FISHING BOAT IS SAVED AFTER 3 DAYS OF STORMS

Member of Crew Leaps Overboard With Line and Swims to Shore Beaching Ship and Saving the Lives of Mates

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Captain W. H. Hornke of Cleveland and his crew of six Dunkirk fishermen were safe here Sunday after having been lost aboard the fish tug Helene, with no fuel and few provisions, for nearly three days in a Lake Erie storm.

The Helene was beached at Anglo, between here and Buffalo, early Sunday after Milligan Urban, a member of the crew had leaped overboard to carry a line through the rough shoal water.

Friday night the freighter F. W. Hart, Buffalo to Lorain, Ohio, passed within a few feet of the Helene. A message in an empty tomato can was thrown to the deck of the Hart, telling of the Helene's plight.

Tugs of the fishing fleet which set out immediately with reserve supplies of fuel were driven back by the storm, and four steel tugs and the Buffalo coast guard cutter, which stayed out in the lake all Saturday afternoon and part of the night were unable to locate the Helene.

Packages Must Be Mailed Early For Delivery On Time

Not only are users of the mails urged to send out all their Christmas packages in the mail early and Postmaster Hall states he is sure this year will find this commendable spirit and habit noticeable in even greater force.

It is also stated that those who use Christmas seals and stickers should not paste them on the address side of letters or packages but on the reverse side of all letters and packages sent out with foreign mail packages, particularly, placing stickers and seals on the address side, may result in packages being returned.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS AND CARDS SHOULD BE MAILED ACCORDING TO THE FOLLOWING PLAN: For 1 day's travel, not later than Dec. 20.

For 2 day's travel, not later than Dec. 18.

For 3 day's travel, not later than Dec. 16.

HONOR IS PAID TO MEMORY OF PRES. WILSON

Congress Pauses in Its Many Duties for Services Honoring Wartime President; All Dignitaries, Friends There

President Anderson Delivers Eulogy

Radio Increases Audience Listening to Address by President of Wilson's Alma Mater

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Congress paused in its round of activity Monday to render honor to the memory of Woodrow Wilson. The Chamber of the House of Representatives was the setting for the memorial services with Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of his Alma Mater, the University of Virginia, pronouncing from the rostrum where the late president revived the Washingtonian custom of delivering in person his message to congress, the eulogy of his life and achievements.

Dignitaries of state, political personages of the past and present, close friends and late chief executive and guests made up the gathering for which all space on the floor and in the galleries had been reserved. A vast unbroken audience too had been remembered in arrangements for radio casting of the ceremony through a wide chain of stations.

Members of the Wilson cabinet, his widow, one of his daughters, and close friends joined with President Coolidge and his official family, supreme court justices, ambassadors, and ministers, senators, representatives, governors of states, army and navy officers and invited guests to do reverence to the memory of the war president.

Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, which Mr. Wilson attended as a law student, delivered the eulogy. The Rev. J. J. Muir, chaplain of the senate, will pronounce the benediction, with the house chaplain, the Rev. James Sherman Montgomery offering the opening prayer.

The memorial services were broadcast by radio through a chain of stations—WRC, Washington; WGY, Schenectady; WJZ and WEP, New York; and other dignitaries in last minute arrangements.

As an additional mark of respect, congressional leaders are planning to adjourn the senate and house after the exercises.

The great white canopy closed its doors in the morning to all except members of congress and attaches. At half past ten, the east door leading to the rotunda was opened to those holding tickets of admission, for which there was a great demand. The marine band furnished the music.

The speaker's gavel called the house to order shortly before the customary gathering at midday, and the members of the senate, after assembling for prayer, proceeded to the house. The President pro tempore of the senate, occupied the speaker's chair.

Prayer among the assembly was Chief Justice Taft, the only living former president of the United States, whom Mr. Wilson succeeded as chief executive. A unique procedure in house annals was followed by seating special guests on the floor of the chamber.

