Relating to Matrimony

The subject of matrimony has been discussed a good deal of late, and the men in defense of their sex have arrayed themselves in solid phalanx against the women. They make no objection to the women reducing the subject to "matrimonial problems," because there are many features connected with it which are extremely problematical, but they seriously and earnestly protest against many imputations which these women hurl at their motives. It is not the intention to refer to all the things which women say on the subject, for that would fill a book or two, but on behalf of dejected and down-trodden man The Herald will say that he is not now, and never has been, mercenary in any of his matrimonial motives or aspirations, and that the girls and women are very unjust in even thinking such a thing, to say nothing of making the direct charge. It is a shame—a downright shame, that such an imputation should be uttered within the hearing of men who have come to the rescue of the gentle sex and steered them around the whirlpool of discontent known as "Spinsterville." Yes, girls, this is a shame, and you owe man a complete and humble apology. Now and then some foreign prince or duke will come over here, who is known to be no count, and offer some soiled and shop-worn title at a bargain-counter price to some of the giddy girls of the east, throwing himself in as husband, and offering to give her as wife a little pocket money out of the proceeds of the sale of title, provided he will not need it himself. That, to be sure, is a mercenary transaction, but it should not be confounded with matrimony, because there is not the least bit of pure, unadulterated matrimony about it, and besides that, these instances cannot be related without reflecting more on the girl than on the man.

The American men offer no titles for sale, but they do not object to considering propositions from girls who have free and unincumbered titles to real estate, but that does not constitute a mercenary matrimonial motive. It is possible for men—even Sanford men—to fall in love with girls who have good productive property, and when this is the case they are not going to be so ungallant as to insist upon the girl giving away all of her property before he asks for her hand, in order to stifle the voice of those who might say it was a mercenary match. That would be asking entirely too much of the girl and the Sanford man will not be guilty of any such injustice, but to the contrary, when he asks for a girl's hand he will show his manliness and gallantry by taking the one which is enjoying the freedom of any such burdens.

These women go farther and say that the men are selfish, and will not marry on moderate salaries, because they are not willing to surrender the comforts and luxuries they now enjoy, to share their income with a wife. During the last eighteen-hundred years a few selfish men have been discovered, but they were caught along the seashore, and never reached this side of the Alleghany mountains. The men of the South never heard of selfishness until some people began to look up the reasons why the matrimonial market is so dull nowadays. When the men were accused of selfishness they opened their eyes in wonderment, and some of them opened their mouths.

One fellow, who is getting about fifteen hundred dollars a year, said that he has been very anxious to go to housekeeping, and has had his eye on the girl he would like to have at the head of his household, but he feared to suggest such an undertaking. This girl has been accustomed to more luxury than fifteen hundred dollars per year could provide for two, and while the young man could figure out that he could give her a position in her own house, surrounded by many of the comforts and conveniences which go to make up the pleasures of life, he did not see any disposition on the part of the girl to be restricted in travel and some extravagances she now enjoys.

Now, this is the kind of a man which the women call selfish, and let the girl go uncriticized. If the women who are trying to solve some of the matrimonial problems will turn their attention to the girls, and not to the men, they will be on the right track. Tell the girls to let their conversation drift towards contentment in cottages and decry the extravagant notions of those who want nothing but the fullest measure of everything the world affords. A man needs encouragement as well as anybody else, and The Herald can point to a long list of young men who are ready to make some of the girls happy in modest and unpretentious homes if the girls themselves will show that they will do their share toward the happiness and success of the partnership. That is the place to begin, and this thing of calling man mercenary and selfish ought to be stopped.

Hay Ride and Dance

A large number of Sanford folks old and young formed a merry hay ride party last Friday and journeyed out to the Symes place southeast of the city. An orchestra of the unbleached type was on hand to furnish the music and a regular old fashioned quadrille was the feature of the evening.

The party had carried luncheon with them and this was spread picnic fashion and thoroughly enjoyed. The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Packard and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Symes. As half of the population of Sanford was there space will not permit the publication of those who were present.

English Musical at Mrs. Munson's

The musicals at Mrs. Fannie Munson's studio are always looked forward to by the music lovers of Sanford, and all former efforts of Mrs. Munson were eclipsed last night by the English musical program. The house would not hold the large number of guests, and seats were arranged upon the spacious verandah, and many were forced to take the walks and lawn, and from this vantage point were well satisfied as the strains of beautiful music floated through the doors and windows. The weather was tempered by the recent storm, and was just cool enough to make everyone comfortable in the rooms, despite the immense throng.

The instrumental and vocal selections were taken from the old English artists, and were rendered in a manner that justified the belief in Sanford's great musical talent. Space forbids a special mention of each number. Suffice to say that each and every number upon the program was all that could be desired, and a delight to the audience. Following is the program in full:

WILL MAKE SANFORD HIS HOME

Prominent Floridian Removes to this City for Business

Hon. J. W. Knight of Floral City has removed to this city and will conduct a large racket store in the new Check Building on Sanford avenue. Mr. Knight is a man prominent in political and mercantile interests, and will prove a valuable addition to Sanford and to Orange county. The editor of The Herald has enjoyed the friendship of Mr. Knight for several years, and can heartily second the following encomium from the Citrus County Chronicle:

"We learn that Hon. J. W. Knight of Floral City left yesterday for Sanford, where he will conduct a large mercantile establishment. Mr. Knight has for many years lived in Citrus county, and is a man of ability, honor and integrity, that commends him to all who ever formed his acquaintance. He has ably represented Citrus county in the legislature, and was a candidate last year for state comptroller, but in this race was unsuccessful, owing mainly to the fact that his announcement was delayed too long. In any sphere of life Mr. Knight is the peer of any other man. In business in Sanford, he cannot help but be successful, for all of his aims in that direction are bound to make him many friends and upon this alone may succeed. The loss of Citrus county in Mr. Knight's removal is great, but Sanford has secured a citizen and a business man that she may well feel proud of. We lose from our midst a highly interesting family, whose social standing ranks with the best, but Sanford is the gainer. It is to be hoped that Mr. Knight can be induced to return here among warm friends, who have known him for so long a time. Whether he returns or not, the Chronicle wishes him eminent success in his new field, and commends him heartily to all the good people of the Celery City."

