Drug test idea rejected

House panel kills legislation that would have applied to first-time Florida drivers

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - A House panel rejected Tuesday legislation that would have required anyone seekng a first-time Florida drivers license to pass a drug test.

The Highway Safety and Construction subcommittee voted 3-to-2 against the bill (HB 589) despite claims from the sponsor that it would help reduce Florida's drug

This was designed to say more than just no to drugs. It was to go after young drivers, who are now going to be issued licenses, to tell them that taking drugs is some-thing that is absolutly wrong," said Rep. John Renke, R-New Port-Richey.

"To have some teeth in it, you need to talk about the drivers license, because that's what both children and adults value quite a bit in our society." Renke said. The bill, which has the strong backing of Gov. Bob Martinez, would require anyone applying for his first Florida drivers license. whether a teenager just coming of age or a retiree just moving to the state, to present proof he had passed a drug test within the last 30 days.

The applicant would obtain his own certified drug test results. either from his doctor or a stateapproved laboratory. Renke said such tests cost an average $30.

The bill would also revoke the license of any person convicted of a drug offense for two years, or until he had completed a state-approved drug rehabilitation program. The license would be revoked even if the judge withhield that person's adjudication of guilt.

A juvenile convicted of a drug crime would not be given a license until two years after he reached driving age, or until he passed a rehabilitation course.

"The real important part of the bill is that we get people to get the drug rehabilitation treatment." □See Test, Page 5A

Legislation approved to create Spaceport Florida Authority

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - A key House panel approved legislation Tuesday creating a Spaceport Florida Authority to implement Gov. Bob Martinez' $10 million plan to launch a private sector spaceflight industry in Florida.

The Science, Industry and Technology committee passed the bill (HB 1547) by a vote of 12-3. despite arguments the money would be better spent elsewhere in the lean 1989-90 budget year.

"I think $10 million at this point in time, when we're asking children to do without, when we're asking senior citizens to do without, and asking a lot of people in the state, including state workers. to do without, is rather capricious," said Rep. Mike Friedman, D-Surfaide.

The bill envisions a major launch site in Brevard County, near NASA's Cape Canaveral facility. There also would be a smaller site for sub-orbital launches at Cape San Blas in Gulf

The Spaceport Authority, made up of nine members appointed by the governor, Senate president and House speaker, would have the authority to obtain land and construct facilities for the launch sites. The panel would have extensive governmental powers, including sovereign immunity from most liability lawsuits and limited eminent domain power.

Much of the committee debate centered on reducing powers that had been given to the authority in earlier versions of the bill. Among other things, the committee voted that the spaceport should be subject to local comprehensive growth plans and state environmental regulations.

The committee narrowly approved a controversial amendment requiring that all spaceport employees have wages and benefits comparable to those at federal space facilities. That measure, strongly backed by the Space Workers of America and other labor unions, passed 8-7.

Several committee members sharply criticized proposed tax credits for space industries that use the Florida facilities. That criticism subsided when Finance and Tax committee chairwoman Anne Mackenzie, D Fort Lauderdale, said the tax credits would be given close scrutiny when the bill reaches her committee.

Insurance when it becomes mandatory later this year.

The measure (HB 1354, SB 1321) would roll back auto insurance rates 25 percent under levels charged July 1 last year. Insurance companies would be exempt from the rollback only if it would bankrupt them.

Other provisions would mandate reductions for good drivers and subject insurance companies to anti-trust oversight.

The bill would also require the insurance Department to approve rate increases before they can take effect. Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher is pressing a bill to let the companies charge their proposed rates pending review, then pay refunds if a lower rate is approved.

Sam Miller of the Florida Insurance News Service, an industry group, said the bill would drive away from Florida companies making only marginal profits on auto insurance.

Couple convicted in death of daughter

SARASOTA - A Christian Science couple was found guilty Tuesday of third-degree murder and felony child abuse in the death of their 7-year-old daughter.

William Hermanson, 42, and his 38-year-old wife Christine were convicted in the death of their daughter Amy, who died at home in 1986 of diabetes after they relied on prayer for her recovery instead of seeking medical attention.

The jury of three women and three men deliberated for about three hours before finding the couple guilty. The two could be sentenced to as much as 20 years in prison.

The Hermansons used as their defence a 1975 Florida law that gives protection to parents who withhold medical treatment from their sick children if they are "legiti-mately practicing their religious beliefs."

Sarasota Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan refused a defense motion to have the charges dismissed without sending the case to the jury, but he affirmed the so-called "religious exemption" in the 1975 law is a valid defense.

Prosecutors were blocked from presenting testimony that both parents had themselves received medical treatment in the past.

But assistant state attorney Deno Economou did tell jurors in closing arguments the Christian Science religion allows medical intervention in cases where prayer has not worked, citing testimony from a Christian Science nurse that an ambulance was called for Amy.

He said the Hermansons thought Amy was suffering from some type of emotional problem and didn't realize for a long time that she was physically ill.

He asked the jurors not to decide on the morality of the issue, but to look instead at the state law which protects a person's right to legitimately practice their religious

Circuit judge rules against impact fees for schools

ned Proce biternational

ST. AUGUSTINE — A St. Johns County circuit Judge has ruled impact fees, a charge added to the cost of a new home, established to pay for schools are unfair and violate the right to a free public education.

Although the ruling re-leased Tuesday by Judge Richard Weinberg affects only St. Johns County, south of Jacksonville, the principles set down in the ruling could have widespread consequences as cash-short local governments try to provide class space for the thousands of new students each year.

Five other counties -Hernando, Hillsborough, Martin, Citrus and Broward already levy impact fees for schools. Others - like Volumia, Lake, Orange, Seminole and Occools — are considering the fees

Wendy Larson, a partner in the Chicago law firm representing the county, said she is confident the school system will win on appeal because the ruling second-guesses the Legislature's meaning of "free education."

Lengthy appeals of the case could put the school impact fee concept in limbo for years.

