RUM RUNNERS, AIDED BY FOGS, SWAMP COAST

Play Santa Claus To Christmas Demands At Rate Of 15,000 Cases Every Week

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—A trio of rum running steamers have been making holiday for the past few weeks with the coast guard thanks to the heavy fog, it was learned today.

They have been playing Santa Claus to the Christmas and New Year seasonal demands of the bootlegging trade by landing between 10,000 and 15,000 cases of holiday liquor weekly.

With their floating base established 25 to 80 miles off Montauk Point, "the three whiskey toters" keep closer to shore at night for landing operations in the vicinity of Glenove Bay, Long Island.

Captain Randolph Ridderick, of the New York division of the coast guard, admitted today that the presence of two of the ships have been known to a week. He denied knowledge of the third vessel reported to be the largest, of 7,000 tons. The three vessels are said to be of foreign registry.

"We have been working night and day but we have not enough men for an effective blockade, even in clear weather," said Captain Ridderick.

A new technique has been developed in connection with the operations of the three liquor ships, according to reports. Owners of shore line property are said to receive a "landing fee" of $1 a case with an additional bonus in the form of a free supply of holiday liquor to the land owners.

These early wheelbirds of the rum-milk, ice and vegetable scene—are said to be used to transport the liquid contraband from the isolated landing places to the distribution headquarters in New York City.

An S-O-S service of supply system through a network of radio and telephone stations is reported to keep the "traffic managers" informed via code movements of wet stuff.

The big ship of the rum-tumbers has been reported off the coast all the way from Maine to Florida. Radio operators have heard code messages arranging for contracts with the shore fleet of the liquor syndicate.

Former Citizen Of Sanford Named In Will Of His Father

W. H. Fletcher, formerly of the owner of the Longwood Distillery and now a resident of Detroit, Michigan, has been named as a third party in the $70,000 will of his father, Charles W. Fletcher, who died April 27 at his home in Boston, Massachusetts.

Mr. Fletcher and his brother, William L. Fletcher, of Boston contested the will, when it was learned that it gave two thirds of the entire estate to the deceased's widow and widow, Mrs. Martha G. Fletcher, and the remaining one third to the two sons. A Suffolk County jury "broke" the will of the dead man, saying that "it was procured by fraud or undue influence of the widow."

The estate was inventoried at $3,500 personal property and $3,000 in real estate. Of the personal property, the largest item consisted of 372 shares of capital stock of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, of which the late Mr. Fletcher was comptroller, valued at $168 a share. The will left the widow the house in Boston with furnishings, two thirds of the stock to her and one third to the two sons.

THREE FIRE ALARMS

The local fire department answered three alarms this afternoon, and in each instance the fire proved to be a grass fire. One was in the Glendale section, another at Cypress and Geneva Avenues, and the third was at French Avenue and Twentieth Street.

Firemen easily extinguished each of the first shortly after it was given.

Arrests Growing Out Of New York "Holdup" Dinner Await Return Of Whalen

HOOVER DEVISED MAIN FEATURES OF PATROL PLAN

President Favors Complete Separation Of Coast Guard Duties

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—President Hoover himself devised the basic feature of the government's international border forces to check rum smuggling, it was disclosed here today.

The plan laid down by the President call for the transfer of all of the customs forces, prohibition agents and immigration inspectors on the Canadian and Mexican border into a border patrol unit within the coast guard.

In addition he favors the complete division of rum smuggling and other activities of the coast guard, such as life saving and ship rescue work.

This disclosure, together with other information trickling through official sources to congressional days, lent weight to the belief that Mr. Hoover has not only given much personal attention to the prohibition situation in the past but that he will be the actual generalissimo of the federal dry army in the future.

Although in disagreement with the drastic methods proposed by some congressional drys to better enforcement, the President is understood to have some very definite plans in mind in addition to the announced reorganization of the federal enforcement machinery.