Death of F. J. Prouty
Mr. Frank J. Prouty, a valuable member of the community, died on the morning of Friday, March 26th, after a protracted illness. The funeral was from the residence on Saturday at 2 p. m. under the auspices of the Masons, who attended in considerable numbers. Burial in the Lake View cemetery.
Mr. Prouty was born in Onida, Ill., April 24, 1858, and lived there for thirty-five years. After completing his education in the best local school he entered the grocery store of which his father was proprietor. Eventually on account of failure of the father's health he was for some years in entire charge. Very soon after his father's death the business was closed out and he took the position of assistant superintendent in the Western & Southern Life Insurance Company moving to Columbus, Ohio. He resigned this position and opened a grocery store in Bayone, Ill., living there until on account of failing health he went out and last August came here and purchased fifteen acres on Cameron avenue.
He became a member of the Masonic Lodge at Onida as a young man and retained his membership until the end. He was for some time the Master of the Lodge.
He was for several years city treasurer of Onida, following his father in that position. He became a member of the Baptist church early in life and has always been an active and devoted member. He was a trustee of his church for several years. Mr. Prouty married Miss Mary E. Cole of Allenton, Pa., Feb. 6th, 1891. Mrs. Prouty survives him.
Mr. Prouty was a man of the most rigid integrity; a man who made friends easily and retained them; a man the loss of whom would be keenly felt by any community.

GREAT WORK STARTS

Sanford's Street Railway Making Progress

RAILS BEING LAID THIS WEEK

Street Paving Following And First Street Now Presents A Most Busy Appearance

From the time that the Sanford Traction Co. was organized and the plans made for a street railway, The Herald maintained that one of the greatest innovations ever inaugurated in Sanford would result while there were many who predicted that the rails would never be laid the gentlemen who were at the head have gone quietly to work, purchased valuable river front property for terminals, all the material and equipment of the best and as the agreement stated were ready to lay the rails when the brick paving started. This week, first street presents a busy a scene of activity and the crowds of tourists from the boats and trains have joined the bystanders and discussed the future possibilities of Sanford's progress and enterprise. Our city bears the distinction of being the first inland city to take up the idea of a street railway and belt line and while the first cars will be of the gasoline motive type the rails now being laid are bonded with copper wire and prepared for electric power as the new electric light and power company will be erected upon a larger scale and be able to furnish sufficient power for a first-class system of electric railways. It was for Sanford to take the initiative in building a trolley line that promises to connect the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean. Orlando and Kissimmee and other cities south of Sanford are desirous of being on the proposed route and from authentic sources the information is gleaned that the new railway will be pushed to Daytona and this section of the state will have a good outlet to the East Coast and a chance to make the trip every hour instead of awaiting the pleasure of the railroads and their miserable connecting points that at the present time makes the trip to the beach undesirable.

General Manager Connelley started a large force of men at the work on Monday morning and while there were rumors of side-stepping the fountains, the question was easily settled by a special meeting of the city council and the work goes merrily on.
In connection with the rails of the Sanford & Everglades Ry., which the Traction Co. will use, the entire length of the street railway will be about twelve miles of track. At the Oak avenue crossing the line will be built to Second or Third street, crossing the A. C. L. tracks and taking in the west side via First street. This will give the city of Sanford a good belt line and every part of the adjacent territory made easy of access to the city.
The work of construction on First street is of the best and when finished will give a road bed that will last for the next fifty years. Several gentlemen in the city this week who are familiar with the construction work upon street railways are of the opinion that the stringers, ties and rails could not be put down any better. When the brick paving is laid there will be no necessity of taking up the rails for repairs or to change the system for electric power.

Counterfeit Money Circulating

"Bad money" is being passed in several sections of the state and Sanford merchants are warned to be on the lookout. The following from the Gainesville Sun explains the appearance:
"For the past several days a great many lead dimes and quarters have been making their appearance in Gainesville and several of the merchants have been 'stuck' on the spurious coin.
The imitations are very good and can scarcely be detected, except in the ring, and it would be advisable at this time for all to notice money well, especially in these denominations.
Specimens shown the reporter were rather old and dark-looking and bore the date of 1881. The fact that they are so old makes it easier for their passage."

An Important Movement

A movement of general interest to the public and special interest to teachers throughout the United States and Canada, has been set on foot by the North American Teachers' League, according to an announcement by Frederick A. Tupper, head master of the Brighton school, Massachusetts. The principal objects of the movement are to secure better salaries, better educational facilities and pensions for teachers. There are about half a million teachers in the two countries who would be affected by the success of the movement. In carrying out the objects of the league better qualified teachers would be secured, which would mean educational advancement of scholars and a betterment of communities.

Manatee Celery Is Moving.

The celery movement is now on in earnest, and every day sees an increase in the shipments. Last week the rush was on, and the only difference this week is a little more "rush."

It is estimated that about-third of the crop has been shipped, and that it will not be entirely marketed until about the 15th and 20th of April.—Manatee Record.

New Residents

Mrs. James Maughton and family arrived yesterday from Sharon, Pa., to join Mr. Maughton, and they will make Sanford their home. Mr. Maughton purchased the Gardner place on Second street, and will embark in celery growing. We welcome this estimable family into our midst.

New Stores on Sanford Avenue

The new store rooms being erected on Sanford avenue by J. C. Check will be a valuable addition to the city. The Pope Contracting Co. have the contract, and the stores will be modern in every respect.

May 11 Duval county will vote on the question of issuing bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 for general improvements.

