Nixon Refusal Fuels Impeach Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Senate Democrat and the president of the American Bar Association have expressed dismay over President Nixon's refusal to comply with subpoenas for Watergate evidence. Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., the Democratic whip, said Sunday that Nixon's rejection of subpoenas has bolstered the prospect that the Senate will convict him in an impeachment trial. And Chesterfield Smith, president of the ABA, said, "I have been shocked and annoyed that the White House doesn't clearly state that, 'Yes, I am subject to the rule of law. I am not a king. I am only a man elected by the people and when the Supreme Court decides that I have to do something certainly I am going to do it.'"

Smith, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he would prefer if Nixon could find a way to "withdraw from public power" until Watergate-related charges against him are disposed of. But, Smith said, he does not know of any way the President could do this. He said he is not certain that the 25th Amendment could be used for this purpose, as has been suggested by some lawyers. Byrd, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," said, "I think what we're seeing here is defiance up and down the line. We've seen defiance of the House committee as it carries out a constitutional duty. We've seen defiance of the special prosecutor who was appointed by the administration, and who was given complete independence," he continued. Nixon has refused to turn over tapes and documents subpoenaed for the Watergate cover-up trial. The White House also says it will not produce notes and memos of former presidential aides subpoenaed for the Ellsberg break-in trial. In addition, Nixon has declined to give the House Judiciary Committee evidence subpoenaed for its impeachment inquiry. Meanwhile, Vice President Gerald R. Ford made clear that he plans to continue urging the President to cooperate with the Judiciary Committee despite Nixon's stand against supplying additional evidence. He said his differences with Nixon on the President's refusal to supply any more Watergate evidence to the impeachment inquiry were laid out "quite candidly" when they met last week. In other Watergate-related developments: —California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, said there's only one chance in 10,000 that he will be found guilty of perjury. "If there is any justice left in this country, I will be cleared of all these charges," he said of his threecount indictment. —A Gallup Poll showed that the number of Americans who believe Nixon was involved in the Watergate bugging or cover-up has increased slightly since the release of the edited White House transcripts on April 30. Seventy-three per cent of those interviewed said they believe the President was involved to some extent.

President: U.S. Must Be Strong

President: U.S. Must Be Strong

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon marked Memorial Day today with an appeal for Americans to live up to their responsibilities for world leadership in a day when atomic weapons are spreading. "America's isolation can lead only to the world's destruction," the President said in a radio speech from the bayside study of the Florida White House. He called on Congress to stand firm "on the issue of a strong America." The President said that "our hopes for a lasting peace are brighter than at any time in living memory because we now have a structure of peace and we are carefully working to strengthen it." He said that "a momentum has been created that makes it easier for the leaders of the major powers to settle differences peacefully, in negotiation instead of in armed confrontation." Nixon referred to the end of "America's longest and most difficult war" in Vietnam and said the United States has begun in the Middle East "the long hard work of reconciliation—of bringing people together at the peace table who formerly met only on the battlefield." He cited the normalizing of relations with Communist China and a new relationship with the leaders of the Soviet Union after more than a quarter century of confrontation.

The notes sounded by Sanford Naval Academy Color Guard bugler David Briola (r) will be echoed across the nation today in similar Memorial Day ceremonies. Swordsman Armando Gonzales snaps to attention and Julio Amadeo (center) salutes smartly as Mark Rysdyk and David Stolle raise the colors in front of the Naval Academy buildings. Also in Sanford, a joint Memorial Day service was conducted by all local veteran organizations at 10:30 in the Veterans Memorial Park on the lakefront.

Investigator Nixes King Conspiracy Plot

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI agent who directed the investigation into the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says the facts of the case don't lend themselves to "grandiose theories" of conspiracy. "It was a relatively simple thing," Robert G. Jensen said in a telephone interview. "A man was killed. A man was caught. In many ways, it was like any other case, but the stature of King gave it a lot more publicity than the usual case." Robert I. Livingston, attorney for James Earl Ray, said Friday that he has been in periodic contact since March with a representative of the "men who actually carried out the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr." Ray, the only person charged in the case, pleaded guilty to murdering King, and now is serving a 99-year prison sentence. "If he (Livingston) has something, more power to him," said Jensen, now head of security for an international motel firm. He said he had not read Livingston's claims because there was "no particular reason for me to read them." "The facts that were developed were made public," Jensen said. "Many people don't want to accept what the facts are because in many instances they don't lend themselves to grandiose theories. But we had to go with what facts we had. Theories and suppositions don't hold up in court." Alleging a conspiracy behind the April 4, 1968, shooting of King in Memphis, Livingston said the intermediary he talked to is seeking immunity from prosecution for the slaying conspirators. He said they want to testify "in revenge" against "four Southern gentlemen" who allegedly hired them, not Ray, to kill King. Livingston said eight men were involved in King's death, with Ray the "patsy." He said Ray was "... just a glibly typed sort of fellow, easily influenced and led around. He had never been a high-powered criminal all his life, just penny ante stuff ..."

At Last, A 'Week' For Finks!

FINK, Tex. (AP) — "Oscar's getting pretty dead," said Mrs. Oscar L. Fink. "But that won't keep him away from Fink on National Fink Day. He's been busy making Fink fiddles, Fink wags and Fink walking cases." National Fink Day comes on Thursday, June 20, during National Fink Week, of course. And Oscar Fink, this town's 87-year-old poet laureate, is getting his annual Fink poem ready, despite reports he's been ailing recently. Patricia Albright, mayor of the tiny town near Lake Texoma, says this year's Fink Week celebration will feature a Fink Folk Festival with everything from an old-fashioned quilting bee to exhibits of buttons and barbed wire. Most of the action during Fink Week, which starts June 17, will happen on national Fink Day. Anyone can attend, but the special guests are named Fink, Finks, Finkes, Fingues, Funks or Phingues. "It's also the day when Fink holds 'our usual free barbecue blast,'" said Mrs. Albright. "If the crowd gets much bigger than last year," says William Albright, the mayor's husband, "I may have to go steal a cow to feed all the folks." Mayor Albright says: "Fink really is growing. We have two stores and service stations, a doctor's office, city hall, Fink museum and we have a rodeo area under construction that is due to open with its inaugural rodeo on National Fink Week."