Official word regarding the contract murder of Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gangster passed between the two police chiefs at their session yesterday afternoon in Commissioner Russell's office, neither would admit it.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—With Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen in Chicago and not expected to return until tomorrow night, it appeared unlikely today that any arrests growing out of the "holdup" at the dinner tendered Magistrate Albert H. Vitale on Dec. 8, would be made before his return.

Inspector Joseph J. Donovan, head of the criminal identification bureau of the police department, who defected at the trial of Detective Arthur C. Johnson that the "holdup" was just a little hasty being reached at the London conference next month were pretty well set today.

Whalen is studying traffic conditions in the Windy City, according to word from there. In a message to this city he insisted on his trip to Chicago and in bearing on Donovan's startling revelation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Still maintaining that his search for a solution to New York's traffic situation prompted his visit here, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen today was to be shown the city by William Russell, Chicago's commissioner.

If any word regarding the contract murder of Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gangster passed between the two police chiefs at their session yesterday afternoon in Commissioner Russell's office, neither would admit it.

Poultry Class Has Meeting Last Night In School Building

At the first meeting of the adult evening class in poultry production held last night in the Seminole High School building under the direction of Alex R. Johnson, supervisor of the agricultural department of the high school, a group of 15 Seminole County poultry producers assembled and organized the class which is to meet every Tuesday evening during the next six weeks. It was announced this morning.

During the course of the meeting the members participated in practical work with white leghorn hens and pullets, and heard several discussions pertaining to the elements of judging poultry, which includes the various types, breeds and varieties.

At the next meeting, which is to take place next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the high school building J. A. Hartline, resident of Longwood and nationally known poultry producer, will discuss "conditions pertaining to the showing of poultry," and will demonstrate with specimens of Rhode Island Red chickens the art of judging.

Mr. Johnson said that registration for membership in the class is still open for everyone interested in this line and that efforts would be made to bring all the poultry producers of the county into its membership.

President Hoover's plan for complete reorganization of federal enforcement machinery are expected to be carried out through removal and appointment of some new district attorneys, prohibition administrators and other officials.

Because of the "gentlemen's agreement" in the Senate to consider only the tariff bill until it is passed, legislation desired by Mr. Hoover may have to wait until Spring. A growing sentiment was found today among congressional drys for transfer of enforcement activities from the Treasury to the justice department, as urged by Mr. Hoover. The sentiment apparently arose in part through dissatisfaction of drys with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as head of enforcement activities.

Lindbergh To Attend Conference Monday

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is expected to arrive in Columbus Monday morning for a conference with T. A. T. officials.

It was first reported, when the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh landed off from Valley Stream, N. Y., yesterday morning, that the famous fliers were coming directly to Columbus. When they had not arrived late yesterday, inquiries developed the fact that they had made their hotel reservation for Monday and that Lindbergh had advised officials of the T. A. T. here he would see them Monday.

It is understood the Lindberghs stopped some place in Pennsylvania for a weekend visit with friends.

FRENCH STAND ON NAVY ISSUE CASTS GLOOM

PROSPECTS DIMMED FOR SUCCESSFUL OUTCOME OF LONDON MEETING; IS DISAPPOINTMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(INS)—The U.S. delegation here of successive five-power naval agreements being reached at the London conference next month were pretty well set today.

Close examination of the note while France has sent to all the conference powers has disclosed that she has raised so many controversial points that it is well nigh hopeless to expect the London conference to duplicate the success of the original Washington conference of eight years ago.

To say that President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson are disappointed is putting it very mildly.

France has, in effect, served notice on the powers that the U.S. will consider any decisions arrived at in London merely supplementary to and reviewable by the League of Nations, (2) that she will not enter any binding agreements of naval tonnages unless such agreements are also accompanied by political agreements covering sea rights in time of war, and (3) that there must be a neutrality pact covering the Mediterranean.

Any one of them singly is capable of upsetting the conference effectively if they form a barrier to a success, in the broad sense, that officials could not see today how to overcome.

