Workshop agenda: senior center plan

SANFORD—City commissioners will discuss an updated status report on the proposed senior citizen center at its 4 p.m. workshop at City Hall today.

The city budget currently provides $175,000 for a senior citizen center, to be located at Seminole Boulevard and Sanford Avenue, in conjunction with the Civic Center.

The report and the center concept plan, provided by Bill Saunions, recommends a large meeting room, kitchen, two rooms for arts and crafts, restrooms, office space, first aid and health room and facility access for handicapped and their vehicles.

Total square footage is 5,780. Currently, dances and other senior events are held in the Civic Center with the shuffleboard facility and Visitor's Club located nearby in Fort Mellon Park.

If the commission approves the concept, the next step would be to advertise for the services of an architect to begin final design planning.

The commissioners will also discuss Seminole County's request that the city relocate water and sewer lines on Sanford Avenue and Lake Mary Boulevard rights-of-way. The county's request could cost the city $600,000, according to the Engineering and Planning Department.

The county's request is part of a long-range plan to improve the two streets, Lake Mary Boulevard which runs through county, city and Lake Mary jurisdictions.

Seminole County, Lake Mary and Sanford have representatives on the Lake Mary Boulevard Corridor Committee, whose function is to develop a long-range plan for the road, which includes its widening.

Other items on the workshop agenda:

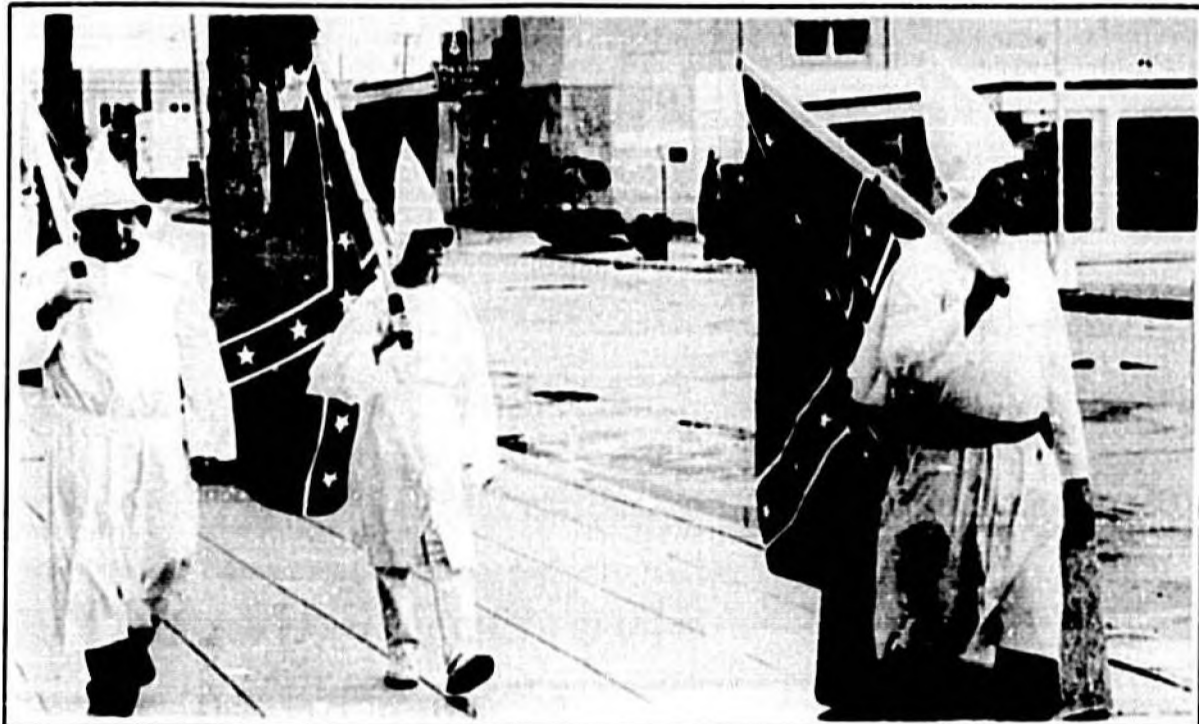

• A request from the Scenic Improvement Board to discuss the proposed park at Park Avenue and Eighth Street. The proposed concept for the community-built park with wooden playground equipment designed by Robert Leathers of New York, is expected to meet with commission approval.

• A presentation from Willie King, chairman of the Code Enforcement Board, concerning mandatory garbage pickup and vacant lot clean up.

• A discussion of vacancies on and re-appointments to the Code Enforcement Board and Planning & Zoning Commission.

SANFORD—The Ku Klux Klan, after cancelling Saturday's demonstration due to lack of klansmen and threatening weather, showed up Sunday afternoon and marched in front of the Seminole County Courthouse.

The three klansmen, wearing white hoods and robes, walked up and down in front of the courthouse, sometimes in the rain, carrying Confederate flags.

The peaceful and uneventful demonstration was viewed from City Hall, which is across the street from the courthouse, by Sanford Police

Auction of Dahl goods helps pay overdue bill

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD—The financial outcome of the Saturday auction of the worldly goods of a 61-year-old Deland man who took over a Sanford warehouse Dec. 3, to try to save personal items for his family, "was not adequate, but was better than expected," warehouse owner Robert O'Neil said today.

The property was auctioned in an effort to cover an $11,000 moving and storage bill, and other expenses by the moving company and warehouse.

O'Neil declined to say how much money was collected in the four-hour sale.

The sale was first scheduled for Dec. 5. However, the shipper of the goods, John Dahl, armed with a shotgun and threatening suicide to stop the sale, took control of Adams Transfer and Storage, Holly Avenue.

Saturday, Bonnie Dahl, Dahl's daughter from Deland, was back at the scene of her father's siege, armed with $3,000 to bid on her family's property.

Ms. Dahl said an elderly aunt had sold stocks to finance her bidding against bargain hunters and antique dealers. She bought personal items, including jewelry, antique furniture and a rag doll.

Halfway through the sale, Ms. Dahl broke down and cried. A friend encouraged her to continue bidding. Before the auction O'Neil had allowed Ms. Dahl to recover personal papers, photos

Fires damage two Fern Park buildings

FERN PARK—An argument between transients occupying an abandoned two-story building led to a blaze causing $5,000 damage when a man doused a room with gasoline and set it afire, according to officials at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

A second fire about six hours later resulted in about $50,000 worth of smoke and water damage to the Krystal Restaurant a couple blocks away.

According to arson investigator Daren Tjonstol, one of the two men involved in the argument took a bucket of used gasoline from an auto repair shop nearby, threw the gasoline into the room and set it afire.

Permit for school will be considered Longwood commission sets hearing

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD—A conditional use request to operate a small private school at 1213 State Road 427, placed on the May 2 agenda by mistake, is scheduled to come before the city commission tonight.

A public hearing on the request will be held at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in city hall at 175 W. Warren Ave., following a 6:30 p.m. work session on the mid-term budget review.

Barbara Ann Smith of Winter Springs has applied for the conditional use permit to operate Back to Basics Learning Academy for kindergarten through first grade in Wildmere Plaza, which is zoned C-2 commercial.

Teachers at the school will be Smith and her mother, both of whom are certified teachers in New Jersey and are in the process of obtaining temporary Florida teaching certificates. The state conducts background and morals investigations prior to issuing teacher certificates, according to City Planner Chris Nagle.

Nagle is recommending the conditional use permit be granted subject to certain conditions:

• That the property owner complete septic tank improvements requested by the Seminole County Health Department.

• That Smith and any other teachers furnish the city with a copy of current Florida teaching certificates.

School proposal

• From Who: Barbara Ann Smith of Winter Springs.

• Where: In Wildmere Plaza.

• Conditions: Teachers must have Florida certification, septic tanks must be approved, room for septic tanks and parking be provided.

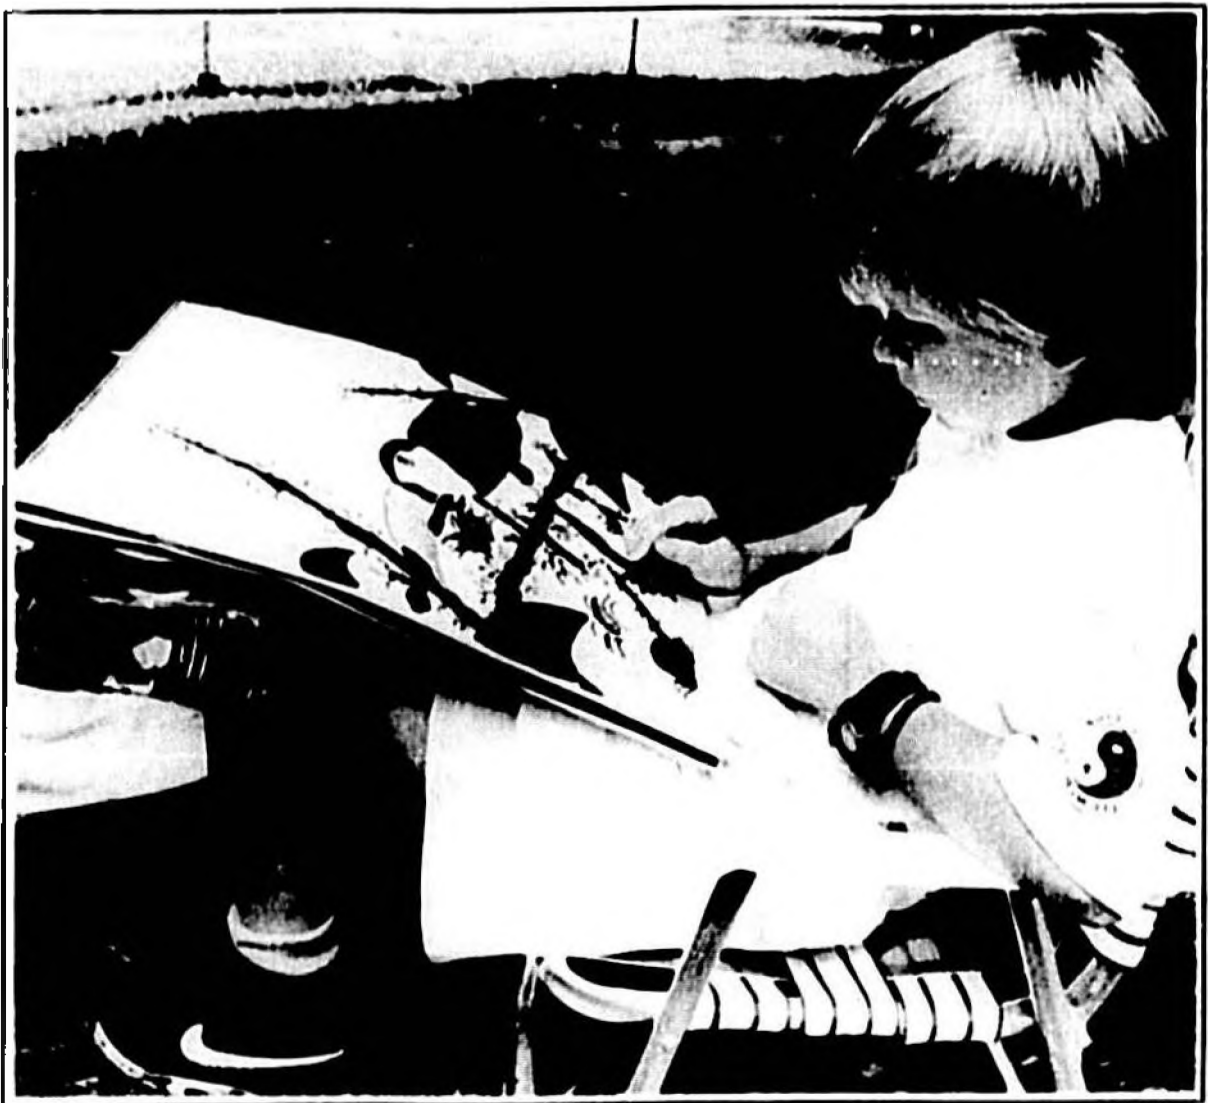

• That the approval be limited to 1,200 gross square feet space because of space required for septic tanks and parking.