Remember that recent front-page color photo of the Bahia motorcycle unit? Caused quite a stir when it first appeared across the top six columns of this paper. Well, they're continuing to make their presence known by virtue of their riding ability. While competing against six other Temples in Jacksonville on May 18, they copied first place honors and will now concentrate on similar national prestige. Congratulations to riders Charles Carrick, John Clark, Robert McElwee, Walter Oiler, Earle Reynolds, O. C. Smith, Henry D. Stevens, Ken Truschel, Tony J. Vaughan, Charles Wilson, Roy E. County, Mover To Meet On Tree-Cutting Incident

The cow may be gone, but Seminole County Commissioners are preparing to nail the barn door shut Tuesday, hoping to clear up the "misunderstanding" which allowed a Winter Park home mover to chop down at least 42 trees in defiance of an earlier commission warning. The board is scheduled to meet with George Saunders, and school board officials who hired his Building Movers Inc., firm last year to move the Old Altamonte Elementary School buildings to a new site in The Woodlands, off E.E. Williamson Road. Saunders, when faced last week by the actions of his employees, at first denied more than two trees had been destroyed, but later claimed a "misunderstanding" over his powers in the $475,000 project. He was cited by Commissioner Dick Williams and County Atty. Howard Marsee with axing at least 42 trees valued at more than $40,000. The commission lifted Saunders' moving permits pending Tuesday's meeting, and authorized possible civil and criminal penalties for the alleged violation of the county's arbor ordinance, which requires permits to cut trees. According to Marsee, each of the trees cut has been carefully documented by the county, and, technically, each could constitute a misdemeanor offense punishable by a $500 fine and 60 days in jail. School board auxiliary services director Hugh Carlton discovered Saunders' actions, and his claim of a "blank check" to cut trees, but warned commissioners any delay of the moving project will delay the opening of the school. The school project ran into another potential roadblock last week in the form of warnings the old buildings may violate county building codes. Members of the Woodlands Civic Association, led by structural engineer Ola Bang, presented evidence that inadequate foundation and concrete supports have been supplied. The residents said they feared the 15-year-old slab formation may actually crumble and injure students. In response, school board chairman Davis Sims said "I think the main thing here is ignorance on the board's part. George Saunders—the mover—is the only man who can move the school, and he was the only one who knew anything about it..." Sims vowed to personally inspect buildings in any future moving project, and said school board architect Elogan Kelley will closely supervise Saunders from now on.

West Point Ponders Women

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army says it is preparing for the remote possibility that women may be admitted to West Point or the other military academies. Officials are evaluating the results of a special endurance and physical fitness test given more than 1,000 female soldiers. Although the test was requested by officials at West Point, the Army insists it has no plans to begin admitting women to the Academy. In response to questions, the Army acknowledged that in March and April, a group of 1,062 basic trainees at Fort McClellan, Ala., went through four separate drills. Each young woman performed the bent arm hang (like a pull-up), bet leg sit-ups, a standing broad jump and 600-yard run and walk. In a statement, the Army said, "The reason for the request (that the test be conducted) is that West Point has no data base on women's physical fitness standards."

75% Believe Nixon's Involved

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Nearly three-fourths of the country believes President Nixon was involved in the Watergate bugging or cover-up, according to the latest Gallup Poll. However, the percentage has increased only slightly in three months. Seventy-three per cent of the 1,543 adults interviewed May 16-17 said they believed the President had been involved to some extent in the scandal. The survey was taken after the White House transcripts were released April 30. Similar surveys showed 71 per cent held the same opinion last February and 67 per cent held it last June. In all three surveys, those polled were asked to select one of the following statements to match their views: —Nixon planned the Watergate bugging from the beginning; —Nixon did not plan the bugging but knew about it after it took place; —Nixon found out about the bugging after it occurred, but tried to cover it up; —Nixon had no knowledge of the bugging and spoke up as soon as he learned about it.

Airlines Strike Averted

NEW YORK (AP)—A strike by 17,000 American Airlines employees has been averted by a last-minute tentative agreement on labor contracts. The settlement came Sunday night, a few hours before a threatened midnight strike deadline. The deadline marked the expiration of a federally mandated 30-day cooling-off period. Details of the settlement—covering separate contracts—were withheld pending a ratification vote by union members. Current salaries were not disclosed either. The agreement covers flight attendants, stewards and stewardesses, maintenance personnel, dispatchers, meteorologists and communications employees. American has 35,000 employees and 227 aircraft operating 960 daily flights on United States, Canadian, Mexican and Caribbean routes.

Feminists Elect President

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A Chicago attorney and author has been elected president of the National Organization for Women—NOW. Karen DeCrow was elected leader of the feminist group on the third ballot Sunday night. Ms. DeCrow received 512 votes to defeat Mary Jean Collins-Robson of Chicago, a fulltime NOW volunteer, who received 448. Also receiving votes were Amy Lang of East Hills, Pa., and Marcelline Donaldson of Wayzata, Minn. The three ballots were necessary because no candidate had a clear majority after the first two. The organization, which claims about 40,000 members, is holding its annual conference here.

Ford's Position 'Firm

DANBURY, Conn. (AP)—Vice President Gerald R. Ford has made clear he plans to stand by his disapproval of President Nixon's decision to bar further Watergate evidence to the House impeachment inquiry. Ford told a news conference here Sunday night that his differences were laid out "quite candidly" at his meeting with Nixon last Thursday and that "I haven't backed off from it since." He refused to say what Nixon's reaction to his position was but said, "there was an understanding that my position had been, is and will be what it has been in the past. Only the President, at this point, through his attorneys, has taken a different view," said Ford, who reportedly has urged the White House to cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee as much as possible.