What President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald had hoped for was a conference devoted exclusively to the matter of reducing naval tonnages to the extent that naval competition might be minimized. The tone of the talks were under fire. So Scotland dropped back to point to 81,424 in the first period, while Montgomery-Watson raised it to 81,436. In both cases current prices were around 100 points below the high of the year and only 100 points above the bottom. The Scotch leaders underled under a 2-point limit and the naval stocks exhibited a weak tone.

Good Christmas business, with a somewhat clouded prospect for the immediate future, was shown in the weekend business review in the western business review. Tax selling and bear raids continued to torture the market and the most heavily held were the longs, not on the shorts. Trading on the long side to the favorite stocks. The next two of three months, they say, will continue a large spreading of inducible stocks and interesting news, which will interest financial speculators and investors. It is buying stocks.

Pennsylvania Railroad fell through to 24,438, only fractionsally above the year's low point price, a movement of big shrug in November, earnings other rail stocks showed the effects of a 26 per cent drop in November net for the first six months to report to the commerce commission.

The longs' police raid continued to the market on Nov. 12, 1928, after he had been detained for questioning. The negro had been employed as a longs' man by Dr. Jones for about a week preceding the murder on Christmas Eve.

Harris was whipped after a Chattanooga, Tenn., police inquiry to prevent his incrimination.

Babe Ruth May Hold Out For $85,000 Salary With Possibility Of Break-Up

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The all-time record of Ruth versus the New York Yankees is all but broken but nobody is being asked by the quiet innocence of the situation, the New York Yankees least of all. There is, however, the making of a fine, old-branigan to be found in the reputation of this young man's salary for 1930 and ensuing years, particularly if the New York ball club attempts it's signature about it. This would be a downright comical way to treat a man who is indispensable to one's success, but, then, baseball clubs never were distinguished in an intellectual sense, and the Yankees may be no smarter than the next, which means, not at all.

"I am not in a position to speak for Mr. Ruth but I venture to say that his demand will be reasonable enough. "You play with me and I'll play ball for you," probably would express it.

Although nobody congealed his statement, himself, on the subject, it generally is understood that Ruth wants $85,000 a season on a three-year basis. This is a whole lot more money than ordinary men get for playing "minor baseball." But what would people say? It won't flout your intelligence by pointing out that Ruth is an ordinary man.

Ruth is the man who made possible the winning of six pennants and three World Series in the last nine years. He is the man who made the franchise so fabulously rich that few can compete with it in the open market. He is the man whose personal popularity made the Yankee Stadium, the greatest baseball field ever conceived, pay for itself. He is the man to whom baseball itself owes much of its success through the last golden decade. With him, it went to financial greatness undreamed of in the gone too distant past. Without him, it might still be floundering.

A matter of $85,000 doubtless is a lot of money in anybody's pocket, but not if you retain your sense of comparative values. The $85,000 sum is not unknown to baseball. Does any of them equal even one-quarter of Ruth's value to baseball? I think not. How about the fighter who gets a guarantee of $10,000 for championship boxing? He gets it because he figures in being it back at the gate. I suppose we either are to assume then that Ruth won't bring it back at the gate or that he doesn't deserve to be as well treated as a prize fighter.

If has been darkly hinted that, as an alternative is necessary, Ruth will become a holdout. If he does that, he will have them ticked. They can't afford to start such without him because the exhibition games there not only pay the cap for the training trip but also the first appearance. Look up, on Mr. Ruth's salary record. This was believed to be so when Mr. Ruth was drawing $70,000 a year during the last three seasons and there is no great reason for a change now. Mr. Ruth is longer as the antelope for getting out there but to tell him, furnish plenty of baseball every day until further notice and good bid, hell, a ways draw them in and keep them coming.

All in all, I should say that the Yankees might do worse than meet him half way. If I were in their place, as a matter of fact, I'd stand on the other step in order to make sure that he didn't go around tying strong doors and so fall down an elevator shaft or something.