HIGHER LICENSE FOR CARNIVALS

Travelling Fakes Compelled to Pay For Privileges

The Herald has contended that the travelling amusement companies who come here and camp for several days, should be taxed a higher license. The aggregation under one head, under the cognomen of carnivals should be taxed for each show doing business, and this would result either in cutting out this bunch of fakirs altogether or a sufficient revenue would be derived by the city to recompense the inhabitants for having to undergo the discomforts of such a bedlam in our midst. The following from the DeLand Record would indicate that DeLand is also sore on this question:
"A petition has been circulated in DeLand this week aiming to increase the license on traveling amusement (?) companies that wander in here and camp for a week. The merchants were compelled to take this step as a means of self-protection, as some persons attend these performances, paying cash for their fun and have their groceries and such necessities of life charged and then take their time about paying their bills. DeLand has had just about all the carnivals and cheap shows that could get here this winter, and some that were really meritorious. The license now is quite low, and should be raised to correspond better with what our merchants have to pay."

Announcement

With this issue, The Herald offers a club rate of $1.50 a year for The Herald and the New York Produce News. (The pink sheet.)

Socialist Meeting

J. L. Fitta, National Organizer of the Socialist Party will address the people of Sanford to-morrow night, April 3rd at 7:30 at Newlan's corner. Mr. Fitta is a live speaker and will deliver a most interesting discourse upon the great questions of the day.

Summer Closing of Stores

The following stores will close at 6 p. m. except Saturdays beginning April 1 J. K. Mettinger, M. Frank, F. L. Woodruff, D. L. Thrasher and N. P. Yowell & Co.

Special Correspondence to The Herald, Her Easter

Through the long and painful winter all her hopes were clad in gloom. Imprisoned by vain doubtings in a dark and narrow tomb. No sunshine from God's Heaven, and no smiles from Nature's face. To cheer the cold monotony of life in a sad place. But with the dawn of Easter, and the joyous, radiant morn. The withered, blighted passion flower from out the tomb is borne. And gentle hope, with smiling eyes, within the doorway stands. A promise in her heart—an Easter lily in her hands.

◀ If some of the new babies which arrive are as bad as the cigars their fathers give away, they are awful.

◀ A gentleman of refinement and bushy whiskers writes from Enterprise to stop THE HERALD. He complains, seriously, that it is too full of interesting reading and concludes by adding "all my family neglect their work to read the 'durned sheet' and its filling them with worldly ideas, and they are getting dissatisfied with their lot and want to go out and see the fine world your snipper-snapper sheet preaches about. I say—stop your durned paper—I'll never pay a centingnal cuss for it again. I like to read it, but it has demoralized our family from Ma down to the littlest tot in the household"

We won't stop THE HERALD, but we will discontinue sending it to a gentleman who unconsciously pays us such a high compliment. His complaint reminds me of a disgruntled reader of a certain newspaper not a thousand miles from the Celery City. The gentleman was a subscriber, and he didn't want to be on the books any longer. This is what he wrote:

Der is no use for Ju to sent mir mein pepper anny longer as El want to forges mein Dutch as Schneil as possibel, and want to ketsch up mit mein English nebers. So El sent swel Dollar and ein half for das letz Jier and Ju no sent me mein peper if Ju ples. Ent Gu no kom to mein Haus to collect, as mein Hund will beiss Su wetter Ju will spreck to him or not. The Golden Eastertide

◀ With the advent of the Holy Sabbath, April 11th, the gay social world will emerge from its sackcloth and ashes after a period of denial that shall have lasted forty days and forty nights.

Infidelity may sneeringly ridicule and rationalism may contemptuously deny the historic resurrection of Jesus Christ, an event whose anniversary the church celebrates Sunday week, but they are utterly powerless to shake the faith of sincere Christian believers in its actuality.

These Christian believers have an inward and spiritual witness to the truth of that doctrine which defies all the shafts of wit and logic that the enemies of the Christian religion may hurl against it.

Time and reflection have shattered many myths and legends connected with the earthly career of the Nazarene Teacher, but to the tenet of the resurrection the Church still tenaciously clings as to the Rock of Ages. Call it credulity, call it superstition, if you will, but such profound faith must have in it something abiding and vital to justify its existence. It is impossible to overrate the important influence which belief in the doctrine of the resurrection has exercised over the lives of individuals.

The doctrine of the resurrection has robbed the grave of its terrors and the Valley of the Shadow of its gloom.

The doctrine of the resurrection has taken from sorrow and bereavement their chief sting.

The doctrine of the resurrection has planted in the heart patience and resignation under the heaviest of human afflictions.

The doctrine of the resurrection has enabled uncounted millions to say: "Not my will, but Thine be done."

The doctrine of the resurrection has wrenched the face of grief in smiles and clad despair in the garb of hope.

The doctrine of the resurrection has added to the earnestness and responsibilities of life by reminding its possessors that:

There is no death! What seems so is transition; This life of mortal breath Is but a suburb of the life Elysian. Whose portal we call.

Meet and right it is, therefore, that Easter should be celebrated "in the beauty of holiness" and in the holiness of beauty—with all the pomp of flowers, ritual and song and every other token of gratitude and rejoicing. "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive," alive, too, in not only a physical sense, but in a spiritual and moral sense; alive in the sense that redeems mankind from all that is low, vile and base, and enables it to rise in triumph from sin and vice; alive in the sense that makes possible the constant spread of civilization.

This is the meaning of Easter. Let the manifold lessons Easter teaches not be missed or lost.

I heard the gentle murmur Of voices strange and sweet And the indistinct, low music Of hoars of marching feet. And then I heard the murmur Of a thousand voices say: "All hail, sweet sacred morning! Rejoice! 'Tis Easter day! Awaken awake, O nature! O joy-bells loudly ring! Awake for Christ is risen, And praise is due our King."

