Jetliner explodes Divers find TWA black boxes

By LARRY NEUMEISTER Associated Press Writer

EAST MORICHES, N.Y. - Divers searching the wreckage of TWA Flight 800 found the flight data and cockpit voice recorders Wednesday.

The boxes were found shortly before midnight by a robotic vehicle probing the largest concentration of wreckage on the ocean floor, said Robert Francis, the vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Divers were bringing the boxes to a Navy search vessel on the surface, and Francis said they would be flown immediately to Washington for examination. He did not say exactly where inthe wreckage the boxes were found or their condition.

The recovery, coming one week after the crash. represented a major breakthrough in the quest to tind out what caused the second-worst airline. disaster in U.S. history.

District eyes charter school to begin in '97

SANFORD - Seminole County school district officials are looking at the first proposal they have recieved for a charter school in the district.

Submitted by Charter Schools Inc., a company comprised of Don McCammon, John Allen and Art Cross, the proposal is for a high school they propose to operate out of Winter Springs High School beginning in 1997.

Charter schools which are operated by the private sector are funded by the public schools with state money. While the schools are not subject to most of the regulations to which public schools must adhere, they do have to follow desegregation and ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) guidelines, they must hire state certified instructors and they must serve the needs of students with all exceptionalities.

Rape charges dropped against woman

TAMPA - A woman accused of raping a male resident of a domestic violence shelter is out of jail after her accuser drooped charges.

The 35-year-old man, who has not been identified, said he had little choice because police and prosecutors told him there was no physical evidence of assault and his children might be harshly questioned by defense attorneys.

The children were sleeping in the same room as their father at the time of the incident, prosecutors said.

The man also said he was told that any jury with a man on It wouldn't convict 18-year-old Jennifer Patnaude of rape.

"I felt I had no other option," said the man. "I thought it would be an open and closed case. Now I see why men don't come forward."

Hillsborough County State Attorney Harry Lee Coe said Patnaude was released Wednesday because the accuser didn't want to pursue the case.

Karen Stanley, the head of the state attorney's sex crimes division, said she explained the difficulties in pursuing the case, but left it up to the alleged victim to make the decision.

"I think it would have been very, very difficult to prevail in a case like this when it's a one-on-one attack." Stanley said. 'That's true regardless of who the defendant is and who the victim is."

Tampa police said the partially disabled man reported he awoke Saturday morning to find Patnaude having sex with him. The man said he pushed her away and had her arrested Sunday on a sexual battery charge.

Patnaude telephoned local media from jail to say that the man consented to sex with her.

Patnaude, who was also a resident at The Spring domestic violence shelter, isn't allowed to return to shelter. Coe said. Authorities were trying to find another shelter for her. The man, who said he sought shelter with his children at

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Tobacco companies, state trade barbs

By CATHERINE WI E WILSON

PALM BEACH GARDENS -David Strawn has a captive audience of 74 high-level tobacco company executives, state officials and attorneys.

While he hopes his performance as a mediator ends with applause, boos are much more likely.

Florida and tobacco companies are under a court order to talk about settling a state suit seeking repayment of $1 billion spent on sick smokers.

But both sides doubt the compulsory, mediation, the first in the nation on settling a Medicaid-reimbursement lawsuit, will produce an agreement.

"It would make no sense for the state to settle," said Mississippi Attorney General Mike Moore, who filed the first of 10 similar lewsuits by states and who attended Wednesday's meetings to assist Florida officials.

Moore said that if Florida got a settlement with money, "the other states would like to double it or triple it or quadruple it."

Ten states have sued tobacco companies and a dozen more are preparing suits to recover tax money spent on those with smoking-related illnesses.

For four decades, the industry presented a unified front. That ended in March when the Liggett Group, the nation's fifth-largest tobacco company, agreed to pay Florida and four other states more than $10 million without admitting any wrongdoing. Moments before closed-door mediation began Wednesday, both sides traded tough talk.

Child custody battle Killer dad, lesbian mom take custody fight to appeals court

By JACKIE MALLIPAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The custody fight between a leabian mother and a father who did prison time for murder unfolded before an appeals court that just last week overturned a custody decision against another lesbian mother.

"I know I am a good mother," Mary Ward told reporters after oral arguments Wednesday in the First District Court of Appeal. "I try to raise my daughter to be the best person she can be. I do not understand why my nexual orientation abould make any difference in the love and good upbringing I give Casecy." Casecy, 12, lived with her mother until last summer, when a Pennacola judge revolued her mother's custody, saying he wanted to give Casesy a chance to live in "a non-lesbian world."

Cassey moved from her mother's Penencola home to live with her father and his third wife in nearby Milton.

John Ward pleaded guilty to second-degree murder of his first wife in 1974 and served eight years in prison.

Ward, 47, was fianked Wedneeday by her leablan partner, Marjorie Wright, two adult daughters and Kathryn Kendell. executive director of the National Center for Lesbian Rights in San Francisco. Kendell told reporters lesbian parents across the country often had to fight for the custody. "This is very common," she said. "What makes this case unusual is that we have an absolutely outstanding mother who lost custody to a marginal father." John Ward, 44, didn't attend the hearing before the three-judge panel, which will issue its ruling at an unspecified date. But his lawyer, Ed Fleming of Pensacola, told the court that sexual orientation wasn't an issue in the case.

"That's kind of a straw man issue that's been created by the appellant in this case," Fleming said.

Fleming said the trial judge wasn't concerned with what Mary Ward thought or desired just what happened in her home, which was also occupied by an adult daughter and her sirtifiend as well as Mary Ward and her leablan partner.

"We have four cohabiting icebian adults with a young girl who is pre-adolescent or adolescent, about to make the transition into womaphood," Fleming said.

Cassey, he said, wasn't interested in wearing women's perfume but did want to wear men's cologne. She didn't take any pride in her appearance and had a negative attitude toward heteropexual pex. he said.