"Considering the growth and our need for new school aites, fees make up an important part of our planning for the future." said Seminole County Superintendent Bob Hughes. "We need an answer."

Gunter: It's up to state attorney

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD - Former mayor David Gunter said yesterday it is up to the state attorney's office to decide whether several Longwood commissioners violated the Florida Sunshine Law last year.

Mayor Hank Hardy took a polygraph test to clear himself of the allegations made by Gunter that Hardy, Gunter and two other commission members violated the sunshine law. Gunter said he was present during a meeting at a Longwood restaurant, during the time he served as mayor, when Hardy and commissioners Ted Poelking and Richard Bullington spoke about consolidating the fire department with the county. It was an item which appeared on the following commission meeting agenda, Gunter said.

The Florida State Sunshine Law states that all meetings of any board or commission of a municipal corporation at which official acts are to be taken, must be open to the public at all times. A violator is guilty of a misdemeanor of the second degree punishable by law. Gunter filed a formal complaint at the Seminole-Brevard state attorney's office last week. - Eutler said Hardy did not know the results of the test before he revealed them at the meeting. Euiler said because there were "no physiological reactions" that would suggest Hardy lied, that "subject Hardy may be cleared of said allegations."

Eutler said he neither knew Hardy nor the details of the accusations when he asked him six questions that were "perti-nent to the issue" and "derived from allegations" made in a newspaper account. He said the procedure performed on Hardy was approved by the American and Florida polygraph associations. #### Brown advocates education, no drugs to students

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The use of drugs by young people coupled with the high drop out rate is a problem facing educators everywhere.

'It is of great concern to all of us," said Lowman Oliver, assistant principal of Lakeview Ele-

Oliver and some other teachers began over a year ago trying to get motivational speaker Lt. Drew Brown III, USNR, to come speak to students in the urban Sanford area. They researched materials that had been written on Brown, they watched interviews on television and, finally, attended a lecture given by Brown in Volusia County.

There, Oliver, approached Brown with the idea of coming to speak, with students and give them his approach to life. Brown agreed, and he will be speaking April 20 at Lakeview Elementary at 9:30 a.m.

Brown speaks all over the nation to students, especially minority students about the importance of education for today's youth. He espouses a simple formula for success: Education plus hard work minus drugs equals success and the American Dream.

"He is a compelling speaker." Oliver said. "I've seen him hold 1.400 middle school students intensely interested for an hour and forty-five minutes."

Brown speaks with the kids in the street language that they understand, but promotes ideas that may seem a little unsusal to them. He stresses staying in school and off of drugs.

Honoraria among thieves

It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distincly native American criminal class except Congress.

—Mark Twain

Mr. Twain, playful cynic that he was, would hardly be surprised that honoraria among "thieves" is atill rampant, despite pious pronouncements just a couple of months ago about ending the practice.

Remember the deal proposed by House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine? Give us a pay raise, they said, and we'll abolish the destardly practice of taking money from influence-seeking special interests. We won't take those princely sums for giving a little speech here or just showing up at a little luncheon there.

When the pay raise was booted down by the public, Congress grimaced, voted no thanks — and dropped that plan to ban honoraria. Members have been hoping, apparently, that the issue would die.

Fortunately, it hasn't. Renewed pressure on Congress to ban honoraria has come from the Bush ethics commission. In its March 9 report, the President's Commission on Federal Ethics Law Reform urged Congress to ban honoraria and restrict other forms of spicial-interest favors — paid vacations, for exhauste.

"Camouflage?" We're shocked. As shocked as the man from Hannibal would have been, urely, the special interests howering around numbers of Congress have no ulterior motive, urely, they merely have the health and sell-like as hardworking lawmakers at tright who knows a thing or two growth in honoraria by trade associations, and the appearance of it has been made to look evil," he said last summer.

More recently, a spokesman for the speaker told. The Washington Post that banning honoraria is the same as imposing a 30-percent pay cut, and the speaker doesn't intend to do that. Wright and many of his colleagues, in other words, view honoraria as legitimate income. timate income.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who said during the Senate pay-raise debate in February that he saw nothing wrong with honoraria, is the top Senate recipient. From 1983 through 1988, he received $658,464 and kept $206,516. Wright is tops in the House; he has pocketed $127,985 in the past

According to the lobbying group Common Cause, current senators received $12 million and pocketed $9 million in the past five years; in the House, current members have kept more than $15 million in the past five years.

Given those figures, the reluctance to ban honoraria is understandable. Both Minority Leader Dole and Majority Leader Mitchell have said there are no plans to reconsider the sauc.

That means the impetus for reform must come from the president. With his commission's report as ammunition, President Bush must propose legislation to abolish the payments, vigorously lobby Congress to act on the legislation and rally public support for the ban. The American people must insist on honor among "thieves," not honoraria.

ere environmentalists are wrong

Most reasonable people are, I think, glad that environmentalism has become a public issue in most of the world's major industrial nations. In retrospect, the problem of disposing of wastes of all sorts was bound to become serious sooner or later, and the growing impact of a fast-expanding human population on the globe's ecosystem must also be recognized and provided for.

But, even more than most issues, environmentalism runs the danger of deteriorating into sheer crackpottery. For one thing, the amateur environmentalist easily identifies himself with all the small, furry animals in the world, and bravely undertakes to defend them against (what else?) huge, soulless corporations. In his mind's eye, he is defending a reistine Arcadia against greedy loggers, ivory coschers and oil tankers.

In addition, as Peter Shaw points out in a stimulating article in the April issue of Commentary, the free-floating anxiety that is a permanent fixture of the psyche of modern man finds "the environment" a superb roost when more immediate matters are going distressingly

When a major war is raging, or a global depression is in full flower, people will sensibly choose to worry about that. But what about of many minerals. Carl Sagan has gloomed over the prospect of "nuclear winter," everybody else has discovered the "greenhouse effect." and now holes are reportedly appearing in the ozone layer. These are the environmental anxieties of people who are undersupplied with real things to worry about.