Hey Kids, The 'Teach' Is In Orbit

EDITOR'S NOTE — Education and health services in remote areas of America will get a boost this summer from a new eye in the sky — the world's first education satellite. ATB-8 will be an orbiting, marvel-beaming program to special television receivers in rough mountain terrain. CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The world's first "education satellite" will begin next month beaming televised health and training programs to doctors and school teachers in rural areas of Appalachia, the Rocky Mountain states and Alaska. This orbiting marvel, scheduled for launching from Cape Canaveral May 30, is called ATB-8, for Applications Technology Satellite. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration describes it as "the most versatile, powerful and unique communications spacecraft ever developed." It is the first satellite ever built to beam signals directly to individual television sets equipped with special receivers. Communications satellites now in operation relay to ground stations which cost millions to build. The signals are fed over land lines or microwave.

SLA Member's Father Ends Week-Long Vigil

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The father of a San Francisco Liberation Army member has given up a week-long vigil to contact his daughter, leaving for home after saying he considered her and her comrades criminals. Frederick Schwartz left for his suburban Chicago home Sunday after fruitless, tearful pleas to his daughter, Emily Harris, her husband Bill and Patricia Hearst to surrender. Schwartz said an intermediary claimed to have made direct contact with the three, but said two meetings arranged for him with his daughter failed to materialize. Schwartz, a consulting engineer, had said publicly he would walk "hand in hand" to a safe surrender with the Harris and Miss Hearst if they would only accept it. However, he told an airport now in operation relay to ground stations which cost millions to build. The signals are fed over land lines or microwave. Four voice channels will accompany each color television signal, so a viewer will be able to select between English, Spanish or one of several Indian or Eskimo dialects. Professionals and volunteers — counselors, doctors, teachers and others — will assess the programs and determine if a satellite system is a feasible way to get educational information to and from people in isolated areas. In the Appalachian states — Alabama, Maryland, New York, Tennessee and Virginia — the emphasis will be on teacher education. Elementary school teachers in 15 communities, three in each state, will be offered two graduate level, three-credit courses. Starting in September, about 4,900 junior and senior high students in 56 rural Rocky Mountain communities will receive programs in career education via the satellite. The programs will broadcast each school day from Denver to the schools for 35 minutes. The communities are in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. In Alaska, the thrust will be on developing better ways for that state's far-flung communities to communicate with one another. Alaska has 265 communities scattered over 571,065 square miles, and two-thirds of them can't be reached by railroad or highway. Isolation and many languages and dialects make communication and concerted action among people difficult. Each week, the satellite will broadcast to 18 villages a series called "Alaska Native Village." It will feature such concerns as land claims, pipeline impact and Alaskan culture and art. There also will be instructional programs in language development, health education, early childhood education and teacher training. Alaska will be the site of major health information experiments.

Columnist Alsop, 60, Dies Of Pneumonia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Columnist and author Stewart Alsop, 60, died Sunday of pneumonia, a spokesman for his publisher said. Mr. Alsop, who wrote the syndicated column "A Day in the Life," died at his home in Washington. He had been ill for several days. He was a member of the National Press Club and the American Academy of Arts and Letters. He was the son of a prominent politician and served in the U.S. Army during World War II. He was known for his sharp wit and his ability to write about current events in a clear and concise manner. He was a frequent contributor to major newspapers and magazines. His death was a significant loss to the literary and journalistic community.

Senate Foreign Aid Likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—"My fellow Americans, will you give us one more minute?" Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said in a speech before the Senate on Sunday. He was speaking in support of a bill to provide $1.5 billion in foreign aid. He argued that the aid was necessary to help developing countries and to promote world peace. He said that the aid would be used for a variety of purposes, including education, health care, and economic development. He urged the Senate to pass the bill as quickly as possible. The bill has already passed the House of Representatives.

People In The News

President Nixon — President Nixon should give the House Judiciary Committee everything it needs in its impeachment investigation, Henry Ford II says. Ford, who gave $50,000 to the 1972 Nixon campaign, said he felt let down by Nixon's refusal to turn over White House tapes to the committee. "I don't think he has any other basis on which to clear himself, if it is going to threaten our marriage because I'm seen with other people."

Marion Javits — NEW YORK (AP)—Marion Javits, wife of Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., says her husband doesn't mind her dating in New York while he is attending to his own business in Washington. "It is in a column that I'm with so-and-so. It has never meant that one has to be horizontal immediately—or that it is going to threaten our marriage because I'm seen with other people."

Ella Fitzgerald — NEW YORK (AP)—"I remember his music and his beat," said Ella Fitzgerald after paying her respects to the late Duke Ellington Sunday. Miss Fitzgerald joined thousands of mourners who visited the funeral home. She was one of 110,000 Japanese-Americans deemed security risks and evacuated from the West Coast in World War II after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Washington. In Key Biscayne, President Nixon said Alsop's "hard, valiant struggle against cancer has ended at last, but his life and his writings will remain a standard for his profession for years to come." A native of Avon, Conn., who traced his lineage back almost to the Mayflower, Alsop went to Groton School and Yale University, graduating with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He first was as an editor for Doubleday & Doran Co., now Doubleday & Co., a New York book publishing firm. In World War II he served as a platoon commander in the British Army, rising to captain. Transferring to the U.S. Army's Office of Strategic Services.

Writing about his fight with the disease last year in his book, "A Day of Execution: A Sort of Memoir," Alsop said, "A dying man needs to die, as a sleepy man needs to sleep, and there comes a time when it is wrong, as well as useless, to resist." Despite the illness, Alsop continued writing until his death a weekly column in Newsweek magazine. In a March column, he told his readers he had made a "decision not to die" during a hallucination in the hospital, and said, "I hope to put back some (but not all) of the 43 pounds I have lost, to get a bit of rest, to get rid of the tail end of that second infection, and then again to examine in this space the more mundane mysteries of political life."