But Charlene Carres, a Tallahassee attorney repre-senting Mary Ward, urged the three judges to read the entire record to consider the entire context of Casesy's day-to-day life with her mother. Cassey, she said, didn't do anything that wasn't normal for a child her age. Why do we care whether she preferred the amell of Brut to the smell of Channel 5?" Carres asked. "If I prefer a unisex cologne that doesn't make me bisexual."

Mary Ward was also repre-sented by Kendell, who told the court that there was no evidence "that under any circumstance or at any time, Casecy Ward was exposed to or experienced or viewed any inappropriate sexual behavior whatsoever.

"And it is our contention that can't be assumed simply be-cause of Mary Ward's sexual orientation."

Carres said she was fairly optimistic because of last week' decision, when the 1st DCA ruled that a state judge in another Panhandle county couldn't assume without evidence that a homosexual environment would harm a child.

The ruling granted a new hearing to Valerie Maradie of Niceville, who lost custody of her 4-year-old daughter last September.

Valerie Maradie argued that it was unfair to award sole custody to ex-husband John Maradie, a traveling sales representative, just because of her sexual orientation.

A court-appointed psycholo-gist testified he saw no evidence Maradie's sexual orientation hurt her ability as a parent or harmed the child.

Income survey is encouraging

It was refreshing to read about the latest University of Florida economic statistics (Wednesday, Sanford Herald), indicating that Seminole County, presently the seventh highest average household-income county in the state, may grow to the position of sixth by the year 2010.

The survey also indicated Seminole County can expect an increase in employment (up 6.13 percent), by 2010, for the sixth highest increase in the state.

For those who not only read about it, but give it some serious thought, it may be an indication of the road ahead in more ways than one. It appears as though our lot in life will be improving in the years ahead.

Why is our income and employment figure better than that of neighboring Orange County? That's casy to see. People who work there...live here.

It's mostly because much of Orange County is filled with the commercial area of Orlando, plus thousands of acres devoted to the tourist industry, or still waiting to be developed.

Seminole County however, is often considered as a "bedroom community." We live here, but we work there.

There are people who might prefer to avoid this terminology. But try as we may, we must face the facts. A bedroom community is exactiy what a great portion of Seminole County is. Certainly, we have our industrial areas, the Seminole Towne Center, and other major business areas. But basically, we are still a residential type county, but next to a commercial county.

If, for example, we were adjacent to some of Florida's panhandle counties where job rates are low and personal income is low, ours would certainly be included near the bottom of income or employment lists. Chances of improvement would be alim, as it already is for some of those areas.

BEN WATTENBERG

Scandalized scorps call him 'liar'

The press is back in the news again, cover-ing itself in an addled way as usual. Newsweek's ace columnist Joe Klein has been caught in a lie, and the very virginal press corps - shocked, stunned and saddened - has set in motion a tidal wave of summertime sanctimony.

After exposure by the Washington Post, Klein acknowledged that he was "Anonymous," the author of the best-selling political novel "Primary Colors." He had been one of the early suspects, but had flatly and aggressively denied authorship.

The collective response from Klein's colleagues has been: "Liar, liar pants on fire." It is said that he has lost his credibility, and that he has given fuel to those who denounce the credibility of the press.

Ritually, it should be said that Klein did a naughty thing. I would like to think that I would not do what he did - in fact, I know I would not, in some part because I know I could not pull it off.

But...

Klein did not lie as a reporter or as a columnist. It was as the subject of journalistic inquiry that he said he didn't write the book. It was a lie concerning a personal commercial matter. Would the angry scorps (Klein's neat word for journalists in "Primary Colors") care to itemize any and all of their own personal or commercial statements or representations that have been untrue? Readers may test themselves. Nor did Kiein lie as an author. "Primary Colors" was not only a scamless and colorful narrative but it was truthful fiction. Fiction, let it be understood, is often even more true than the facts. And we know it was generally truthful because professional Clinton spinners validated much of its essence. an idea almost entirely ignored by the press in the feeding-frenzy coverage of the book. Thus, Mandy Grunwald, a former Clinton campaign adviser, said on "Larry King Live" that "It's a great book, a lot of it is true to life

"Primary Col-ors"

It's only cerie that it is so accurate, some of it. And George Stephanopoulos apparently spoke in a not-for-direct-quotation mode: "The presi-dent's aide to startled by how his character's thoughts -- from wonderment at his boas' sitils to disgust with his pandering - mirror his own." reported Newsweek cartier this year. (Surely you believe Newsweek.) Stephanopoulos also said it was "a great read."

So the press missed a major aspect of the news value of "Primary Colors." It was, in effect, deemed essentially accurate by Clintonistas, a not-unimportant thought regarding a book that showed their leader, our president, as both a stunningly talented and grievously flawed individual.

Such misreportage is not unusual. It happens all the time among the sactimoniada and on far more important stories than this one about a rather novel novel. Accordingly, it seems surreal that a plagued profession would go into spasma about an item that harmed no one.

Collectively, the press was the transmittal agent of the falsehood that Medicare would be "cut," which has distorted the political terrain. (I measure these things by a standard called DEM - Distilled Easence of Media - about which I have written.

GEORGE PLAGENZ Attitudes change on origin of life

Fifty years ago it looked as if evolution had won the minds of the country except for the Bible Belt regions. That has changed. Today there are more people who believe that "God created man pretty much in his present form at one time within the last 10,000 years." which is the creationist view, than believe that "man has developed over millions of years from less advanced forms of life," Darwin's theory that rocked a Bible-believing world in the middle of the last century.

Explaining this shift away from a scientific outlook in his book "Beyond Science," British scientist Denis Alexander. wrote. "Many believe it is necessary to deny man's reason in order to restore his The objection to that among man losing his hucertein manity in a technoeducators is logical nociety." that creationism M 0 . Is not scientific schoolchildren, it is pointed out by unhappy parents, are exposed to nothing but a "Godless" neo-Darwinian philosophy regarding the origin of life. This, they say, accounts for the "deadened spiritual lives" of our young people, which have produced in turn many of the social evils now plaguing us. To put it in the colorful alliterative prose of a Georgia judge. "This monkey mythology has been the cause of permissiveness. promisculty, perversions, pregnancies, pornography and proliferation of crime." Whether or not that is an overstatement, many people who agree with the judge want creationism, the Bible version of how the universe and mankind began, to be taught in their children's classrooms along with the "monkey mythology." The objection to that among certain educators is that creationism is not scientific and should not be included in the curriculum side by side with evolution. The basic consideration, however, should not be, "Does creationism pass the scientific test?" but "Does it pass the truth test?" To answer that we must ask. "What is truth?"