GOMPER'S BODY CARRIED EAST IN FLOWER BED

Wagon Loads of Floral Offerings are Brought to Train at Every Station as Crowds Seek Last View Labor Chief

Funeral Party is Wearing by Vigil

By Turns 2 Members Watch Over Dead Body of Chief While Others Retire to Rest

ABOARD GOMPER'S FUNERAL TRAIN, PARSON, Kans., Dec. 15.—The train bearing the body of Samuel Gompers to New York for burial wended its way Sunday night toward the labor leader's final resting place after a day of progress marked by outpourings of those who wished to pay their respects at the various stations passed between San Antonio and the Kansas line.

From Parsons, the train proceeded toward St. Louis, where it will arrive at 7:30 Monday morning. Even after dark, large crowds were found at every station, bent on entering the train, and obtaining a last look at the famous leader of men.

By the time the train reached Parsons, wagon loads of flowers had been taken aboard the funeral car in addition to the floral tributes which buried the coffin when the train left San Antonio, where Mr. Gompers died Saturday morning on an illness which he attacked here while in Mexico City and forced a hurried return to American soil.

Members of the funeral party, worn out by the long trip and the anxiety and grief brought about by their chief's fatal illness, Sunday night sought rest while the train ground on its way eastward. By turns, two members of the party kept vigil over the body of their chief, while the rest slumbered, knowing that they had done all that was possible for the man who had led them for many years.

General Harbord Delivers Dedication Address At Roosevelt Memorial on the Battlefield of San Juan

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Dec. 15.—No American in public life had seen more clearly than Theodore Roosevelt the responsibility of the United States for the continued tyranny of Spain in Cuba, Major General J. G. Harbord, U. S. A., retires, declared Sunday at the dedication of the Roosevelt memorial on the battlefield of San Juan.

General Harbord drew a graphic word picture of the stirring events that led up to the conflict which was to free Cuba and characterize Roosevelt's men as the "incomparable fighting unit of its class"—The Rough Riders of glorious memory.

"Theodore Roosevelt," said the speaker, "climbed the heights at the head of his men that July morning, taking early steps in that wonderful career that was to carry him through the governorship of his native state to the presidency. The march of events throughout the nineteenth century pointed inevitably to the day when Spanish domination over Cuba must cease. For such period as our country hesitated at the fulfillment of its destiny and delayed its duty to act with Cuba to end the tyranny of the mother country, it must share with Spain the responsibility for what transpired in this beautiful island."

SENATE INQUIRES INTO EDITORIAL ON SHOALS BILL

By Unanimous Agreement Senate Will Investigate Washington Herald Article Attacking Underwood's Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The senate judiciary committee in executive session today appointed a sub-committee to investigate the Washington Herald editorial attacking Senator Underwood and Muscle Shoals bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The senate judiciary committee will turn its attention Monday to the Washington Herald editorial which attacked Senator Underwood and his Muscle Shoals bill.

The senate Saturday, under an unanimous consent agreement announced the investigation of the editorial by the committee, and Chairman Cummins said it would be brought before the committee at the regular Monday meeting.

Senator Underwood in seeking the investigation agreement declared the editorial and its author on the Senate floor, declaring he wanted the editorial writer subpoenaed before the committee to find out who was responsible for its publication.

The judiciary committee plans to invite the Alabama Senator to appear before it and explain what procedure it is to follow.

Senator Underwood said he wished to question the writer of the editorial and hoped a thorough investigation would be made. Its author on the Senate floor, declaring he wanted the editorial writer subpoenaed before the committee to find out who was responsible for its publication.

In the meantime, actual consideration of the Muscle Shoals legislation will be suspended until Tuesday when a vote is in order on the Smith amendment to the Underwood bill to strike out all the leasing provisions of the bill. It is looked upon as a means of placing the Senate on record as favoring either government or private operation of Muscle Shoals.

Smith Property Is Purchased By City For Sum of $20,000

PER CAPITA COST CITY OF SANFORD THIS YEAR $13.92

Cost To Each Person This Fiscal Year Is 76 Cents Lower Than During Last Year When It Was $14.68

The per capita cost of running the city government of Sanford for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1924 and ending Oct. 1, 1925 will be $13.92, according to figures submitted by City Clerk L. R. Phillips. In comparison with the per capita cost of the government during the past fiscal year, it is a decrease of 70 cents or approximately five and one half per cent.

