Mayor Smith's Wish May Become Reality

Hopes Up For Sanford Senior Center

By Maryann Cross
Herald Staff Writer

If Mayor Bettye Smith gets her wish, a long-sought-after senior citizens activities-cultural center will become a reality in Sanford.

Mayor Smith told commissioners at a workshop Monday that she'd rather see a recently approved $150,000 state grant for a proposed bandshell in Sanford go toward constructing a senior citizens complex instead.

"At this point, it's all preliminary, but everyone at the workshop Monday seemed to greet the idea with enthusiasm," Smith said.

The city received a $150,000 state grant earlier this year to build a bandshell to replace the one that either was torn down or blown apart during a storm in the early 1960s, depending upon whose version one accepts.

State Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, when announcing the state had approved the grant, indicated the money could be used either for a bandshell or some other cultural project.

Mayor Smith said today several questions will have to be answered before there is any certainty the city will get a senior citizens complex. "But that's what I want to see while I'm still mayor."

Some of the questions to be answered: How much of the $150,000 grant can be used toward such a complex? Where would it be built?

Mayor Smith says while there is a piece of property near the shuffleboards on First Street that was dedicated to senior citizen use some years ago, "we aren't necessarily committed at this point to any particular location, just as a specific site for a bandshell had not yet been decided on."

How large a facility would the senior citizen complex be and how much would the total cost be ... and would it all be done with just state monies? "Those also are questions that need looking into for answers, but that's where we are today, looking into it," Smith said.

She explained she'd like to see an expanded version of a senior citizens complex that will be used not only for senior citizen activity, but for other community events, serving a broader community interest.

"A senior citizens center has long since been needed in Sanford, and I'd like to see it come about while I'm still mayor," Smith said.

According to a memo from Bill Simmons, Grindle indicated he would be receptive to using the grant for a senior center and that he would obtain the necessary support from the Department of State. Grindle also indicated willingness to seek additional funds if deemed necessary.

Teenager Gets Prison Time

Could Be Out In 3 Years

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County teenager convicted of manslaughter for her role in the robbery and shooting death of Forest City flower clerk Diane Lynn McGinnis, was sentenced to six years in prison and nine years on probation Monday by Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr., but could be eligible for probation in as little as three years.

Suzanne Marie Phillips, 15, was given the split 15-year sentence after the judge heard arguments as to whether she should be treated as a juvenile or as an adult in determining her punishment.

Phillips will probably wind up only serving about three years, perhaps as little as two, of the six years to which she was sentenced, according to prosecuting attorney Tom Hastings.

He added that the state Department of Corrections can extend her probation time and remove her from the prison system early, if it wants to. The exact date she'll be eligible for probation will depend upon correction officials, Hastings said.

Phillips will be transferred to the Lowell Prison Facility in Ocala as soon as her commitment papers have been signed, which is expected by court officials to be sometime today. After going through screening at the the prison's in-take center, Phillips will be placed in Jones Cottage, a Lowell facility for the treatment of prisoners with drug and alcohol problems.

Eaton heard testimony from psychiatrists that Phillips was not sophisticated or mature enough to be treated as an adult. Witnesses said Phillips not only had a drug and alcohol problem, but was emotionally dependent on Edwin Bateman, her 16-year-old boyfriend, with whom she admittedly helped commit the June 23 execution-style murder of McGinnis after taking an amount of money less than $100.

A representative of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services told the court that the state didn't have the money to place Phillips in a drug or alcohol program in a juvenile setting. If Phillips had been adjudicated as a juvenile she would have come under the authority of the agency.

Phillips had plea-bargained with the State Attorney's office for the lesser charge of manslaughter in exchange for her testimony against Bateman. Within a day after she consented to the agreement, which said she participated in the act out of her love for her boyfriend, Bateman was found hanging by a pillowcase from his cell at the Seminole County Jail.

Phillips' attorneys, Mark Rabinowitz and Dominick Salfi, argued that Phillips should be treated as a juvenile because of her problems.

Hastings said if the state sentenced her as a juvenile it would lose jurisdiction over her on her 19th birthday. "Because of the nature of the crime she committed and the violence involved she should be given the maximum punishment the sentencing guidelines allow for," Hastings said.

Those guideline would have allowed Eaton to extend the time Phillips is to spend in jail by a year.

"I've been praying, that somehow Mr. (Donald) McGinnis and his family would somehow find a place in their hearts to forgive

Many approaching the entrance is one of just a few voters casting their ballots by mid-morning, according to election officials. Overcast skies and intermittent showers are predicted for the entire day.

Seminole: No Deluge Of Voters

Rain, Apathy Affect County, City Turnout

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Rain and apathy were keeping more voters than normal away from the polls in Seminole County this morning. The fate of the penny sales tax referendum and city commission seats in cities within the county may rest with as few as 30 percent of the electorate.

The polling place for Precinct 4 at Altamonte Springs City Hall reported only 14 people had voted by 9:30 a.m., and of those, only four lived within the Altamonte city limits. Dudley Bates is running for mayor in Altamonte Springs and Pat Fernandez is running for Bates' former seat representing District 1. Neither has opposition.

Poll workers at the Precinct 33 voting place at Longwood City Hall, reported 100 people had voted by 9:30, which they reported was pretty good, considering the weather. Casselberry City Hall, which is the voting place for Precinct 17, reported 125 voters by mid-morning, a little lighter than normal.

Both Longwood and Casselberry have contested city contests, and Longwood voters are also deciding the fate of three amendments to the city charter.

Richard Bullington is challenging incumbent Harvey Smeritson in Longwood and Mayor "Ed" Myers is being challenged for re-election to the commission by Ted Poelking. Longwood voters are also voting on city charter changes which would call for direct election of the mayor, election of a deputy mayor by the council, and allow petitioners to recall commissioners according to state law.

Longwood Denies Church Use Request

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commissioners voted unanimously Monday night to deny a conditional use request by St. Stephens Orthodox Church to build church facilities in an R-1 single family residential zoned property on Rangeline Road.

Playing to a full house of residents and property owners opposed to the church, many of whom spoke out at the public hearing, the commission refused to continue or table the hearing to the next meeting as had been requested by church officials so that their lawyer could be present.

There is no designated zoning for churches in the city, but they are allowed as a conditional use with approval of the commission.

Deputy Mayor June Lormann at first made a motion to "deny rezoning of this property," but was reminded it was not a rezoning, but a conditional use request. "Whatever it is," she said.

Commissioner Harvey Smeritson suggested she add reasons for turning down the request as erosion into a residential area, not that and it would landlock lots behind it.

The Land Planning Agency and City Planner Chris Nagle had recommended that the request be denied.

"That's residential land and should stay residential land," Smeritson said. "These people shouldn't have to come down here every few months to fight to keep it residential."

The property owners, Amos and Queen Jones, had tried to sell the property twice before, once for a child care center, which was turned down by the commission.

Steven Kondratiek, a member of the church, said after the vote that he had "been around here for 30 years" and had been on both sides of similar issues.

"I don't blame the people," he said, "but sooner or later they were going to get something else built on the property. Someone is going to come in with a lot of money and they'll let them build there."

Many people opposing the requests were residents of Meadowridge subdivision which is immediately south of the two-acre site. Nagle was against the request unless the applicant was willing to substantially reduce the proposed size of the project and address the other building scale, buffering and property use concerns he had expressed.

Lake Mary May Probe Police Pay

Lake Mary City Commissioner Thomas Mahoney said Monday that he intends to request a review of the salary structure for all city employees at the next commission meeting on Oct. 5, because of what he terms is an unacceptable turnover rate in the city's police department.

Mahoney's request will come on the same night the commission vote is scheduled to hire a replacement for Lake Mary Police Officer Kent Showalter, the third police officer to resign from the city's department since August. His resignation will become effective on Nov. 9.

In his letter of resignation Showalter said a "negative undercurrent" exists within the police department. He further attributed the undercurrent to the actions and attitudes of some of the elected officials in the city. Showalter was not available to comment on exactly which officials he was referring to in the letter.

Showalter also states in the letter that Lake Mary cannot afford to go through this "period of rapid growth and technical transition" without fulfilling the requirements for a fully staffed and professional police department.

"It is my opinion that some of the elected officials in the city are not willing to recognize this situation and commit the financial resources to maintain a professional department," he said.

The city's police department deserves the wholehearted support of the city commission, according to Showalter, but has not gotten it.

"It is my opinion that Lake Mary will continue to lose experienced and valuable police officers unless the elected officials improve the working environment, conditions and salaries of police officers," Showalter concluded at the end of his letter. He mentioned that it had been a pleasure to work with the Lake Mary Police Department.

Police Chief Charles Lauderdale has nominated David W. Crum to replace Showalter. If the nomination is approved Crum will start work for the city on Nov. 15, at a annual salary of $16,500. Crum could earn up to $22,839 in salary increases while in the position, according to Lake Mary Finance Director Madeline Munn.

The city commission voted earlier this year to lower the starting salary of new police officers

Telephone Customers Warned Of Rate Scam

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Public Service Commission is warning telephone customers to beware of companies which try to sell them "flat rate" long distance service, particularly if they use a "pyramid" marketing scheme, but Seminole County residents have escaped the fraud. At least so far.

The flat rate services advertise that customers can make unlimited calls from anywhere to anywhere for a flat monthly fee.

Many of the companies advertising this service are operating without any authority from the Public Service Commission and subscribers could end up not receiving the service paid for, losing their deposits, advance payments and more, said George B. Hanna, director of the commission's consumer affairs division.

Hanna said Florida law requires that a telephone company must be certified by the public service commission before it is authorized to provide long distance service within the state. This provides the commission with the ability to regulate and monitor the service the company provides.

Some of the companies offering the flat rate long distance service have not applied for state certification, therefore are unauthorized to operate in Florida, Hanna said.

You Too Can Be A 'Weathercaster'

Staff And Wire Reports

So you've always wanted to be a weatherperson? Right? Okay, now's your chance to be a forecaster. Just as Dave, or Mike, or Danny. Just follow these simple instructions, after committing the pedantic gems to memory.

Go outside. Look up. Say: "Me Great Weatherforecaster Rainintheace." Okay so far. Now say: "It'll rain for two days."

See, you're doing great. Now say: "Temperature will stay about what it is right now, give or take a few degrees." Plus, say: "Conditions will probably change by the week-end." But for heaven's sake don't explain how the conditions may change specifically. Deal in glittering generalities.

Now go practice and brag that you learned it all right here.

That tropical depression, that may be called Gert if it ever deserves to be called Gert and how would you ever define deserves in connection with being called Gert, is still foundering around about Cuba. It's causing lots of rain and wind down there, and up here. (That's why you're safe with your weather forecast)

The National Hurricane Center advised officials, residents and boaters in the Florida Keys and southeast gulf to monitor the progress of the depression and warned small craft in the Keys to remain in port.

At 5 a.m. EST, the center of the depression was located 45 miles south of Key West, Fla. It was moving toward the north northwest about 10 mph but was expected to turn northward today.

Maximum sustained winds were 35 mph with higher gusts in squalls. The winds extended several hundred miles to the north of the center due to a strong pressure gradient between the depression and high pressure over the eastern United States, the hurricane center said.

Earlier Monday, forecasters canceled a tropical storm watch for the lower and middle Keys, but conditions may warrant the precautionary measure again after the storm clears Cuba.

For those of you who share our concern with the hole in the ozone layer, there is encouraging news.

The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to a joint research program to monitor the threatened atmospheric ozone layer that shields Earth from harmful solar radiation.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration announced the cooperative effort Monday, saying an agreement was signed Friday at a meeting of officials from both nations.

An American scientific team returned last month from Antarctica, where it found strong evidence linking the buildup of Freon-type chlorofluorocarbon gases with a seasonal thinning of ozone in the atmosphere over the South Pole.

American and Soviet officials will coordinate ozone measurements over Antarctica and will develop a joint experiment to monitor levels over the Arctic, where satellite data also indicate a seasonal ozone depletion, the agency said.

Scientists from both nations also will calibrate instruments used to measure ozone in the atmosphere and will discuss the effects of climate changes on agriculture and water resources, participating in a series of scientific exchanges to review modern trends in the climate and to study past conditions.

IN BRIEF

Iran Claims Small Vessel Fired On Was From India

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran today denied a small boat fired on by a U.S. Navy frigate in the Persian Gulf was Iranian, claiming instead it was an Indian launch and that one crewman was killed in the attack.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, in Iran's first comment on the Sunday incident, said defense officials in Tehran "categorically denied" the small vessel fired on by the USS Carr was Iranian.

"But an informed military source says the U.S. Navy instead attacked an Indian transportation launch, killing one of its crew," IRNA said.

The source said the launch was bound for the United Arab Emirates coast and that all its crew members were Indians, IRNA said.

Worker Tells Of Contra Ordeal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — An American volunteer opposed to U.S. aid to Contra rebels has described the two weeks he spent as a captive of the rebels, providing a rare insight into the daily workings of a guerrilla patrol.

Paul Fisher, 41, of Mill Valley, Calif., was freed unharmed Friday by a unit of Contra rebels after marching more than 75 miles through rugged, mountainous terrain from the spot where he was taken off a bus during a Contra ambush Oct. 17.

A spokesman for Witness for Peace, the religious organization opposed to Contra aid that Fisher works with, said Fisher planned to fly to the United States today, probably to the group's headquarters in Washington D.C.

Cases Involved Discrimination, Affirmative Action

High Court Rejects Schools' Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court rejected appeals from two Midwestern school systems Monday, refusing to tackle divisive questions about affirmative action and discrimination in the classroom.

The justices let stand two rulings that limit the steps school systems can take to bar segregation in the classroom and protect the jobs of minority teachers hired under an affirmative action plan.

The court refused to review a ruling that prevented the Illinois Board of Education from withholding money from a gifted student program it felt discriminated against minorities.

It also rejected an appeal from the South Bend, Ind., school system, which had asked the court to consider whether it could lay off more experienced white teachers to save the jobs of recently hired black instructors.

In other action, the court: —Rejected an attempt by Indiana prison officials to bar a transsexual prisoner from receiving special medical treatment for his condition.