But here we are, between Volusia with it's Daytona Beach attractions, Brevard County with the space industry, and Orange County with some of the world's best known tourist spots. Insofar as living is concerned, we are probably in one of the best locations we could ask for.

Yes. we have complained (and still do), about the naming of our airport as the Orlando-Sanford Airport. But if we didn't have Orlando nearby with all of its tourism. industry and commerce, we would still be operating the Sanford airport in the dark ages.

If we weren't located along Interstate-4 between the major community of Deltona and the Oriando metropolitan area, do you believe we would have attracted the Seminole Towne Center and adjacent business community?

Yes, we take pride in where we live, and don't want it to ever lose its identity. But we must not overlook the fact that a great deal of our continuing success is due to where we are, rather than who we are.

Tort reform could boost Dole

Republicans can give Americans a huge "tax cut" and also embarrass President Clinton over his coziness with the trial lawyers' lobby by pushing a simple set of legal reforms that GOP presidential nomines Bob Dole once sponsored but now seems to have forgotten. One reform, called "auto choice," could lower the average driver's annual auto insurance premium by 29 percent. or $221 per car, and save individuals and businesses a total of $300 billion over seven years - more than the GOP called for in its 1995 tax cut plan.

The other two parts of the package would promote early settlement of tort lawsuits and promote early settlement of tort awaits and limit lawyers' contingency fees, saving money that now goes into the hands of trial lawyers, a powerful interest group' that contributes heavily to politicians, especially Democrats. As the Wall Street Journal reported last week, President Clinton's re-election compaign received $700,000 from trial lawyers during the 15 months ending this Aordi. According to the 15 months ending this April. According to the independent research group Contributions Watch, Dole received just $44,860. And the Democratic National Committee received $450,000 during the first three months of this year, compared with just $20,000 for the Republican National Committee.

President Clinton vetoed two major bills opposed by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, one limiting class action suits in securities cases and another modestly capping punitive damages in product liability cases.

While Republicans railed at Clinton over the vetoes, so far they've been unable to turn them into a major political issue the way Clinton has done with GOP connections to the gun and tobacco lobbics.

Partly that's because lawyers - even though they are unpopular - don't manufacture a lethal product. Partly it's because previous tort reform measures looked like yet another GOP attempt to help big corporations at the expense of ordinary citizens, by denying innocent fraud and injury victims recourse in the courts.

The two originators of the "auto choice" and contingency fee reform ideas, Michael Horowitz of the Hudson Institute and Jeffrey O'Connell of the University of Virginia Law School, contend that their tort reform ideas would be far more politically attractive than those previously pushed in Congress. "Tort reform can and should be consumer-empowering." says Horowitz. "It can be a signature issue and need not be a gridlocked. tone-deal, tin-eared, zero-sum game by which consumer rights are reduced and corporate profits enhanced."

Horowitz's and O'Connell's reform proposals are embodied in legislation introduced by Dole shortly before he left the Senate and co-sponsored by Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky. "Auto choice" has been co-sponsored by two Democrats, Sens. Joe Lieberman (Coun.) and Daniel Patrick Moynthan (N.Y.), but they have not yet decided whether to support limits on

Dole favors the reforms, but he has yet to mention them on the campaign trail even though they repre-sent, as Horowitz says, "the most painless possible tax cut, and one that doesn't expand the federal deficit."

Savings under the reforms would result from drastic curtailing of "pain and suf-fering" damage awards, the legal focs paid to lewyers who try to go after them to lewsuits, and the insurance costs that result.

Under "auto choice," drivers could purchase one of two types of insurance - an expensive type covering both "sconomic" damages and "pain and suffering." and a cheaper policy that covers just "economic" damage, including medical less and lost income.

E Republicans can give Americans a huge "tax

Injured motorists would collect from their own insurance company regardless of who was at fault in an accident, although victims could sue negligent drivers for "concente" losses not covered by their own policy and would be able to sue for unlimited amounts in cases of intentional injuries and alcohol and drug abuse.

Horowitz asserts that drivers overwhelm-ingly would choose the lower-priced insurance knowing that their actual expenses or losses would be covered and would lorgo the chance of making extra money in case of an accident.

The current auto insurance system, even though it's called "no fault," actually spawns lawsuits, as accident victims and lawyers seek windfalls in settlements from insurance companies. As a result, insurance premiums more than doubled during the 1980s even though cars got safer and the number of accidents declined.

Lawyers collect up to 40 percent of a vic-tim's award, so they often go prospecting for victims and work with friendly medical profemionals to inflate claims.

In one of the other reforms advocated by Dole and McConnell, lawyers' contingency fees Dole and McConnell, Hwyers contained ants 60 would be limited by offering delendants 60 days in which to make a settlement offer. If the plaintiff accepted, a lawyer's fee would be plaintiff accepted, a lawyer's fee would be capped at an hourly rate. If the plaintiff decided to proceed with the suit, a lawyer could collect a contingency fee only on the amount awarded above the settlement offer.

English author Maude Petre tells a story about a talk her sister once had with her little boy regarding angels.

'Do angels have REAL wings?" he asked.

"Not real, like birds," she replied. "Their wings mean they go swiftly wherever they will.

"Then are they REALLY white?" he next inquired. "That means." replied his mother. "that they are pure and holy."

There was a pause of disillusionment and then, desperately this time, he asked one last question. "Then do they REALLY shine? Oh," he said, almost pitcously, "they do shine, don't they?"

At this his mother threw all her science overboard and her answer was, I think, more honest than all her other attempts at the truth.

"Yes, little boy," she said, "they do shine --REALLY."