Public hearings will also be held on another conditional use request and on an ordinance amending the city's purchasing requirements.

Nancy W. Peterson has applied for a conditional use permit to locate a wholesale car dealership in a C-3 zoning district at 133 E. Church Ave. City Clerk/Acting City Administrator Don Terry said it will just be a business office and no cars will be displayed at the location.

The proposed purchasing ordinance revisions include a decrease in the amount of bond required for the purchasing director from $500,000 to $20,000; establishment of signature authority for the awarding of bids, contracts and purchase orders in conjunction with procedures for obtaining quotes and bids; provision for a

Accused brick-thrower arrested

SANFORD — A woman who allegedly attacked another who drove up and wanted to talk to her estranged husband, faces charges of aggravated assault, throwing a deadly missile in an occupied vehicle and criminal mischief.

Julia Mae Littles, 39, of 2090 Dixie Ave., Sanford, is accused of throwing a brick into a car driven by Kimberly L. Green, 27, of 1606 W. Eighth St., Sanford, at about 7:20 p.m. Saturday.

Littles also allegedly broke a window of Green's car with a crowbar and tried to hit Green with the bar. She allegedly beat on Green's car with the bar as Green tried to drive away. Damage to the car, which was also occupied by a 15-year-old boy and another woman, was estimated at $2,000.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported the trouble began when Green drove up and told Littles she wanted to talk to her husband, who reportedly lives with Littles. An argument developed between the two women prior to the assault. Green was hit in the head with the crowbar, deputies said. Police took both the crowbar and brick.

Littles has been released on $5,000 bond to appear in court June 6.

Wife charged in stabbing

SANFORD — A 31-year-old woman remains jailed in lieu of $5,000 bond, charged with aggravated battery, after allegedly stabbing her husband in the chest with a screwdriver during an argument.

In attacks on former girlfriends

Two charged in separate incidents

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two Seminole County men are being held without bond after unrelated alleged attacks on former girlfriends over the weekend.

In one incident, Thomas Edwin Capps Jr., 33, of 700 Michigan St., Sanford, jumped out the window of a moving patrol car and escaped. Capps was handcuffed and was being transported to the county jail at the time.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies with a tracking dog recaptured the suspect about two hours later in a swamp off Michigan Avenue.

Capps, who was arrested at 3:45 p.m. Sunday, faces charges of false imprisonment, battery and escape.

In the other case, Jeffrey Thomas Testa, 21, of Orlando, was charged with sexual battery, burglary and battery by Altamonte Springs police, who arrested him at the home of his alleged victim at about 12:42 a.m. Sunday.

In the case of Capps, Seminole County sheriff's deputies gave this account of his arrest:

A 29-year-old Sanford woman who ended an 18-month-long relationship with Capps in December told sheriff's deputies he called her several times Friday and threatened her and a man she has been dating. The telephone lines to her home were cut Friday but had been repaired by Sunday, when she received several more calls. She tried to call Capps back to calm him down and when she got no answer, she drove toward Capps' home.

While en route to his home, driving on Pineway Street in rural Sanford, at about 3:36 p.m. the woman said Capps rode a bicycle into the path of her vehicle. She stopped to keep from hitting him and he allegedly grabbed her car keys and purse. The woman ran from her car and Capps, who was reportedly armed with a knife, forced her back into the vehicle.

As he tried to start the vehicle the woman escaped again and was allegedly caught by Capps, hit several times, grabbed by the throat and forced back in the vehicle before the suspect drove to his home.

Capps allegedly ripped the woman's T-shirt off and struck her several more times. At this point, Capps' father and mother arrived and the victim fled to their car. Capps and his father argued and sheriff's deputies were called.

Capps took refuge in his house where sheriff's Sgt. Ken Starr talked him into surrendering. He was handcuffed and put in the rear of Starr's patrol car but jumped from the vehicle a short time later and ran into the woods.

In the Altamonte Springs case, the victim told police she had argued with her former boyfriend at her home at Sunridge Place at about 5 p.m. Saturday. He left, but reportedly returned and was waiting inside the victim's home when she returned from a bicycle ride at about 8 p.m. Saturday.

The woman said Testa, who had entered her unlocked home without her permission, hit her in the face with his fists and bit her face.

The victim claims she was raped twice and fled when the suspect fell asleep.

Testa was arrested at the scene after the woman called police from a nearby telephone.

Sanford patrol cars damaged in high-speed chase

SANFORD — A 25-year-old Tampa man led Sanford police on a high-speed chase through the city early Sunday morning, before finally being arrested in downtown Orlando.

Thomas Laverne Allen, 8735B N. 48th St., Tampa, rammed and damaged four Sanford police cars and was pursued by four different police agencies before his arrest.

In what was described as a routine traffic stop, Sanford Police Officer Van Stuart attempted to pull Allen over at 14th Street and Locust Avenue at 3:27 a.m.

Allen ignored sirens and lights used by Stuart and began his determined escape run through the streets of Sanford in a 1977 Mercury station wagon.

At this time, police officers Stuart and R.L. Cummings were in pursuit.

At one point during the chase, which covered "most of Sanford" according to Police Chief Steven Harriett, Allen drove on Airport Boulevard at a high rate of speed, ignoring all traffic signals.

Even when cornered, Allen managed to escape, Harriett said.

"At one time, he was surrounded (by three cars) at First and Pine," said Harriett. "He made him a hole by aiming and shoving a car out of the way."

Before heading south on Highway 17-92, Allen had damaged four police cars but was still being pursued.

Longwood and Casselberry police then gave chase until Allen reached the county line, where a Seminole County sheriff took over the pursuit.

Allen's car was found at Brown and Washington streets.

An Orlando police K-9 unit located Allen in a tree a few blocks away at 4:30 a.m.

Allen has been charged with four counts of aggravated assault with a vehicle on a police officer, eluding police, driving without a license and resisting arrest. He is being held in the Orange County jail.

Rain falls only in Sanford area

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Fog shrouded Sanford like a pall early this morning, then the rays of the sun gradually burned through, mid-level cumulus float through the sky and all elements together created a spectacle of natural beauty. It's warm, clear and gorgeous.

Yesterday was an enigma of sorts. Read the official weather reports as to rain: Only West Palm Beach, in all of Florida, had recorded rainfall—51 inches. The official, federally funded, albeit by a deficit budget, National Weather Service says "no rain in Seminole County. The University of Florida Research Station on Celery Avenue says "no rainfall in Sanford." Yet those very few who were near the Seminole County Courthouse Sunday afternoon can attest to the fact that dribbles of rain fell intermittently between 2 p.m. and about 3:30 p.m. A demonstration, first scheduled for Saturday, was postponed until Sunday afternoon. The demonstration attracted scant attention, except, perhaps, from the Lord. He rained on their parade but the droplets were seemingly confined to that area.

A couple of callers today seemed to have the opinion that the weather story in Sunday's paper kinda poked fun at both weather forecasting and astrology. Yeah, probably so. The truism of the story was evident. Throughout Seminole County yesterday there was weather. The same will hold true today and tomorrow.

You can expect temperatures today in the mid- to high-80s, then dropping to the 60s tonight. Sky should be pretty clear, call it partly cloudy or mostly sunny. This will hold for the next few days.

It's pretty much the same throughout the south. As you toddle north along the Atlantic, it's sunny in Georgia, partly cloudy in the Carolinas and Virginia. Just don't go any further north.

Showers and scattered thunderstorms dotted the upper Midwest Sunday, while rainshowers dampened the mid-Atlantic Coast.

Showers and scattered thunderstorms were reported from southeast Kansas across central Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, northeast Minnesota and Michigan. The National Weather Service said.

Rainshowers and thunderstorms also extended from northern Georgia across western Virginia into eastern West Virginia.

Thunderstorms produced small hail west of Huntington, W.Va., and at Lake Geneva, Wis.

The Florida Department of Insurance today issued a new consumer guide to help Floridians prepare for hurricanes and the insurance questions that can go with them.

The annual hurricane season begins June 1 and Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter says everyone needs to be ready beforehand.

Copies of the guide are free and available by contacting any local office of the Florida Department of Insurance, Gunter said.

They can also be obtained by calling 1-800-342-2762, toll-free statewide.

Chinese stoical attitude shaken by outspoken dissident

By Jane Macartney

BEIJING (UPI) — In a nation where political dissidents often vanish into dank jails and obscurity, a soft-spoken, bespectacled scientist is forcing the Chinese government to reassess the way it handles some opponents.

More than a year ago Fang Lizhi, the country's most prominent astrophysicist and outspoken dissident, was fired as a college professor and expelled from the Communist Party after a series of student protests for freedom through the winter of 1986.

Officials charged his open declarations that Marxist dogma was "obsolete" incited the students. The purge effectively muzzled him, barring him from teaching and giving interviews.

But in early May, Fang abruptly emerged from political limbo.

After two flattering profiles in state-run publications, he gave a rousing speech on democracy to hundreds of cheering students at Beijing University, had a twice-banned book of essays published, received long-sought permission to travel to the United States and gave his first on-the-record interview to Western reporters.

His actions technically violated official restraints. And his defiant public assertions — that the Communist Party is riddled with corruption, restricts freedom and that its absolute power should be limited — would have landed him in prison a decade ago.

"If a society is to progress, it must have the right to restrict its leaders," said Fang, 52, settling into an overstuffed couch in his spacious, book-lined apartment in northwest Beijing.

"No matter how good the party may be, if there is no supervisory power then it is bound to turn bad."

What is needed, he said, is nothing less than a multi-party system with checks and balances. The system he envisions would have quasi-opposition parties acting as external supervisors.

"The point is that in China you can't form a real party," he said. "Thus every step of democracy must be struggled for."

"Democracy must be fought for. It is not bestowed."