For the fiscal year ending Oct. 1, 1924 the per capita cost was $14.68 based on an estimated population of 8,000. This year's per capita cost is based on an estimated population of 10,000.

The decrease for the present year is said to be remarkable inasmuch as the population has increased and the city's needs have become greater. Despite these things the expenses have been so cut that the decrease has been made possible.

For the present fiscal year the cost of operating the city government, it was announced, will be $139,231 as compared to the cost of $174,418 for last year. The sum of $139,231 is exclusive of an item of $27,000 which has been estimated as the cost for operating the gas and waterworks plants during the year. This figure is not added to the cost of running the city government, however, because the revenue received from running these two plants more than makes up the sum which is allotted for their operation. In other words, it was pointed out, no part of the taxpayer's dollars is used for its operation.

For the year 1924-25 the city's expenses will be divided among the various departments as follows: streets and bridge $34,800; public safety, $30,555; city government, $8,519; hospital $2,000; streets and taxation $9,125; recreation and water supply, $13,600; public utility, $14,000; parks and playgrounds, $12,475; library and public buildings, $5,725 and public health, $8,035.

In comparison with other cities of the state, the per capita cost of Sanford is said to be remarkably small. The cost to the citizen is believed to be lower than that of Orlando, Lakeland or St. Petersburg. In explaining the per capita cost for running the government, city officials point out that this amount is unusually small considering the fact that Sanford gives garbage collection free, repairs pavements for property owners free of charge in addition to providing money for other purposes which many cities do not.

That Sanford citizens may justly feel proud of the business-like methods under which the government is being operated, is the declaration of local observers who are in a position to know. It is believed that with the coming of another year the per capita cost may again be materially decreased so that Sanford may become one of the most economically operated cities in Florida.

TO BUILD ELK'S HOME JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 13.—The local Elks announces approval of plans for a new club building to cost $250,000, work on which is expected to begin within the next few months. The building will be located at the northeast corner of Laura and Adams streets, site of the present club house.

Building Will Be Torn Down and Plans Are In Making for Extension 1st Street

New Improvements Expected At Once

Sale Price Is Regarded Below Market Value DeForrest Site Sold

Purchase by the city of Sanford from W. W. C. Smith of a piece of property at the foot of East First Street for the reported consideration of $20,000 was announced Monday by Mr. Smith and Mayor Forrest Lake who represented the City Commission in the transfer. Cash was paid for the property and the transaction is effective immediately, it was further announced.

The sale of this property to the city ends negotiations which have been under way for some time and its transfer makes it possible for the commission to begin at once the extension of First Street eastward. This plan, under consideration of the commissioners for the past few months, will take definite shape at once with the raising of the several small wooden buildings now located on the property.

The dimensions of the city's latest acquisition are given as 75 feet facing Sanford Avenue and 117 feet extending on the proposed extension of First Street. In announcing the purchase, Mayor Lake praised the public spiritedness of Mr. Smith and declared that the latter, because of his desire to aid in the growth of the city, had accepted a price for his property which is far below its actual value. Mr. Smith, the mayor said, realizes that the extension of First Street means a great deal to Sanford and its future growth and for that reason consented to sell for a sum under market value. The price for which the property sold is considered very reasonable in local real estate circles, it is said.

Meanwhile the commission will take steps at once for the opening of First Street, the mayor announced. The buildings will be torn down as soon as they are vacated and indications are that they will be within a short time. A survey of the right of way for the street will start at once and within a short time the street will be formally opened, it is believed.

Just how far the street will be extended, it was not announced but it is believed that it will go as far as Mellenville Avenue. The extension of the business section of the city eastward is regarded as only a matter of a short time after the street is opened and paved. Simultaneous with the announcement of the sale of this property were reports to the effect that the new extension may be the scene of much development in a short time. Several buildings may be erected in the near future and in general, it is believed that the extension of First Street means more to the city than any one transaction which has been announced in recent months.