You may think that the mother's first two answers were better. They were truthful and even spiritual. You might even say her last answer misled the boy and was therefore WTONE.

But our passion for scientific precision and But our passion for scientific precision and exactitude in these matters is open to ques-tion. Symbols, such as angels and the Bible story of creation, express truths that cannot be adequately apprelended in any other way. For some people, as for the little boy, these symbols have to be believed literally in order for them to have any reality. But this is better, isn't it, than for these people to have nothing that stands to them for truth?

FCC to move crucial step forward with Digital TV

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Federal regulators are moving ahead on a plan that would pave the way for broadcasters to offer higher-quality digital television — the biggest innovation since color picture tubes in the 1950s.

The Federal Communications Commission is expected to propose rules today that would match up each of 1.600 TV stations, which now use analog channels, with a digital channel.

Until TV stations convert entirely to a digital format, they'll transmit programs on two channels — one in analog and one in digital. This way, existing TV sets, which are capable of receiving only analog signals, won't be rendered immediately obsolete.

administration says that could put stations out of business. The PCC's proposal doesn't deal with the issue because only Congress has the authority to put the second channels up for auction.

Using the language of com-puters - ones and zeroes digital technology offers movie-quality images with CD-quality sound. It also is more efficient than existing analog technology. Because stations would be able to transmit four or five digital channels in the space of one analog channel, they could use the extra space for new, probably pay, services such as beaming stock quotes or sport scores to laptop computers.

Today, TV uses channels 2 through 69. Under the PCC's proposal, TV would use chan-nels 7 through 51 after a transition to digital is complete. On The second channels are that broadcasters and the FCC the FCC's proposal would reclaim channels 2 through 6 and 52 through 69 in part for new, non-broadcast services.

Therein lies the controversy. TV broadcasters want to keep exclusive use of 10 channels -60 through 69 - during the transition to digital. The PCC's proposal minimizes broadcasters' use of that spectrum, auctioning what's left over. Broadcasters say the PCC's proposal would subject some TV stations - mainly those in the crowded top markets like New York, Los Angeles and Chicago — to interference and limit the reach of their signals. "We need the full spectrum of channels to make the transition as planned," said Patti McNeill, spokeswoman for the National Association of Broadcasters.

FCC officials say the infer-ference would be very small and would be unavoidable even under the broadcasters' plan. FCC officials also say the limit on coverage is minimal.

The current transition period is 15 years, but the Clinton administration wants to shorten it to around nine. The FCC is rethinking how long the transi-tion should last.

Detroit and Omaha - now use channels 60 through 69, a part of the spectrum not well suited for television.

The FCC wants to allocate around 30 digital channels in this spectrum space and use the rest for non-broadcast services. The FCC says its plan limits the number of stations that would have to move off channels 60-69 once the switch to digital is complete.

Broadcasters want to put around 320 digital channels in that space and not have the ex-

Meantime, three more bodies were brought ashore carlier Wednesday. Of the 230 people who were killed, 116 bodies were still missing. Of the bodies recovered, 95 have been identified by the Suffolk County Medical Examiner's office.

Divers also believe they have spotted seven more bodies in the wreckage, Francis said.

Working about 100 feet down Wednesday on a sandy ocean floor that puffs up silt when stepped on, about 75 Navy divers negotiated their way through wires and cables that hang over the wreckage like a apider web.

"Large aircraft have miles and miles of wires." said Ray Downing, a supervisor of New York City Fire Department divers. "If it becomes loose, it floats." On Tuesday, one diver had to cut himself free.

After relatives demanded to get more information about recovery efforts. Francis said investigators would now tell families first whenever bodies are recovered. Francis apologized for the sluggish flow of information and said he would begin holding briefings twice a day.

The Coast-Guard, which had been searching a surface area about twice the size of Rhode Island, brought its vessels closer together to recover debris freed by divers that might float to the surface.

Late Tuesday and early Wednesday, the guard recovered about 200 pounds of plane parts from the surface, including seat cushions, sheet metal and insulation. Still, only 1 percent of the plane's wreckage had been collected.

With a map of the ocean bot-tom sketched by sonar, the way was cleared for use of Navy "hard-hat" divers, who can stay down longer than scubs divers. The arrival of a portable decompression chamber will also make the search safer. allowing immediate treatment of

Drought produces grasshopper crop

FORT WORTH. Texas - It's enough to make a farmer hopping mad.

First, the drought withers the crops. Then it's blamed for an overabundance of grasshoppers that desiroy anything that grows.

Entomologists say grasshoppers are causing more problems than usual this summer, particularly in central Texas.

Grasshoppers feed on grass, weeds or anything that is still green. In areas where there has been little rain they are roaming in search of food, denuding the landscape of anything edible.

"There's just no letup unless something unexpected stops them," said Texas A&M entomologist Carl Patrick. "I'm afraid it could be a long summer for those areas currently having problems."

There's not much farmers can do about the grasshoppers.

"Droughts come in cycles, and if they last long enough you will have a grasshopper problem," said Patrick. "Unfortunately, the best thing to do at this stage is wait and hope it rains — or start hoping for an early freeze."

Pesticide bills goes to Clinton

WASHINGTON — A bill to guard consumers from dangerous pesticides is going to President Clinton for his signature after speedy action by the Senate, which also adopted a measure designed to help people use prescription drugs safely.

In a 97-1 vote Wednesday, the Senate approved a spending bill that safeguards a government plan to have prescription drugs come with easy-to-read information on safe use.

Lawmakers later agreed by voice vote to an overhaul of pesticide laws that simplifies pesticide regulation for the food industry while creating stronger protections for consumers, especially infants and children. "This bill demonstrates how Congress and the adminis-

"This bill demonstrates how Congress and the administration can work together to help farmers and consumers, and I look forward to signing it," Clinton said of the pesticide measure.

Presbyterian hospitals merge

NEW YORK — New York and Presbyterian hospitals said Wednesday they plan to merge, the third big merger among the city's private teaching hospitals in the past month.