They also visited the camp, which since has become the site of an elementary school and an airport. The 1,200 barracks that held up to 22,000 people between 1942 and 1946 virtually have disappeared. # Renters' Tax Help Measure Defeated

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The three Florida bills that would have provided that any time a person paid more than 5 per cent of his income for property taxes, he would get a rebate from the state. The plan was based on an estimate that 11 per cent of apartment owners' rent would go toward property taxes. Another proposal that appealed to renters and homeowners was his plan to exempt the first $30 of electric bills from the state utility tax. It would have resulted in a $66-a-year saving for the average homeowner. To finance it, Ogden proposed cutting the $11 million rollback on school taxes. "If we are going to spend $11 million on giving tax relief then we should spread it around as much as possible," he said, adding that Gov. Reubin Askew's proposed millage rollback would benefit property owners but give the apartment dweller nothing. But Ogden's measure was defeated on the House floor, as was his proposal to extend the homestead exemption to apartment dwellers. That measure would have given an exemption for family occupied in a bill was too complicated, but Ogden said it was being done with condominiums. The proposal that gained the most support would have helped not only renters but

Game Wardens Flirt With Death

Editor's Note: In recent months, two Florida game wardens have died chasing poachers and another was shot and wounded. Associated Press Writer Cindy Rose accompanied a wildlife officer on patrol in the Everglades to learn the problems and fears facing the men every day. THE EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP)—It's sundown. Jim Strunk is in his pickup truck, lights out, driving along narrow, bumpy levee roads on the lookout for poachers. His job as a wildlife officer pits him against wits, sometimes braving against brown, in adventures reminiscent of the days of bounty hunters. The setting is the swamp, eerie in the blackness with fireflies catching movements of otter and raccoons, frogs singing in husky voices and the lights of Andytown 18 miles away. The beauty belies danger and Strunk knows every poacher he spies is a hunter with a gun. "It's hazardous work," Strunk says. "We get into a lot of hassles. People are more likely to use those guns now than they ever have before." Earle Fry, director of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, says that in the past three years there has been a rash of violence in and about a month and a half. Deer is tasty game but often chopped up and disguised with hamburger for illegal sale. Alligator poaching has declined since strict federal laws in 1972 which forbid interstate transport of the skins. The gators taken now are usually caught for the edible tails. Wildlife officers also get involved in drug busts and other poaching. "They do it to try to say they've changed their ways and are now strictly for conservation," Strunk says. "But we know them and we know better." "One time we were having trouble with shipping illegal fish to Miami I caught a driver and led him to believe someone had tipped me off on him," he added. ### Editorial Presidency Bigger Than Officeholder

We understand Vice President Ford's worry that President Nixon has been so "weakened" by Watergate that he might be in a poor position to negotiate with the Russians on arms limitation in June, but believe he may be overlooking an essential fact. It is that the American presidency, on the stage of world affairs, is an office bigger than the man who occupies it — any man.

Impachment sentiment in Congress — and in the country at large — has been stimulated by Mr. Nixon's release of transcripts of 49 Watergate-related conversations in his office. However, the impeachment issue now before the House Judiciary Committee has nothing to do with issues between the United States and any foreign government.

The Soviet Union, for its position in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks on the domestic political situation of the U.S. President. Its position will be based on a hard assessment of the basic strengths of our country and on the current capabilities of U.S. strategic forces. Nothing in the Watergate revelations can change the facts about American nuclear deterrent capabilities. This is what the Soviets want to talk about, and which the Moscow summit agenda could be, of course, that Soviet negotiators might adopt a stronger stance, in the hope that Mr. Nixon's agreements

Fast-Buck Boys Eye Birthday

There is growing concern that the nation's forthcoming 200th anniversary celebration will be tarnished as cheapened by commercialization.

Over the next couple years, novelty manufacturers are expected to flood the market with Bicentennial T-shirts, ash trays, beer mugs and similar ephemeral products with patriotic themes.

Certainly, there should be a place in the Bicentennial sun for such things. But there should also be a place for objects of real historic value conforming to the highest standards of artistry and workmanship which Americans will want to pass on to their descendants.

To insure that there are, a group of distinguished Americans from several fields of arts and letters has formed the U.S. Bicentennial Society, a private, nongovernmental organization in Richmond, Va. Its chairman is Virginia Dabney, noted historian, Pulitzer prize-winner and former editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The society was formed, says Dabney, in response to the government's policy of encouraging participation in the Bicentennial observance by private citizens and organizations, as well as by local and state governments.

It will mark the Bicentennial by commissioning such activities as a symphony, collectors' publications and lasting works of art related to the history of the United States.

For example, a limited edition of 1,000 copies of George Washington's inaugural sword, modeled after the original in a Merristown, N.J., museum, is being offered at $925 apiece. Reproductions of six Winslow Homer paintings on fine china plates sell for $625.

At those prices, most Americans, alas, will probably have to settle for an ash tray. But it is encouraging to know that the field will not be left

Share The Wealth, World, Or Face Global Conflict

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Last winter's oil crisis was only the tip of a huge iceberg of a problem with which mankind must soon begin coping in some brand-new way: the allocation of the world's natural resources.

Until technology made the extensive transportation of goods possible, a nation's prosperity was largely determined by the luck of the draw. If it happened to be located in a region of especially fertile soil, or near some body of water full of fish practically waiting to jump into boats, it was prosperous — a "land of milk and honey." If not, the grand old custom of taking over the territory of luckier neighbors was always available.

Only when the Romans finally brought the whole Mediterranean world under their single sway, and organized trade within it for something approaching mutual benefit with a fat commission going to Rome, to be sure, did that area settle down temporarily and enjoy the famed Pax Romana.

It was the nations of Europe, a millennium later, that learned how to make really long sailing voyages, and thereby altered the formula. After a brief fling at mere trade, these talented Europeans began founding colonies and soon developed them into huge colonial empires. By the 18th century Britain, France, Spain, Portugal and the Netherlands were just one of their characteristics. Another is the traditionally close, almost familylike relations between people, especially in the smaller cities and towns. There is almost no bonding system at all but rather a greater reliance on mutual trust.

Another Burden For Men

By DON OAKLEY
The Herald Services

As if they didn't have enough to answer for already, male chauvinists are responsible for something else—the fact that female comics have to play the role of ugly ducklings in order to get laughs.

So claims one woman who has made a study of the situation. The leading comedienne "base much of their material on the premise that they are unattractive women, although in fact none of them is ugly," writes author Ann Nietzke in Human Behavior magazine.

By contrast, male comics do not have to be concerned about their appearance, she says. They can go on and on about how ugly their wives or girlfriends are, just as if they themselves were handsome.