Labor Leader Dies Saturday Morning San Antonio, Texas

the false doctrines of Bolshevism. I have no idea who is supplying the radicals with the money to carry on their propaganda. But there have always been certain enemies to labor who are eager to use any means to weaken our organization."

In the National Industrial Conference of representatives of labor, capital and the public, which opened at Washington on Oct. 6, 1919 at the call of President Wilson to find a remedy for industrial strife, Mr. Gompers took a prominent part. Previously he had attended world labor parleys in London, Paris and Amsterdam.

He was intimately connected with every great labor dispute in this country during the past 30 years, and headed the labor forces in numerous strikes instituted by the trade unions affiliated with the American Federation.

He was father of much legislation, both state and national, designed to relieve and protect the before legislative committees suggesting, supporting, and framing labor legislation.

Prior to his founding the national labor organization in 1881, the labor movement was in the hands of comparatively small, individual unions, in the various states, working without much real co-operation. By forming the Federation, he welded the entire movement into a nation-wide, compact unit which grew to be a power in the political, commercial and industrial life of the country.

Among the laws Gompers framed, supported, or originated, were: the eight hour law for government employees; the various state laws fixing hours of labor; laws establishing Labor Day as the workingmen's holiday; the Federal Workingmen's compensation law; the law limiting the use of injunctions in labor disputes; the law exempting labor unions from prosecution as combinations in restraint of trade; and the law regulating punishment for contempt of court. He was also directly responsible for the legislation which created the Department of Labor as a separate department of the Federal government with a cabinet member at its head.

In his long administration of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Gompers was constantly called upon to avert threatened schisms in the organization, and to bring together factional elements which developed from time to time. By his efforts compromise after compromise was effected, and the unity of the federation was maintained. Throughout, he was a staunch advocate of the "trade union" system of labor organization as opposed to the "industrial union" system, and his efforts and those of his followers developed the American labor movement along the lines of the former plan. He was constantly called upon by unions affiliated with the Federation to act as arbitrator and mediator in labor disputes, and he probably settled by his individual efforts more strikes than any other man in labor history.

Samuel Gompers was born in London, England, January 21, 1859. His father was a cigar-maker and Samuel was the eldest of eight children. His mother was a woman of excellent education and through her influence he was led to study. Notwithstanding the fact that at the age of 10 he began to help his father support the family. He went to school after his sixth to his tenth year and was then apprenticed to a shoemaker. This trade was not to his liking, however, and he learned the trade of his father and while working as a cigar-maker attended evening school for four years.

He came to the United States when he was 15 years old and worked as a cigar maker in New York City. In 1884 he first became identified with the labor movement when he helped organize the Cigar-Makers International Union. He served as secretary and president of the union for six years and under his management it became a large and successful organization. He also edited the local paper of the Cigar-Makers Union, the "Pickel" during that time. It was in connection with this work that he became interested in a national association of trade unions that would preserve the autonomy of the local organizations. Under his leadership the Cigar-Makers Union fought the Knights of Labor on this principle.

But Christmas is not only the mile-mark of another year, moving us to thoughts of self-examination.—It is a season, from all its associations, whether domestic or religious—suggesting thoughts of joy. A man dissatisfied with his endeavors is a man tempted to sadness. And in the midst of winter, when life runs lowest and he is reminded of the empty chairs of his beloved, it is well he should be condemned to this fashion of the smiling face.

Those words of Robert Louis Stevenson are familiar to the most of us. They are brought out every year for publication at Christmas time because they say the things that all of us know are true, and which we should like to say as well as the kindly Stevenson has said them.

In Florida there is none of that "in the midst of winter, when life runs lowest," for the midst of winter here is a time of roses and golden fruit, a time of sunshine and flowering gardens. Life does not "run low" in Florida's midwinter. Christmas comes with none of the depression of a wintry December day. Everything here contributes to the right background for "the fashion of the smiling face" to which Stevenson would have us condemned.