But, even at a more serious level, many environmentalists are not waging their battle intelligently. How sensible is it, for example, to

Immediate matters are going dis-tressingly well set oneself resolutely against any rational solution to the perfectly legitimate demand of the earth's growing human population for a correspondingly growing supply of energy? Who, in the long run, is bound to win that

And yet many environmentalists are apparently determined to eliminate, or at least restrict, every practical source of energy known to man. Oil is out — look at what the Exxon Valdez did to Prince William Sound. The whole North Slope of Alaska should be closed to oil prospectors anyway: pipelines interfere with the annual migrations of the caribou.

If an environmentalist is forced to the wall and compelled to offer a constructive suggestion on compelled to offer a constructive suggestion on this subject (something that happens all too rarely), he will usually make some small noise about solar power. We have all seen the brave arrays of solar photo-receptor cells on the roofs of small bungalows in Florida and elsewhere, but they are no more practical as a major source of power than the dispirited ultramodern windmills on the hills east of San Francisco.

Always leave your enemy a line of retreat goes.

Always leave your enemy a line of retreat, goes one of the oldest rules of strategy. The environmentalists have forgotten that little detail, and in doing so have made their own task infinitely harder.

Could we tax your faculties

WASHINGTON — What a difference a word can make. The middle of April — tax time — might be less lacerating if we used a delightful anachronism and spoke of having our "faculties" assessed rather than our incomes

Taxing incomes was originally spoken of in American as taxing individuals' earning "faculties," as in the new Plymouth colonies' taxation on persons "according to their estates or faculties." It would flatter Americans to be told they are paying because, and to the extent that, their faculties are substantial. And saying so would teach a moral truth: Generally people prosper, and pay more taxes, because of reasons for which they cannot claim responsi-

Our faculties are bestowed by our parents, through DNA and nurturing, and by society, through schooling and the culture. Sorry, you who are particularly vain about your rugged individualism. Life would really be rugged if social reality reflected your self-congratulatory ideology of lonely, unassisted accomplishment. But it does not.

The principle on which progressive taxation rests is that those who make the most money get the most from society not merely in terms of money but also in "faculties," and thus owe a proportionately larger debt. As Turgot, finance minister of the much maligned Louis XVI. told him: "The expenses of government, having for their object the interest of all, should be borne by everyone, and the more a man enjoys the advantages of society, the more he ought to hold himself honored in contributing to those expenses."

In the United States, the income tax was not, needless to say, enacted out of a sense of honor. It was passed by a political movement confident that its members would not pay it. In fact, it was a tax to cut taxes (counting tariffs

After the Civil War, regional and class interests (the manufacturing North and the affluent commercial class) converged to pro-duce reliance on tariffs for the lion's share of federal revenues. The income tax was advocated as a painless (for 99 percent of the population) way of paying for lower tariffs that also would reduce that cost of the common man's consumption. And so it was, briefly.

The income tax enacted in 1913 taxes personal income at one percent and exempted married couples earning less than $4,001. A raduated surtax, beginning on incomes of $20,000, rose to 6 percent on incomes of more than $500,000. The $4,000 exemption expressed Congress' conclusion that such a sum was necessary to "maintain an American family according to the American standard and send the children through college." It was about six times the average male's income.

But as quickly as Americans could say "Sarajevo," war caused government expenditures to soar and international trade (and tariff revenues) to shrink. By 1919, the minimum taxable income had been reduced to $1,000 and the top rate was 77 percent.

Nevertheless, at tax time in 1939, only 3.9

had to file. Six year later, 42.6 million did. War turned the class tax into a mass tax. The Cold War and, even more im-portant, the welfare state would keep it that way.

Shortly after the income tax was enacted, Sen. Elihu Root told a friend that they both might go to jail for failing to master the tax form, but iall seculd "he an but jail would "ba an intellectual center, for no one un-derstands the Income Tax law except persons who have not sufficient intelligence to understand the questions that arise under the income tax was not, needless to say, enacted out of a sense of honor Complexity increased and the principle of progressivity was largely vitiated by the practice of writing arcane loopholes into the law. By the mid-1960s a senator complained: "The first nine pages of the Internal Revenue Code define income; the remaining 1,100 pages spin the web of exemptions and preferences.'

The web was spun primarily for two reasons. Wrinkles in the code were Congress' way of legislating social policy without appropriating public funds. And the idelogy of individualism - the myth that incomes reflect rugged individual attainment, not socially conferred and shaped "faculties" — made Americans weakly committed to the principle of progressivity. So weakly that it was virtually abandoned in 1986 in the name of reform.

The strong — wealthy, high achieving, socially competent individuals — contribute much to society because they have benefited much from society. So they should pay a lot of the upkeep of the civilization that confers as well as rewards their faculties. But that notion may itself be an anachronism in a nation that seems to believe that taxation, with or without representation, is tyranny.

Navy shopping not very thrifty

WASHINGTON - The Pentagon, where the majority of your tax money is burned, is under investigation for the way it shops — officially called "procurement." With the federal deficit at an obscene level and the government under attack for endemic waste, you would think the Pentagon might be a little bit more careful about procurement these days.

Think again. The Navy has quietly signed a contract with the highest bidder for the job of scraping barnacles off the hulls of Navy ships. Even in this, the most menial of jobs, the Pentagon can't get it right.

It took two and a half years for the Pentagon to make the choice. In the of small companies exhausted their re-sources bidding, rebidding and then waiting for the de-cision. qualified to enter the competition. A third company was rejected in the current round for lack of experience, even though the Navy contract is the only game in town and a company can't get experience without it.

For reasons the Navy declined to explain to us, the current hull-cleaning contract is going to Seaward Marine Services of Norfolk, Va.—the company charging the highest price, nearly $55 million for the five-year contract.

We first reported this barnacle flasco last July when the Navy was moving on the report, the Naval Investigative Service assigned an agent to dog the bidding process.