◀ The worst of all imposters is the religious imposter. I have no regard for a man who thinks he is religious when he is only bilious. He is the man who asks me in the midst of my dinner if I am saved, or while I am in the midst of shaving if I am looking for or have found Christ. He is the fungus growth on the body of the church, who has grave and solemn fears for the salvation of every member of the human family save himself, and who believes he is the very personification of the Saviour and that he alone is burdened with the responsibility of saving the souls of all mankind. It is marvelous what harm is done by those people who represent religion in sackcloth and ashes and the good done by those who make it the most beautiful thing in the world—a thing which causes us to love life.

We have some rigidly righteous people in Sanford, and again, we have too many of this religious-imposter class, who to put it plainly, do more harm to the church with which they are connected, as well as the Christian religion in general, than a score of earnest, practical Christians can counteract.

◀ A callow youth, with an incipient moustache in the earliest stages of incipency, and a shock of hair that resembles a patent mop, a young man whose name is suppressed because of his parents' worthiness, last week brought to THE HERALD during the absence of the official censor a poem, requesting its publication in this department. It is a poem that he may have written himself, although he made no avowal of its authorship. He only expressed a wish that I would publish it, because—"Lots of the boys would enjoy reading it. She's great."

By "she" the youth is understood to refer to an actress who bears the cognomen of "Salome." This prepossessing lady must have made a tender impression upon the callow youth while the latter was visiting some Northern cities the past winter, because he indites in one corner of the sheet: "I've seen her and she's O. K."

But the poem—well, here's a homeopathic sample of it:

There seems a twinkle in the air, The bald front seater wildly blinks, The footlights flash with envious glare When Clissy winks.

The dresy dandee, neat and trim, Gaze smiling on the sprightly mix, And each one thinks it is for him When Clissy winks.

The sober deacon, prim and neat, Down in his seat in wonder sinks, And feels a sort of worldly streak When Clissy winks.

The sleek and portly millionaire Looks on with eyes like hungry lynx And feels a rising in his hair When Clissy winks.

◀ Nearly every day in the life of a newspaper man, he runs across some one looking for a "little puff" in the newspaper. In nine cases out of ten, the so-called "puffs" are lies made into truths for the sake of deceiving the public. A newspaper man is ridiculed for printing such rot but it seems to be the custom and he does it just the same.

Now a Western editor has adopted a schedule of charges for certain kinds of "puffs" and THE HERALD believes that from now, henceforth, the same charges will be made in like instances. Following is the "puff" price list:

For publishing an article telling the public that a man is a successful business man when everybody knows he is as lazy as a government mule, $2.70.

Referring to a deceased citizen as one who is mourned by the entire community when we know he will be missed only by a poker circle, $10.13.

Referring to some gallivanting female as an estimable lady whom it is a pleasure to meet, when every business man in the town would rather see the devil coming, $110.

Calling an ordinary pulpiter an eminent divine, 60 cents.

Sending a doughty sinner to heaven, $5.00.

Referring to the bride as a beautiful, accomplished and lovable young woman when everybody knows she is as plain as a hedge fence, can't play anything, can't wash dishes and just married the poor fellow so that some other girl couldn't get him, $13.83.

Referring to the bridegroom as a popular fellow when no one pays any attention to his going and coming, 8 cents. —THE SAUNTERER.

Efficient Staff of Reporters Weekly Covers the Territory for The Herald

OVIDEO OCCURRENCES

Special Correspondence to The Herald. The Oviedo Magazine Club completes today its fourth year with two having, for good and sufficient reasons, dropped out and four left our village.

The year began with $96.67 in the treasury, collected and held for the purpose of putting down a marl sidewalk.

The assessment of one dollar a year for each member has been used to pay magazine subscriptions, for printing lists and any other incidental expenses connected with running the club.

During the year we have given several entertainments, two for the purpose of planting 100 shade trees along our streets and the others for the sidewalk, which is being rapidly laid.

Besides these accomplished facts, we have, at our weekly meetings devoted four afternoons to the study of the insect world: mosquitoes, bees, butterflies and various insect pests peculiarly trying here in Florida, learning their habits, their economic value, or their danger to man and animals.

Four other weeks were spent in learning about the birds: domestic fowl, water birds, songbirds and birds of prey.

The nature study was concluded by four weeks on horticulture, divided into groups as follows: Garden flowers, ferns and wild flowers, trees, water-plants.

When the three months of Nature study were finished, the club embarked for Europe on one of the biggest and fastest steamers afloat, securing the best and most expensive accommodation, of course, we did not have to consider the cost in any particular. No one was seasick, no one was homesick and our only regret was that we did not encounter an iceberg or speak any other ship during our whole voyage.

We spent two weeks in London, and then started to make a tour of the British Isles.

We visited seven typical parts of England, cathedral cities, the birthplaces of great men, the universities, the royal palaces and the lake country, reading descriptions, looking at pictures, hearing appropriate music or recitations, or listening to poetic selections.

After England, we visited Scotland, spending eight weeks traveling through that rarely interesting county among its ancient castles and palaces, or the haunts of its famous men and women.

For four weeks we saw Ireland, reading of its wonderful pre-historic monuments, of its saints and of its present day people.

A brief glimpse of Holland followed, with pictures of its curious waterways, and quaintly dressed population.

We are now in Italy, but have only had time to see a little of those two rarely interesting cities, Florence and Venice.

In conclusion, the club has not only studied and traveled, it has successfully married off four of its valued members and daughters. Perhaps it is prouder of these feats than of anything else it has done.

In closing the club year your out-going president wishes to thank all the members for their hearty co-operation in her plans, and for their cordial assistance in making the weekly meetings so very interesting and attractive. It has been a great pleasure to work with and for you all and the year has seemed to her a very short and delightful one.

Side-steps Sunday Laws

Pensacola Citizens Could Not Stand the Blue Laws

Several weeks ago the sheriff of Escambia county announced that he proposed to enforce every law on the statute books with reference to the observance of Sunday. This meant that he would not only put a stop to all forms of petty traffic on that day, but that he would put an end to the running of trains, the loading of ships, the manufacturing of ice, the operating of street-car lines and other industries which under modern conditions, have come to be looked upon as necessities on every day of the week.