When and if "women become liberated from matrimony as a central goal of their existence," says Ms. Nietzke, much of the material of the comedienne will become irrelevant.

It is probably true, and the funny girls had best make hay while the male chauvinist sun shines. Just about everyone today agrees that the goal of the feminist liberation movement should be to free women from cultural stereotypes and give them the right to choose a career or not pursue a career, to have children or not have children—and not have to apologize to it.

One thing the critics of male domination tend to overlook, however, is the fact that men are even more biologically locked into their traditional roles than are women.

Sure, they can choose to be truck drivers or business executives and maybe, in the future, they can even choose to be "househusbands." But until such time as medical science enables males to bear children, there will never be such a thing as true equality of choice between the sexes.

Until that day arrives, laughing at "ugly comedienne" may be one of the few remaining prerogatives men will have.

The good people of at least one typical American city waste "at a bare minimum over $80 million of beef a year and as much as $1 million in mismanaged resources," says University of Arizona anthropologist William H. Rathje. He knows where he speaks because he and his students, in a project that has to be considered above and beyond the call of academic duty, have been poking about in people's garbage in the city of Tucson, sorting through cans of ally lettuce, piles of putrid percolated and even finding whole steaks.

Jack Anderson Korean War May Erupt Again Soon

Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—The world's two most dangerous and irresponsible leaders, in the opinion of worried intelligence experts, are North Korea's Kim Il Sung and Libya's Muammar el-Qaddafi.

The isolated Kim, according to intelligence reports, is itching to resume the Korean War, which ended 22 years ago about where it started along the 38th parallel.

He is depicted in intelligence reports as a leader, out of touch with the world, who would plunge Korea into another war, against the advice of his Soviet and Chinese mentors. He is quite capable of plotting a wild, daredevil talk, such as a paratrooper attack on Seoul.

Apparently, Kim began unification talks with South Korea in the mistaken belief that North Korea was economically superior and would be able to dominate a peaceful, unified Korea. He believed his own propaganda, apparently, that the South was suffering under oppression and its people were starving.

Originally proposed as a measure dividing milk inspection duties between the federal agencies, the bill has been amended to give agricultural sole control.

The workmen's compensation bill, CS-HB3596, provides for the first time a formula for distributing benefits to workers who are injured on the job.

Business interests have mounted strong lobbying pressure in an attempt to kill the formula.

The House voted $80 million of the money for interstate highway rights of way and $23 million to buy endangered lands.

The Senate voted a $78 million fund for investment to pay off $50 million in endangered lands bonds and voted the rest to surplus.

Harris said he was putting off committee consideration of that question today or later.

Stolen blank tickets, validated with stolen plates bearing travel agency names and numbers, are sold in Miami at discounts of 10 to 50 per cent, "depending on how hungry the salesman is," he says.

Dear Abby Self Respect Better Than Fear

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Normal girl" who wanted to know why you replied, "Lovely" to the 16-year-old girl who was saving her virginity for her husband, I am 1-

I am a male, 55, who has been a social worker for 18 years. I don't know how mature "Normal girl" considers herself to be, but if (as she claims) all that is necessary for a beautiful and guilt-free sexual relationship between a guy and a girl is that they "love" each other, it's a wonder we are not in children whose parents were high-pressure into such a relationship.

Children, by their own immature standards, start "falling in love" very early in their lives. What keeps most young girls from going all the way is respect for the standards of their parents, teachers, and community.

DEAR CLEVELANDER: I view it of equal importance to respect for the standards of one's parents, teachers and community is respect for one's self. But according to my mail, what keeps most young girls from going all the way is fear of pregnancy, fear of V.D., and fear that the boy might tell a few dozen of his closest friends—and in that order.

DEAR ABBY: Norton's wife, who complained that Norton never opened his mouth in company, and consequently everybody thought he was unfriendly or mad, reminded me of a cousin of mine. Her husband also was a very quiet man, but it was beautiful to watch her draw him into conversation by saying, "Larry, why don't you tell the folks about the night wackman who found the cat locked in the office?"

That gave Larry a chance to talk without making him feel self-conscious. I've always admired my cousin for the consideration she showed for her quiet husband.

DEAR ABBY: The mother who labeled her son and his wife "KISSIN' COUSIN" deserves to be kissed. The world could use more wives like her, and fewer wives who "take a practice of interrupting their husbands to finish a story he's telling."

Little League Chomp Still Crusty Sparkplug

EDITOR'S NOTE: Almost 20 years have elapsed since Aug. 27, 1954, when a team from Schenectady, N.Y., defeated a team from Cohoes, Calif., 7-5, to win the world championship of Little League baseball. Martin Ralbovsky, who watched that Schenectady team play in 1954, has put the team back together again—as adults—in a book called "Destiny's Darlings." The following excerpts from "Destiny's Darlings" illuminate what 12-year-old boys and their adult managers go through en route to the pinnacle—the world championship.

By MARTIN RALBOVSKY

(Joe Loutis, the second baseman on the 1954 world championship Little League team, is now the head coach of basketball at Cohoes, N.Y., High School.)

"All right, I loved Little League. Winning that world championship in 1954 was the greatest thing that's ever happened to me. I've often wondered if coaching an undefeated basketball team would equal the thrill, but I don't think

"I just ran too much in college," Crockett said. "Heck, there'd be days when I'd run seven miles. I haven't run seven miles all year."

Crockett said he pressed up the indoor season to concentrate on his training and then ran only four races before clocking 9.0. His 9.2 Saturday came in a gun-to-wire triumph at Williams' late surge failed at the tape.

Valery Borzov of the Soviet Union ran sparingly in 1972, but easily dominated the world's sprinters and won two Olympic gold medals. Alex Woodley, Crockett's Philadelphia Pioneer coach, said Ivory is using the same approach.

"He's pointing for his races now," Woodley said. "He's not burning himself out. And he's not even at his best yet. He's not being a lot faster out of the blocks."

Sloan Denies Thompson Turning Pro

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—North Carolina State University basketball Coach Norman Sloan says published reports Al American Junior David Thompson is going to turn professional are untrue.