—Refused to consider charges the "close relatives" of billionaire Howard Hughes had been cut out of a piece of his estate.

—Agreed to decide whether states can require non-resident lawyers to take the state bar exam but exempt resident lawyers in a case brought by the state of Virginia.

The Indiana case hinges on whether the attempt to create a diverse teaching staff justifies the use of a race-conscious layoff system or simply discriminates against white teachers.

The dispute ignited when the school system implemented a union-backed layoff plan and fired 188 white teachers, many of whom had more seniority than black instructors shielded from the 1982 cutbacks.

The layoffs prompted 41 of the laid-off teachers to file suit against the school system, alleging their constitutional and civil rights had been violated by the race-conscious plan.

A federal district court dismissed the suit, but the teachers won their case in a rehearing before the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which voted 5-4 to strike down the plan.

In seeking high court review, lawyers for the school system appealed to the justices for direction on how it could correct past discrimination without jeopardizing the rights of other teachers.

But lawyers for the teachers disputed the school's appeal for more guidance from the high court, citing a 1986 Supreme Court decision that clearly stated race-conscious layoff plans are unconstitutional.

The Illinois case stems from a state board investigation that found the Peoria School District "had intentionally segregated on the basis of race the gifted children program."

The board cut off financing for the gifted program, prompting the school district to file suit in state court, where it won a ruling that barred the state from withholding the money.

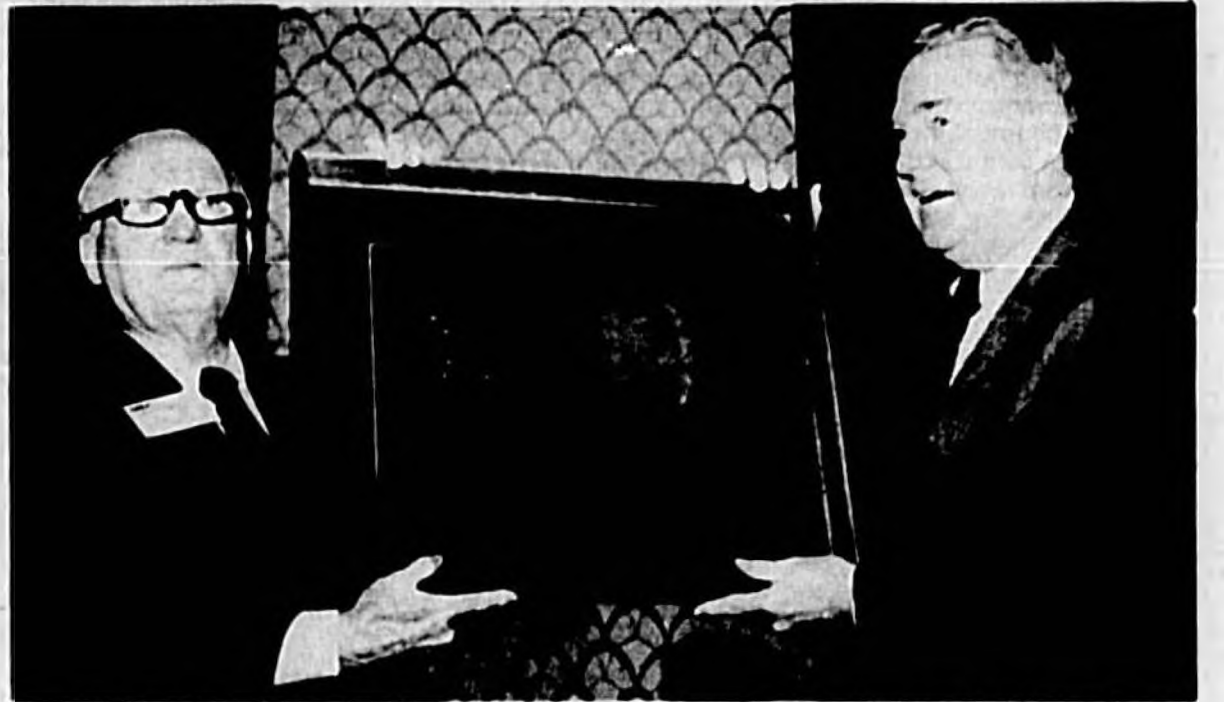

In seeking high court review, the state board argued the ruling compels "the board to actively finance and aid an intentionally segregated education program of a local school district."

But the Peoria School District denied its program discriminated against blacks, stressing the state board decided to cut off funds based on its own investigation not an independent probe.

Weinberger Will Resign His Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is likely to name national security adviser Frank Carlucci to succeed Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who plans to resign to care for his ailing wife, administration sources say.

Officials told United Press International Monday night that Weinberger, a longtime Reagan confidant who has overseen the costliest peacetime military buildup in U.S. history, is expected to give up his Cabinet post in the near future. They said he probably will be succeeded by Carlucci, who was deputy defense secretary for the first two years of the president's administration.

CBS News reported Carlucci in turn is likely to be replaced by his assistant, Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, who would be the first black national security adviser.

Powell, Weinberger's military assistant until he went to command Army troops in Europe about two years ago, carried out the orders to send missiles to Iran in an effort to free U.S. hostages held by pro-Iranian terrorists in Lebanon.

The sources who spoke to UPI on the condition of anonymity refused to offer a reason for Weinberger's decision, but NBC News pointed to the poor health of his wife, Jane. One source told UPI Mrs. Weinberger underwent a hysterectomy about a year ago, but no reason was given for the surgery.

Salinas de Gortari May Benefit Mexico

By American political standards, Carlos Salinas de Gortari might seem an unlikely presidential contender.

A balding technocrat with a low public profile, he has never held an elective office.

As a planner, he has developed federal austerity policies that brought howls of protest from labor unions.

Nevertheless, Salinas de Gortari is an excellent choice to become Mexico's next president. And, he will be—unless he's assassinated, dies from natural or accidental cause, or falls into calamitous disgrace with the ruling powers.

Mexico's dominant Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) announced recently that Salinas de Gortari, the Mexican federal government's 39-year-old secretary of budget and planning, will be its presidential candidate in next year's election. Technically, that makes him just a candidate, but in Mexican politics, the PRI's nominee always wins.

Outgoing President Miguel de la Madrid, under pressure internally and internationally to open up the electoral process, had said the PRI was considering six presidential finalists. But in the end, the tradition of dedazo (placing a finger on) won out.

Much as his PRI predecessors—each of whom served a single six-year term—this president handpicked his own successor. He chose Salinas de Gortari, a close associate of de la Madrid's since 1975. He worked for de la Madrid in the Finance Ministry and later for the Budget Ministry. When de la Madrid became president, Salinas de Gortari was named to his Cabinet.

While we don't see much progress toward democracy—at least as we know it—there still is much to commend in the PRI's presidential choice.

Like de la Madrid before him, Salinas de Gortari is a bureaucrat, with years of government experience, primarily in budget and financing.

He is bright and well-educated. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate from Harvard University in economics and government.

His family background is impeccably Mexican.

One ancestor fought at the Alamo, another battled the Spanish in Mexico's war for independence.

Salinas de Gortari will have to be a soldier of sorts, too.

It's thought that de la Madrid chose him to continue the struggle that his administration began against Mexico's ruinous inflation, a foreign debt topping $100 billion and a crippled economy.

Salinas de Gortari supports de la Madrid's policies of cutting budget deficits, returning many government-owned enterprises to private hands and eliminating agricultural subsidies.

He also reportedly favors breaking the PRI labor unions' hold on government contracts.

These policies amount to bitter medicine.

But they could help Mexico restore its battered economy.

Salinas de Gortari, de la Madrid's heir apparent, appears to have the will to carry them out.

The EPA Ducking The Asbestos Furor

You're going to hear a great deal more about asbestos in schools during the next two years — much of the talk alarming, confusing and even misleading.

Under just-issued federal rules, 107,000 schools must be inspected for asbestos. Where it is flaking or otherwise in dangerous shape, protective action will be required by mid-1989.

The policy sounds reasonable enough, as indeed it would be if only the Environmental Protection Agency had bothered to set a ceiling for airborne asbestos exposure. Then schools would more clearly know when to take costly action and when not to.

Instead the agency passed the buck. Schools will be at the mercy of contractors and inspectors with an incentive to exaggerate the asbestos danger and create more work for themselves.

What school district is likely to resist expensive "remedies" given the reputation of asbestos? The product has an ugly past, having maimed or killed thousands of workers, especially as a result of shipyard exposure during World War II. Asbestos is one of the relatively few substances whose cancer-causing effect in humans is absolutely known, as opposed to having been deduced from research on animals.

The trouble is, there is very little first-rate data on the effects of low-level dosages of asbestos. As one specialist in the field has observed, some scientists believe exposure below a certain threshold is "completely without risk. Other scientists believe there may be no threshold," meaning no safe exposure at all.

Even if the second opinion is right, it begs the regulatory question. Asbestos fibers are hardly a curiosity. Countless fibers float in the outside air, and each of us has some lodged in our lungs.

In short, the observation that there is no safe exposure to asbestos is akin to Jimmy Carter's remark that life is unfair. Of course it is. But the insight is hardly a useful guide to public policy.

If there were truly no safe exposure, then even undisturbed asbestos should be speedily removed from the millions of buildings that now contain it. Yet few experts urge this. For example, the Lancet, a prestigious British science publication, flatly declares that "on present evidence, there is no reason to believe that (intact) asbestos in buildings constitutes a major threat to the public health."

An asbestos policy committee appointed by Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey agrees. "The mere presence of asbestos (in a building)," the committee says, "does not in and of itself pose a health risk to anyone."

Doctor Ronald G. Crystal of the National Institutes of Health has similarly written that "there is no evidence that the levels of the airborne asbestos found in public buildings, such as schools, present a hazard."

Revealingly, the EPA will only require measurements of airborne asbestos in schools after remedial action is completed. This is the agency's way of admitting that botched asbestos removal can dump far more fibers into the air than if nothing had been done. In fact, the people facing the greatest danger from the millions of buildings with asbestos are the workers who must eventually remove the stuff.

Power Of The Black Vote

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For those who stubbornly cling to lingering doubts, the rejection of Robert Bork for the Supreme Court brought striking new evidence that the Old South is dead and the 1965 Voting Rights Act killed it.

Many elements conspired to doom the nomination — politics, the man and his thinking, the rabid campaigns of opponents and Bork's own long and tortured testimony, among others.

But there is no question that a pivotal role in the entire process was played by Democratic senators from the Southern states who, by themselves, could have rescued Bork and, in the end, denied him the Supreme Court seat.

When the White House submitted Bork's name to the Senate, it made the faulty assumption that, as a conservative, he would be acceptable to the Southerners and that their support would be enough to offset defections among Republican senators.

That scenario would have evolved to perfection 20 years ago, when blacks were just starting to get the vote in great numbers, and perhaps as recently as 10 years ago.

Blacks vote in record numbers in the South and if a judicial nomination is offensive to black voters nationally, it is just as offensive to black voters in the South.

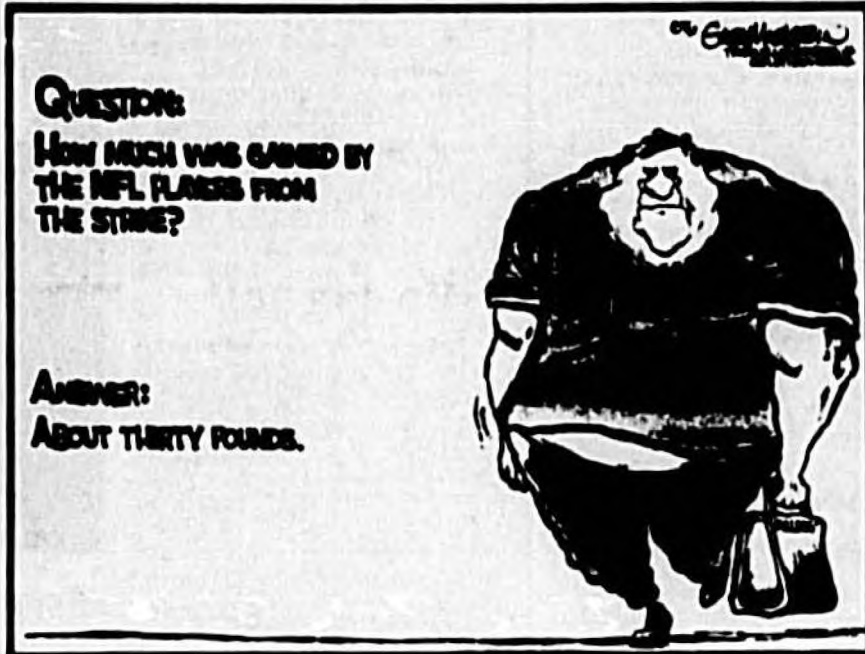

And Southern Democratic senators are, to varying degrees, beholden to black voters and are increasingly taking their concerns into consideration.

These are some of the 1986 election figures: Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., got 42 percent of the white vote, 88 percent of the black vote; Sen. John Breaux, D-La., received 39 percent of the white vote, 82 percent of the black vote; Sen. Wycle Fowler, D-Ga., had 39 percent of the white vote, 82 percent of the black vote; Richard Shelby, D-Ala., won 38 percent of the white vote, 88 percent of the black vote.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., who runs again in 1990, the last time out won 46 percent of the white vote but 81 percent of the black vote.

It does not require an advanced degree in mathematics to divine that none of these senators could have made it to Washington without considerable support of black voters.

The disenchantment with Bork among Southerners was so deep — polls showed opposition even among those who call themselves conservatives — that every Democratic senator from the Southern states voted against him except Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Kirkpatrick Says No

Jeanne Kirkpatrick's decision not to toss her chapeau into the ring for the Republican presidential nomination makes it likely that the six contenders now visible — Bush, Dole, Kemp, Robertson, du Pont and Hagt — are the only ones there will be.