But Pensacola has seen the futility of trying to enforce antiquated and obsolete blue laws and has quit.

The city, the sheriff and the people have seen the uselessness of trying to put an end to modern conditions and turning back the hands on the clock of time.

The reaction has come, as come it must, and Pensacola, according to advices sent out by the wires, is as wide open as ever it was.

The thrifty Pensacolian can now get his soda water on Sunday. He may even purchase a cigar on that day, or buy a newspaper.

Pleasure boats with happy excursionists once more ply the waters of the bay, and on last Sunday, it is said, there were two cracking good games of baseball played on the home grounds.

It was ever thus when the pendulum swings the other way.—Miami Record.

HEAVY CELERY SHIPMENTS

One Hundred and Thirteen Cars Shipped From Sanford Last Week

Sanford, Fla., Mar. 23.—Last week was the heaviest in the celery deal this year as 113 cars were shipped, 50 being sent by Chase & Co. It is estimated the movement this week will be 80 or 85 cars. In previous seasons, April has been one of the heaviest months, but this year will prove an exception as the greater portion of the crop will be moved before then and in April the supply will be light. After this week shipments will be much lighter as the tendency will be to hold back the celery. Chase & Co., as usual, are leaders in handling Sanford celery.

The supply of tomatoes is increasing gradually, which has prevented any shortage. It is brought about a gradual decline in f. o. b. prices and it has resulted in putting tomatoes at a price in the various markets where they are within reach of the average consumers. The stock was never better than this year. Already orders for the Easter trade are being booked and an active movement is anticipated. Florida weather conditions have been favorable to the growing crop.—New York Produce News.

What a noisy city Sanford promises to become.

The query in Sanford for the past week has been, "Are you for the fountains removal or not?" Almost a question of wet or dry.

Robert Gamble is still trying to convert the city of Jacksonville into a celery field and wonders why the citizens do not take up with his great scheme.

THE HERALD, though only seven months old, has a circulation more than twice as large as that ever attained by any other Sanford newspaper—and it is constantly increasing. This will interest advertisers.

The beef trust has a permit from the government to sell embalmed beef again. Benzoids of soda, held to be harmless by the head of the National Bureau of Chemistry, will be used by the packers to preserve the meat. All those who want to eat embalmed beef hold up their hands!

Bro. Walpole of the Manatee Record will soon be a celery king. Says that in a few years thousands of cars will be moving from the Manatee section. Shake, Frank! There is no better topic in the state to expatiate upon than celery. It has politics and county division beat a mile.

Bro. Bullock of the Gainesville Elevator is there with the goods. In reply to the Tallahassee Democrat stating that the University may be moved to Tallahassee he replies that the University is in no danger of being moved but that the Florida College may be moved to Gainesville and also the state Capital.

The mid-winter edition of the Ft. Myers Press was one of the best of the kind ever issued in Florida. It was printed on good enamel paper and was filled from cover to cover with good reading matter and fine half-tone cuts descriptive of Ft. Myers and Lee county. THE HERALD congratulates Messrs. Ruhl and Stout upon their fine edition.

For the benefit of those citizens who are timid about the noise of the new railway and brick paving THE HERALD suggests that the city council pass an ordinance making it compulsory for everyone to wear rubber shoes, rubber collars and rubber necks and all the horses be shod with rubber shoes and the wagons tired with rubber. If this does not relieve the nerves we suggest a removal to Ft. Reed, or Orlando.

Editor Cleveland of the DeFunik Herald in his last issue gives a sketch of the past two years of the Herald and the trying times experienced in keeping the paper going with limited resources. His brethren of the press can sympathize with him in his tribulations and now that he is on the road to success can wish him good luck. Few people ever realize the ordeals through which the struggling newspaper man is forced to pass.

THE HERALD has been the recipient of many compliments this week from different sections of the county upon the paper as a county paper. Our best efforts will be spent in making THE HERALD a county paper at all times and while published in Sanford and the bulk of the news of a local nature THE HERALD will not try to revolutionize the world or devote a column to happenings that do not concern Orange County and would be of no interest to the readers. The world news and state news is given in a condensed form and will never become a burden to the county subscribers.

The following from the editor's old friend and preceptor is greatly appreciated. Rev. L. E. Grennan is one of Ohio's famous sons and has gained a national reputation as a Journalist, instructor and minister:

"Some kind friend, intending to surprise me has sent some copies of The Herald. The surprise was genuine. Never before have I known so good a paper to be published outside of the larger cities and in many of them the weeklies are weak reproductions of the daily ones. Knowing the editor, Robert Holly, my surprise has softened into admiration and congratulation. Sanford is certainly very "Lucky" in more than one line and has a just right to be proud of her wide-awake clearly edited and progressive paper, The Herald.
Success to you,
L. E. GRENAN.

REGARDING OUR NEW POSTOFFICE

THE HERALD last week registered—a kick against the Postoffice Department for raising the rate on box rentals. In other words the people do not want a higher tax on boxes unless the department will erect a building commensurate with the growth of the city, and one that would be in keeping with the other improvements. The present quarters of the postoffice is a disgrace to Sanford and the postoffice department.

Like all questions, there are two sides to the matter, and in a conversation with Postmaster Haskins the fact was elicited that a new building is an impossibility unless the city has free delivery, and that free delivery cannot be obtained unless the city officials force the property owners to make better sidewalks on several streets, and more street lights erected.

The Inspector has been here several times recently, and informed the city council that these improvements would be a necessity for city delivery.

The rent on the boxes has been raised because the postoffice receipts seem to justify a raise, just as it is done in all other cities.

Sanford is growing so rapidly, and so much business is being transacted through the postoffice that following a general rule of the department, the box rent is raised.