"David was very upset when he read the story," Sloan said Sunday.

A story in the Sunday Philadelphia Inquirer said Thompson had met with officials of the Philadelphia 76ers to discuss the possibility of signing with the National Basketball Association club.

Thompson, who led his team to the NCAA title over Marquette in March, is not eligible for Tuesday's NBA draft since he is only a junior. And he has not applied for hardship status—a move that would have made him eligible for the draft.

However, the Inquirer said Thompson met with Terence Gene Shue in Charlotte, N.C., on Friday and in Philadelphia on Saturday. The paper said the 6-foot-4 forward expressed an interest in signing a professional contract.

Shue said Sunday the 76ers apparently have failed in their efforts to sign Thompson and probably will make Providence star Varnin Burnes their first draft choice.

something. I still remember the signals he had. Isn't that amazing? To this day, I remember them.

"Mike did the thinking for me. He did the thinking for all of us; that's why I had a helluva pitching career, and that's why we won the world championship. After a while, I learned his thinking, and I could anticipate his signals. I would say to myself, 'Time for a curve, and I would look into the dugout, and sure enough, Mike would be sitting there with two fingers up. There wasn't a two-year-old little league pitcher who couldn't read Mike's mind."

"I started playing Little League when I was 10 years old. I was a pitcher and a second baseman. Mike Maletta was my manager. That was my luckiest break. Now, I was the smallest guy in the league, physically, but I had one of the best pitching records in the history of the league. You know why? It was because of Mike. He was a genius as a manager; he could analyze every kid, and he spotted their weaknesses immediately and capitalize on them.

"When I was pitching for Mike, he called every single pitch I ever threw; he called them from the dugout. Every single one. He sat in the corner of the dugout, where the other manager couldn't see him, and he gave me signals; I would look into the dugout before every pitch. You know only a pitcher who I don't want to brag or anything, okay? But I'd have to say that I was the best athlete in my age group at that time in the city, I only played a lot of sports, but I was the best in all of them. I was a winner. That goes back to playing wasn't enough; you had to win. He gave me a winner's mentality; there is such a thing as a winner's attitude. I had a reputation; I was like a gun-fighter in the Old West. You know, guys would come around challenging me in tennis or in basketball, one on one, and I had to work constantly to keep my reputation. Everybody wanted to say, 'Hey, I beat you right up to me and say, 'I'm going to beat the hell out of you.' I said, 'Okay, go ahead and try.' The kid takes a punch, and I level him. Smack in the mouth. The administration stands behind me. The parent stand behind me. I don't have any problems in that respect; none whatsoever."

"Have you ever asked a kid why he wanted to punch you? I said, 'No, come on now, a kid comes up to you and says he's going to beat the hell out of you, what're you supposed to do? Back off and say psychologist? Do that and he's got you beat; in his mind, you backed down. No, you've got to meet the challenge head on. Then it doesn't happen again."

"If they held an election at your school tomorrow, I would ask, 'To pick the most popular fellow among Joe Louis, Bob Dylan and Mick Jagger, who do you think would win?' 'I don't know who would win,' he answered. 'But I'd finish third.'"

NOT OFTEN ENOUGH

MIKE MONKS OF Orlando gets through the guard of Plant City's Steve Bearden during second round action in their fast moving amateur bout last weekend. Monks did not get through often enough as he dropped a narrow decision.

Young Billy Gast, in his first year in title models, finished fifth.

Chris Dellaro of Sanford, back after a spectacular wreck four weeks ago, had luck good against him again as his motor blew in a big ball of white smoke in the fourth turn.

Harold Sargent was running in the top 10 when he was hit in the rear, throwing him into a wild slide down the front stretch.

Lindberg Howard returned back to his winning ways in the top 10 when he was hit in the rear, throwing him into a wild slide down the front stretch.

Lamar Hutcherson won the first hobby stock feature in three restarts. Doug Dill took the second heat. Scott Cordele, last week's feature winner, led the front wall at full speed, eliminating him for the night.

Church League

Church of the Nazarene came up with 16 hits to pace a 14-11 win over First Baptist in a game of two strong finishes.

Don Bevery tripled and had two singles with Otto Thomas doubling and singling to pace the winners.

Ben Austin had four singles while Bob LaFitz had three and Vic Richburg came up with a pair of base runs for the winners.

Steve Capuron homered and had three singles to pace the winning Nazarene team.

Jim Willy's double was the only extra base hit for the Stromberg crew. Willie Cummings, Joe Danyluk and Paul Watson added two hits for the winners.

Prosser jumped out to a 5-1 lead after three innings but were tied when Reppie scored four in the bottom of the fourth.

Fourer, a three-run fifth led the game for Prosser.

Sanford Merchants came up with 19 runs on 20 hits to blast Stromberg Carlson, 19-2.

Bob Johnson and Butch Cook homered to pace a Merchants attack that featured triple and John Welch, Fred Smith and Larry Helman. David Richburg slapped out a pair of home runs to pace the Merchants.

Darwin's 515-Foot Blast Powers Twins To Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The fans way in the left field second deck of the Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium not only got to see a baseball game Sunday but also got to see a baseball.

Despite the muscular boys of summer who play for the Twins, nobody — well, hardly anybody — has hit a ball that far since they've been in the park.

On Sunday, Bobby Darwin drove one 515 feet into left field, far beyond the bleachers and over the bullpen.

The Lady Sells Smut: It's Like Any Other Job

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - Ask Angel Rogers how a nice girl like her got into a business like this and she'll tell you.

Mrs. Rogers operates an "adult book store." She is also a mother, a homemaker, and a certified public accountant who says "my life is not that much different from that of a man who's worked for Sears for 50 years."

Mrs. Rogers, 28, a status-conscious, 6-foot-2 blonde, says she opened her own porno shop after purchasing three massage parlors after learning the business by working as an accountant for her husband, who has four adult book stores in Chicago.

"I'm not wealthy. I live in an ordinary house in a red-neck neighborhood and drive a used car," she says.

But she admits that you have to have a strange mind to get into this "business." "You have to love excitement, and not let the hassles bother you."