Senator Scores Critics Of Law Commission

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(INS)— Senator Wagner, who is spending the Christmas holidays at his home here, took occasion in a statement made public today to rebuke critics of President Hoover's law enforcement commission. One of the members of the law enforcement commission called attention to the governmentlessness in the enforcement of the Volstead Act," Wagner said.

"He had the temerity to call the invasion and search of private dwellings without warrants one of the outstanding evils of present day enforcement methods. At once demands were made for his removal. I am quite certain that the President will pay heed to this demand but I am particularly concerned that the commission should not be diverted from its laudable purpose of making governmental lawlessness one of the primary objects of its investigation."

TUFFY GRIFFITHS AND RISKO WILL BATTLE TONIGHT

Fighters Will Scrap For Chance To Meet Sharkey At Miami

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(INS)—With visions of Biscayne Bay's palm-fringed shore dancing before their eyes, Gerald Ambrose "Tuffy" Griffiths of Sioux City, Iowa, and plain Johnny Risko of Cleveland, come together in a scheduled 10 round bout tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The winner, so the rival managers claim, has been promised a shot at Jack Sharkey at Miami on Feb. 27. Whether this is true or not it is a certainty that tonight's winner will raise a tremendous squeak if not chosen to meet the American heavyweight champion in the big winter fight.

The chances of Risko or Griffiths to get the Miami date seem slim at this time, due to the high esteem in which officials hold Victoria Campolo, men mountain of the Argentine. To gain serious attention the boys must win in impressive fashion.

Griffiths is quoted as 8 to 5 favorite in wagering circles to trim the rubbery bakers boy.

"Tuffy" has been winning steadily as a heavyweight since his disastrous debut here as a light-heavyweight some time ago when he was knocked silly in the second round by James J. Braddock. Since that catastrophe he has won 13 fights, 10 via knockouts.

Risko, dubbed the "spalier" as a result of his habit of beating rivals when they were within striking distance ofistic prizes, has often been consigned to the "has-beens." When he left the ring after being butchered by Max Schmeling, few expected him to again climb to the top flight, but in his come-back he has defeated such worthies as Von Preitl, Moloney and Schauf.

Yacht Honeymoon Is Taken By Helen Wills And Husband

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 27.—(INS)—After spending Christmas Eve and part of Christmas at Hollywood, Frederick S. Moody, Jr., and his bride, the former Helen Wills today were cruising in the honeymoon yacht Galatea. Eluding a small army of photographers, the newlyweds sailed aboard the yacht at San Pedro yesterday and a few minutes later were headed down stream. They planned to stop at Catalina Island and then continue their cruise either up or down the coast. It was learned that they have made no definite plans, but will sail to several points along the coast which beckon lonely.

The fact that Captain R. But it is as if that most despised in capital letters, for the Cardinal gridiron have been the most uncertain performers in the past year, losing to Agreat heights or sinking to the lowest depths.

How long the cruise will continue is not known. When the yacht, built only for eastwest travel, started from here, it carried, in addition to Moody and his wife, the regular skipper, a cook and a deck hand. Moody himself is an experienced navigator.

Shortly after boarding the vessel, Helen and Moody appeared from below decks and waved goodbye to friends on the shore.

Fears Are Held For Occupants Of Plane

STAMBOUL, Turkey, Dec. 27—(INS)—Grief tears were felt to day for the safety of eight passengers who left here yesterday in an Italian commercial plane which later sent out an SOS and has not been heard from since. The airplane was one of the high air transports operating regularly between Italy and Turkey.

Attempts to locate the plane since the receipt of the SOS have been futile. The radio operator of the plane gave his craft's position as in the Aegean Sea when he sent out the call for help. The Greek steamer Patras rushed to the position given but found no sign of the plane after a long search.

ROCKNE PUPILS MAY GUIDE MAROON ON GRIDIRON

SPORT BRIEFS

ATLANTA, Dec. 27.—(INS)—The all-star "Northern" and "Southern" teams of the southern conference began an intensive practice period here today for their New Year's charity game.