And it seems possible to believe that even in homes where "empty chairs" mutely speak against the joy of Christmas brave folks in Florida will do all in their power to prevent their personal grief from intruding upon the happiness of others.

"The fashion of the smiling face", moreover, must set in early to make Christmas time all that it should be. Through the worries and the annoyances—for there are bound to be many—of the Christmas preparations, smiles and kind voices must be the order of the day. And everywhere, the greatest happiness will come to the folks who forget themselves in the joy of making happiness for others.

But Don't Wait For A "Week"

Among the "Weeks" that have helped to make folks better there was one called "Return-That-Borrowed-Article Week". Some long-suffering owner of lost books originated the occasion, and rightly guessed that under the protection of a general "Week", with everybody celebrating, some of the people who had kept his books so long they no longer had the face to return them would hunt up his treasured volumes and bring them back to him.

This is exactly what happened, and other clever people took advantage of the "Week" to remind borrowers of other things besides books to return them to their rightful owners. Umbrellas came home. Dishes came home. Garden tools came home. And one jolly neighbor in a Florida town declared that he went down town and bought a collection of things to return to the people all about him, so sure was he that he had borrowed and forgot.

The "Week" did not become a settled part of the calendar but wouldn't it be worth staging in every community once a year? Have you something in your house that was borrowed and not returned? Have you a book tucked away among your own collection that should have been carried back to its owner months ago?

Take a look around, and then don't wait until Sanford celebrates a formal "Return-What-You-Borrowed Week", if there chances to be an unreturned article in your possession. Use this editorial, if necessary, for an excuse. Send the book home with the confession that you have just been reminded that you had it, and with an offer to lend your latest good book to the friend upon whose generosity you have been imposing. Do it today.

THE COST OF our Federal government will continue to be high as long as we make it a catch-all for every fad and for all the duties which other political units evade. When cities and counties shove their duties over to the State, and when the State shoves their duties over to Washington, there results a lack of interested management and a corresponding increase in tax costs which is harmful. It is worth a great deal to live in the United States, but that is no reason why it should cost as much as it is worth. Everything of value ought to be worth more than it costs, and even national life would lose its value if the cost were made to equal its worth. Taxes thus far in our national experience have been a matter of adroitness on the part of government and of complaint on the part of citizens. Taxes should now become a theme of careful study.—Dearborn Independent.

NOTHING THAT STEVENSON ever did or could have done can detract from the charm of what he wrote. And nothing that he did can destroy a reader's pleasure in his work unless that reader be one for whom forbidden things have a greater importance and attraction than the splendors of art and the glory of genius.—Asheville Citizen.

THE SERPENT IN OBERAMMERGAU
ALBANY KNICKERBOCKER PRESS

The serpent of dissension and suspicion has wriggled his way through the passes and down into the little Bavarian village of Oberammergau. Anton Lang, the Christus of the Passion Play, and his comrades, return from their American tour with a cash balance that does not at all satisfy the villagers. Accounts are not quite clear, but say the folk of Ammergau, there is a vast difference between $250,000 supposed to have been collected in America, and a check for $10,000 brought back to the village by Lang and his associates.

In this deplorable situation several elements enter. To begin with, it is an excellent illustration of the way overhead eats up receipts of this sort. Every charitable organization knows how such things work out. Only the best kind of organization will get much more than fifty cents of the dollar to the ultimate beneficiary.

Again, human envy and jealousy play their part. One can imagine how easy it would be for some village scold to start discussion in Oberammergau with poorly translated clippings from the American papers showing that the simple folk of the Passion Play stopped at the best hotels, were banqueted, feted and made much of, while the home folks were going along with their humble, simple fare and living habits. "To think that the leaders of Oberammergau should go abroad and have such wonderful opportunities, and that after all they should bring back so little money!"

And agreed. It may be that the new day in Europe has spoiled the simplicity of the villagers of Oberammergau. Perhaps they have had too much contact with the outside world where dollars clink carelessly. Perhaps they are thinking of the beautiful production of their heritage in terms too greatly commercialized by the spirit of the time. So hands may be reaching up, not in benediction but with fingers curled in the universal language of "get."