One hassle is working apart from her husband, who commutes to and from Chicago. Other hassles include "six or seven" phone raids and an arrest on a charge of failing to have a license for one of her massage parlors.

She has never been convicted, however, and says the easiest way to put out of business is "for people to stop coming in."

She says she often puts in 16-hour days in a six-day week, which leaves her limited time with her 19-month-old daughter, Mian. She is also writing a book entitled "The Lady Sells Smut," and wants to open a porno library.

Mrs. Rogers describes herself as a "good mother and a good cook," but says she would "want to stop working."

"Sometimes I would love to stay home with my daughter and play Mrs. Suburbia. But I think I would be thoroughly bored."

Quake Shakes Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A mild earthquake shook Mexico City on Sunday night, swaying skyscrapers in the downtown area. There was no immediate report of victims or damages.

Kissinger Still Trying

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger held disengagement talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad until 2:30 a.m., trying to resolve a new snag that threatens to deprive him of an immediate disengagement of the Israeli and Syrian armies.

Kissinger took a short break after the six-hour meeting — his 12th session with Assad — and planned to resume the discussions aimed at disengagement on the Golan Heights at 9:30 a.m., an aide to the American secretary of state said.

U.S. officials said Kissinger would return to Israel by tonight or early Tuesday, and then end his month-old peace mission whether or not a settlement is reached. But some observers were skeptical, since on previous occasions Kissinger has ignored his own deadlines when it appeared an agreement was near.

French President Inaugurated

PARIS (AP) — Valéry Giscard d'Estaing was inaugurated Monday as the 20th president of France, ending 16 years of unbroken Gaullist rule and ushering in what he called "a new era in French politics."

A 21-gun salute boomed over the capital as the new president took office in a brief ceremony in the Elysee palace. Giscard d'Estaing formally began his seven-year term when novelist Andre Chamson, acting chancellor of the Legion of Honor, handed him the insignia of grand master of the order.

The 48-year-old president-elect, the youngest chief of state since the turn of the century, was to name his premier after the inauguration ceremonies.

Several political commentators speculated that Giscard d'Estaing would appoint as premier Jacques Chirac, 42, who served as interior minister under outgoing Premier Pierre Messmer.

The election campaign revolved mainly around domestic issues. But President Nixon made a congratulatory phone call to Giscard d'Estaing shortly after he defeated Socialist Francois Mitterrand in the May 19 run-off election, and many observers hoped relations between the United States and France will improve in the near future.

Giscard d'Estaing is expected to announce his cabinet on Tuesday.

Tito Urges Unity

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Seeking to build a strong unifying force in Yugoslavia to hold the country together after his death, President Josip Broz Tito today ordered the Communist party to assume a dominant role in all aspects of society. In a 200-word address prepared for the opening session of the 10th Congress of the Yugoslav League of Communists, Tito, 82, also said the country will continue its unique system of worker management of factories and other enterprises and its policy of non-alignment in foreign affairs.

Operating Without A Budget

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board says Congress must show increased fiscal responsibility to help slow inflation which, if continued unabated, "would threaten the very foundation of our society." Arthur F. Burns told graduating students at Illinois College Sunday. "The federal budget has to be handled more responsibly than it has in the past... Congress has been operating without a rational budget plan."

Not A Good Place To Be

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executive branch of government is "just a naster place to be these days," according to Donald Santarelli, head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Because of Watergate, "you can't accomplish nearly as much" as before and "you can't use the President's name like you used to be able to do," he said. The White House staff has been so decimated by the revelations of Watergate that Santarelli says he is running his $60 million agency almost completely on his own. "There is nobody to tell me no, and there is nobody to can me," Santarelli said.

Textile Union Head Calls For '20th Century' Pay

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The head of the AFL-CIO Textile Workers Union of America called today for "special" textile increases for "textile workers, contending their pay lags behind the American factory average by $1 an hour in wages and benefits."

Sol Stein, president of the union, urged the textile industry to undertake steps to eliminate this pay lag "in not more than five years."

In remarks prepared for a union convention, Stein said the industry would face aggravated manpower problems "unless employers move systematically to wipe out the differential of well over $1 an hour between the wages and fringe benefits they offer and standards enjoyed by the average American factory worker."

He said the way to achieve this would be "to give textile workers 25 cents an hour in inequity increases each year on top of annual wage increases to compensate them for increased productivity and boost in the cost of living."

13-Day-Old General Strike Paralyzes Irish Oil Depots

By ED BLANCHE Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British Army took control of oil storage depots and some gasoline stations in Northern Ireland today as Protestant militants continued to paralyze the province with a 13-day-old general strike.

The military intervention was ordered by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government, which has refused to negotiate with the strikers. In a Friday night broadcast, he called them "thugs and bullies."

An Army announcement said the troops moved into main storage depots in Belfast and Londonderry and took control of a number of gasoline stations and oil tanker trucks, all of which it said had been requisitioned for use by the Ulster Volunteer Force.

Behind the strike are hardline Protestant loyalists who want Ulster to remain part of the United Kingdom under Protestant control. They are demanding new elections to the Ulster parliament and the cancellation of an agreement that would establish an Irish council with representatives from both Ulster and the Irish Republic.

In another development, army chiefs said security forces during the weekend detained the largest number of Protestant extremists in five years—taking 55 persons into custody in and around Belfast, including alleged leaders of the militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association and the Ulster Volunteer Force.

Unleaded Gas Crisis Next?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most 1975-model cars will have a special air pollution device, but there may not be enough unleaded gasoline needed for such cars, an internal report by the American Automobile Association says.

Unleaded gas will be needed for the 1975 cars, which will begin rolling off assembly lines in less than four months, because of the introduction of the new device—a catalytic converter.

If the problem arises, the AAA report says, "then some of the nation's approximately 10 million new car owners will not find unleaded gas when they need it and must have it if they turn to leaded fuel, it will slowly destroy their converters and they will be forced to replace them at a cost of up to $150."

William Berman, AAA's staff expert on environmental affairs, said the report was obtained by The Associated Press.