That will be the lineup here tomorrow afternoon when Stanford's big red team takes the field to attempt to stem the invasion of the Baycats from West Point.

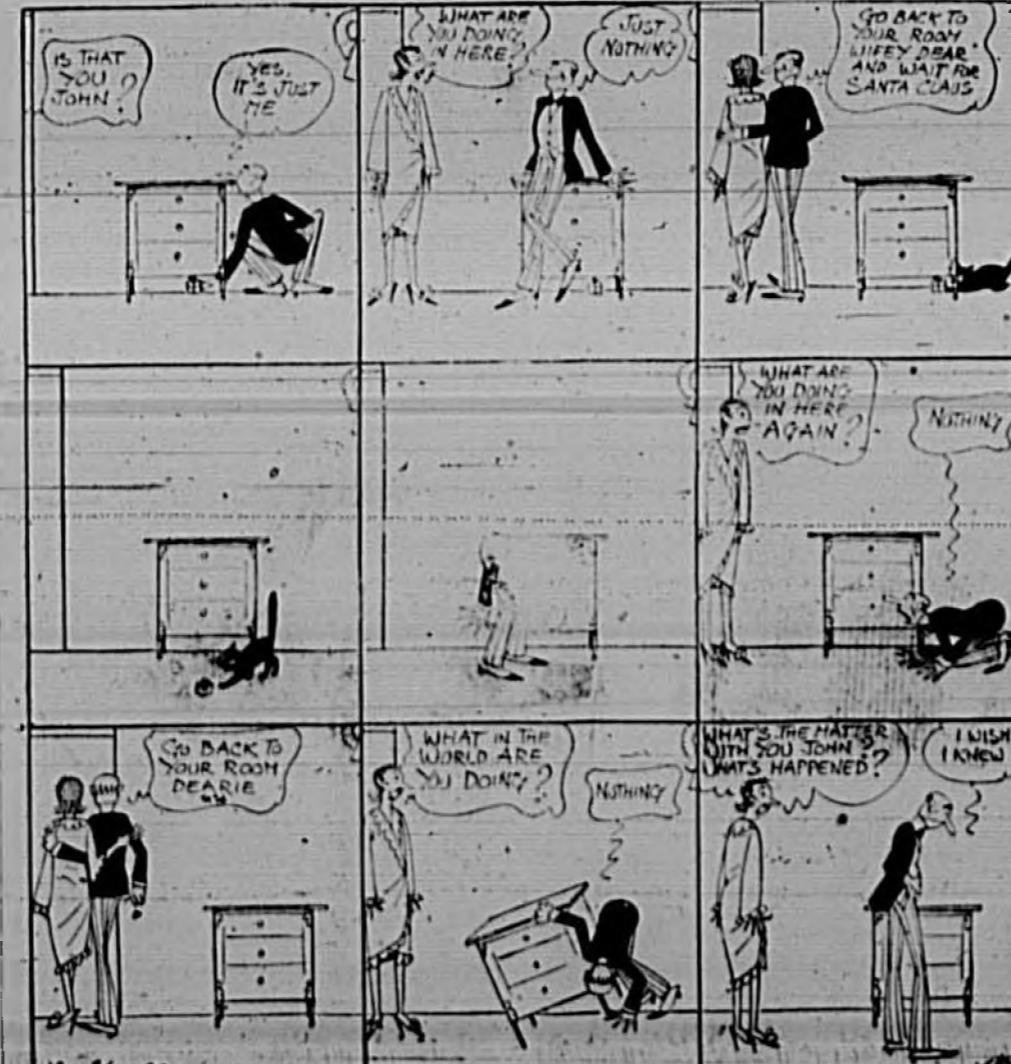

All of the psychology is in favor of the Army, who will enter the battle as the "underdogs" while the Cardinals admittedly are capable of playing better football.