Seaward has had the Navy hull-cleaning contract since 1979. The contract is supposed to go to small businesses. But at one point the Navy changed the rules when Seaward got too big too qualify. Seaward's current con-tract expired in 1986, but the Navy has extended it during the endless rebidding Seavac International Inc. of San Diego underbid Seaward by nearly $4 million, but apparently the Navy wasn't in the mood for comparison shopping. Seavac General Man-ager Gregory Dies told our reporter Dawn Larsen that he is not taking no for an answer. He has protested the award to the General Accounting Office and is threatening to file a lawsuit to stop the contract.

Parker Diving of Los Angeles also underbid Seaward, but its president Don Walsh thinks that kicking up a fuss would be a waste of money, and he has wasted enough already. Walsh thinks his company was just window dressing so the Navy could say it shopped

For the handful of hull-cleaning companies in the United States, the Navy contract is a make-or-break proposition. There is virtually no demand for American companies to scrape the barnacies off private ships because the private companies have it done in foreign ports for cheaper prices.

Sources within Seaward told us that many employees didn't think as high bidder, that employees didn't think, as high bidder, that they had a ghost of a chance. According to one employee, Seaward workers were agonizing over mortgage payments and some had gone looking for other jobs. "Everyone was shocked when we won," he said.

NEW YORK - Prices opened lower Wednesday in moderately active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, pressured by some profit taking in the wake of the market's recent gains.

Wednesday in light trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold was lower. In early New York trading, the dollar was alightly higher against key foreign currencles in thin trading. Currency traders in New York said the doller's firmer tone was largely attributed to profit taking by short, or oversold, players following Tuesday's sharp drop in the value of the dollar. The dollar weakened Tuesday against all major foreign currencies after a key government economic report reduced the likelihood that U.S. Interest rates would con-

the Federal Reserve in its battle to control inflationary pressures and expectations.

The dollar came under pressure immediately after the Labor Department reported that the Consumer Price Index for March rose 0.5 percent. The increase was in line with market forecasts.

Higher U.S. Interest rates support the dollar because they make dollardenominated accurities more attractive to investors.

United Press International

TAMPA - An attorney for an AIDS infected child says she is being prevented from attending public school in Sarasota because Hillsborough officials will not ask for assistance.

Eliana Martinez. 7, has been barred from attending school in Hillsborough County for more than two years because of fears she could pass along the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus to other students at the school for excepher thumb.

Last August, U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich ordered the school board to allow Eliana to attend school, but said she would have to be separated from the other pupils. Last year the city received a $73,900 grant from the state historic preservation council to renovate the building. Mills has applied for an additional $38,000 in matching funds from the council to offset the shortfall.

"If it's a matter of renovating the building or not renovating the building, some of these items can go," said Mills, whose firm has worked on the project since August 1987. He said items included to make the building look as it did when it was built a $12,000 allowance to replace lighting fixtures with original

Ruth Lee, cultural arts committee chairperson, said the structure was designed by the late Sanford architect Elton Moughton. Because many of Moughton's works are no longer standing — the old city hall, for example — preservation of the Cultural Arts Center is critical. she said.

Lee said the committee may be willing to help raise funds to cover the difference.

The Cultural Aris Center first opened in January 1924 as the first public library in Sanford. The library was moved from that location in the late 1980s.

rejects last-ditch effort to save military bases

United Proce International

WASHINGTON - A Peritugori plan to shut down or shrink nearly 40 major military installations nationwide cleared its italiations hationwide cleared its last congressional hurdle when the House rejected a last-ditch bid to save the doomed bases.

On a lopsided 381-43 vote Tuesday, the House defeated a resolution to block the base-closing plan developed by a special commission created to remove politics from the sensitive task of weeding out facilities deemed obsolete or

The fight was not entirely over. Foes of the plan could still try to block spending bills needed to pay for the shutdown, but the heavy vote weighed strongly in favor of the shut-downs and reflected the strategy behind legislation that created the commission: that those who escaped the hit list would band together to force the closures, into exect.

The base cosings also face a court challenge filed Monday by a union representing about 5,000 civilian employees at three of the installations slated for closing.

The plan marks the first major effort in a decade by Congress to shut down a group of domestic bases, and its success this time is largely due to the process devised for the task.

The current plan, approved by Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci before he left office in January, goes into effect automatically unless both the House and Senate vote to reject the proposal in its entirety.

The commission's report calls for closing 34 major military installations and 52 smaller ones, plus the partial shutdown of five large bases and the "realignment" of others. Nearly 13,000 military jobs and 7,700 civilian jobs are expected to be lost nationwide, but the military personnel will be reassigned. Civilians will get the first opportunity at openings elsewhere under a special job placement program.

The commission estimated that its plan would altimately save $694 million a year, after the cost of shutting down the But a handful of persistent opponents with doomed bases in their states have asserted that many of those installations continue to serve vital functions and would cost more to shut down than to leave open.

Congress structured the base-closing process as an all-or-nothing proposition to overcome strong parochial opposition on Capitol Hill that has long made it difficult to shut down military installations. In 1977, Congress enacted a number of procedural road-blocks to base shutdowns, including one requiring congressional approval for any closure affecting 300 or more civilian

Wright lawyers negotiating speed-up plan

United Proce International

WASHINGTON — Lawyers for Speaker Jim Wright and the House ethics committee are negotiating on a plan to speed up procedures that will determine whether Wright is found guilty of violating House rules.

Wright, D-Texas, formally responded to the committee

Wright, D-Texas, formally responded to the committee Tuesday in a letter, wrote, "I deny each and every allegation." He reiterated his request for an expedited hearing so he could present his defense.

"I am prepared to appear as early as tomorrow morning," Wright said.

But a member of the committee said it was unlikely the case could be brought to the hearing stage that soon because of the necessary procedural steps requireds.

The committee's special

The committee's special counsel, Richard Phelan, and Wright's lawyer, William Oldaker, were directed to work out an expedited schedule; committee members said, but it appeared the hearing could not start for at least a weel

Meanwhile, Justice Depart ment spokesman Loye Miller said the department's Public Integrity Section will review the report on Wright without waiting for a referral from the ethics

"We will not stand on ceremo-ny." Miller said. "It's a public document. As a matter of course, we will review it.