Ford: Need Speedy Impeach Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says he hopes the House Judiciary Committee won't expand its hearings on the impeachment of President Nixon, declaring, "If they drag it out, it could very well interfere with the necessary work of the Congress."

Ford was asked in an interview about reports that committee members feel additional hearings are needed to clarify ambiguities in Watergate tapes and transcripts.

"I certainly hope not," he replied. "I think they could improve if they would get it done, whatever they do, to the floor of the House by late June or early July."

Ford was interviewed in the wake of his strong public disapproval of President Nixon's refusal to provide any additional Watergate evidence to the Judiciary Committee.

However, at the vice president's request, that was not raised in the interview. Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler on Sunday put down reports of differences between Ford and Nixon.

Meanwhile, Judiciary Committee Republican Rep. Charles E. Wiggins of California, David W. Dennis of Indiana and Henry P. Smith of New York all said Nixon's "hush money" conversation of March 21, 1973, is the only evidence they have heard that could tend to implicate the chief executive in the Watergate cover-up.

Cox named as the third and broadest ground for impeachment the failure of Nixon to restrain his White House aides and campaign workers who were involved in the scandal.

Ford said he has not decided whether he will take an active part in the impeachment issue before the House.

"I certainly will reiterate, as I have in the past, to any members my feelings, and I don't foresee that they're going to change, that the President is innocent of any impeachable offense," Ford said.

Ford was interviewed in his twin-engine Air Force Conquest as he flew back to Washington from a brief Memorial Day respite at home.

He flew to Charlotte, N.C., today to play in a pro-amateur golf tournament and said he plans to continue the busy schedule that has carried him 80,000 miles into 30 states since last fall.

Asked if he thought the impeachment situation posed special problems for Republicans, the vice president said "generally, I think it's a no-win vote for anybody in the Congress."

"I suspect there is more of a political problem for Republicans than for Democrats," he said.

In other Watergate-related developments: —Judiciary Committee member Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said Congress should force Nixon to turn over Watergate tapes by cutting off all funds for White House salaries.

—Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said the White House seems better organized and more responsive since the Watergate affair forced the resignations of aides John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldean.

—Delegates to the National Organization for Women convention in Houston approved a resolution urging Nixon's impeachment.

—A Gallup Poll showed 48 per cent of those surveyed thought Nixon's behavior warrants his ouster from the White House.

Chiles: Mover Posts $10,000 Bond, Grand Jury Continues Probe Of O'Malley

By John A. Spolski

Before it gets too late and you're in the position of learning that since flying the flag last Fourth of July, it's in such a condition that you need another and you "just don't know where to buy another," let me put your mind at ease.

Each year the Fleet Reserve handles the sale of American flags. They're located on SR 46, west of Sanford, and will be happy to accommodate your needs.

MIAMI (AP) — Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., says an impeachment trial is "almost inevitable" unless President Nixon surrenders tape recordings that show he was not involved in the Watergate cover-up or other matters under investigation.

The Senate, Chiles told a news conference Monday, will stand behind (Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski all the way" in his efforts to secure tapes through Supreme Court action begun Friday.

"If and when the President comes to trial I'm going to sequester myself from the opinions of others and vote strictly on the evidence offered the Senate," Chiles said.

Until the impeachment trial begins in the Senate, Chiles said, he will reserve judgement on the guilt or innocence of the president.

He said he favors televised proceedings of an impeachment trial.

Oh, and another one of those funny bumper stickers — WATCH OUT — for smiling politicians! (Cork to think that's not so funny. A darn good warning might be a more accurate description, eh?)

Sen. Chiles said he will not be cutting — if any — stemmed from a misunderstanding, representatives of Builders Movers Inc., hinted the issue will wind up in the courts.

Commissioner Dick Williams, who raised the last missile shot down a plane during Memorial Day military maneuvers off the coast, the Navy said today.

The pilot of the plane hit by the unarmored heat-seeking missile ejected and was unhurt. He was identified as Lt. Robert E. Rhode of the Naval Air station at Ocala, Fla.

A Navy spokesman said the six-foot missile was fired at a target being towed by a plane Rhode was rescuing and went astray.

The reason for the accident wasn't known, he said.

The incident occurred during an exercise at a height of 20,000 feet by planes operating off the carrier USS Independence, out of Norfolk, Va.

Freeman, denying any wrongdoing by the company, refused to discuss the tree cuttings in view of last week's authorization by the commission of civil and criminal actions against his client, former Orange County Democratic Chairman George Saunders.

South Seminole residents may now avail themselves of public transportation to and from the Altamonte Mall and downtown Orlando. The new bus route was recently initiated by the Orange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation Authority.

New color maps of TA's 19 routes are now available at the downtown Orlando terminal or by calling TA's Transit Information Center.

"We could have produced a map before this, but with all the service improvements being made during the past year, it would have been very quickly out of date. Since the route pattern has stabilized somewhat, now is the time to provide a more useful map," said Robert D. Lorah, TA resident manager. Lorah lives in the English Estates subdivision in South Seminole.

The South Seminole bus schedule is as follows: from downtown Orlando terminal to Altamonte Mall on SR 436-8:15 a.m., 2:15 p.m. and 5:15 p.m.; from Altamonte Mall to downtown Orlando — 9:45 a.m.; 1:15 p.m.; 3:15 p.m. and 6:15 p.m.; from St. Johns Village on Oxford Road in Fern Park to Altamonte Mall — 8:55 a.m.; 9:30 a.m.; 1 p.m.; 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.; from Altamonte Mall to St. Johns Village only — 9:15 a.m. and 12:45 p.m.

The bus goes north on 17-92 from Maitland to Lake-of-the-Woods; north on Oxford to SR 436; west on 436 to Altamonte Mall and returns by the same route.

The bus makes stops every other block along the route.

Turner Jury Into Fifth Day

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The jury in the mail fraud trial of Orlando, Fla., businessman Glenn Turner and seven associates enters its fifth day of deliberations today.

Appearing tired after a full day of deliberations Monday, jury members gave no signs of how they stand.

The jury could not have reported a verdict had it arrived at one, because U.S. District Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat, who has presided over the marathon nine-month trial, was attending a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals conference in New Orleans.