When completed, under the name The New York and Presbyterian Hospitals Health Care System, the transaction would bring together more than 20 hospitals and other health care institutions throughout the city. Their combined revenues exceed $2.5 billion, the hospitals said in a joint announcement.

The merged hospitals would maintain their separate academic affiliations — New York with Cornell University Medical College and Presbyterian with the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

All the proposed mergers would create three giants, each with more than 2,000 beds. The New York-Presbyterian combination would be the biggest, with 2,600 beds.

On July 2, Beth Israel Medical Center and Long Island Jewish entered merger negotiations expected to be completed in a few weeks.

Two weeks earlier, in a move to keep their medical research programs healthy. Mount Sinai and New York University medical centers began the yearlong process of combining into a 2.260-bed giant.

Whitewater: Lawyers and judge mull instructions to jury

By JAMES JOPPENGOU Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK. Ark. - A judge denied defense motions to diamise charges against two Arkanses bankers in advance of closing arguments in the Whitewater trial of two longtime supporters of President Clinton.

The case of Herby Branscum Jr. and Robert M. Hill was expected to go to the jury today, after the prosecution and defense attorneys summarized their cases following 21 days of testimony.

In almost casual fashion Wednesday, lawyers for Branseum and Hill, owners of rural Perry County Bank, rested their cases. The two are accused of diverting their bank's money into the campaign coffers of Clinton and other Arkansas politicians. Clinton is not charged in the case.

Defense lawyers renewed previous motions asking U.S. District Judge Susan Webber Wright to throw out the charges. She denied the request.

Prosecutors alleged the bankers conspired to conceal from the internal Revenue Service $52,500 in cash withdrawals by the Clinton for Governor campaign in 1990, and of misapplying $13,000 in bank funds over four years to reimburse contributions to Clinton and other politicians.

Prosecutors claim the bankers broke the law to ingratiate themselves with Clinton, who appointed them to influential state positions.

In videotaped testimony last week, the president said both men were deserving of the appointments — Branscum to the state Highway Commission and Hill to the state Banking Board.

Defense lawyer Dan Guthrie said it was ridiculous to suggest Branacum stole from himself to curry favor with Clinton, whom he had known and supported since the 1970s.

"If we're lucky we can make it telegenic," ABC News Vice President Jeff Grainich told a gathering of the Television Critics Association on Wednesday.

Countrymen urged to ignore coup

BUJUMBURA, Burundi — Burundi's Hutu president urged his countrymen to ignore an apparent coup by the Tutsi-led army that forced him to flee to the U.S. ambassador's residence, and an aide vowed he would not resign.

The streets of the capital were calm today, with the main market open and busy and people going about their business.

"The most important thing right now is to make sure the population in Burundi will not start killing each other." Mames Bansubibko, a close adviser to President Sylvestre Ntibantunganya, said Wednesday.

Niibantunganya (pronounced En-tee-bahn-toon-gan-yah) sought refuge in the residence of U.S. Ambassador Morris Hughes late Tuesday after Tutsi paratroopers surrounded government buildings in the capital, Bujumbura.

facture a crime where there is no crime."

From the outset, Guthrie has alleged the trial was a political prosecution to embarrass the president, a claim prosecutors denied despite making records from Clinton's 1990 gubernatorial campaign a prominent part of their case.

Neal T. Ainley, a former Perry County Bank president, was the prosecution's chief witness against his former basses. He also implicated Clinton's top presidential adviser. Bruce Lindacy, in an alleged scheme to keep required reports on cash withdrawals over $10,000 from the IRS.

The prosecution theory is that Lindsey wanted to shield a possible future Clinton for President campaign from embarrassing questions about how campaign cash was sent. Lindsey was not charged but was designated by prosecutors an unindicied co-conspirator and spent two days on the stand.

Also surfacing in the trial was a 1990 memo from a campaign aide to Bill Clinton that raised questions about whether Clinton's 1990 campaign misused get-out-the-vote funds.

The memo, written by Carol Willis, a former Clinton campaign aide who is now a senior adviser to the Democratic National Committee, suggested using political money for "preventative maintenance" targeted at individuals who could "stifle" Clinton's final campaign for governor.

However, Willis said in an interview Wednesday that he coined the term "preventative maintenance" and that it was never intended 'to denote a sinister use of campaign funds.

Willis said he wrote the memo as part of a routine budget request for get-out-the-vote help in areas where Clinton's support may have been weak.

MIAMI - Kevin Brown pitched eight shutout innings and Gary Sheffield tied a club record with his 27th homer as the Florida Marlins beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 for their seventh win in 10 games. Brown (9-8) allowed six hits, struck out four and walked one. Robb Nen, who relieved after Mike Ptazza's leadoff single in the ninth, struck out the side for his 20th save.

Sheffleid, who also hit 27 homers in 1994, put Florida ahead in the first inning with his first homer since July 12. His career high of 33 was ect with San Diego in 1992.

Nomo retired the next 17 batters before Sheffield beat out a slow roller in the seventh. Sheffield moved to second when second baseman Delino DeShielda threw wide for an error and stole third as Jeff Conine walked.

Devon White then hit the ball to Greg Gagne, who threw home and caught Sheffield in a rundown as the runners advanced to second and third. Joe Orsulak followed with a single to center that drove in two runs.

Doing Sanford proud All-Stars finish third in 13-15 State Tournament

From Staff Reports

OCALA - After playing their worst game of the All-Star season, the Sanford stars bowed their backs and showed everyone they belonged in the Babe Ruth Baseball 13-15 Year Old State Tournament, winning two games before failing to host Ocala and finishing third in the tournament.

Only four other Sanford baseball teams have done better, with one Little Major (1963), one Junior Major (1973) and one Senior Major (1973) league and one Prpe Babe Ruth team (1990) all finishing second in the state.

The local squad got off to a horrible start, as Jefferson County (Madison) scored six runs in the top of the first inning and went on to stop Sanford by the 10-run rule, 11-1, after five innings.

Sanford was only outhit 6-2, but walks and five errors did in the locals.

Tomas Berrios had a single and drove in Sanford's only run, while Tug Daniels had a single and Mike Robinson scored the run.