Department lawyers already have been reviewing some of the allegations in response to a request last month from con-servative activist Paul Weyrich. However, most of the House findings do not suggest violations of criminal laws.

Wright, mounting a campaign for vindication, appeared before his fellow Democrats in a closed session in the House chamber to outline his defense against the charges made by the committee Monday.

"I told them I intend to fight and I intend to win," Wright later told reporters.

"It was a determined speech without anger, emotion, without tears," said Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., after the meeting. "He presented the case with care and logic, to a very attentive group."
Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., described Wright's speech as "riveting ... a very cogent, detailed explanation."

Wright also gave reporters additional information about his wife's job with an investment firm jointly founded by Wright and his friend, George Mallick of Fort Worth, Texas.

Senate seeks passage of thrift rescue bill

WASHINGTON — Senate approval of a bailout of the thrift industry, which could cost as much as $239 billion over 30 years, is assured, but not before Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, gets his chance to expose flaws in the legislation.

"I don't intend to filibuster." Metzenbaum told reporters Tuesday, adding he will, however, take time to denounce the content of the bill and probably offer pro-consumer amendments. His opposition could delay passage until the end of the Saying that taxpayers will wind up as the "big losers," Metzenbaum indicated he will offer amendments dealing with free cashing of Social Security and veterans benefits checks and requiring the creation of small amount checking accounts to "at least give them something to feel good about."

Floor managers of the bill, Democrat Donald Riegle of Michigan and Republican Jack Garn of Utah, have teamed up to ward off all controversial amendments, assuring that the final version of the savings and loan bill will be close to what President Bush proposed.

Police seek suspects in K-Mart bombing

INDIANAPOLIS — Police were rearching for two young men seen hurrying out of a K mart store shortly after a pipe bomb hidden in a toothpaste container exploded, severing the hand of a 5-year-old girl.

Surgeons failed Tuesday to save little Erin Bower's left hand, which was missing four fingers and most of the palm, and said her injured left eye may not gain full vision.

The only one seriously hurt by the blast, she was listed in serious but stable condition at Methodist Hospital.

Police, meanwhile, said they were seeking for questioning two men seen quickly walking out of the department store with smiles on their faces, but said there was no hard evidence linking them to the bomb.

Employees provided descriptions and police artists put together composite sketches of the men, believed to be in their 20s. K mart offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to convictions in the case.

Many of the 350 mourners who packed a small chapel near Glen Ellen, Calif. openly wept at an hour-long funeral service Tuesday for Tracy Toovey, Salcido's supervisor at the Grand Cru winery in Gien Ellen who was slain in his car last Friday on a dirt road near the winery.

At one point, The Rev. Richard Gantenbein, a Presbyterian minister, directly addressed Toovey's 5-year-old daughter, Kerrissa: "Your daddy is dead. Your daddy won't be there to play with you, to hold you when you are scared and kiss you

Family: Hoffman didn't commit suicide

WORCESTER, Mass, - The family of Abble Hoffman said a coroner was wrong to conclude the colorful 1960s political activist committed suicide last week, claiming if he had taken his own life he would have left a note or "gone out with a news conference."

Bucks County (Pa.) Coroner Thomas Rosko ruled Tuesday that Hoffman's death was caused by a "massive overdose" of prescription drugs and alcohol. Rosko said the equivalent of 150 pills were found in Hoffman's system.

But that conclusion was met with disbelief by Hoffman's mother and brother.

There are just no (suicide) letters. I think in this particular case you have to know Abble and know Abble's M.O. (modus operandi)," said Jack Hoffman, Abbie's brother.

'He would have written us a letter," he said. "He would have gone out with a news conference or something or like that."

Soviets will help clean up oil spill

VALDEZ, Alaska - A giant Soviet oil-skimming ship was en route to Prince William Sound and officials predicted a dramatic improvement in the puny rate of cleaning up the nation's largest oil spill.

The Vahdaghubsky, the world's largest oil-skimmer reportedly capable of collecting 2,000 barrels of oil a day and offered by the Soviets to clean up the 240,000 barrels spilled more than three weeks ago, was expected to arrive Wednesday in the sound and would be put to work immediately, officials said.

'We've heard miraculous reports about this ship," said Coast Guard Vice Adm. Clyde Robbins, who is heading federal oversight of the cleanup.

"If the reports are half-true, we'd have a heck of a boost to our capacity." Robbins said.

On good days, the combined cleanup fleets have been able to extract from the water little more than 1,000 barrels of oil. The tanker Exxon Valdez spilled an estimated 240,000 barrels, or

Cheney supports railway car missiles

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Chency favors removing the nation's 50 new MX nuclear missiles from silos and putting them on railroad cars for mobility in the case of a crisis, The Washington Post reported Wednesday.

Cheney has informed Presi-dent Bush about the plan, the newspaper said, quoting unidentified senior U.S. officials.

Chency told the president he does not advise spending additional money now to develop and deploy on trucks the so-called Midgetman missile, a smaller strategic weapon, the Post said. There has been support on Capital Hill for this plan.

Tuesday, Cheney met with Bush and senior national security advisers to disucss views on the missiles and on the spacebased Strategic Defense Initiative before the defense secretary departed for a two-day meeting in Brussels with NATO defense ministers.

Bush's decision on U.S. land-based missiles is expected to be one of his most important actions in the early days of his administration.

The Bush administration is scheduled Monday to reveal its amendments to President Ronald Reagan's defense budget, including a decision on the land-based missiles. Chency is scheduled to appear before Congress on Monday.

By deciding not to support funding toward deployment of the Midgetman, Chency essentially supported the views of the Reagan administration, which in 1988 directed the terminiation of the program by Oct. 1, the Post

Prosecutors compare North EST. Rental Deals to Hitler in final statements

United Press International

WASHINGTON - Defense lawyer Brendan Sullivan says prosecutors want to convict Oliver North so badly that they accuse him of adhering to Adolf Hitler's strategy, "The victor will never be asked if he was telling the truth."