Of course simplicity, ignorance of world affairs and misunderstanding make up a big part of it. The American report of the Oberammergau venture shows that many thousands of dollars are tied up in future deliveries of carvings and the like. The Oberammergau emissary to America should be able to straighten out these things in black and white. Only, and this is the tragedy of it, none will ever be able to think of Oberammergau in exactly the same way one did before this happened. And perhaps Oberammergau in itself can never be the same again.

LAKELAND LEDGER

A satrap stood on the orlop and in spite of his strabismus peered toward the sky hoping to see a bolide.

His hair was treated with pomade, and he was attired in fustian, vicuna and some amylaceous material. He was recovering from calenture and had therefore not been able to eat any bleuwits for dinner, with a sen and a lira substituted his ready cash. His only comfort was his pet rhesus, given him by a friendly boniface.

As the boat neared shore, he observed the neve on top of a mountain, on whose slope was an extensive boscauge, where year amid the borains and braes—

This doesn't mean anything except that we have been doing crossword puzzles and are anxious to make use of our enlarged vocabulary.

HERE THE Pacific Ocean is full of fish. The whole land is covered with sunshine, the hills are green, with magic growth that began here when Winter begins in the East.

The people are happy, because they are full of ambition and hope, and convinced that their land is the best on earth.

OUR PURITAN ancestors believed that heaven was a happy place in which you thought only about yourself, worrying not at all about the torments of friends and relatives down below.

Exceptionally religious people believed that contemplation of heaven above and friends barking in hell actually increased heaven's happiness.

LIFE ON this ranch, with headquarters on a hill 2,000 feet above the sea, has certain heavenly qualities.

You look westward across the ocean, and don't care much whether ladies and gentlemen on the jury in Los Angeles convict Kid McCoy and send him to be killed, or set him free to deal with some other lady and her jewelry.

LIFE IN this ranch, with headquarters, changing from the yellow California tint to the beautiful light green of the California Winter.

Contemplating the size of this magnificent cattle breeding ranch, 160,000 acres, running thirty miles along the Pacific, you forget the telephone stock markets, courts, politics, even money making.

SOMEBODY MENTIONS a well-known financial name, saying, "He is dead." Up here that seems less important than news that coyotes last night killed two more white does. They get the white does and fawns because they are so easily seen in the moonlight, when coyotes go murdering.

FOR THE moment you would rather invent a method of killing all coyotes than a method of prolonging indefinitely the lives of all the conspicuous gentlemen in Wall Street.

The men who work on this ranch, there are many of them, who were born here or nearby. They think and feel that the ranch is theirs. They nod kindly at Hearst, the owner, as if to say, "Poor devil, he has to go away and work in the East."

MR. NIGEL, Keep walks up the steep hill, carrying a dozen dead gophers trapped the night before. They look like squirrels and, like rats, live in holes in the ground. They are microscopic vegetarian coyotes, killing trees by gnawing them and gnawing the taproot as the coyotes kill fawns, partridges and pheasants.

RICHARD TAYLOR, who has charge of the "eagles cage" takes the freshly killed gophers and throws them to the American eagles. The eagles, living in a cage so big that a great, live oak tree grows in the middle of it, catch the dead gophers in midair and devour them.

A captured eagle must eat what he can get.

THAT FINISHED, the eagles sit each one on a branch by itself.

Taylor, their keeper, says: "If that old eagle could talk he would say: 'If you will let me out of here I will kill more gophers in a day than you can catch in a month.'"

WHEN YOU are up here, you can understand why Don Pancho, boss of the horse ranch, only went once to New York and never wants to go again.

"What is there to see or do?" he asks. He is right.

THIS IS THE real California, the real America, the real land of glory.

While the East reads this shivering, this hill top is buried in masses of flowers, the sunshine is hot two thousand feet up.