Such talk — which got him into trouble last year — is heresy to China's communist leaders. But they seem unsure of how to handle a loquacious and unrelenting opponent whose highly publicized vilification only managed to spread his ideas and win him idol status among Chinese students.

The leadership's recent tolerance is not a sign it is ready to accept public challenges. At the height of the 1986 student protests, an enraged Deng Xiaoping told officials:

"I have read Fang Lizhi's speeches ... Why do we keep people like him in the party? He should be expelled."

Fang is now a researcher at the Beijing Observatory. Yet that he remains at large appears a sign that Mao Tse-tung's successors are seeking to move away from the policy of locking enemies in rural cattle sheds and want more sophisticated means to neutralize troublemakers.

The day after his talk to the students — which Fang laughingly called "very provocative" — he received approval to visit the United States late this year.

Dukakis, Jackson to debate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —

Through primarily attacking Republican George Bush, Democratic presidential rivals Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson have agreed to a final debate of their own before the delegate-rich California primary.

The big end-of-the-season vote June 7 is acknowledged by Jackson as his last chance to upset the Dukakis wagon rolling toward the party's nomination, and both men apparently see benefits in a debate. They will square off May 25 in a national broadcast from San Francisco presented by several newspapers and a local public television station, the sponsors announced late Friday.

A Gallup Poll released this week showed Dukakis leading Jackson 67 percent to 27 percent in the Golden State. It also showed Dukakis the favorite over Bush for the general election 46 percent to 42 percent. With stakes quite high for everybody, all three candidates are campaigning hard.

The vice president, who already has clinched the Republican nomination, spoke to employees of a defense plant near Los Angeles Friday before heading south to San Diego. Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, was in the San Francisco Bay area and headed for Los Angeles, Jackson, the Chicago civil rights leader, traveled in the opposite direction.

The underdog Democrat met in San Francisco with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, who requested the meeting. Jackson emerged to say he and Cuomo had discussed the campaign "and prospects of our party." Cuomo, still publicly uncommitted, said Democrats "need Jesse Jackson personally, if not as the nominee."

Dukakis, meanwhile, responded to criticism from Jackson that he is as "vague" on major issues as Bush. The three-term governor reminded audiences, "I have made numerous speeches, written dozens of position papers and outlined my views on a whole range of issues. One of the things that I have is a record."

Speaking to an overflow crowd at California State University at Long Beach, Dukakis outlined several proposals to improve public education, including a Social Security-type program for college loans, in which students would repay educational loans through payroll deductions after graduating, and a national college scholarship fund for students who agree to graduate to teaching.

Bush, who has said he would like to be "the education president," went after Dukakis on another set of issues.

Touring a Hughes Aircraft Co. plant in Fullerton, Calif., the vice president said Dukakis opposes "Star Wars," the MX missile, the Siletman missile and testing of nuclear weapons, ballistic missiles and anti-satellite weapons.

"These programs are part of the very muscle of our defense," Bush told about 3,000 workers. "In my judgment, the governor's views are naive at best, and if implemented would be dangerous to the defense of this country."

"The Dukakis Doctrine is a doctrine of wishful thinking," he added. "Even Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale supported systems Governor Dukakis opposes."

Jackson, keeping his overall focus against Republicans, took a swipe at the military programs Bush was hailing. Calling for a stronger defense against illegal drugs, Jackson noted, "Between 1980 and 1988 the federal government spent $17 billion for the war on drugs but spent $2 trillion to prepare for a war we hope will not happen."

Hats off to state champs

Records fell Friday night at the Florida high school track and field championships as the girls' team from Seminole High School earned its third consecutive state title. It is appropriate that the title was gained with a record number of points.

But perhaps one of the more meaningful records for all Seminole County is the attendance of 7,001 fans who crowded Showalter Field at Winter Park High School. It was the largest attendance ever for a Florida track and field championship event and a deserving tribute to the program of Coach Emory Blake and the exploits of two exceptional athletes: Shownda Martin and Dorchelle Webster. Each won two events, then combined with two teammates to win another. Each set an individual state record, as did the four-girl relay team.

Miss Martin won in the mile and the 880, while Miss Webster won the 330 hurdles and the 110 low hurdles. Both are seniors. They were joined by Yolanda Baker, a sophomore, and Adrian Hillsman, junior, in winning the mile relay in record-breaking time.

Another county prepster, senior Karl Wright of Oviedo High School won the state title in the boys 330 hurdles.

Coach Blake is justly proud of his team, as well he should be. We are proud of Coach Blake. But we should also applaud the efforts of the many coaches in the schools that give so much of themselves daily on behalf of their students, and often at great personal sacrifice in time and resources.

Next season Miss Martin will be competing as a scholarship athlete at Louisiana State University. Miss Webster has signed with the University of Florida. They will compete against each other in the SEC. But younger athletes will step forward to take their place at Seminole High School with the dream of winning yet another state title.

Seminole County is assured of continuing to be a winner with students, athletes and coaches such as these that dream, and consistently give of their best.

Klan walks alone

The three males had no clear idea of why they were there parading back and forth in front of the Seminole County Courthouse Sunday.

Neither did citizens of Sanford who shunned the demonstration by the white-robed trio: a teenager, a middle-ager and a senior citizen.

Last week a self-described leader of the Ku Klux Klan announced a demonstration in Sanford to be held protesting efforts to end the flying of the Confederate flag over public buildings in Alabama. Area civic leaders had called upon citizens to stay away from the area. Two of the paraders told a reporter that they were "showing the flag" and didn't know why they were there beyond that.

The threesome began their picketing and a light rain began to fall. The demonstrators persisted though the street was empty save only for numerous policemen in City Hall and manning barricades.

Nerves tensed at one point when three black children approached the area, but their attention was directed across another street—towards the lake. They had no interest in the antics of demonstrators; their interest was in catching fish.

As 4 o'clock neared the KKKers rolled their replicas of the Confederate battle flag carefully, tossed them into the back of a pick-up truck, and drove back to their out-of-county homes.

We can be proud of the city of Sanford and all citizens of our area for their attitude towards and response to the KKK Sunday.

President Reagan's faint embrace of Bush

By Arnold Bevilacqua
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's endorsement of Vice President George Bush last week, variously described as "terse" or "lukewarm," may have been just what the soon-to-be-nominated Republican presidential candidate needed.

There was an undertone of shock in the stories about the president's failure to give Bush a rousing sendoff, and some very skeptical reporting of the Bush campaign's contention that it got exactly what it asked for from Reagan.

But that may just be the truth. Six months ago, George Bush's biggest problem was to win the GOP nomination. He did it mainly by emphasizing his links to Reagan, his part as a mostly silent but active partner in the political enterprise that won two national elections and made major inroads into reversing the social welfare and business regulation climate of previous Democratic administrations.

Bush took and may continue to take some lumps for that strategy. Both Alexander Haig and Sen. Robert Dole belabored him during the early stages of the primary season for refusing to clearly state his personal position on the Iran arms sales, among other issues.

Bush simply stonewalled them and other critics, declaring he had spoken his mind privately to the president and was not about to breach that confidential relationship.

Apart from his personal feelings, Bush had good political reasons for stressing loyalty to Reagan in his nomination campaign. To get the nomination, he needed the Reagan loyalists in the conservative center of the party because others were going for the far right and moderate middle. He got what he wanted and locked up the nomination in an amazingly short time.

Bush is not the first vice president to run into this situation. Twenty years ago, Hubert Humphrey's supporters, sure that he could not have supported Lyndon Johnson's Vietnam policy, pleaded with him to lay out his differences with the president and shuck off the burden of anti-war sentiment that was tearing apart the Democratic Party.

Humphrey waited until the party's regulars, who backed Johnson, had given him the nomination. He finally did try to state his own position on Vietnam, but it was such a straddle between a declaration of independence and an LBJ loyalty oath that he gained very little in his ill-starred 1968 campaign.

It is not news that the Bush campaign strategists, aware that no sitting vice president in 152 years has won the presidency, are looking for a way to implant the image of a candidate who is his own man and not the outgoing president's tame poodle.

Bush's handlers obviously saw the advantages of an endorsement from the president, but they also could see the pitfalls of an embrace so warm that the vice president emerged as Reagan's total creature.

In other words, they wanted the positive spin loyalty to Reagan afforded during the Republican contest for the nomination, but did not want Bush to carry all of Reagan's negatives into the general election where Democrats also get to vote.

So it is entirely plausible that Bush got what he wanted from Reagan.

Incidents may not be racial

Something peculiar is going on in black-white relations in this country. There has recently been a proliferation of incidents that have rapidly taken on a symbolic and inflamed character.

A black man was killed in Howard Beach, Long Island. It had just been an encounter among casual toughs, nothing much would have been heard about it. But it became a national incident because of the racial content, real or supposed.

Bernhard Goetz shot four black thugs on the subway. Another "racial incident," turning New York City inside out and causing a legal vendetta against Goetz by District Attorney Robert Morgenthau. The question was virtually shouted: Is Goetz a bigot? I haven't heard it asked whether the four blacks harbored anti-white feelings.

In the recent New York primary, Mayor Ed Koch slugged Jesse Jackson verbally. Koch said Jackson would bankrupt and disarm the country, and that because of his attitudes toward Israel, Arab, and "Hymietown," Jews would be "crazy" to vote for him. Well, that's vigorous enough, but well within customary boundaries of political polemic. And Koch, incidentally, was right. Yet the New York Times denounced Koch editorially, as if he had disgraced himself, and the widespread opinion seems to be that Koch was wrong to attack Jackson.

At Stanford University, militant blacks at one point led by the same Jesse Jackson, have forced the abandonment of a course in the classics of western civilization, and the substitution of a course that recognizes the "contributions of women and minorities." Secretary of Education William Bennett traveled to Stanford last week, and made an eloquent and—to me—self-evidently correct speech defending the great books. He was editorially slammed by the New York Times: "Enlightenment Lost on Secretary Bennett." But Bennett's case is so persuasive that he may carry the day intellectually anyway.

In my opinion, the American student is no racist, not by a long shot. But the same student has a sense of elementary fairness, and can recognize its opposite when he sees it. That may be why tensions are rising.

Scrutinizing the presidential finalists

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The presidential race has narrowed to three finalists. Since the winner will have a powerful impact on our lives, we should certainly get to know them before choosing among them.

With this in mind, we have put each one under the magnifying glass and we have tried to focus on the private man behind the public image. Today we appraise George Bush.

He's an authentic American aristocrat, blue blood, blue chip, who was chauffeured to day school, was sent to prep school and was graduated from Yale. His mother's father built a railroad, played championship polo and founded golf's Walker Cup competition. His father's father headed a steel company.

Yet, George Herman Walker Bush is not the pampered dilettante he might appear to be. He left prep school at 18 to become the Navy's youngest pilot in World War II. He flew a flaming torpedo bomber over the Japanese island of Chichi-shima, refusing to bail out until he had completed his bombing run. He was rescued and rejoined his

VINCENT CARROLL

Got grudge? Write

"Morality is all right, but what about the dividends?"