It's always possible, of course, that some dark horse — Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey, for example — may dash onto the scene at the last moment. But the mechanics of the modern nomination process, which tend to reward the winners of the major primaries (and even the winners of the early minor primaries), and which make it very hard to hold back major blocs of delegates for last-minute commitment, militate against newcomers. The chances are that the Republican nominee is on the above short list, and in all probability that he will be one of the first three: Bush, Dole or Kemp.

Kirkpatrick's decision not to run was a wise one. The United States is probably quite ready for a female president or vice president, if only one with the skills and personality of a Margaret Thatcher were available. But for some reason American politics has not produced such a figure, and nominating someone simply because of her gender is no way to the hearts of American voters — as Walter Mondale discovered in 1984 when he picked Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate.

Jeanne Kirkpatrick is a formidably intelligent woman, and has moreover an enthusiastic personal following, especially among conservative ideologues. But it must be recognized that she lacks certain qualities that are very nearly indispensable to a candidate for high public office in the Age of Television. She has neither Ronald Reagan's old-shoe charm nor Thatcher's impressive glossiness. Instead, she comes across as a rather didactic schoolmarm, long on brains but short on warmth; not the American ideal in a presidential candidate by a long shot.

How about the vice presidential nomination? Kirkpatrick seemingly did not rule that out, and of course it is in any case a more reasonable possibility for her than the top spot. But the same considerations that militate against her as a presidential candidate apply equally in theory, and at least to some degree in practice, to the vice presidential candidate.

In addition, there is the matter of geographic balance. Any likely Republican nominee for president will be well advised to look South or (even better) West for a running mate, and Kirkpatrick, who lives in the small Eastern state of Maryland, contributes nothing of value from this important standpoint.

Kirkpatrick's best chance, and her probable real goal, is a high post in the foreign policy sector of a new Republican administration: secretary of state, perhaps, or director of the National Security Council. She is supremely well fitted for either of these positions, and indeed seems almost inevitable for one or the other.

Her announcement is said to be a boost for Jack Kemp, and this seems likely — after all, it was widely agreed that, if she had entered the race, Kemp would have been damaged worst, since they appeal to the same basic conservative constituency. It is now up to Kemp to demonstrate, if he can, that he is the overwhelming choice of the GOP's dominant conservative wing. If he fails to do this, George Bush is still the man to beat.

Now, at any rate, the pre-primary stages of the contest are drawing to a close.

Youthful Moms Get Act In Tow

By Gayle Young

NEW YORK (UPI) — Statistics show teenage mothers are less likely to finish school and more likely to go on welfare, events that sociologists presumed put them on the road to a lifetime of poverty and deprivation.

But an unusual long-term study that tracked 300 teenage mothers from the 1960s into their 30s now reveals a substantial majority eventually finish school, get jobs, limit the size of their families and live full lives.

"This doesn't change anything we've found so far, but it does give us a fuller understanding of the long range impact of adolescent pregnancy," said Dr. Frank F. Furstenberg, a researcher at the University of Pennsylvania who started the study while an undergraduate at Columbia University 20 years ago.

"Having a baby while still in their teenage years definitely puts them behind," he said in a telephone interview. "But that's not to say they don't catch up."

All 300 of the women delivered their babies in two Baltimore hospitals between 1966 and 1968. Most were black and virtually all were unwed, according to Furstenberg, who reported his findings in a journal of The Alan Guttmacher Institute, a family planning research group.

Furstenberg said it was difficult to track the women down in 1984 and deliver detailed questionnaires to them and their now-teenage children.

The women were in 1984, on average, 32 years old, according to the report. Seventy percent had completed high school and only 24 percent had never married.

When compared to black urban women who did not have babies early in life, the teenage mothers of Furstenberg's study were at a distinct disadvantage in terms of financial success.

However, the majority, 60 percent, were employed and off welfare. An impressive 24 percent had incomes larger than $25,000 a year and another 24 percent made at least $15,000 a year, according to the study.

Furstenberg said the women in his study who were motivated students as teenagers were much more likely to finish high school at some point. He said 30 percent had gone on to attend college and 5 percent had graduated.

Since many of the women interviewed in 1984 said they were attending classes, the figure could rise even further, he said.

Ex-German Ambassador Has Nazi Past

By Jack Anderson
And
Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Gunther van Well, who served as West German ambassador in Washington from July 1984 until last week, has a documented Nazi past.

We have unearthed a Nazi Party membership card issued to van Well in September 1940. It shows the date and place of the future diplomat's birth: Oct. 15, 1922, at Osterrath, near Krefeld in the Rhineland. He was given party membership number 7767073.

According to van Well's official biography, provided by the embassy, he graduated from high school in 1941. The biography does not mention his party membership.

Van Well's tenure as Bonn's ambassador to the United States ended a few days ago, and he decided to retire. He is married to an American, and an embassy spokesman said the van Wells will probably remain in this country.

After several unsuccessful attempts to meet personally with the ambassador, we sent him a copy of his Nazi Party membership card through an aide. Van Well then issued this statement:

"This copy is known for 40 years. Party membership was never active because I was drafted in the Wehrmacht early 1941. This suspended membership. I was a soldier until the end of the war."

We have no evidence to contradict van Well's claim that he was not an active member of the Nazi Party. But several experts we consulted said they had never heard that party membership was suspended upon entry into the armed services.

His official biography states that he was on active service until 1945. After the war he studied at Bonn University, where he earned degrees in both economics and law. He entered the diplomatic service in 1952 and after an assignment in the personnel office he was sent to the West German mission at the United Nations in New York in 1954. In 1962-1963, he attended Harvard as a fellow at the Center for International Affairs, and was then assigned to the Tokyo embassy for four years.

After serving in various high-level posts at the foreign office in Bonn, van Well was named West Germany's ambassador to the United Nations in 1981.

Incidentally, a U.N. press release of June 5, 1981, noted that van Well presented his credentials there to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. Now president of Austria, Waldheim has been accused of participating in German atrocities in the Balkans during the war and of lying to cover up his Nazi past. The Justice Department has placed Waldheim on a list of individuals who may not be admitted as private visitors to the United States.

Footnote: Two months ago, Bonn's consul general in Rio de Janeiro, Hans Joachim Dunker, acknowledged he is a former Nazi. He remains at his post despite the revelation.

DANGEROUS EXPOSURE — A recent congressional investigation of the Army's shoulder-fired anti-tank missiles revealed a fatal flaw: The infantryman who fires the weapon is exposed to enemy fire while he guides the missile to its target. In some cases, this potentially deadly exposure lasts for almost half a minute. The soldier can take cover, of course, but then he can no longer guide the missile. During simulated combat at The Infantry School in Fort Benning, Ga., 67 percent of the gunners were exposed to enemy fire before their Dragon or Dragon Two missiles reached the targets. The same drawback has been noted with the TOW missile.

Students: Gators Choked

GAINESVILLE — This past Saturday, the Florida Gators registered their most disappointing loss of the season, falling to the Auburn Tigers, 29-6. With the setback, Florida fell to 5-3 overall, 2-2 in the Southeastern Conference, extinguishing its SEC title hopes. The Tigers improved to 7-0-1, 3-0-1 in the SEC.

Instead of the usual commentary I provide every Tuesday following a Gator game, I have decided to let the students of the University of Florida do the talking. After all, they are the experts on Gator football.

Brent, sophomore Mechanical Engineering major: "Being of sound mind and body (and being a Boston Red Sox fan and Big 10 Rose Bowl rooster) I wasn't surprised that Florida choked in the big game, just like Georgia in 1984. While I didn't expect Emmitt to gain more than 100 yards against the Auburn defense, I had hoped that Florida's receivers would catch a touchdown pass.

"In most games, big plays decide the outcome, and this was true Saturday. The breaks went Auburn's way and so did victory. On a closing note, I heard a rumor that (receiver) Ernie Mills is near Lake City still running off that dropped touchdown pass."

Brian, sophomore Accounting major: "The main objective of the evening was to establish the Gators' offensive attack. When Kerwin Bell's initial pass was thrown incomplete, my brain began to bulge. My tongue managed to hit the floor and my eyes hit the TV. Looking back, I managed to remain conscious for the first half, and fortunately for me the second half was filled with other strange events. The Gators let me down."

Chris, junior Journalism major: "Torture. Agony. Ernie Mills should be taken out to Florida Field at midnight, held down by the receiving corps, and horse-whipped by Kerwin Bell. Watch the Sugar in the Bowl evaporate for the Gator."

"Did you ever notice that Auburn outside linebacker Aundray Bruce looks like Grace Jones on a three-year steroid binge? Football all over."

Kenny, junior Physical Education major: "Being a true orange and blue Gator fan, I had a valid indisputable reason for the humiliation Florida suffered against Auburn. Knowing that the Gators have won the previous three meetings during the day and considering Florida's jinx at night games on ESPN, they switched the game to a night contest which, hence, caused un-Florida-like errors. Not to mention Auburn's use of what I thought were ineligible players. Hey, let's get Nattie, Collinsworth, John L. Williams and Wilbur Marshall for next year's Auburn game."

Erik, sophomore Psychology major: "I don't watch football. It is a barbaric excuse for men to bodily harm others while ingesting large doses of steroids. It is dehumanizing and destroys the graciousness and frailty of life. Besides, I was at a National Rifle Association meeting."

As you can see, Florida students really know a lot about college football, especially the Gators. But nobody really knows what happened on Halloween night in Auburn.

NOTES — Now for some real statistics from the Auburn game. Emmitt Smith's 72-yards versus Auburn was his lowest output since he gained only 16 yards against Miami in the season opener. The Gators are now 0-2 in games where Smith has rushed for less than 100 yards. For the year, Smith has 1,083 yards. Representatives from eight bowl committees attended the Auburn-Florida game: The All-American Bowl, Fiesta Bowl, Florida Citrus Bowl, Gator Bowl, Hall of Fame Bowl, Orange Bowl, Peach Bowl and Sugar Bowl. There has been some talk that the Sugar Bowl this year may pit LSU against Auburn.

Seminole High and Kissimmee Gateway, two teams that have never met on the volleyball court before and know absolutely nothing about each other, will meet tonight at 7 at Orlando Jones High in the first round of the 3A-6 District Tournament.

Seminole, 7-13 during the regular season, takes a two-match winning streak into the district. The Lady Noles hope playing in a tough mostly 4A conference will help them against district foes who play mostly 3A and 2A opponents.

"Whatever it takes to win the match we'll do it," Seminole coach Beth Corso said. "We want to keep the roll going that we're on and keep everybody playing well."

Lady Rams, Hawks Battle In Opener

By Chris Pister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary and Lake Howell, two teams plagued by inconsistency throughout the 1987 season, will look to end their rollercoaster ride on the upswing Wednesday night as they battle in the first round of the 4A-9 District Tournament at Lake Mary High School.

The tourney opens Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. with No. 3 seed and defending champion Spruce Creek taking on Lyman, No. 2 Lake Brantley vs. Daytona Mainland at 5:45 and No. 4 Lake Howell and fifth seed Lake Mary collide at 7. No. 1 seed DeLand drew a first-round bye. Semifinals are Thursday night at 4:30 and 5:45 and the finals are Thursday night at 7:30.

Lake Mary, which finished the regular season at 9-10, is not only looking for steady play, but the Lady Rams are also after their first ever district tournament victory. Lake Mary is 0-7 in district play since the school opened.

"Lake Howell and us went through the same kind of season so maybe we'll both show up and have a good game," Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said. "Hopefully, we'll have put the bad part of our season behind us and our district luck will change."

The Lady Rams have several senior standouts along with some up and coming talent on the team. The seniors include co-captains Valerie Smith and Lora Splatt, Brooke Taylor, Marnie Frey, Karin King and Sherril Alderson. Henry will also look for good play from sophomores Crissie Snow, Tammy Scott and Terri Peters and junior Faraw Mirza.

Henry used a few changes in the lineup in the regular-season finale against Spruce Creek and it worked out well as the Lady Rams won the match. Lake Mary and Lake Howell split their two meetings during the regular season.

"I think it will be good match," Henry said. "The girls are excited about it. They feel good about the win over Spruce Creek last week and are looking good in practice. I feel good about the game if they show up with that kind of attitude."

Cowboys Upend Giants

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys played Monday night like they used to play, before the ravages of time and ill will turned them into just another football team.

The New York Giants, however, looked a long way from the form they displayed in winning the Super Bowl last January.

That combination brought about an improbable 33-24 Dallas victory over the Giants in something of a milestone contest for both teams. The result meant the Cowboys have hopes for the playoffs and the Giants don't.

"It was a great win for us, one of our better team efforts," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who had seen his team all but collapse last week in its first post-strike outing. "We could have folded, but we didn't."

Dallas could have folded when it fell behind by 10 points on the opening play of the fourth quarter. Instead, the Cowboys put together a wild final period that included:

— Four turnovers, all of them inside New York territory.

Volleyball

In other first round games, defending champion Oviedo plays Bishop Moore at 4 p.m., Edgewater and St. Cloud battle at 5:30 and the winner of Monday's opening-round game plays Kissimmee Osceola at 8:30. The semifinals will be Wednesday night at 6 and 7:30 and Thursday's championship is at 7.

"The bracketing is fine with me even though we don't know anything about Gateway," Corso said. "If we would have beaten Osceola late in the season, we would be in the same bracket with Oviedo. I don't want to be in Oviedo's bracket. The ideal situation is for us and Oviedo to meet in the final, but we're only worried about Gateway right now."

Kissimmee Gateway, the newest school in Osceola County, enjoyed pretty good success while playing Class 2A opponents most of the season. The Lady Panthers, however, were ruled to have too many students to compete in a 2A district and were thrust into District 3A-6 less than two weeks before the tournament was to begin.

"The FHSAA held a special meeting and let Gateway into our district," Corso said. "I don't know their exact record, but it was good enough to get the second seed in the tournament."

While not knowing anything about Gateway doesn't help, Corso believes the Lady Seminoles will do just fine if they do three things. "Attack, attack and attack."

In the last two games of the season

Seminole had its attack going full throttle. The passing from the back row was excellent while setters Heather Brown and Bobbie Osborne put the ball on the mark and Liz Long, Adrian Hillsman and Cindy Bengt put down several kills. Kim Walsh, injured late in the season, is expected to play in the tournament while Rachelle Denmark, Yolanda Baker and Kerry Foselius provide the strength in the back row.