A MAN HAS just brought in a black bass more than six feet long. A boat from Santa Cruz Island, just off the coast fetches in crates as big as piano boxes full of the fine Pacific Ocean lobsters, the kind called "longoustes" by the French. They charge a double price for them at the Cafe Des Anglais.

IRELAND MAKES PROGRESS
PALATKA NEWS

In spite of its diminutive size Ireland, now that there are indications of apparent peace, is making great strides toward what has been the goal of the better minds of that island for many years—a country that is not only self-sustaining, but is profit-making. In size the island is a little more than one-half the area of Florida, one-eighth the size of Texas; and considerable of the area is water; yet it is already assuming the airs of a creditor country rather than a debtor, and is making vast expenditures in all lines of improvement.

By way of comparison it may be said that its famous Shannon river, the greatest waterway in Ireland, is but two-thirds as long as the St. Johns river in Florida, yet there is being spent some fifteen million dollars in developing power from it and in extending its mileage of navigation. If the government appropriates a half million dollars for the improvement of the St. Johns the residents of Florida feel highly elated.

That the business agency of the Irish is keen may be seen from the fact that Ireland annually exports more than thirty million dollars' worth of beef and dairy products, and the belief exists that this sum will be increased to more than fifty million dollars before the close of 1925. Small as that island is there have been twenty-six tailing way companies doing business, some of them without profit; but a recent merger placed all companies in one, with a reduction of running expenses, a better service, and a constant profit making administration.

It is by comparison that appreciation is gained. That bloody, fighting, warring, restless country is now making a record for progress that might well be emulated by many states of America. It is developing in every way, and its former "poor" contingent is now rapidly becoming self-sustaining. Its hundreds of thousands of little farms of one-acre and two-acre size, are being made capable of not only supporting the owners, but of making them a profit, and bank accumulations are increasing in an appreciable manner.

The one statement, fifty million dollars' worth of exports annually in the line of dairy and cattle products, is sufficient far grounds for Floridians to consider the possibilities of this state, with nearly double the area. Could Florida equal such a record it would place thousands of people upon "Easy street" for the remainder of their lives.

MORE JAPANESE EXCLUSION
PALM BEACH POST

The other day the Brazilian consul at Tokio notified the Japanese government that he had been instructed by his government to suspend the grant of visas to Japanese who intend to immigrate to Brazil. So far there has been no explanation of this incident and the Japanese government is said to be of the opinion that it presages an extension of the Japanese exclusion movement.

If it does it would be of interest in this country to know on what ground Brazil is going to put up the bar. It is scarcely possible that a color line has been drawn and there ought to be opportunities for every one for decades to come in Brazil, providing they are willing to do a little pioneering and work hard.

But perhaps the Japs in Brazil have been taking advantage of their ability to live on a cheaper plane to break down the economic status of settlers from Europe already on the ground in Brazil. That is what put the finishing touch on the anti-Japanese agitation in this country. Fear that in time the Japanese would undermine American standards of living forced the abandonment of the gentlemen's agreement.

The orthodox Japanese reaction to the American exclusion act was that race prejudice was at the bottom of it. If Brazil, where people with negro and Indian blood in their veins are received without prejudice if not exactly on equal terms, also bars out the Japanese it may have the effect of causing Japanese statesmen and intellectual leaders to go carefully over the whole question of their relation to the rest of the world.

Nowhere in the world is there a more adaptable people than the Japanese. There are not many strains that are their superiors intellectually. Therefore if after examining the whole subject in the light of cold reason the Japanese should come to the conclusion that they are losing out in present methods of pacific penetration of other countries there might take place a readjustment that would have a profound effect upon the future of the countries bordering the Pacific.

ASHEVILLE CITIZEN

Not even the best friends of prohibition enforcement can deny that the time has come to increase the people's respect for the men entrusted with the duty of making the dry law effective. The rottenness of prohibition enforcement in many places is not oil talk. Records of courts afford ample proof that men sworn to uphold the law have used it for their own enrichment. Hardly a week passes without the breaking of some big liquor scandal implicating prohibition agents.