Sanford then got its act together against Suwance County (Live Oak). taking a 7-0 lead in the top of the fourth inning and holding on for a 9-7 victory.

Doing the damage for Sanford were Robinson (3-for-3, three runs, three RBI). Freddie Hawkins (2for-4, two doubles, run, RBI), Randy Casey (2-for-2, double, three runs, RBI). Berrios (2-for-4, double, two RBI), T.J. Thompson (triple, run), Daniels (single, run) and Levi

Raines (RBI).

Sanford then got a rematch with Jefferson County and showed the Madison team that they should not have won the first game as after a slow start Sanford cased to a 9-6 triumph.

Contributing to a 12-hit Sanford attack were Justin Nettles (3-for-4, two doubles, run). Berrios (2-for-4. home run, run, three RBI), Daniela and Thompson (two singles, one run and one RBI each). Casey (double, three runs, RBI), Robinson (double, run), Justin Brickson (single, run) and Hawkins (RBI).

The first inning demons again got Sanford in its last game late Saturday night as Ocala scored four runs in the top of the first inning and the local squad could not recover, suffering a 9-3 loss to host Ocala.

Berrios again led Sanford, driving in a run with a double. Other offensive contributors were Thompson (double). Hawkins (single, run) and Daniels and Robinson (one run ncored each).

Spurrier suspends three

GAINESVILLE - Junior tailback Fred Taylor, freshman cornerback Dock Pollard and sophomore tackle Pat Browning will miss games due to "conduct inappropriate for a Florida football player," coach Steve Spurrier said.

Taylor has been suspended by a student judicial committee for September because of his role in a book-theft incident.

Bewhere

Ervin suspended

AUSTIN. Texas - Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin, who had a career-high 111 receptions last year, was suspended for the first five games of the NFL season.

The suspension comes eight days after Irvin pleaded no contest to felony cocaine possession charges and was fined $10,000, placed on four years probation and sentenced to 800 hours of community service.

The suspension will cost Irvin over $500,000. He will miss games with the Bears, Giants, Colts, Bills and Eagles before becoming eligible to return Oct. 13, when the Cowboys are at home against Arizona following a bye week.

Knicks trade Davis

NEW YORK (AP) - The Knicks traded shooting guard Hubert Davis to the Raptors for a first-round draft pick New York originally sent to Dallas to acquire Derek Harper in Jan. 1994. The Mavericks sent the pick to Toronto.

Davis, a 1992 first-round pick from North Carolina, became expendable when the Knicks signed free agent Allan Houston on June 14. He had the NBA's third-best 3-point shooting percentage last season, 47.6, going 127-for-267, but averaged only 10.7 points.

Longwood wins 14's state

From Staff Reports

SARASOTA - The state championship was enough this time.

They did it the hard way, but the Longwood All-Stars followed up last year's World Championship by winning the Babe Ruth Baseball 14 Year Old State Championship at Sarasota last weekend.

Longwood got off to a rough start, dropping a 14-13 alugiest to host Samaota Friday evening, but, with their backs to the wall, the local squad came back to win four straight games.

Longwood coasted to victories over Miami (11-2) and Sarasota (14-4), then defeated Manatee (Bradenton) in two hard-fought games, 3-2 and 3-0, to claim the title.

Manatee was the best team, especially the pitching. that we've seen over the two years," said Longwood manager Andy Westervelt. "Their pitchers were not hard throwers, but they threw strikes to spots.

"Kevin Melillo hit the ball all over the place in the tournament, he was our best player. Our pitching was great, we got three complete games, but we didn't hit well except for Kevin."

Longwood finishes the 1996 campaign with a 6-1 record and is now 23-2 over two years.

"We could have gone to a regional tournament." said Westerveit. "But with school starting on August 1 and most of our kids going into high school for the first time, the parents felt it would be best to stop now. The regional was as far as we could go, anyway, because there is no national tournament at the 14-year old level."

stead of a drive-thru. People think nothing of spending up to five dollars on fast food three times a day, five days a week, then wonder why they can't seem to build any savings. If you spend an average of $30 a week on fast food, you would probably be shocked to learn that the same $30 will buy enough at a supermarket to feed two people for the whole week, including the weekend. Another great benefit is that you'd almost certainly be eating healthier food than the bacon cheeseburger. fries and soft drink you get at a et food joint. ſ.

So simply changing your food-buying habits to include a weekly trip to the grocery store will save you a lot of money. Saving even more on food takes a real smart supermarket shopper who knows the right strategies.

Everyone's heard the one about not shopping when you're hungry, and that's a very good idea. Hunger makes you crave foods you wouldn't otherwise buy, and you end up walking out with more than you need. Another good strategy is to move quickly and efficiently through the store. Bring a shopping list and a pen with you, and when you get in the door, take five minutes to look at the directory and jot down the correct aisle number for each item. You'll spend a lot more money if you're just browsing atual price for just one, though, it may only be two dollars. If that's the case, and you don't need two, just get the one. Also, have you ever been shopping in the meat section, looking for a pound of ground beef, and all they have are two pound packs? Feel free to take one of thoser packs to the butcher and have them cut it in half. It won't cost you a penny per pound more. And finally, don't assume that all supermarkets have the same prices. If you have a few chains in your area and you don't know which ones are least expensive, check them all out. Make a list of the ten or so products you buy the most and do some comparison shopping. Often you'll find a huge difference between chains, and if you can save just five percent, it adds up to hundreds of dollars over the long

Online romance spells trouble for man and married woman

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old, divorced Michigan man who has been communicating over the Inter-net with a 41-year-old Australian women for more than two months. Kate (not her real name) stated in our first "meeting" (in an online chat room) that she was unhappy in her marriage. Even though she was married, I thought it would be interesting to talk to someone so far Way.

We seemed to really click, exchanged photos, and even talked on the telephone a few times. Our online communication has always been pleasant and satisfying nothing sexual, just flirtatious.

We have reached the point where we feel we may have started something we might want to contin-ue. Kate has told her family and friends that she wants to come to America to visit me for a month, and I have agreed to pay half her airfare.