The department has recognized the need of a free delivery to relieve the congestion at the general delivery window and laying down the specifications necessary for this delivery expect the city officials to take action at once.

When the free delivery has been established Sanford is in line for a fine new building or at least a much better room will be procured and fitted with all the latest improvements to facilitate the handling of a greatly increased business. The people through THE HERALD have kicked the department and the department kicks back at the city council.

As the matter stands the question of a new postoffice building and free delivery is now up to the council.

FOR A SANFORD DAILY

The citizens of Sanford and Orange county have been most insistent in the past few months for the editor of THE HERALD to give them a real daily paper and knowing the field and the possibilities we can announce that in the near future THE HERALD will be made a daily. A larger and faster press, a folding machine and a typesetting machine will be added to our large equipment and when the DAILY HERALD makes its appearance it will be a daily paper in every sense of the word. We are not entering the daily field blinded to the many obstacles that beset the path in this new departure but are fully cognizant of every detail and from the experience already gained will have all plans carefully made before inflicting the daily upon the unsuspecting public. Sanford demands a daily next fall and continuing the policy of giving our readers what they desire, THE HERALD will at the proper time launch a daily that will fully cover the field in every respect.

SANFORD AS A TRADING CENTER

A glance over THE SANFORD HERALD will at once impress the reader with the great advantage of Sanford as a trading center. The crowds of people upon the streets at all times and especially on Saturday is a subject that calls forth most favorable comment from the visitors to the city. This week especially the grocers are offering bargains that cannot be duplicated in the larger cities. Merchants in other lines are offering bargains and the extremely low prices are bringing in people from surrounding towns to purchase their goods. Sanford's location makes it at once the natural trading center for Orange, Volusia and Lake counties and our enterprising merchants are offering many bargains to stimulate this trade and make it permanent. Come to Sanford for real bargains in every line.

Bro. Howard of the Reporter-Star confesses that he would rather be a "moss-back" than to live in a real city where he might get beneath the car wheels. Also calls THE HERALD men a "rolling stone." Sure thing, little father, and our advice to you is to take a day off, get beyond the narrow confines of your little village and take a broader view of the world. You will find that since you have been buried in Orlando for the past twenty years there have been some wonderful changes made and you would be a modern version of Rip Van Winkle. Pay us a visit, grandpap, and if the hum of the city is too great for your antiquated system you can return to Howard City.

A rolling stone gathers no moss, and a sitting hen never get fat.

THE HERALD prints 300 extra copies today to supply the demand.

Be sure and read the full page advertisements of the Sanford Grocery Co. and Chas. Kanner in this issue.

Great Results Achieved From Chronicle Special Edition

Few people realize the great number of new people who have come to Sanford this season from reading the special edition of the Chronicle. This edition edited and arranged by E. T. Woodruff, and circulated freely over many states of the Union, has been the means of bringing hundreds of people to Sanford. This was one of the finest editions ever published in Florida, and the edition has long since been exhausted. The latest booklet issued by the Board of Trade has also proved of great benefit, although the amount printed was inadequate to supply the demand. This class of advertising has been of inestimable value to Sanford, and explains the presence of the many people who are flocking to Sanford every day. Many demands for this special edition are coming to The Herald office every day from people in different parts of the United States and Canada. It is to be hoped that Mr. Woodruff can be prevailed upon to issue another edition soon with views of the new railroad, streetcar line, street paving and many other improvements that have taken place in the past six months.

If another edition is printed it will certainly have the support of every citizen, as they, one and all, realize the great value of this class of advertising.

Ministerial Association

The pastors of the various churches of Sanford, met in the Methodist church last Monday, and organized a Ministerial Association. Rev. R. L. Kirkland presided. The organization was perfected by the election of Rev. J. F. McKinnon as president and Rev. J. W. Boyd as secretary and treasurer.

This Association will convene every Monday morning at 9 o'clock. This indicates the fraternal spirit of the pastors, and a willingness to work together for the good of the people.

She has left four brothers to mourn her loss, her parents having passed away several years ago. Neighbors and friends extend sympathy and prayers to the bereaved.

NEW FOUNTAINS FOR SANFORD

Will Be Placed on Commercial Street Instead of First

At a special meeting of the city council held on Tuesday, the petitions that favored the removal of the fountains and the one that did not were presented and speeches were made by Messrs. Fernald, Thrasher, A. E. Phillips, C. H. Lefler, F. L. Woodruff and Mayor Lake. After a most delightful talk feast the council decided that the fountains would have to be removed from First street and a compromise will effect new fountains on Commercial street at the intersection of Palmetto and Park avenues. They will be of modern architecture and should be made attractive and kept up. If half the interest is taken in the new fountains that has been manifested in the old ones they will certainly be kept in good condition.

Mr. Lefler Returns

C. H. Lefler has returned home after spending the past month in Jacksonville where he had charge of the Sanford exhibit at the Exposition and also had headquarters at the Clyde Line offices. Mr. Lefler has performed his arduous task to the entire satisfaction of every one and mainly through his efforts a great part of the influx of new people coming to Florida was directed toward Sanford. Mr. Lefler will not be allowed to take a vacation for he is slated to take charge of the big Fourth of July celebration and push it to completion. He is the kind of hustlers needed to advertise our city.

First Street Public Fountains

The idea was conceived by some of the prominent citizens of Sanford who raised and contributed a considerable proportion of the money expended on the first one at the intersection of First street and Park avenue. The ladies were led in this movement by the late Mrs. Col. Walter Gwynn. The primary object was to provide a public fountain of drinking water for the convenience of visitors who often came by hundreds on the excursion trains and suffered for the want of water on hot summer days.

