, the more I felt like calling him and asking him to return all the birthday and Christmas presents I had given him these past two years.

Now I'm torn between doing what I think is right and getting even. The immaturity and absurdity of the whole situation belies the fact that this man is 35 and I'm 33. Also, we were not married, or even living together. What would you do if you were me?

(TRYING NOT TO BE) BITTER DEAR TRYING: Once a gift is given, it belongs to the recipient to do with whatever he or she wishes. (This includes his gifts to you as well as your gifts to him.) However, if I were you, I would return his gifts — if only to be rid of the reminders of this 35-year-old man who still has a lot of growing up to do.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from the young woman who was planning her wedding, I thought you might be interested in a family wedding I attended a few years ago.

The bridegroom was a cousin of mine. He had a sister and a younger brother. After the parents had taken their seats, the music began to play again, and a tall man in a tuxedo walked down the aisle alone —

A MANGER FOR A KING

Guided by the Star of Bethlehem, the shepherds and wise men alike found themselves standing before a lowly stable. Could this be the birthplace of the prophesied King of Kings? Amidst the animal sounds, there was the unmistakable cry of a newborn infant. They slowly entered, still puzzled by the strange scene before them. There they found the baby Jesus in the arms of Mary, His mother, next to a manger bed filled with straw.

Yet, this infant would grow to be called the Son of God... the Prince of Peace. Jesus would teach forgiveness and love, not retribution and hate.

As you worship this Christmas season, may the words of the angel of the Lord ring in your heart:

"For unto you is born this day... a Savior who is Christ the Lord."

Bishop recalls upbringing in Sanford

SANFORD — Robert Newman, a third generation Floridian and lifelong resident of Sanford, recently completed his first year as Bishop of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Sanford ward. He became a member of the church seven years ago and is the youngest Bishop in the state, according to Anne Yelvington Lynch, public communications director for the church.

Bishop Newman was raised in Sanford and attended public school in the Seminole County School system. He recalls the two years of varsity baseball he played at Seminole High School as a valuable lesson. "That was an excellent team. Tony Mann was second base, and Ricky Willis was the catcher. I played third base. I learned a lot of principles playing sports that have been valuable to me as an adult," he said.

Newman accredits his accomplishments to some very special people who had an impact in his life during the school years. "There were some great people there (Seminole High School), Mrs. Swain, Laura Parker, English teachers; Bobby Lundquist and Don Reynolds," said Bishop Newman. "They were very positive influences in my life. In fact, when I graduated from the University of Florida, I taught for Don Reynolds at Lake Mary High School." "I remember Bobby," said Don Reynolds, Lake Mary High

"I learned a lot of principles playing sports that have been valuable to me as an adult," he said.

— Bishop Robert Newman III

School principal. "He was a baseball player, very active in school clubs and organizations. He was always open, honest and willing to do more than his share," Reynolds said.

Bobby Lundquist, assistant principal at Seminole High School remembers Bishop Newman also. "The highlight of Bobby was when he hit the grand slam home run to win the Winter Park-Seminole baseball game," Lundquist said. "He was a good student and a good baseball player, the type of person you hope all your players are. A model student-athlete."

Bishop Newman's father said he never cracked a book in high school and still made good grades. "A man wouldn't want any better son than what I have," said Robert Newman II. "I had to make him go to church when he was a child. He couldn't wait to get home and pull off his tie. Then he joined the Mormon Church and he won't quit," said Bishop Newman's father.

Bishop Newman's wife, Sherry, says that one of his outstanding qualities is his faith.

"No matter what happens, Bob has faith that the Lord will guide him and help him through whatever he is called to do," she said.

With all the responsibilities that come with the job, Bishop Newman finds his duties rewarding. "I spend a little more than 20 hours a week working at my church calling," said Bishop Newman. "This is not a paid position. I am employed full time by Sprint United Information Systems as a programmer analyst," he said.

"I feel a great sense of responsibility because there are so many aspects of being Bishop," he said. "But it is not a one man show. There is a great group of people willing to serve and fulfill their callings. They help pull it all together and make my job easier," he said.

In the Sanford ward, there is a feeling of family because we have a solid foundation of members who have always been here, according to Bishop Newman. "We appreciate his leadership and the fact that he has been designated our ecclesiastical leader," said Bart Pilcher, a realtor and mortgage broker in Seminole County. "Under that mantle we feel very comfortable with the way he carries out his responsibilities."

Bishop Newman and his wife, Sherry, have two children, Ryan age 4 and Ashley, 2. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newman II, Sanford.