Those are Kaiser Wilhelm's words, but they might as well have been spoken by Donald Regan, Larry Speakes, Michael Deaver, David Stockman, Al Haig and the rest of the gossip-mongers and grudge-bearers who've left the Reagan administration over the years.

Rarely have so many been paid so much to betray former associates. The operative word, by the way, is "paid." Hefty publishing royalties are obviously among the germs spreading this epidemic of bad form among former Reagan officials, this exuberant urge to settle scores and ridicule colleagues within the full public gaze.

At least Regan says he'll donate proceeds from his new book, "For the Record: From Wall Street to Washington," to charity. Apparently, he's found the pleasure of making Nancy Reagan squirm to be payment enough.

This is not to say that blind loyalty to a president should take precedence over truth. But let's face it: Most of these men hardly heeded the muse of history in turning to their typewriters. Their works have none of the magisterial range and density of, say, Henry Kissinger's memoirs, or the grace and lofty purpose of Arthur Schlesinger Jr.'s paean to John F. Kennedy's Camelot.

Deaver's "Behind the Scenes" and Speakes' "Speaking Out" sometimes read like the boorish prattle of lotto winners awed by the high-class company they're suddenly able to keep. Look at me, they seem to exclaim, surrounded by such powerful people!

Not every fugitive from the executive branch has had name-dropping or revenge on his mind. But even "The Triumph of Politics," Stockman's 1986 book and the most substantial of the lot, suffered from unpleasant undertones of bitterness toward those who'd clashed with him.

To some extent, the rise of the kiss-and-tell political book can probably be blamed on the length of Reagan's presidency. Not since Dwight Eisenhower has anyone lasted eight years in the office. But even Ike's era produced nothing like the current spate of gossip and back-stabbing. Neither did Kennedy's brief presidency; most books from JFK's aides verged on the reverential.

The administrations of both Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon offered fertile ground for unflattering assessments, but officials who produced them (such as LBJ press secretary George Reedy) often waited until the boss left office.

So there does seem to be something new going on, at least in scope.

But even hiring people committed to the president's goals is not going to eliminate every kiss-and-tell book. David Stockman certainly thought he was in tune with Reagan's ideals. Like it or not, we seem to live in an era of the vindictive tattletale.

Disease problems persist

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Early in December 1981, officials at the University of Iowa Hospitals realized they had a problem.

During the previous 10 months, 24 patients had developed a rare but serious form of pneumonia accompanied by high fever, muscle aches and chest pain. All but three of the patients were housed in the same wing, and 16 were from the same cancer ward.

Infection control specialists suspected a cause, and a quick check confirmed it. The cause of the pneumonia was in the water: Legionella pneumophila, the bacteria responsible for Legionnaires' disease.

"We knew we had an epidemic on our hands and we knew where it was coming from," says Dr. Charles Helms, an internist at the hospital. "What we didn't know — and what nobody really knows at this point — is what is the best thing to do about it."

Legionnaires' disease is, in a sense, an old and a new problem for hospitals. Nosocomial infections — infections acquired by a patient while in the hospital — have always been a problem, and experts believe Legionnaires' Disease was always one of them. But Legionnaires' disease wasn't discovered until it had already become famous.

Between July 27 and Aug. 31, 1976, a mysterious pneumonia swept the participants of American Legion convention held at a Philadelphia hotel July 21-24. Twenty-nine people died and 151 others were hospitalized in the resulting epidemic.

The outbreak was eventually traced to previously unrecognized bacteria — dubbed legionella — that circulated through the convention hotel's ventilation system. But having solved the mystery, researchers soon discovered legionella and Legionnaires' disease were not some freak of nature.

"It really took the explosive outbreak of the cases of pneumonia to bring the technology to bear to recognize this pathogen," says Stephen Redd, an epidemiologist with the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "But once we found it, we found it everywhere."

allowing each individual to have more money and freedom of choice on how to spend it."

When it comes to foreign policy, Bush is a hardliner who would continue to strengthen the nation's defenses on land and sea and in space. He would avoid situations like the Iran-contra affair and refuse to negotiate with terrorists. He would stay tough with the Ayatollah Khomeini, intervene to defend democracy in Central America and crack down on drug traffickers.

He would not be a great communicator nor great innovator, his admirers agree. But Bush would likely be a solid, sensible, competent president who would hold the government largely on its present course.

Footnote: We were assisted by the non-partisan, non-profit, all-unteer Voters Caucus in analyzing Bush's political record. The Voters Caucus is sponsored by the International Platform Association, a group of public speakers. Jack Anderson is the non-paid president of the International Platform Association. Appraisals of Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson will appear in future columns.

New bomber becomes most expensive plane ever built

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Stealth bomber, months away from its first flight, has become the most expensive bomber ever built, with a price tag of $450 million a plane. The Washington Post reported.

Officials knowledgeable about the cost figures for the bomber built by Northrop Corp. reported its price tag will be 20 percent more than previous estimates, the newspaper said Sunday.

The advertised cost, in 1981 dollars, has risen from $36.6 billion — a figure previously acknowledged by the Air Force — to $43 billion, the newspaper said. When those figures are adjusted for inflation into 1989 dollars, the cost has gone up from $50.6 billion for the 132 bombers to be bought to $59.5 billion.

Citing U.S. officials familiar with cost figures provided to Congress on the classified project, the Post also reported the now-flying Stealth fighter has been kept in production longer than planned under a deal engineered by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Both the bomber and fighter carry the nickname "Stealth" because they use advanced designs and technologies and radar-absorbing materials to evade radar detection. Costs for the planes are contained in the "black" or classified portions of the Pentagon budget.

The Air Force's only statement about a rise in the bomber's costs came in a report last month saying the military was "re-evaluating cost estimates" on the plane and would release revised figures later in the year.

The Air Force previously estimated the program would cost no more than 3 percent more than the B-1B built by Rockwell.

Senate leaders encouraged by INF treaty developments

By Steve Gerstel
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders, "encouraged" by administration assurances, say they will decide late today or Tuesday when to bring up the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty for final debate.

Pending a thorough weekend examination of the latest U.S.-Soviet agreements by the Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Intelligence committees, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd expressed optimism Friday about the future.

"I feel encouraged," the West Virginia lawmaker told reporters. "I know progress has been made. The decision when to go ahead and whether to go ahead will have to wait for the report from the committee chairmen."

The chairmen will report their findings late Monday or Tuesday, and several key senators who voiced more optimism than Byrd predicted the treaty would be taken up Tuesday with all eyes on the Moscow summit May 29 to June 2.

"At this moment, there is more optimism of passage of the treaty than at any time," declared Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee. He said many lawmakers are confident "the president will have it when he leaves for the summit."

Sens. David Boren of Oklahoma and William Cohen of Maine, the Democratic chairman and ranking Republican of the Intelligence Committee, said Friday's briefing by national security adviser Colin Powell left them with "positive" impressions that last-minute treaty problems were resolved in Geneva.

Powell flew back from the Swiss city after Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze announced Thursday that their two days of talks had produced agreement on the issues of contention.

One of the major points settled in Geneva was the matter of "futuristic" INF-range weaponry, which had Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., threatening to amend the treaty's resolution of ratification in a way that would require Soviet endorsement. Negotiators signed a document Thursday agreeing the treaty bans INF-range missiles with futuristic weapons aboard.

"General Powell feels that the agreements that have resulted are significant and have enhanced national security interests of our country in regard to the treaty," Byrd told reporters.

Senate leaders had refused to start considering the historic treaty — which for the first time eliminates a class of nuclear weapons — until the disputes were resolved. The treaty would dismantle 867 U.S. and 1,752 Soviet land-based missiles with ranges of 300 to 3,400 miles, most of which are in Europe.

Arch-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, did not attend Friday's meeting with Powell but told reporters before the session that he would offer "something like a dozen amendments" when the treaty reaches the chamber floor.

"It's a bad treaty," Helms insisted. "If this treaty is ratified we ought to pull our troops out of Europe."

No winner, lottery goes to $7 million

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — No one chose all six winning numbers in the Florida lotto, so the top prize "rolls over" for the second time, increasing the jackpot to $7 million for next week's drawing, a spokesman said Sunday.

The winning numbers drawn Saturday night in the weekly Florida lotto game were: 18, 15, 23, 19, 11, and 22.

Lottery spokesman Ed George said 116 people correctly chose five of the six numbers, winning $2,646.50 each.

He said 5,471 people had four of the six, good for $62 each, and 93,417 people had three of the six, winning $4.30 each.

There are no prizes for choosing one or two of the winning numbers.

Ticket sales for the drawing, the second since the six-number lotto game began, totaled $4.72 million, George said.

Surgeon general calls for restrictions on cigarette sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop announced unequivocally today that cigarettes and other tobacco products are addictive like heroin and cocaine, and he called for restrictions on their sale and distribution.

In a report on the health consequences of tobacco use, Koop stressed that nicotine is the cause of addiction because it is readily absorbed from tobacco smoke in the lungs and from smokeless tobacco in the mouth or nose.

Levels of nicotine in the blood are similar in magnitude in people using different forms of tobacco, said the report. Once in the blood stream, nicotine is rapidly distributed throughout the body, especially the brain and central nervous system.

"This report shows conclusively that cigarettes and other forms of tobacco are addicting in the same sense as are drugs such as heroin and cocaine," said Koop in the 20th such report but only the seventh issued during his tenure.

"Most adults view illegal drugs with scorn and express disapproval — if not outrage — at their sale and use. This nation has mobilized enormous resources to wage a war on drugs — illicit drugs. We should also give priority to the one addiction that is killing more than 300,000 Americans each year," he said.

Convicts end three-day siege

STRINGTOWN, Okla. (UPI) — Convicts who rioted and took eight guards hostage to protest overcrowding agreed to end a three-day siege by releasing their last two captives today in return for transfers to another state prison, officials said.

The deal was struck late Sunday after a day of off-and-on negotiations with the estimated 20 inmates who began their fiery revolt Friday night and took over a section of the medium-security Mac Allford Correctional Center.

Jurors continue deliberations in federal trial of Carlos Lehder

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Jurors deliberated through the weekend without reaching a verdict in the federal trial of Carlos Lehder, charged with being a leader in one of the world's largest and most violent cocaine cartels.

When the eight women and four men stopped for the day at about 3:30 p.m. Sunday, they had completed 18 1/2 hours of deliberation.

The panel members, who met all day without questions for U.S. District Judge Howell Melton in the 7 1/2-month case, were scheduled to resume deliberations at 9:15 a.m. today.

Deliberations resumed Sunday at 10 a.m. after four jurors, accompanied by marshals, returned from early church services.

Lehder, 38, is accused of being a leader in the violent and powerful Medellin cocaine cartel of Colombia. Several of the 115 government witnesses said he boasted of becoming the king of cocaine.

An 11-count federal indictment accuses him of smuggling 3.3 tons of cocaine from Colombia through Norman's Cay — the Bahamas island he owned — into the United States in 1979 and 1980.

Gun-related crimes on increase

MIAMI (UPI) — Police statistics show gun-related crimes have increased by 18 percent in the first six months of a liberalized gun law that critics say allows just about anybody — except convicted felons — to get a gun.