The most recent and glaring instance of this is the alleged situation at Weehawken, New Jersey, where both police and enforcement agents are charged in affidavits with not only winking at the breaking of the law but actually with unloading and bottling the liquor. Why such conditions exist is explained, certainly in part, by the fact that the enforcement officers are not under civil service and therefore get their jobs through political influence.

The proposal to transfer the enforcement machinery from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice has much in its favor. But it will do no good so long as the appointment of enforcement agents is not better safeguarded. It is bad enough that so many prohibition agents are of such low standing that prohibition grievously suffers. It is far worse that this situation is the capstone in the arch of popular disrespect for the law and the courts. In popular contempt for the law, we are getting worse instead of better, and undeniably this is largely due to the flagrant manner in which the dry law is violated and laughed at in some of the States and in many communities of other States nominally observing the law.

DAN DOBBS

Property is a thing that we start yelling and screeching.

One great flaw in power is you must use the word "law".

Antiques are nice Christmas gifts. Give your gift to the person who needs it.

Christmas is a heap of fun. Everything in this world is worth a darn is a heap of fun.

Narcissus bulbs make a gift and may turn out to be something besides onions.

How about pottery? The terra cotta vase is always in for throwing at book agents.

A home is a comfortable furniture. Give your wife a chair for you to sit in.

How about a bed for Christmas? Get a small one so only two burglars can hide under it.

If you must give a present someone you dislike get your own to select a box of cigars for.

Hand-made lace is nice Christmas. Except for the you can't tell it from real chine-made lace.

If we had as much money Henry Ford we would buy a cake and sit on the curb and eat it all.

Better get your hair cut Christmas. The kids may run off sticky fingers through it and the works.

"Strange as it may seem," the most concealed man on earth found a cross-word puzzle other day which caused no difficulty.

TOKIO REGAINING PEOPLE

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—Tokio has resumed her place as the fifth city of the world, according to a police census taken here recently. After the earthquake of September, 1921, Tokio lost a quarter of her population and dropped behind Berlin. The police enumeration shows that the city now has 1,917,000 inhabitants, a gain of 390,000 from the figures just after the earthquake, but 260,000 less than before the disaster.

GERMANS TIP THE STREET CAR MEN

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—With the stabilizing of Germany's finances the practice of tipping street and bus conductors has returned. It is customary among many passengers paying the 15 or 20 pfennigs to give the conductor a tip of five pfennigs, which he is supposed to divide with the motorman.

The street car and bus men receive $25 to $30 a month, according to length of service.

Cecilian Music Club Holds Very Delightful Meeting On Saturday Afternoon

A large number of patrons and friends enjoyed the lecture and recital last Saturday afternoon of the Cecilian Music Club.

Under current topics a picture was shown of Arno Segall, the artist pianist of Savannah, Ga., just returned from a triumphant trip abroad. Mr. Segall, according to an article in Musical America, "finds the program taste of different nations very varied and said Scandinavian groups like technical display pieces; the brilliant glittering virtuosos works. Oriental strains appeal to them also and they love their Grieg. Germany wishes the three B's; Bach, Beethoven, Bhamns. But despite the academic weight of their taste they also enjoy Mozart and Brigg.

The French love best their own composers, Sainte-Saens, Du Busy, Ravel, occasionally Bach and Mozart.

"England enjoys a mixed program. English people, Mr. Segall adds, are calm, not very demonstrative but none the less appreciative. They are sincere, candid. "I like the English people," he adds.

America is the melting pot of all nations, and one may play anything one likes. (Positively true from Bach to the latest jazz.)"

A flat sketch was shown of the Arts High School for New York City. The buildings will be in a two hundred acre park. Instruction will be in the arts and music.

Tuition will be free to all tax paying citizens. There will be qualifications required as to talent and elementary literary training. This is to be the greatest educational centre of its kind in the world for the masses. The buildings will in time accommodate twenty-five thousand students.

At the close of the program Mrs. Julius Takach accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Deas gave a most delightful group of songs. Appreciation of which was evidenced in hearty applause.

Piano numbers given were:

- Mazurka Maeling

- Il Desirio Cramer