Silent heart attacks do need treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is a silent heart attack?
DEAR READER: Heart attacks (damage to part of the heart muscle from a blood clot) ordinarily cause severe pain that is described as "crushing" or "burning"; it usually involves the left side of the chest but may radiate up into the neck and jaw or down the left arm. This life-threatening condition also changes the cardiogram and releases certain protein enzymes (from damaged cardiac muscle) into the bloodstream. In its classic form, acute heart attacks are unmistakable.

It is with some surprise, therefore, that doctors sometimes discover, during routine examination, unequivocal cardiographic evidence of heart damage, indicating a previous heart attack. Patients may categorically deny ever having had chest pain or "indigestion"; nonetheless, their cardiograms (and more sophisticated tests, such as coronary angiography) prove that such patients suffered heart attacks in the past — without the usual pain.

Called "silent infarctions" (heart attacks), these events may be relatively common. Presumably, patients were unaware of what was taking place at the time. Or, more usually, they may have experienced temporary chest discomfort, which they ignored because it wasn't severe or prolonged and didn't fit the bill for "classic" heart-attack pain. They continued about their business, and the heart attack resolved, only to be indelibly inscribed in their cardiograms.

Also, patients with mild, non-specific chest discomfort may occasionally show the presence of cardiac enzymes in their blood tests, indicating a small, unsuspected coronary occlusion — a silent heart attack, which can be a cause of sudden death.

Although patients with silent infarctions may not suffer immediate complications (such as shock or heart irregularity) from or increase blood supply to cardiac muscle) and careful monitoring of physical activity,

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Ron Andersen gave an apt demonstration of his "killer instinct" at the World Pair Championships in Geneva last September. He was East, holding a collection of cards that anyone would quickly want to throw in at rubber bridge. Suddenly, after North had opened one club and South had responded one heart, the prospects for the deal changed when West overcalled one spade. North raised hearts and Andersen jumped to four clubs — a special splinter bid showing spade length as well as shortness in clubs. South asked for aces and then stopped in five hearts. That was enough for Ron Andersen. Obviously declarer was off two aces. Just as obviously, the defenders were going to take a lot of tricks if West led a club. So Andersen doubled to ensure that the club suit would be led. The defense went: a club ruff, a spade back, a club ruff, a diamond back, and one more club ruff. Before South gained the lead, East-West were plus 800. South was overly aggressive in the bidding. When North could bid only two hearts, it was not likely to be North-South's hand. Better strategy would be for South to pass four clubs. Then, when West settled into four spades, South could "sacrifice" with five clubs. That contract would, in fact, make and perhaps would even be doubled, although not by East.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 22, 1990

In the year ahead there could be a major shift of emphasis where your goals and objectives are concerned. What you previously thought was important could become less significant. You'll succeed where your new interests are concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your hopes and expectations have a good chance of being fulfilled today, provided they are of equal benefit to persons with whom you'll be involved. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Several signs could be very fortunate at this time at having their material desires fulfilled. You are numbered among the front runners.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions are rather unusual today in that you could be extremely lucky in areas where you would least expect and not so fortunate in areas you think are a shoo-in.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Give your most meaningful projects top priority today. You're in a good success cycle and if you effectively apply your efforts, objectives you establish are achievable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your present ambitions can be advanced at this time if you can win the support of persons who are in positions to assist you. Good public relations can do wonders for you now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Collective endeavors are the ones that could be the most rewarding for you today, even though you might be inclined to think otherwise. Focus on this area and see for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have faith in your judgment today, especially if you have taken the time to evaluate an important matter from every angle. Even if your decision isn't perfect, it can be adjusted to circumstances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have been contemplating a change of occupation, you could be rather lucky at this time in finding what you want. Take measures today to set up interviews.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The secret to your success today is to put your non-material interests above your material ones. Building good will is the key to improving your other circumstances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely alert at this time because there is an abundance of financial opportunities within your orbit. They might not be obvious, but they do exist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might be able to put together a constructive alliance today with a person whose thoughts and concepts closely parallel yours. Collectively, you're a winning combination.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Throughout this cycle there will be days when your financial prospects look better than other times. This is one of those periods when you should be able to capitalize on these influences. (C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Saddam to get 'ass kicked'

By WELBY THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — President Bush said the best way to avoid war with Iraq is for Saddam Hussein to realize he is "going to get his ass kicked," a Republican congressman said.