Loopholes in the law, which took effect Oct. 1, mean that many applicants with felony arrest records have little trouble obtaining a permit to carry a concealed weapon. The Miami Herald reported Sunday.

CARROLLTON, Ky. (UPI) — Police dismissed reports that another accident forced a pickup truck to go the wrong way on an interstate, hitting a church bus and killing 27 people, and they conducted a drug-alcohol test on the truck driver.

The blood test was taken from Larry Mahoney, 34, of Worthville, Ky., as he lay critically injured at a Louisville hospital after Saturday night's collision, one of the worst bus accidents in U.S. history.

No charges had been filed against Mahoney. State police trooper Glen Walton said the results of the test to determine the drug or liquor content in his body at the time of the accident will not be released for several days.

"There were reports that the driver of the truck was involved in an accident in the northbound lane, sending his vehicle into the bus," Walton said. "But we found that not to be the case."

Trooper Jim Mudd said the pickup was traveling north in the southbound lane on Interstate-71 about 75 miles northeast of Louisville. He said it was "just totally unexplained" how the truck was headed the wrong way.

The head-on collision ignited fire and explosions aboard the bus within seconds, creating an inferno that trapped those killed, witnesses said. Forty people on

Worst accidents

• Sept. 17, 1983: 32 people killed when makeshift bus carrying migrant workers was hit by a freight train at Chualar, Calif.

• May 21, 1976: 28 people died when a bus hit a guard rail in east San Francisco.

• Feb. 28, 1958: 27 people died when a school bus plunged into the Levisa fork of the Big Sandy River in Floyd County, Ky.

• March 14, 1940: 27 people killed in a truck-passenger train collision in McAllen, Texas.

• May 14, 1986: 27 people died when a pickup truck crashed head-on into a church bus carrying a youth group back from a Cincinnati amusement park.

the bus, most of them teenagers, were injured, and many managed to burst out the rear emergency exit. "They were screaming and crying and were saying, 'Where's my brother? Where's my sister?'" said Troy Davis, who helped children escape the burning bus. "It was terrible."

Another witness said the bus driver, John Pearman, was trying to direct children off the bus even while he was trapped behind the steering wheel with his clothes aflame. Pearman, an assistant church pastor and the Hardin County circuit court clerk, was presumed killed.

The school-type bus, once yellow but now a twisted tangle of black metal, was taking home teenage members of the First Assembly of God Church in Radcliff, Ky., from a day at the Kings Island Amusement Park north of Cincinnati.

State Medical Examiner Dr. George Nichols said his preliminary findings showed most of the victims probably were overcome by smoke inhalation before they were burned.

The charred bodies of 19 females and eight males were removed from the wreckage of the bus Sunday afternoon at a temporary morgue at a National Guard armory, and Nichols said it will take several days to identify them.

A National Transportation Safety Board team arrived in Carrollton from Washington Sunday night to begin an investigation. Witnesses said flames engulfed the bus almost immediately after the collision, which apparently ruptured the bus's gas tanks.

Truck driver Patrick Thomas Presley of Dallas said he tried open the bus's emergency door and began freeing passengers, but a second explosion erupted and he could do nothing.

"The driver of the bus was trapped between the steering wheel and the seat from the impact," Presley said. "He was trying to help as much as he could by yelling to tell the kids to get off the bus but he was burning at the same time."

"We saw several kids at there and burn as we were watching the fire and the bus go up," Presley said. "There was no way that we could get into the bus unless we were to get burned and catch fire ourselves."

Family members attended a memorial service at the church in Radcliff Sunday before boarding vans for the trip to Carrollton to help identify their loved ones.

"Our thoughts and our prayers are with the families and victims of this tragic accident," Gov. Wallace Wilkinson said in a statement. "Everything we can think to do is being done to provide assistance and comfort to them."

Rosary beads turning to gold?

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The religious faith of several Catholics has been heightened recently because the metal in their rosary beads appears to have changed from silver to gold.

Some of the faithful believe the change is linked to an apparition of the Virgin Mary, according to reports published Sunday. But at least one jeweler offers a more earthly explanation — tarnish.

The phenomenon has been reported among parishioners in St. Augustine and Jacksonville. One woman recently took the rosary she got from a priest two years ago to her jeweler after the color changed.

"I showed the rosary to the jeweler and asked him what kind of metal it was and he said it was a kind of gold," said Fran Palermo, of St. Augustine.

Palermo said she first noticed the color had changed in the metal links between the beads while praying at the Shrine of Our Lady of La Leche, a shrine to the Virgin Mary built 385 years ago at the Mission Nombre de Dios in St. Augustine.

Monsignor Harold Jordan, director of the mission, said the links in his rosary also changed color in early April.

Robertson expected to endorse Bush today

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI) — Pat Robertson, the former television evangelist who hoped to ride a groundswell of evangelical support into the White House, prepared today to formally throw his support to one-time rival George Bush.

Robertson, who finished ahead of Bush in the Feb. 8 Iowa Republican caucuses, lost big to the vice president in the March 8 Super Tuesday sweepstakes and never recovered. Bush ran away with the GOP presidential nomination and Robertson's candidacy remained only nominal.

Robertson visited Bush at the White House last Wednesday and later said he was supporting the vice president's candidacy. Robertson was expected to withdraw formally from the race today at his home.

"The race is pretty much over," Robertson said earlier.

He had acquired only 72 delegates to the Republican National Convention, compared to 1,316 for Bush. Robertson delayed his formal withdrawal to allow supporters in Arizona and Virginia a chance to pick up additional convention seats during weekend GOP caucuses.

Robertson and Bush appeared to have resolved their sometimes contentious relationship during last Wednesday's private meeting.

"I didn't ask anything for myself," Robertson said afterward. "I spoke about education and the need to bring the 1984 platform into line with the realities of 1988. We definitely had a meeting of the minds on the platform."

Robertson said he promised to try to get his backers, many of them evangelical Christians, to support Bush.

Robertson broke ties with the Christian Broadcasting Network, which he founded, soon after he entered the race, saying he wanted to preserve the American tradition of separation of church and state.

He said he likely will return soon to CNN as a commentator and chief executive officer of the ministry, which suffered a substantial drop in contributions during his absence.

Mother kills son in fight over loan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The mother of a gang member made her son a victim of a bloody weekend of gang violence by plunging a steak knife into his heart during a fight over money she loaned him on Mother's Day, police said.

Bluefus Davis, 18, one of four people killed in the weekend's gang-related attacks, became indignant and began beating his mother, Summie McGee, for asking him to pay back the money he borrowed May 8, police Sgt. John Rygh said.

"He (told his mother) he was a member of the Crips (gang) and that nobody messed with the Crips," Rygh said. "He apparently began assaulting her, she pulled out a knife ... and stabbed him in the chest."

Another police officer said "part of the altercation was over him being a gang member."

McGee, 37, was booked on suspicion of the murder of her son Saturday night in her apartment in the San Fernando Valley suburb of Panorama City. Rygh said she was placed under a suicide watch at the Van Nuys Jail.

At least 10 people were wounded in gang attacks that erupted from the trendy westside neighborhood of Westwood to the eastern suburb of Pomona. The weekend's four deaths brought to 123 the number of people killed in gang-related violence since Jan. 1 in Los Angeles, authorities said.

Police deployed their special anti-gang task force of 200 officers during the weekend, arresting nearly 200 people Friday and Saturday nights in neighborhoods plagued by the heavily armed gangs.

Police have arrested 8,152 people, including 3,973 known gang members, and closed more than 100 so-called "rock houses" since the department's highly publicized anti-gang campaign began in late February.

The state Senate approved a bill last week that would give police the authority to use electronic eavesdropping devices to tap the telephone conversations of big-time gang drug dealers.

A community group in Los Angeles called Saturday for the posting of military police at businesses plagued by gang violence.

Police Chief Daryl Gates has "declared war" on the gangs and created the special task force he calls "the hammer" to sweep the streets of suspected gang members.

Lyman takes 9th at 4A state meet

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

WINTER PARK — Lyman High School used a strong effort by all its participants to score 12 points and take ninth place in the class 4A state meet held at Showalter Field before 4,501 fans.

Lyman had two state runner ups in juniors Nick Radkewich (two mile) and Darren Marshall (330 hurdles) and looks to be a contender in next year's final.

"With the exception of Victor Farrier all our top athletes will be back," Lyman coach Fred Finke said. "We had a great state final and we could be very strong next season if everyone stays healthy."

Marshall came into the meet entered in the 330 hurdles and the mile relay and, without having to compete in the 120 high hurdles or pole vault he concentrated all his attention in on the 330 race.

"He came into the meet with fire in his eyes," Finke said. "He put on a show too. We were a little worried on how he would run on an inside lane, he did a fantastic job and looked great running the turn and finished strong to hold on to second."

Marshall finished with a personal best time of 38.1 which was bested only by Matthew Love of South Plantation who finished with a winning time of 37.7.

"Darren is a great athlete and he proved that tonight," Finke said. "He'll be in the decathlon next week and we think he should finish somewhere in the top five, he can do all the events well and should do very well in the sprints where most of the points are."

Marshall had been denied a chance to compete in the 120 high hurdles at the state meet on a decision made by Finke. Marshall would have been forced to run an extra race in the regional meet, a run off event, in order to see if he qualified for the state meet. Finke did not allow Marshall to run and, therefore, giving the state berth to Willie Andrews of Twin Lakes High School.

"After he saw the kid from Twin Lakes (Andrew) finish fourth in the 120s he was a little fired up," Finke said. "I really felt he was third last week and when they told me he had to be in a run off I said to forget it. He wanted to run bad and was upset when I wouldn't let him. Darren, though, is a smart enough athlete to figure out the reason I did it, he also focused in on the 330s and really went after it."

Lyman's other state runner up was Radkewich who finished second in the two mile with a personal best time of 9:25.4. Radkewich and Largo's Pat McDonough battled the entire race with McDonough moving out in the middle of the final lap to put distance between himself and Radkewich.

"Nick is a real happy kid right now," Finke said. "He's coming off a great performance in a triathlon last week and now, to place second in the two mile really boosts his confidence."

Lyman sophomore Teddy Mitchell also had a nice meet as he took fifth in the two mile with a 9:35.2 and seventh in the mile at 4:24.3. Mitchell had been putting solid efforts together in the mile and two mile but the competition level drained him Saturday.

"Teddy could have done a lot better had he only run in one event," Finke said. "I thought about running him in just the mile at the district and letting him go after it. With him being a sophomore, though, I also thought he could gain some valuable experience here, he's just not strong enough yet to double at this level. Once he matures physically he'll be an awesome runner and should be able to double with any type of competition."

Lake Mary's Cecil King also took a second place finish as he cleared 23 1/4 in the long jump. King was the favorite. See BOYS, Page 8A

Camino 4th in two mile, 5th in mile

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Editor

WINTER PARK — Heather Camino completed a triumphant season with a pair of top-six finishes Saturday night at the Class 4A State Track and Field Championships before 4,501 fans at Showalter Field.