But prosecutor John Keker said the ex-White House aide applied that strategy to all his secret work to arrange the U.S. arms sales to Iran and to manage a clandestine airlift for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

In bitter closing arguments Tuesday to the jury that has for three months learned about North's role in the Iran-Contra scandal, North was portrayed by Keker as a habitual liar — "the Joe Isuzu of government" — and by Sullivan as a persecuted

Keker, in his two-hour, 20minute argument, said that for North, "Lying had become a habit: deceit had become a watchword."

The prosecution charges that North committed 12 felonies in a lengthy effort to dodge inquiries into his secret work to get U.S. arms to iran and to keep the Contra rebels alive at a time when official aid was banned by

The defense claims that North did nothing without the express approval and authorization of the highest-ranking members of the Reagan administration including Ronald Reagan.

Charges against North include lying to Congress in 1985 and 1986 letters, lying to the at-torney general in November 1986, accepting an illegal gift of a $13,800 security system for his home, converting more than $4,000 in traveler's checks to his own use and tax fraud. If convicted of all charges, he faces up to 60 years in prison and $3 million in fines.

MOSCOW - The United States returned documents from Czarist Russian consulates that functioned in North American cities before the Communist Revolution, and signed an accord that will allow Americans to trace their family roots from Soviet sources.

"These records, which document official government activity. should properly be held for research use in the Soviet Union." Don Wilson, archivist of the United States, said Tuesday.

"I am delighted personally to return the first of the records to the Soviet government for use of all researchers in the years to come," Wilson said.

Soviet citizen finally allowed to come to U.S.

MOSCOW - Sergel Petrov, a dissident photographer whose eight-year quest to emigrate has been a high priority for the U.S. government, said he is finally being allowed to go to the United States.

Petrov — who calls himself a refusentk like other Soviets refused permission to emigrate said Tuesday the long-awaited authorization arrived in his mailbox Monday.
"I will believe this is all over once I step off that plane in America," the bearded, dark-haired photographer told United Press International.

Petrov, 36, and his mother, Klavdia, 72, lived for years in a drab, two-room apartment in Moscow where he worked as an art photographer. The two often opened their home to Western correspondents, introducing them to dissidents and refuseniks whose cases sometimes became well-known in the outside world.

An outspoken critic of Soviet restrictions on travel - a right taken for granted in the West — Petrov became known in New York and Paris through exhibits of his black-and-white photographs of daily life in Moscow. He later was invited to teach at the American College in Paris.

But Petrov said he could not immediately accept the invita-tion and would go to the United States because his mother. allowed to leave in January, now lives in Washington and urgently needs heart surgery. "It all happened so suddenly."

he said. "I have to be on a plane to Washington on Saturday and now have only a few days left to pack up my life here."

He said as soon as he received permission to go, he went to the U.S. Embassy where his visa application was immediately

"Why did I have to wait eight years for this?" he said. "I know that I am not able to leave because the laws have changed.

Every college in America is looking to sign a blue chip player that can help carry it to a championship. Head basketball coach Bill Payne of Seminole Community College believes he has signed just such a player.

Johnny B. Benjamin, Jr. is a 6'1", 190 pound guard from Orlando who started at point guard for Auburn University the first 10 games of the season last fall before transfering to the University of Nebraska. But that only tells part of the story.

While he was a senior at Orlando's Central Florida Academy, Benjamin became the second all-time leading scorer for one season in high school basketball history. averaging 52 points a game. He also averaged 14 rebounds and 10 assists per game. He had several games were he scored in the 60's and a couple in the 70's, including a 68-point effort against a Wymore Tech squad that went to the state tournament.

After playing at Central Florida Academy as a sophomore, he transfered to Orlando-Jones High School during his junior year and helped lead the Tigers to a 25.9 record and second place finish in the Class 3A state tournament while being named to the alltournament team.

"Johnny is the kind of player that makes us a legitimate contender for the state championship," said Payne "He is a great athlete. He can jump, shoot the three-point shot, and handle the basketball. He definitely takes care of the point guard spot for us. Now we just need to get some more good people to play with

"I have always been impressed with Coach Payne's program at Seminole," said Jackson. "And having played there for Coach (Joe) Sterling, I have a good feeling for the school anyway. When Johnny decided to leave Nebraska, I saled him if he wanted to go to a junior college. When he said, 'Yes,' I called

"There was a problem in a dormitory over a party that was going on that involved several people, not just Johnny, that led him to leave Nebraska. But he anid he really just wanted to come home. Just a case of home

While at Auburn, Benjamin proved to his critics that he could do more than score as he helped lead the Tigers to a 7-3 start while averaging six points a game and leading the team in assists with 6.5 per contest. After he left the program, no one else stepped forward to take over the running of the team and Auburn Anished with a losing season for the first time in

"It's really a pleasure to get a player of Johhny's caliber at our school." added Payne. "He did well in his classes at Auburn, posting over a 3.0 grade point average. Usually a junior college only gets this kind of player when they don't have grades.

Recruiting in junior college is a crap shoot at best. When you're recruiting a kid with an SAT or ACT acore that is close to getting him a Division I scholarship, you have to wait until the last minute to see if you will get him. Sometimes even kids you sign don't show up, so it is really nice to have someone like Johnny show a committment to us. # Know a great mom? Send her in to us

In a poll's ranking of words according to the warm, fuzzy feelings they bring. "mother" came in right after "home."

We mother-ize that which we are fond of: Mother Earth, Mother Nature, mother country and alma mater. Doubtless, those fond feelings were instilled by great moms.

The Sanford Herald is searching for a mother worthy of our annual Outstanding Mom title. But we need our readers—whether kin or friend-to help us by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by a panel of judges.

Judging will be based on the quality, rather than quantity, of letters: therefore, only one letter need be written per nominee.

Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about your nomince, telling us why this mom is so special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Write the her mother had ordered from nominee's name, street address, city and daytime phone number at the top of the page. Then write her qualifications or why she's outstanding. At the end of the letter, write your name, address, telephone number and age (if under 18). Mail to "Outstanding Mom," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters of nomination.

All entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 1. The top three winners will be featured in the Mother's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, May 14, and will receive pla-

Cooking is a real crock to her

Herald correspondent

SANFORD - Our Cook of the Week is a walking testimonial to the benefits of the crock pot. Judy Detrick is a lady on one tight schedule, but she finds time each day to cook dinner. On many busy days her crock pot is her biggest ally.

Detrick works two Jobs. She starts at 5:45 a.m. each morning, stops at 1:45 p.m. for an hour and fifteen minutes, and then is off to her second job, where she works until 5:45 p.m. She usually goes home during her break time, prepares dinner and washes the dishes. She rides her bleyele to and from both jobs, so her cooking and cleaning time amounts to about 45 minutes, tops. Consequently, she has become adept at planning ahead, cooking quickly and using one of her three crock pots for many meals.

She has learned to improvise with various canned and bottled products, adding ingredients to round them out. Some days she wants to visit her mother in the afternoon instead of cooking, so she puts a roast or chicken in the crock pot in the morning. The meat cooks slowly on a low setting and is ready by the time her husband, Joseph, gets home for dinner.

Detrick was born in Fort Belvair, Va., where her father, a career Army man, was stationed. She grew up "all over the place," she said, and has lived in Sanford twice. She attended Sanford Grammar School for a while, moved away, but returned during her high school YCAIS.

She also lived twice in Germany, first when she was very young, and then again when she was 13 years old.

"The people are beautiful over there," she said, and she has fond memories of one family in particular. Detrick, her four brothers and sisters, and her parents had just arrived in Germany and their Army quarters were not yet ready. A German family they met took them in. "I think we stayed with them about a week," she said.

Later, the Christmas presents Sears were late in arriving. Her mother was upset, but was trying to make light of the situation by teiling the kids that Santa couldn't make it to Germany because it was snowing too hard. The same family brought fruit baskets over on Christmas morning, "so we wouldn't be empty-handed on that day." Detrick's father still keeps in touch with these old

She learned to cook from her father, who fixed Army vehicles but also cooked for the men in the mess hall. When she was a teenager her mother worked third shift at a hospital and slept during the day. Her dad would get Detrick in the kitchen with him to prepare dinner, and teach her some tricks of the trade.

"He made everything from scratch," she said, and she remembers loving his homemade pizza and spaghetti.

During clean-up duty, his Army training showed: "I would have to wash the dishes," Detrick said, "and if you left a dirty dish in the cabinet he would take everything out and make you wash it all.

Her father, now retired, lives in Lake Mary. Her mother lives

Detrick has cooked for a living for nearly 15 years. Her morning job is with Sanford Child Development, a day-care center where she prepares breakfast and lunch for approximately 77 kids and teachers. At the same time, she cooks lunch for Happy Acres Kindergarten & Child Care: the food is picked up and taken there in thermal carriers.

Detrick obviously enjoys her job. It is important to her that the kids cat well, and she tries to cook creatively to help them ☐Bee Cook, Page 5B along. The menus she follows are planned by the center's office to make sure the four food groups are used. She always attempts to make the food as appealing as possible to

'When you're cooking for kids, anything different you do, they like," she said. She has done things like putting green or blue food coloring in the milk. They think it changes the taste and drink it right up.

Or she'll make a green cake or green mashed potatoes for St. Patrick's Day. Or she'll change the flavor of banana pudding by using chocolate instead of vanilla pudding along with the bananas and vahilla wafers.

She works afternoons at the Gingerbread House, another Sanford day-care facility, where she tends the "after-schoolers," kids in the 5- to β-year-old range.

Although Detrick is a wellversed cook, she has had flascos. She tried her hand at homemade biscults, but "they were real hard," she said. She and Joe couldn't eat them so he gave them to the dog, who proceeded to bury them in the backyard.

There he was, laughing and calling the neighbors over to watch. There were about 12 to 15 biscuits, and the dog was burying them one by one." Detrick said.

Her baked beans are a different story; she said Joe tells everyone they are "the best." Other people have tried her recipe, but no one can make them taste quite the same. She usually fixes them in large quantities, for barbeques and such, in her crock pot.

Detrick has two teen-age sons, Ronald Riggs, Jr., 16, and Michael Riggs, 14. She likes bike riding, tennis, dancing and walking-anything but sitting still, she said, because then she falls asleep. Her philosophy is "to live one day at a time. I don't let things bother me: I just try to smile and let them blow over. I've had to smile through a lot of things.

Some of Detrick's often-used recipes follow.

Grandma shouldn't play favorites

DEAR ABBY: You will be blessed from coast to coast if you publish this open letter to all grandmothers:

DEAR GRANDMOTHERS: Please don't play favorites. If you buy a gift for the children of your daughter, please buy a gift of equal value for the children of your son. These children are cousins, and cousins play together, and when they see the expensive toys, books and clothing that Grandma has given their cousins, they become jealous because Grandma has never given them such grand gifts. She gives them cheap little trinkets-or nothing at all. I am the mother of the cousins who get very little from Grandma, and I have looked into the sad eyes of my children when we visit their cousins who have been showered with expensive gifts from Grandma. It is always the daughter's children who are favored. I have friends who are in the same situation, so I am not imagining this.

I realize that there are some little ones to cat. grandmothers who are fair to all their grandchildren, but I am sorry to say that they are the exception.

I hope that this letter will cause the grandmothers who are guilty of this kind of favoritism to change their ways. Most children don't "need" anything-but they are hurt when their cousins always get the peaches and they get the pits. Thanks for listening.

My 3-year-old nephew, Chad, was cating a large marshmallow. Nobody paid much attention to him until he suddenly started turning blue! The marshmallow had become lodged in his throat and formed a glue-like seal in his throat!