W. T. Deane, F. P. Forster and A. E. Phillips, representing three of the corners at this point, were requested to take hold of the matter and act as "constructive committee." Mr. Forster was made treasurer. The committee and Mr. D. L. Way, on the fourth corner, headed the subscription list liberally and were promptly followed by many enterprising citizens until a sufficient amount of money was collected to enable the committee to construct, not only a convenience, but the thing of beauty which they had determined upon. The Town Council granted the privilege and the fountain was built promptly by these contributions of the citizens without any expense to the city. The late John Dodd soon after led a similar movement and the fountain at the intersection of Palmetto avenue and First street was constructed.

It is little enough to ask the Town Council to keep the fountains clean and supplied with attractive spray attachments. These fountains have grown dear to the hearts of our citizens. They form an essential part of our main street in that they break the monotony, refresh the eyes and, round about themselves, scatter their cool showers through the sun's heated rays. They ornament the broad, lively avenue in fact, in picture and in song. As in Tennyson's Brook, so "Men may come and men may go, but (they) go on forever!" Touch them not! Let them remain as a perpetual adornment for our posterity to enjoy.

Talk about lack of space for street cars and vehicles to pass. Absurd! The fountains are at the intersection of two broad streets in each case with abundance of room for convenient and graceful curves. Go to St. Augustine where, on some of her broader streets, there is room for but one wagon at a time to pass either side of the street car line. Compare such a condition with the room and to spare around our fountains at the intersection of our exceptionally wide streets and then let these beautiful gushers alone!

Sanford is known as the "city with the flowing fountains," and these spouting waters at once suggest to the visitor the unfailing streams that water the great celery fields which have made this community wealthy and famous.

I endorse Mr. Geo. H. Fernald's position emphatically—let the fountains alone!

—A. E. PHILLIPS.

P. S.—Since placing in your hands my communication concerning the public fountains, the town council has passed a resolution to the effect that new fountains will be placed on Commercial street at the intersection of Park and Palmetto avenues in lieu of the present fountains on First street which will be removed. This modifies my objections, though we shall miss the ornamental spray from First street, and it would be better to keep the old and erect the new besides. A. E. P.

DR. KIRKLAND'S SERMON

Stirring Words That Went Direct to Listener's Heart

SUBJECT: "RECKLESS DRIVING"

Is Handled in Most Forceful Manner And Comparisons Made With Everyday Life

The sermon preached at the Congregational church on last Sunday night by Dr. R. Lee Kirkland upon "Reckless Driving," was one of the most forceful ever heard in this city. His text was taken from II Kings, 9:20: "For the driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously."

The man of our text prided himself on doing those dangerous and daring things, such things as no other man of good intelligence would think of doing. He seemed to think that it displayed generalship and bravery to see how near the awful precipice he could drive while other men with good judgment would stay as far away from danger as possible. Jehu continued this reckless course until he stirred his friends to the highest pitch of anxiety. His name became table talk. His acts became the talk of the street. His influence was dreaded. Our text calls him the furious or reckless man, and to make his course more serious he was a man in authority. Especially was Jehu reckless when out on one of his usual drives. I fancy I see him preparing for that famous drive mentioned in the language of our text. Standing in front of his office I see that nervous black span chewing against their bits. The driver who holds the reins is sad and has nothing to say. He would not go out on this famous drive for this world, but he is a military soldier. He is under command. He has to go. Lining up behind his carriage are several thousand men. They will follow the front carriage. They will stay close to its heels. Jehu comes out of his office with his cabinet of friends. Enters his carriage. Gives orders to his driver to go down Broadway, a down grade of four miles, crossing the noted bridge that has no banisters. In a few minutes they have passed the skirts of the city. The team is fast drawing the carriage down grade. It's easy running. It is easy riding. For everything is going down grade. No one notices the time or the speed. Jehu is drinking champagne and choice wines. Speed does not bother him. Down grade does not worry him. Danger never frightens him. But just now the driver has noticed that one of the horses is becoming nervous. The driver says: Jehu, one of the horses is nervous, and shows a disposition to be mean; what shall I do? Jehu laughs at his cowardice, and says: You poor, chicken-hearted fellow; there is no danger in that horse; in fact in neither of them. This is my old family team. Let them go, if they want to. They have always stopped in time, and always will. Onward the mad horse plunges against the bit, until his mate grows nervous. The driver is again alarmed and cried out: Jehu, both horses are nervous; I fear they will get away from me. Nonsense, answers Jehu. Give them the rein; let them go. The mad team now becomes unmanageable. They seize the bits in the corners of their mouths. The sight of the great bridge has increased their maddened condition. The driver knows what it means. He cries out in the anguish of his soul. Oh, Jehu! both horses are unmanageable, and we are in sight of the bridge. He, for the first time, realizes his condition. He cries out stop the horses. The driver wraps the reins around his hands and over his elbows, and with all the strength of his being he throws himself against the runaway team. But alas! only to increase their speed. He cries out: Jehu, they have seized the bits in their mouths; I cannot rein them. Oh! for God's sake, cries the doomed man, has it come to that? Throw on the brakes, driver. Save us if you can. But there is no hope. Jehu has waited too long. He has played with life his last time. His team is unmanageable, his soul is doomed; the brakes will not work. They are inadequate. The hoofs of the horses are now striking the bridge. I hear the awful crash, and they plunge overboard. Jehu became a type of millions on earth today who are on the downward grade. No man expects to go to jail. No drunkard expects to fill a drunkard's grave. No woman thinks of falling below the level of the brute. But they are just playing with sin. Just out for a good time. That's all. Here is a poor widow with only one son. It is the only child she has. She has lived all her life in the country on a farm. But her son wants to go to the city. Persuades his mother to sell the home, the stock and all the farm interests. With a few thousand dollars they locate in the city. Soon the son meets some gay friends. Bye and bye it comes to that old mother's ear that her son is associating with bad people. When he comes home to supper that night he finds it ready on the table. The mother is ready to serve him. At one glance she sees there is something wrong. What's the matter, mother? Ah, my son, I hear you are associating with evil companions, and your mother is in distress over it. The egotistical boy, the smart I flies into a fit of anger; informs his mother that he is no kid. That when he sees danger he will avoid it. That there is no harm anyway in his friends. They are good fellows. One night the mother is waiting. She is uneasy about him. Two o'clock in the night she hears him step through the front door. Takes off his shoes and slips up stairs to his room, but there is whiskey on his breath. There is a bottle dropped at the door, and beer checks in his pocket. Oh, my boy, says the distressed mother, will you not throw on the brakes, and rein the team before this awful habit gets the better of you? Nonsense, nonsense he says. There is no danger. Just a little social drink; that is all. I have always stopped this team; I am not afraid. Another night the mother is waiting for him. Ten o'clock comes. The mother hears the clerks going home from the stores, but her son is not in the crowd. At eleven o'clock she hears the carriages rushing from the union depot. Her son is not in the crowd. Twelve o'clock; one o'clock comes. She hears the rumbling of a heavy wagon coming toward the house. She hears the wheel of it strike the curbstone opposite her door. Here is the place says one man. They take someone out of the wagon. Down the long walk, up the stone steps they carry their victim. They ring the bell. The door is opened. What is it? What is it? says the frightened mother. It is your son, madam. There is a fine of one hundred dollars and costs against him besides we bring him home beastly drunk. The poor, old, heart-broken mother pays the bill, and puts him to bed. All that night she sits by his side praying for him. The next morning he is sorry for his conduct, and promises her he will never do that again. Begs her to only trust him once more. She cleans him up. He starts again down to the city, with all the good resolutions that a boy ever left his mother's roof. Don't worry, mother, I'll be back for dinner, says he, and I will come back sober, too. That boy meant it, but his team had become unmanageable. His will-power is gone. His manhood is hurried to the dogs. As he goes out at the gate he says old gate when I come back through you today, I will be a sober man. You will never swing open for me to pass through you drunk, again. On to the city he goes. He is about to pass that old corner, called Jake's place. He starts to pass it, but the maddened team—seize the bits in their mouths; he throws himself against the reins; but he has lost his strength. He throws on the brakes, but it is too late. With one plunge the maddened team throws him against the bars. Drink, drink he hears a voice saying. That's his last day. Oh, what will I do? It's too late. I am doomed. That day that young man loses his life in a drunken riot. He is taken home dead. Young man, if you are in this room tonight and know yourself to be trifling with sin, throw on the brakes, and turn over the reins to one whose arms are long and strong. They reach across the universe; they span lands and seas. They have all power. Let him drive for you, young man. If there is one person above another who has my sympathy, it is the young man of today. There are deadfalls in society, deadfalls along the way, and traps in his path that his father knows not of. Men and women of God, don't condemn the young man of today, but save him.