"Our back row people have been real patient this year," Corso said. "The don't get much recognition, but they have been putting the ball right into the setters hands and that enables the setters to do a much better job."

"We feel we're ready going into the tournament," added Corso. "But if I have to make any changes, I won't hesitate to do so."

Like Lake Mary, Lake Howell also experienced its ups and downs during the regular season. The Lady Silver Hawks were at their best in two victories over powerful Lake Brantley, but they also lost matches they were favored to win.

Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano said having a week to prepare for the match has been beneficial for her team.

"We needed the time off after playing games back to back most of the season," Luciano said. "With the extra time we've had to prepare, we've really concentrated on the strengths and weaknesses of Lake Mary. We've done a lot more chalk talks than anything. At this point the skills are pretty well set, we just hope for the psychological peak."

When Lake Howell is at its best it can attack as well as anyone with senior setters Tammy Lewis and Eva Miranda running the offense and seniors Susan Hayden, Stormi Littrell and Carey Manuel doing the hitting. Junior Heather Brann has been a steady all-around player for the Lady Hawks while seniors Rixja Millwood and Pam Jones and sophomore Dana Boyesen add strength off the bench.

"We feel real good going in," Luciano said. "I think the district is up for grabs. Whoever is on will come out as the district champion."

The team that has been the hottest in Seminole County over the last two weeks of the season is Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots. In her second year, coach Stephanie Glance guided the Lady Patriots from a 5-15 record a Going into this season, these NFL head coaches had accumulated the most time on the job at that level. Tom Landry, 63, the only head coach in the history of the Dallas Cowboys, is now in his 28th season with the team.

— Two tipped passes by defensive end Ed Jones, both of which were turned into interceptions. One of those interceptions was returned 26 yards for a tying touchdown by Jim Jeffcoat.

— Four field goals by Roger Ruzek, equalling an NFL record for one quarter.

The fourth-quarter flurry produced 19 points and rallied the Cowboys to one of their most important victories of the decade.

Instead of heading toward the kind of collapse that haunted them in 1986 during their first losing season in 20 years, the Cowboys are now 4-3 and in decent shape for a playoff spot.

Oklahoma Holds No. 1 Position

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oklahoma and Nebraska topped an elite nine that flexed its muscle over the weekend and today was rewarded by the United Press International Board of Coaches by heading the Top 20.

No. 1 Oklahoma and No. 2 Nebraska held the spots they have resided in since the pre-season, with their showdown for the Big Eight title and a trip to the Orange Bowl Nov. 21 in Lincoln, Neb., approaching. Oklahoma garnered 741 of a possible 750 points and 43 of the 50 first-place votes awarded by the coaches. Nebraska obtained five No. 1 selections and 697 points. As it has since Week 4 of the season, Miami nestled behind the Big Eight powers at No. 3, earning 653 points and one first-place vote.

The rest of the top-nine teams remained the same with a minor alteration in position: No. 4 Florida State flipped spots with No. 5 Louisiana State. No. 6 Auburn, No. 7 UCLA, No. 8 Syracuse and No. 9 Notre Dame all maintained their position from the previous week.

The top nine, with the exception of UCLA's 31-23 triumph over Arizona State, all won by at least 14 points. The combined record of the fantastic nine is 64-3-2.

"There certainly are a lot of outstanding teams out there," said Don Kubit, a member of the Orange Bowl team selection committee.

Clemson climbed two notches to No. 10, No. 11 Georgia bettered itself by three, No. 12 Oklahoma State soared four, and No. 13 Michigan State and No. 14 South Carolina each shot up five.

No. 15 Alabama inched two positions and No. 16 Penn State was the only new member of the Top 20. No. 17 Indiana collapsed seven positions, Florida, falling six spots, and Arkansas, gaining two, shared No. 18. No. 20 Tennessee plummeted seven notches to close the ratings.

Six Southeastern Conference teams highlighted the ratings.

County Has 3 Boys In Top 4

Seminole County now has three of the top four individuals in the state in the Class 4A boys rankings. Lyman High sophomore Teddy Mitchell maintained his No. 2 ranking in the state while Lake Mary senior Brad Smith moved from eighth to second by finishing second in last week's Seminole Athletic Conference Championships. Lyman junior Nick Radkewich, third at the SAC meet, moved from third to fourth in the state rankings. Largo's Pat McDonough remained the state's top-ranked runner.

As far as the Class 4A team rankings go, the only change in the top 10 was Miami Jackson moving into the No. 10 spot. Lyman High remained No. 5 in the state while Lake Mary maintained its No. 7 ranking.

LAKE HOWELL GIRLS STAY FIFTH

In the Class 4A girls rankings, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks, defending state champions, remained No. 5 in the state behind Brandon, Pensacola Washington, Coral Springs and Tampa Leto. The Lady Hawks won their third consecutive Seminole Athletic Conference title this past Thursday.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots have been in and out of the poll all season and this week they are out again. Brantley, 10th in last week's rankings, finished third in the SAC meet behind Lake Howell and Lake Mary.

St. Petersburg Seminole, ranked ninth, makes its first appearance in the state poll while Boca Raton Spanish River moved into the 10th slot.

Allison Has Winning In Mind

MORENO VALLEY, Ca. — Miller American driver Bobby Allison enters the Winston Western 500 race week at Riverside International Raceway with winning and points on his mind.

Allison is engaged in a tight battle with several competitors for a top-10 spot in the 1987 final point standings with only the Riverside race and Nov. 22 Atlanta finale remaining.

"A top-10 finish in the points is a major goal for the remainder of the season," said Allison. "A Riverside win is the immediate target."

Easy Wins For Sukova, Potter

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Helena Sukova and Barbara Potter, intent upon denying their opponents all hope, opened the $250,000 Virginia Slims of New England Monday with easy victories.

Fourth-seeded Sukova of Czechoslovakia needed only 50 minutes to dispatch Kathryn Keil of Los Angeles 6-1, 6-1, and No. 7 Potter of Woodbury, Conn., easily defeated Vicki Nelson, Dumbur of North Ridgeville, Ohio 6-2, 6-2.

"It's absolutely phenomenal how much better an opponent can play if you give them encouragement with mistakes and sloppy play," said the 26-year-old Potter, who allowed only five games in the match to last more than six points.

"You want the other players to respect you," said Sukova, 22, who ruffled seven aces and held serve throughout the match.

"The next time she plays me, she will remember this match," Sukova, a finalist at the U.S. Open this year and in 1986, took a 4-0 lead in the opening set, allowing Keil, 24, only two points in the first three games.

"I just didn't let her get into the match at all," the seventh-ranked player in the world said.

Potter, who has reached the quarterfinals at Wimbledon

Racing

"If we can win at Riverside, we'll obviously be in the best position entering the Atlanta race."

A victory would vault Allison back to the top of the Riverside statistical page, a position he held for five years until 1987.

Allison, whose six career wins at Riverside are the most by any driver, trails Darrell Waltrip by a mere $1,810 to top the career money-winnings column at Riverside. Waltrip has $324,245 to Allison's $322,435.

Allison also has recorded 16 top-five finishes and 22 top-10 finishes in his 39 starts on the 4.215-kilometer road course.

A 1:30 p.m. qualifying session Nov. 6 will determine the first 25 starting positions. The final 15 spots will be determined at an 11 a.m. time trial session Saturday.

Sunday's $398,120 Winston Western 500 (119 laps) televised live on WTBS-TV, will start at noon PST at Riverside International Raceway.

Tennis

Three times, broke Nelson-Dunbar, from North Ridgeville, Ohio, once in the first set, and twice in the second, while allowing only one break of her own serve.

"When things are going well and the tennis is turning me on, there's nothing like it," Potter said. "It's like driving a fast car."

Sukova and Potter were the only seeded players scheduled to play Monday. Top-seed Chris Evert, No. 2 Pam Shriver, and No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini will play their first-round matches today.

In other first-round matches, Helen Kelesi of Canada, defeated Tina Machizuki of South Pasadena, Calif., 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, and Etsuko Inoue of Japan beat Iwona Kuczyńska of Poland 6-2, 7-6 (7-2).

Brenda Schultz of The Netherlands reached the main draw of the tournament by eliminating Erika deLone of Lincoln, Mass., 6-4, 6-2.

CHAMPION UPSETS GOMEZ

PARIS (UPI) — Fourth seed Andres Gomez fell in straight sets to Frenchman Thierry Champion, ranked 160th in the world, and No. 8 David Pate also was upset Monday during the opening round of the $415,000 Paris Open tennis tournament.

Champion, gaining the biggest victory of his career, defeated Gomez, 6-3, 6-4, while Pate, of Las Vegas, Nev., dropped a 7-6 (4-7), 6-2, 6-2 decision to Eduardo Bengochea of Argentina.

In other first-round matches, Israel's Amos Mansdorf dominated Scott Davis of Bardonia, Fla., 6-3, 6-3. Slobodan Zivonjovic of Yugoslavia ousted Soviet Andrei Chesnokov, 6-2, 7-6 (8-6), and Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland defeated Johan Kriek of Naples, Fla., 6-3, 6-2.

In evening matches, Henri Lecointe of France battled countryman Jean Philippe Fleurant and sixth seed Tim Mayotte of Bradenton, Fla., faced Gilad Bloom of Israel.

"In the last few months of the year the tournaments are more open because the top guys have played many weeks and are getting tired," Mansdorf said in explanation of the two upsets. "I think there are going to be a lot of upsets in this tournament."

Champion, slightly bothered by torn thigh muscles suffered while preparing for the tournament, captured "my best win ever."

Rogers Takes 50-Lapper

NEW SMYRNA BEACH: David Rogers drove the Wayne Densch Budweiser Firebird to victory in the 50-lap End of the Month Championship on Saturday, Halloween night, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Running strong in the Comp-Air Pontiac, Greg Froemming stayed right with Rogers all the way to score a second place finish, just ahead of second fastest qualifier Stan Eads in the Bent Oak Golf Club car. Joe Middleton and Billy Gast were fourth and fifth.

With Don L. Burkhalter celebrating his birthday by winning the Limited Late Model man on Saturday, while Chuck Burkhalter did the same in a wild 100-lapper on Friday night at Speed World, the weekend belonged to the Burkhalter clan and their sponsor Merkes Auto Parts.

In Florida Modified action, Gary Salvatore scored his second victory of the weekend as he bested Jeff Blehr and Ben Booth across the finish line. Fourth was Kristal Loescher.

Just back from a $18,500 victory in the World 500 Enduro in Gaffney, S.C., Mike Kubark, 42, won the roadrunner feature and took his second track championship in three years of racing.

Ed Meredith won the Sportsman main and clinched the track title, with Jerry Symons accomplishing the same feat in the Four Cylinder division.

The "A" Bomber feature went to Michael Williams who crossed the finish line on a flat right front tire. Donnie Funk won the "B" Bomber finale.

Dolphins Re-sign Nathan

MIAMI (UPI) — Staggered by injuries in the offensive backfield, the Miami Dolphins Monday re-signed running back Tony Nathan, whom they cut during training camp after eight years with the team.

Nathan, the fourth-leading rusher in Miami history and No. 2 pass catcher, signed late Monday. Two Miami running backs — Lorenzo Hampton and Tom Brown — were injured during Sunday's 35-24 victory over Pittsburgh.

Hampton suffered a concussion while Brown injured a knee and will be placed on injured reserve.

NOLL NOT SATISFIED WITH STEELERS

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Noll said people satisfied with the team's 4-3 record this season are deceiving themselves.

The Steelers, coming of a combined 13-19 mark and consecutive third-place finishes in the AFC Central Division the last two seasons, currently are just one game off the division lead, tied with the defending champion Cleveland Browns. The Houston Oilers are in first place at 5-2, while the Cincinnati Bengals have slumped to 2-5.

But Monday, Noll expressed his displeasure with the Steelers after they lost to the Miami Dolphins Sunday 35-24 at Joe Robbie Stadium.

"I'll tell you where I'm coming from," Noll said. "I had great expectations for this football team. I think we can do much better than we're doing right now."

Boxer's Widow Close To Settling Major Lawsuit

Classen's Death Brings Reforms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two ring-side doctors and a referee agreed to settle a suit and pay damages reaching six figures to the widow of a boxer whose death after a fight led to major reforms in the sport, the widow's lawyer said.

Willie Classen, a middleweight, lapsed into a coma from which he never recovered after being knocked out in the 10th round of a Nov. 23, 1979, bout in Madison Square Garden against Wilford Scypton.

The Bronx boxer, whose record was 16-7-2, was badly battered in the ninth round but the referee and ring-side doctors allowed the fight to continue.

A day later, Classen, 29, died following brain surgery.

Joseph Napoli, the attorney for Classen's widow, Marilyn, disclosed Monday she received an out-of-court settlement Friday as lawyers began selecting a jury.

He declined to reveal the exact terms of the settlement but said it was a "six-figure" award.

The settlement, however, must be approved by a state judge.

"It's a significant breakthrough in terms of professional athletes ability to sue and in terms of boxing safety," Napoli said.