Still smarting under their 26-0 whipping of a year ago, the Baycats are out for belated revenge and also to convince football fans that they have a far better team than their "in-and-out" record of the present season indicates.

The fact that Captain R. Gangle, the greatest gridiron performer ever to represent West Point will be making his farewell appearance after three successive years as All-American fullback, another factor that is certain to inspire his compatriotes to allow him to finish his career in the proudest blaze of glory.

BOXING GAME IS SLOWLY REVIVING AFTER SETBACKS

Death Of Rickard And Exit Of Dempsey Said To Be Causes Of Drop

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The many art of managing countenance sustained a series of major shocks during 1929 from which even now it is recovering but slowly, if at all. Tex Rickard died almost at the hour when the old man meets the new and the so-called Big Business of boxing apparently followed him to his grave.

However, perhaps even Rickard's genius would have been unequal to the matter of breathing life into an enterprise that was destined for, a lingering death by malnutrition.

Dempsey, the man who had brought $10,000,000 worth of receipts to boxing, remained in retirement, except for his rather indifferent attempts to emulate Rickard. This meant that the greatest personality in all the history of boxing was a box office suicide, so to speak.

Tunney, too, had withdrawn from the costly contracts of life in order to go to Europe and commune with nature and George Bernard Shaw, although I am not certain that I am listing these communists in their proper order. George Bernard Shaw undoubtedly is more important than Tunney.

Anyhow, there was nobody big enough to give being its accustomed air of consequence and so it became highly inconsequential, if not altogether immaterial. As a matter of fact, it hasn't known a more indifferent year during the modern generation.

Since Tunney's retirement late in 1928, there has been no occupant of the heavyweight throne. The light heavyweight, the bantamweight and flyweight chairs are similarly tenanted at the moment, while some of those who hold titles, in the other classes, are far from impressive. Undoubtedly, the many art is plumb the depths.

It started with something of a flourish, at that. Rickard had made the Sharkey-Striking fight at Miami before his fatal illness and they carried the thing through as a posthumous gesture, hardly expected to lose less than their nightshirts. Instead, it grossed $400,000 and everybody made money. The answer may have been sympathy for the departed Rickard. It may have been the long-standing demand of Dempsey's personality, John having jumped in to help put the fight over. It may have been that Florida is a good spot in which to hold a winter prize fight.

Whatever it was, the Sharkey-Striking fight produced the biggest gate of a little year, while Sharkey winning the decision of points at the end of ten rounds. He fought only once more and then merely to slap Tommy Loughnhan to sleep in less than three rounds. This was Loughnhan's first real fight as a heavyweight and, as far as it has been his last.

For a time, a Tentonic gentleman by the name of Max Schmeling looked as though he intended to revive the patient and make him a better and bigger life. Here Schmeling knocked over a few knockers and then hung on the "Do Not Disturb" sign on Johnny Hick, which was par for the course. It was the first and only knockout in John's professional life. Later Schmeling did a job of exterior decorating on the facade of one Paulino Urdaneta, and, after that, he had the boys following him around.

He proved too hard to follow. He got all tied up in a lot of legal snagsknot with a German manager he didn't want and when the boxing committee ordered him to abide by one of the latter's contracts, calling for a fight with Phil Scott, the boxer was on the situation permanently. Schmeling was thrown overboard for the Sharkey match, Loughnhan substituted and the Teuton took his place for home, there to remain.

Scott then went out and beat Victoria Campolo, of the Argentine, and only a few weeks ago, won a foul from Otto Von Baum in to the permanent acquaintance of everybody.