Camino, a Lake Brantley junior, and Lake Mary senior Onevke Berry were the only two Seminole County performers to place in Saturday's meet.

Orlando Oak Ridge, obviously ecstatic with Seminole High's move to Class 3A, regained the Class 4A throne with 39 points compared to 25 for Miami Central.

Camino made tremendous progress from cross country season to track and promises to be a state contender if the improvement continues next season. On Saturday, she finished fifth in the mile run and came back later to take fourth in the two mile.

In the mile, Camino finished with a time of 5:28.2. First place went to Largo's Mylan Moffat at 5:08.8 with Bully Bruns of Coral Springs, second at 5:13.3 followed by Tampa Leto's Teresa Smith (5:22.1) and Coral Springs' Keri King (5:27.5). Brantley freshman Joyce Tullis and junior Kristen Pauley also qualified in the mile but did not place.

In the two mile, the pack stayed tight for the first four laps and Camino was right with the front pack. Bruns then went to the lead and Moffat went with her, while five runners stayed in a second pack.

Bruns and Moffat continued to pull away while Jennifer Atchley of Spanish River firmly secured third place. Bruns then put on a final kick to win the event at 11:19.7 while Moffat came in at 11:37.9 and Atchley 11:51.3.

Camino came on strong in the last lap and finished fourth with a time of 11:56.8, just nudging Coral Springs' Dana Tarslake at the finish. Tullis also ran in the two mile for Brantley and finished in 12th place.

Also competing for Brantley was Lisa Frizzell in the 440 dash and the mile relay team. Frizzell accomplished her goal of reaching the finals but missed out on a place in the top six. In

Hawks shoot down cold Celts, 110-92

ATLANTA (UPI) — The last time the Boston Celtics had a harder time converting their shots, Larry Bird limped off the court with tendinitis in both heels.

That night in Cleveland the Celtics converted 33 of 89 shots (37 percent) in losing to the Cavaliers. On Sunday they hit just 27 of 70 shots (39 percent) in a 110-92 loss to the Atlanta Hawks.

The triumph lifted Atlanta within 2-1 in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal. However, there will be little time for the Hawks to rejoice.

Game 4 is scheduled for tonight starting at 8 p.m. EDT at the Omni.

"We're glad to have back-to-back games," said Boston guard Dennis Johnson, who scored 7 points on 2 of 11 shooting from the field. "That way we can go out there tomorrow and try to forget today."

"I don't know how they will react," said Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello. "I'm more worried how we will react. We had to expend a lot of energy today."

"We'll look at films (Sunday night) and maybe change a few things. The key to our game is to have good energy and enthusiasm and concentration."

Boston went without a field goal for a 9-03 stretch that bridged the third and fourth quarters.

Though the Celtics did hit 17 of 20 free throws in that span they saw a 71-63 deficit turn into a 95-80 disadvantage.

"We couldn't throw the ball in the ocean," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones.

The statistics almost bear that out.

The Celtics converted just 8 of 28 shots from the field in the second half (32 percent), hitting 30 of 37 shots from the foul line to avoid a blowout.

In the two victories at Boston Garden, the Celtics hit 56 and 57 percent from the field respectively.

Sunday, the Hawks hit 46 of 86 shots from the field (54 percent) after hitting 48 percent and 42 percent of their shots in the first two games.

"If the Celtics did go through a stretch like that (without scoring a field goal), we still owe them about 18 more minutes from the first two games," said Atlanta's Scott Hastings.

Aguirre, Mavs clobber Nuggets, 124-103

DALLAS (UPI) — The ingredients were present for a blowout at Reunion Arena Sunday night and, sure enough, that is what it turned out to be.

Dallas had to win the game to keep from falling into a big hole. Mavericks forward Mark Aguirre was primed for a big game after a heart-to-heart talk with his coaches. And two of Denver's main scoring threats sat on the bench in street clothes.

As might be expected, therefore, the Mavericks clobbered the Nuggets, 124-103.

"Dallas did what it had to do," said Denver coach Doug Moe. "They won. They could not lose this one. We could have had Larry Bird, Magic Johnson and Michael Jordan and it would not have made a difference."

As usual, Moe was overstating the case a bit, but there was no overstating the importance of the outcome to the Mavericks.

Their win evened the best-of-seven conference semifinal series at 2-2 with Game 5 being played Tuesday night in Denver. The Mavericks and Nuggets return to Dallas Thursday night for the sixth game and if a deciding seventh contest is needed it will be played in Denver next Saturday.

BASKETBALL

Aguirre, benched at the end of three playoff games when they were on the line, scored 34 points and keyed a first-half surge.

Dallas put on a 14-6 run at the end of the second quarter to take a 63-48 advantage and then had a 12-2 streak to start the third period.

Roy Tarpley added 24 points and 13 rebounds for Dallas while the Nuggets were led by Alex English with 24 points. "It's like a miniseries now," said Dallas coach John MacLeod. "But we still have to win one on their floor."

Neither Lafayette Lever nor Jay Vincent played for Denver Sunday night. Lever sitting out with a strained knee and Vincent missing the game with a sore calf.

"They're out for the season," Moe deadpanned after the game. But both are expected to be in the lineup Tuesday night.

"They missed Fat Lever and Jay Vincent," said MacLeod. "But I think they kept them out of the game so they wouldn't run the risk of further injury. It was probably a benefit for them to keep them out."

No matter who played, or didn't play, for Denver, Dallas was in need of some input from Aguirre.

After sulking during the final stages of Saturday's game, in which Denver came from behind to win by 2 points, Aguirre met with MacLeod and Dallas assistant Gar Heard.

"Gar came to me first and he told me, 'you have to play free and easy,'" Aguirre said. "Coach MacLeod and Gar and me talked about how they want me to play. It was a good talk and they explained that I don't have to score 30 points every night. I understood that. It made me feel real comfortable to sit down and talk about things. You can't talk about things during a game."

LAKERS TOP JAZZ

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers emerged from a two-game stand at the Salt Palace with their series tied 2-2 and a new respect for the Utah Jazz.

Coach Pat Riley's Lakers shot just 40 percent in Game 2 and 42 percent in the third, and plodded on offense in losing both to Utah. However, in Sunday's Game 4 victory, Los Angeles hit 52 percent and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had his best game of the playoff.

"I think we really have to learn a lesson from those two losses; that we cannot take anything for granted. We have only begun," Riley said following the 113-100 victory.

"We still have to learn the lesson and play our game. We have to be ready Tuesday night" for Game 5 back in Los Angeles.

"Now maybe the Jazz are starting to feel a little bit of pressure. You're high one day and you're down the next," he said.

Utah scored 11 of the first 14 points to open the second half Sunday and appeared headed for a third consecutive victory over the Lakers with a 9-point lead. But then Jazz starters Mark Eaton and Bobby Hansen each picked up a fourth foul and that was it.

"After we got down by nine, we started to pick everything up and played much better," said Riley.

PGA: Lietzke tops Rose in playoff

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke insists he could step away from the golf tour at any time. Clarence Rose can only wish that Lietzke had already done so.

Lietzke, 38, who downplays his own ability every chance he gets, won for the first time in four years Sunday — rolling in a 20-foot putt on the first hole of sudden death to defeat Rose in the $750,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

It was the 11th victory in Lietzke's 14-year career and his second in the Nelson, but despite having years of productivity left he says he is prepared to leave the tour at a moment's notice and must decide within the next few years whether he will do so.

"My family comes first," said Lietzke, who is building a home in the Dallas area. "I will not put them through the rigors of traveling on the tour. When my kids (currently aged 4 and 2) get into school, I will have to make up my mind. I want to be home with them and enjoy them."

"Believe me, I have been on the tour a lot longer than I ever expected. I was a marginal college player. I didn't know whether I would ever cash a check. Maybe I have not set my goals high enough. My goal has never to be the best player in the world. I don't think I'm capable of being the greatest player in the world."

He was capable enough, however, to fight through the 25 mph winds that whipped across the TPC-Las Colinas course Sunday, fire a closing round of even-par 70 and lead for most of the day.

But Lietzke, who last won at the 1984 Honda Classic, bogeyed the 72nd hole to allow Rose a chance to win his first tournament.

Rose, who now has five second-place finishes in his eight years on the tour, shot a 69 Sunday to tie Lietzke at 9-under 271 — a shot in front of Ben Crenshaw and David Graham.

The sudden death playoff began at the par-5 18th and both players laid up short of the cross bunkers 100 yards from the green. Rose missed the green with his third shot, although he chipped close to the hole and would likely have made his par. But Lietzke hit his 7-iron to 20 feet and slammed home the putt for the win.

Lietzke claimed $135,000, raising his total this year to $236,156.

Scholar athlete

Brian Barry, an eighth grader at Rock Lake Middle School, has been named recipient of a $1,000 savings bond as the Mid Florida Pop Warner Youth Football Scholastic Athlete of 1987. Barry, who has a 4.0 grade point average, is shown receiving his award from Sr. Midget head coach Bob Campbell. Also, Claire Cowry, a sophomore at West Orange High, was awarded a $1,000 scholarship as the top scholastic cheerleader in Pop Warner.

Gators sweep SEC tourney

Clinch automatic NCAA bid

STARKVILLE, Miss (UPI) — The Florida Gators swept a crucial Southeastern Conference doubleheader from Mississippi State University Sunday to add the league tournament to its regular season title.

The Gators, behind the six-hit pitcher of Jeff Gideumb, beat the Bulldogs 3-1 to force a second game to decide the tournament winner. In the nightcap, which ended at 12:55 a.m., Florida took a 5-3 win.

Florida, 43-16-1, clinched the SEC's automatic berth in the 40-team NCAA Tournament. The Bulldogs, 42-18, are almost assured of an at-large berth, which would give MSU its fifth Regional appearance in the last six years.

Mississippi State, which hosted a regional last year, has hopes of being selected again this season because of the size of its stadium. A year ago, 5,091 witnessed the tournament at Athens, Ga., but 38,894 passed through the turnstiles during the 10 games at Dudy Noble Field.

In the championship game, Florida took an early 2-0 lead with a pair of runs off Bulldog starter Chuck Holly, 3-3, and never looked back. After one out, Tommy Edwards reached on an infield hit and went to third on a double by Brian Reimsnyder. Ned Brigham grounded out to score Edwards, who went 2 for 5 and scored a pair of runs, and Mario Linares singled in the other run to make it 2-0.

The Gators made it 4-0 with a run in the fourth without the aid of a hit. Bulldog reliever Wes Johnson hit Tim Oxley, gave up consecutive walks to Mike Moberg and Jose Fernandez to load the bases, and Brent Addison bounced into a fielders choice.

Mississippi State cut the margin to 4-2 in the sixth on back-to-back singles by Jody Hurst and Pete Young, a walk and a two-run double by John Cohen.

Gator starter Todd Douma, 6-2, went 5-2/3 innings before giving way to Tyson Johnson in the sixth. Douma struck out nine during his stint.