A young lady of unusual talent, after completing her education in this country was sent away to Paris for a musical education. Her friends said to her "before you settle down you should visit the Golden Gate Park, the Garden of the Gods, the Royal Gorge, Pike's Peak and other places." The mother tried to persuade her to settle down, and make her dear old heart glad with her presence. She positively informed her dear old mother that she did not intend to be tied to her apron string always. Ah, what a mistake. That night you were away from your mother's apron string was the fatal night in your life. That is the night your team started to run away. This young lady took the advice of her gay friend, trampling the feelings of her mother under foot. A letter came back every week. One every two weeks and then one a month, until at last, that mother could not hear from her girl. She wrote, but could get no answer. She advertised, but could hear nothing. I wonder what is the matter? That young lady's team has become unmanageable. She has fallen. Her home is not in the old mansion on the farm. It is in the dens and caves with the ruined wrecks of her race. She would turn and come home, but she has fallen to the lowest depth of womankind. She plods the midnight streets with bare and bleeding feet. Oh! the memories of other days. How she would give this world were she innocent and pure as in other days. She has tried to reform. She has made many a good resolution, but she cannot have them out of her hands. The brakes will not act. Sin has rubbed the stamp of God's image from her soul. Her reckless team throws her against the crime of suicide, and ends her life. Oh! young woman, would to God I could turn on the white light of eternity, and let you see yourself, but you know more than anyone else. Your mother has given you good advice, but you will not take it. You are already driving at an awful speed. Soon your team will be unmanageable. Soon the brakes will not work, nor will your carriage stop until it strikes the curbstone of hell.

Father, are you in this room tonight? To whom God has committed sons and daughters to rear for eternity. How is your life before your family? Is it good? Or is it full of drunkenness, blasphemy and all manner of disorder. Do you not know that you are not only driving yourself to hell, but that some carriage that is carrying you to an awful eternity, is also carrying your family? Your sons would be Christians, but they are afraid of their father. They have never heard you pray, but they have heard you blaspheme the Lord Almighty. They have never seen you read the Bible, but they have seen you drunk. Turn over your reins this moment to one that is almighty.

I close by noticing the reckless mother. If there is anything in this world that I thank God for, it is for the memory of my dear old mother. I don't know that she could read or write, but she lived as close to God as she knew how, and with her loving hands she pointed her children to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. Jesus drove her team for her. Sometimes it was over rugged roads, but it was only to better fit my mother for heaven. At last her carriage halted in front of the gate of the eternal city. There was a clang, and the gate went up, and the safe driver entered within the city. Mother, if you are not a Christian, I beg you to give your heart to God before you go out of this room. Don't let your team become unmanageable before your children. Do you know you are going to meet your children at the judgment bar? Will they bless you there, or will they curse you? God wants to help you; will you let him?

Hidden Dangers

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Sanfard Citizen can Afford to Ignore

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Sanfard proof:

Mrs. Mary Van Bibber, Second St., Sanfard, Fla., says: "I suffered a great deal from backache. My kidneys were also weak and the frequent passages of the secretions were positively annoying. In spite of the doctoring I did, and the various remedies I tried, I grew no better. Finally I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They removed the soreness and pain from my back and made my general health better. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the great improvement they brought about."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