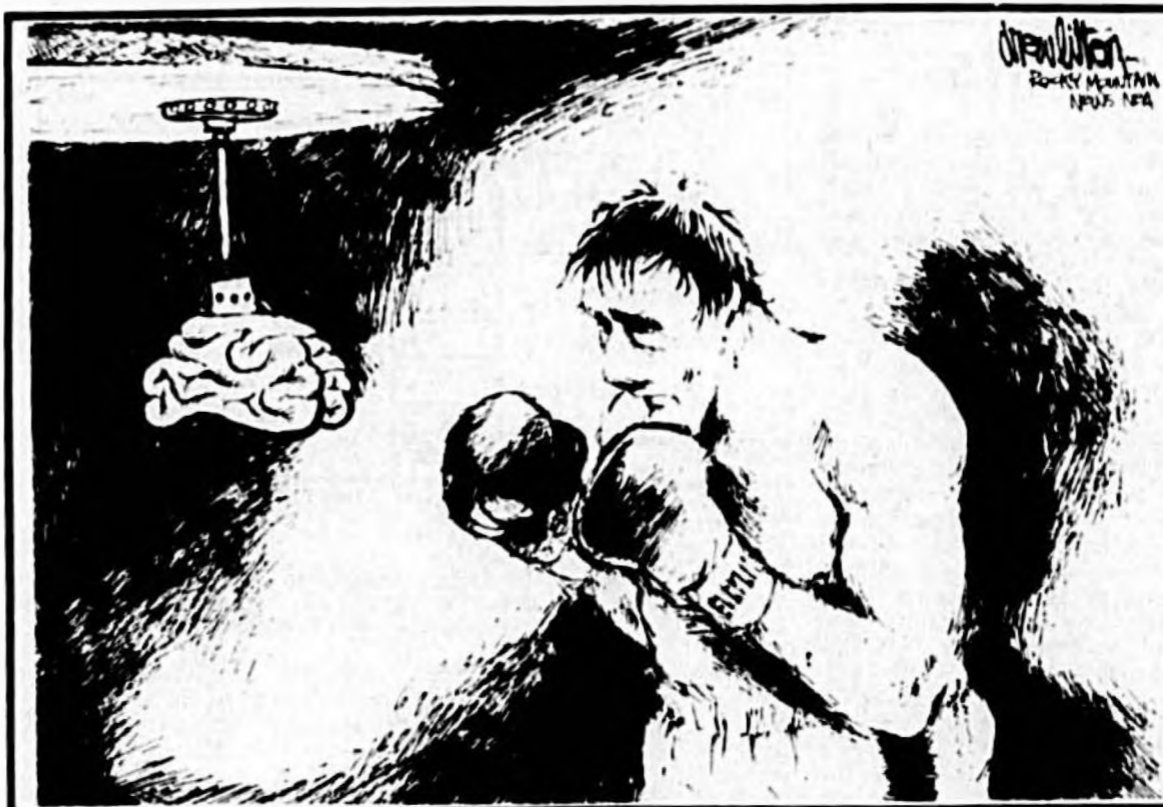

The settlement came after state Supreme Court Justice Helen Freedman of Manhattan refused last week to toss out a lawsuit filed by Marilyn Classen against the ring-side doctors and referee. She ruled Madison Square Garden was not liable but Classen's widow had planned to appeal the ruling.

Classen's widow sued the ring-side physicians, Richard Izquierdo and Roger Warner, and referee Lewis Eskin as well as the doctors who examined the boxer before the fight, claiming they were negligent. She also sued Madison Square Garden for having "faulty emergency equipment."

In all, she wanted $500 million for wrongful death.

Classen was paid $1,500 for the fight against Scypton, a rising contender who was unbeaten in 12 fights.

After the fight, it was discovered Classen was badly beaten in a bout a little over a month earlier in England against Tony Sibson.

Classen and his manager, Marco Minuto, had told the New York State Athletic Commission the fight in England had been stopped because of cuts, but British press accounts said the boxer was battered throughout and knocked down twice before the fight was stopped in the second round.

An autopsy performed by city Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Elliot Gross said Classen had died from "an acute subdural hematoma (blood clot in the head)," but the coroner was unable to determine if any previous bouts contributed to his death.

Gov. Hugh Carey ordered an investigation and State Sen. Roy Goodman headed a committee looking into the matter. The committee found Classen's death was "a preventable tragedy."

The committee called for an immediate suspension of boxing in New York until a six-point program to protect boxers was enacted.

The boxing commission adopted all the recommendations, including mandatory neurological training courses for physicians, referees and supervisory officials and the use of CAT scans for boxers.

Classen's cornermen, Al LaCava and Mike Capriano, and Eskin were suspended for six months.

UCF, which has remaining games with Liberty, Florida A&M and Morningside, can clinch a spot in the Division II playoffs, its first playoff berth ever, by finishing in the top eight in the poll. UCF is heavily favored to win this week's game against Liberty at the Orlando Citrus Bowl.

Pitino Faces Tough Task In N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rick Pitino, who grew up a block from the old Madison Square Garden rooting for the Knicks, now gets a chance to actually do something about the team.

And it won't be easy. He inherits a club that has not had a winning season since 1984. The Knicks went 84 days without a general manager and 89 without a coach after firing Scotty Stirling and Bob Hill following last season. They had no coach or GM for the college draft.

Pitino spent the last two years at Providence College, where he rebuilt a broken basketball program and guided the Friars to the Final Four last season.

Joining Pitino with new coaching jobs this season are Bill Russell (Sacramento), John Wetzel (Phoenix), John MacLeod (Dallas), Del Harris (Milwaukee) and Gene Shue (Los Angeles Clippers).

Pitino, 35, is the youngest coach in the NBA.

"I want them (Knicks) to work as hard as they can, and I want to work as hard as I can," he said. "Hard work always pays off."

Basketball

Pitino intends to use a pressing defense. He also wants better passing to invigorate an offense that finished last in the NBA in scoring.

"On defense, we're wearing people down," he said. "We're always pressing. It's not one guy pressing and the other guys resting."

"This team will be a very good passing team, a very good motion team, and they will enjoy the chemistry playing with each other. The adversity they've been through will make them tougher and make them enjoy winning more because they've been at the bottom."

Pitino served as the Knicks assistant under Hubie Brown from 1983-85. Pitino realizes coaching professionals requires a different approach.

"In college, you teach the team as a whole," he said. "In the pros, you have to show each individual how he can elevate his game."

Russell, who won two NBA championships as a player-coach with the Boston Celtics, plans to coach for a few seasons then move into the front office. Willis Reed, the assistant coach, will then take over.

Wetzel was an assistant under MacLeod for eight seasons before taking over a Phoenix team struck by a drug scandal last season. Wetzel's only previous head-coaching experience in the pros came in 1978-79 in the Western Basketball Association.

"They (Suns) are playing together on the floor," Wetzel said after the first week of practice. "They've tried to put the conflicts behind them. It appears it's going to work."

MacLeod guided the Suns for 14 seasons before being fired during last season. He takes over a Dallas squad that is one of the league's most talented. The Mavericks won 55 games in winning the Midwest Division but lost in the first round of the playoffs to Seattle. "This is a team on the move," MacLeod said. "Whether we can repeat (winning 55 games), I don't know."

Harris becomes only the third coach in the history of the Bucks franchise. He replaces Don Nelson, who coached Milwaukee for 11 seasons. Harris scouted for the Bucks before being named assistant coach last season. He guided Houston from 1979-83.

"We're going to dig and scratch and be the best team we can be," Harris said.

Shue will work the sidelines for a team that finished 12-70, the worst record in the NBA last season. But the Clippers picked up three first-round draft selections in Reggie Williams, Joe Wolf and Ken Norman.

Shue has coached in the NBA for 20 seasons, leading Baltimore, Philadelphia, San Diego and Washington. Fortunately for him, the only place the Clippers can move is up. "I love this challenge," Shue said. "My preference is always to develop young players."

Peters: Tribe Fans Be Patient

Baseball

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Hank Peters, named president and chief operating officer of the Indians, Monday told Cleveland fans to be "patient a little bit longer" and they can expect a winner.

Peters, 63, United Press International's major league executive of the year in 1979 when he was Baltimore's general manager and the Indians' director of player personnel from 1966 to 1971, said he would assume full duties on his three-year contract later this month.

He was released by the Orioles Oct. 5.

The job as president of the Indians had been vacant since Peter Bavasi resigned in March. Vice presidents Dan O'Brien and Joe Klein ran the club in the interim.

The Indians, who have not won a league or division title since 1954, had baseball's worst record (61-101) in 1987.

"I don't believe in five-year plans, three-year plans or two-year plans. I believe in winning as soon as you can," he said. "I think that's one of the things fans expect. We will do everything possible to get there (to the top of the division) as quickly as we possibly can."

As for what to tell Cleveland fans, who have been waiting for a World Series for 33 years, Peters said: "Be patient a little bit longer. What else can you say. You can't accomplish things overnight."

Three Indians, Brook Jacoby, Joe Carter and Cory Snyder, hit at least 30 home runs in 1987 and the club batting average was .263, but the problem was the pitching staff, which compiled a league-high ERA of 5.28.

"I can see the nucleus of a good ballclub," Peters said. "When I look at the stats, I don't like to see that the Indians were last in pitching and last in defense."

Richard Jacobs, who with his brother David bought the Indians 11 months ago, said Peters was "selected above all."

"I am pleased, that after a long search, to obtain the services of the highly qualified and professional Hank Peters," Jacobs said.

Jacobs, whose firm the J.V.J. Co. is making major investments in downtown Cleveland, said moves must be made to build a winner.

Bullets Trade Vincent To Nuggets

Basketball

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Washington Bullets, one day after acquiring Bernard King, traded forward Jay Vincent and guard Michael Adams to the Denver Nuggets Monday for guard Darrell Walker and forward Mark Alarie.

The Bullets also announced the signing of veteran free-agent guard Frank Johnson, who worked last season as the team's starting point guard before being sidelined for 64 games with injuries.

Walker, a teammate of King's on the New York Knicks until he was traded to the Nuggets during training camp last season, provides the Bullets with a solid defensive guard to complement Jeff Malone in the backcourt.

Walker, 6-foot-4, averaged 12.2 points and started the final 23 games for Denver, twice scoring a career-high 39 points. He was an NBA all-rookie selection after the 1983-84 season with New York. Alarie, the 18th pick in last year's draft, averaged 7.9 points and 3.3 rebounds.

Vincent, a seven-year veteran, became expendable to the Bullets when they acquired King, the former NBA scoring leader. King, a free agent, played only six games last season with Knicks and is returning from major knee surgery.

Washington acquired Vincent in a trade with Dallas last season. But he suffered a ruptured tendon in his right ring finger during the Bullets' first exhibition game and did not play in the initial 30 games of the season. He averaged 13.3 points in 31 games last season. The Bullets drafted 5-foot-3 guard Tyrone Bogues with their first-round pick.

NBA Capsules

ATLANTIC DIVISION
Boston Celtics — Coach — R. C. Jones (5th year) — Last year — 59-23, 1st in Atlantic Division. Playoff finish — Eliminated by Los Angeles Lakers 4-2 in NBA final. — Strengths — Larry Bird, the league's best forward, is the soul of the Celtics. Seven-foot Robert Parish and a 10 Kevin McHale comprise the All-Star frontcourt. Guards Dennis Johnson and Danny Ainge round out starting line-up that complements each other eloquently on the court, but have played a lot of minutes and are getting older. — Weaknesses — Age, bench and McHale's return from a stress fracture in his right foot. The forward is expected back by December. For the past two years, Boston has been the league's oldest team. Jones' lack of confidence in his bench forced the starters to play more minutes than any other five. — Outlook — Should be able to hold off Atlanta and Detroit for another year if newcomers Reggie Lewis and Brad Lohaus can fulfill early promise. Bird lifted weights during the summer and that probably will make him better.

Philadelphia 76ers — Coach — Matt Gupton (3rd year) — Last year — 45-37, 2nd in Atlantic Division. Playoff finish — Eliminated by Milwaukee 3-2 in Eastern Conference semifinals. — Strengths — Maurice Cheeks, one of the best playmakers in league and forward corps anchored by Charles Barkley, top rebounder in NBA last season, and Roy Hinson. — Weaknesses — Center position. Tim McCormick started 78 games last year but reminds no one of Jeff Ruland, whose career was ended by injury after he played only five games for 7ers. Andrew Toney must recover from chronic foot problems or David Wingate has to improve greatly as shooter to give team outside range if needs to open inside for Barkley. — Outlook — If team is not decimated by injuries, Philadelphia has enough talent to again finish second in Atlantic and advance to Eastern Conference final.

year ago to an impressive 18-7 mark this year.

"We have a good feeling about the district," Glance said. "We're taking it one match at a time, but we're not going to forget the ultimate goal we are working toward."

Lake Brantley has a potent offensive attack led by juniors Dawn Gebhart and Pam Wittig and seniors Kim Gunderson and Wendy Vickery. Sophomore setter Marianne Rodriguez has done an excellent job running the show while sophomore Jeanne Seidel is the back row specialist and junior Gretchen Mull and senior Heather Meyer lend strength off the bench.

"Our intensity is something we have to keep up," Glance said. "And we have to keep attacking the ball because that's our strength."

"The kids have put in a lot of hard work to get where they are," added Glance. "They've been really dedicated and I've pushed them and they've responded very well. The hard work has paid off."

DeLand's Lady Bulldogs are in search of their fourth district title in the last five years. DeLand made the final a year ago but lost to Spruce Creek. The Lady Bulldogs have two of the more powerful players in the area in senior C.C. Hayden and sophomore Renee Bellamy. DeLand hopes to use that power and consistent serving to make the finals for the fifth year in a row.

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower Tuesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues as investors healdated after five straight days of gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 20.56 Monday, was off 36.64 to 1977.45 shortly after the market opened.

Declines outnumbered advances 848-343 among the 1,585 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 21,328,000 shares.

The widely followed Dow Monday surpassed the 2,000 level as the stock market snapped a streak of sharp losses that had marked the first day of trading in the past two weeks.

The past two Mondays had seen the market's two worst single-session drops in history: 506 points on Black Monday and 157 points a week later.

Traders and analysts said the stock market's comeback Monday after opening lower was a positive sign.

"At this point, anything that approaches relative stability is to be welcomed," said Trude Latimer of Josephthal & Co.

"Sanity is returning," she said. "It's a matter of getting back to a normal market environment now, although the bears are still keeping everybody a little nervous."

from $15,648 to $15,226. The commission also raised the cap (the highest amount that can be obtained on a salary level) from $18,684 to $22,839.

Minns said that although the starting salary was lowered it doesn't mean Lauderdale has to start them there. "If they (new officers) come to us with experience they can start at a higher salary," Minns said.

In an interview with the Sanford Herald in September, Lauderdale said he was trying to do the best he could to retain officers on the force, but that he felt his department was becoming a training ground for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. He said he couldn't keep developing new officers and then having them move on to more lucrative positions outside the city if Lake Mary hoped to continue having a "quality police force" in the future.