The poor child could not breathe. They applied the Heimlich mancuver, but could not dislodge the marshmallow. Chad was then rushed to the hospital and was actually pronounced "dead," but they revived him by using a heavy suction pump to remove the marshmallow from the base of his trachea. Chad is now severely brain damaged. Abby, please print this. Until this happened, no one In our family ever dreamed that such a tragedy could occur because of a marshmallow.

CHAD'S AUNT

DEAR AUNT: Thank you for warning others. Who would ever dream that the innocent marshmallow could harm (or kill) a child? The information I glean from writing this column boggles the mind.

By CARL JEROME

I am over all the nonsense that has been foisted upon us by the coffee industry. First, caffeine is not our friend, so coffee should be drunk only in very moderate amounts.

Second, decaffeinated coffee beans are never, in my experi-ence, of as high a quality as normal beans. And, again in my humble opinion, are not worth buying. Third, coffee beans take at least two to four months between picking and availability on the market, and are some-times stored "for up to a year and a half to two years," according to George Boecklin, President of the National Coffee Association in New York.

And fourth, coffee can be cooled and reheated without any significant loss of flavor. Just reheat it to a steaming temperature, not a full boil.

confusion about espresso and cappucino: They are not what they seem. The dark and oily, slightly burned beans used for making these drinks actually have less caffeine than a regular, lighter roasted coffee bean.

In the recipe here, use a dark. French roast coffee bean. I prefer ones from Jamaica, though not its Blue Mountains, but often settle for less difficult to find. less expensive Mexican beans. Most French roast beans around are Columbian, not my favorite. French roast beans will produce a deep, rich, well balanced flavor of great character, if not the subtlety that some coffee aff-

to take care of it. What you ignore could produce unpleasant ripple effects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your social involvements today make it a point to share the stage with others. You'll make a poor impression if you don't let all of the characters have at least a few lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Outsiders and in-laws should both be outlawed today where confidential family affairs are concerned. If they are allowed to participate they could turn a bad situation into something worse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An associate with a forceful personality might attempt to downgrade your ideas and suggestions today. Don't be intimidated just because this guy has a big mouth.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let a user outmaneuver you today when it comes time to pay the check. Have another cup of coffee and wait until the staller picks up the share.

Senate panel defeats attempt to kill bipartisan budget pact

United Press International

WASHINGTON - A Senate panel, working on the sketchy bipartisan budget agreement reached last week, defeated an attempt to kill the pact, allowing it to survive its first test on Capitol

The Senate Budget Committee rejected Tuesday the attempt that would have killed the tentative fiscal 1990 accord and ordered negotiators to produce a more comprehensive package. President Bush and congressional leaders announced the bipartisan spending plan last week. The committee voted 19-4 Tuesday to kill an amendment by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., that would have required much deeper spending cuts than those adopted last week. Johnston admitted he really did not want to see the deeper cuts his amendment called for, but he was using it as a tool intended to force the negotiation of a better package. One Democratic supporter of Johnston's amendment called the bipartisan accord a "sham." The committee action also was a vote of confidence in Serl. Jim Sasser, D.Tenn., the panel's chairman, and Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, the ranking Republican, who helped negotiate the compomise spending plan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. "If we start over, we'll get nothing," Domenici warned in urging the defeat of Johnston's amendment. "We will be in gridlock without the bipartisan agreement." Both Sasser and Domenici acknowledged that the agreement was far less than negotiators had hoped for, but insisted it was the most that could practically be achieved between the Republican president and the Democratic-controlled Con-

Sasser said the agreement, however flawed, "is far superior to chaos, confrontation and paraly-

Meanwhile Tuesday, the House Appropriations Committee ignored threats of a presidential veto and passed a $4.9 billion fiscal 1989 supplemental spending bill that more than doubled the $2.2 billion package Bush requested.

The House panel's action came on a voice vote after committee members rejected, on a 28-18 party-line vote, a cheaper substitute bill offered by the panel's ranking Republican, Rep. Silvio

Bush submitted the $2.2 billion spending package for the rest of fiscal 1989, which ends Sept. 30. But House Appropriations subcommittees early this month added nearly $1 billion in anti-drug funding, more than $1 billion for other programs and rejected the spending cuts Bush proposed, ballooning the bill to $4.6 billion. The full House committee then added another $300 million - $241 million of it to aid the homeless and for housing programs - bringing the final spending package to $4.9 billion. The bipartisan budget agreement considered by the Senate committee was worked out during almost two months of talks. The Johnston amendment was designed to get negotiators back to the table to devise a package with fewer acocunting gimmicks. There is no one in this room ... who thinks this is a real plan," Johnston said of the pact announced with White House fanfare Friday. "The so-called bipartisan budget does not cut the budget at all. ... (It) involves no pain, no difficulty, no political sacrifice and it fools no

"If anyone thinks 'Rosemary's Baby' was ugly, I suggest they take a look at this newly hatched baby," agreed Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., referring to the film in which a woman gives birth to the devil's child. "It's a sham of major proportions. Bush defended the plan in a speech to the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department Tuesday, saying reduction of the federal deficit would bring down inflation and interest rates. The budget agreement, he acknowledged, "is only a first step, but it is an # important step." Gulf peace talks to resume Thursday

United Press International GENEVA - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati was the first arrival Wednesday for a new round of negotiations in stalled peace talks with Iraq. The latest round of U.N.-mediated talks — the fourth since Aug. 25 following a ceasefire five days earlier - was scheduled to open Thursday afternoon. U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar has acted as intermediary between Velayati and Iraqi Foreign Minister Turiq

"Wait and see," was all Velayati would say when asked by reporters at Geneva airport if

U.N. Security Council Resolution 598 of 1987 laid down an agenda for the talks, starting with withdrawal of forces to "internationally recognized borders" and then the exchange of all prisoners of war. Drafting of an actual peace settlement is to begin after those two initial crucial steps are completed. The talks have made little progress despite all of Perez de Cuellar's efforts.