Ordinarily I would not allow myself to get involved with a mar-ried woman, but I can't deny I have strong feelings for Kate and want to see her.

Dose this sound like destiny or an online infatuation that has gone too far? Kate is getting a passport and may arrive within the manth. Have we last our common sense, or does this sound like two people taking a chance on hap D.R. IN MICHIGAN

Bottled water: fad or necessity?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you com-ment on the craze of bottled water? Every athlete I see has some, and I always see crowds of people drinking

DEAR READER: I think the whole issue is just a silly fad. Bottled water is no better than most tap water; it simply costs more. You might remember, a few years ago, a national magazine undertook a ago, a national magazine undertook a study of the relative values of bottled water vs. municipal water. To every-one's surprise the winner was... New York City! Incredibly, New York's municipal water, which is piped hun-dreds of miles from distant reservoirs in archaic pipes, was found to be the most pure and flavorful. And it was cheap... at least to New Yorkers.

Therefore, I agree with you about the present "craze."

Some athletes get paid a bundle for drinking bottled water (and showing off the label). But many consumers may be like my friends, who take an empty bottled-water container, fill it up with the nearest garden hose, and enjoy a refreshing gulp of tapwater, without the platinum price.

Nonetheless, it is entirely possible that harmless municipal water supplies can become contaminated (with lead and other substances) in the process of traveling through old pipes to individual residences or apartments. Therefore, to make absolutely certain that one's drinking water is safe, it should be tested by an independent laboratory.

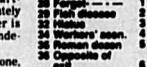

I'll certainly get letters on this one, so let's move on to a less controversial topic, such as the fad regarding sportswear. Question: Does clothing make the athlete?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed, through biopsy, as having dis-coid lupus. Getting any useful information from my dermatologist is like talking to a rock. I presently receive cortisone shots when the affected area seems inflamed. Can you give me any information on my condition?

DEAR READER: Discoid lupus, unlike the more serious form of lupus (which affects many of the body's organs), causes only a skin disorder marked by reddish, round, scaly lesions, especially on the nose and scalp. The disease is usually treated with cortisone creams or injections. It is not a hazard to health.

However, because the lesions of dis-coid lupus may be identical to those of systemic lupus, your doctor must confirm that the latter condition isn't really a problem. Therefore, you need special blood tests. Systemic lupus is treated with Plaquenil and pred-

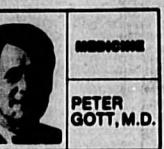

In addition, about 10 percent of people with discoid lupus eventually develop internal organ disease. This means that you should undergo peri-odic blood testing — at your physi-cian's discretion — to make sure that your harmless skin disease hasn't changed into the systemic variety.

The cause of lupus is unknown but is believed to be related to an autoimmune state in which a person

Help partner out By Phillip Alder

An easy question to start: Excludin trash, what is the biggest eyesore next to the road? Obviously, fire hydrants are the ugli-est roadside item. And around here the eyesores have been made even worse eyesores have been made even worse because red plastic flags on top of met-al flaggooles have been attached to the hydrants. However, it turns out that there is a reason behind the apparent madness. What is it, do you think? At the bridge table, you can help the club nine. How should the play proceed?

The first trick went club nine, seven, jack, ace. Declarer played a heart to dummy's king and ran the diamond jack. After winning with the king. West returned his remaining club. Declarer won in hand with the 10, unblocked the ace-queen of diamonds, led a club to dummy's king, cashed the diamond nine, played a heart to his ace and took the club queen as his ninth trick. "Why didn't you switch to a spade at trick three?" asked East. "I can see now that that would have worked better," replied West. "But you misled me at trick one."

"Since when was third hand high wrong?" "When declarer is strong in the suit and our future lies elsewhere. Here, when we both know I am short in clubs, playing the club jack guaran-tees the queen as well. If you just play the club two at trick one, I will realize the need for a switch. And finding the spade 10 shouldn't be too difficult."

Flags have been put on hydrants so that they can be found even when

For many years we have accepted that the first three months of pregnancy have been the most important and the most sensitive time of fetal development. Health care providers however are becoming more aware that the time period prior to pregnancy is at least equal or more important. The idea of preconception counseling is significant. A number of disorders and diseases can be prevented or controlled, and therefore can enhance the opportunity for a got outcome in pregnancy. Preconception counseling affords the health care provider the opportunity to act at a time when patients are able to think clearly and make decisions that are unaffected by the presence of pregnancy. We have found that the most opportune time to make decisions concerning reproduction is before conception rather than after. To make a decision with an existing programcy in the balance is rarely an easy or practical matter.

Women are now advised to visit their health care provider when a potential for prognancy exists or if prognancy is being considered. It is at that time that historical facts and a physical examination should be completed. Laboratory evalua-

Mind and body connection

By Loolic Pallono Special to the Herald

Leslie Palate is a Plarida siste licensed mantal health counselor and a resident of Lake Mary. She has submitted this article as a community service.

As a mental health therapist I have had the occasion to talk with maurance companies regarding coverage for mental health conditions. "I'm sorry," said one company, "We don't cover mental conditions." "You mean to say," I replied "that if stress causes an ulcer or heart attack you will cover that; but if it effects the brain or the while cover that; but a it enects the train or the nervous system you will not cover H?" "Correct", I was told, "nothing from the neck up? "Do you not consider the brain to be a physical organ?" I went on. I got no farther reply. It was obvious to this insurance clerk that I was out to make trouble.

The mind and the body are wondrously interconnected. We all know that. Sadly, however, revival of this idea in the 1990's is wreaking havoc with our categories of health professionals and our plans of treatment. As with Reese's candy the chocolate's got into the peanut butter and nothing will ever be the same again.

Mental health conditions are traditionally treated Mental health conditions are traditionally treated with 'talk therapy", medication and/or behaviorism. Yet, discoveries have been made that link alcoholisms with low blood sugar, vitamin deficiencies with numerous mental conditions (e.g. schizophrenia with niacin deficiency, anxiety with imbalances in amino acids and protein deficiencies, violent behavior with mineral imbalances, obsessive-compulsive behavior with serotonin levels, and hyperactivity with different nutritional factors.) Makes you wonder about the chronic patients that don't get well with traditional mental health therapy, especially with the typical American "junk flood" diet that has so dramatically increased in the last 20 years. A correlation??