Before entering the heavyweight field, Loughnhan successfully defended his light heavyweight title against Mickey Walker and James J. Braddock, after which he resigned from the championship. Walker, the middleweight champion, went to bat in a semi-title battle with Ace Hudkins in Los Angeles and beat him to a gory ruin. Joe Dundee finally was separated from the welterweight championship when he fouled Jackie Fields in Detroit. Sammy Mandell didn't go to the post with his lightweight title but was badly beaten in an over-weight match with Jimmy McLarnen. "Hal" Battalino became featherweight champion by winning from Andre Routis up in Connecticut and the bantamweight and flyweight divisions remained static, although Eugene Hunt, a Frenchman, came over here and beat Izzy Schwartz, American champion, badly enough to indicate that the flyweight championship might fall into less likely hands.

ment regimes "is not doing as well" in some parts of the country as the Coolidge organization. Action indicating Mr. Hoover is taking personal charge of prohibition enforcement situation.

Causing for real enforcement or repeal of the prohibition act, Senator Norris, a veteran dry, said: "There never has been a real and honest effort to enforce prohibition. I see some indications of improvement since Mr. Hoover became president, but there has hardly been time to tell the result."

"Responsibility for enforcement, naturally, rests with the President who heads the executive department. If he says to every officer, 'go out and get them,' there will be results."

"I have put a lot of evidence in the record which I think demonstrates enforcement efforts have been augmented through political influence. That has not occurred in all territories. I have advocated, and do so now, that protection officers ought not to be appointed as a result of political standing."

"The placing of some officers under civil service in the best system we have, but it is far from perfect. The charge has been made in Penny vanity that big bootleggers went free after they were indicted. This is contained in testimony of Mrs. Willard herself.

"I should like to see real enforcement for a period, say, of 10 years, and then if it is not a success, I'm willing to take the next best thing to prohibition."

"If the attorney-general has a program of reorganization, I'll give it my sympathetic consideration as soon as it comes to the judiciary committee."

Senator Borah remained silent after his White House visit. He has received many telegrams from drys throughout the country supporting his stand, he said, and expects to use them when the entire situation is debated in the Senate.

MURKIN—Dec. 27.—(INS)—The next 48 hours may see the Soviet rescue expedition, which has been organized to search for Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, American fliers who disappeared off the northeastern Siberian coast more than six weeks ago, well underway.

Several planes will scour the Bering Straits under the command of Semyon Shershakov, who commanded the recent Moscow-New York flight of the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets.

Boris Chukinskai, Russian pilot who was the hero of the rescue of the Blériot dirigible Italia's crew by the ice-cutter Krasslin, may be one of the pilots in the rescue expedition.

George King, veteran Alaskan pilot and close friend of Eielson, not connected with the Juillet Company of Germany, has offered his services to the Soviet government.

Soviet officials have asked all residents of the northeastern coast of Siberia to join in the search for the missing aviators. They have also offered a reward of $1,000 for any information regarding the whereabouts of the aviators or their plane since Nov. 9.

Lindberghs Take Off On Long Air Journey

VALLY STREAM, N. Y., Dec. 27—(INS)—Delayed by unfavorable weather conditions for several hours, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh finally hopped off into the fog today on the first leg of a new Lindbergh trans-continental air tour at 10:30 A.M.

The famous troupe of the air will stop first at Columbus, Ohio. An technical adviser of the Trans-continental Air Transport, Colonel will bring the line to the coast. The survey will take him approximately two weeks.

Dr. James H. Kimball, weather expert, told International News Service that Lindbergh would find the weather overcast from here to the Pennsylvania mountains. It is partly cloudy from there to the Mississippi.

"Now that you're married-

"YOU'LL have to give some thought to a household budget but don't worry, my dear, your income can be made to meet your bills and leave a bit each month for emergencies. I had the same unhappy feeling when I discovered that my expenses could not be covered by that first monthly pay check of Dad's."

"It may surprise you, as it did me, to learn that it was the nickels and dimes I inadvertently wasted that put the large figure in the wrong column of my little account book. When I made this startling discovery, however, I began to have more respect for those nickels and dimes."

"I began watching the newspaper ads every day for unusual values. Three bars of ten cent soap for a quarter began to mean a nickel on the right side of my ledger . . . I even coined that household slogan you've heard me repeat so often 'Respect the nickel and read the ads'."

*"Teach your dollars to have more
cents"*