The Bulldogs threatened in the seventh against Johnson.

going into the event but an ankle injury in the regional meet kept him from jumping his best.

"He looked good on his jumps. It was just his landings that were bothering his ankle," Lake Mary coach Mark McGee said. "We're looking to pull him out of the decathlon if possible and let him rest until the Golden South meet. It was unfortunate for Cecil because he was the best jumper at the meet and it really hurt him to not be able to compete up to his ability."

Lake Mary's Brad Smith placed sixth in the two mile with a time of 9:35.3 after coming off a stress fracture. Smith took six weeks off before returning to action in the district meet.

"Brad looked good for coming off a stress fracture," McGee said. "He was with the leaders for six and a half laps. If he hadn't missed those six weeks he might have been able to hold on and stay up there and possibly have won."

Considering the circumstances we finished the season on a positive note," McGee said. "With one person injured and the other coming off an injury we did about as well as we could have expected."

Seminole county's only other scorer was Lake Howell's Brian Horvath who tied for third at 13-0 in the pole vault. Horvath had two good attempts at 13-6 but hit the bar with his arm on one attempt before catching the bar with his body on his final attempt.

WASHINGTON TRIUMPHS

Pensacola Washington placed second in the mile relay to hold on to its lead going into the final event and win class 4A state track meet Saturday night before 4,501 fans at Showalter Field.

Washington finished with 29 points with Miami Central taking second with 28. Central won the mile relay and would have won the meet if Washington had not come up with the second place finish in the same event.

Washington did not have an individual champion but used its depth in sprints and hurdles to win the meet. Miami Edison placed third with 21 points followed by Lauderdale Lakes Boyd Anderson with 17. West Orange and Dunedin tied with 16 points to round out the top five.

Eric Hannah established a new record in the high jump as he cleared 7-1 to erase the mark set by Marcus Leonard of Oak Ridge in 1979. Tampa Hillsborough's 440 relay team set the only other record as they ran a 41.35 in the event to edge Sanford Seminoles time of 41.4 run in 1986. Largo's Pat McDonough was the only athlete to win two events as he finished as the state champion in both the mile (4:15.2) and two mile (9:21.5) to score all 14 of Largo's points in the meet.

Kevin Willis, who hit 8 of 20 shots in the first two games, converted 11 of 15 shots Sunday to finish with 23 points in the first two games and grabbed a team-high 13 in Game 3.

"No messages have been sent," said Willis. "We have to come out (tonight) and play hard again. They didn't shoot like they had in the first two games.

We'll have to come out and play even better defense (tonight)." The Celtics were led by Larry Bird with 22 points (5 of 18 shooting from the field), and by Robert Parish and Kevin McHale with 17 points apiece.

Bird scored Boston's first basket in the fourth quarter with 4:43 left in the game to make the score 95-82. Willis and Dominique Wilkins followed with baskets to make it 99-82 and Jones inserted his reserves.

Wilkins finished with a game-high 25 points.

the mile relay. Bramley was in the slow heat and finished second as Frizzell turned in a superb anchor leg. The Lady Patriots' time was not good enough for a spot in the top six.

Berry, who was hampered by injuries most of the season, came through with a nice ending to her career at Lake Mary as she finished sixth in the 110 high hurdles with a time of 15.2. Sharric McLeod of Oak Ridge was first at 14.7.

Oak Ridge was led by senior Jovene McDuffie who scored 20 1/2 points including a first in the 100 meters, second in the 220, third in the long jump and fifth in the shot put. She also anchored the winning 440 relay.

McGee boosts Cardinals

United Press International Willie McGee wound up working on his day off, and the Cardinals were better off for it.

McGee angled home the winning run with two out in the ninth inning Sunday afternoon to lift St. Louis to a 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog had given McGee the day off after the center fielder played all of Saturday's 19-inning loss to the Atlanta Braves.

McGee, slowed by a sore right leg, welcomed the rest, but it wasn't until he came off the bench that the Cardinals could breathe easier.

"I never ask for a day off — I come expecting to play," McGee said. "I didn't complain though, I could use one."

Playing less than 12 hours after completing the marathon game, McGee drove home home Tony Pena to cap a two-run inning.

McGee's heroics erased Gerald Perry's two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning that had given the Braves a 6-5 lead.

McGee said he wasn't looking for any particular pitch from Bruce Sutter, 1-1, whom he called "an idol of mine."

"I was just looking for the ball, not for a certain pitch," McGee said.

Herzog said he used McGee "because he didn't have to run," with the bases being loaded and two out.

Hrbek cracks two homers

United Press International According to Kent Hrbek, good pitching begets good hitting and the Minnesota slugger set a powerful example Sunday in Detroit.

Hrbek led a five home run attack with his 10th and 11th homers of the season, helping carry the Twins to a 10-2 victory over the Tigers.

All of Hrbek's home runs have come in the last 10 games.

"I didn't hit a home run the first 16 or 17 games," Hrbek said. "That's maybe the longest stretch of my career. Our guys are pitching pretty good ball games for us lately and that's the key."

"It gives the hitters a chance to do some things," Frank Viola, 6-1, gave up seven hits in six innings for the victory.

"We've pitched good the last 10-12 days," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said after his Twins remained 10 games behind AL West leader Oakland.

"Any time you take two out of three from the Tigers in Detroit you're doing a good job."

Hrbek's first home run came with a man on in the third and broke a 1-1 tie. Hrbek, on a 10-game hitting streak, made it 5-2 by lining another homer to right in his next at-bat against Jack Morris, 3-5 and winless in his last seven starts.

Randy Bush opened the fourth with his fourth home run and Morris hit Gene Larkin in the side of the head two pitches later.

Larkin was removed from the field, conscious but on a stretcher, and taken to a hospital for X-rays and observation.

"He got hit. I was pitching inside," acknowledged Morris. "I guess that was the best brushback pitch there is."

"I don't hit guys, but I do pitch inside. It was a fastball that went up. He was moving into the ball. He couldn't get out of the way."

Tommy Herr hit his first American League home run in the eighth and Kirby Puckett

At Boston, Dave Valle stroked a two-run triple to highlight a four-run ninth inning and help Seattle snap a four-game losing streak. Mike Jackson, 1-1, went 1 2/3 innings for the victory. Jim Presley's two-out single snapped a 7-7 tie. Valle tripled to center for a 10-7 lead.

Market active, prices up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 16.91 last week, was up 5.63 to 1986.18 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 530-270 among the 1,254 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 27,561,000 shares.

Stock prices advanced Friday in moderate trading, with investors — heartened by positive economic news — greeting a small rally as the market bounced partway back after two weeks of losses.

Traders and analysts attributed the gain to a feeling that the latest government statistic on the economy could cool inflation fears that have hurt stock prices in recent weeks.

Al Goldman, market analyst with A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis, called Friday's advance "a normal knee-jerk rally" in what he said was a "permissive environment" created by news from outside the market.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department reported that its Producer Price Index, a measure of inflation at the wholesale level, rose 0.4 percent in April.

Dollar slightly higher; gold, silver open up

By United Press International

The dollar was slightly higher in quiet trading against key foreign currencies in New York today, as traders looked toward Tuesday's release of U.S. trade figures.

Tim Scala, Treasury manager of Manufacturers & Traders Trust Co., said most traders were biding their time in anticipation of the trade figures.

"Tomorrow's trade figures are really dominating the market," Scala said.

Market observers said they expected the March trade figures to narrow from February's deficit of $13 billion.

The dollar made modest gains on foreign markets today in mostly lackluster trading as traders looked optimistically toward the U.S. foreign trade figure.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar closed fractionally higher in light trading against the Japanese yen, closing at 124.73 yen, up from 124.70 yen on Friday.

On the European markets, the dollar advanced in Frankfurt at 1.6855 West German marks, up from Friday's close of 1.6805.

In Zurich the dollar began the week at 1.4005 Swiss francs up from 1.3995, and in Paris it opened at 5.7255 French francs up from 5.6970.

Court to hear windfall tax case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in a case that could mean millions for state treasuries, agreed Monday to decide if New Jersey may tax oil companies on a portion of the windfall profit taxes they pay the federal government each year.

The justices will hear arguments next term in two cases brought by 13 oil companies, including Amerada Hess Corp., Texaco Inc., Tennessee Oil Co., Chevron Corp., Exxon Corp. and Mobil Corp.

The oil giants are appealing a New Jersey Supreme Court ruling upholding the state's right to tax the sum, which is federally deductible.

"The New Jersey tax as applied impermissibly ... discriminates against an exclusively out-of-state business activity in violation of the due process, equal protection and commerce clauses," lawyers for the oil companies argued in their high court appeal.

In addition to New Jersey, six other states prohibit an income tax deduction for windfall profit tax payments, according to court documents. They are Georgia, Iowa, Minnesota, New York, South Carolina and Wisconsin.

Between 1980 and 1984, New Jersey collected $88.5 million from the oil companies by denying the tax deduction.

April industrial production up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Industrial production rose a sharp 0.7 percent in April after rising a revised 0.2 percent in March, the most robust advance since October, the Federal Reserve reported Monday.

Production of business equipment was up 0.9 percent, continuing the rapid advance that began nearly a year ago, the Fed report said.

Production of consumer goods also advanced in April, up 0.5 percent, owing largely to advances in auto assemblies and manufacture of household products.

Auto assemblies rose to an annual rate of 7 million vehicles from the 6.6 million rate in March, while home goods, particularly appliances, rebounded 1.5 percent in April. Because of sharp declines earlier this year, production of household goods was still below its fourth-quarter average.

The continued hefty increases in business equipment production have been widespread and in April the largest gains were in automobiles for business use and in manufacturing equipment, the report said.

Production of construction supplies, which surged in January, remained little changed on balance over the last three months. Recent gains in production of materials reflect strength in the output of parts for durable consumer goods, such as automobiles and appliances.

Meese's pr man leaves today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The director of public affairs for the Department of Justice told embattled Attorney General Edwin Meese, who fired him for not defending him "aggressively" enough, that he will leave his post today.

Terry Eastland said in a letter today to Meese, who dismissed him Friday, "You have expressed to me your desire to have a director of public affairs ... one willing to aggressively defend you against, in effect, any and all criticism."

"While I believe I have defended (you) to the best of my ability, exercising good judgment, and acting in a manner consistent with the obligations of this office, you have concluded that my efforts have not sufficed," Eastland wrote.

"I have decided that the most appropriate course of action is to end my responsibilities today."

and other personal items from storage without having to pay a fee. An unpublished book by her father was among items recovered.

More than $65,000 in goods from three households, for which John Dahl had accepted financial responsibility when moved from New York to Sanford last spring, were up for auction, because Dahl couldn't pay fees to movers.

He remained in the Seminole County jail Saturday charged with armed trespass in connection with the December siege. He is expected to be released this week without posting bond after five months in jail. He has not yet been sentenced, but future mental health care is a condition of his release.

At the auction, Ms. Dahl said the delay in the auction caused by her father's action allowed the family an opportunity to recover some of their belongings.