"It's pretty darn clear that they're (city police officers) readily finding jobs that pay more," Mahoney said.

He added though, that he didn't think it would be fair to just look at the salaries of the police department during a review, but that the

Dollar Goes Down Gold Follows Suit

The dollar opened lower today on major foreign currency markets, falling to a historic low against the German mark. Gold was slightly lower.

In Frankfurt the dollar began the day trading at 1.712 German marks, down from Monday's close of 1.7135.

By midday the dollar plunged to a historic low as the dollar's middle rate against the German mark was officially set at 1.705 marks.

The previous record low was set on Jan. 3, 1980, when the dollar touched the 1.7082-mark level.

Traders in Frankfurt noted that only 12 days ago, the dollar was holding above the 1.80-mark level.

In Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.4145 Swiss francs, down from 1.4193. A dealer noted the dollar opening was an all-time low and added, "We see the dollar going even lower."

Gold opened unchanged in Zurich at $470 an ounce and lost 50 cents in London to $469.75 an ounce.

Stocks Fall In London

An early rally on the London stock exchange collapsed Tuesday, undermined by the sliding dollar, which fell to a historic low against the German mark. The Hong Kong market, battered after the Oct. 29 "Black Monday" plunge of Wall Street prices, also failed to sustain an early rally, closing 60 points down from the day's high.

The Sydney, Australia, market closed higher, while Frankfurt stock prices fell for the second day. Tokyo was closed because of a national holiday.

The dollar's value fell to 1.7050 West German marks, slightly below the previous record on Jan. 3, 1980. The dollar's continued slide apparently cut short an early rally on the London stock market.

By early afternoon, the Financial Times "100" share index fell 49.9 to 1673.8 and the "Top 30" share index was 40.2 points lower to 1302.5. Glaxo, Imperial Chemicals, Jaguar and Coats Vyella registered losses from 33 cents to 74 cents.

The church was seeking permission to construct a 3,600 sq. ft. church building and a 3,600 sq. ft. social hall building. The buildings are designed to accommodate approximately 125 persons each. Church officials said the buildings would not be used at the same time.

One of the concerns expressed was the impact a church would have on traffic on Rangeline Road, but St. Stephens' Senior Warden Steve Gidus of Chuluota said the church is small and there is an average of only 30 cars coming to the church on any Sunday. Gidus said he was under the impression the hearing would be tabled.

Nagle had estimated 90 to 100 cars.

Frank Shelton of 14 Stonegate Road, Meadowridge, said it would be "grossly unfair" to table the request. He listed reasons for opposing granting the conditional use as: it would set a precedent for residential zoning; it would be incompatible with surrounding residential area; it would cause a public safety problem; would create traffic congestion; and would landlock adjacent property.

The church sold its building on South Street in Fern Park, but the purchaser has had problems getting zoning for a proposed shopping center.

In relation to another controversial project, Smerilson challenged an opinion by City Attorney Michael Kramer that allowed a rezoning issue to be tabled until Nov. 16 rather than also deciding on two charter amendments, one which would allow the city manager to be fired by three council votes instead of four, and the other to select a city accountant six months into the fiscal year instead of the present 30 days.

Precinct 33 at the Sanford Civic Center reported 33 voters by mid-morning, which pollworkers said is far below normal. There are no city elections in Sanford, however, as all voters in the county Sanford voters are deciding the fate of the proposed one-cent local sales tax levy.

Polling places will remain open until 7 p.m.

One Killed In Hospital Fire

MIAMI (UPI) — A small fire in a patient room at Jackson Memorial Hospital early today killed one person and forced partial evacuation of one floor at the city's busiest medical facility.

The fire broke out at 7:30 a.m., triggering an automatic alarm and the sprinkler system, which quickly doused the blaze on the top floor of the west wing, the officials said.

"We do have a fatality," said Christie Hickman, spokeswoman for the Miami Fire Department. "It was the patient in whose room the fire started."

Hospital officials have not released information on the fire or the victim.

Hickman said Miami Fire Department crews arrived at the large hospital four minutes after the automatic alarm sounded, and their equipment was not necessary.

"Upon our responding, the hospital personnel had kicked into gear and were in the process of evacuating the 15th floor," Hickman said.

Officials said most of the damage was confined to the patient's room, although water from the sprinklers remained on the floor, forcing the evacuation.

The fire broke out on the 15th floor of the west wing in the city's largest medical facility.

SWAT Team To Test Skills

The Seminole County SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics Team) is competing in Orange County this week in the annual SWAT Round-Up which draws SWAT teams from across the nation to test their skills against other SWAT teams.

These specialized units, which are form by law enforcement agencies to deal with criminals when a strong show of force is needed, will be testing their marksmanship, team work, and endurance in the meet.

The Seminole County SWAT Team is comprised of officers from the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and Sanford, Longwood and Altamonte Springs police department.

Seminole County Commander Lt. Mary LaBuciano said he expects about 45 teams to compete in the events, which will end Friday. The meet is set at the Orange County Sheriff's Firearms Range in east Orange County.

me." Phillips told Eaton before he pronounced sentence. "I still know they probably couldn't find a place in their hearts to forgive me," she said.

"McGinnis had told the court that he wanted Phillips to be given the maximum punishment possible by law, and more so if possible. He said that his wife had been the center of the love and joy in the house that he and his 21-year-old daughter and 18-year-old son had lived in for 22 years. "It's changed their lives since the murder of McGinnis the love's there, but the good love is gone," McGinnis said.

Eaton said "It's not possible to do justice" in any case involving the death of a human being at the hand of another, as he handed down Phillip's sentence.

He said it was frustrating to know the state Department of Health didn't have sufficient facilities to take care of cases like Phillip's. "I guess corrections and mental health aren't high priorities with the state," he said.

Eaton said that because Phillip was an active participant in the crime, and because of the violence involved he thought sentencing her as an adult was appropriate. He said that part of the requirements of her future probation will include her being treated for her chemical abuse and psychological problems. She must also obtain either a Florida High School diploma or General Education Diploma.

Attorney's for both sides said they felt the sentence was sufficient in Phillip's case, although Hastings said it was not necessarily sufficient for the type of crime involved. "I think it would be difficult to say we're (defense attorneys) disappointed by the outcome," Rabinowitz said.

Phillips, who told Eaton she wanted to get help (for her dependencies), said she would one day like to tell her story to other girls. "So maybe she could help them know what it's like to go through this," she said.

Larry Strickler, area manager for Southern Bell, said his company has also warned telephone consumers about the offers from companies not authorized to do business in Florida, but has received little feedback. He said this leads him to believe there is little soliciting for this business in central Florida.

Hanna said some companies offering the flat rate long distance service are also marketing the service through a pyramid scheme in which prospective customers are not only urged to buy the company's service, but also to sell the service to other people. "The company will suggest you can make a lot of money through its multi-level commission plan," Hanna said.

"While the offer may sound attractive, it is possible that the company has not been given permission to operate in Florida, and is operating illegally."

Hanna said there are several companies advertising such programs in the state, chiefly through direct mail and other advertising.

He advises customers considering buying such service to ask a company representative whether the company has a certificate issued by the Florida Public Service Commission. Any complaints about unregistered companies soliciting service can be directed to the consumer affairs division by calling the toll-free number 1-800-342-3552 between 7:45 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Caesareans Are Routine In Brazil

By Geri Smith
UPI Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — In the final weeks of my pregnancy, friends and colleagues frequently asked what day the baby would be born.

"Oh, about month's end, give or take a week," I would reply.

Perplexed, they would ask, "What, haven't you scheduled your Caesarean yet?"

I explained that I hoped to have a natural birth, which didn't necessarily mean I would shun pain-killers.

My friends shook their heads. Why would I want to go through the pain of childbirth? And was my doctor willing to come to the hospital at any hour and wait for hours while I was in labor?

"You're afraid of surgery, aren't you?" one friend asked. "Afraid they might leave a sponge in you, or make a nasty scar?"

Such comments are not surprising in a country where Caesarean births account for 35 percent of babies born in public hospitals, and a startling 80 percent born in private clinics.

In the United States, health officials are concerned because 22.7 percent of births in 1985 were "C-sections," four times the number performed 20 years ago, largely because of doctors' fear of malpractice suits and the increasing use of fetal heart monitors to spot problems early in labor.

Correctly used, the operation can save lives when labor fails to start or when complications arise. But in Brazil, Caesareans have become a comfortable habit for doctors who don't like to work weekends and for women who fear the pain of childbirth.

Few mothers and even fewer doctors will openly admit to being part of the statistics, but stories abound of "Maria, who didn't want to get too stretched, because she likes to wear a skimpy bikini," or "Dr. Jose, who didn't want to miss his European holidays."

One incredible but apparently true story was that of a Rio woman who scheduled her delivery to give the baby a preferred sign of the Zodiac.

When I became pregnant, my main concern was finding an obstetrician who would not resort to a Caesarean if labor lasted too long or proved to be inconvenient.

"Many doctors find it easier to schedule six or seven Caesareans a day than to stay up all night or sit home weekends waiting for babies to arrive," said my doctor, Maria Helena Falcao.

"There are many women who genuinely fear the suffering of labor, but there are some who schedule an early birth — say, two weeks ahead of time when the baby is ready for birth anyway — because they are afraid of ballooning up or because they don't want to risk starting labor," she said.

Dr. Ivan Lemgruber, president of the Rio Gynecology and Obstetrics Society, defended the practice.

"I frankly don't think the rate is high," Lemgruber said, adding he finds it "more convenient" to know when his patients will have their babies.

"It's much more comfortable for me to schedule the hour of birth," he said.

But Sao Paulo obstetrics professor Dr. Marcelo Zugaib said Brazilian women are brainwashed into believing childbirth is horribly painful and disfiguring.

"Many women still believe that they will be sexually unattractive after a natural birth, and their husbands encourage them to have C-sections so they won't be 'changed,'" Zugaib said. "It's ridiculous."

Zugaib, who heads an educational campaign to promote natural childbirth, said his biggest obstacle is the widespread belief that Caesareans are risk-free, despite data he has collected indicating that five to 10 times more Brazilian women die from the operation than in normal childbirth.

Long-time Widow Still Claiming Laurels For Longest Marriage

DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in town who has been a widow for over 30 years. She belongs to several clubs and societies that I belong to. When a prize is given out for newest married member or the woman who has been married the longest, this woman comes forward to claim the prize for the longest marriage. Naturally, the winner should still have a live husband. (A woman whose husband is dead is a widow, isn't she?)

She insists that she has been married more than 50 years and deserves the prize. She is a very determined woman and nobody wants to argue with her. What should we do?

EXASPERATED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR EXASPERATED: Let it slide. Have a token prize for her and another for the runner-up whose husband is still living. The poor woman is living in the past.

DEAR ABBY: Something is bothering me concerning AIDS information. Young folks, as a rule, pay very little attention to informative TV programs or ads. Not many read newspapers.

However, most parents read your column, so actually you are the best source of information for the layman there is.

Disney To Host Artists

Collectors of international wildlife paintings, ceramic art and limited-edition figurines will have the opportunity to meet the talent behind some of the best of these works in November at Walt Disney World's Epcot Center.

Visitors to Germany, Canada and United Kingdom showcases can purchase collectibles and have the artists sign them, increasing the value of each piece.

Goebel artist Frederick Werner Boese will visit the Glas und Porzellan shop at the Germany Showcase Nov. 2 and 4-7 from 9 a.m. to noon. Illustrator Don LeLeger will be at Le Boutique Des Provinces in the Canada Showcase Nov. 2-6 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Royal Doulton Group ceramic artist Ann Mottram will appear at the Queen's Table in the United Kingdom Showcase Nov. 30 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

These experts will be able to answer questions about their respective specialties.

Dear Abby

Abby, what I read and hear always mentions "body fluids." Does that also mean "deep kissing"? Or just blood, or the sex act?

Color me stupid. If you wish, but I know that most teenagers do not understand, and many do not ask their parents' advice about anything—especially about sex. They think we are old fuddy-duddies. Thank you.

P.M., SALISBURY, MD.

DEAR P.M.: There is still much confusion in the minds of the public. Although there has never been a documented case of the AIDS virus being transmitted via "deep" or "French" kissing, researchers feel it would be prudent to refrain from deep kissing unless you are sure your partner is free of the AIDS virus. Although the concentration of the virus in saliva is minuscule, and the risk appears to be quite small, there are no 100 percent "absolutes" in medicine. So, avoid deep kissing unless you "know" with whom you are having the pleasure.

DEAR ABBY! I was at the grocery store the other day with my two small children when an elderly lady turned to me and said, "Enjoy them now. They only get worse."

I've heard comments like this several times. I've never heard anybody say they enjoyed raising their kids.

Does it really get "worse," Abby?

YOUNG AND WORRIED

DEAR YOUNG AND WORRIED: No, it gets better. Don't be intimidated by the negative comments of those who are soured on life. Raising children is certainly the most awesome and demanding responsibility a person can undertake. But it can also be the most rewarding. Trust me.

Breast Check

WHAT IS SCREENING MAMMOGRAPHY?

Mammography is a simple X-ray examination of the breast to detect breast cancer before it can be detected by your own examination or your doctor's examination. With breast self examination it affords you the best chance to detect breast cancer early, while it's still curable.

The Breast/Check network understands the needs of ladies to have a place to feel secure and private while having a mammogram. You'll find that our facilities meet these needs, if not surpassing. For a Breast/Check, you don't need a physician's order. But remember, the Breast/Check isn't for everyone, only those ladies who need a baseline or routine examination. If you have a new lump or other problem, check with your doctor or ask for a diagnostic examination, also available from the Breast/Check network.

The Breast/Check screening examination.... $45.

Education In Morals, Values Called Child-Erosion's Cure

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Bealier Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — For want of character education, many American school children are being killed or crippled by destructive behaviors or doomed by such conduct to a tarnished future, a new report from the National School Board Association suggests.

Rising destructive behaviors, from suicide and murder to drug and alcohol use, are wasting the kids, underscoring the need for character or values education, the report contends.