Now the obvious response might seem to be to rush out to the local health food store and load up on lots of this stuffit Unfortunately, unless very well educated, this is a lot like buying a lottery ticket. You might win: and the more you buy, your odds increase (maybe).

As I see it, with all the recent available data about these mind/body connections, the ultimate solution will be a genuine merger between physical and mental health professionals who will need to work hand in hand - again. The 1970's-80's saw enlightenment of physicians to take into account 'the emotional aspects' of a patient. Hopefully the 1990's will bring the same push for psychologists, psychiatrists and other mental health professionals to increase awareness of body chemistry effects on the mind.

Maybe by the year 3000 we will reach a new heightened understanding of what makes us tick! Until then our best bet is to self-educate looking forwards and backwards. There is still much wisdom to relearn from the basics of grandparents and other "ancient" sources-est balanced meals. rest, exercise, and maintain spiritual peace. And our future "sages"-computers--might catch what ingredient grandma left out of the soup!

Here in Lake Mary we have so much to offer children. Our achools are the pride of Seminole County. We have playgrounds, sidewalks, lakes, a growing YMCA and a library that couldn't be located more appropriately for middle and high-schoolers. Our wouth can roam about just about as freely as any youth in today's so clety. So what's wrong with this picture?

You may have read several articles recently written about bicycle accidents and the benefits of blke heimets. I read them and I could not forget them. It was not because this has been a big problem in Lake Mary, but because it has been that I am SO CONCERNED. Human nature is pretty constritent. In areas where a tratedy occurs, something is usually done AFTER the fact. Why wait for a tragedy? Why wait for statistics?

The facts are that several hundred children a year are killed in bike accidents. Bicycle iniuries are considered to be the leading cause of death for children between the ages five and14-years. Wearing helmete greatly reduce the risk of head injury and death in bike acci-dents. In Lake Mary, we have a large population of children ages five to 15-years who rely on bilting daily as their means of transportation to and from school.

and their treatments can adversely complicate pregnancy. It is best if the conditions are well controlled prior to the consideration of pregnancy and well managed before and during the presnancy, Management is generally much easier if the condition is controlled at the onset of pregnancy.

A woman's prior reproductive history is very important. Previous pregnancy losses, genetic disorders, ongoing gynecological disorders, as well as infections can interfere with pregnancy. In some cases the risk of poor pregnancy outcome may be increased asb-stantially. Specific recommenda-tions may be given to aller as en-hanced opperfundly to here a mac-cessful extense.

Many women and the werweight at the time of prognancy and may be at increased risk for adverse outcome. potential fir adverse propancy outcome. High sweis of vision A., some medication using to tract epilepsy, asthma, and infections can lead to in increased incidence of pregnancy less and birth defects. It is imperative that these factors be eliminated if at all pos-sible or substitutions made to provide alternative or safer medications. In some cases, pregnancy may be discouraged. It is necessary in many cases for the patient to decide whether to seek pregnancy after balancing the need for her medication with its potential to do harm. The best time to decide is before the pregnancy.

Substance abuse in pregnancy is suspected in 15% of pregnancies. The use of alcohol, tobacco and illicit drugs should stop before pregnancy begins. It is often disappointing when many of my patients state that they will quit these habits when they get pregnant rather than prior to their pregnancy. Pregnancy should not motivate good health but good bealth should motivate consideration for pregnancy. In some cases behavioral changes are necessary to allord the unhorn fetus its best opportunity for survival. Other habits and hobbies will sometimes need modification. For example those who have diets that may include the indestion of raw meats. or who have habits that may inroive pets such as cats. (Raw meat and the litter box of cats may be contaminated with a parasite that can lead to fetal damage.) Changes in these activities may be necessary to avoid potential harm.

data supports the use of supplemental folic acid from the beginning of pregnancy. Birth defects involving the early formation of the nervous system have been associated with deficiencies. Folic acid is now routinely recommended and greacribed prior to pregnancy. Dists high in folic acid (leafy dark vegetables, fruits, citrus juices. yeast, breads, beans and fortified breakfast cereals) should be included in the diets of patients prior to pregnancy and continued through the pregnancy.

The overall purpose of preconceptual care is twofold: (1) identify risk factors: (2) intervention. This will hopefully translate into improved outcomes. The preconceptual period is the best time to elicit this useful information. This promotes mod health and improved childbearing which is the goal of modern obstetrics. It is simple to see that a host of advantages exist in planning pregnancies. Many disasters can be avoided.

My recommendations are straightforward. Each woman of childbearing age who is potentially considering or actively seeking premancy should seek a qualified health care provider for assessment. Each individual both male and female should be thoroughly educated with restards to their particular reproductive risks in an effort to promote improved reproductive health and family planning options.

Continued from Page 6 children (and adulta) don't wear blke belmets because 'no one else does." The fact that belimets are somewhat awkward and uncomfortable is probably secondary (as was the case when seat beits were introduced). PEER PRESSURE not to look like a "geek" is especially strong in the middle school age group. So what's a concerned parent to do?

First, we need to examine the facts. We need to become BE-LIEVERS! How important is the safety of our children's heads? WE need to get motivated! Second, if we are to deal with peer pressure, we must network and organize - through PTA, school safety programs, community organizations like the county traffic safety team. In some states-it is already mandatory for children to wear hike helmets. Florida ta now one of these states. I believe an incentive program, prefcrably through schools and supported by the community, would be an excellent means of implementing this safety habit. As children are educated about the problem, they could be offered incentives such as leadership opportunities, free homework passes, or pizza parties. Local businesses could offer coupons for fast food treats, movie rentals, etc.

School will resume in two weeks. What a great time to start motivating ourseives and increasing awareness within the community of this issue. Let's make 1996-97 THE YEAR OF THE SAFE HEAD.