Rep. Elton Gallegly, R-Calif., said Bush made the remark Thursday during a meeting at the White House with congressmen who had just returned from a trip to Saudi Arabia.

Gallegly said that during the meeting the president reiterated his desire for a peaceful settlement and hoped that Saddam would "get the message" that the international force aligned against him is very powerful.

"To quote him (Bush)," Gallegly said. "If we get into a shooting war with Saddam, he's going to get his ass kicked."

Asked during a picture-taking session if he had made the remark, Bush looked somewhat uncomfortable and declined to reply. Top aides erupted in laughter.

In a telephone interview, Gallegly said he was sorry if he had embarrassed the president but added that Bush was "being very graphic in dealing with a very critical message that must be sent to this man."

"I don't think he realizes the extent of U.S. military superiority. This guy (Saddam) has led a very insulated life," he said.

The California Republican was one of eight congressmen who just returned from a three-day trip to the Middle East.

Another, Rep. George "Buddy" Darden, D-Ga., reported that Bush also had said he has "crossed the Rubicon" on using force as an option to drive Iraq from Kuwait, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president has not decided if military action will be necessary.

Fitzwater acknowledged that Bush had told the lawmakers he had "come to terms in his own mind on the use of force (as an option) a long time ago."

The spokesman said Bush reached that decision "when he sent the first troops" to the Persian Gulf in August.

"We believe there will come a time when force will have to be exercised," noted Fitzwater, but no decision had been made on whether a military solution will be ordered.

The administration has publicly expressed doubts about effectiveness of the U.N.-imposed economic sanctions against Iraq, and has indicated there is no sign that its troops are preparing to withdraw from Kuwait.

If force is deemed necessary, it does not appear that Bush will hold off long after the Jan. 15 deadline mandated by the United Nations for the complete Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Gorbachev revolution turns right?

By JOE ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The departure of Eduard Shevardnadze was seen Thursday by some U.S. officials and experts as a warning that some Soviet conservatives may be intent on stealing the Gorbachev revolution.

U.S. officials said there have been signs for several months that members of the Soviet military leadership were opposing some of the arms control concessions that Shevardnadze had made to Secretary of State James Baker.

One official said the Soviet general staff had taken up its own version of the Eisenhower doctrine, in which the American president in the 1950s adopted a military policy of "massive retaliation" by nuclear weapons in place of a large and expensive standing army.

According to one official, the Soviet military had found ways to sabotage or slow the agreement to reduce nuclear missiles on both sides.

However, the Soviet foreign minister is expected to remain in office until after the mid-February Moscow summit in which a strategic arms reduction treaty is to be signed.

Jack Mendelsohn of the Arms Control Association, a Washington public policy group, said it is "fair to say that there is a division between the military and political side of the Soviet hierarchy."

He said some of the recent slow-downs in the START negotiations may be just bureaucratic inefficiency, in which the Soviets have difficulty pulling together the immense amount of data required for verifying arms cuts.

But, Mendelsohn continued, "They (the Soviet military leaders) may be trying to sabotage the arms talks. In that case, the Soviet political leadership has big problems. And so do we."

Mendelsohn compares the situation to the "Thermidor" in the French revolution of 1789.

Baker, Shevardnadze became close friends

By OWEN ULLMANN
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — One is a wealthy Texas lawyer reared with all the privileges capitalism offers. The other is a career bureaucrat from Soviet Georgia who was raised in typical communist modesty.

But over the past 23 months, James A. Baker III and Eduard A. Shevardnadze fashioned a remarkable political friendship that became a metaphor for the new relationship blossoming between their two countries after seven decades of enmity.

When the Soviet foreign minister made his surprise resignation announcement, the U.S. secretary of state paid him a glowing, emotional tribute that would have been unthinkable only a few years ago.

"I've known Eduard Shevardnadze to be a man of his word, a man of courage, conviction and principle," Baker declared Thursday.

"I am proud to call this man a friend," he added. "I think that we achieved some significant things during the 23 months that we were able to work together, and on a purely personal note, I would have to tell you that I'm going to miss him."

Indeed, Baker probably spent more time conferring with Shevardnadze than any other foreign official over that span. The two met on 25 separate occasions — 20 of them this year — in places that ranged from Moscow to Washington, to Namibia, Paris and Jackson, Wyo.

In the course of their frequent meetings, Baker, 60, and Shevardnadze, 62, discovered there was common ground on which both of their nations' interests could be advanced, and that helped spawn a warm personal relationship.

To Baker and President Bush, Shevardnadze and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev were the chief architects of "new thinking"