It is titled "Building Character in the Public Schools: Strategies for Success."

Without such instruction — in school, home, church or community — many kids have no solid markers for ethical and moral behavior, claims the report based on an $43,233 project financed by the U.S. Education Department.

The project, "Building Character in the Public Schools," involved a national "character education" conference this year, plus regional workshops on the topic in Louisville, Ky., Lafayette, La., and Washington, D.C.

The project also included "awareness campaigns" keyed to character instruction and aimed at school boards and educators.

At the opening conference, jointly sponsored by the NSBA and the Education Department, Education Secretary William Bennett said:

"I've spent a good deal of my time as secretary of education talking about character. I've said that schools, teachers, and principals must help develop good character."

"I've said that they don't have to reinvent the wheel — we don't have to add special courses or devise new materials for the purpose of instilling character in the young."

"There is no great mystery or trick to this task — parents and teachers have been doing it for centuries."

"We simply need to put students in the presence of adults of sound character, adults who know the difference between right and wrong, who will articulate it to children, who will remind them of the human experience with that difference, and who will live that difference in front of them."

The underlying theme of the report is this:

Schools need to do more about nurturing virtues.

Virtues cited include compassion, courtesy, honesty, integrity, responsibility, self-discipline, self-respect, and tolerance.

Such traits and habits are the type extolled in the "McGuffey Eclectic Reader," popular in the nation's schools in the gaudy era and brought back for use in "back to basics" curriculums.

Putting values education back on the main academic track, then, in no way means something new, according to observations in the report's "foreword."

Co-authors Jonathan T. Howe, NSBA president, and Thomas A. Shannon, executive director, assert, "The development of character in children has long been a focus of the American public school system."

"Some have argued, in fact, that installation of abiding ethical and moral values should be the primary purpose of schooling."

NSBA President Howe said, "Leaders need to make the hard decisions, based on examining the issues."

"There's an old saying that if you're a manager, you do things right. If you're a leader, you do the right thing."

Warning signs pointing to the need for renewed attention to the building of character and ethical behavior, the report said, include:

— Suicide rates for all 15-24-year-olds rose from 5 percent in 1950 to 13 percent in 1984. Currently, an American teenager commits suicide nearly every 90 minutes. Group or "pact" suicides are an especially disturbing recent phenomenon.

— Steady increase in the use of drugs by high school students through the 1970s and 1980s. Nearly two-thirds of high school seniors, since 1980, report having used an illicit drug.

— About 1 million American teenage girls become pregnant each year. Some 650,000 of them are unmarried. Four out of every 10 girls, according to some researchers, will become pregnant before leaving their teens.

French Designer Gets U.S. Ovation

By MELISSA BONES
UPI Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christian Lacroix, the French couture designer who has taken the world by storm faster than any other, is in the United States for the two most important weeks of his skyrocketing career.

"It's the first time I'm seeing my things in a store," Lacroix said during a rare break at his first personal appearance, at Bergdorf Goodman, the New York store that introduced the designer in America at a glittering party Wednesday night.

"For the first time I see the commercial aspect that I want," he added, noting, as he frequently does, that the constant attention makes him nervous and afraid.

"I feel very frightened and I just want to stay the same," he said. "I never did anything just to be noticed or to please or to shock."

Lacroix is an unusual case. Put forth as the world's brightest fashion star, he has never, despite the glory and the front pages, seen his clothes in a store.

Until this week, Lacroix has worked strictly as a designer of haute couture or made-to-order clothes, purchased by the world's wealthiest women, the majority from the United States, directly from Lacroix's Paris salon for upwards of $15,000.

By day's end Thursday, however, it appeared the designer had taken his first American store by storm, too. Wealthy Americans have placed nearly $200,000 in orders for the frilly, feminine spring 1988 "luxé" line that Lacroix presented earlier this month in Paris.

This line, which falls between the extravagant couture line and the more "affordable" $1,000-plus ready-to-wear line he will debut in March, is a critical test for Lacroix, one that will hit fever pitch when his ready-wear debuts because the American market is essential to success.

"It's 90 percent," said Lacroix, dressed in a navy pinstripe suit. For a man who caters to the rich, who works in a business that prides itself on snobbery, he is shockingly down-to-earth, easygoing and unpretentious. He also looks exhausted from a hectic schedule.

Since arriving in New York Oct. 25, Lacroix has been bombarded with invitations. First, there was lunch with Ralph Lauren, Lacroix's idol and the man whose clothes he wears. The next day was dinner with Calvin Klein and Donna Karan, the two he believes symbolize "American elegance."

Later in the week, Genny, the Italian apparel firm producing his first ready-to-wear line, threw a party. And to Lacroix's amazement, calls are pouring in from strangers who discovered his whereabouts and want to invite him over.

Lacroix is more famous in the United States than elsewhere and American fashion editors were the first to herald the pouf or bubble dresses he showed in his ground-breaking 1986 haute couture line as the wave of the future.

It was also American retailers who pursued Lacroix like the season's top draft pick, hoping to launch him and his "luxé" line in the United States. On Nov. 4, Lacroix was to leave for Beverly Hills and his West Coast debut at Saks Fifth Avenue.

The designer believes all-American Lacroix-fever is no accident, noting that he was influenced as a child by American books and movies.

"Between American women and me," said Lacroix, "perhaps the image I compose of high fashion is very close to the image from American movies from the 1950s like 'American in Paris.' It's a dream, I should like Paris to be like this."

"Perhaps with Mr. Lauren, it's the same, dreaming of being a WASP and being born in the Bronx."

Lacroix is known for theatricality, much of it inspired by an early interest in costume design. The fall-winter couture line looks more like costumes than fashion.

"My approach to fashion is really theatrical," Lacroix explained. "And for each haute couture collection, there is a story. There is something, I need a theme. I don't like to design just what I need."

Speaking of dramatic clothes, Lacroix thinks "the time is right to propose this kind of fashion because things are very tough and perhaps we become a little tired with the minimal things — black, white, high-tech — and we need something closer to the heart, something softer, something with dreams, with feeling of escape."

His customer, he believes, is a daring and rich woman with an "attitude with fashion that is kind of sentimental."

The clothes are not, however, for the average working woman who will have to be content with Lacroix's influence, which is already considerable, judging from the knockoffs of pouf dresses to frilly evening minis and his trademark shawl-like high collar.

As for those who criticize his clothes as a sexist throwback to frivolous sex-object clothes, he says, "I think our period is not about revolution. It's like the pre-war years. Just before starting the first World War, designers were interested in 18th-century clothes and just before the last war, women were crazy about turn-of-the-century clothing."

As to feminist complaints, he said, "Women are completely free and because they are free, they are free to play or be childish with a dress. It's just a joke to have fun with clothes."

Lacroix was born in the Camargue region in the south of France in 1941. Along with costume design, he is influenced by his roots. His fall-winter couture clothes range from jackets gilded with crosses used by Camargue cowboys to gold lame jackets embroidered with the carnations on matador's capes at the bullfights Lacroix adores.

Lacroix attended the Ecole du Louvre, hoping to run a costume museum one day. Recently, Mikhail Baryshnikov invited Lacroix to design costumes for the American Ballet Theater.

Lacroix eventually met Jean-Jacques Picart, his savvy marketing man, who was then handling the public relations for the French House of Patou. Impressed with Lacroix's theatrical sketches, he persuaded him to take the job of chief designer in 1981.

Lacroix, with Picart and $8 million in backing from the French conglomerate Financiere Agache, formed his own company in February 1987. In July 1987, he unveiled his first couture collection under his own name and this month came the luxe line now at Bergdorf's.

In 1973, Lacroix met Françoise Rosenstiel, a waif-like woman many compare to Edith Piaf, with whom Lacroix has lived for 14 years.

It was Rosenstiel who introduced Lacroix to Picart and who he considers his muse. "I tell her everything," he said.

Despite fame, fortune has not yet come to Lacroix, who maintains a simple Paris apartment and insists he does not want to live the lifestyle of his customers.

"The dream was not at all to be famous," he said. "Nor money, just working in my own way, that's the important thing and working in my fashion."

Nevertheless, the telling is in the selling. In the next year, and in particular in Lacroix's first real stab at daytime clothes when his ready-to-wear premieres, the designer will know whether his name will be the focus of lucrative licensing deals (he has already signed for eyeglasses and fur).

Program Helps Students Study Across Seas

The ASSE International Student Exchange Program is offering qualified high school students a unique opportunity to spend an academic year or summer holiday in Scandinavia, Germany, France, Switzerland, Britain, Holland, Spain, Australia, New Zealand or Canada (French- or English-speaking), announced Julie Zinter, Southern Regional Director of ASSE.

"Until a few years ago, only a fortunate few could afford to spend a school year or summer abroad," Zinter said. "Now, ASSE has changed all that."

Students aged 15 to 18 qualify on the basis of academic performance, character references and a genuine desire to experience life abroad with a volunteer host family from Europe, Canada, New Zealand or Australia.

"ASSE families abroad are carefully screened to provide a caring environment in which students can learn the language and culture of their host family," Zinter said.

Summer exchange students live with a family abroad who speak English. Year students need not have learned a foreign language, because they will receive language and cultural instruction as part of the ASSE program.

ASSE students attend regular high school classes along with their new overseas teenage friends.

The non-profit, public-benefit ASSE International Student Exchange Program, formerly American Scandinavian Student Exchange, is affiliated with the national Swedish and Finnish Departments of Education and is participating in the President's International Youth Exchange Initiative.

Local students who are interested in more information about becoming an ASSE exchange student should contact Elizabeth Davenport at 1900 Umatilla Road, Eustis, Fl. 32726 or at 904-357-7234.

Metro Hobby Center Is A Full-Service Hobby Shop

Metro Hobby Center opened only 10 weeks ago on Highway 17-92 in Longwood, but the word is rapidly spreading among Central Florida hobbyists that this is serious full-service hobby shop, which stocks unusual items not found in other hobby stores.

They have the "toys" that the "big boys" love and can afford, as well as simpler and less expensive ones for youngsters. Watch for their Christmas specials and ask about the easy lay-away plan.

Owners Terry and Dick Mannich came here from New York where they owned a hobby store on Staten Island for two years.

Dick got into the business because he was interested in model boats and found he had difficulty in finding parts. He decided to open up his own business in order to have his own supplies.

They want to be known as the "friendliest hobby shop in Seminole County" with reasonable prices.

Metro Hobby Center is one of only four Byron original large scale model AC aircraft dealers in the country. They carry steam engines, finely detailed scale electric models, a huge selection of gasoline engines and unusual plastic products. They have a large selection of military plastic models and plastic models for car enthusiasts.

Dick said he has the largest selection of gas and electric boats, parts and engines in Central Florida.

After the first of the year the Mannichs plan to expand to include an outdoor track for radio controlled cars. They carry RC car parts, radio transmitters, RC components and complete systems.

They have U-Control aircraft, sailplanes and rubber powered models, some HO railroad track and buildings to add to your train set and rocket kits.

Special orders don't bother them. Metro Hobby offers service, repairs and advice. It is located across from Public Storage, two blocks north of State Road 434.

Store hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 6 p.m. Call 695-7101 for information.

Foundations Bruised By Stock Market Drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many of the nation's charity Foundations were bruised by Black Monday's stock losses but none, including the giant Ford Foundation that took a $358 million hit, anticipate short-term cutbacks in gifts for worthy causes.

The optimistic outlook, expressed in interviews last week, is due to what appeared to be common practices of diversifying investments and making astute post-crash stock market moves. As a result, foundations appear to be gaining back some of the losses.

That is good news for people applying for grants to support research, innovative social programs and other good works domestically and abroad, interviews with officials showed.

By law, the philanthropic foundations must give away at least 5 percent of their assets for charitable purposes each year. The gift programs, typically, are figured on a three-year basis. That is considered short-term.

The future, or long-term, giving patterns will hinge on stock market behavior in the months ahead, of course. If a sustained downward course becomes the norm, a shrinkage in gifts must be expected.

At the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, named for the daughter of the founder of Avon Corp., officials last February reduced its stock market holdings by $14 million to guard against potentially catastrophic losses in a crash.

Despite that move, the foundation lost 10 percent to 11 percent of its assets since Sept. 30. The slide to $335.5 million was from $381 million.

"I don't think we will have to cut back giving," said Patricia Carry Stewart, vice president for financial affairs, sizing up the short-term outlook.

At the Rockefeller Foundation, the nation's 10th largest, assets were $1.86 billion on Sept. 30. Susan L. Russell, communications officer, reported. As of the close last Friday, the bundle was valued at $1.8 billion.

"On Black Monday, we were at $1.5 billion — down 17 percent from the close Sept. 30," she said.

It could have been a lot worse at the Rockefeller Foundation, too.

Russell reported that on Dec. 31, 1986, 61 percent of the assets were in stocks. Due to the unloading of some stocks, when thunder struck Black Monday, the foundation had just 46 percent of its assets in stocks.

"We have since bought some stock," Russell said. "As of Wednesday of this week, we had 53 percent in stocks."

"We don't anticipate any changes in our giving plans — at least through 1988."

The Rockefeller Foundation currently gives away from $45 million to $50 million to support policy studies and research in education, arts, population control, and health fields.

At the Rockefeller, Ford and Edna McConnell Clark foundations, there is a wait-and-see attitude about the long-term giving outlook.

It appears to be the same at other foundations, according to the Foundation Center that keeps track of almost 25,000 grant-making private foundations in the United States.

A couple of days after the crash, the Ford Foundation, with current gifts totaling $200 million a year, made stock market moves that gained back half the losses, according to John W. English, vice president and chief investment official.

The Ford losses Oct. 19, though dizzying at $358 million, could have been much more severe.

"We are permitted to have 40 percent to 80 percent of our holdings in equity investments (stocks)," said English.

"In February we took $1 billion in equities (stocks) out of the market, reducing our equity exposure to a low point. So when the storm hit we were at 41 percent. The steps we had taken to reduce our equity exposure helped. We still lost but we would have lost more."

As of Wednesday, assets of the Ford Foundation were at some $4.6 billion.