If they had been auctioned as scheduled in December, "we wouldn't have got anything. We didn't have the money to bid," she said.

Since December the Dahls have moved from Pierson to DeLand.

national drive to have the Confederate flag removed from all local, state and federal properties throughout the nation.

Saturday's demonstration was planned for 2 p.m. but was called off by Bastanzio. He said Saturday he called off the demonstration because of bad weather and that fact that "I only got four men here in my kitchen."

However, at approximately 3:15 p.m., four pickup trucks sporting Confederate flags, arrived at the courthouse. The four drove in procession around the block and parked in the City Hall parking lot for a few minutes before leaving.

During the trip around the block, one truck was momentarily stopped by a Sanford police officer, who spoke briefly to the driver.

Harriett said he belived the officer told the truck occupants that the rally was cancelled. However, it is not known what was exactly said, according to Harriett. Harriett did say the trucks contained "youths."

The four trucks did not return Sunday.

Sunday the three klansmen arrived in a brown Ford pickup truck bearing an Orange County license plate, at 2:17 p.m.

They identified themselves as Ralph Sparks, 30, of Orlando; Clifford William McGowan, 75, of Lake City; and Fred Henry, 17, of Seminole County. They refused to divulge their addresses.

"It is good to get out and let the folks see us," said Sparks. "It is a little disappointing because there was suppose to be eight or nine men here. With three people, it doesn't look too good."

The klansmen were approached by five people at different times during the demonstration.

One spectator identified himself as David Scott of Sanford. He said he was not a klan member but did support the Confederate flag. "It is part of the South," he said.

Police officers and barricades kept traffic from passing in front of the demonstration.

The klansmen, who spent most the time in the shade of a tree on Seminole Boulevard, ended their demonstration at 3:47 p.m. Returning to the truck parked in the City Hall parking lot, the klansmen took off their robes and dumped their flags into the bed of the truck and drove off.

Harriett said he and his 28 officers, including six motorcycle units, two canine units and an undercover surveillance van, were there only as a precaution "just in case there was something eventful."

Bastanzio said the klan has no plans to return to Sanford.

There was only one tense moment for the police manning the barricade on the east end of the street in front of the courthouse. Three young, black youths walked across the parking lot behind city hall and as they neared the street, one of the policemen approached them asking where they were going. "We're going fishing," answered one with a pole over his shoulder.

The officer pointed to the white-robed demonstrators and asked the youths not to go over there. "We don't know anything about those men, we just want to go fishing," he said as the group proceeded towards the lake.

High court: No warrant needed to search trash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police may search trash bags left on a curb without getting a warrant, the Supreme Court said today, ruling 6-2 that citizens do not have "an expectation of privacy in their garbage."

The high court, in an opinion by Justice Byron White, reversed a ruling by the California Court of Appeal throwing out evidence obtained by police during a search of two suspected drug dealers' garbage.

The ruling means California authorities may reinstate narcotics charges against Billy Greenwood and Dyanne Van Houten.

At issue in the case was whether police may search trash left for collection outside a home without first getting a search warrant.

The Fourth Amendment prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures generally requires police to obtain a search warrant based on "probable cause" before searching homes, suitcases and other private property for evidence.

But the court held a warrant is not necessary when it comes to trash.

Constitution's equal protection clause.

—Let stand a ruling that a New Jersey county jail must provide the option of abortion for pregnant prison inmates.

The garbage case arose in 1984 when police got a warrant to search the Laguna Beach home of Greenwood and Van Houten and found a stash of cocaine.

The charges were dismissed after the California Superior Court held the search warrant was improperly based on evidence gleaned from searches of the defendants' trash, which they had left on the curb.

The California Court of Appeal upheld the dismissal, ruling that citizens have a right to privacy in garbage left outside their homes for pickup by trash collectors.

In assessing whether a search of garbage is permissible, the Supreme Court said, police should evaluate such factors as whether the garbage is generally available to members of the public.

"The police cannot be expected to avert their eyes from evidence of criminal activity that could have been observed by any member of the public," the court said.

Justice William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall dissented, with Brennan citing a line of cases in which the court has required police to obtain a warrant before searching a closed container.

"Scrutiny of another's trash is contrary to commonly accepted notions of civilized behavior," he wrote. "I suspect, therefore, that members of our society will be shocked to learn that the court, the ultimate guarantor of liberty, deems unreasonable our expectation that the aspects of our private lives that are concealed safely in a trash bag will not become public."

Justice Anthony Kennedy, who joined the high court in February, did not take part in the case.

Hutton pleads guilty

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The E.F. Hutton financial firm pleaded guilty today to federal charges involving a $1.5 million money-laundering scheme and was fined more than $1 million.

Hutton entered the plea in a 15-minute hearing before U.S. District Court Judge Ronald Lagnus. The plea agreement was reached over months of negotiations with the U.S. attorney's office.

The firm was charged May 6 with concealing the identities of people conducting more than $500,000 in transactions from 1982-84 at the Providence office.

Seminole County responded to the fire at 8235 Highway 17-92 near Lake of the Woods Boulevard about 7:30 p.m. Township said firefighters had the fire under control in 10 minutes.

No injuries from the fire were reported, however investigators said the man who was in the room where the gasoline had been thrown allegedly fought with the arsonist.

Officials said one man has been hospitalized for injuries he received during the fight and an arrest is pending.

According to officials about five people illegally occupied the vacant building which is scheduled for demolition in the next few weeks.

In a second fire early this morning $50,000 in damage was done in a two alarm blaze at Krystal's restaurant, officials said.

The restaurant, 6655 Highway 17-92, reported the fire at about 1 a.m., officials said.

The fire started in a back room storage area but patrons or employees tried to put the fire out before calling the fire department. Officials said no one was injured in the fire. Investigators on the scene this morning.

An enlarged spleen should be checked

DEAR DR. GOTT: Sometime ago, during a routine exam, the doctor said that my spleen was enlarged. However, he was not worried, since the organ was soft and pliable. Should I have this checked more thoroughly?

DEAR READER: The spleen is a soft, spongy organ, about the size of a large lemon, which is present in the left upper abdomen, just below the rib cage. Although the spleen is ordinarily too soft and small to be felt in an adult, it can normally be palpated in thin individuals and in children.

The functions of the spleen are not completely understood. The organ appears to function as a filter for worn-out red blood cells and as a reservoir for new blood cells; it also seems to play a role in the immune system.

The spleen can enlarge in a number of diseases, such as liver failure, certain anemic states, some cancers and mononucleosis. Because some normal spleens can be felt, a physician must make the tricky decision about whether a palpable spleen is a normal variant or is enlarged. An enlarged spleen is a "red flag" to doctors and should be an indication that all is not well. Enlarged spleens usually are swollen, tense and firm. However, this is not always the rule. Therefore, if you have a large spleen — regardless of its consistency — you should have it checked more thoroughly.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 66, female and can't seem to stand up straight anymore. I've developed round shoulders and a small hump in my back. Would a posture bra help?

DEAR READER: No, it wouldn't. You probably are beginning to develop "dowager's hump," an abnormal curvature of the spine resulting from weakening and collapse of the spinal bones due to osteoporosis. In women past menopause, calcium is lost from the bones faster than it can be replaced. With time, this causes bone brittleness, loss of normal bone architecture, a tendency to fractures, shrinking stature, a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When your contract looks cozy if all the suits split nicely, it's time to figure out what you can do if the key suits misbehave. At first glance, today's six-diamond contract looks easy, with a good chance for an overtrick. Nevertheless, there are pitfalls, and declarer trapped himself in one of them.

After winning the opening trump lead, South immediately played another high trump, and West showed out. South could not afford to give up a trump trick to East, since East would surely lead right into dummy's A-Q of clubs, eliminating an entry before the spade suit was established. So South cashed one more high diamond and then played A-K of spades. Alas, East ruffed the second spade. Eventually, despite taking a successful club finesse, declarer had to concede down one.

South can succeed if he guards against a bad spade distribution. At trick two he should lead a spade to the ace and then ruff a spade. This loses only if he is overtruffed by West, but there is little chance that West has a singleton spade, since he didn't lead it. After ruffing a spade, declarer can ruff a heart to dummy and ruff another low spade. The spade suit is now good, and all declarer has to do is play his high diamonds and give up a diamond to East. The ace of clubs will be the entry to dummy and he will have plenty of tricks. The problem with playing a second high diamond before testing spades is that there will not be enough ways of getting to dummy to establish the long spades when the suit breaks badly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may encounter someone today whose politics or philosophy is diametrically opposed to yours. Solutions won't be found in a heated exchange.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, it's best not to interfere in matters that don't directly concern you. Intrusions could invite problems that can be avoided.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A partnership arrangement could be disastrous today if your objectives are not in harmony. If you don't pull together you'll find ways to pull apart.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a possibility that you may find yourself in a bind today; you may find that you assigned a task to another that you should have attended to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is not a good day to take a risk on someone else's ideas in an area with which you are unfamiliar. If you're going to gamble, gamble on yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Both you and your mate have rather short fuses today, and it won't take much to ignite a confrontation. Don't bring matches to the dinner table.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A co-worker might do something that displeases you today. If you take it on yourself to berate him/her in front of others you could be the one who comes out the heavy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're pretty good at getting proper mileage from the dollars you spend, but today your vision for values could be severely blurred.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against tendencies today to blame others for mistakes that are of your own doing, such as delegating assignments to people who can't handle them.

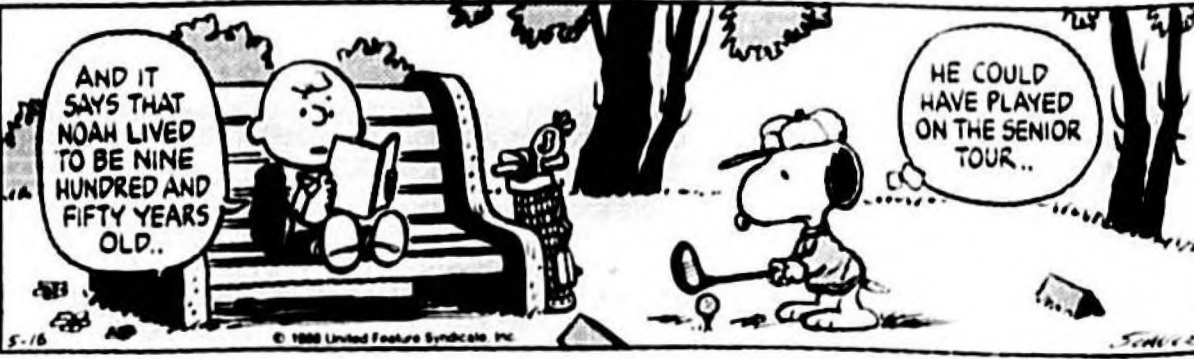

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are too easy-going and let others impose on you today, they'll get done what they want done, but your responsibilities may be neglected.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually you're easygoing and considerate when dealing with friends, but today, you might be both selfish and demanding.