The situation at the Ford Foundation is somewhat typical of that at other foundations, a check of sever-

Bottle Deposit Bill Ignites Capital Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The ballot initiative requiring a deposit on most beverage containers may be about nickels and dimes, but the nearly $2 million raised to defeat it has already set a record for money collected by one side in any city election in the nation's capital.

Should Initiative 28 be passed Tuesday by the city's voters, a 5- to 20-cent deposit would be placed on all beer and soft drink bottles and cans.

Nine states, many of which went through similar high-priced campaigns, have similar laws in effect, the first being passed in Oregon in 1971.

City records show that the primary opponent of the referendum, the Clean Capital City Committee, has raised more than $1.853 million this year.

That total easily eclipses the city's previous record of $1.5 million set last year by Marion Barry when he was elected to a third term as mayor, said Mike Simpson, chief of public disclosure for the D.C. Office of Campaign Finance. Much of that money raised to fight the referendum has come from the beverage industry.

Industry Union Glass Container, which lists the same Washington address as the Glass Packaging Institute, gave $110,000 to the CCC on Oct. 2 and is also listed as pledging another $159,100 to the committee, city records show. The CCC and the institute both list Sylvia Swanson as treasurer.

Supporters of Initiative 28, The Bottle Bill Initiative Campaign, have raised but $76,000 in 1987 to push passage of the referendum, Simpson said.

Money is not the only issue in the referendum's opponents. "Their total focus on this campaign has only been on the money. I get jammed all day long and abuse unfairly. It's a desperate attempt to discredit us."

Referendum proponents have sounded the slogan: "Turn trash into cash."

Sanford Goodwill Store clerk Barbara Johnson waits on customer.

Goodwill Has New Look But Same Bargain Prices

If you haven't visited your local Goodwill budget store lately, you're in for a pleasant surprise! The new look is neat, clean, well lighted and attractive with air-conditioning and wall-to-wall carpeting.

Located at Third and Palmetto in downtown Sanford, Goodwill will be painting inside and out in effort to change the old image in line with the non-profit organization's new "Superstore" concept. The goal of the management is to make it a bright pleasant place for people to shop.

The staff is also reorganizing merchandise to make it easier for shoppers to find what they want. New shelving is being installed.

Goodwill has a large variety of good used clothing for infants, children, men and women at bargain prices. The standard price for men's suits is $4.99, sportcoats, $4.99, slacks, $2.49, shirts, $2.99, blouses, $2.49, coats, $4.99, sweaters, $2.49, children's clothing from $1.99 to $3.49 and blue jeans, $2.99.

Housewares range from 49 cents to $5. You'll find small appliances, televisions, stereos, furniture, toys, books, records, and accessories such as costume jewelry, shoes, hats, wallets, pocketbooks, belts and wigs.

They also have framed pictures, luggage, curtains, draperies and bed linens. Blankets are priced at $3.99. Baby furniture and strollers are usually available.

During the Christmas shopping season the Goodwill Store will have a holiday section set apart for decorations and items suitable for gifts, according to Gary Frazier, facility director.

Sales of donated items at the Goodwill stores makes possible the agency's vocational rehabilitation service for the disabled, providing about 75 percent of the funding Goodwill has been in Central Florida since 1959 and the Sanford store has been open for 19 years.

The Sanford Goodwill facility now offers a testing, evaluation, training and job placement program. They endeavor to place their graduates in the competitive marketplace in Seminole County and outlying areas.

Goodwill works in conjunction with the Private Industry Council and the state Vocation Rehabilitation program. Goodwill serves a wide variety of disability groups ranging from mental retardation, mental health, physical disabilities or chemical dependency.

Goodwill has placed 11 persons in competitive employment since the rehab center opened this summer. There is a continuous flow of approximately 2-3 persons per week in the work evaluation program and 2-4 in the work adjustment program to get them to the point where they can seek competitive employment.

The store is also a drop-off point for donations which can be brought in Monday through Saturday during store hours, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For the convenience of South Seminole County residents, there is a new Goodwill Superstore open in the Longwood Promenade on Highway 17-92, south of State Road 434. They have clothing and household items. It is also a dropoff point for donations.

Put Your Car In The Hands Of Volkshop Specialists

Volkshop, located at 214 Palmetto Ave. in Historic Downtown Sanford, specializes in repairs, maintenance and parts for Volkswagens, Toyotas, Datsuns, Nissans, Hondas and Mazdas.

Bring your car in for a free estimate on your particular make and model. They will check your car for defects without charge.

Engine and trans-axle rebuilding is their specialty. They also do oil and lube jobs and repairs on brakes, front ends, transmissions and exhaust systems.

With cooler weather on the way, let them winterize your car.

Marvin Wright, owner of Volkshop, is grateful for his loyal customers, some of whom patronized his father, Barto Wright's repair shop before him. Together they have operated independent repair shops in Sanford for 50 years.

"To some dealers, it's just another car," said Marvin. "but at Volkshop, we take each one individually. We treat our customers right, that's why we have so much repeat business."

Marvin and his team of experienced automobile technicians — John, Ray, Bill, Harry and Glenn — are dedicated to keeping your vintage VW Bug looking and running its best. They can recondition it with a new engine, tires and brakes for a fraction of what a new car would cost.

If you are one of those car owners who like to do their own repairs, Volkshop has the quality parts you need for the job.

Volkshop stocks Treuhaft and Bosch parts, Continental belts and hoses and Castrol motor oils for VWs, Toyotas and Datsuns.

Call Marvin at 321-0120 for an appointment for a free estimate or to have your car worked on.

Bilzerian Offers Nearly $1 Billion For Singer Co.

TAMPA (UPI) — Florida investor Paul A. Bilzerian Monday offered to pay an estimated $945 million cash, or $50 per share, to buy the portion of The Singer Co. not controlled by Bilzerian Partners L.P.

Bilzerian, who began a cash tender offer Monday, said he may seek to sell the company's defense electronics business and portions of its training systems business if the offer succeeds.

Much of the financing for the deal is in place, Bilzerian said. The Tampa investor estimated the value of the takeover bid at $1.145 billion, including the value of his existing 10 percent stake in Singer, and certain expenses.

Bilzerian said he spoke Monday with Singer Chairman William F. Schmied but does not expect a formal response from the company until later. In a letter to Schmied, Bilzerian described the offer as "fair and in the best interests of shareholders."

In a statement released Monday by Singer, the former sewing machine company said its directors expect to advise shareholders of their position on the offer before Nov. 16. The company urged shareholders to wait before voting their shares.

Bilzerian Partners said it currently owns 2.1 million shares, or 9.99 percent, of Singer's outstanding common stock.

The company, which posted profits of $42.6 million on sales of $1.725 billion last year, has 21 million shares of common stock outstanding. Singer spokesman Tom Elliott said from the company's new headquarters in Montvale, N.J.

On the New York Stock Exchange, Singer ended the day at $47.25 a share, up $3.125. Singer closed Friday at $44.125.

Bilzerian said the proposed deal would be financed through a combination of securities and bank debt, some of which is in place already. The package includes $100 million in common equity, $150 million in junior preferred stock, and $355 million in senior preferred stock, he said.

In addition, National Westminster Bank has agreed to loan $100 million and raise an additional $440 million in bank debt, Bilzerian said. Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. is managing the offer.

Elliott said Singer's defense electronics group and its training systems group — the two business groups Bilzerian said he may sell — account for about 40 percent of Singer's revenues.

Singer spun off its sewing machine business in 1986 and now maintains a 15 percent investment in that company, SSMC Inc., Elliott said.

Singer also manufactures gas meters and hand-held power tools, Bilzerian said he would seek to keep those businesses, as well as portions of the company's training systems group.

"I think people didn't fully appreciate the value of this company," Bilzerian said. "I think what we're hoping to do is bring some of that value directly to the shareholders."

The tender offer, which will expire on Dec. 1 unless extended, is subject to the partnership gaining control of 75 percent of the voting stock, Bilzerian said.

Bilzerian previously tried unsuccessfully to acquire Pay 'N Pak Stores Inc., Cluett, Peabody & Co., Hammermill Paper Co., and Allied Stores Corp.

"I think we have a reputation of having bid high numbers for companies," Bilzerian said. "Unfortunately, we have not succeeded any of those times."

Universe's Largest Structure Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a discovery that challenges conventional theories, our home Milky Way galaxy may be part of an immense complex of millions of galaxies that covers as much as one-tenth of the known universe, the National Science Foundation reported Monday.

If the finding is confirmed by additional research, the NSF said the "supercluster complex" would be the largest structure known in the universe — 100 times more massive than any other observed assemblage of galaxies. Each galaxy contains billions of stars.

The NSF, a government agency that promotes research, said the finding suggests that galaxies are not randomly distributed throughout the universe "but are clustered in space in a way that is not anticipated by current conventional theories of galaxy formation."

Evidence for the supercluster will be reported in the Dec. 1 issue of Astrophysical Journal by astronomer Brent Tully of the University of Hawaii. He estimated that it takes light 1 billion years to travel from one end of the complex to the other.

That immense size, he said, suggests that the pattern for the supercluster must have been laid down shortly after the birth of the universe at least 10 billion years ago.

In addition to the supercluster of which the Milky Way is part, Tully said he has preliminary evidence of four other superclusters of comparable size.

"The observation of such immense, flattened structures poses a couple of major challenges to conventional theories of galaxy formation," Tully told the NSF.

One problem with conventional thinking is that microwave radiation that presumably is a relic of the Big Bang that created the universe is uniform across the sky. If the supercluster existed early in the history of the universe, Tully said the background radiation should have irregularities.

The NSF said astronomers recently have observed that galaxies tend to cluster in filamentary and sheet-like structures, Tully was searching for the edge of the cluster of which the Milky Way is part when he realized the cluster was much larger than previously believed.

The NSF said use of a supercomputer to map the distribution of clusters of galaxies revealed about 60 so-called rich clusters are concentrated in a single immense supercluster complex. Tully named it the Pisces-Cetus Supercluster Complex.

Pancreas May Be Cause Of Problem

DEAR DR. GOTT — For several years I have been absolutely ravenous for carbohydrates, especially in the morning. I understand that a brain chemical, neuropeptide Y, might be responsible. Could you give me more information on this?

DEAR READER — I am not aware of any brain neuropeptide that has been shown to govern carbohydrate craving.

Carbohydrates are branched collections of sugar subunits. That is, all starches are composed of basic sugar molecules strung together like beads in a necklace. Glucose is the most common six-carbon compound in all carbohydrates, although galactose, fructose and mannose also combine in various combinations to form starch. For example, when glucose is attached to fructose, table sugar (sucrose) is formed. If glucose and galactose are combined, milk sugar (lactose) results.

Glucose has been termed the carbohydrate "currency" of the human body. In the intestinal tract, all starches are converted to glucose before being absorbed into the bloodstream and used for energy. This process of digestion starts with saliva that attacks starch, then proceeds in the upper intestine under the control of other digestive enzymes.

Although many body chemicals regulate carbohydrate metabolism, insulin is probably the most important. It enables muscle, liver, brain and fat cells to absorb the glucose molecules floating in the blood. Therefore, carbohydrate craving is usually due to chemical reactions involving insulin.

Check with your doctor to discover the cause of your need for carbohydrates. If there is a problem, the fault, dear reader, is not in our brains, but in our pancreas glands.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am diabetic. Recently I started eating a cereal sweetened with malted barley. My doctor told me that he frankly didn't know whether malted barley would be safe for me to consume. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Malted barley, taken in moderation, poses no health hazards for diabetics who must avoid sugar. Have your blood sugar checked periodically to make sure that your metabolic balance is satisfactory.

WIN AT BRIDGE
By James Jacoby
Here is another deal from the World Championship of 50 years ago featuring the late Helen Sobel, who was then considered the greatest woman player in the world. I am not certain of the authenticity of the bidding, but I do know that the final contract was six no-trump, and Helen was declarer.

She won the queen of spades in dummy and played A-K and a club. West took the queen and continued with the spade 10. Declarer took the ace in dummy and played a third spade to the king. West discarding a heart. That left declarer with only 11 tricks, but Sobel could see the squeeze possibilities. She played her fourth club, and West had to discard another heart to keep the diamonds guarded. Bobel threw a diamond from dummy, and East also let a diamond go. But now, when the A-K-Q of diamonds were played, East was in the untenable position of having to shed either the nine of spades or a heart. When he discarded a heart, declarer took the last trick with the lowly heart eight.

Defense is certainly the hardest part of the game, and West could not be sure that his partner had as much as the jack of hearts, but he could have broken up this squeeze ending after winning the club queen. He must at that moment return a heart.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bode Osoi
YOUR BIRTHDAY NOVEMBER 4, 1987

It looks like some of the finer things in life will be yours in the year ahead as a result of your labors. There will also be some constructive changes where your work or career is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually it's best not to let your emotions overrule your logic, but today, how you feel about something could be more on target than what appearances imply. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't jump to conclusions today, especially in your commercial affairs. Be sure you understand all the salient points before you make a move.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If it is difficult for you to understand why others can't see your point of view today, it could be because your presentation is somewhat disjointed. Be concise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When dealing with family members, relatives or in-laws today, let your heart rule your head. Compassion is more effective than criticism.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your personal desires will have excellent chances of being fulfilled today if you think of others as well as yourself. The more you give, the more you'll get.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A grandiose scheme you have in mind today might look good on paper, but there is a possibility it may contain some minor flaws. Get out your magnifying glass and reexamine it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't become involved with people today whose ideals and standards are not on a par with yours. Lesser types could create complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There are strong indications that fortune may smile on you today from an unexpected source. Someone with whom you are not too familiar might be the sponsor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Strains will be placed on a relationship today if you are indifferent to a close friend in order to pay attention to someone new.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The lofty goals you've set for yourself at this time might look like pipe dreams to others, but they'll make sense to you. Pursue your present course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you like might be a trifle trying today, but if you overlook this person's faults and focus on his or her virtues, the little peccadilloes won't matter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your opportunities for personal gain today are likely to come from collective ventures rather than your independent efforts. Play your strong suit.
